Communication.

The following communication was received, and ordered printed in the Journal:

S. F. No. 879—Resolution No. 16.

A Joint Resolution—Memorializing the President and Congress of the United States to amend the Federal law so as to permit the States to tax National banks upon a fair and equitable basis and requesting the States to join in a similar memorial

WHEREAS, The several States are prohibited from taxing the property, income or shares of National banks except in the precise method prescribed by Congress (section 5219 R. S. U. S.); and

WHEREAS, From 1866 to 1923 the only method by which Congress authorized the States to tax National banks was to tax upon their shares and during such period such shares were taxed by the States at the property rate, upon the same basis as the property of the farmer,, merchant, manufacturer and home owner, thereby securing equality of the burden of taxation among all property owners, and

WHEREAS, Said Federal statute provided that the rate of such tax should not exceed the rate imposed by the State upon other moneyed capital in the hands of individual citizens of the States invested in notes, bonds and other evidences of debt (moneys and credits) coming into competition with the business of banking, and

WHEREAS, Beginning in 1921 and continuing down to the present time there have been rendered various decisions of the United States Supreme Court and other Federal and State courts, construing the above limitation, the effect of which decisions has been to practically destroy the power of the States to tax the shares of National banks, it being manifestly impossible to classify such investments into those competing and those not competing with the business of National banks. It is also clearly evident that there is no similarity or relationship between shares in a National bank which have a right to share in the profits of a going business arising from the income from all the deposits in the bank as well as the capital invested in shares, and also to share in the income received from other activities of such bank and a debt evidenced by a note or bond, the income from which is limited to the interest provided therein. It is absurd to claim that for purposes of taxation such wholly different types of property should be treated precisely alike; and,

WHEREAS, Although the Federal act in form permits States to tax the net income of banks or to levy a tax measured by or according to such net income, such method is entirely and wholly unjust, inequitable and inadequate. Because, first, when such method is used by a State it is in lieu of all other forms of taxation. Second, any such bank is entirely tax free unless it makes a net profit, whereas all other persons, owners of property, must pay a tax whether they make a profit or loss. This places the National banks in a privileged class and exempts them from paying any share of the public burdens during the period when they do not make a net profit, thus shifting their share of the tax burden upon other property owners. Third, in all the States where the net income, or measured by net income methods have been used, the shrinkage in taxes collected from banks have ranged from 66⅔ per cent to 90 per cent, as compared to former tax collections under the share tax plan; and

WHEREAS, Because of the decisions of courts holding void taxes upon the shares of National banks the whole matter of taxing banks, both National and State, has been thrown into great confusion, many of the States have been persuaded to abandon the share method of taxing banks and have either adopted low millage rates of from three to five mills on the dollar of value of such stock, or have adopted the income tax, or measured by income tax methods, with the result that in the past ten years the total tax of National banks have been reduced from $79,376,000 in 1922 to $48,080,000 in 1932, notwithstanding the fact that during such period the total capital and surplus of such banks increased from $2,356,427,000 to $2,828,408,000, and thus during a period when taxes have increased upon all other forms of property and for all other persons, banks have secured reductions, and

WHEREAS, In March, 1927, the Supreme Court of the United States held bank taxes in Minnesota to the amount of approximately $1,200,000 void because the rate was higher than the rate on moneys and credits and the Legislature at once established the Minnesota Bank Tax Commission for the purpose of obtaining such an amendment to the Federal law as would permit this and other States to tax bank stock upon its value as other property is taxed; said commission has in all practicable ways endeavored to secure such amendment by enlisting the cooperation of all other States and other taxing officials, by appearing before committees of the Senate and House of Representatives of Congress of the United States, by attending National tax conferences, by correspondence with tax officials of all other States and by conferences with them and otherwise; and

WHEREAS, Through the efforts of the said commission and the tax officials of other States bills have been introduced at every session of Congress providing for the necessary amendments to said Federal act, and by reason of the lobby maintained by the American Bankers Association, all efforts to obtain such legislation have been unsuccessful; however, in June, 1934, the Banking and Currency Committee of the House of Representatives reported favorably upon a bill introduced by Mr. Steagall, chairman of said committee, which bill would grant to the States all the relief required. Said report is an unanswerable argument in favor of restoring to the States the power to tax bank shares upon an equitable basis, the same as they were taxed for nearly 60 years; and

WHEREAS, Bills identical with the so-called Steagall Bill have been introduced and are now pending in the Congress of the United States, and it is of the utmost importance that all of the States join in the effort to secure the passage thereof, now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Legislature of the State of Minnesota, That the Congress of the United States, the President of the United States, are hereby respectfully and earnestly urged to so amend section 5219 R. S. U. S., that the States may tax the shares of National banks upon the ad valorem basis with no other limitation thereof except that the rate be not greater than the rate imposed upon the shares of State banks; be it further

Resolved, That all the States of the United States are hereby earnestly urged and requested to adopt resolutions similar to this resolution memorializing Congress and the President of the United States to pass such legislation and to cooperate with the State of Minnesota for the purpose of securing the enactment of such legislation until the same is secured, be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of State of Minnesota is authorized and requested to send copies of this resolution to the President of the United States, Vice President of the United States, Speaker of the House of Representatives of the United States, and to each member of the House of Representatives from the State of Minnesota also to send a duly authenticated copy hereof to the Presiding Officer of each house of the Legislature of all the States in the Union, and to the chairman of the tax committees of each house thereof

Such appointment shall be made by an instrument in writing, signed by the commissioner over his official seal, and upon such examination, investigation, or hearing the same shall be produced by such assistant, deputy, investigator or auditor at any time upon demand therefor.

(b) Whenever the commissioner shall believe from evidence satisfactory to him that any person has violated or is about to violate any of the provisions of this act, or any order, license, permit, decision, demand or requirement, or any part or provision thereof, he may bring an action in the name of the people of the State of California in the superior court of the State of California against such person to enjoin such person from continuing such violation or engaging therein or doing any act or acts in furtherance thereof. In said action an order or judgment may be entered awarding such preliminary or final injunction as may be proper.

SEC. 23. Every order, decision, license, finding, rule, regulation, ruling, demand, or other official act of the commissioner shall be subject to review, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter I of Title I of Part III of the Code of Civil Procedure. Upon such review, the burden of proof shall lie upon the appellant, and the court shall receive and consider any pertinent evidence, whether oral or documentary, concerning the action of the commissioner under review, but shall be limited to a consideration and determination of the question whether there has been an abuse of discretion on the part of the commissioner in making such order, decision, license, finding, rule, regulation, ruling, demand, or other official act.

SEC. 24 (a) Any person, firm, copartnership, association, trust, corporation or natural or artificial entity and the several members, officers, directors, agents, and employees thereof, who shall violate any of the provisions of section 5, 12, 13, 15a, 15b 16, 18a, 18b, or 18c of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

(b) Any contract of loan not invalid for any other reason, in the making or collection of which any act shall have been done which constitutes a misdemeanor under this section, shall be void and the lender shall have no right to collect or receive any principal, interest, or charges whatsoever.

SEC. 25. All investigating, license and other fees collected by the commissioner under this act shall be paid at least once each week, accompanied by a detailed statement thereof, into the treasury of the State to the credit of the fund to be known as the "Personal property brokers fund," which fund is hereby created. All money paid to the commissioner, as in this act provided, shall be paid by him into the State treasury and credited to the personal property brokers fund, and all such moneys are hereby appropriated to be used by the commissioner in carrying out the provisions of this act, and the Comptroller shall draw his warrant on said fund from time to time in favor of the commissioner for the amounts expended under his direction, and the Treasurer shall pay the same. The commissioner may, with the consent of the Board of Control, withdraw from said fund a sum not exceeding one thousand five hundred dollars ($1,500), to be used as a revolving fund where cash advances are necessary, and the commissioner must account for such sums so withdrawn for said revolving fund at any time upon demand of the Board of Control.

SEC. 26. Any personal property broker having a license as such, issued by the commissioner for the calendar year 1935, under Chapter 577, Statutes 1933, in force when this act becomes effective, may surrender such license to the commissioner, and upon payment of one hundred dollars ($100) to the commissioner, the commissioner shall issue a new license to operate as a licensee under this act for the remainder of the calendar year 1935, at the particular location specified in such new license; provided, however, that any such new license so issued may be suspended or revoked for cause in the manner and on the grounds hereinabove specified in this act, and that any licensee to whom such new license is issued shall be subject to all of the provisions of this act as to licenses for other places of business, branches, agencies and locations.

SEC. 27. (a) All acts and parts of acts, whether general, special, or local, which relate to the same subject matter as this act are hereby repealed in so far as they are inconsistent with the provisions of this act.

(b) This act or any part thereof may be modified, amended, or repealed so as to effect a cancellation or alteration of any license or right of a personal property broker hereunder, provided that such cancellation or alteration shall not impair or affect the obligation of any pre-existing lawful contract between any personal property broker and any borrower.

SEC. 28. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause, or phrase of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of this act. The Legislature hereby declares that it would have passed this act, and each section, subsection, sentence, clause, and phrase thereof irrespective of the fact that any one or more other sections, subsections, sentences, clauses or phrases be declared unconstitutional

SEC. 29. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public, peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, and as such it shall take effect immediately. The following is a statement of the facts constituting such necessity:

As a consequence of the approval by the people of Assembly Constitutional Amendment No 79 appearing as proposition No. 12 on the ballot at the general election of November 6, 1934, which amendment sought to fix the general interest rate and exempted various clauses from certain of its provisions, there have come into existence throughout the State of California widespread abuses and usurious practices to the detriment of the necessitous borrowers of small sums of money. Because of the lack of any law regulating the practices indulged in by lenders and limiting the sum which they may exact from borrowers and because of the lack of governmental supervision, conditions exist under which necessitous borrowers of small sums are repeatedly and continuously exploited by rapacious lenders, with the result that such borrowers are forced into economic servility and subjection without the possibility of escape from this vicious type of oppression. At the same time the said lack of regulation prevents reputable, experienced and financially responsible lenders from engaging in the business of making small loans and thereby said necessitous borrowers are deprived of the benefits and protection which would result from comprehensive regulation of the lender by the State. The above mentioned Assembly constitutional amendment by its provisions contemplates legislative enactment relating to the subjects covered by it, and lack of such legislation has resulted in uncertainty making possible abusive practices inimical to the general welfare There exists, therefore, the necessity for comprehensive and effective legislation providing for regulation and supervision by the commissioner of such business for the protection of the borrower, whose plight is emphasized by prevalent depressed economic conditions, as well as for the protection of the business itself."

"WHEREAS, There exists not only in our own State of California, but also in every State in this Nation, a condition of unemployment, destitution and industrial and commercial stagnation, involving the loss of more than forty billion dollars annually, and

WHEREAS, This condition is inimical to the physical, moral and social welfare of the people, and strikes at the very foundation of our democracy by destroying the faith of the people in the institutions of representative government; and

WHEREAS, This state of affairs is directly traceable to the failure of our monetary system with its inherent inflexibility, to keep pace with the expanding energies of an advancing civilization, particularly when the control of money and credit had passed into the hands of private monopoly, and had become the means of exploitation; and

WHEREAS, It is the acknowledged duty of our government to provide a medium of exchange, adequate to the full utilization of our National productive capacity, and the control of that medium must be entirely subject to the authority delegated by the people to the Federal Government as provided in the Constitution; and

WHEREAS, Our unlimited resources and highly developed facilities of production are ample to provide universal abundant prosperity and economic security for all of our people, if means were provided to release the dormant energies now held in bondage by a debt burden unparalleled in all human history; and

WHEREAS, To continue borrowing is to continue the trend toward complete economic slavery, and final control of all the means of wealth production by a corporate feudality controlled by a few, and the inevitable destruction of a form of government conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men have equal rights to the pursuits of happiness; now therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly and the Senate of the State of California, jointly, That the President and the Congress of the United States be hereby respectively urged to enact appropriate legislation to establish a social credit system in the United States whereby the bonds of States, counties and municipalities may be deposited with the United States Government, and currency issued thereon without interest on the same terms as was formerly accorded to privately-owned National banks. Such bonds to be redeemed in twenty equal annual installments, payable at the rate of 5 per cent a year, and as they mature the currency issued would be returned to the government and the bonds canceled. This would provide a flexible currency, solidly backed by the growing wealth of the country, and adequate funds would thus be made available without usury, to restore our people to productive activity, rescue our States, counties and municipalities from bankruptcy, and inaugurate a new era of prosperity.

Resolved, That the Governor of the State of California be hereby requested to transmit copies of this resolution to the President and Vice President of the United States, to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to each Senator and member of the House of Representatives from California in the Congress of the United States, and that such Senators and members of the House of Representatives from California be hereby respectfully urged to support such legislation."

REPORT OF THE INTERIM COMMITTEE OF THE ASSEMBLY OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA

Be It Remembered, That on the twelfth day of May, 1933, the Assembly of the 1933 California Legislature adopted the following resolution:

Resolved, That said committee shall proceed to organize by the election of one of its members as chairman and by the election of a secretary and shall proceed with such survey and investigation in such manner as may be determined by the committee; and be it further

Resolved, That said committee is hereby authorized to hold public hearings at any place in the State of California at which hearings the people shall have oportunity to present their views to the committee; and be it further

Resolved, That said committee is hereby authorized and empowered to do all things necessary to make a full and complete investigation of the matters herein referred to and is hereby authorized and empowered to require the production of books, agreements, documents and papers of every kind, to issue subpenas and to compel the attendance of witnesses and to procure testimony. Each of the members of said committee is hereby authorized to administer oaths and all the provisions of Article VIII of Chapter II, Title I, Part III of the Political Code of the State, relative to the attendance and assemblage of witnesses before the Legislature and committees thereof shall apply to the committee appointed under this resolution. Said committee may sit during the sessions of the Legislature, during the recesses thereof and during the interval between sessions, and be it further

Resolved, That said committee shall report and make recommendations to the fifty-first session of the Legislature during the session commencing in January, 1935, before the constitutional recess thereof; and be it further

Resolved, That the committee in order to make a comprehensive investigation of this problem, may accept donations from philanthropic persons, foundations and others interested in the survey and investigation, and shall expend such donations in carrying out the purposes hereof.

In accordance with the above resolution, the Speaker appointed Messrs Craig, Lyon and Cronin as such committee.

Pursuant to the foregoing resolution, the undersigned members of the Assembly named by the Speaker as the interim committee, met on the sixteenth day of March, 1934, at the hour of two o'clock p.m., in Room 610 of the State Building at Los Angeles, California. The meeting was called to order by Assemblyman Craig, and thereafter Mr. Craig was duly elected chairman of the committee. Assemblyman Cronin was elected secretary and Assemblyman Lyon was elected vice chairman. After several meetings at which pertinent evidence was examined, the committee made its conclusions and now makes the following report:

FOREWORD.

The "small loan problem" is not a new problem in the State of California, nor is it confined to this State or to the present period It is a problem arising out of the age-old custom of lending money for a consideration. Its vices are born of the dominion exercised by the one possessed of plenty over him who has little or nothing. Its background is a composite of human frailties, of folly, credulity, improvidence and oppression. The origin of the problem may be traced partially to custom, but more accurately to the vagaries of human character. Its manifestations are disclosed and magnified by the power that is industry, by the centralization of capital, by the congestion of humanity into small areas, by the exactions of society, but fundamentally it may be found wherever men gather, because it is rooted in the essentials of human existence. It is necessary, therefore, that, before the problem is studied, it must be recognized first and its solution determined thereafter. By the very nature of things, such solution and consequent remedy must be paternal for it deals with the deficiencies of mankind, with the weakness of the oppressed and the helplessness of the unfortunate

INTRODUCTORY.

Since 1909 it has been the legislative policy of this State to divide the lending transactions for the purpose of regulation into the three general classifications of (1) loans secured by real estate, (2) loans secured by personal property, and (3) unsecured loans. From our investigation we conclude that such classification is sound and should not be disturbed. However, it is necessary to subdivide these classes further where circumstances require regulation appropriate to a part thereof only.

This report is concerned with the second class of loans, i.e., those secured by personal property. For the purpose of regulation, accuracy is increased by the classification of such loans as either consumptive or productive. A merchant borrows money with which to enlarge his stock, an industrialist borrows to build a factory; a farmer to buy seed. These are "productive" loans; they were made to enable production and profit. On the other hand, a wage earner's wife is sick and he borrows money that he may hire a physician; another borrows to buy a winter's coal supply; still another to repair a leaking roof. These are "consumptive" loans. The money derived therefrom is "consumed," absorbed by the routine of life Its expenditure is made necessary by some human or social need or by some emergency.

Because these loans as a rule are small, that designation has come to be universally used as a class name. By a similar rule established by custom, the "small loan" has been designated as one under $300. It must be borne in mind, however, that such designation is a matter of facility only and that essentially the nature and purpose of the loan must control the investigation. Such designation does not preclude regulation of loans of larger sums when circumstances require such regulation, as has been indicated by former legislation in this State and by regulatory legislation sustained and now in effect in various States It may be said, therefore, that we are here concerned with an investigation of "consumptive" loans and with evils connected therewith. One other observation should be made for clarity's sake:

the committee has isolated for separate comment the makers of small loans into the following divisions: Personal property brokers, pawnbrokers, industrial lenders and credit unions. Such division has been made for the reason that each named class presents special problems peculiar to itself.

PERSONAL PROPERTY BROKERS.

It has been said already that the problem of small loan legislation is not confined to California. The causes, the results, the attempts to remedy evils, these are universal. Necessarily, however, the details vary in different jurisdictions and in California custom and previous legislation have created a situation unlike any which has come to the attention of your committee. Today in California, it is virtually impossible to obtain a loan directly from a lender. The loan must be "negotiated" or "arranged" by a "broker" who exacts a fee for such service. This fee is additional to such interest as may be exacted by the lender. Since the law fixes no limit on the amount a "broker" may charge for his services, the cost to the borrower is such amount as the "broker" may arbitrarily assess.

In the year 1909, this Legislature passed an act known as the Personal Property Brokers' Act, and in 1911 that act was amended to provide for an interest rate of 2 per cent per month. Such interest provision remained unamended until repealed by the initiative measure passed by the people in 1918, and known as the Usury Law. This Usury Law provided for a maximum interest rate of 12 per cent per annum. It was general in character and made no exemptions. Consequently, the measure could be amended only by the people; the Legislature was without power to legislate upon any phase of interest, although its problems were recognized and the need of remedy conceded. This situation was confirmed by the decision of the Supreme Court rendered in 1932, given in the case of Beneficial vs. Haight, 215 Cal 506. Therein was concerned the act of the 1931 Legislature, which had thoroughly considered the small loan problem and thereafter passed remedial legislation patterned after the Uniform Small Loan Act, then in force in twenty-six States of the Union. That legislation was passed in the form of an amendment of the Personal Property Brokers' Act above referred to on the theory that the Usury Law, being general in scope, had not repealed the Personal Property Brokers' Act, which was specific The Supreme Court, however, held that the Usury Law was adamant and the Personal Property Brokers' Act was subject to it. The Usury Law was definitely established as the controlling statute of all money lending. Its inadequacy is discussed in a subtopic hereafter. Suffice it to say, at this point, that the limitations of the Usury Law were consistently evaded or avoided and the vices attendant upon high-rate lending remained.

The Legislature of 1933 was powerless to do anything to overcome such problems. It had been told by the Supreme Court that the people and not the Legislature could cope with the money lending evils. The possibility of reform by the people of a situation, made complex by myriad technicalities, was remote. Accordingly, the 1933 Legislature, after careful consideration, framed a constitutional amendment to be submitted to the people, which, in effect would amend the Usury Law and give the Legislature the power to legislate over those classes whose business conditions made reform necessary. The "personal property brokers," "pawnbrokers," "industrial lenders" and "credit unions" were among the classes named. The amendment referred to is Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 79, which appeared on the ballot November 6, 1934.

Apparently the people themselves had recognized the necessity of reform in the field of money lending, for the amendment passed with a substantial majority in its favor. As a consequence, the Legislature is free to act upon those problems which will be herein presented and to follow the recommendations of your committee which have resulted from an extraordinary and detailed investigation of the problems.

USURY LAW INADEQUATE.

Society has long recognized the weakness of the borrower as compared with the lender, and in essaying to protect the borrower from the avarice of the lender, Usury Laws were passed Taken as a class, these laws fix the maximum rate of interest chargeable by all classes. No distinction is made between secured and unsecured loans, between a high risk and a low one, between a "productive" loan and a "consumptive" loan The result is that such Usury Laws are inadequate, because they do not fit existing conditions. The Usury Law of this State is no exception; it essays to fix a maximum rate and does not distinguish between that class of loans in which the rate is sufficient and another class of loans in which the rate is unquestionably inadequate

A cardinal principle which may be announced as a theorem, proven by experience as well as logic, is that a lender will not part with his money unless he is compensated for its use. Money is a commodity for which the majority of humankind slave and search, and having acquired it, men guard it jealously. It is only for the purpose of increasing their capital that lenders risk their wealth. If that inducement is taken away, capital becomes timid and suspicious

The rate fixed by the Usury Law, to wit: 10 per cent per annum, may be conceded to be adequate where the security is sufficient. In that type of loan one factor and only one determines the loan, to wit: The value of the security hypothe-cated to the lender. Once that value is determined, the lender need only regard the mechanics of the loan transaction to insure himself of absolute security.

Suppose, however, that the borrower has no security. Is he to be barred from borrowing money? Because he has no bankable collateral, is he to be deprived of a right to borrow, thereby being forced to suffer the burden of some emergency or loss?

Who are these borrowers without security acceptable to banks? They are 85 per cent of the public; they are the masses; they are the people whose lives may be altered or shattered by tragedies which small financial assistance could avoid. They are the wage earners, the rank and file of our communities; they are the working class.

The Usury Law, by failing to provide adequate compensation for unsecured loans or loans made on security of personal effects, prevents lenders from making such loans and thereby deprives the majority of the people of the Commonwealth from enjoying a prerogative which undeniably is their right.

But because these agencies impose an excessive expense upon the borrower, the cost of the loan becomes exorbitant and disproportionate.

Because the lender making loans to the classes without bankable security is required to use the medium of third persons, or brokers, to avoid the rigors of the usury law, the cost of the loan thereby becomes burdensome and oppressive

Thus we discover the anomaly that the Usury Law designed to protect the weak actually adds to their burden.

RATE FIXED BY USURY LAW INADEQUATE.

The question may naturally be asked: "Why is it necessary to pay a lender more for a loan made on the security of personal effects, than for one with security which is acceptable to the banks? The answer is that the risk involved necessitates greater protective measures, requires greater compensation, and makes possible greater loss which must be recouped from the business at large.

The small loan of that character is characterized by detail necessary to consummate it. A brief consideration of the circumstances will amply illustrate the necessity for such detail. Suppose John Smith, a brakeman, applies for a loan. He owns no real estate, he has recently moved and his only income is his job He owns some furniture and possesses other furniture which he is buying on the installment plan. He owns no other property. Obviously before the risk of lending money to John Smith may be undertaken, considerable investigation is necessary. On the face of the statement above set out, John Smith is precluded from borrowing from any recognized lending medium, such as a bank or building and loan company. Moreover, he is precluded from borrowing from any medium, unless his "character" is shown as being worthy. Simply stated, the lender must insure himself that John Smith is honest. He must verify the fact that John Smith has a job, he must find out how long he has held it, what reputation he has with the company, how much money he owes to credit institutions for furniture, clothing or commodities, what reputation he has for prompt payment, how he comports himself socially, is he a spendthrift, does he have domestic troubles, does he owe doctor bills, are there any judgments outstanding. In fact, the lender must discover all the facts necessary to enable him to conclude that John Smith will probably repay the money he borrows.

Having discovered the facts, the lender's job is only half done. He must make a record of his investigations for future reference, he must draw the note evidencing the loan, he must prepare the mortgage which will secure the note, if an assignment of wages is given, he must assure himself that the employer will accept such assignment. After the money is advanced, he must collect the installments; he must send notices of due dates; he must remind John Smith by telephone And finally, the lender must pay the overhead incidental to the operations of his office.

No eloquence is necessary to indicate that the lender can not perform all the above functions for a return of 10 per cent per year. If the loan were larger or the security different, the recompense might be sufficient. But the Usury Law has not made provision for variable circumstances and the inevitable result is that legitimate capital is barred from the field of small loans.

The situation has been given careful and unbiased study and the conclusions reached are those above indicated Walter S. Hilborn, speaking as a director of the Division of Remedial Loans, of the Russell Sage Foundation, a philanthropic institution seeking reform in the field of small loans, has this to say:

> "Why should small loans bear a rate of interest so much higher than that at which large loans are customarily made? There are several valid grounds for the higher rate.
> 1. The risk on these loans is relatively greater, the duration of the loan being longer than in the case of ordinary bank loans, generally 12 months, and the security of a character not usually acceptable to a commercial bank.
> 2. Operating expense is high, because the amount of each loan is small, it must be collected in monthly installments, and investigation of the reliability of borrowers must be made with greater care than in the case of bank loans.

3. The lending capacity of a small-loan agency is limited to its cash capital on which it must pay dividends; while that of a commercial bank includes, in addition to its resources, the deposits of its customers on which it does not have to pay dividends or interest"

Reginald Heber Smith, an eminent attorney of the State of Massachusetts, chairman of the Committee on Legal Aid of the American Bar Association, in his treatise "The Facts About the Small Loan Business," says

"When it is stated that the legal rate cannot be fixed lower than 3½ per cent per month, that rate sounds high to the man who can step into a bank, put up collateral and get his loan at 6, 7 or 8 per cent per annum. There are three big differences which, after a little reflection, are clear: (1) The risk involved in the small loan is greater. The small loan is a personal risk. The bank loan is against collateral or business assets, (2) the licensed lender cannot charge the borrower for the expense of the loan, whereas the banks can and do. The bank loans, moreover, are for substantial sums which fall due at one time, (3) In proportion to the amounts loaned, the percentage of cost of conducting a small loans business is far greater (than that of conducting the bank loan department)."

Many additional authorities may be quoted on the subject. Suffice it to say that the Russell Sage Foundation, being a National remedial endowed organization, having made exhaustive research of the subject, has found that the rate fixed by the usual Usury Law is inadequate, and that a higher rate is required

USURY LAWS AVOIDED.

We are not interested in the avoidance or evasion of Usury Laws in States other than California, beyond the fact that such evasions are universal, except when governed by legislation fitted to the need We are, however, interested in the fact that in California the Usury Law has been and continues to be both avoided and evaded By using the term "evaded", we are referring not only to illegal operations, of which we have found many, but also to the legal methods by means of which the purpose of the Usury Law is avoided. Many such plans exist. They are usually obtuse, circuitous, detailed and difficult of understanding resulting in unnecessary expense The average borrower has little or no comprehension of the legal effect, right or scope of such plan. To him it is a medium of obtaining money which he needs Such a plan is the brokerage plan widely used in California.

THE BROKERAGE PLAN.

We have already touched upon the brokerage plan, which today is the prevalent method of money lending in this State. Briefly, the plan involves the following procedure: The borrower can not borrow money directly from the lender. He is sent to a "broker" who "negotiates" the loan. The "broker" acts as a go-between. He investigates the worth of the borrower, and if he finds him satisfactory, he prepares the papers and submits them to the lender. In addition, he guarantees the loan. On the strength of the broker's guarantee, the lender makes the loan. He receives the rate of interest which is permissible by law. But the loan he has made includes the fee or brokerage which the borrower must pay the broker. For example, a loan of $100 is negotiated by a broker for the borrower. The borrower executes a note for $100 bearing interest at the legal rate and the lender actually lends $100 But the borrower only receives $70, because he must pay out of the $100 loaned, $30 to the broker as his fee.

Let us examine the example to see what has happened. Suppose the loan is repayable in ten monthly installments Each month the borrower pays $10 plus interest for the outstanding balance. Over the period of ten months, he shall pay $4.58 as interest. But including his brokerage fee, the cost of borrowing $70 (for that is the amount he actually received) is $34.58. Under the provisions of the Uniform Small Loan Act, he would have received the total amount of $100 and the complete cost of the loan on the same ten months' installment basis would have been $19.25.

In presenting this example, the committee has assumed that all steps of the loan have been legal. In its investigations, your committee has discovered grave violations of the law principally having to do with the identity of the broker and lender. Some cases were found, in which a wife acted as the lender and collected the interest, while the husband acted as the broker and collected the brokerage fee. Other cases were found where dummy companies were incorporated and were given fictitious functions, in order that the semblance of separate entity might be preserved. Your committee has found, however, that on the whole the licensed operators under the supervision of the Commissioner of Corporations have operated their business with due observance of the law On the other hand, your committee has found a profusion of technicalities and so-called red tape which have tied the hands of the commissioner and have prevented reform, even though obviously needed.

Disregarding, however, the abuse of the law in the mechanical or structural aspect of the problem, your committee, nevertheless, finds a positive need for reformation. In the example hereinabove quoted, all charges made can probably be justified. The lender takes no more than he is permitted to take under the law The broker, on the other hand, renders services for which he may justifiably exact the charge he makes. It is the combination of the two which results in inequality to the borrower The system requires a double overhead; office force, records, books and personnel for the lender and a similar organization for the borrower. Why is such duplication necessary? Because the legislation relating to small loans has been nearsighted, inadequate and insufficient

Our conclusions have been reached after a long and deliberate study. It is not our purpose to detail our findings in this report, but the basis thereof may be readily disclosed by a reference to the cases which your committee has examined The facts discovered, although astounding, are not unusual. One after another, at the hearings conducted by your committee, actual borrowers, substantial working people, came before us, and testified that they had gone to brokers' offices and executed notes varying in principal amounts from $75 to $80, which were payable in either three or four equal monthly installments, and had actually received only $45 or $50 in return therefor, which amount represented everything of value they had received. Others testified that through a similar process they had received $100, but executed notes for amounts as high as $150 as evidence thereof The amount, in excess of the net sum received by the borrower, was justified by the lenders, in most cases, as being necessary expense for brokerage, insurance, interest and so on, but the fact remains that such cost, even though its justification be accepted as authentic in every respect, is exhorbitant and imposes upon the borrower a great burden.

Many of the borrowers testified that throughout the transaction they had known only one party, the broker, and had never had contact with the lender. They had never fully comprehended the presence of two separate entities, the lender and the broker. In their conception the broker had loaned the money; he was making the collections; it was he who was receiving the money which represented the cost of the loan. Nevertheless they paid that cost and reserved any question of its propriety.

If your committee had not actually interrogated these borrowers, and observed their station in life and apparent intelligence, it would have been difficult to believe that such a great body of citizenry permitted itself to be exploited and to continue to be tolerant of a system which permits such excessive cost of relief made necessary by circumstances usually beyond the borrower's control The conclusion is inevitable that the force of necessity placed those people in a position in which they willingly entered such unconscionable contracts rather than face the continued oppression of want

CONCLUSIONS.

From the great volume of evidence accumulated by your committee, certain deductions are inevitable and the deductions are in consonance with all other data, facts and evidence which your committee had available during its study of this problem and which, because of the lack of space, can not be set forth here Your committee has endeavored to resolve the evidence that it might clearly, dispassionately and without bias present its conclusions and frame its recommendations. Our conclusions follow:

1. That in Certain Types of Loans, the Spirit as Well as the Purpose of the Usury Law Is Evaded.

In making this conclusion, the committee does not refer to those cases in which the Usury Law is violated. Although such cases exist in alarming proportions, this committee does not propose to deal with such violations except to take cognizance of their existence and to acknowledge that such violations are an outgrowth of the present inadequate law. Rather is the committee concerned with the plan of operation most generally in use, which plan is essentially legal but which, nevertheless has for its purpose the circumvention of the Usury Law. Basically the Usury Law was designed to reduce the price of loans made to indigent borrowers, and our observations disclose that in this purpose the Usury Law has wholly failed.

2. There Is a Need of Regulating and Limiting of the Cost of Small Loans.

In coming to this conclusion, we are again concerned with the difference between "productive" and "consumptive" loans The difference has been disclosed already. We have also already stated that the small loan is nearly always "consumptive" The merchant may desire to expand, and for such expansion he seeks a loan from a bank. If the cost of the loan proves exhorbitant, he may refuse to make it. Thereby he deprives himself of the contemplated expansion, but there is no element of compulsion, forcing him to borrow the money. Only his ambitions are concerned. A manufacturer may want money for increasing his raw material. If the loan costs too much, he will decide to rely more on trade credit or upon open market buying. Again there is nothing that makes the borrowing of money imperative. How different, however, is the small loan borrower. His wife is sick, she must have medical attention and he must have money to get it. Cost is no barrier, rate is no obstacle. He must have the money. The interest, the cost of the loan may be a burden, it may be oppressive, but his wife's health makes necessary that sacrifice Another may be out of work, he has no income, his children are hungry. He will soon go back to work, but his need is present; he must have money now

The fact that in the future the price he pays for the loan will burden him does not overcome the immediate needs of his family. He must have the money.

Another factor of importance is the comparative ignorance of the class which borrows money in small amounts. Laborers, people with small wages, people who work with their hands, who have not had the advantage of school education or of business experience. Gullible, credulous and trustful, yet possessed of a pride that prevents close scrutiny of the money transaction, lest their ignorance be disclosed. They submit more readily to oppression than to humility.

Needless to say that there are many who are ready to take advantage of the borrowers' misfortune and ignorance and to tie upon his shoulders the merciless burden of debt Too often the misery of the borrower is increased by the loan he sought to lighten it. Too often the crisis which the small borrower faced is magnified and increased by the money lenders' greed.

The problem concerns the weak, the oppressed, the untutored It concerns the children of the race, the class which humanity must protect, the class which humanity must guard, lest it become prey to human wolves.

Money lending to this class is one method of its exploitation. Hence such lending must be controlled and regulated.

3. Rates Provided and Fixed by the Usury Law Are Inadequate.

This conclusion is based upon findings of your committee, which have been fully disclosed in the general discussion of the subject. Suffice it to say at this point your committee is convinced that small loans can not possibly be made at the rate of 10 per cent per annum. Reasonable consideration is basis enough for this conclusion. Suppose a person comes to a borrower for a loan of $50, which will be repaid in three monthly installments. The lender must interview the borrower, take his written application, investigate his credit standing, verify his residence, verify his occupation and execute the loan papers Thereafter, he must supervise the loan, collect the payments, and take the risk of total loss. For all this the Usury Law fixes a compensation of 84 cents.

Obviously the compensation is ridiculously inadequate

4. Availability of Money in Small Amounts Is Necessary. Small Loan Business Supplies a Prevalent Need of the People.

The money lenders who make small loans supply a need which, without them, would not be filled. Banks require collateral, which the small borrower seldom has Moreover, banks do not favor the small-loan type of business, because the cost of making such loans is not consonant with the established plan of bank operation Industrial lenders (whose rates are also higher than the rates fixed by the Usury Law) require cosigners, sureties or guarantors, who are seldom available to the necessitous borrower There is no other institution where money may be borrowed. Yet the worker, the man with small capital, is just as much subject to the vicissitudes of life as is the man with broader activity, and sometimes he requires financial assistance He should be able then to obtain such loan at a reasonable cost and with the minimum of trouble.

5. Brokerage Plan of Operation, Although Essentially Lawful, Is Cumbersome, Wasteful and Expensive.

We have touched upon the brokerage plan of operation in the general discussion of the conditions discovered by your committee. In that discussion, we showed that the brokerage plan of operation duplicates overhead cost, makes necessary increased operating expense, and, in short, greatly increases the cost of the loan to the borrower. It should be added, however, that a sane, sensible view of the situation can lead to but one conclusion: that the brokerage plan is a mere delusion, that it has been devised to accomplish circuitously that which sensible legislation should allow to be done directly. By perpetuating the brokerage plan of operation, the Legislature in effect makes it impossible for the lender to loan money directly. By sanctioning the brokerage plan, the Legislature admits the necessity of a higher cost for small loans. But by the same token, by the very sanction of the plan, the Legislature increases such cost and makes the burden of the borrower heavier and more difficult, and makes effective regulation of the small-loan business virtually impossible.

Why not sensibly, and in step with modern legislation, face the issues of the problem and make provisions which research, science and experience have shown to be sound?

6. Uniform Small Loans Act Provides a Fair and Satisfactory Plan of Operation of the Small Loan Business.

The Uniform Small Loans Act has been adopted in 28 States of the Union. It has been in existence for 19 years and, in that time, has been adequately tested by experience. With surprising uniformity the States, which have adopted the Uniform Small Loans Act, have reported the results as being highly satisfactory and as having overcome the evils attendant upon the small-loan business. Space prohibits the quoting of some of the reports given by supervisory officers in other States. Suffice it to say, therefore, that such reports have been without exception favorable to the Uniform Small Loans Act

The Uniform Small Loans Act is the result of scientific research conducted by the Russell Sage Foundation, a remedial organization seeking reform in the small loan business. That research sought to establish the cost of making small loans, the supervision thereof, the loss ratio and the volume of delinquency. Such factors having been determined, it was next sought to establish a rate which would be fair to the borrower and which would, nevertheless, permit the doing of business at a profit to the lenders. The rate fixed after careful analysis was 3½ per cent per month on loans under $300, and 2 per cent on loans above that amount but under $500, which rate includes all charges.

Your committee believes that the rate meets the requirements of California and is fair both to the borrower and to the lender. The computations of the supervisory officer of the State of Illinois, in which State the said rate has been in force for many years, have shown that the profit of the licensed lenders for the year 1933 was 8 1/5 per cent on their invested capital An exhaustive report by the State Corporation Commission of the State of Virginia published in 1932 found that the earnings and profits of operators under the Uniform Small Loans Act were fair, just and reasonable on capital invested. Such returns can hardly be called unusual or high. Other reports show a similar normal return and justify the conclusion of fairness.

Money, in the final analysis, is a commodity. Its use by others than the owner must be compensated and that compensation must be fair. No person objects to paying a fair price for the use of a horse, or a vacuum cleaner or a typewriter. The same principle should govern the use of money, which differs from other commodities in one respect only, and that is its exchangeability. This quality makes money desirable more often than other types of personal property, but it remains, nevertheless, a specie of commercial article capable of being hired or rented and such renting or hiring is controlled by the same factors which control hiring generally, i. e., assurance to the lender of safe return of the commodity plus a fair consideration for its use. In the light of the evidence herewith submitted, your committee believes the rate recommended herein to be fair.

7. Adoption of Uniform Small Loans Act Would Lower Cost of Small Loans in California.

In making the following comparison, your committee has chosen the rates of high grade companies doing business under the brokerage plan in California. Other operators have higher rates, but comparison of the Uniform Act with the unusually high rate offices would be misleading. Accordingly, your committee chose those lenders who maintain a fair policy and whose capital investment makes possible an equitable rate for the customer.

Cost $100 for ten months, present plan	$32 40
Cost $100 for ten months at 3½ per cent plan	19 25
Cost $ 50 for three months, present plan	16 33
Cost $ 50 for three months, 3½ per cent plan	3 50
Cost $300 for one year, present plan	98 40
Cost $300 for one year, 3½ per cent plan	67 23
Cost $150 for six months, present plan	36 30
Cost $150 for six months, 3½ per cent plan	15 75
Cost $100 for one month, present plan	25 83
Cost $100 for one month, 3½ per cent plan	3 50

Many similar examples could be set out but the foregoing amply illustrate the point In certain types of loans, for example, the automobile loans, the cost to the borrower is generally much higher than the examples above cited, because of added insurance costs. Under the Uniform Small Loans Act, all such charges are included in the fixed rate.

8. Lenders Should Be Required to Possess Basic Capital.

Your committee has found that the majority of the violations of law and the highest rates prevailed among the operators with small capital. Your committee believes that protection of the borrower demands that those who engage in the business of lending money should be financially secure and able to carry on their business with a sufficient reserve to meet emergency conditions and permit a normal net return without exacting excessive charges. Inadequate capital leads to abuses of the borrower, to increased rates, to oppressive collection methods and to undesirable business methods generally. Moreover the lender with a small capital is more inclined to disregard regulation and flout the law since he has no substantial investment under it. Your committee believes that any person seeking a license should be required to have no less than $25,000 capital for investment as a condition precedent to the obtaining of a license as a small loan lender.

9. Commissioner of Corporations Should Possess Right to Refuse to Grant a License Where the Community for Which License is Sought Already has Adequate Loan Service.

Your committee has found that indiscriminate licensing of lenders leads to grave abuses. Extreme competition leads to objectionable advertising, to irritable "sales" methods and to lowering of business ethics and unnecessary duplication of overhead. The committee does not recommend monopoly by any means, but it does urge that some restraint be put on the number of lenders who may be licensed in a given community, so that a high character of business activity may be uniformly maintained. Moreover your committee believes that the commissioner should be authorized to license only those who after investigation are found to possess integrity, experience and general fitness and who command the respect and confidence of the community. The unprincipled, unethical and unscrupulous operator may be prevented from coming into a community only if the commissioner, who shall be responsible for the issuance of licenses, shall have the right to refuse a license to such person or corporation whom investigation shows to be undesirable.

10. Opponents of Uniform Small Loans Act Are Mainly Those Who Desire to Lend Money at Higher Rates Than Prescribed by the Act.

In its investigations, your committee has been impressed with the fact that the majority of the opponents of the Uniform Small Loans Act are the very persons whose activity, in the opinion of the committee, should be curbed. Many reasons are conjured up why the remedial act should not be adopted, but divested of verbiage, sham and camouflage, the basic reason is uniformly a desire to continue the present system of gouging the unfortunate. Ponderous arguments are made in which the constitutional right to contract without interference is urged as a reason for avoiding small loan regulation. A hue and cry for liberty is raised, but the liberty demanded is the freedom to oppress, to pillage and exploit. Your committee is thinking of another kind of liberty—the liberty of the wage earner from oppressive debt, liberty from slavery imposed by the loan shark, liberty from the bonds of usury. We are thinking of the factory worker, the mill hand, the seamstress, the office clerk. We are thinking of their welfare, their happiness and their relief. And because we hope for fair play, justice and equity for those people we make the following

RECOMMENDATION

Your committee believes that the principles of the Uniform Small Loan Act may be embraced within the present Personal Property Brokers Act by appropriate amendment. The class created by the Legislature in 1909 and designated as personal property brokers, which classification has been perpetuated, embraces all persons who lend money on the security of personal property (including assignments or sale of wages) the possession of which remains with someone other than the lender. Such classification was predicated upon a basic division of all loans into secured and unsecured classes. In the field of secured loans as distinct from the unsecured loans regulations should be devoted to making the security most useful both to borrower and to lender, but under regulations which will prevent either from imposing on the other. The principal subdivision of secured loans is that which distinguishes between loans secured by real estate and loans secured by personal property. In the sense that personal property is used as security, it is distinguished from real property by being movable, destructible, difficult to record as to property rights therein, susceptible of abuse as to rights of third persons, and not subject to a period of redemption after foreclosure. These differences make personal property less valuable as security both to borrower and to lender; special regulations are required to overcome these difficulties. Borrowers on personal property are subject to temptations in respect to its treatment after a lien is created, and lenders are tempted to abuses after default. This type of security and the fact that its possession is left with the borrower present problems of regulation peculiar to the class. Not only these basic differences in fact, but also a generation of commercial enterprise which has developed under the 1909 personal property broker's classification have made the line of demarcation definite in and peculiar to the State of California.

Regulation of that class is necessary in varying degress. Obviously those personal property brokers who engage in the business of making loans in large amounts deal with borrowers whose loans, as a rule, are "productive," and who are economically better able to protect themselves against exploitation and unfair practice. On the other hand, those personal property brokers who make loans in small amounts deal with a class of persons whose loans are "consumptive" and who usually borrow because necessity and stress of circumstances require the loan. Your committee has given careful consideration to the differences that mark these classes of borrowers; it has considered the line of demarcation between that class which most needs the protective influence of regulation and the remaining class which requires less regulation. After careful study the division has been made as between the borrower of amounts less than $500 and borrowers of greater amounts. Such division is based upon a careful evaluation of factual data. Your committee has examined tabulations indicating the volume of loans secured by personal property which the lender does not take into his possession, and indicating the amounts thereof as well as the type, circumstances, and social and economic position of the borrower. These records have shown that a great majority of the loans under $500 may be classed as "consumptive" and that they are made to necessitous borrowers. The records further show that the loan over $500 is seldom made for "consumptive" purposes. In other words, that class of borrower who is driven by necessity to the borrowing of money and who, therefore, is most subject to exploitation rarely borrows more than $500, and conversely, that the class of persons who borrow more than $500 are seldom forced to borrow by the same degree of necessity.

The division is by no means exact. Undoubtedly the two classes graduate one into the other and to some extent overlap. The classification of human interests does not permit clear division, and accordingly your committee divided the class at the point where statistical data indicated a natural division.

Your committee is mindful of the fact that different divisions have been made by other jurisdictions, that is, that the boundary lines of such classes have been fixed at points different from those recommended by your committee. But California statistics indicate different circumstances caused by various factors. Previous legislation and classification such as the Personal Property Brokers Act of 1909 as thereafter amended, the Usury Law of 1918, the prevalence of the brokerage plan of operation, and the court decisions relating thereto have created conditions which are peculiar to California and which differ substantially from other jurisdictions. An outstanding example is the use of automobiles as security for loans which custom probably accounts for the fact that the average size of the necessitous loan is apparently higher in California than in other States.

Your committee has prepared a draft of the Personal Property Brokers Act incorporating therein the amendments which your committee considers necessary These amendments are based upon the provisions of the Uniform Small Loan Act, which has been found to be effective in about 26 States of the United States. These provisions have been carefully drafted to conform to the peculiarly delicate legal requirements of California The material substance of the present Personal Property Brokers Act has been incorporated into the recommended act although many of the sections had to be rewritten in order to effect correlation between all parts of the act.

Your committee believes that through the amendment of the Personal Property Brokers Act adequate protection may be assured the borrower, fairness may be established for all parties, and the interests of the community may be protected and preserved.

PAWNBROKERS

Foreword.

Probably the oldest method of lending money is that which today characterizes the method of the pawnbrokers Essentially, that method is the pledge system under which some chattel is given into the possession of the lender to secure the repayment of the loan. It is a simple method, easy to understand, easy to transact. Hence, it is a favored method among a vast army of people who prefer it over other plans because of its simplicity, convenience and quickness. In popular conception the pawnshop is regarded as an oasis for the profligate, the fair weather fellow, the gambler, who resort to the relief that a pawnbroker affords, when the wheels of fortune are idle. These classes are real, and in some degree should be considered when a study is made of a loan system But they are overwhelmingly surpassed in importance, however, by a far greater class, one whose interests reach deeper and for whom the law should have greater concern. That class is the strata of society whose wealth is measured by the clothes its people wear, plus a few objects of personal adornment and perhaps a shotgun, camera or suitcase. Inhabitants of tenements, furnished apartments and rooming houses, these people acquire little which might indicate stability or permanence. They are like the nomads of another age, who no longer need to carry tents, for our system of housing has made available a more convenient substitute. In most cases, the ease of movement from place to place is a potential factor only, but that factor is all important from the standpoint of the lender, who looks for stability and permanence in a borrower as a safeguard of his loan.

Pawnbrokering is an ancient business Its development might be traced with a great deal of interest Its growth is woven into the history of Nations, into the lives of people long forgotten. Its influence on past generations, its use and benefits in other ages might be readily disclosed But such dissertation would serve no purpose in this report, except to establish the fact that that business is an important factor in the lives of many present day people, and that it probably will continue to be important so long as human nature and human institutions retain their present characteristics.

One factor must be touched upon for the purpose of this treatise, to wit: the popular conception of a pawnbroker and the odium that often attaches to his business. The three balls of the pawnshop have been the butt of ridicule, taunts, and criticism, some of which have been justified, but most of which are undeserved. These deprecations are manifestations of prejudice, sometimes hate, but most often they are the result of a resistance to the performance of the conditions of a bargain. Let us remember that the pawnbroker does business with that class of society which is the least informed, the least educated To that class economics, the cost of business operation, the theory of fair profit mean nothing. To the pawnshop customer the rudiments of the transaction alone are apparent. He knows that he relinquished the possession of an overcoat in order to secure a $5 loan. He had nothing else on which to borrow. If during the course of that loan the weather becomes cold, he needs the overcoat, he regrets his bargain, blames the pawnbroker for the circumstance, and roundly curses him. And in that seemingly ridiculous example is the basis of much of the popular dislike for the "Uncle" of our side streets who is regarded alternately as a savior and a devil.

We are by no means to be understood as attempting to absolve pawnbrokers from all blame. We are mindful of the abuses which have prevailed in the business in the past; we are aware of the fact that supervision of the business is not only advisable but necessary. We know that the naivete of the customer, his ignorance, his poverty have been used as means of oppression. We know that pawnbrokers have often conspired with thieves and pickpockets and have utilized their apparently legal pawnbrokering establishments as a screen for nefarious business. But we also know that in the general run of affairs, and as a result of regulation, supervision, and restriction, these vices are today the exception and not the rule, and though the pawnbroker's activities of another day may have justified severe criticism, today the popular stigma is not wholly justified.

PAWNBROKERS A NECESSITY.

We have already indicated in previous discussions of the general subject that the small loan is a necessity. Stated briefly, the small loan is as fully justified as the large loan. The basic reasons are the same: some purpose, some necessity, some desire is made possible of achievement through the temporary acquisition and use of a small amount of money not otherwise available. We have pointed out the difference between the "productive" loans and "consumptive" loans (discussion of personal property brokers), and we there stated that necessity played a greater part in relation to the small loan than it did in relation to the large or "productive" loan. The small loan is a means of reducing human misery, of relieving anguish and anxiety. It is a means which may be utilized by distressed people for the solution of vexing problems, the existence of which retards their well being and progress. The fact that the same agency, the small loan, may be used as a means of oppression, seems to us to be no argument against the right of existence of the small loan business, but merely an argument for the necessity of regulation

Categorically, we may say that below that class which may qualify for a personal loan, there is another class which may qualify only for pawnbroker loans. As already indicated, the domestic situation of that class is usually insecure, movement is easy, the abode is usually temporary. The economic position of such individual is similarly temporary. He goes from job to job, he does work of little importance; his identity means little to the type of work he follows. In short, his position today, his place of employment, his residence, his very identity may be obliterated tomorrow by the shifting sands of human affairs.

Obviously, the element of "character" which is so important to the maker of "personal" loans is totally lacking, since the basic requisite thereof is permanency and stability.

What safe means, other than the pawnshop, is there of supplying the requirements of this class for a loan? The only certainty, the only assurance that may be had of the subject's reappearance is to hold some article, some property which the subject desires sufficiently to return and claim it. To say that the business of the pawnbroker is not a desirable business is tantamount to saying that the class of people above characterized should not be allowed the privilege of borrowing money.

There is no substantial reason for such premise. The fact that a man is indigent, that he is poor, that he may be irresponsible does not make him a slave, nor does it deprive him of the fundamental right to share with his more fortunate brother those privileges which freedom and democratic government make possible.

The business of pawnbrokering, therefore, is a means of satisfying an existing need, a means which sane government should not destroy, but in its wisdom should perpetuate, with proper safeguards, however, against oppression, exploitation and dishonesty. The duty of government is no smaller in relation to the lowly than it is to the mighty, the needs of the one class speak as eloquently as do those of another, and it is the duty of the Legislature to give ear thereto.

One other class of borrower must be mentioned as depending on the pawnbroker for relief, which class is different from that above described That class is made up of individuals whose property consists solely of personal property of the jewelry type Modern society has within it a type of person who owns no real estate, automobile or similar property, who nevertheless is possessed of valuable jewelry, furs and the like. These people can borrow only from a pawnbroker, unless by virtue of their job, they may qualify for a salary or character loan. A personal property lender will not lend on the security of jewelry; he can not take a mortgage thereon, nor can he assure himself of safety in any manner except by taking possession thereof Then he becomes a pawnbroker and must be guided by the rules governing such business. For this class of borrower, again the pawnbroker is indispensable.

REGULATION OF PAWNBROKERS GENERALLY.

Pawnshops are operated under the widest variety of statutes, generally providing for regulation by municipal authorities. A number of reasons exist for such provisions, but mainly, the statutes are an outgrowth of the necessity of police supervision for the purpose of controlling traffic in stolen goods. Moreover, the pawnshop is a characteristic of congested districts, of cities where the concentration of people is the greatest and, consequently, police supervision is the most effective Moreover, in the estimation of your committee, such regulation is advisable, for the reason that the pawnshop transactions are too variable, too broad in scope to permit specific regulation The ramifications and diversity of the business require a more intimate regulation, such as only the police systems make possible. Furthermore, any other governmental supervision would be a duplication, since police supervision, for reasons already mentioned, would necessarily continue nevertheless.

As a general rule, the loan laws of the various States recognize the circumstances which are peculiar to the pawnbrokers, as differentiated from personal lenders, credit unions and the like, and have made possible the operation of their business by special legislation relating thereto. These laws take into account the fact that the man who borrows on the security of a watch or camera is different from the man who borrows on the strength of his job, his domestic stability or his automobile. They take into account the fact that the pawnbroker makes little loans, the type which the other classes can not make. In short, the pawnbrokers generally have been a subject of special classification based upon those factors which we presented in our foreword to this dissertation.

REGULATION OF PAWNBROKERS IN CALIFORNIA.

In California, there is no "Pawnbrokers' Act" such as may be found in other States. Nevertheless, pawnbrokers are regulated, which regulations may be found in the Penal Code, and which we set forth herein. They follow:

"SEC. 338. Every person who carries on the business of a pawnbroker, by receiving goods in pledge for loans at any rate of interest above the rate of 10 per cent per annum, except by authority of a license, is guilty of a misdemeanor

SEC 339. Every person who carries on the business of a pawnbroker or who purchases gold bars, gold quartz or gold bullion or mineral containing gold, who fails at the time of the transaction to enter in a register kept by him for that purpose, in the English language, the date, duration, amount and rate of interest of every loan made by him, or an accurate description of the property pledged, or estimated value of the property purchased, or the name and residence of the pledgor or seller, or to deliver to the pledgor or seller a written copy of such entry, or to keep an account in writing of all sales made by him, is guilty of a misdemeanor. (Amendment approved 1909, Stats. 1909, p. 367.)

SEC. 340. Every pawnbroker who charges or receives interest at the rate of more than 3 per cent per month on loans of $300 and less and more than 2 per cent per month on loans in excess of said sum or who by charging commissions, discount, storage, or other charge, or by compounding increases, or attempts to increase such interest or charge, is guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, however, that a minimum charge of 50 cents may be made in any case where the monthly charge allowed by this act would amount to less than 50 cents.

SEC. 341. Every pawnbroker must retain in his possession every article pledged to him, excepting clothing, wearing apparel, furs, trunks and suitcases, or property of similar character, for a period of one year after the last date fixed by contract for redemption, but such excepted property above set forth must be kept for a period of six months after the last date fixed by contract for redemption. The pledgor or his assigns shall have the right of redemption at any time during said one year period. Should such article not be redeemed within respective periods, the pawnbroker shall thereby acquire all the right, title and interest of the pledgor therein, to hold and dispose of as his own property Every pawnbroker violating the provisions of this section shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor. (Amendment approved May 6, 1929; Stats. 1929, p. 432.)

SEC. 342. Every pawnbroker who wilfully refuses to disclose to the pledgor or his agent the name of the purchaser and the price received by him for any article received by him in pledge and subsequently sold, or who, after deducting from the proceeds of any sale of the amount of the loan and interest due, thereon, and 4 per cent on the loan for expenses of sale, refuses, on demand, to pay the balance to the pledgor or his agent, is guilty of a misdemeanor."

We have already indicated our conviction that the police regulation, made possible by the foregoing provisions as supplemented by municipal ordinances, is advisable. Accordingly, we need not again dwell on that feature here. We are, however, concerned with that provision which deals with the rates chargeable by the pawnbrokers, i.e., section 340, Penal Code.

It will be noted that that section provides penalties which may be imposed under certain circumstances, i.e., the charging of a rate of interest in excess of that specified in the section. To that extent, it may be said that the section has set a rate. But it must be borne in mind that the section is prohibitory in character, and not permissive. Whereupon depends a very important legislative point

At another point in this report, your committee has mentioned the effect of the Usury Law on existing laws pertaining to the money lending business. In connection with our report on the Industrial Loan Act, we state our conclusion that the interest provisions of that act were repealed by the Usury Law, enacted by the people through initiative in 1918. We based our conclusions on the holding of the Supreme Court in Beneficial vs. Haight 215, California 506, and in re Washer 200, California 598. These cases definitely establish the proposition that the Usury Law of 1918 fixed the rate of interest for all business of money lending, and, because the enactment was an initiative measure, the Legislature could not fix any higher rate of interest. We are convinced that the pawnbrokering business was no exception to that proposition, and during the continued existence of the Usury Law, the pawnbrokers were governed by it.

That situation, however, has been altered by the adoption by the people on November 6, 1934, of a constitutional amendment being section 22, of Article XX of the Constitution of California, which, in effect, repealed the provisions of the Usury Law under discussion here. By virtue of that amendment, the pawnbrokers, like personal property brokers, industrial loan lenders and others are exempt from the maximum interest rate therein fixed, and the Legislature has the right to regulate their rates of charges.

It is at this point that the nature of section 340 of the Penal Code becomes important. Be it recalled that that section is prohibitory and not permissive. Such being the case, it was not repealed by the Usury Law, but remained coexistent with it. On the one hand, section 340, Penal Code, specified that the lending of money by a pawnbroker at a rate of interest in excess of three per cent on loans of $300 or less, and two per cent on loans over that amount, was a misdemeanor. On the other hand, the Usury Law permitted a rate of one per cent per month, and provided for punishment for violations of its terms. In spite of the fact that these two provisions legislated for the same subject matter, they were not antipathetic or inconsistent. It was merely that the Usury Law went farther than did the Penal Code provision. Your committee has, therefore, concluded that since these statutes were coexistent, after the repeal of the Usury Law, the Penal Code provision remained and is now effective.

In this connection, however, your committee wishes to point out an important factor which will require the attention of the Legislature in order that proper regulation of pawnbrokers may be possible, and an abuse of the law prevented. It will be recalled that section 22 of Article XX of the Constitution, to which reference has been made above, specifies in effect that the interest rate is fixed at seven per cent per annum, or ten per cent per annum by contract. Moreover, the exaction of fees, bonuses, commissions, discounts or other consideration is forbidden, but from this prohibition the pawnbrokers, as well as other named classes, are exempted. The result, therefore, is that pawnbrokers have the right to exact "Commissions, fees, bonuses, discounts and other consideration" in addition to interest, and unless a restriction is enacted the amount of such charges shall be unlimited. Section 340 of the Penal Code as it now stands gives no relief because it mentions interest only. If it is permitted to stand in its present form, the pawnbrokers will be able to exact interest at the rate of ten per cent per annum, and in addition will be allowed to exact charges, the amount of which would be unlimited.

Your committee, therefore, shall recommend that section 340 of the Penal Code be amended to include in its restrictions all discounts, fees, bonuses, commissions and other consideration, the gross amount of which shall not exceed the rate of charges fixed in that section. The exact form of the recommended amendment will appear in the formal recommendation your committee will make at the end of this dissertation on pawnbrokers.

INTEREST RATE JUSTIFIED.

We have dwelt at some length upon the nature of the business done by pawnbrokers, and we have pointed out the fact that such business is characterized by loans so small that no other business will make them. We have also dwelt upon the subject of overhead expense and cost of business maintenance in our discussion of personal property brokers. Without repeating our findings, we wish to call attention to the obvious fact that the proportionate cost of making a loan by the pawnbroker is much higher than the cost of making a larger loan of the type secured by real estate or bankable security although it is not as high as the cost of making loans as a personal property broker due to the fact that a pawnbroker takes possession of the security as a result of which his cost of loan supervision is less. There is first to be considered the fixed cost of the loan from the overhead standpoint, rent, wages of clerks, taxes, license fees and the like. This cost may be deemed constant. Next there must be considered the cost of registering each loan, reporting it to the police, keeping records thereof. In addition, there is the cost of storage and safe-keeping of articles and valuables which are deposited as security. Finally there is the supervision of the loan, i. e., collection costs, costs of foreclosure of forfeited merchandise, and the consequent cost of liquidation thereof.

Now we may well conceive that a lower interest rate might suffice if the amount of the loans made were larger. We are impressed, however, with the fact that by far the greater majority of the loans made are in very small amounts. The $2 loan is not uncommon The $5 and $10 loans predominate. The interest earning on such loans, even at 3 per cent per month, is so small that profit therefrom is impossible to expect. Without a permissive charge in excess of such interest rate, the pawnbroker could not make such loans.

Why should he make such loans? Because, as already indicated, there is a need for them We have already shown that people of a certain class have no other means of obtaining loans. But those people often face emergencies, and their desire to meet those emergencies is no less acute than the anxiety of a merchant to pay a bank loan. Moreover, that class of people embraces those who, if thwarted, will resort to drastic means to relieve their anxiety and anguish Who can say how many robberies, thefts and burglaries have been avoided by the willingness of some pawnbroker to lend money on questionable security? Social conditions should not tolerate such circumstances which permit an individual to be reduced to such dire want that he resorts to violence to obtain relief, but until we have reached that millenium in which we have corrected many deficiencies of our present system, we must take the facts as we find them, and legislate accordingly.

And so your committee believes that the wisdom of experience has shown the way to a solution of the problem, that solution being the legislative sanction of the present rate fixed by section 340 of the Penal Code, which has already been discussed in detail Under this section the pawnbroker is entitled to charge interest at the rate of 3 per cent per month on loans under $300, but when the interest chargeable at that rate falls under 50 cents per month, he may charge 50 cents, nevertheless. In other words, for any loan under $60 the pawnbroker may charge a rate of 50 cents per month. For any loan over that amount, but under $300 he may not charge over 3 per cent per month. For loans over $300 he may charge at the rate of 2 per cent per month.

This rate compares favorably with the rates charged and permitted in other States. Moreover, your committee has considered the cost of operation borne by the pawnbrokers, and has concluded that the rate is not disproportionate or unfair The cost statistics of such loans are complicated and highly variable, and nothing would be subserved by setting forth such findings in this report. Rather would we premise our conclusions on the common-sense view of the charges permitted, i. e., that 50 cents per month for a loan of $1 to $60 is not unfair in view of the work, detail, supervision and risk attendant upon said loan.

REGULATION EFFICIENT.

Your committee has found a high degree of efficiency in the regulation of pawnbrokers by the police. Needless to say, conditions in some municipalities are better than in others, but on the whole, we have found a rather uniform supervision which is strict and relentless. Moreover, we have found that in the majority of instances, the pawnbrokers willingly complied with such restrictions. We readily recommend that no change be made in the manner of supervision.

RECOMMENDATION.

In view of the foregoing findings and the conclusions we have voiced on the various points, your committee recommends that no change be made in the present law governing pawnbrokers, except the amendment of section 340 of the Penal Code, and your committee recommends that said section be amended to read as follows:

> "Every pawnbroker who charges or receives interest, fees, bonus, commissions, discount, or other consideration, the aggregate of which exceeds the rate of 3 per cent per month on loans of $300 and less, and the rate of 2 per cent per month on loans in excess of said sum, or who by charging commissions, discount, storage or other charge, or by compounding increases or attempts to increase such charges, is guilty of a misdemeanor; provided, however, that a minimum charge of 50 cents may be made in any case where the monthly charge allowed by this act would amount to less than 50 cents"

INDUSTRIAL LOAN COMPANIES.

Distinct from both the personal finance companies and the pawnbrokers, yet often confused with the former, are those concerns which lend money on another kind of security: the guarantee of two responsible people that the borrower's note will be repaid Each guarantor is a comaker and is liable personally for the entire amount of the loan These loans are called "comaker loans."

Another name given this type of operation is "The Morris Plan," which name results from the name of the purported originator of the plan of operation. When the plan was first inaugurated, it met with many difficult legal problems, because the laws of the various States were framed before anyone had conceived the idea of the small loan business. The laws existent in various States were predicated upon the notion that all loans would be made on tangible security, and the maximum interest allowed in the banking and usury statutes was far less than the rate on which the Morris Plan depended In New York and a few other States, the promoters of the plan were able to secure the passage of amendments to existing usury laws, under which amendments the plan was feasible. But in many other States, the Morris Plan has been installed without special legislation, with the result that it is operated on a rather uncertain legal basis In California this type of business has been made possible by the "Industrial Loan Act," Statutes of 1917, page 658, and subsequently amended, but although special legislation has been effected, because of other circumstances, the industrial loan companies using the Morris Plan are today operating on a questionable basis. This factor will be discussed more fully hereafter.

INDUSTRIAL LOAN PLAN.

The basis of the "plan" is the sale to the borrower of an "investment certificate." Thus if the borrower desires a loan of $400, he is required to buy eight $50 "investment certificates," the purchase price of which he agrees to pay in installments of $8 per week, under which arrangement the full "purchase price" will be paid in 50 weeks. The "purchaser" (borrower) is not required to pay interest on the unpaid balance of the "purchase price" of the "investment certificates" which he has agreed to purchase nor does he get possession thereof. These "investment certificates" are deposited by the purchaser as collateral for the loan he obtains, which loan is for a period of one year and bears interest at the rate of 6 per cent, which interest is collected in advance. It should be noted that the "purchase price" of the "investment certificates" shall have been paid in full two weeks before the loan made to the "purchaser" thereof shall fall due, which fact insures to the lender payment in full of the obligation Immediately the "purchase price" of the "investment certificates" has been paid in the manner above indicated, the "purchaser" is given the privilege of paying his loan therewith. Needless to say as a general rule, to which exception is rare, the borrower pays his loan by applying the "investment certificates" thereon. Indeed, such action in most cases is a pro forma ritual.

The characteristic of the loan is the fiction of "investment certificate sale" The prospective borrower desires to borrow money; he does not care to buy "investment certificates" But he enters the agreement to do so because by entering it he may procure the loan he desires. The plan is tantamount to the lender saying: "I desire security for any loan I make you. Since you have none, I will sell you such security on the installment plan, and thus you will have the security I require for deposit with me."

Obviously the device is a circuitous system, the purpose of which is to disguise the actual return the lender receives on the loan made. It makes possible the fiction widely used by industrial loan companies that they lend money at 6 per cent, whereas a short investigation of the plan proves that nothing of the sort is done. To clearly consider the circumstances, one must bear in mind that the borrower has been required to enter into two transactions with the company instead of one. He desires to borrow money, and his desire is granted. He is loaned the desired amount at 6 per cent per year, which is collected in advance, and in addition he is required to pay a fee of $2 for every $50 borrowed to cover "expenses" of the loan. As a further condition of the loan, he has been required to buy "investment certificates" for the purported purpose of depositing such "investment certificates" with the lender as security. This gesture is a fiction only. The "certificates" have no value, except as the same is created by the installments paid in by the "purchaser" (borrower). Why not apply the installments paid by the borrower directly to the loan instead of using them as payments on the "certificates"?

The reason is manifest. If the installments were used to pay the loan, the amount thereof would continuously decrease and the lending company could charge interest only on the decreased amount. But by using the "set-up" described above, the industrial loan companies are enabled to charge interest on the full amount of the loan during the entire period of the loan. For example, a loan of $400 is made for one year. The "certificates" securing the loan are payable in installments of $8 per week. When they are paid up in full, they will be taken by the company as payment of the loan At the end of the forty-eighth week, for example, the borrower has paid in $384 and is still paying interest on the full amount of $400 and continues to pay such interest for the full year Moreover, such interest is in addition to a charge for "expenses" at the rate of $2 for each $50 borrowed.

Further evidence of the fact that such certificates are not considered security is borne out by the fact that they are not relied upon, but the borrower is required to produce two reliable cosigners or comakers of the note he executes, each comaker being liable for the full amount of the loan.

The plan gives its disciples a decided competitive advantage, in that it enables the industrial loan company to advertise that it makes loans at 6 per cent. whereas lending companies operating under a direct plan of lending can not do so The borrower, therefore, is attracted to the industrial loan company But when he gets through with the plan there propounded, he has paid considerably in excess of the advertised rate, because under the plan already described a much greater rate has been exacted in a disguised form

By virtue of the legislation in California and legal interpretation thereof, the industrial loan companies, in the estimation of your committee, are doing business under a statute which was probably repealed by the Usury Act in so far as that statute permits a rate higher than the rate fixed by the Usury Act. As already pointed out, the industrial loan plan has been devised and is used to enable the collection of interest, charges and fees at a rate higher than 12 per cent per annum. It will be recalled that the statute permitting such companies to operate in California was passed in 1917. In 1918, the Usury Law of California was passed by the people.

In Beneficial vs. Haight, 215 Cal. 506, the Supreme Court of this State, having before it the Personal Property Brokers' Act of 1909 as amended in 1931, said:

> "Lying at the base of this inquiry is the effect of the Usury Law upon the Brokers' Act of 1909 as amended in 1911. This is so because sections 2 and 3 of the act of 1931, above quoted, are substantially reenactments of sections 2 and 3 of the act of 1909 and differ only in the rate that may be charged and the number of parties that will be affected thereby. The question in reality is settled by our holding in, In re Washer, 200 Cal. 598. We there plainly held that the Usury Law established the maximum rate of interest for all loans, whether secured or unsecured, and this, too, regardless of the amount or the nature of the security. It is impossible for the Washer Case to stand and at the same time to permit an arbitrary charge by a certain group of personal property brokers of a greater amount."

In the case of Blodgett vs. Rheinschild, 56 C. A. 728, it was said:

> "As a general rule, any benefit or advantage exacted by the lender from the borrower, whatever be its name or form, which, added to the interest taken or reserved, would yield to the lender a greater profit upon his loan than is allowed by law is deemed usury." (39 Cyc. 971.)

Your committee can conceive of a situation in which a borrower is actually interested in buying "investment certificates" of a company such as here discussed and using those certificates as security for a loan. But your committee is convinced that, in actual practice, such a situation arises very seldom. The usual circumstance is such as already disclosed; the borrower, to obtain the money, consents to buy the company's "investment certificates" and such sale is made for the sole purpose of enabling the company to exact the interest rate and charges permitted by the statute. Since such authorized emoluments aggregate more than the Usury Law of 1918 permitted, by virtue of the cases above cited, that portion of the Industrial Loan Act which permitted the charges to be made, in the opinion of your committee, has been repealed.

The investigations of your committee have disclosed that the business done by the industrial loan companies in the State was generally done in a businesslike manner. However, your committee has found that these companies have taken advantage of the situation above described and have indulged in advertising and promotional schemes, which are subject to criticism and which have not been in accord with the ethics which these companies usually pretend to follow. During a period in the latter part of 1933 and the beginning of 1934, industrial loan companies in the vicinity of Los Angeles circularized employers or representatives of employer corporations with letters containing arguments in favor of the industrial loan type of operation and attacking other small loan agencies. These letters were predicated upon the wording of the statute above described and the misstatement of fact was obscured by clever reference to the statute. The gesture was one calculated to increase the business of these companies by undermining the integrity or reputation of competitors doing a direct loan business. In the estimation of your committee the situation was one in which the pot called the kettle black.

One other factor which should be borne in mind with reference to these companies is that their average loan is much higher than that usually made by the personal loan companies. The exact figures are not available but it may be safely stated that the loan average of a majority of the industrial loan companies approximates $450; while the loan average of the average personal loan company does not exceed $125. Loans are made by the industrial loan companies in amounts as high as $750 or $1,000, and not unusually as high as $5,000. Such loans, at the interest rate allowed by the statute, bring a handsome return. In our report on the personal loan companies, we stated that small loans required an interest rate greater than that fixed by the usury statute. However, we definitely stated that by "small loans" we meant loans under $500. A similar interest rate on larger loans would not be justified. Under the Industrial Loan Act, no exception is made, and the higher loans carry the same rate of interest and charges as do the small loans, with the result that inequality and unfairness sometimes result.

It is regrettable that the industrial loan companies are built upon a statute, the form of which is not favored by your committee. We would much more readily recommend a statute more direct in its nature and without a potential subterfuge included within its provisions. However, your committee is mindful of the fact that large investment has been made in these companies in this and in other States and that an arbitrary abolition of the plan would impose hardship on investors and borrowers alike. Moreover, your committee feels that other phases of the small loan business need reform more urgently, as already indicated in this report, and believes that the less pressing problems may be solved gradually. In other words, your committee believes that a reform of the entire loan situation is not a problem for one Legislature, but is a progressive problem which should be dealt with over a period of time. In the meantime it is advisable that the existing uncertainty of the law be resolved so far as it is possible to do so. Since the adoption by the people of section 22 of Article XX of the California Constitution, the Legislature has the right to pass such legislation as it may believe appropriate without being limited in its jurisdiction, as it was formerly limited by the Usury Law, which limitation existed at the time the Industrial Loan Act was amended in 1933. Accordingly, the Legislature may remove the existing doubt relating to the Industrial Loan Act by repassing the portion thereof which by virtue of its conflict with the Usury Law was probably repealed by it. Therefore, your committee, in view of the reasons and the evidence set forth herein, makes the following:

RECOMMENDATION.

That section 4 of the Industrial Loan Act (Statutes 1917, page 658), as subsequently amended, which fixed the rate and charges permissible to the persons licensed hereunder, be reenacted in its present form, i.e., as amended by Statutes of 1933, Chapter 132, approved April 20, 1933, and being in words and figures as follows:

SEC. 4. Every corporation under the provision of this act shall have power, subject to the supervision and control of the Corporation Commissioner of the State of California:

First—To loan money on personal security, or otherwise, and to deduct interest therefor in advance at the rate of 6 per cent per annum, or less, and, in addition, to receive and to require uniform weekly or monthly installments on its certificates of investment, purchased by the borrower simultaneously with the said loan transaction or otherwise, and pledged with the corporation as security for the said loan, with or without an allowance of interest on such installments.

Second—To sell or negotiate choses in action for the payment of money at any time, either fixed or uncertain, and to receive payments therefor in installments or otherwise, with or without an allowance of interest upon such installments. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to authorize corporations hereunder to receive deposits or to issue certificates of deposit. The issuance of choses in action herein authorized shall be approved as to form by the Commissioner of Corporations and shall bear the indorsement on the face of the instrument "This is not a certificate of deposit."

Third—To charge for a loan, made pursuant to this section, $2, or less for every $50, or fraction thereof loaned, for expenses, including any examination or investigation of the character and circumstances of the borrower, and the drawing and taking acknowledgments of any papers, or other expenses incurred in making the loan. No charge shall be collected unless a loan shall have been made.

Fourth—To establish offices, or places of business within the county in which its principal place of business is located, but not elsewhere.

Fifth—To purchase, sell or discount choses in action, secured or unsecured, chattel mortgages or conditional sales contracts, which shall have a maturity within two years from the date of said purchase and such purchase, sale or discount shall not be construed to be either a loan or an investment of funds as such terms are used and defined under the provisions of this act.

In addition to powers herein enumerated, every corporation, under the provisions of this act, shall have the general powers conferred upon corporations by Chapter III, Title I, Part IV, Division I, of the Civil Code, except as herein otherwise provided.

CREDIT UNIONS.

A discussion of the small loan business necessitates a brief mention of credit unions. The argument has often been advanced that credit unions may fill the need that today is satisfied by the small loan agencies heretofore discussed. The casual observer who has not had experience with small loan agencies and has not studied the subject is apt to conclude that since the law has made provision for cooperative organizations calculated to help the financially distressed, such institutions should fill the need and there remains no necessity to consider the agencies which now conduct the business of money lending.

Theoretically, the point has some basis, but from a practical viewpoint it is not sound. In spite of careful and sometimes elaborate legislative sanction and sponsorship in this and other States, credit unions have not fulfilled the expectations of their proponents nor have they filled the needs for which they were constituted. The reasons for such failure are various, and your committee believes that an analysis thereof is desirable not only because the efficacy of credit unions may thus be disclosed, but also that the philosophy of the small loan business may be rounded out in this report.

By way of preface, from the viewpoint of those who foster the credit union in this country, no reason exists why it should not function as it was originally intended to function. It is the practical working out of the plan which has failed and has prevented the general success of credit unions.

The fundamental purpose of credit unions may be summarized as an effort to promote savings among its members and to provide credit for them. The credit unions seek to make available the savings of some members for loans to other members. In that respect credit unions resemble mutual savings institutions, except that credit unions specialize in the small personal loan as distinguished from bank or real estate loans.

The credit union was intended to be cooperative in every sense; it proceeds upon the ideals of community welfare through the reciprocal effort of the members of each community.

But in spite of those idealistic purposes, credit unions have not accomplished that which the proponents hoped for and in spite of paternalistic legislation they have been only partially successful. It may be said in a general way that credit unions have been successful in instances where efficient management has been available but such management has rarely been found due to the fact that the margin of profit does not permit the necessary expenditure for high-grade personnel. The expert, trained mind is not content with the limited return available from a credit union. For that reason, as well as others, the success of credit unions in the many States in which they have been authorized has been mediocre.

HISTORY.

The first law relating to credit unions in the United States was passed in Massachusetts in 1909 Since that time similar laws have been passed in 37 States. There are two general types of credit unions, the open membership type and the employees credit unions. As the name implies, the open membership type is made up of people without a close bond of unity, as differentiated from unions whose members are all employees of one factory, one church, one racial group or one close knit community. As a result, the open membership type of credit union, having no industrial or social unity among its members, is confronted by problems which are comparable to those of an institution operated for profit. This fact is, of course, reflected in the cost of their operations. As a result, this type has not been successful and probably never will be. Careful investigation by supervisory officers of the State of New York resulted in the recommendation that the open membership type of credit union be abolished.

In this connection your committee vouchsafes the observation that the fundamental theory of the open membership union is based on a faulty premise. Such a union is predicated upon the theory that a group of people without a united interest may collectively save enough to make possible loans to those among them who may need financial assistance. The basic idea is thrift first and financial relief next The people at large are urged to invest their money with the credit union Such investment is encouraged as promoting thrift. But how is that investment used by the credit union? By lending on a class of loans known to be the most hazardous of all. We have shown the hazards that await the lender of small personal loans. We have shown that the business requires constant supervision, business acumen and an experience which is possessed by few. Yet the open membership credit union is organized, men of limited experience are put in charge, given a limited salary, and with such a background a complex and risky business is undertaken. It is with difficulty that the business may overcome this initial handicap.

Evans Clark in his book "Financing the Consumer" says:

> "Cohesiveness and cooperation set the credit union apart from all other agencies of mass finance Both qualities make for the maximum of service at the lowest possible cost. The ideal credit union is one whose members are closely associated in their daily lives, workers in the same shop, or firm, employees in the same government experiment, members of the same lodge, parish or labor union group. The better the members of credit unions know each other the less are the cost and risk of making loans, and the greater the incentive for unselfish service in the cause."

The stockholders of an open credit union have no interest in the corporation other than that of personal benefit which is usually placed ahead of the interests of other stockholders. In the open credit union no more altruistic spirit can be expected and the inevitable result follows—each member looks out for himself and gleans for himself the greatest possible advantage, even at a sacrifice of the welfare of other members.

The success of a credit union is based upon cooperation. Without cooperation it is doomed. Mere association in a credit union is not sufficient to inspire such cooperation There must be some additional factor, a spirit of brotherhood induced by some kindred interest such as a fraternity, church, lodge, or common employment, or there may be a geographic or racial unity or homogeny. Without such homogeny, competitive and selfish motives prevail and destroy the purpose of the credit union.

It may be said, therefore, that in those instances where the credit union depends on such cooperation as may be had from the rank and file of people who are strangers to each other and who have no reason for kindly concern for each other's interests, it is doomed to failure. American institutions perpetuate the principle of individualism whereas the credit union is based upon collectivism. The ideals and principles of the American people presuppose the right of self aggrandisement, whereas the cooperative institutions such as credit unions are based on the subjection of the individual good to the needs of the group. Your committee believes that such a spirit, such sacrifice of self interest is possible only where some common bond strongly impels the participants toward a common objective.

Your committee does not hesitate to recommend that the "open credit union" be discouraged for the same reasons that any unsound investment enterprise should be curbed. The fact that the credit union adopts the cooperative structure and limits its possible profit does not alter the fact that it may be a medium through which well meaning but inexperienced people lose their savings. It is our conclusion, therefore, that credit unions should be confined to the "closed" type, which may be otherwise classified as the "employees credit union."

EMPLOYEES CREDIT UNIONS.

As already indicated, the second class of credit unions should be classified as "closed membership" credit unions. Since, however, they are most often created and organized among employees, that designation has been chosen. Be it understood, however, that in this classification are included all credit unions with a limited or closed membership, that is, those which are restricted to a particular group having a common bond of employment or association. These credit unions are essentially democratic agencies of self help. They are organized, perpetuated and officered by the members of the specific group represented. Their activity becomes a factor of the organizers' routine existence; the enthusiasm of the organization permeates the employment and the union and the institution in which it is organized become related and their interests intertwined.

It is probably this interrelationship which has made possible the unions' success. In many instances the work of the officers of the union is carried on at the employer's expense and on company time. Employers encourage such activity on the theory that it promotes cohesiveness and homogeny among the employees. Even though such patronage may not be had, still the unions' activity is carried on as a subsidiary of the employer company. The motives, therefore, are those which motivate loyalty to the institution and credit extension is but secondary in importance.

Your committee is concerned with the philosophic or social values of these organizations to the extent that these organizations may affect the commercial enterprises which your committee was appointed to investigate. In other words, your committee seeks to answer the question, "Does the credit union offer a solution to the small loan problem which is better than the recommended legislation?"

We have already partially answered this question. To be of general good, the credit union theory would have to be feasible on a general scale and be available to the people as a whole instead of to isolated or limited groups. We have already shown that the theory is unworkable in that manner. We are, therefore, constrained to limit the above question as follows: "May the limited membership credit union be expected to fulfill the functions of a commercial small loan service which is general in character?"

The question is answered in the asking. Obviously the limitation of membership would necessitate the organization of countless unions before the general demand could be even approximately satisfied. Every place of employment, every rural district, every association of professional men would have to organize a credit union before the facilities of such unions could become general in character. By "general" we mean available to everybody. It is the governmental function to make privileges universally available, and if any small portion of the population is omitted the functions of government have not been fulfilled.

The inescapable conclusion is that the credit union may not be depended on to supply the demand now supplied by the commercial agencies which your committee has reviewed in this report.

There are reasons other than the foregoing why the credit union will not and can not supplant the commercial agencies. These reasons we have already categorized as "psychological." They are factors that result from the vagaries of human nature, from pride, from avarice, from selfishness, from suspicion, and from fear. To obtain a loan a member of a credit union must apply to the officers thereof. If the union is run efficiently he must disclose minutely his circumstances, his domestic situation, the reasons for his financial distress. To whom does he disclose these facts? To his fellow workers, to his associates, his neighbors? It is unnecessary to state that he will refrain from so doing if he can. Much rather will he go to an independent agency and pay any kind of price for the loan than to tell his domestic difficulties to those before whom he desires to maintain a wholesome appearance.

Again, the borrower may fear that his condition may be deemed his own fault and being conveyed to the employer will cause his dismissal. He knows the employer has interested himself in the union. He knows that its officers are "close" to the employer. He distrusts them; he fears politics; he refuses to disclose his personal affairs. Again he is relegated to a commercial agency if he is to get relief.

Suppose he does apply, however, and his circumstances are such that his loan must be denied. What will be his reaction? He has paid his tithe to the credit union for months, he has been told that the credit union will help him in distress. Distress comes and the loan is refused. May he be expected to harbor a kindly feeling toward the credit union? On the other hand, may the union be blamed for refusing to make a hazardous loan? It has to look out for the collective good instead of the individual. Its purpose is efficiency, not charity. Suppose, again, that the union officers in good spirit interest themselves in the affairs of a coworker who has applied for a loan but whose economic circumstances indicate poor management or carelessness. Will their advice be taken in good grace or will the subject resent their interference? Probably the latter, for all of us believe that we may run our affairs better than any other persons.

Favoritism, politics, dissension, suspicion, these are the heritage of the credit union along with the virtues that it possesses. The result is that the credit union will often succeed, often fail. It will never become an institution noted for constancy or can it be expected to give universally even relief. It is by no means a panacea. It has its place, and when it works, its functions are good. It is not broad enough to cope with those variegated problems which beset the small-loan business It is not, it can not be a substitute for the commercial small-loan agencies

GENERAL CONCLUSION.

Your committee submits this report as the result of its labors since the 1933 session of the Legislature. Your committee believes that it has been well informed and that the conclusions drawn from such information are sound. By no means, however, do we believe that we have exhausted the subject. Volumes might be written about small loans and the problems surrounding the business of making them. We have tried to digest the subject that we might well inform this Honorable Legislature of the true facts. In this endeavor we have been greatly assisted by many persons upon whom we have called for information and explanation. We have listened to borrowers and we have listened to the members of the small-loan industry. We have interviewed representatives of welfare agencies whose endeavors take them among the people who borrow in small amounts, and we have interviewed law enforcement officers who have dealt with the small-loan problem We have studied theory and we have studied practice. We have tempered the claims of the lender by a study of the needs of the public. And from this endeavor, study and consideration we have resolved the foregoing report which now is

Respectfully submitted.

By Mr. Wright:

Resolution Unanimously Adopted by California Real Estate Association Directors at Their One Hundred Fifty-first Session, Vallejo, March 23, 1935.

WHEREAS, The State Legislature has before it two bills proposing to extend until February 1, 1937, the moratorium upon the enforcement of mortgages and deeds of trust on real property and the contracts of purchase and sale thereon; and

WHEREAS, One bill affects such instruments and transactions made now and even hereafter made up to the effective date of the proposed act thus affecting these transactions made under modern conditions and values with full knowledge of past years of depression; and

WHEREAS, One bill proposes that no receiver shall be appointed by any court for any property subject to a mortgage or deed of trust, thus depriving all lenders of protection through the equitable remedy of receivership no matter how impaired their security, thus encouraging racketeers and inviting further racketeering of income producing properties; and

WHEREAS, One bill authorizes the court to relieve the borrower of payment of interest, which payment is the lender's only inducement to lend his money; and

WHEREAS, In the opinion of this board the necessity which justifies previous legislation of this character no longer exists except in a few cases disproportionate in number to loans heretofore made and hereafter desired to be made; and

WHEREAS, The threat of renewed moratoriums has discouraged and will further discourage the making of loans and the financing of real estate transactions which in turn will retard home building and the construction industry generally; and

WHEREAS, A revival of employment is largely dependent upon an early revival of the construction industry; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by its board of directors, assembled at Vallejo, March 23, 1935, That the California Real Estate Association urge the members of the State Legislature to give serious thought to the inevitable and harmful consequences of an extension of the moratorium in its effects upon the general public and that it consider the general public and the lenders as well as borrowers; but if in its wisdom the Legislature does enact such legislation, that it include the following:

(1) That such extension be made not to apply to loans and transactions made after January 31, 1935;

(2) That it does not destroy the legitimate protection of the lender by prohibiting a receiver in just and equitable cases according to the discretion of the court; and

(3) That it protect the lender in his receipt of interest which is his only motive in lending.

ASSEMBLY, FIFTY-FIRST SESSION,
March 25, 1935.

Hon Edward Craig, Speaker of the Assembly, California Legislature,
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

MY DEAR MR SPEAKER: Attached herewith you will find my report on building and loan association conditions in California.

Respectfully,

FREDERICK PETERSON, Chairman.

Minority Report on Building and Loan Association Conditions in California.

MR. SPEAKER AND MEMBERS OF THE ASSEMBLY: Following the adoption of a resolution I introduced in the Assembly on January 9, 1935, a committee of five members was appointed to investigate the building and loan association situation in California. I was appointed chairman of the committee, and my colleagues were Assemblymen Dawson, McBride, Utt and Welsh.

The resolution provided for the committee to make the investigation as rapidly as possible, reporting back to the Assembly soon after the 30-day constitutional recess.

This course was followed to the letter. The investigating committee held eight complaint hearings in seven cities, followed by 22 hearings in which building and loan association officials, brokers dealing in pass books and investment certificates and Federal and State officials were called before the committee.

The time allowed for this probe into the scandalous building and loan association situation was insufficient, of course. The committee was able to skim the surface of some of the more perfidious operations, however, as well as to hear the heart-rending testimony of hundreds of persons almost destitute through their investments in various building and loan associations.

I now find that I am compelled to submit a minority report to the Assembly. My resolution was adopted for the purpose of supplying the Assembly with an accurate picture of the entire building and loan association situation in California as it exists today, together with recommendations to remedy or correct the conditions if possible. The resolution was not adopted to "whitewash" certain building and loan association officials who, through mismanagement, caused great suffering to the depositors.

With this brief outline, I would like to give you a picture of the entire situation as I saw it. The other members of the committee had the same opportunity and did listen to the same testimony upon which I base this minority report

But before going any further, however, I wish to point out emphatically that the complaints received by the Investigating Committee were not directed against mutual associations—associations still remaining in the building and loan business.

In practically every instance the complaints were directed against stock organizations—particularly those owned by holding companies or affiliated with companies dealing in pass book and investment certificate securities. Furthermore, out of the 176 domestic building and loan associations operating within the State, the committee found that complaints were centered around only 26 of them.

Complaint hearings were the first order of business taken up by the Investigating Committee. Starting in Sacramento, such hearings were held in Oakland, San Jose, San Francisco, Los Angeles, San Diego and Fresno

All persons with grievances of any nature against the building and loan associations were urged to present the facts to the committee under oath

Many of the cases presented before the committee were pathetic. Stories of life savings being slashed from 50 to 75 per cent by those compelled to sell their pass books or investment certificates were astounding!

Old folks, entirely dependent upon the money deposited in building and loan associations, had suddenly found themselves utterly destitute. Although holding savings pass books with deposits ranging from a few hundred to many thousands of dollars, these old folks—many of them widows—were unable to draw even a modest distress payment to meet their actual needs.

Then came the stories about the pass book rackets—rackets actually sponsored by the building and loan associations themselves, in many instances, through their holding or affiliated companies.

Many of the depositors, unable to raise money in any other way, were told by building and loan association officials how they could raise immediate cash on their savings. Through brokers, or through holding or affiliated or subsidiary companies, the pass books or investment certificates of these unfortunate people—purchased for 100 cents on the dollar—were slashed to 30 cents, 35 cents up to 50 cents on the dollar!

Thousands of the depositors had to sell their holdings immediately, of course. Many of them were destitute; they could not obtain even the smallest distress payments from the building and loan associations. It was perfectly natural that they should sell out for a few cents on the dollar to purchase the necessities of life.

But the most sordid story about the pass book rackets was the methods used in many instances to coerce the depositors into selling their holdings.

Brokers secured lists of the depositors in one way or another. During the limited time the investigating committee had to study the situation, at least one case was uncovered where the brokers had secured the list directly from the building and loan association.

Anyway, when the lists were in the possession of brokers dealing in pass books, the depositors would be approached personally, would receive telephone calls, circular letters or postcards—each of which offered to buy the savings accounts at a few cents on the dollar.

Many times the status of the building and loan association would be actually misrepresented. In all cases, the depositor would be advised, either directly or by inference, that it would be far better to take a 50 or 60 per cent loss at the time than to take a chance on losing much more in the future.

These high-pressure methods used on depositors of building and loan associations naturally threw a number of them into a panic, and they would hasten to sell their holdings at a tremendous loss.

Borrowers from building and loan associations were also heard at these complaint hearings held by the Investigating Committee, although these complainants were in the minority.

All through the hearings ran a continuous story of grievances by depositors against the associations for alleged bad business deals. That is to say, bad deals from the standpoint of the depositor who was anxiously awaiting the moment when he could at least obtain a modest distress payment from the associations.

Likewise, criticism was directed against the activities of brokers dealing in pass book and investment certificate securities, as well as holding, subsidiary or affiliated companies dealing in such securities. The general complaint, however, was the fact that depositors had not been able to obtain distress payments.

Therefore, after the last complaint hearing had been held in San Diego on February 1st, the Investigating Committee began calling in officials of the various associations against which complaints had been filed. Brokers were also included in this last phase of the investigation, which the committee started in the State Building, Los Angeles.

From the very beginning of this questioning of association officials a large number of unethical practices were brought to light. The so-called "bad business deals" of complainants were in many instances exactly as the depositors had pictured them.

Strange loans, preposterously high for the value of the property involved, were continually bobbing up during the course of the investigation. In tracing these down, the committee would occasionally secure a reluctant admission from officials of the associations that bad business judgment was used in a surprisingly large number of instances.

I would not be able to make this report brief if I were to go into all of these so-called unethical deals, nor would the theme be improved by doing so.

But I would like to give you the details, briefly, of an outstandingly peculiar building and loan association transaction. This one is typical of the way depositors have been bilked during recent years by rank mismanagement on the part of certain association officials.

The Commonwealth Building and Loan Association of Long Beach had loaned $400,000 on a piece of property known as the "Wise Building" of that city. The real property of the Wise Company was held by a holding company organized for that purpose.

In addition to the $400,000 loaned by the Commonwealth, the Wise Company owed a further $100,000 to the Security First National Bank of Los Angeles. The bank began to press the Wise concern for the loan after the depression started, so the Commonwealth kindly turned over to the holding company of the Wise Company three unencumbered pieces of income-bearing property, so the Security First National could be given a first trust deed in satisfaction of its loan.

This deal was, in fact, an increased loan of approximately $100,000 by the Commonwealth Building and Loan Association on an office building upon which the association already had a loan of $400,000. Understand that this second loan was made in 1932 after the depression had greatly decreased the value of real property, and the first loan was already "sour."

At the time the second loan of $100,000 was made, the Commonwealth Building and Loan Association was "on notice." While the depositors were not allowed to draw their money at the time they called for it, the Commonwealth went right ahead and threw away another $100,000 of their funds. All the Commonwealth received in return was second paper of dubious value and three pieces of nonincome property of very dubious value.

The suspicious part of this deal involving depositors' money was the fact that certain officials of the Commonwealth Building and Loan Association and officials of the holding company of the Wise concern were very closely related.

Then to top off the generosity of the Commonwealth officials, an agreement was made with the Wise Company's holding organization whereby the $500,000 indebtedness could be paid off with $550,000 par value of investment certificates and portions of the property were to be released from the trust deed as payments were made. About this time the price of those certificates on the market was approximately 40 cents on the dollar. In effect, not only was the loan to be paid off at 40 cents or less on the dollar, but the security was to be progressively diminished as these payments were made. This transaction had the full approval of the State Building and Loan Commissioner at that time.[1]

Moving up into northern California again on February 15, the Investigating Committee first called in several brokers from San Jose, Oakland and San Francisco to a hearing in the State Building. The purpose of securing testimony from these brokers was to learn how the market value of building and loan association pass books and certificates were determined, how much commission was received by the brokers, how the list of depositors were obtained and other valuable data.

While it is my firm belief that there are several honest brokers dealing in building and loan association securities today, I believe it would be to the best interests of all concerned if such securities could be kept off the open market. This could undoubtedly be accomplished if distress payments were to be resumed immediately. Very few depositors would then be compelled to have their savings slashed through being forced to dispose of them on the open market.

Following our hearings in San Francisco, the Investigating Committee next moved to San Jose for three days on February 18th, 19th and 20th.

The outstanding event of the San Jose hearings was the taking over of the San Jose-Pacific Building and Loan Association by the State Building and Loan Commissioner. In his statement, Commissioner Drapeau indicated that the testimony brought out by the Investigating Committee was sufficient to justify such action.

[1] Commonwealth Building and Loan Association transcript dated Monday, Feb 11th

[2] "Admissions of officers of the San Jose-Pacific Building and Loan Association before Chairman Frederick Peterson and the Assembly Committee have convinced me that this association is engaged in unsafe business practices, as defined in the Building and Loan Code," said Commissioner Drapeau's statement. "For that, and other reasons set forth in the statute, I have taken over the association and appointed a custodian."

[3] In the case of the San Jose-Pacific, the committee refused to take testimony under oath from R. G. (Gregory) Hamilton, president of the association, because such testimony would have granted to him immunity from possible criminal action.

Here again the committee discovered another instance of the evils arising from holding companies of building and loan associations. Closely interwoven with the affairs of the San Jose-Pacific Building and Loan Association were the affairs of several holding and affiliated companies, notably the R. G. Hamilton and Co., the San Jose-Pacific Company, Limited, and the Empire Trading Corporation.

I am frankly of the opinion that one of the greatest evils of the present building and loan association situation is that of an association being owned by a holding company. Next comes the practice of an association having affiliated or subsidiary companies through which it can carry on deals not legal for the association itself to handle. These deals pertain chiefly to dealing in association securities, although there are several other practices carried on by such holding, affiliated or subsidiary companies not in the best interests of the depositors.

Here is one fact that was brought out repeatedly during all the hearings throughout the State: Officials of the various affiliated or subsidiary companies were chiefly "dummies." This was an admitted fact in some instances; in others the committee brought out admittances from the officials that they did not know what was going on in the corporations of which they were officers. It can readily be understood that such corporations, practically operated by one man, could carry on transactions actually against the interests of the depositors.

Returning to San Francisco after the San Jose hearings, officials of the largest association in the State were called before the Investigating Committee.

The Pacific States Savings and Loan Company, with assets around $90,000,000, had had more complaints filed against it than any other association in California.

But the questioning of officials of the Pacific States was quite different than officials of any other association in California. Since this company had competent observers attending every meeting held by the Investigating Committee all over the State, the Pacific States officials knew all the questions and all of the answers!

Several startling facts were brought out during the interrogation of Robert S. Odell, president of the Pacific States. One interesting fact was that the Pacific States seems to have gone entirely out of the building and loan business; its chief interest today is apparently hotel, land and farming business.

During the recent years, the Pacific States Savings and Loan Company has come into possession of the Clift Hotel, Plaza Hotel and the Alexander Hamilton Hotel, as well as other large office buildings in San Francisco. These were secured by trading small homes and apartment houses in most instances.

I have steadily maintained that foreclosed property, such as these small dwellings and apartments, should have been liquidated for cash instead of being traded into large hotels and office buildings. This would have provided some cash for distress payments to depositors.

[4] As an example of my contention, let us take, for instance, the Claus Spreckles Building transaction of the Pacific States.

To acquire this Claus Spreckles Building, 44 small properties consisting mainly of small apartment houses and bungalow terraces were traded in on the deal. Although these small properties were unencumbered they were traded in on a building with a $696,500 mortgage hanging over it.

[5] Mr Odell said that the Pacific States had not assumed the mortgage, but he frankly admitted his company would lose the equity in the property if the interest payments were not met.

[6] In order to acquire the Clift Hotel, the Pacific States traded in 179 small properties, consisting mainly of small dwellings and buildings.

I have merely cited these transactions in my report to indicate how far away from the original building and loan association business some of the associations have strayed.

[7] "Window dressing" of financial statements was frankly admitted by Robert G. Odell while he was on the witness stand before the investigating committee. While he explained the legality of the practice, I firmly believe that the benefits of such a transaction can easily be defeated, and I question the advisability of trying to "fool the public."

[8]The committee had received a detailed complaint against the Pacific States Savings and Loan Company to the effect that a sworn financial statement, sent to depositors on December 30, 1931, contained $1,363,582.77 more cash on hand than another financial statement filed with the State Building and Loan Comissioner the following day.

Briefly, Mr. Odell explained to the committee, it has been the practice of the Pacific States to borrow a million or so from banks on the interest due date, have it on hand for a sworn financial statement to be sent to depositors, or to be published in the newspapers, and then return it to the banks the following day.

Mr. Odell said the purpose of such "window dressing" of financial statements was to satisfy people that they could get their interest in cash. He pointed out that such "window dressing" of financial statements was to maintain public confidence.

But personally I question the value of this theory. Both of the reports are available to depositors, since they receive one, and a provision of the building and loan laws requires that the commissioner exhibit the other. And if the average depositor should care to check up on the published report by requesting the commissioner's office for the statement filed with the State, it seems to me that his confidence in the Pacific States would be destroyed in a hurry. That is, unless Mr. Odell happened to be around to explain the discrepancies between the two financial statements.

Another peculiar practice of the Pacific States Savings and Loan Company for a period of time was the rental of buildings for branch offices on a 99-year lease.

Through a real estate agent, the Pacific States would have a building erected for its branch office and would sign a lease for 99 years. In one instance, the rental of the property was $700 a month.

[9]Mr. Odell admitted that on one occasion that Pacific States had to take a loss of $50,000 in order to get out from under a 99-year lease, and in other instances the company had to acquire the property in order to cancel the long-term leases at a high rental.

Following the completion of the Pacific States Savings and Loan testimony, the committee returned to Sacramento for the second half of the legislative session

I wish to emphasize in this report that I do not have any desire to "crucify" any building and loan association or official. In fact, I do not wish to work any hardship on the various building and loan associations, but I do want to protect the depositors in every way possible.

Since the investigation started, I have personally received hundreds of pathetic letters from old folks, widows—persons who had deposited their last penny in the various associations. And it is this tremendous mass of inarticulate depositors, which we must think of in adopting remedial legislation.

These folks who are steadily being forced to sell their pass books and investment certificates at a fraction of their cost—they are the ones who are watching the action taken by the California Legislature this session.

Under the existing building and loan laws, it seems to have been the practice to attempt to rehabilitate the various building and loan associations regardless of how such rehabilitation affects the depositors. This may have been the proper course to follow from one viewpoint, but I believe the depositor's interest should always come first.

I firmly believe that we can protect the interests of all concerned in the building and loan associations to the best advantage by adopting the recommendations I am making in this report.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

Immediate Resumption of Distress Payments—

Payment of not less than $30 a month in cases of distress should be resumed immediately by all associations.

Extension of Moratorium—

With certain reservations, I would favor the extension of the Moratorium Act of March 10, 1933, until June 1, 1937.

Here are the reservations, briefly:

Associations taking advantage of the moratorium extension, indicating they are unable to live up to their contractual obligations, shall be taken over by the State for reorganization.

Investment certificates shall be accepted at face value for property of an association only from original investors on the association records as of March 10, 1933. Otherwise, cash shall be the only consideration in the sale of association property.

When an association is permitted to pay less than the contracted rate of interest, the difference between the amount paid and the contract rate shall be credited to the investor's account until paid.

[8] Exhibit 18-b, page 5

[9] Page 13, Vol 3, San Francisco transcript

The State shall have the power to withdraw protection from an association under the Moratorium Act at any time the State deems the association able to meet its contractual obligations.

Abolition of Pass Book System of Deposits—

I recommend that in the future no building and loan association be permitted to use pass books, or documents which resemble pass books, to receive deposits.

During the years before the depression, the building and loan associations encouraged people to believe that funds deposited and entered in "pass books" actually were "deposits" instead of "investments." By newspaper advertising, by radio and by word of mouth, investors were given to understand that funds deposited and entered in "pass books" were secured in exactly the same manner as funds deposited in savings accounts of banks.

But now, since the difficulties of the various building and loan associations, the "pass book" holders are told: "Why, you didn't deposit money with us, you made an investment."

I have used the term "deposit" throughout my report because fully 90 per cent of all pass book holders today still believe what they were told in the halcyon years.

Limitation of Loans—

An association should be allowed to lend its funds only on the security of first liens upon homes, or combination home and business property within 50 miles of its home office. Not more than $20,000 should be permitted to be loaned on the security of a first lien upon any such property; except that not more than 15 per cent of the assets of an association could be permitted to be loaned on other improved real estate without regard to the 50-mile limit if secured by first liens.

Reorganization of All But Mutual Associations—

In view of the fact that the committee's investigation has proved that the greatest evil in the building and loan association situation today is through guarantee capital stock, I recommend that all such associations be reorganized upon a mutual basis within two years. At the same time all provisions of law authorizing issue of guarantee stock by building and loan associations should be repealed.

Conversion Into Federal Savings and Loan Associations—

I would recommend that any building and loan association be permitted to convert into a Federal savings and loan association upon a vote of 51 per cent of its shareholders, or to secure Federal deposit insurance and to take any steps necessary for that purpose.

Interim Committee to Recodify Building and Loan Laws—

I recommend the appointment of a Joint Interim Committee to investigate building and loan association conditions further, particularly the effect of legislation adopted at this session of Legislature. This committee should have full power and authority to carry on an intensive investigation and study of the associations.

The Joint Interim Committee should study not only the building and loan association situation in California, but also the operation of the laws of other States as well.

During the interim between this Legislature's adjournment and the 1937 session, the committee would be able to make a comprehensive study of the entire subject and prepare a complete building and loan code for the consideration of the Legislature.

Emergency Building and Loan Commission—

In view of the foregoing recommendations and the additional work heaped on the State Building and Loan Commissioner's office, I would recommend the creation of a commission, consisting of three members, to be known as the "Emergency Building and Loan Commission."

This commission would act as an appeal board and have final jurisdiction in all matters affecting building and loan associations in California. The emergency commission should also be charged with carrying out the provisions of the Moratorium Extension Act, as well as the reorganization of all associations on a mutual basis. The commission should be appointed by the Governor to serve at his pleasure.

The need for this commission is obvious. The State Building and Loan Commissioner, actively supervising a business in California which represents approximately $400,000,000, has all he can do with the ordinary work of his office. Should my recommendations be accepted and made into law, additional duties would be heaped on the commissioner's shoulders, and it would be utterly impossible for any one man to be responsible for such a tremendous load.

In closing this report, I would like to express my sincere appreciation to four branches of the State government, which aided the building and loan investigation in many ways.

Attorney General U. S. Webb kindly assigned E B. Power, Assistant Attorney General, to work with the committee during the latter part of the investigation. With a background of more than 30 years service with the State, Mr. Power supplied the committee with many intelligent suggestions about procedure, as well as lending valuable assistance in the examination of witnesses and other duties.

I particularly want to commend the Legislative Counsel, Mr. Fred Wood, for his kindness in assigning his able deputy, Mr. Harold B. Haas, to the committee as counsel. Mr. Haas worked night and day during a major portion of the investigation, and his services were extremely valuable in both the preparation and conduct of the various hearings.

I also wish to thank State Building and Loan Commissioner, Louis C. Drapeau, for his cooperation during the entire investigation, as well as the Corporation Commissioner, Edwin C. Daugherty.

Respectfully submitted.

FREDERICK PETERSON.

By the Chief Clerk.

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK BOARD.
WASHINGTON, March 22, 1935

Clerk of the House of Representatives, State Capitol, Sacramento, California.

MY DEAR MR CLERK: Herewith certified copy of a recent resolution of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board. This resolution was adopted pursuant to frequent inquiries from legislative offices as to the desirability of such legislation. In a number of the States, bills for such legislation are pending and have not yet been enacted.

Would it be asking too much of you to request that you get this resolution in the hands of any committee which may be considering such a bill.

I realize that this may make it necessary for you to examine the file of pending bills, but the board is quite anxious that its views be known to the legislators, and I know of no other way to get the information before them.

If you find it possible to do this, we will all be highly appreciative.

Very truly yours,

JAMES R FRAZER, Associate General Counsel.

(Enclosure)

Be it resolved by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, That it is deemed desirable that legislation be enacted in all of the States to provide that all shares issued by any Federal savings and loan association duly chartered by and under the supervision of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, which shares are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, shall be legal investments for trust funds of every kind and nature

I hereby certify that the above is a true and correct copy of a resolution adopted by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board on March 4, 1935.

MILK CONTROL LEGISLATION.

The recent decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Seelig vs. Baldwin has increased the importance of the attached bulletin. In this case the court unanimously agreed that New York State had no authority to interfere with interstate commerce through milk control laws which attempted to fix prices dealers must pay producers outside of New York's borders for milk sold within the State.

This brief analysis of the 15 State milk control laws should be of interest to legislators and State officials in those States in which this type of legislation is now being considered. Copies of these laws may be secured by writing to the various State milk control boards and commissions.

Resolution.

The following resolution was offered:

By Mr. Flint:

Assembly Resolution.

WHEREAS, There has been furnished to this body the report of the Railroad Commission, published in the Journal of March 8, 1935, which report purports to include dues, donations, subscriptions and contributions of public utility corporations for all purposes during 1934; and

WHEREAS, The report of a majority of these utilities does not include contributions and expenditures for the purpose of influencing elections or the defeat or election of candidates for public office; and

WHEREAS, A noteworthy example of this failure to make a full report in accordance with the demand of the Assembly is the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, which in its endeavor at a special election on September 27, 1934, to secure a 40-year franchise to use the streets of Los Angeles, is reliably reported to have expended vast sums of money; and

WHEREAS, This corporation is today engaged in an election campaign for April 2d, next to secure a similar franchise, the previous effort having been overwhelmingly defeated; and

WHEREAS, The present campaign of this corporation is ostensibly managed by a so-called municipal affairs committee, the expenditures of which are of such a nature and volume as to indicate that the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation is endeavoring to deceive the electorate in devious ways; and therefore be it

Resolved, That the State Railroad Commission be requested to at once secure and transmit to the Assembly a full and complete report from the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation of its contributions and expenditures, directly and indirectly, for political purposes in 1934, and also a like report for the present campaign in Los Angeles to secure a 35-year franchise at an election to be held on April 2, 1935; and

Resolved, further, That this resolution be transmitted forthwith by the Chief Clerk of the Assembly to the president of the Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation with the demand that such reports be also supplied to the Assembly before April 1, 1935.

Power Defense League and other so-called leagues and committees are actively opposing the aforesaid corporation in its efforts to comply with an order of court to secure a new gas franchise before July 1, 1935, and large amounts of money are being expended in connection with such opposition, for extensive bill boards, circulars and newspaper dodgers of such nature and volume as to indicate that the said bureau of light and power and the said department of water and power of the city of Los Angeles and the said Municipal Light and Power Defense League are expending large sums of money in violation of the law which prohibits the expenditure of any money by said bureau of light and power for political purposes; and

WHEREAS, Said bureau of light and power has coerced its employees to contribute a percentage of their salaries in order to furnish additional funds to carry on the aforesaid political campaign; and

WHEREAS, The said bureau of light and power carry on said campaign in a secretive way and are endeavoring to deceive the electorate in devious ways; and".

Explanations of Vote.

I intended voting "aye" on the Field resolution. I was testing out the voting machine and the record was cleared before I had a chance to vote "aye."

JAMES J. McBRIDE.

Also:

I am in favor of this resolution, but I am opposed to spending $500 of the taxpayers' money to investigate some alleged statements of one individual who can easily be subpenaed at Sacramento as well as witnesses to the whole conversation at which time the alleged statement was made.

BEN ROSENTHAL.

Also:

We believe the appropriation of $500 for this purpose is a waste of the people's money because the lobbyists at which the resolution is directed could be called before the Legislature to make their statements which could be proved or disproved.

The people will have faith in us because of our recorded actions rather than what certain lobbyists may say about us.

BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Scope of the Word "Bill."

4. Whenever the word "bill" is used in these rules it shall include constitutional amendments, joint and concurrent resolutions.

Joint and Concurrent Resolutions.

5. Joint resolutions are those which relate to matters connected with the Federal government. All other resolutions relating to matters to be treated by both houses of the Legislature are concurrent resolutions.

Resolutions Treated as Bills.

6. Joint resolutions, concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments shall be treated in all respects as bills; except that they shall be read but one time in each house and that they shall not be deemed bills within the meaning of section 2 of Article IV of the Constitution, and shall not be referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills, and shall not require a vote to authorize their introduction. As in the case of bills, they shall be engrossed in the house in which they originate before being voted upon.

PREPARATION AND INTRODUCTION OF BILLS.

Title of Bill.

7. The title of every bill introduced shall convey an accurate idea of the contents of the bill and shall be indicative of the scope of the act and the object to be accomplished. In amending a code section, the mere reference to the section by number shall not be deemed sufficient.

Division of Bill Into Sections.

8. Bills amending more than one section of existing laws shall contain a separate section for each section amended.

Bills which are not amendatory of existing laws shall be divided into short sections, where this can be done without destroying the sense of any particular section, to the end that future amendments may be made without the necessity of setting forth and repeating sections of unnecessary length.

Restrictions as to Amendments.

9. A substitute or amendment must relate to the same subject as the original bill, resolution or constitutional amendment under consideration. It shall be the duty of the Legislative Counsel to note all bills upon the third reading files of the Senate and Assembly to determine whether or not such bills have been amended, and if so, whether or not a bill which has been amended affects the same subject matter as that expressed in the title of the original bill. In the event that it does not, he shall immediately notify the Secretary of the Senate in writing if the bill be upon the third reading file of the Senate, or the Chief Clerk of the Assembly if the bill be upon the third reading file of the Assembly, and shall state wherein this rule has been violated.

Changes in Existing Law to Be Marked by Author.

10. In case of a bill amending a code section or a general law, any new matter shall be underlined and any matter to be omitted shall have a single horizontal line through the center. When printed the new matter shall be printed in italics and the matter to be omitted shall be printed in canceled or "strikeout" type.

Indorsement of Date of Introduction.

11. Bills introduced in either house shall be indorsed with the date of introduction.

PRINTING AND DISTRIBUTION OF BILLS.

Manner of Printing Bills, etc.

12. The State Printer shall observe the following directions in printing all bills, constitutional amendments, joint and concurrent resolutions:

(a) The body of such bills and resolutions shall be printed in solid unspaced form so that the same type shall be used both before and after enrollment.

(b) All titles of bills, resolutions, etc., shall be set in italics, statute form, and the length of the lines used in the titles shall not exceed that of the body of the bill.

(c) The lines of all printed bills shall be numbered by page and not by sections, and amendments shall be identified by reference to title, page and line only; provided, however, that concurrent resolutions approving city or county or city and county charters or amendments thereto may be set in smaller type and without line numbers.

(d) Enrolled bills may be inclosed in stock cover.

Printing of Amendments.

13 All bills amended by either house shall be immediately reprinted; in the case new matter is added by the amendment such new matter shall be printed in italics in the printed bill, and in the case of matter being omitted, the matter to be omitted shall be printed in type bearing a horizontal line through the center and commonly known as "strikeout" type. When a bill is amended in either house, the first or previous markings shall be omitted. When a bill amendatory of a code section or general law is engrossed, all figures or symbols shall be removed.

In the case of an amendment to a skeleton bill, which amendment actually sets up, for the first time, the wording of the bill, this rule shall not apply, but the use of italics and strikeout type shall be as in an original bill

Distribution of Legislative Publications.

14. All requests for mailing or distribution of bills, resolutions, histories, etc., shall be filed with the Secretary of the Senate or Chief Clerk of the Assembly, who shall compile the same with the elimination of duplication as a general mailing list. Each member of the Senate and Assembly shall be permitted to submit a list of ten libraries, chambers of commerce or individuals who shall be placed upon such general mailing list. The Secretary of the Senate and Chief Clerk of the Assembly shall order sufficient number of bills, constitutional amendments, joint and concurrent resolutions, histories, etc., to supply this list, together with such number as may be necessary to supply members and legislative officers, accredited newspaper representatives, law libraries, Legislative Counsel, Attorney General, and one copy to each State elective officer or board, together with such requests for individual bills as may be filed with either of the houses of the Legislature or the Legislative Bill Room. It shall be the duty of the Secretary of the Senate or the Chief Clerk of the Assembly, when it shall appear that there is an insufficient number of any particular legislative publication on hand to supply public demand, to immediately order a reprint of such publication in a number sufficient to meet such demand as may reasonably be anticipated. Except as hereinabove provided, no complete list of bills, resolutions, etc., shall be delivered except upon payment therefore of the sum of $35, which amount after deducting the cost of handling and mailing, shall be by the State Printer remitted one-half each to the Secretary of the Senate and the Chief Clerk of the Assembly for credit to legislative printing. Except in the event of unusual demand, as hereinabove provided for, the total number of each bill, constitutional amendment, joint or concurrent resolution to be printed, shall be not more than 2500.

Distribution of Bills After Constitutional Recess.

15. Following the recess, new bills introduced shall be forwarded to the public libraries and law libraries only, and one copy each of amended bills as may be requested. Weekly Histories shall be distributed generally, following the recess, upon such schedule as the Secretary of the Senate and Chief Clerk of the Assembly may designate.

Journals shall not be distributed to the entire mailing list, but only to elective State officers, libraries and such persons as may specially request copies of the Journal covering the proceedings of a certain day or covering specific legislative action.

OTHER LEGISLATIVE PRINTING.

16. Preliminary Report of the Select Committee of the Assembly Investigating the Building and Loan Association Situation in California.

ASSEMBLY CHAMBER, March 27, 1935.

Hon. Edward Craig, Speaker, and Members of the Assembly.

Pursuant to the resolution adopted by the Assembly on January 9, 1935, your committee herewith submits to the Assembly the following report on the building and loan situation in the State of California:

Your committee duly organized and held public hearings in the important cities throughout the State. The procedure was, first, to have complainants appear before the committee so that it would have a basis upon which to further its investigation. Questionnaires, calling for sworn data with reference to the financial condition and ownership and control of all building and loan associations in the State of California, were sent out and upon receipt of the answers by your committee were tabulated and used as one of the bases for questioning the officers and directors of the various companies involved. In addition to this information, the committee had the fullest cooperation of Hon. Louis C. Drapeau, the State Building and Loan Commissioner, who furnished us with all information at his disposal, thus enabling the committee to function more efficiently.

The time in which the committee had to conduct such an important investigation was very limited as it had only the 30-day recess period in which to perform its duties. When it is considered that over 300 witnesses personally appeared before the committee and gave testimony; that hundreds of pieces of documentary evidence were filed with it; that numerous financial statements of the companies and their affiliates and subsidiaries were analyzed, it will be apparent to the Assembly that at this date it is impossible to go into as much detail in our findings and recommendations as your committee would like, but it is the intention of the members of the committee, signing this report, as soon as possible, to file a supplemental report covering, in detail, the facts revealed by the investigation and the action it deems necessary for this body to take to aright the present existing conditions within the building and loan companies and which are not covered by the pending legislation involved in Assembly Bill No. 1300.

Your committee believes that in order to arrive at a proper understanding of the conditions which confront the building and loan associations in the State of California today, it is necessary to be conversant with the history of building and loan associations in the State generally.

HISTORY OF CALIFORNIA ASSOCIATIONS.

Prior to 1907 all building and loan associations in the State of California were of the pure mutual type, and membership shares were the only type of security permitted to be issued. A feature common to all of these associations was that since they were primarily organized to promote the building of homes, practically all the loans made by them were necessarily long term, amortized, nonliquid loans. Members or shareholders of a pure mutual association are, in effect, partners, and receive only such rate of return as the association actually earns, and are permitted to withdraw only when the association has disposable funds.

Following the disastrous crash of three mutual type associations in the bay district, by amendment adopted in 1907, associations were, for the first time, authorized to issue investment certificates and a nonwithdrawable capital stock called guarantee capital stock. The rights of investment certificate holders to withdraw were defined by statute as identical to those pertaining to shareholders, no preference being accorded to certificate holders over shareholders as to withdrawal. However, by amendment in 1911, investment certificate holders were accorded a priority, and this relative status between investment certificates and shares has ever since been continued in our law.

Owing to the various statutory changes, there are in California three distinct types of associations, i.e., (1) the pure mutual association which issues only membership shares; (2) the pure guarantee stock type of association which issues only guarantee stock and investment certificates; and (3) the so-called hybrid association having a guarantee capital stock but which issues both shares and investment certificates.

Between 1907 and 1930 the associations in the State generally, operated successfully without loss to investors, save in the case of the Guaranty Building and Loan Association of Hollywood, where the losses were due to the peculations of the manager of the institution, rather than to any apparent defects in the capital structure of the association. However, after the first two years of the present continuing economic depression, nearly all the building and loan associations of the State found themselves with rapidly mounting real estate inventories, due to default on the part of borrowers and foreclosures consequent thereto. This rapidly mounting real estate inventory, coupled with the decreasing real estate values and diminished income, resulted in many cases of impairment of the guaranteed capital of the particular association, and it was only then that the inherent defects of the guarantee capital stock type of association became apparent.

While many critics are inclined to trace all the troubles of building and loan associations to the mere fact that a majority of the associations in the State have guarantee capital stock, it is clear that their problems have not arisen solely by reason of this fact. The deeper underlying cause of the difficulty has been that the guarantee stock type of association had issued investment certificates bearing a fixed and inflexible interest rate. Before the depression, most associations were paying 6 per cent on their money, and their outstanding investment certificates called for a definite rate of interest, regardless of the condition of the money market and regardless of the actual earnings and ability of the association to pay. This feature has unquestionably been one of the fundamental causes of the difficulties in which building and loan associations find themselves today in California. It is, of course, well known that savings banks have the power to adjust the interest rate paid on their deposits and, as is also well known, the savings bank rate during the depression has been continuously decreased from a high point of 4½ per cent to the present generally prevailing rate of 2½ per cent. The pure mutual building and loan association labors under no such difficulty, as it is only required to pay its members a yield based on the actual earnings of the association, and this is unquestionably one of the outstanding reasons why the pure mutual type of association has not gotten into the serious difficulties that the guarantee stock type of association has.

All building and loan associations invest most of their funds in long term, noncallable loans, repayable in small monthly installments. By their very nature, associations are not liquid, and building and loan investments are not and can not be demand deposits. Associations are designed to afford to small investors the opportunity of investing their funds under conditions which will result in a larger return to them than is paid by a bank to its depositors, and associations are able to pay such higher rates chiefly because a comparatively small amount of their funds is required to be retained in reserves, and because their investments are usually made in long term amortized loans in improved real estate which, though less liquid than short term loans, command a higher rate of return. However, it is clear that the associations in this State prior to the crash, were guilty of leading many of their investors to believe that they were making demand deposits rather than investments, and this has unquestionably been one of the chief grounds for complaint now that associations, because of their huge real estate portfolios and many withdrawal demands made upon them, have been unable to meet all withdrawal demands.

While Assembly Bill No. 1300 as now amended, affords a quick means of correcting the outstanding abuses that have developed under the Emergency Act in respect of certificate deals and nonpayment of distress withdrawals, and will provide a permanent and feasible solution of the building and loan difficulties through its reorganization provisions, certain permanent reforms will be later essential. It will be either necessary to forbid the creation of any new guarantee stock type of association, or it will certainly be necessary to provide that investment certificates with a fixed, inflexible rate of interest, may not hereafter be issued. The rate of return on investments must bear some scientific relationship to the earnings of the institution and to the going money market.

The depression has resulted in freezing up most of the associations in the State. There are several fundamental causes for this condition. In the first place, borrowers have defaulted on their loan contracts to an enormous extent. This has resulted in converting what were formerly good income producing loans into real estate which is extremely costly to carry, and which can not be disposed of for cash, owing to the present prostrate condition of the real estate market.

In the second place, associations have been unable to attract any new funds, except of an inconsequential amount, in the last three years There can be no question but that the associations of the State are loaded up with real estate and other slow assets. These assets are not disposable because of the condition of the market, and instead of producing sufficient net return to pay the interest rate to investors, in many cases are an actual cost to the associations, especially if they are kept in proper condition and true depreciation is taken and taxes paid. It is believed that rehabilitation and reorganization of many associations, with proper segregation of assets, is the only feasible and permanent solution of the situation, giving due recognition to the frozen condition of the associations, the decrease of real estate values, the lack of an existing healthy real estate market, and the fact that many associations have been compelled to cease functioning as true building and loan associations

Assembly Bill No 1300, which is an emergency measure, is designed to effect this program and, at the same time, correct various abuses It will permit associations to reorganize, will enable them to take advantage of Federal aids, and pending reorganization and rehabilitation, will clothe the commissioner with plenary powers to correct abuses which existed in some cases during the Emergency Act.

PRESENT CONDITIONS DETRIMENTAL TO INVESTORS IN BUILDING AND LOAN.

Your committee feels that under the existing emergency law, which was enacted by the Legislature in 1933, certain very detrimental aspects have developed within building and loan association activities.

"Investment Certificate Deals."

The first and foremost of these evils is the dealing in certificates by certain building and loan associations whereby those associations have been scaling down their liabilities in a greater degree than the corresponding reduction of their assets. The manner in which this is done is quite simple and consists only of accepting their investment certificates, either from borrowers or from purchasers of property, at less than their face value The effect of this policy has been to deprive investment certificate holders, who have been forced to liquidate their holdings, of a portion of their capital investment. It has also resulted in a depreciated real estate market within the State, by reason of the fact that the associations, in their endeavor to liquidate their real estate holdings, have placed property on the market at a price based upon investment certificate values, which is less than the corresponding cash market.

Another effect of "investment certificate deals" has been, as a result of scaling down of liabilities at a greater rate than the scaling down of assets, the building of a value into the guarantee capital stock of the association involved, which, in the opinion of your committee, is inequitable, so long as certain investment certificate holders are deprived of a portion of their capital investment through forced liquidation for less than 100 cents on the dollar Still another result of "investment certificate deals" is one which works for the benefit of those certificate holders who are not forced to liquidate. That is, by remaining as investors and through the benefits accruing to the association from the certificate deals, the liabilities are brought into line with the assets so that the investment certificate holders, who retain their certificates, are secured 100 cents on the dollar on their investment.

Your committee does not intend, by the foregoing comments on "investment certificate deals", to condemn such deals but merely desires to point out evils which may have resulted from the uncontrolled dealing in certificates by certain associations. Your committee is firmly convinced that the best interests of the building and loan business has been served by allowing such deals to be made even though it has resulted in hardships for some. It bases its conclusion upon the theory that the greatest good to the greatest number should be the controlling factor in these transactions, and it is your committee's firm opinion that more good than harm has resulted from these deals.

Your committee believes that strict supervision of these deals, which will be afforded by Assembly Bill No. 1300, as amended, will result in the eradication of the evils and the retention of the benefits to be derived from such "investment certificate deals."

Suspension of Withdrawals.

The second major objection to the existing emergency act has been the suspension of withdrawals by the building and loan associations without due consideration of the rights of investors. Here again, many associations have availed themselves of the provisions of the 1933 emergency legislation without due regard to equity and justice. Some associations within the State have made a sincere effort to comply with the spirit of the emergency legislation, which permitted payment of limited amounts to persons actually in distress. Others have used the distress payments provisions of the emergency act in a coercive manner, either (1) to force the withdrawal of withdrawal notices or, (2) to force the investor to exchange his investment certificate for a certificate of different type and usually calling for interest at a lower rate. Your committee can not condemn too strongly the actions of those associations indulging in this practice, and is firmly of the opinion that this one abuse of privilege, granted during an emergency period, has caused the bringing into disrepute the building and loan business generally, more than has any other single factor.

Assembly Bill No. 1300, as amended, grants to the Building and Loan Commissioner effective means to control this kind of activity on the part of certain building and loan associations and makes mandatory upon associations the payment of moneys to investors actually in distress in amounts up to $60 per month, and in addition thereto, gives to those associations certain statutory safeguards with reference to liability to investors having withdrawal notices on file, which, in the opinion of your committee, is necessary.

PRESENT LACK OF REORGANIZATION AND FEDERAL CONFORMITY PROVISIONS.

Under the existing Building and Loan Law, as amended March 10, 1933, there is no provision whereby an association may reorganize to meet existing economic conditions or whereby an association, not now eligible for participation in Federal aid, may secure that aid through reorganization and conformity to Federal requirements, and thus become eligible. Assembly Bill No. 1300, as amended, and as will be seen from the further analysis accompanying this report, sets up the machinery whereby both of these objectives may be accomplished.

PRESENT LACK OF PROTECTION TO INVESTORS.

Under the existing Building and Loan Law the powers of the Building and Loan Commissioner are restricted and whatever jurisdiction has been exercised over the dealings of the associations with reference to the matters which have herein been discussed have resulted, either through cooperation with the association or as a result of coercion on the part of the commissioner, rather than from a right established by law. Assembly Bill No. 1300, as amended, broadens the power of the commissioner to an extent which will permit the commissioner, under the law, to do those things which he has been doing in the past only by sufferance. Your committee feels that the best interests of the investors in building and loan associations can only be served by granting to the Building and Loan Commissioner the power to regulate and control the activities of the associations taking advantage of the emergency legislation. Your committee feels that much of the situation which now confronts the building and loan business in this State would never have been, had the commissioner had the plenary power with which he is clothed by Assembly Bill No. 1300, as amended.

As expressed in the earlier part of this report, your committee feels that more time is essential to the formulation of an intelligent, comprehensive report covering all the aspects of the building and loan situation in California, especially with regard to such controversial matters as holding and subsidiary companies, and the ultimate disposition of those problems. Your committee also feels that in undertaking the responsibility of this investigation, in fairness to the Assembly and to the people who would be affected by our investigation, but one approach to the problem was open. By this we mean that the majority of the members of the committee at least considered the committee only as a fact-finding body having for its purpose the disclosing of facts upon which to base intelligent and effective remedial legislation. It has been the intention of the majority members of the committee to approach the investigation from a calm, unbiased viewpoint and not with the intention of "hanging" any particular association, associations, or individual or individuals. Neither would your committee propose to "whitewash" any association or associations, or individual or individuals, and your committee believes that a scrutiny of the transcript of the hearings will show conclusively that this course was adopted.

Your committee feels that in this preliminary report it is not necessary to comment upon specific items of evidence presented to the committee in hearing but rather that any such excerpts from testimony should be included in the committee's final report. Your committee likewise deplores the fact that an apparent breach in its ranks has unnecessarily burdened the Assembly with two separate reports and the members of your committee subscribing to this report are of the opinion that a careful analysis of the viewpoints herein expressed will reveal no glaringly divergent ideas or opinions amongst the entire committee.

Unfortunately, certain statements with reference to the committee have been made, the most obnoxious of which was to the effect that but one member of the committee was looking after the interests of depositors. Nothing could be further from the truth and our viewpoint is supported by the amount of work the committee members have devoted to the task of amending Assembly Bill No. 1300 to conform to what your committee believes to be the best interests of depositors. In this connection we may add that one of the most vociferous opponents of Assembly Bill No. 1300, prior to its amendment, expressed himself to the members of this committee as being deeply grateful to them for the interest which they showed in the welfare of the depositors of building and loan associations and with their obvious purpose of forcing from the stockholders of building and loan associations the rights and protections granted to the investors by the amendments to Assembly Bill No. 1300.

Your committee feels it has amply justified its appointment. From its investigation and deliberation upon the subject matter of the investigation and from the study of all the evidence introduced before it, your committee has reached the conclusion that the extension of the existing emergency period, as initially proposed, would be extremely prejudicial to the welfare of the investors in building and loan associations, and from its conclusions, so drawn, the amendments to Assembly Bill No. 1300 were developed.

Your committee urgently recommends to every member of the Assembly a careful study of its analysis of Assembly Bill No. 1300, as amended, which accompanies this report, and recommends the immediate passage of this important urgency measure.

Your committee is deeply grateful for the cooperation it received from the office of the Attorney General and also from the Legislative Counsel Bureau, and it wishes to express its sincere appreciation to Mr E. B. Power, Assistant Attorney General and Mr. Harold B. Haas, Deputy Legislative Counsel, for their loyalty and perseverance and the extremely valuable assistance rendered by them to this committee.

Respectfully submitted.

If proposals or bids are invited only for the furnishing of materials, supplies and equipment or any portion thereof not furnished by such agency or authority, the notice shall contain a statement to the effect that the legislative body may cancel the order for any undelivered materials, supplies or equipment by giving the successful bidder twenty-four hours notice of said cancellation, in which event the successful bidder will be entitled to compensation for only so much of the material, supplies and equipment as has been used prior to the giving of such notice of cancellation at the prescribed unit rates stated in the contract, and that the contractor shall agree to accept the return of any and all materials and supplies not used prior to the giving of such notice.

SEC. 4. Section 17 of said act is hereby amended to read as follows:

And in case the work is abandoned by the city before work is actually started or before any materials, supplies or equipment have been furnished or used, the incidental expenses incurred previous to such abandonment shall be paid out of the city treasury, but such expenses for which the city is liable and which shall have been paid thereby may be charged as incidental expenses against the district benefited in any new proceeding had or taken for an improvement which shall include substantially the same thing or things to be done as those included in the abandoned proceedings.

SEC. 5. Section 18a is hereby added to said act, to read as follows:

Sec. 18a. If a contribution of labor or of labor and any portion of materials, supplies or equipment is to be made by any local, State or National agency or authority, the contract shall contain a provision that the legislative body may cancel the order for any undelivered materials, supplies or equipment by giving the contractor twenty-four hours' notice of said cancellation, and require the contractor to accept the return of the unused materials and supplies, in which event the contractor will be entitled to compensation for only so much of the materials, supplies and equipment as has been used prior to the giving of such notice. The contract shall also contain a provision that no materials, supplies or equipment shall be delivered until a delivery permit signed by the superintendent of streets has been received by said contractor, and provided that if the city receives a contribution of labor or of labor and any portion of materials, supplies or equipment from any local, State or National agency or authority, the superintendent of streets is authorized in his official capacity to include in the contract for doing the work a provision that the contractor shall comply with each approved Code of Fair Competition to which he is subject pursuant to the requirements of the National Industrial Recovery Act and all rules and regulations and orders made thereunder.

SEC. 6. Section 21a is hereby added to said act, to read as follows:

In all other particulars the assessment shall be made in conformity with the provisions of sections 20i and 21 of this act; provided, however, that if all of the work described in said resolution of intention is not completed because the agency or authority ceases to furnish the labor provided for in the resolution of intention, for a period of ninety days, the street superintendent shall notify the city council of such cessation in writing Said city council may by resolution declare the contract terminated and order the superintendent of streets to make the assessment to cover the portions of work completed and incidental expenses incurred, in accordance with the benefits to be received by each of the several lots, portions of lots or subdivisions of land in said district, pursuant to the provisions of said sections 20i and 21.

SEC. 7. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, and shall go into effect immediately.

The following is a statement of the facts constituting such necessity:

The public peace, health and safety require the immediate construction of sanitary sewers, storm drains, streets, highways and other public improvements, and public funds are not available to defray the entire cost and expense of such improvements. Legislation is necessary to authorize the contribution of labor, materials, supplies and equipment or any of them, by governmental agencies and to permit the levy of assessments against the property directly benefited by such improvements to defray the remaining cost and expense thereof. Federal funds are now available for such purpose. Therefore this bill, providing for the levy of assessments to pay a portion of such cost and expense, is urgently necessary and shall go into effect immediately."

Assembly Joint Resolution No. 42 ordered transmitted to the Senate.

Assembly Joint Resolution No. 42.

Relative to memorializing the President and Congress to enact appropriate legislation to establish a social credit system in the United States by providing a currency based on actual assets

WHEREAS, There exists, not only in our own State of California, but also in every State of this great Nation, a condition of unemployment which is depriving millions of our citizens of an opportunity to engage in productive effort; and

WHEREAS, There exists not only in our own State of California, but also in every State in this Nation, a condition of unemployment, destitution and industrial and commercial stagnation, involving the loss of more than forty billion dollars annually; and

WHEREAS, This condition is inimical to the physical, moral and social welfare of the people, and strikes at the very foundation of our democracy by destroying the faith of the people in the institutions of representative government; and

WHEREAS, This state of affairs is directly traceable to the failure of our monetary system with its inherent inflexibility, to keep pace with the expanding energies of an advancing civilization, particularly when the control of money and credit had passed into the hands of private monopoly, and had become the means of exploitation; and

WHEREAS, It is the acknowledged duty of our government to provide a medium of exchange, adequate to the full utilization of our National productive capacity, and the control of that medium must be entirely subject to the authority delegated by the people to the Federal Government as provided in the Constitution, and

WHEREAS, Our unlimited resources and highly developed facilities of production are ample to provide universal abundant prosperity and economic security for all of our people, if means were provided to release the dormant energies now held in bondage by a debt burden unparalleled in all human history; and

WHEREAS, To continue borrowing is to continue the trend toward complete economic slavery, and final control of all the means of wealth production by a corporate feudality controlled by a few, and the inevitable destruction of a form of government conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men have equal rights to the pursuits of happiness; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly and the Senate of the State of California, jointly, That the President and the Congress of the United States be hereby respectfully urged to enact appropriate legislation to establish a social credit system in the United States whereby the bonds of States, counties and municipalities may be deposited with the United States Government, and currency issued thereon without interest, on the same terms as was formerly accorded to privately owned National banks Such bonds to be redeemed in twenty equal annual installments, payable at the rate of five per cent a year, and as they mature the currency issued would be returned to the government and the bonds canceled. This would provide a flexible currency, solidly backed by the growing wealth of the country, and adequate funds would thus be made available without usury, to restore our people to productive activity, rescue our States, counties and municipalities from bankruptcy, and inaugurate a new era of prosperity.

Resolved, That the Governor of the State of California be hereby requested to transmit copies of this resolution to the President and Vice President of the United States, to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to each Senator and member of the House of Representatives from California in the Congress of the United States, and that such Senators and members of the House of Representatives from California be hereby respectfully urged to support such legislation.

Respectfully submitted.

Request to Print Speech in Journal.

Mr Anderson requested that the speech of Mr. Voigt, relative to Assembly Joint Resolution No. 42, be printed in the Journal.

Motion carried.

Mr. Speaker and Members of the Assembly.

Public obligations in the State of California now approximate $3,305,000,000, almost one-half the total assessed valuation.

Add to this the amount of debt secured by mortgages, trust deeds, bonds and notes which is conservatively estimated at $20,000,000,000 and we have a grand total of $23,500,000,000 debt in this State alone.

In general the same is true of the 47 other States in the Union. The picture thus presented shows clearly the utter hopelessness of the situation, for it is perfectly obvious that no progress can be made against the obstacle of an increasing debt burden.

The necessity of organic reform in our monetary system as a solution to the problem is clearly understood by the progressive leaders in both of the two great political parties, and by all students of history and economics

The situation we are in is designated in social science as a "recurrent phenomena" in human history.

The original Solon, Archon of the ancient Republic of Athens, in 594 B.C. was confronted with the same problem that we now face Measures were enacted similar to the one here advocated. Attica was released from its debt burden, its people restored to productive activity and the example of Solon has perpetuated his name for more than 2500 years.

The same situation developed in the ancient Roman Republic in 494 B.C., in 390 B.C and in 376 B.C. Licinius proposed the Licinian rogations which were enacted by Camillus in 367 B.C to dispose of the debt burden.

The insurrections and revolutions which took place during the time of Marius were occasioned by the development of an unbearable debt burden

At one time 6000 of the followers of Spartacus were crucified The Appian Way, 140 miles long, was lined with crosses, and on each cross a bleeding victim to usury.

In 800 A.D. Charlemagne liberated all serfs who had become enslaved by debt, and so we find throughout all history that the development of a debt burden eventually results in slavery, unless the burden can be liquidated.

And today we have arrived at a position where it is impossible to liquidate the debt burden except by organic changes which will provide a new foundation for our monetary system.

When money becomes abstract, when a circulating medium loses its touch with values, its destructive power is almost unlimited. As an example let me point out that in 1920 the National wealth was estimated at $488,000,000,000, in 1932 it was estimated at $247,000,000,000 This great Nation worked for 12 years creating utility values, and suffered a net loss of $241,000,000,000 Our moratorium measures are simply a means to postpone the day of reckoning until a reduction is made in this manifest absurdity between utility values and money values

This is not a partisan matter; no problem can be solved by appeal to passion or prejudice. There must be a presentation of facts and statistics and historic precedents and these evolve their own logic which determines the merits of the proposition offered.

Its constitutionality can not be questioned. It is but a humane modification of the National banking system now in operation. When the measure is finally drafted in all its details, the outlines of the National banking law with the abuses left out, will be taken as a model for the new measure If the Government has the constitutional authority to allow the owners of United States bonds to deposit them with the treasury as security for currency, it unquestionably has the authority to accord parity to bonds of political subdivisions representing a first lien on real and tangible values.

The value of the bond depends upon the wealth-producing and productive energy of the people. The value of the earth itself depends upon the use which mankind makes of it.

We have in this State 1,250,000 persons dependent on public funds for a bare existence. Three hundred thousand heads of families willing and able to work, desperately anxious to regain economic security are condemned to the curse of idleness, in the midst of all the possibilities for universal abundant prosperity

No claim is made that this measure is a panacea for all our ills; other fundamental changes are necessary to restore a reciprocal balance between production and distribution, but this measure points the way and offers a solution of the debt problem, and I ask for it your favorable support.

ERNEST O. VOIGT.

As chairman of the Assembly Committee to Investigate Lobbyists I was in attendance at the Senate committee hearing investigating the activities of Nathan J. Elliott. I was recalled to the Assembly Chamber on a call of the house and did not hear the explanation of Assembly Bill No. 788 and confused it with another bill upon which I intended to vote "No." I intended to vote "Aye" on Assembly Bill No. 788 and also on the urgency clause to the same bill.

Therefore I am recorded as voting "No" on Assembly Bill No. 788 when I intended to vote "Aye."

"SECTION 1. Unless the context otherwise indicates, words used in this act shall have the same meaning as defined in section 2 of the Corporate Securities Act, as amended; provided, however, that the term "security" as used in this act shall also include shares, stock and investment certificates as defined in the Building and Loan Association Act. As used in this act, the word "individual" includes every natural person, domestic and foreign private corporations, nonprofit corporations, unincorporated associations, companies, partnerships of every kind, syndicates, joint stock companies, trustees, protective committees, depositors' leagues and other similar organizations howsoever described, but shall not be deemed to include (a) any licensed practicing attorney rendering or performing services in connection with the practice of law; (b) any person holding a certificate as a broker or investment counsel then in effect issued by the commissioner, rendering or performing services as such; nor (c) any holder of a permit then in effect, granted by the commissioner under the Corporate Securities Act, as amended, permitting the issue of certificates of deposit.

SEC. 2. No individual, as in this act defined, shall, within this State, solicit, receive or collect any contributions, fees or funds, or compensation of any kind, or solicit any subscription or contract to pay the same, from any owner or holder of securities, for the purpose of protecting, enforcing or representing the rights of such security owners or holders evidenced by such security, until such individual has first applied for and secured from the commissioner a certificate then in effect authorizing such individual so to do. To secure such certificate, the applicant shall make and file in the office of the commissioner an application therefor in writing, verified by or in behalf of the applicant. In such application the applicant shall set forth, in addition to such other information as may be required by the commissioner:

(1) The name and address of the applicant and the name and address of each of its directors, managing officers and agents, if any;

(2) A succinct statement of facts showing that the applicant and its directors, managing officers and agents, if any, have a good business reputation;

(3) The particular securities and the name of the company issuing the same, in respect of which the individual proposes to solicit contributions, fees or funds from the holders thereof;

For filing such application the applicant shall pay the commissioner a fee of twenty-five (25) dollars, and all such fees charged and collected by the commissioner shall be handled and disposed of as in sections 26 and 28 of the Corporate

Securities Act provided, and are hereby specifically appropriated to be used by the commissioner in carrying out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 3. The commissioner shall examine such application and shall make such further investigation of the applicant and its proposed program, affairs and personnel as he shall deem advisable. If from such examination the commissioner shall be satisfied:

(a) That the applicant and its directors, officers and agents, if any, are of good business reputation;

(b) That applicant's proposed program is not unfair, unjust or inequitable and is undertaken in good faith, and that it intends to fairly and honestly transact its business, and that the commissions to be paid by applicant to its agents, solicitors or representatives, if any, for contributions solicited are not unreasonably large;

(c) That neither applicant nor its directors, officers or agents, if any, have engaged or are about to engage in any fraudulent transaction, he shall issue such certificate; otherwise he shall refuse the same and deny the application and notify the applicant of his decision.

Any such certificate may contain such terms and conditions as the commissioner may in said certificate provide, including, without limiting the foregoing, (a) a restriction as to the amount of commissions or any other allowance to be paid to solicitors, agents or representatives of such applicant in soliciting contributions from security holders, and (b) a requirement that such applicant file with the commissioner, at such times as required by him, a verified statement of its receipts and disbursements, and of the results accomplished by such disbursements, in such detail as the commissioner shall prescribe.

The commissioner shall have power to revoke any such certificate if after hearing upon notice he shall find the existence of any of the grounds hereinabove enumerated for the denial of the application for such a certificate.

SEC. 4. The commissioner shall have the power to establish such rules and regulations as may be reasonable or necessary to carry out the purposes and provisions of this act. All papers, documents, reports and other writings filed with the commissioner under this act shall be open to public inspection; provided, that if, in his judgment, the public welfare demands that any portion of such information be not made public, he may, in his discretion, withhold such information from public inspection for such time as in his judgment is necessary. The commissioner may at any time give, issue, or make public any information, facts or data in his possession concerning any company or individual, as in this act defined, if in his judgment the giving, issuing, or publishing of the same will be of public interest or advantage or will tend to prevent fraud or injury to the public.

SEC. 5. The commissioner, whenever he has reason to believe, from evidence satisfactory to him, that any individual has violated or is about to violate any of the provisions of this act, may order such individual to desist and to refrain from the violation or threatened violation of this act. If, after such an order is made, a request for a hearing is filed in writing and no hearing is held within sixty (60) days thereafter, such order shall be deemed to have been rescinded.

SEC. 6. Whenever the commissioner shall believe, from evidence satisfactory to him, that any individual has violated or is about to violate any of the provisions of this act or any certificate, demand or requirement, or any part, provision or condition thereof, he may bring an action in the name of the people of the State of California in the superior court of the State of California against such individual to enjoin such individual from continuing such violation or engaging therein, or doing any act or acts in furtherance thereof. In such action an order or judgment may be entered awarding such preliminary or final injunction as may be proper.

SEC. 7. Every individual who knowingly violates any provision of this act, or any rules or regulations of the commissioner made pursuant hereto, or any conditions of any certificate issued hereunder, shall be guilty of a public offense and shall be punished by imprisonment in the State prison for a term not exceeding five (5) years, or in a county jail not exceeding two (2) years, or by a fine not exceeding five thousand (5,000) dollars, or by both such fine and imprisonment. Every individual who solicits, receives or collects any contributions, fees or funds, or compensation of any kind, or contracts for the payment of the same, in violation of this act or of any of the terms or conditions of any certificate issued by the commissioner hereunder, shall be jointly and severally civilly liable for the return of the full amount of such contribution, fee or fund so collected, together with reasonable attorney's fees.

SEC. 8. Every order, decision, certificate or other official act of the commissioner made pursuant to this act, shall be subject to review, in accordance with the provisions of Chapter I of Title I of Part III of the Code of Civil Procedure. Upon such review, the burden of proof shall lie upon the appellant, and the court shall receive and consider any pertinent evidence, whether oral or documentary, concerning the action of the commissioner under review, but shall be limited to a consideration and determination of the question whether there has been an abuse of discretion on the part of the commissioner in making such order, decision, or certificate, or other official act.

SEC. 9. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, and as such it shall take effect immediately The following is a statement of the facts constituting such necessity:

As a consequence of depressed business conditions throughout the State of California and elsewhere, various groups of unscrupulous operators are seeking to take advantage of security owners and holders through the solicitation and collection of funds for the asserted purpose of investigating the condition, management and operation of companies, all upon the false representation that affirmative and effective steps will be taken to protect, save or recover the investment of the security owners and holders. Such unregulated solicitation and collection of funds in many cases results in no investigation or action on behalf of security owners and holders and inures solely to the personal financial benefit of the originator of the plan and to the solicitors in the form of excessive commissions There exists the necessity for effective and orderly regulation and supervision by the commissioner of such activity and exploitation growing out of present conditions, so as to afford protection to legitimate groups of security owners and holders who seek to assert their rights as such and at the same time to protect companies from the depredations of those who seek funds solely for themselves, under the guise of advancing the interests of the security owners and holders.

Title read and approved.

Bill ordered transmitted to the Senate.

Explanation of Vote by Mr. Heisinger.

I believe that to limit the number of cars in a train would assist and expedite the movement of freight and in my opinion, move the perishable products of California into the markets in less time, thereby reaching better markets with less refrigeration charges.

I believe shorter freight trains would bring more business to the railroads and would not raise freight charges, but would decrease wear, tear and damage to railroad rolling stock which might actually reduce the cost of transportation to the railroads.

The Democratic platform declared for a train limit.

Therefore, I am voting for this bill

The certificate of the assessor shall be conclusive as to the sufficiency of the signatures on said petition.

SEC. 3. Said board of supervisors shall not modify the lands to be included in said district so as to exclude therefrom any lands devoted in whole or in part to the growing of the horticultural product proposed to be benefited by the formation of such district. board of election for such precinct. The inspector shall be chairman of the election board in each precinct, and may administer all oaths required in the progress of the election. Any member of the board of election may administer and certify oaths required to be administered during the progress of the election. If the board of election, or any member thereof, fails to appear at the opening of the polls on the morning of the election, the electors of the precinct present at that hour may appoint a board or supply the place of the absent member thereof. The election must be held within fifty days from the date of the order calling the same. Such election shall be called by publication of notice thereof in a newspaper of general circulation printed and published within the county in which said proposed district is situated, once a week for three successive weeks previous to such election, and by posting notice thereof in one public place in each of the precincts not less than fifteen days prior to said election. Such published and posted notices shall each designate the name of said proposed district, and designate the respective election precincts and the polling place in each of the same, and the election officers, and the date of the election, and the hours during which the polls will be kept open; provided, that the polls in each precinct must be opened not later than eight o'clock a.m. and kept open at least until four o'clock p.m.

The board of supervisors shall require the clerk of said board to furnish ballots and necessary supplies for said election. No particular form of ballot shall be required except that the same shall contain the words: "Shall _____ Protection District be organized under the provisions of the Horticultural Protection District Act?

Yes.

No."

The ballots shall have printed thereon instructions that the voter shall write or print or stamp a cross after the words that indicate his choice, together with the number of votes he is entitled to cast as hereinafter provided.

Said election, and all other elections held under the provisions of this act, shall be conducted in accordance with the general election laws of this State so far as applicable, and except as herein otherwise provided. The election officer in delivering to each voter his ballot shall ascertain from the register hereinafter provided for, and write upon the ballot, the number of votes the holder of the ballot is entitled to cast, and, in canvassing the returns, shall see to it that the number of votes cast does not exceed the number of votes such voter was entitled to cast, but, if there is an excess, the ballot shall not be disregarded or invalidated, but only the number which the voter was entitled to cast shall be counted.

Immediately, at the close of said election the election officers in each precinct shall publicly count the votes cast at the election and shall certify the returns of said election to the board of supervisors of the county.

No person shall be entitled to vote at any election held under the provisions of this act, unless he is the owner of land included in the district on which said land there is planted or growing the particular horticultural product sought to be protected by the organization of the district. Each and every owner of land included in said district on which said land there is planted or growing the said horticultural product, shall be entitled to vote in person or by proxy at any election held under the provisions of this act, and shall have the right to cast at any such election, one vote for each such acre of land owned by him on which there is planted or growing said horticultural product. An owner of such planted land within the district comprising less than one acre shall be entitled to one vote. In calculating the number of acres owned by any voter, any fraction of an acre in excess of the integral number owned by him shall be disregarded. Whenever it becomes necessary under this act to determine the acreage on land irregularly or unevenly planted to the given product, or planted in border, the trees, shrubs or vines producing the product as planted on such land shall be counted. At the time of, and as a part of his report to the board of supervisors on the petition for the organization of any horticultural protection district under the provisions of this act, the agricultural commissioner of the county wherein said proposed district is situated shall certify in writing to the board of supervisors, the average number of vines, trees or shrubs growing the horticultural product sought to be protected by such district, which are customarily planted on one acre of land in his county. For all purposes of voting and taxation as herein provided, said number so certified shall be conclusive, and the number of acres comprised in any parcel irregularly or unevenly planted, or in any border planting shall be conclusively determined by dividing the number of trees therein by the number so certified by the agricultural commissioner. All persons, firms and corporations owning lands as hereinbefore described and included in said district shall be entitled to vote at any election held under the provisions of this act. Where land is owned by two or more persons, the votes for such land shall be divided in accordance with the interest of each owner at any such election. Where a corporation or partnership appears as the owner of any land included in the district, the vote of such corporation or partnership at any election held under the provisions of this act shall be cast by any person holding a proxy from such corporation or partnership. Executors, administrators, special administrators, guardians and trustees may cast the votes of the estates or lands represented by them at any election held under the provisions of this act upon filing with the board of election, a certified copy of their letters testamentary or of administration or guardianship or of appointment as trustee. No person shall vote by proxy at any such election unless authority to cast such vote shall be evidenced by an instrument in writing duly acknowledged and certified in the same manner as a grant of real property, and filed with the board of election. No vote representing any land shall be cast at any election held hereunder in any precinct other than the precinct within which the land represented by such vote is situated.

Every person, firm and corporation desiring to vote at any election held under the provisions of this act must be registered as such voter with the agricultural commissioner of the county within which the district is situated not less than twenty days prior to any such election. Such registration may be made by the voter in person or by any person for the voter. Such registration shall be made upon oath on forms provided for that purpose by the agricultural commissioner, and in each instance shall specify the number of acres of land owned by the registrant included in the district and planted to the horticultural product protected or sought to be protected by said district, the precinct of the district wherein such land is situated, the location of such land by government or other subdivision, and the number of votes claimed by such registrant. Such claim shall not be conslusive as to the number of votes to which the registrant is entitled. The agricultural commissioner shall, for each election held hereunder, investigate each and every registration, and shall determine the number of votes which each person, firm or corporation registered with him shall be entitled to cast at such election. Not less than five days before the date of any election held under the provisions of this act, the agricultural commissioner shall prepare a complete register of all persons, firms and corporations registered with him as herein provided, and entitled to vote at such election, and shall therein specify the precinct in which each such person, firm or corporation may vote, and the number of votes which each such person, firm or corporation may cast at such election. The register so prepared shall be final and conclusive as to qualification to vote and number of votes allowed, and no person, firm or corporation shall cast any ballot at any election held under the provisions of this act, except as authorized by the said register and one copy of such register shall be provided for and at each precinct at each election held under the provisions of this act For the election upon the question of organizing a district hereunder, the board of supervisors shall require the agricultural commissioner to prepare the register in the manner herein specified.

SEC. 5. The said board of supervisors shall, on the first Monday following the election upon the question of the organization of the proposed district, meet, and canvass the returns of such election, and, if, upon such canvass, it determines that a majority of the votes cast at such election are in favor of the organization of the proposed district, then the board of supervisors shall, by order entered upon its minutes, declare the district duly organized under the name theretofore designated Such order must particularly describe the territory included in said district so that all lands included in said district may be known therefrom, and a copy of said order duly certified by the clerk of the board of supervisors, must be forthwith filed for record in the office of the county recorder of the county wherein the district is situated.

SEC. 6. The members of the board of directors of each district shall each receive such salary as shall be fixed by the board of supervisors of the county in which the district is situated, and such salary shall not be increased during the term of office of such director. Directors shall also be reimbursed for actual and necessary traveling expenses incurred by them in and about the performance of any duties required by the board of directors to be performed by them for the district. All claims presented by any director shall be subject to the approval of three other members of the board of directors.

SEC. 9. The term of office of the directors shall be four years, except those first appointed as aforesaid upon the organization of the district. Said appointees shall, immediately upon their appointment, classify themselves by lot so that the terms of three of them shall expire on the first day of May following the first biennial election of the district and the terms of the other two shall expire on the first day of May following the second biennial election of the district.

The board of directors of each horticultural protection district organized hereunder shall have power to appoint and to fix the compensation of a secretary of the district who shall keep all records and perform such other duties as are ordered by the board of directors.

SEC. 12. SEC. 13. In every county wherein any horticultural protection district has been organized and exists under the provisions of this act, the county assessor in making the annual assessment of property in each and every year after the organization of such district, must assess and enter as a separate item on the assessment roll for each parcel of real property included in such district, the value, as improvements thereon, of all trees, vines or shrubs of the horticultural product protected by such district, growing thereon. Such assessment shall be upon an acreage basis and the number of acres in the case of irregular or border planting, shall be determined conclusively by the assessor by counting such trees and dividing the total number by the number per acre of average planting certified as hereinbefore provided, by the county agricultural commissioner. Upon completing the assessment roll of the county in each year, the assessor shall separately compute and certify to the board of supervisors, the total assessed value, as shown by said assessment roll, of all such trees, vines or shrubs so assessed in each horticultural protection district situated in the county.

SEC 14. The board of directors of each horticultural protection district organized hereunder must, on or before the first Monday in July of each year, prepare and file with the board of supervisors of the county within which such district is situated a budget setting forth all estimated expenditures of the district for the fiscal year commencing on the first day of such month of July. A copy of said budget shall also at the same time be filed with the auditor of the county. The board of supervisors of each county wherein is situated a horticultural protection district organized under the provisions of this act, must annually, at the time of levying other county taxes, levy a tax upon all the trees, vines or shrubs of the variety of horticultural product protected by said district and planted or growing in said district as assessed by the assessor under the provisions of this act. The board of supervisors must determine the rate of such tax by deducting ten per cent for anticipated delinquencies from the total assessed value of such trees, vines or shrubs included in the district as it appears on the assessment roll of the county, and dividing the sum reported by the district board of directors as required to be raised, by the remainder of such total assessed value; provided, that if a fraction of a cent occur on a valuation of one hundred dollars, it shall be taken as a full cent.

SEC. 15. The tax so levied shall be computed and entered upon the assessment roll by the county auditor, and if the supervisors fail to levy the tax as provided in the foregoing section, then the auditor must do so. Such tax shall be collected at the same time, and in the same manner as general county taxes, and when collected shall be paid into the county treasury for the use of said district.

SEC. 16. The provisions of the Political Code of this State, prescribing the manner of levying and collecting taxes and the duties of the several county officers with respect thereto, are, so far as they are applicable and not in conflict with the specific provisions of this act, hereby adopted and made a part hereof. Said officers shall be liable upon their several official bonds for the faithful discharge of the duties imposed upon them by this act.

SEC. 17. The treasury of the county wherein any horticultural protection district is located shall be the repository of all the moneys of such district. The county treasurer shall receive and receipt for all such moneys, and place the same to the credit of the district. He shall be responsible upon his official bond for the safe keeping and disbursement, in the manner herein provided, of all moneys of any such district so held by him. The county treasurer shall pay out the moneys of the district only upon warrants of the county auditor drawn upon the order of the board of directors of the district signed by the president of said board and attested by the secretary. The county treasurer shall report in writing on the first day of July, October, January and March of each year, to the board of directors of each horticultural protection district in his county, the amount of money he then holds for such district, the amount of receipts since his last report, and the amounts paid out; and each such report shall be verified and filed with the secretary of the district to whom it is addressed.

SEC. 18. In each horticultural protection district organized under the provisions of this act, a biennial election shall be held on the first Monday in April of each odd numbered year, and the board of directors of such district shall, for the purpose of holding such election, divide the district into convenient precincts, establish the polling place in each precinct, and appoint the same number of election officers for each precinct as for the election upon the question of organizing the district. The board of directors of the district shall cause notice of such election to be published once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation printed and published in the county wherein the district is situated, and by causing such notice to be posted in a public place in each of the precincts not less than fifteen days before the date of such election. At said election, a sufficient number of directors shall be elected to fill the places of those directors whose terms expire the first day of May immediately following said election. Any person eligible for the office of director, and desiring to be a candidate for election to such office must file a written notice with the secretary of the district declaring his candidacy, at least fifteen days before the said election. The names of all persons who have filed such declaration shall appear on the ballot, together with instructions to the voters to vote for the number of directors who are to be elected at such election, and the persons up to the number of directors to be elected who receive the highest number of votes shall be declared elected. The register for each such election shall be prepared by the agricultural commissioner of the county in the manner hereinbefore provided. The returns of each such election shall be reported by the boards of election to the board of directors of the district who shall meet on the Monday following such election and canvass said returns. The persons declared elected shall take the oath of office and file their official bonds with the county clerk of the county on or before the first day of May following such election, and shall take office at noon of that day. The persons, firms and corporations entitled to vote at such biennial elections and the number of votes each shall be entitled to cast shall be determined in the same manner as for the election upon the organization of the district.

SEC. 19. Upon the written petition of any owner of land in the county wherein the district is situated, devoted to the growing of the horticultural product protected by such district, filed with the board of directors of any horticultural protection district, such land may, by order of such board of directors be included within the said district. A certified copy of each order of the board of directors so including additional lands within the district shall be filed for record by the secretary of the district in the office of the county recorder of the county immediately upon its passage by the board of directors, and each such order shall particularly describe each parcel of land so included in the district.

Whenever all trees, vines or shrubs of the particular horticultural product protected by a horticultural protection district have been completely removed from any parcel of land included in said district, the owner of such parcel of land may file with the board of directors a verified petition particularly describing said parcel of land, and setting forth the fact of the removal therefrom of such trees, vines or shrubs. Thereupon, the board of directors shall cause an investigation of said parcel of land to be made, and, if the board finds the allegations of said petition to be true, then it shall by order entered upon its minutes, and upon the payment of such landowner of all taxes whether delinquent or otherwise then levied upon such parcel of land for the district, exclude said parcel of land from the district. A certified copy of such order particularly describing said parcel of land, shall be immediately filed for record in the office of the county recorder of the county wherein such district is situated.

SEC. 20. The board of directors of each horticultural protection district organized under the provisions of this act shall hold a regular meeting at least once each month at such time and place in the district as shall be appointed by resolution of such board; and the board of directors of each such district shall prescribe the rules and regulations for the conduct of its meetings and for calling and giving notice of special meetings of such board.

SEC. 21. Whenever a petition approved by the agricultural commissioner of the county in which any horticultural protection district is located and signed by not less than fifty landowners residing within said district who are engaged in the growing of the particular horticultural product protected by the district praying for the dissolution of the district is presented to and filed with the board of directors of the district, the said board of directors shall submit the question of the dissolution of said district to the qualified voters of the said district at the next biennial election of the said district; provided, however, the board of directors shall not be required to accept a petition for the dissolution of the district within ten days preceding any biennial election of such district. If, at said election, sixty per cent of the votes cast thereat are in favor of the dissolution of the district, then the directors of said district must, within sixty days thereafter, file for record in the office of the county recorder of the county a certified copy of an order declaring said district to be dissolved, and cease all activities, and shall proceed immediately to wind up the affairs of the district. At the expiration of ninety days after said election, the board of directors shall deliver all property and assets in their possession belonging to said district to the agricultural commissioner of the county to be held and used by him as in his judgment shall be for the best interests of the product formerly protected by the district. Any funds which may be in the hands of the county treasurer to the credit of the district or to which the district may thereafter become entitled shall be transferred to the credit of the county in which said district is located and shall be expended by the board of supervisors for the benefit of the product formerly protected. All claims and accounts against said district which have not been settled by the board of directors within ninety days after the election authorizing the dissolution of the district shall be presented to the board of supervisors of the county in which said district was located and shall be passed and approved by them in the same manner as county claims and shall be paid out of the funds of the dissolved district. In the event there are insufficient funds to discharge all claims and accounts, then the board of supervisors shall, at the time of levying the next general county taxes, make a levy upon the property of said dissolved district sufficient in amount to discharge all outstanding claims and accounts against said district.

SEC. 22. If any section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the validity of the remaining portions of the act. The Legislature hereby declares it would have passed this act, and each section, subsection, sentence, clause or phrase thereof, irrespective of the fact that any one or more of the sections, subsections, sentences or phrases be declared unconstitutional."

Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 58 ordered transmitted to the Senate.

Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 58.

A resolution to propose to the people of the State of California an amendment to the Constitution of said State by amending section 8 of Article XI thereof, relating to the preparation and adoption of charters by cities and cities and counties.

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That the Legislature of the State of California at its fifty-first regular session commencing on the seventh day of January, 1935, two-thirds of the members elected to each of the two houses voting in favor therefor, hereby proposes to the people of the State of California that section 8 of Article XI of the Constitution of the State of California be amended to read as follows:

Sec. 8. (a) Any city or city and county containing a population of more than 3500 inhabitants, as ascertained by the last preceding census taken under the authority of the Congress of the United States or of the Legislature of California, may frame a charter for its own government, consistent with and subject to this Constitution; and any city, or city and county having adopted a charter may adopt a new one. Any such charter may be framed by a board of fifteen freeholders chosen by the electors of such city at any general or special election, but no person shall be eligible as a candidate for such board unless he shall have been, for the five years next preceding, an elector of said city. An election for choosing freeholders may be called by a two-thirds vote of the legislative body of such city, and on presentation of a petition signed by not less than 15 per cent of the registered electors of such city, the legislative body shall call such election at any time not less than thirty nor more than sixty days from date of the filing of the petition. Any such petition shall be verified by the authority having charge of the registration records of such city, or city and county and the expenses of such verification shall be provided by the legislative body thereof.

(b) Candidates for the office of freeholders shall be nominated either in such manner as may be provided for the nomination of officers of the municipal government or by petition, substantially in the same manner as may be provided by general laws for the nomination by petition of electors of candidates for public offices to voted for at general elections.

(c) At such election the electors shall vote first on the question "Shall a board of freeholders be elected to form a proposed new charter?" and secondly for the candidates of the office of freeholder. If the first question receives a majority of votes of the qualified voters voting thereon at such election, the 15 candidates for the office of freeholder receiving the highest number of votes shall forthwith organize as a board of freeholders, but if the first question receives less than a majority of the votes of the qualified voters voting thereon at such election no board of freeholders shall be deemed to have been elected.

(d) The board of freeholders shall, within one (1) year after the result of the election is declared, prepare and propose a charter for the government of such city. The charter so prepared shall be signed by a majority of the board of freeholders and filed in the office of the clerk of the legislative body of said city. The legislative body of said city shall, within fifteen (15) days after such filing, cause such charter to be published once in the official newspaper of said city and each edition thereof, during the day of publication (or in case there be no such official newspaper, in a newspaper of general circulation within such city and all the editions thereof issued during the day of publication) and in any city or city and county with over 50,000 population shall cause copies of such charter to be printed in convenient pamphlet form and in type of not less than ten point and shall cause copies thereof to be mailed to each of the qualified electors of such city, and shall, until the day fixed for the election upon such charter, advertise in one or more newspapers of general circulation in said city a notice that copies thereof may be had upon application therefor.

(e) Such charter shall be submitted to the electors of such city at a date to be fixed by the board of freeholders, before such filing and designated on such charter, either at a special election held not less than 60 days from the completion of the publication of such charter as above provided, or at the general election next following the expiration of said 60 days.

(f) As an alternative the legislative body of any such city or city and county, on its own motion may frame or cause to be framed, a proposed new charter and submit the proposal for the adoption thereof to the electors at either a special election called for that purpose or at any general or special election. Any charter so submitted shall be advertised in the same manner as herein provided for the advertisement of a charter proposed by a board of freeholders, and the election thereon held at a date to be fixed by the legislative body of such city or city and county, not less than 40 nor more than 60 days after the completion of the advertising in the official paper.

(g) If a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon at such general or special election shall vote in favor of such proposed charter, it shall be deemed to be ratified, and shall be submitted to the Legislature, if then in session, or at the next regular or special session of the Legislature. The Legislature shall by concurrent resolution approve or reject such charter as a whole, without power of alteration or amendment; and if approved by a majority of the members elected to each house it shall become the organic law of such city, or city and county and supersede any existing charter and all laws inconsistent therewith. One copy of the charter so ratified and approved shall be filed with the Secretary of State, one with the recorder in the county in which such city is located, and one in the archives of the city; and thereafter the courts shall take judicial notice of the provisions of such charter.

(h) The charter of any city, or city and county may be amended by proposals therefor submitted by the legislative body of the city on its own motion or on petition signed by 15 per cent of the registered electors, or both. Such proposals shall be submitted to the electors at either a special election called for that purpose or at any general or special election. Petitions for the submission of any amendment shall be filed with the legislative body of the city, or city and county not less than 60 days prior to the general election next preceding a regular session of the Legislature. 6. In the case of a petition of the first class, if the owner does not file said stipulation within said twenty days, the political subdivision, within sixty days after the commission has made and filed its said finding, must commence an action in a court of competent jurisdiction in a manner in accordance with the provisions of law, to take under eminent domain proceedings said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof. In the case of a petition of the second class, if the owner does not file said stipulation within said twenty days, the political subdivision, within sixty days after the commission has made and filed its said finding, must initiate proceedings for the purpose of submitting to its voters a proposition to acquire under eminent domain proceedings said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof. The political subdivision shall not be required, in either case, to delay for more than twenty days after the commission has made and filed its finding, before commencing said further proceedings. In the case of a petition of the second class, if the voters of the political subdivision shall thereafter, as provided by the law governing said political subdivision, vote in favor of any proposition to acquire under eminent domain proceedings, or otherwise, said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, the political subdivision shall, within sixty days after its voters have so voted in favor of such acquisition, commence an action in a court of competent jurisdiction in a manner in accordance with the provisions of law, to take under eminent domain proceedings said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, unless the owner shall have filed with the political subdivision a written stipulation consenting and agreeing to accept the just compensation fixed by the commission.

7. If the political subdivision, in a petition of the first class, fails to file said action in a court of competent jurisdiction within said period of sixty days after the commission has made and filed its said finding, or if the political subdivision, in a petition of the second class, fails to proceed diligently to submit said proposition to its voters or fails, if its voters have voted in favor of the acquisition of said lands, property and rights, or of said part or portion thereof, to file said action in a court of competent jurisdiction within sixty days after the voters have voted in favor of said acquisition, the owner of such lands, property and rights, or of said part or portion thereof, may file with the commission a verified petition in writing setting forth said fact, which petition may also set forth in detail the expenditures which the owner has necessarily incurred in the proceeding before the commission. The commission shall thereupon cause written notice of not less than ten days, with a true and correct copy of the owner's said petition attached thereto, to be served upon the political subdivision, to appear before the commission at a time and place specified in the notice, to show cause why an order should not be made by the commission (1) finding that the political subdivision has failed to pursue diligently its rights herein conferred, (2) determining that said finding as to just compensation shall no longer be of any force or effect, and (3) determining the reasonable expenditures necessarily incurred by the owner which, in the opinion of the commission, should be assessed against the political subdivision. If the commission shall determine that the political subdivision, in case of a petition of the first class, has failed to commence said action in a court of competent jurisdiction within said period of sixty days after the commission has made and filed its said finding of just compensation, or that the political subdivision, in case of a petition of the second class, has failed to proceed diligently to submit said proposition to its voters or has failed, after its voters have voted in favor of the acquisition of said lands, property or rights, or said part or portion thereof, to file said action in a court of competent jurisdiction within said sixty days after the voters have voted in favor of said acquisition, the commission shall make and file its order declaring that said finding shall no longer be of any force or effect, and make its finding as to the reasonable expenditures necessarily incurred by the owner in the proceeding before the commission, which the commission may find should be assessed against the political subdivision. The political subdivision shall thereupon be liable to the owner in the amount thus found by the commission and the owner may thereupon maintain an action against the political subdivision for said amount in any court of competent jurisdiction.

8. The finding of the commission fixing the just compensation to be paid by the political subdivision for said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, shall be final and shall not be subject to modification, alteration, reversal or review by any court of this State. The court in which the political subdivision shall have commenced its action, subsequent to the making and filing by the commission of its finding as to just compensation, as hereinbefore specified, if said court shall first decide that the political subdivision has the right and power under the law to take said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, shall enter a judgment in favor of the complainant in said action, as provided by law, fixing as the just compensation which shall be paid for the taking of said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, the just compensation fixed by the commission. The judgment may include therein the allowance of such costs between the parties as is provided for in the law of eminent domain of this State. The judgment of said court in so far as it refers to the just compensation to be paid for said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, shall be final and shall not be subject to modification, alteration, reversal or review by any court except as hereinafter in section 47 (b) of this act specified. The judgment of said court shall include a provision, in substance, that said judgment is subject to modification by reason of such increase or decrease in the just compensation to be paid as may thereafter be certified to said court by the commission, as hereinafter in section 47 (b) of this act provided

9. At any time within thirty days subsequent to the entry of said judgment of said court, the owner of said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, may file with the commission a verified petition in writing, alleging that by reason of expenditures made by the owner subsequent to the date of the filing of the original petition with the commission, for the purpose of preserving or improving said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, or by reason of other acts and occurrences subsequent to said date, the just compensation theretofore fixed by the commission should be increased and praying that the commission make its finding increasing said just compensation. At any time within thirty days subsequent to the entry of said judgment of said court, the political subdivision may file with the commission a verified petition in writing, alleging that by reason of loss or destruction of said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, or a part thereof, or by reason of depreciation or deterioration thereof or by reason of other acts and occurrences, subsequent to the date of the filing of the original petition with the commission, the just compensation theretofore fixed by the commission should be decreased and praying that the commission make its finding decreasing said just compensation. The commission shall, in each instance, cause a copy of said petition or petitions to be served upon each party, other than the petitioner, who was named as the political subdivision, owner or claimant in the original proceeding before the commission, together with a written notice specifying the time and place of hearing on said petition or petitions, which time shall be within forty-five days after the entry of said judgment by said court, and shall cause written notice of the time and place of said hearing to be served upon each petitioner in said petition or petitions. If both such petitions are filed, the commission shall have the power to consolidate said petitions for hearing and decision. After a hearing, the commission shall make and file its finding fixing, as of the date on which such finding is made and filed, the extent to which the just compensation theretofore fixed should be increased or decreased by reason of the matters alleged in said petition or petitions. If the claim is made that the just compensation theretofore fixed by the commission should be increased by reason of expenditures made by the owner subsequent to the date of the filing of the original petition with the commission for the purpose of preserving or improving said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, the commission may increase said just compensation, by reason of such expenditures, only to the extent to which the commission shall determine that such expenditures were beneficial to said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, and reasonably and prudently made. The finding of the commission fixing the extent to which the just compensation theretofore fixed should be thus increased or decreased shall be final and shall not be subject to modification, alteration, reversal or review by any court of this State. The commission shall thereupon transmit to said court its finding, certified under the seal of the commission, fixing the extent to which the just compensation theretofore fixed by the commission shall be increased or decreased. Said court shall thereupon modify its judgment so as to conform with said finding of the commission. The judgment of said court, as thus modified, in so far as it refers to the just compensation to be paid for said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, shall be final and shall not be subject to modification, alteration, reversal or review by any court. The filing of either or both the petitions in this paragraph specified shall not act as a stay of the judgment in condemnation, but upon the payment of the just compensation fixed in the original judgment of condemnation the plaintiff in the action in said court shall be entitled to immediate possession of said lands, property and rights, or of said part or portion thereof.

10. The provisions of this act with reference to rehearing and review shall be applicable to the findings of the commission made and filed under the provisions of section 47 (b) of this act. Petitions for rehearing must be filed within twenty days from the date of making and filing the finding as to which a rehearing is desired. If a finding of the commission made and filed under the provisions of section 47 (b) of this act is set aside by the Supreme Court of the State of California, the matter shall be referred back to the commission for further action in the proceeding before the commission, and the commission shall have the right, in taking further action, to consider the entire testimony theretofore taken in the proceeding before the commission as well as such further testimony, if any, as may be presented in connection with such further action. Should a writ of review be obtained from the Supreme Court of the State of California, the time within which the political subdivision must file an action in a court of competent jurisdiction or submit said proposition to its voters shall be extended to not more than sixty days beyond the final decision of the Supreme Court upon said writ of review.

11. The procedure provided in section 47 (b) of this act shall be considered as alternative and cumulative and not exclusive and the political subdivision shall continue to have the right to pursue any other procedure now or hereafter established providing for the acquisition under eminent domain proceedings of the lands, property and rights, or any part or portion thereof, of any public utility, and section 47 (b) of this act shall not be construed as repealing any law of this State providing for such eminent domain proceedings. Section 47 (b) of this act shall not affect pending actions or proceedings, but the same may be prosecuted and defended with the same effect as though section 47 (b) had not been amended."

"SECTION 1. Section 3617 of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

3617. Whenever the terms mentioned in this section are employed in this title, they are employed in the sense hereafter affixed to them

First—The term "property" includes money, notes, debentures, shares of capital stock, bonds, solvent credits, deeds of trust, mortgages, and any legal or equitable interest therein, dues, franchises, and all other matters and things, real, personal, and mixed, capable of private ownership.

Second—The term "real estate" includes:

1. The possession of, claim to, ownership of, or right to the possession of land.

2. All mines, minerals, and quarries in and under the land, all timber belonging to individuals or corporations, growing or being on the lands of the United States, and all rights and privileges appertaining thereto.

3. A mortgage, deed of trust, contract or other obligation by which a debt is secured, when land in this State is pledged as security for the payment and discharge thereof, shall, for the purpose of assessment and taxation, be deemed and treated as an interest in the land so pledged.

4. Improvements.

Third—The term "improvements" includes:

1. All buildings, structures, fixtures, fences, and improvements erected upon or affixed to the land, except telephone and telegraph lines.

2. All fruit, nut bearing, or ornamental trees and vines, not of natural growth, except date palms under eight years of age, fruit and nut bearing trees under four years of age, grape vines under three years of age and all immature forest trees which have been planted on lands not previously bearing merchantable timber, or planted, or of natural growth, upon lands from which original growth timber stand to the extent of seventy per cent of all trees over sixteen inches in diameter have been removed; provided, that forest trees or timber shall be considered mature for the purpose of this section at such time, after forty years from the time of planting or removal of the original timber as above provided, as a board consisting of a representative from the State Board of Forestry, a representative from the State Board of Equalization and the county assessor of the county in which the timber is located, shall by a majority thereof so determine.

3. Alfalfa, after the first year's planting

Fourth—The term "personal property" includes everything which is the subject of ownership not included within the meaning of the term "real estate" or "improvements."

Fifth—The term "value" and "full cash value" mean the amount at which the property would be taken in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor except that the full cash value of real estate shall be ascertained by capitalizing the annual net average warranted earning power thereof at a capitalization rate equal to the prevailing mortgage interest rate for loans on such property plus one per centum. In determining the "actual value" of notes, debentures, shares of capital stock, bonds, solvent credits, deeds of trust, mortgages, and any legal or equitable interest therein, the assessor shall not take into account the existence of any custom or common method, if any, of assessing any other class or classes of property at less than the full cash value thereof.

Sixth—The terms "credits," and "solvent credits" mean those solvent debts, including contracts for the sale of personal property whereby title is vested in the vendor until payment of the purchase price specified in the contracts, not secured by mortgage or trust deed, owing to the persons, firm, corporation, or association assessed. The term "debt" means those unsecured liabilities owing by the person, firm, corporation, or association assessed to bona fide residents of this State, or firms, associations or corporations doing business therein; but credits, claims, debts, and demands due, owing or accruing for or on account of money deposited with savings and loan corporations or with building and loan associations, the principal place of business of which is located in this State, shall, for the purpose of taxation be deemed and treated as an interest in the property of such corporation, and shall not be assessed to the creditor or owner thereof

Seventh—The term "situs" for notes, debentures, shares of capital stock, bonds, solvent credits, deeds of trust, mortgages, and any legal or equitable interest therein, for the purpose of taxation under the provisions of this code, shall be the domicile of the owner or claimant thereof, regardless of the physical presence of instruments evidencing the same, provided, that any notes, debentures, deeds of trust, mortgages, solvent credits and any legal or equitable interest therein, not otherwise exempt under the laws of this State, owing to a person, association, copartnership or corporation, having its domicile outside of this State but arising out of business transacted in California, regardless of the place where such notes, debentures, solvent credits, deeds of trust, mortgages and any legal or equitable interest therein are payable and of the physical presence of instruments evidencing such indebtedness, shall have their situs at the place of business within this State where such notes, debentures, solvent credits, deeds of trust, mortgages and any legal or equitable interest therein are managed or controlled

Eighth—The term "capitalizing" the warranted earning power means dividing the annual net average warranted earning power of the property assessed by the capitalization rate, and multiplying the result by one hundred

In determining the annual net average warranted earning power of the property, the assessor may take into consideration the property's net earnings for a period of three years next preceding the date of assessment thereof; but if the property to be assessed has not during said three-year period or any part thereof yielded any income, or has yielded only a nominal income, or if the property during said three-year period or any part thereof has yielded, or at the time of the assessment is yielding, its utility direct to the owner, then it may be assessed with relation to the average warranted earning power of property of like character and similarly situated. In case the property is improved in such a manner as to make it suitable for special purposes only and where therefore no comparable properties are available for income comparison, and provided that such property is occupied by the owners, then the appraisement cost may be taken into consideration in determining the warranted earning power of the property, consideration being given to both the physical and economic depreciation (obsolescence) of such property. Items which do not add to the property's usefulness or earning power shall not be included in the appraisal Due consideration in all cases shall be given to the demand for and the supply of the assessed property, and to the probable absorption rate of the type of property assessed

For the purpose of assessment of any real estate subject to taxation, the assessor may require a verified statement of all gross income and expenses incident to the operation thereof for a term not to exceed three years immediately prior to the assessment. Failure of the taxpayer to furnish the assessor with such statement or statements, when required by the assessor so to do, shall enjoin such taxpayer or other affected by the assessment from contesting the amount thereof.

SEC 2 Section 3627 of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

3627. All taxable property must be assessed at its full cash value, except that all notes, debentures, shares of capital stock, bonds, solvent credits, deeds of trust, mortgages, and any legal or equitable interest therein of the classes taxable under the provisions of section 16 of Article XIII of the Constitution of this State, shall be assessed at their actual value as the same is defined in section 3617 of this code and except, further, that all real estate shall be assessed as hereinafter in this section provided In determining the actual value of shares of capital stock there shall be deducted the actual value of property located in or having its situs in this State of the corporation by which such shares of capital stock are issued. Cultivated and uncultivated land of the same quality and similarly situated shall be assessed at the same value.

Except as hereinafter in this section otherwise provided, real estate shall be assessed by capitalizing the annual net average warranted earning power thereof as provided by subdivision fifth of section 3617 of this code; provided, however, that if such property consists of unused tracts or vacant subdivided and platted lots, in any incorporated village, town or city, and outside of the congested district thereof, the full cash value thereof must be ascertained with relation to the average warranted earning power of unplatted and unsubdivided land of similar character and similarly situated, due consideration being given to the demand for and the supply of such property, and to the probable absorption rate of the type of property assessed."

By Mr. Cottrell:

Assembly Resolution.

WHEREAS, The United States Government and particularly the Naval Department in furtherance of its aeronautical program has spent vast sums of money amounting to millions of dollars in the construction of dirigibles and dirigible bases; and

WHEREAS, The expenditure and construction of dirigibles to date has proven extremely costly in money and more particularly in the loss of human lives; and

WHEREAS, Only the remarkable coolness, bravery, and splendid discipline on the part of the crew in the recent Macon disaster prevented a great loss in life and aroused public indignation; and

WHEREAS, The vast expenditures and investments to date should not be wasted or further money spent foolishly without any precaution; and

WHEREAS, There is a danger that the people of the United States may lose faith unjustly in dirigibles with repeated and continued disasters; and

WHEREAS, It is necessary that the United States definitely establish a lighter-than-air policy for the future; and

WHEREAS, The experienced crews are now being scattered to all parts of the United States in other lines of work and thus forgetting their lighter-than-air experience; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That this Assembly petition the President of the United States, the Congress of the United States and the Naval authorities of the United States Navy to immediately investigate the feasibility and practicability of dirigibles, preserve the lessons of the recent Macon disaster and capitalize upon the experiences gained in that major disaster in order that a definite policy with respect to dirigibles and dirigible bases now existing may be established upon a basis of experience

Such contributions or gifts shall be allowed as deductions only if verified under rules and regulations prescribed by the board. In the case of an individual if in the taxable year and in each of the ten preceding taxable years the amount of the above contributions or gifts plus the amount of income, war profits, or excess profits taxes paid during such year in respect of preceding taxable years, exceeds ninety per centum of the taxpayer's net income for each such year, as computed without the benefit of this subsection then the fifteen per centum limit imposed herein shall not be applicable In the case of a taxpayer other than a resident the deductions under this subsection shall be allowed only as to contributions or gifts made to corporations or associations incorporated by or organized under the laws of this State or to the vocational rehabilitation fund above mentioned or to this State or any political subdivision thereof for exclusively public purposes.

(k) In the case of any taxpayer the deductions permitted by subsection (a) of section 23 of said Revenue Act of 1934 and referred to and incorporated by subsection (a) of this section of this act, shall not be allowed if, and to the extent that they are connected with the production of income not taxable under this act, and proper apportionment and allocation of such deductions with respect to taxable and nontaxable income shall be determined under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the board.

(l) In the case of a taxpayer other than a resident the deductions allowed by this section shall unless otherwise provided in this section be allowed only if and to the extent that they are connected with the income arising from sources within this State and taxable under this act to a nonresident taxpayer, and the proper apportionment and allocation of the deductions with respect to sources of income within and without the State shall be determined under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the board

SEC 6 In computing net income no deduction shall in any case be allowed in respect of items referred to in subsections (a) and (b) of section 24 of said Revenue Act of 1934 which subsections are hereby referred to and incorporated with the same force and effect as though fully set forth herein

(a) The obligor of a covenant bond shall not be allowed a deduction for the payment of the tax imposed by this act, or any other tax paid pursuant to the tax-free covenant clause, nor shall such tax be included in the gross income of the obligee

SEC 7. There shall be allowed for the purposes of the taxes herein provided the following credits against net income:

(a) In the case of a single person, a personal exemption of one thousand dollars; or in the case of the head of a family or a married person living with husband or wife, a personal exemption of two thousand five hundred dollars.

A husband and wife living together shall receive but one personal exemption. The amount of such personal exemption shall be two thousand five hundred dollars If such husband and wife make separate returns, the personal exemption may be taken by either or divided between them

(b) Four hundred dollars for each person (other than husband or wife) dependent upon and receiving his chief support from the taxpayer if such dependent person is under eighteen years of age or is incapable of self-support because mentally or physically defective.

(c) If the status of the taxpayer, in so far as it affects the personal exemption or credit for dependents, changes during the taxable year, the personal exemption and credit shall be apportioned, under rules and regulations prescribed by the board, in accordance with the number of months before and after such change. For the purpose of such apportionment a fractional part of a month shall be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month in which case it shall be considered as a month.

SEC 8. The net income shall be computed upon the basis of the taxpayer's annual accounting period (fiscal year or calendar year, as the case may be) in accordance with the method of accounting regularly employed in keeping the books of such taxpayer; but if no such method of accounting has been so employed, or if the method employed does not clearly reflect the income, the computation shall be made in accordance with such method as in the opinion of the board does clearly reflect the income. If the taxpayer's annual accounting period is other than a fiscal year as defined in section 1 or if the taxpayer has no annual accounting period or does not keep books, the net income shall be computed on the basis of the calendar year.

SEC. 9. The amount of all items of gross income shall be included in the gross income for the taxable year in which received by the taxpayer, unless, under the methods of accounting permitted under section 8 of this act, any such amounts are to be properly accounted for as of a different period. In the case of the death of the taxpayer there shall be included in computing net income for the taxable period in which falls the date of his death, amounts accrued up to the date of his death if not otherwise properly includable in respect of such period or a prior period.

SEC. 10. The deductions and credits provided for in this act shall be taken for the taxable year in which "paid or accrued" or paid or incurred, dependent upon the method of accounting upon the basis of which the net income is computed, unless in order clearly to reflect the income the deductions or credits should be taken as of a different period. In the case of the death of a taxpayer there shall be allowed as deductions and credits for the taxable period in which falls the date of his death, amounts accrued up to the date of his death of not otherwise properly allowable in respect of such period or a prior period.

SEC. 11. (a) Under regulations prescribed by the board a person who regularly sells or otherwise disposes of personal property on the installment plan may return as income therefrom in any taxable year that proportion of the installment payments actually received in that year which the gross profit realized or to be realized where payment is completed, bears to the total contract price.

(b) In the case (1) of a casual sale or other casual disposition of personal property (other than property of a kind which would properly be included in the inventory of taxpayer if on hand at the close of the taxable year), for a price exceeding one thousand dollars, or (2) of a sale or other disposition of real property, if in either case the initial payments do not exceed thirty per centum of the selling price, the income may, under regulations prescribed by the board be returned on the basis and in the manner prescribed by this section. As used in this section the term "initial payment" means the payments received in cash or property other than evidence of indebtedness of the purchaser during the taxable period in which the sale or other disposition is made.

(c) If a taxpayer entitled to the benefits of subsection (a) of this section elects for any taxable year to report his net income on the installment basis, then in computing his income for the year of change or any subsequent year, amounts actually received during any such year on account of sales or other dispositions of property made in any prior year shall not be excluded.

(d) If any installment obligation is satisfied at other than its face value or distributed, transmitted, sold or otherwise disposed of, gain or loss shall result to the extent of the difference between the basis of the obligation and (1) in the case of satisfaction at other than face value or a sale or exchange—the amount realized, or (2) in case of a distribution, transmission, or disposition otherwise than by sale or exchange—the fair market value of the obligation at the time of such distribution, transmission or disposition. Any gain or loss so resulting shall be considered as resulting from the sale or exchange of the property in respect of which the installment obligation was received. The basis of the obligation shall be the excess of the face value of the obligation over an amount equal to the income which would be returnable were the obligation satisfied in full. This subsection shall not apply to the transmission at death of installment obligations if there is filed with the board, at such time as it may by regulation prescribe, a bond in such amount and with such sureties as it may deem necessary, conditioned upon the return as income, by the person receiving any payment on such obligations, of the same proportion of such payment as would be returnable as income by the decedent if he had lived and had received such payment.

SEC. 12. In any case of two or more organizations, trades or businesses (whether or not incorporated, whether or not organized in this State, and whether or not affiliated) owned or controlled directly or indirectly by the same interests, the board is authorized to distribute, apportion, or allocate gross income or deductions between or among such organizations, trades, or businesses, if said board determines that such distribution, apportionment, or allocation is necessary in order to prevent evasion of taxes or clearly to reflect the income of any such organization, trades, or businesses.

SEC. 13. If a taxpayer changes his accounting period from fiscal year to calendar year, from calendar year to fiscal year, or from one fiscal year to another, the net income shall, with the approval of the board, be computed on the basis of such new accounting period subject to the provisions of section 14 of this act.

SEC. 14. (a) If a taxpayer, with the approval of the board, changes the basis of computing net income from fiscal year to calendar year a separate return shall be made for the period between the close of the last fiscal year for which return was made and the following December 31. If the change is from calendar year to the fiscal year, a separate return shall be made for the period between the close of the last calendar year for which return was made and the date designated as the close of the fiscal year. If the change is from one fiscal year to another fiscal year a separate return shall be made for the period between the close of the former fiscal year and the date designated as the close of the new fiscal year.

(b) Where a separate return is made under subsection (a) of this section on account of a change in the accounting period, and in all other cases where separate return is required or permitted, by regulations prescribed by the board, to be made for a fractional part of a year, then the income shall be computed on the basis of the period for which separate return is made.

(c) If a separate return is made under subsection (a) of this section, on account of a change in the accounting period, the net income, computed on the basis of the period for which separate return is made, shall be placed on an annual basis by multiplying the amount thereof by twelve and dividing by the number of months included in the period for which the separate return is made. The tax shall be such part of the tax computed on such annual basis as the number of months in such period is of twelve months.

(d) The board shall by regulations prescribe the method of applying the provisions of subsections (b) and (c) (relating to computing income on the basis of a short period and placing such income on an annual basis) to cases where the taxpayer makes a separate return under subsection (a) on account of a change in the accounting period, and it appears that for the period for which the return is so made he has received.

(e) In the case of a return made for a fractional part of a year, except a return made under subsection (a), on account of a change in the accounting period, the personal exemption and the credit for dependents shall be reduced respectively to amounts which bear the same ratio to the full credits provided as the number of months in the period for which return is made bears to twelve months.

SEC. 15. The taxes imposed by this act shall apply to the income of estates or of any kind of property held in trust including the income referred to in subdivisions (1), (2), (3) and (4) of subsection (a) of section 161 of said Revenue Act of 1934 which subdivisions are hereby referred to and incorporated with the same force and effect as though fully set forth herein.

(f) Where the settlor is a resident of this State regardless of the residence of the beneficiary and the fiduciary.

(g) Where the fiduciary and the settlor are residents of this State regardless of the residence of the beneficiary.

Where the taxability of income under this section depends on the residence of the fiduciary and there are two or more fiduciaries for the estate or trust, the income taxable under this section shall be apportioned according to the number of fiduciaries resident in this State, such apportionment being determined according to rules and regulations prescribed by the board.

Any amount allowed as a deduction under this paragraph shall not be allowed as a deduction under paragraph (c) of this section in the same or any succeeding taxable year. In such cases the income of the legatee, heir, or beneficiary not a resident shall be taxable only to the extent provided in subdivision (f) of section 4 of this act

SEC 17. For the purpose of the taxes herein imposed the estate or trust shall be allowed the same personal exemption as is allowed to a single person under subsection (a) of section 7 of this act.

SEC. 18. Where the taxable year of a beneficiary is different from that of the estate or trust, the amount which he is required under section 16, to include in computing his net income shall be based upon the income of the estate or trust for any taxable year of the estate or trust (whether beginning on, before or after January 1, 1934) ending within his taxable year

SEC. 23. Every partnership shall make a return for each taxable year stating specifically the items of its gross income and the deductions allowed by this title, and shall include in the return the names and addresses of the individuals who would be entitled to share in the net income if distributed and the amount of the distributive share of each individual. The return shall be sworn to by any one of the partners.

If the taxable year of a partner is different from that of the partnership, the distributive share of the net income of the partner for his taxable year shall be based upon the net income of the partnership for any taxable year of the partnership (whether beginning on, before, or after January 1, 1934) ending within the taxable year of the partner.

SEC. 24. Every person taxable under this act, having a net income during the taxable year of one thousand dollars or over, if single, or if married and not living with husband or wife, or having a net income for the taxable year of two thousand five hundred dollars or over, if married and living with husband or wife; or having a gross income during the taxable year of five thousand dollars or over, regardless of the amount of his net income; shall make a return under oath, stating specifically the items of his gross income and the deductions and exemptions allowed by this act.

SEC. 25. If the taxpayer is unable to make his own return, the return shall be made by a duly authorized agent or by the guardian or other person charged with the care of the person or property of such taxpayer.

SEC. 26. (a) Every fiduciary (except a receiver appointed by authority of law in possession of part only of the property of an individual) shall make under oath a return for and of the following individuals, estates, or trusts for which he acts, stating specifically the items of gross income thereof and the deductions and credits allowed by this act

(c) Any fiduciary required to make a return under this act shall be subject to all the provisions of law which apply to individuals.

SEC. 27. Every individual, partnership, corporation, joint stock company or association or insurance company, being a resident or having a place of business in this State, in whatever capacity acting, including lessees or mortgagors or real or personal property fiduciaries, employers and all officers and employees of the State or of any political subdivision of the State, having the control, receipt, custody, disposal or payment of interest (other than interest coupons payable to bearer), rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensations, remunerations, emoluments or other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits and income, amounting to one thousand dollars or over, paid or payable during any year to any taxpayer, shall make complete return thereof under oath, to the board, under such regulations and in such form and manner and to such extent as may be prescribed by it.

The board whenever it deems it necessary to insure compliance with the provisions of this act, may under rules and regulations prescribed by it, require any individual, partnership, corporation, joint stock company or association or insurance company, including lessees or mortgagors and employees of the State or of any political subdivision of the State having control, receipt, custody, disposal or payment of interest (other than interest coupons payable to bearer), rent, salaries, wages, premiums, annuities, compensation, remunerations, emoluments or other fixed or determinable annual or periodical gains, profits and income paid or payable to any taxpayer, to deduct and withhold the tax due from such taxpayer and make return thereof and pay the tax to the board.

SEC. 28. Returns shall be in such form as the board may from time to time prescribe and shall be filed with the board, at its main office or at any branch office which it may establish, by each person taxable hereunder, within two months and fifteen days after the close of his taxable year. In case of sickness, absence or other disability, or whenever in its judgment good cause exists, the board may allow further time not exceeding ninety days, for filing returns. There shall be annexed to the return the affidavit of affirmation of the taxpayer making the return, to the effect that the statements contained therein are true. The board shall cause to be prepared blank forms for the said returns and shall cause them to be distributed throughout the State and to be furnished upon application, but failure to receive or secure the form shall not relieve any taxpayer from the obligation of making any return herein required.

SEC. 29. If the board shall be of the opinion that any taxpayer has failed to file a return, or to include in a return filed, either intentionally or through error, items of taxable income, it may require from such taxpayer a return, or a supplementary return, under oath, in such form as it shall prescribe, of all the items of income which the taxpayer received during the year for which the return is made, whether or not taxable under the provisions of this act. If from a supplementary return, or otherwise, the board finds that any items of income, taxable under this act, have been omitted from the original return it may require the items so omitted to be disclosed to it, under oath of the taxpayer, and to be added to the original return. Such supplementary return and the correction of the original return shall not relieve the taxpayer from any of the penalties to which he may be liable under any provision of this act. The board may proceed under the provisions of section 32 of this act whether or not it requires a return or a supplementary return under this section.

SEC. 30. One-half the amount of the tax disclosed by the return shall be due and payable on or before the fifteenth day of the third month following the close of the taxable year, and the balance of the tax shall be due and payable on or before the fifteenth day of the ninth month following the close of the taxable year.

If the board shall allow an extension of time for filing any return hereunder, there shall be a corresponding extension of time for the payment of the first installment of the amount of tax disclosed by such return, but there shall be added to and remitted with such tax interest thereon at the rate of one-half of one per cent per month or each fraction of a month from and after the date when the tax would otherwise have been due and payable.

The tax may be paid with uncertified check, payable to the State Treasurer, during such time and under such regulations as the board shall prescribe, but if a check so received is not paid by the bank on which it is drawn, the taxpayer by whom such check is tendered shall remain liable for the payment of the tax and for all legal penalties, the same as if such check had not been tendered.

SEC. 31. As soon as practicable after the return is filed, the board shall examine it and compute the tax, and the amount so computed by the board shall be the tax. If the tax found due shall be greater than the amount theretofore paid, the excess shall be paid to the board within thirty days after notice of the amount shall be mailed by the board.

If the return is made in good faith and the understatement of the tax is not due to any fault of the taxpayer, there shall be no penalty or additional tax added because of such understatement, but interest shall be added to the amount of the deficiency at the rate of one per cent for each month or fraction of a month.

If the understatement is due to negligence on the part of the taxpayer, but without intent to defraud, there shall be added to the amount of the deficiency five per cent thereof, and in addition, interest at the rate of one per cent per month or fraction of a month.

If the understatement is fraudulent, with intent to evade the tax, the tax on the additional income discovered to be taxable shall be increased by fifty per cent and an additional one per cent per month or fraction of a month shall be added.

The interest provided for in this section shall in all cases be computed from the date the tax was originally due to the date of payment.

If the amount of tax found due as computed shall be less than the amount theretofore paid, the excess shall be credited on any taxes then due from the taxpayer under this act, and the board shall certify to the State Board of Control the balance thereof, and if approved by that board the same shall be refunded to the taxpayer.

SEC. 32 If the board discovers from the examination of the return or otherwise that the income of any taxpayer, or any portion thereof, has not been assessed, it may, at any time within three years after the time when the return was due, assess the same and give notice to the taxpayer of such assessment, and such taxpayer shall thereupon have an opportunity, within sixty days, to confer with the board as to the proposed assessment. The limitation of three years to the assessment of such tax or additional tax shall not apply to the assessment of additional taxes upon fraudulent returns. After the expiration of sixty days from such notification the board shall assess the income of such taxpayer or any portion thereof which it believes has not theretofore been assessed and shall give notice to the taxpayer so assessed, of the amount of the tax and interest and penalties if any, and the amount thereof shall be due and payable within thirty days from the date of such notice. The provisions of this act with respect to revision and appeal shall apply to a tax so assessed No additional tax amounting to less than one dollar shall be assessed.

SEC. 33. At any time within three years after the delinquency of any tax, or any installment thereof, the Controller of the State may bring an action in a court of competent jurisdiction in the county of Sacramento in the name of the people of the State of California to collect the amount delinquent, together with penalties, and such action shall be tried in the county of Sacramento unless the court, with the consent of the Attorney General, order a change of place of trial. The Attorney General must prosecute such action, and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, relating to service of summons, pleadings, proofs, trials, and appeals are applicable to the proceedings, herein provided for. In such action a writ of attachment may be issued, and no bond or affidavit previous to the issuing of said attachment is required. In such action a certificate by the board showing the delinquency shall be prima facie evidence of the levy of the tax of the delinquency and of compliance by the board with all the provisions of this act in relation to the computation and levy of the tax.

At any time within which an action can be brought to collect any delinquent tax as provided in the preceding paragraph, the Controller may collect the tax, together with penalties and interest, in the following manner: The Controller shall seize any property, real, or personal owned by the taxpayer against whom the tax is assessed, and thereafter sell at public auction such property so seized, or a sufficient portion thereof, to pay the tax due hereunder, together with any interest, and any penalty or penalties imposed thereby for such delinquency, and any and all costs that may have been incurred on account of such seizure and sale. Notice of such intended sale and the time and place thereof shall be given to such delinquent taxpayer and to all persons appearing of record to have an interest in such property, in writing at least ten days before the date set for such sale by enclosing such notice in an envelope addressed to said taxpayer at its last known place of business in this State if any, and, in the case of any person appearing of record to have an interest in such property, addressed to such person at the last known place of residence if any, and depositing the same in the United States mail, postage prepaid, and by publication for at least ten days before the date set for such sale in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county or city and county in which the property seized is to be sold; provided, however, that if there be no newspaper of general circulation in such county or city and county, then by the posting of such notice in three public places in such county or city and county for said ten-day period. The said notice shall contain a description of the property to be sold, together with a statement of the amount of taxes, interest, penalties and costs, the name of the taxpayer, and the further statement that, unless such taxes, interest, penalties and costs are paid on or before the time fixed in said notice for such sale, said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, will be sold in accordance with law and said notice

At any such sale, the property shall be sold by said Controller or his duly authorized agent in accordance with law and said notice, and the Controller shall deliver to the purchaser a bill of sale for the personal property, and a deed for any real property so sold, and such bill of sale or deed shall vest title in the purchaser. The unsold portion of any property so seized may be left at the place of sale at the risk of said taxpayer. If, upon any such sale, the moneys so received shall exceed the amount of all taxes, interest, penalties and costs, due the State from such taxpayer, any such excess shall be returned to the taxpayer and a receipt therefor obtained; provided, however, that if any person having an interest in or lien upon the property has filed with the Controller prior to any such sale notice of such interest or lien the Controller shall withhold any such excess pending the determination of the rights of the respective parties thereto by a court of competent jurisdiction. If, for any reason, the receipt of such taxpayer shall not be available, the Controller shall deposit such excess moneys with the State Treasurer, as trustee for such owner, subject to the order of such taxpayer, or its successor through reorganization, merger, or consolidation, or its stockholders upon dissolution.

It is expressly provided that the foregoing remedies of the State shall be cumulative and that no action taken by the Controller shall be or be construed to be an election on the part of the State or any of its officers to pursue any remedy hereunder to the exclusion of any other remedy for which provision is made in this act.

SEC. 34. At any time after the computation of the tax by the board, the board may record in the recorder's office of any county a notice of lien specifying the amount of the tax and the name of the taxpayer liable for the same. From the time of filing any such notice the amount of the tax specified in such notice together with any penalties for delinquency in the payment thereof thereafter attaching, shall have the force and effect of a judgment lien against the taxpayer named in such notice of lien. Such lien may be released by filing for record in the office of the county recorder of a release thereof executed by the board upon payment of the tax, interest, and penalties or upon receipt by the board of security sufficient to secure payment thereof, but no such release shall be deemed a waiver of any tax, interest or penalty levied or assessed under this act and due and payable or to become due and payable by such taxpayer.

SEC 35. Upon notice of the board that any person is acting in a fiduciary capacity, such fiduciary shall assume the powers, rights, duties, and privileges of the taxpayer in respect of any tax imposed by this act (except as otherwise specifically provided and except that the tax shall be collected from the estate of the taxpayer), until notice is given that the fiduciary capacity has terminated.

Notice under this section shall be given in accordance with rules and regulations prescribed by the board No final account of a fiduciary shall be allowed by the probate court unless such account shows and the judge of said court finds, that all taxes imposed by the provisions of this act upon said fiduciary, which have become payable, have been paid, and that all taxes which may become due are secured by bond, deposit or otherwise. The certificate of the board and the receipt for the amount of the tax therein certified shall be conclusive as to the payment of the tax, to the extent of said certificate.

For the purpose of facilitating the settlement and distribution of estates held by fiduciaries, the board, with the approval of the Attorney General, may on behalf of the State agree upon the amount of taxes at any time due or to become due from such fiduciaries under the provisions of this act, and payment in accordance with such agreement shall be full satisfaction of the taxes to which the agreement relates.

SEC. 36. If any taxpayer, without intent to evade any tax imposed by this act, fail to file a return of income or pay a tax, if one is due, at the time required by or under the provisions of this act, but shall voluntarily file a correct return of income and pay the tax due within sixty days thereafter, there shall be added to the tax an additional amount equal to five per cent thereof, but such additional amount shall in no case be less than one dollar an additional one per cent for each month or fraction of a month during which the tax remains unpaid.

If any taxpayer fails voluntarily to file a return of income or to pay a tax if one is due within sixty days of the time required by or under the provisions of this act, the tax shall be increased by twenty-five per cent and shall be further increased by one per cent for each month or fraction of a month from the time the tax was originally due to the date of payment.

Any person who, without fraudulent intent, fails to pay any tax or to make, render, sign or verify any return, or to supply any information, within the time required by or under the provisions of this act, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered by the Attorney General in the name of the people, by action in any court of competent jurisdiction.

Any person or any officer or employee of any corporation, or member or employee or any partnership, who, with intent to evade any requirement of this act or any lawful requirement of the board thereunder shall fail to pay any tax or to make, sign or verify any return or to supply any information required by or under the provisions of this act, or who, with like intent, shall make, render, sign, or verify any false or fraudulent information, shall be liable to a penalty of not more than one thousand dollars, to be recovered by the Attorney General in the name of the people, by action in any court of competent jurisdiction, and shall also be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction, be fined not to exceed one thousand dollars or be imprisoned not to exceed one year, or both, at the discretion of the court.

The Attorney General shall have the power with the consent of the board, to compromise any penalty for which he is authorized to bring action under this section. The penalties provided by such section shall be additional to all other penalties in this act provided.

The certificate of the board to the effect that a tax has not been paid, that a return has not been filed or that information has not been supplied, as required by or under the provisions of this act, shall be prima facie evidence that such tax has not been paid, that such return has not been filed or that such information has not been supplied

If any taxpayer, who has failed to file a return or has filed an incorrect or insufficient return and has been notified by the board of his delinquency, refuses or neglects within twenty days after such notice to file a proper return, or files a fraudulent return, the board shall determine the income of such taxpayer according to its best information and belief and assess the same at one and one-half the amount so determined.

SEC. 37. A taxpayer after paying the tax assessed against him under this act may apply to the board for revision of the tax assessed against him, at any time within three years from the time of the filing of the return or from the date of the notice of the assessment of any additional tax. The board shall grant a hearing thereon and if, upon such hearing, it shall determine that the tax is excessive or incorrect, it shall resettle the same according to the law and the facts and adjust the computation of tax accordingly. The board shall notify the taxpayer of its determination and shall certify to the State Board of Control the amount if any collected in excess of what was legally due, from whom it was collected, or by whom paid and if approved by that board the same shall be credited to any taxes then due from the taxpayer under this act and the balance shall be refunded to the taxpayer.

Interest shall be allowed and paid upon any overpayment of any tax, if the overpayment was not made because of an error or mistake on the part of the taxpayer, at the rate of six per centum per annum as follows: (1) In the case of credit, from the date of the overpayment to the date of the allowance of the credit. Any interest allowed on any credit shall first be credited on any taxes due from the taxpayer under this act; (2) In the case of a refund, from the date of the overpayment to a date preceding the date of the refund warrant by not more than thirty days, such date to be determined by the board.

Any refund or any portion thereof which is erroneously made, and any credit or any portion thereof which is erroneously allowed, may be recovered, together with interest at the rate of six per centum per annum from the date the refund was made or the credit allowed, in an action brought by the Controller of the State in a court of competent jurisdiction in the county of Sacramento in the name of the people of the State of California, and such actions shall be tried in the county of Sacramento unless the court with the consent of the Attorney General order a change of place of trial. The Attorney General must prosecute such action, and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, relating to service of summons, pleadings, proofs, trials, and appeals are applicable to the proceedings herein provided for.

In the event that a tax has been illegally levied against a taxpayer the board shall certify such fact to the State Board of Control and said board shall authorize the cancellations of the tax upon the records of the board.

If the taxpayer has failed, without good cause, to file a return within the time prescribed by law, or has filed a fraudulent return or, having filed an incorrect return, has failed, after notice, to file a proper return, the board shall not reduce the tax below one and one-half the amount for which the taxpayer is found to be properly assessed.

SEC 38. The determination of the board upon any application made by a taxpayer for revision of any tax, may be reviewed in any court of competent jurisdiction by a complaint filed by the taxpayer against the board in the county of Sacramento, within sixty days after the notice by the board of its determination, given as provided in section 32 of this act. Thereupon, appropriate proceedings shall be had and the relief, if any, to which the taxpayer may be found entitled may be granted and any taxes, interest or penalties paid, found by the court to be in excess of those legally assessed shall be ordered refunded to the taxpayer, with interest from time of payment.

SEC 39. The board for the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of any return or for the purpose of making an estimate of the taxable income of any taxpayer, shall have power to examine or cause to be examined by any agent or representative designated by it for that purpose, any books, papers, records or memoranda, bearing upon the matters required to be included in the return, and may require the attendance of the taxpayer or of any other person having knowledge in the premises, and may take testimony and require proof material for its information, with power to administer oath to such person or persons.

SEC. 40. It shall be unlawful for any member of the board or the State Controller or any person having an administrative duty under this act to divulge any information concerning the business affairs of persons reporting hereunder; provided, however, that the Governor may authorize examination of such returns by other State officers, in which event the information obtained shall not be made public; provided further, that such returns may be examined, with the consent of the Governor, by tax officers of another State or the Federal Government, if a reciprocal arrangement exists.

SEC 41. The board may from time to time make such rules and regulations, not inconsistent with this act, as it may deem necessary to enforce its provisions.

SEC. 42 All moneys and remittances received by the board in pursuance of the provisions of this act shall be transmitted daily to the State Treasurer, and copies of the schedules covering such transmittals shall be furnished at the same time to the State Controller.

SEC 43 If the board finds that a taxpayer designs quickly to depart from this State or to remove his property therefrom, or to conceal himself or his property therein, or to do any other act tending to prejudice or to render wholly or partly ineffectual proceedings to collect the tax for the taxable year then last past or the taxable year then current unless such proceedings be brought without delay, the board shall declare the taxable period for such taxpayer immediately terminated and shall cause notice of such finding and declaration to be given the taxpayer, together with a demand for immediate payment of the tax for the taxable period so declared terminated and of the tax for the preceding taxable year or so much of such tax as is unpaid, whether or not the time otherwise allowed by law for filing the return and paying the tax has expired; and such taxes shall thereupon become immediately due and payable In any proceeding in court brought to enforce payment of taxes made due and payable by virtue of the provisions of this section the finding of the board, made as herein provided, whether made after notice to the taxpayer or not, shall be for all purposes presumptive evidence of the taxpayer's design.

SEC 44 It shall be unlawful for any person to agree or contract directly or indirectly to pay or assume or bear the burden of any tax payable by any taxpayer under the provisions of this act. Any such contract or agreement shall be null and void and shall not be enforced or given effect by any court.

SEC. 45. This act shall be known as the "Personal Income Tax Act of 1935."

SEC. 46. If any section, subsection, clause, sentence or phrase of this act which is reasonable separable from the remaining portions of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the remaining portions of this act. The Legislature hereby declares that it would have passed the remaining portions of this act irrespective of the fact that any such section, subsection, clause, sentence or phrase of this act be declared unconstitutional.

SEC. 47. This act, inasmuch as it provides for a tax levy for the usual current expenses of the State, shall, under the provisions of section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution, take effect immediately.

The taxes imposed by this act shall apply to the net income of persons taxable hereunder received or accrued on and after January 1, 1935."

SEC. 8. Excepting as provided in section 10 of this act, the tax hereby imposed shall be paid by the consumer to the vendor in every instance, and it shall be the duty of each vendor to collect from the consumer the full and exact amount of the tax payable in respect of each taxable sale, and to evidence the payment of the tax in each case by canceling prepaid tax receipts, equal in face value to the amount thereof, in the manner and at the times provided in this section, to wit:

(a) If the price is, at or prior to the delivery of possession of the thing sold, to the consumer, paid in currency passed from hand to hand by the consumer or his agent to the vendor or his agent, the vendor or his agent shall

1. Collect the tax with and at the same time as the price

2. Immediately cancel in the presence of the buyer by immediately tearing into two parts a prepaid tax receipt or receipts of the proper face value, deliver one part of each such canceled prepaid tax receipt to the consumer or his agent, and retain the other part thereof.

(b) Authorize a vendor to prepay the tax levied by this act upon sales of things produced or distributed by such vendor, and waive the collection of the tax from the consumer in the manner otherwise provided in this act; but no such authority shall be granted or exercised excepting upon application to the board and unless the board shall, after hearing, advance notice of which must be given by the board to all vendors in the same general classification as the applicant, find that the conditions of the applicant's business are such as to render impracticable the collection of the tax in the manner otherwise provided by this act and upon the applicant furnishing a bond payable to the State of California in such amount as the board may determine to be sufficient to secure the prepayment of the taxes levied by this act in the manner desired, with surety to the satisfaction of the State Controller, with whom such bond shall be filed; nor shall the authority so granted be exercised nor the vendor or vendors actually selling such products be exempted from the other provisions of this act by virtue thereof unless the person to whom such authority is granted shall print plainly upon the product sold or offered for sale, a statement to the effect that the tax levied by this act has been paid in advance.

(c) Upon written request of a vendor, authorize the use of mechanical devices or meters approved by it, in lieu of prepaid tax receipts, for the purpose of establishing the accountability for the tax collected and providing a tax receipt to consumers.

SEC. 11. In the event prepaid purchases are returned to the vendor by the consumer after the tax imposed by this act has been collected or charged to the account of the consumer, the vendor shall be entitled to reimbursement of the amount of the tax so collected or charged by him, either through the cancellation of prepaid tax receipts paid for by the consumer, or through the canceling of prepaid tax receipts paid for by the vendor and charged to the account of the consumer, in the manner herein provided. Upon receipt of a sworn statement by the vendor as to the gross amount of such refunds, during the period covered by such sworn statement, which period shall not be longer than sixty days, the board shall issue to the vendor an official credit memorandum equal to the net amount paid by the vendor for such canceled prepaid tax receipts. Such memorandum shall be accepted by any county treasurer, or by any agent of the board at full face value, from the vendor to whom it is issued, in the purchase of prepaid tax receipts under the provisions of section 12 of this act.

SEC. 12. The board shall be responsible for the custody and distribution of the prepaid tax receipts provided for herein. It may appoint agents for the sale of prepaid tax receipts at such places in the State as it may deem expedient, fix their compensation, payable from any appropriation made for the purpose of administering the provisions of this act, and require of each agent such bond or other security as it may deem necessary. It shall deliver to each county treasurer such number and denomination of prepaid tax receipts as in its judgment may be required for sale in each county or city and county, pursuant to this act, and may prescribe such regulations and forms of receipts and reports as it may deem necessary and advisable for the transaction of the business of selling such prepaid tax receipts.

SEC. 13. Each county treasurer shall pay, on the first business day of each week, to the board all moneys arising from the sale of prepaid tax receipts by him during the preceding week. At the same time each county treasurer shall transmit a report showing all sales, the name of purchasers, and the aggregate face value purchased by each.

Each such county treasurer shall retain for the use of the general fund of the county or city and county, an amount equal to one-tenth of one per centum of the proceeds of such sales. All the powers and duties hereby imposed upon the county treasurer shall be deemed and considered to be within the scope of his office as county treasurer for all purposes.

The agents appointed by the board for the sale of prepaid tax receipts shall transmit all moneys received by them at such times and in such manner as the board may direct.

SEC. 19. At the time of making such application, the applicant shall pay to the board a permit fee of one dollar for each permit, and the applicant must have a permit for each place of business.

SEC. 20. Upon the payment of the permit fee or fees herein required, the board shall grant and issue to each applicant a permit for each place of business within the State. A permit is not assignable and shall be valid only for the person in whose name it is issued and for the transaction of business at the place designated therein. Whenever the holder of a permit fails to comply with any of the provisions of this act or any rules or regulations of the board prescribed and adopted under this act, the board upon hearing after giving ten days' notice in writing of the time and place of the hearing to show cause why his permit should not be revoked, may revoke or suspend the permit.

SEC. 23. Each vendor shall keep such records of sales together with invoices, bills of lading, retained parts of canceled prepaid tax receipts, and such other pertinent documents, in such form as the board may by regulation require. Such records and other documents shall be open at any time during business hours to the inspection of the board and shall be preserved for a period of three years, unless the board shall in writing consent to their destruction within that period, or by order require that they be kept longer.

SEC. 24. In case any vendor fails to collect the tax herein imposed, or, having collected the tax, fails to cancel the prepaid tax receipts in the manner prescribed by this act and by the regulations of the board, he shall be personally liable for such amount as he failed to collect or for the amount of the prepaid tax receipts which he failed to cancel. In such case the board shall have power to make an assessment against such vendor based upon any information within its possession or that may come into its possession. If any part of the deficiency for which such assessment is imposed is due to negligence or intentional disregard of this act or authorized rules and regulations thereunder, a penalty of five per cent of the amount of such assessment shall be added. If any part of the deficiency for which such assessment is imposed is due to fraud or an intent to evade the tax, a penalty of twenty-five per cent of the amount of such assessment shall be added. The board shall give to the vendor written notice of such assessment. Such notice may be served upon the vendor personally or by mail; if by mail, service shall be made in the manner prescribed by section 1013 of the Code of Civil Procedure and addressed to the vendor at his address as the same appears in the records of the board. The vendor shall have the right to petition for reassessment of any such tax found, determined and declared by the board pursuant to and in accordance with the provisions of this section.

SEC. 25. Any vendor against whom an assessment is made by the board under the provisions of section 24 hereof may petition for a reassessment thereof within fifteen days after service upon the vendor of notice thereof. If a petition for reassessment is not filed within said fifteen day period the amount of the assessment becomes final at the expiration thereof.

If a petition for reassessment is filed within said fifteen day period the board shall reconsider the assessment, and if the vendor has so requested in his petition, shall grant said vendor an oral hearing and shall give the vendor ten days' notice of the time and place thereof. The board shall have power to continue the hearing from time to time as may be necessary.

The order or decision of the board upon a petition for reassessment shall become final sixty days after service upon the vendor of notice thereof unless the retailer brings a proceeding for the review thereof under the provisions of section 38 hereof.

Any notice required by this section shall be served personally or by mail in the same manner as prescribed for service of notice by the provisions of section 24 hereof.

SEC. 26. Except in the case of a fraudulent return, or neglect or refusal to make a return, every notice of additional tax proposed to be assessed hereunder shall be mailed to the vendor within three years after the return was filed.

SEC. 27. All assessments made by the board under the provisions of section 24 hereof shall become due and payable at the time they become final and if not paid when due and payable there shall be added thereto a penalty of five per cent of the amount of the tax and interest on the amount of the tax at the rate of one per cent per month, or fraction thereof, from that date until the date of payment.

SEC. 28. The board shall report to the Controller every assessment made under this act, and he shall keep a record thereof.

SEC. 29. In any case in which any tax, interest or penalty imposed under this act is not paid when due the board may file for record in the recorder's office of any county a notice of lien specifying the amount of the tax, interest or penalty due and the name of the vendor liable for the same. From the time of filing any such notice the amount of the tax specified in such notice shall have the force and effect of the lien of a judgment against the vendor named in said notice of lien for the amount specified in such notice. Such lien may be released by filing for record in the office of the county recorder of a release thereof executed by the board upon payment of the tax, interest and penalties or upon receipt by the board of security sufficient to secure payment thereof, but no such release shall be deemed a waiver of any tax, interest or penalty levied or assessed under this act and due and payable or to become due and payable by such vendor.

In the event that any vendor is delinquent in the payment of the tax herein provided for the board may give notice of the amount of such delinquency by registered mail to all persons having in their possession, or under their control, any credits or other personal property belonging to such vendor, or owing any debts to such vendor at the time of receipt by them of such notice and thereafter any person so notified shall neither transfer nor make any other disposition of such credits, other personal property, or debits until the board shall have consented to a transfer or disposition, or until twenty days shall have elapsed from and after the receipt of such notice. All persons so notified must, within five days after receipt of such notice, advise the board of any and all such credits, other personal property or debts, in their possession, under their control or owing by them, as the case may be.

At any time within two years after any vendor is delinquent in the payment of the tax herein provided for, the board may proceed forthwith to collect the tax due from the vendor in the following manner: The board shall seize any property, real or personal, subject to the lien of said tax, and thereafter sell at public auction such property so seized, or a sufficient portion thereof, to pay the tax due hereunder, together with any interest or penalties imposed hereby for such delinquency, and any and all costs that may have been incurred on account of such seizure and sale. Notice of such intended sale and the time and place thereof, shall be given to such delinquent vendor and to all persons appearing of record to have an interest in such property in writing at least ten days before the date set for such sale by enclosing such notice in an envelope addressed to such vendor at his last known residence or place of business in this State if any, and in the case of any person appearing of record to have an interest in such property addressed to each person at the last known place of residence, if any, and depositing the same in the United States mail, postage prepaid, and by publication for at least ten days before the date set for such sale in a newspaper of general circulation published in the county or city and county in which the property seized is to be sold; provided, that if there be no newspaper of general circulation in such county or city and county, then by the posting of such notice in three public places in such county or city and county ten days prior to the date set for such sale. The said notice shall contain a description of the property to be sold, together with a statement of the amount of the taxes, interest, penalties and costs, the name of the vendor, and the further statement that unless such taxes, interest and penalties and costs are paid on or before the time fixed in said notice for such sale, said property, or so much thereof as may be necessary, will be sold in accordance with law and said notice.

At any such sale, the property shall be sold by the board in accordance with law and said notice, and the board shall deliver to the purchaser a bill of sale for the personal property, and a deed for any real property so sold, and such bill of sale or deed shall vest the interest or title of the vendor in the purchaser. The unsold portion of any property so seized may be left at the place of sale at the risk of the vendor. If, upon any such sale, the moneys so received shall exceed the amount of all taxes, interest, penalties and costs due the State from such vendor, any such excess shall be returned to the vendor, and his receipt therefor obtained; provided, however, that if any person having an interest or lien upon the property has filed with the board prior to any such sale notice of such interest or lien the board shall withhold any such excess pending a determination of the rights of the respective parties thereto by a court of competent jurisdiction. If, for any reason, the receipt of such vendor shall not be available, the board shall deposit such excess moneys with the State Treasurer, as trustee for such owner, subject to the order of such vendor, his heirs, successors or assigns.

It is expressly provided that the foregoing remedies of the State shall be cumulative and that no action taken by the board or Attorney General shall be construed to be an election on the part of the State or any of its officers to pursue any remedy hereunder to the exclusion of any other remedy for which provisions is made in this act

In such action a writ of attachment may issue, and no bond or affidavit previous to the issuing of said attachment is required. In such action a certificate by the board showing the delinquency shall be prima facie evidence of the levy of the tax, of the delinquency and of compliance by the board with all provisions of this act in relation to the computation and levy of the tax.

SEC. 31. No injunction or writ of mandate or other legal or equitable process shall issue in any suit, action or proceeding in any court against this State or against any officer thereof to prevent or enjoin under this act the collection of any tax sought to be collected; but after payment of any such tax under protest, duly verified and setting forth the grounds of objection to the legality of such tax, the vendor paying such tax may bring an action against the State Treasurer in a court of competent jurisdiction in the county of Sacramento for the recovery of the tax so paid under protest. No such action may be instituted more than sixty days after the tax becomes due and payable, and failure to bring suit within said sixty days shall constitute waiver of any and all demands against this State on account of alleged overpayment of taxes hereunder. No grounds of illegality of the tax shall be considered by the court other than those set forth in the protest filed at the time of the payment of the tax

If in any such action judgment is rendered for the plaintiff, the amount of the judgment shall first be credited on any taxes due from the plaintiff under this act, and the balance of the judgment shall be refunded to the plaintiff In any such judgment, interest shall be allowed at the rate of six per cent per annum upon the amount of tax found to have been illegally collected from the date of payment of such tax to the date of allowance of credit on account of such judgment or to a date preceding the date of the refund warrant by not more than thirty days, such date to be determined by the Controller.

In no case shall any judgment be rendered in favor of the plaintiff in any action brought against the State Treasurer to recover any tax paid hereunder, when such action is brought by or in the name of an assignee of the vendor paying said tax, or by any person other than the vendor who has paid such tax

SEC. 35. It shall be unlawful for the board, or any person having an administrative duty under this act to divulge or to make known in any manner whatever, the business affairs, operations, or information obtained by an investigation of records and equipment of any vendor visited or examined in the discharge of official duty, or the amount or source of income, profits, losses, expenditures or any particular thereof, set forth or disclosed in any return, or to permit any return or any copy thereof or any book containing any abstract or particulars thereof to be seen or examined by any person except as provided by law; provided, however, that the Governor may authorize examination of such returns by other State officers, by tax officers of another State, or the Federal Government, if a reciprocal arrangement exists, and any other persons the Governor may so authorize.

SEC. 37. Any person required to make, render, sign or verify any report as aforesaid, who makes any false or fraudulent return, with intent to defeat or evade the assessment required by law to be made, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall for each such offense be fined not less than three hundred dollars and not more than five thousand dollars or be imprisoned not exceeding one year in the county jail or be subject to both said fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 38. Every order, decision or other official act of the board shall be subject to review in accordance with the provisions of Chapter I, Title I of Part III of the Code of Civil Procedure if the proceeding is brought within sixty days after service of notice of such order, decision or other official act. Amendment No. 2.

On page 1 of the printed bill, strike out all of lines 1 to 7, inclusive, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"SECTION 1. As used in this act, "department" means the State Department of Public Works

SEC. 2. The department is hereby authorized and directed to conserve, develop and maintain the scenic value and natural features along State highways and to provide for roadside scenic planning and the coordination of such plans with local, State and Federal plans.

SEC. 3. The department with reference to State highways, and any county with reference to its important highways, may receive and accept in the name of the people of the State, by gift, devise, grant or other conveyance, real property or any interest therein to be used for the conservation, development and maintenance of the scenic value of the highways of the State, and may purchase or condemn, in the name of the people of the State, such real property or interest therein, including easements, as may be necessary and proper to carry out the purposes of this act.

If a county is financially unable to purchase or condemn such property or interest therein, the State may do so.

SEC 4. The department or a county may, as provided in this act, acquire for scenic purposes, strips of real property or interest therein, at least one hundred feet and not more than three hundred feet in width on each side of the center line of any State highway, National forest system highway, or county highway. If the State, county, or United States already has a right of way for highway purposes, only the balance of the scenic strip outside such right of way need be acquired.

SEC 5. The director of the department shall prepare and submit to the California Highway Commission within six months after the effective date of this act, a plan for roadside scenic conservation, development and maintenance, setting forth the policies and general program for a four-year period. He shall list the projects for acquisition in the order of their importance and make all surveys and plans necessary to carry out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 6 All expenditures by the department for any purpose authorized in this act shall be made from the State highway fund out of money available for use on the particular classification of highway in the particular county group, such money to be allotted by the California Highway Commission on recommendation of the director of the department.

Any expenditure by any county for any purpose authorized in this act may be made from the county general road fund, the county general fund, or the district fund of the road district or districts benefited.

SEC. 7. This act shall not apply to streets or highways within incorporated cities, nor to lands belonging to the United States, nor to localities where the cost of acquisition would be prohibitive because of improvements or developments in place.

SEC 8. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of section 1 of Article IV of the State constitution and as such shall take effect immediately.

The following is a statement of the facts constituting such urgency: Large sums of money are being appropriated by the Federal Government for immediate construction of highways in this State. It is the policy of the Federal Government, especially in regions like the National forests where natural scenery values are greatest, to conserve, develop and maintain natural scenery on roadside strips much wider than now permitted by the laws of this State. Roads being constructed on Federal reserves, such as the National forests, cross many parcels of private lands. The narrow right of way now being acquired by the State and counties over these private lands provide an irresistible incentive for the land owners to establish along this narrow strip all manner of enterprises, many of which are of no public service value but are highly objectionable from a scenic viewpoint. Important highways like the Sierra Way are being constructed primarily for scenic and recreational use. Unless adequate and uniform control of roadside scenery can be assured, the real purpose of such highways will be destroyed and the Federal Government will hesitate to proceed with the construction."

By Mr. Evans, Herbert J.:

POMONA, CALIFORNIA, April 2, 1935.

Assemblyman H J Evans,
Hotel Lenhart, Sacramento, California.

DEAR MR EVANS: The proposed tax on cigarettes would in our opinion not be beneficial to the State of California

Probably there is a misconception regarding this matter, for while the Federal Government finds it easy to collect such a tax, we believe that the State would have great difficulty in doing so—particularly on packages mailed in. Hence, a tax would drive the business from the local retailers to outside mail order houses.

Furthermore, an additional tax on the cigarette would undoubtedly be discrimination against a commodity which now bears its full share, particularly when that commodity is so generally used

We are still of the opinion that the general sales tax is to be preferred, rather than taxation of this type and we would appreciate your giving this matter consideration

Very truly yours,

PROGRESS-BULLETIN,
By A. T RICHARDSON.

Said bonds may be redeemed or purchased at not to exceed eighty per cent of the face value of the unpaid principal and interest of said bonds. When such bonds have been purchased or redeemed the board may at any time in its discretion cancel or retire them.

The expenditures herein authorized may be made from the general fund of said county, or from any moneys received by said county under the provisions of that certain act of the Legislature known as the Motor Vehicle Fuel License Tax Act, or the California Vehicle Act, as said statutes are amended or shall hereafter be amended, or from any other statutory source providing for the disposition of motor vehicle fuel license taxes or motor vehicle registration license fees. 2. Each such petition shall contain the name of the political subdivision appearing as petitioner therein, a description of the lands, property and rights, or of the part or portion thereof, which the political subdivision intends to acquire, and the names and addresses of all owners and claimants thereof, including each trustee and mortgagee under each deed of trust and mortgage, if known, or a statement that they are unknown The petition shall pray that the commission fix the just compensation which shall be paid by the political subdivision, under the law, for said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof. The petition shall be signed in the name of the political subdivision and verified by the chairman or other presiding officer or by the secretary or clerk of the legislative or other governing body of the political subdivision At the time the petition is filed, the petitioner shall also file with the commission additional copies thereof equivalent in number to three more than the number of owners and claimants named in the petition.

3 Upon the filing of the petition, the commission shall make its order, specifying the nature of the proceeding, containing a general description of the lands, property and rights, or the part or portion thereof which petitioner desires to acquire by condemnation, or otherwise, and directing the owners and claimants named in the petition, who shall also be named in said order, to appear before the commission at a time and place specified in the order to show cause, if any they have, why the commission should not proceed to hear the petition and to fix the just compensation to be paid for said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof The order shall direct the secretary of the commission to serve or cause to be served upon each said owner and claimant a copy of said order, certified under the seal of the commission to which shall be attached a true and correct copy of the petition Service shall be made in accordance with the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure of the State of California, provided, that service may also be made by depositing a copy of said order to show cause, certified under the seal of the commission, with a true and correct copy of the petition attached thereto, in the United States mail, enclosed in a sealed envelope, registered, with postage prepaid, addressed to any owner or claimant at the address specified in the petition If any owner or claimant named in the petition resides out of the State, or has departed from the State, or can not, after due diligence, be found within the State or conceals himself to avoid service, or is a corporation having no managing or business agent, cashier or secretary or other officer upon whom summons may be served, who, after due diligence, can not be found within the State, and the fact appears by affidavit to the satisfaction of the commission, and it also appears by such affidavit or by the petition that a cause of action exists against the owner or claimant on whom the service is to be made or that he is a necessary or proper party to the proceeding, the commission shall make its order that the service be made on such owner or claimant by publication of the commission's said order to show cause Said order of the commission shall direct that the publication be made in a newspaper to be designated by the commission as likely to give notice to the person to be served, and for such time as the commission may find to be reasonable, at least once a week, but publication against an owner or claimant residing out of the State, or absent therefrom shall be not less than two months. If the address of any owner or claimant, as stated in the petition, is out of the State, the secretary of the commission shall within fifteen days after the making and filing of said order to show cause, deposit or cause to be deposited a copy of said order to show cause, certified under the seal of the commission, with a true and correct copy of the petition attached thereto, in the United States mail, enclosed in a sealed envelope, registered, with postage prepaid, addressed to such owner or claimant at the address specified in the petition When publication is ordered, personal service of a copy of the order to show cause and of the petition out of the State is equivalent to publication and deposit in the United States mail. Within ten days prior to the time set for the first hearing on the petition, which time shall be not less than thirty days after the filing of the petition, the secretary of the commission shall serve or cause to be served upon the petitioner a written notice of such hearing specifying the time and place at which such hearing will be held In all respects not in this paragraph otherwise specified, service and the proof of service shall be made as provided by the Code of Civil Procedure of the State of California. Upon the completion of service upon the petitioner or upon any owner or claimant named in the petition, the commission shall have full and complete jurisdiction over such petitioner, owner or claimant, with full and complete jurisdiction, in so far as such petitioner, owner or claimant, is concerned, to make each finding hereinafter referred to. The failure to make service upon any person alleging that he is an owner or claimant but not named in the petition shall in no way affect the jurisdiction of the commission over owners and claimants on whom service has been made as in this paragraph provided.

4. At the time and place specified in said order to show cause, or at such other time and place as, for good cause, may be otherwise ordered by the commission, the commission shall proceed to a hearing on the petition. At such times and in such amounts as may be directed by the commission, the political subdivision must pay to the commission all extra costs as determined by the commission, which extra costs the commission may incur to comply with the requirements of section 47 (b) of this act, and if such amounts are not paid by the political subdivision as directed by the commission, the commission may suspend further proceedings on the petition. Evidence may be presented by the political subdivision, by each owner or claimant named in the petition, and by the commission. The commission shall have power, at any time subsequent to the filing of the petition, and prior to making and filing its findings as to just compensation, to authorize the amendment of the petition by altering or modifying the description of said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, or by adding to or deducting from said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, and in each other respect including each jurisdictional allegation. When the proceeding has been submitted, the commission shall make and file its written finding fixing, in a single sum, the just compensation to be paid by the political subdivision for said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, provided, that if the commission finds that severance damages should be paid, the just compensation for such damages shall be found and stated separately. Said just compensation shall be fixed by the commission as of the day on which the petition was filed with the commission

5. Within twenty days after the commission has made and filed its finding, the owner of said lands, property and rights, or of said part or portion thereof, may file with the legislative or other governing body of the political subdivision a written stipulation consenting and agreeing to accept the just compensation fixed by the commission. Upon the filing of such written stipulation, the political subdivision must proceed with all due diligence to provide the necessary funds under the law governing the providing of such funds, for paying the just compensation fixed by the commission. Whenever the just compensation has been tendered by the political subdivision, a deed of grant, bargain and sale conveying the owner's right, title and interest in and to said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, to the political subdivision, shall be executed and delivered by the owner, and the other claimants who have any right, title or interest in the property shall execute appropriate instruments of conveyance or release, conveying or releasing to the political subdivision their respective rights, titles and interest therein. If said deed or said instruments of conveyance or release are not executed and delivered within sixty days after said tender has been made, the political subdivision may commence an action in a court of competent jurisdiction or proceed otherwise in the manner and for the purpose or purposes specified in the next paragraph of this section

6. In the case of a petition of the first class, if the owner does not file said stipulation within said twenty days, the political subdivision within sixty days after the commission has made and filed its said finding, must commence an action in a court of competent jurisdiction in a manner in accordance with the provisions of law, to take under eminent domain proceedings said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof. In the case of a petition of the second class, if the owner does not file said stipulation within said twenty days, the political subdivision, within sixty days after the commission has made and filed its said finding, must initiate proceedings for the purpose of submitting to its voters a proposition to acquire under eminent domain proceedings said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof. The political subdivision shall not be required, in either case, to delay for more than twenty days after the commission has made and filed its finding, before commencing said further proceedings. In the case of a petition of the second class, if the voters of the political subdivision shall thereafter, as provided by the law governing said political subdivision, vote in favor of any proposition to acquire under eminent domain proceedings, or otherwise, said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, the political subdivision shall, within sixty days after its voters have so voted in favor of such acquisition, commence an action in a court of competent jurisdiction in a manner in accordance with the provisions of law, to take under eminent domain proceedings said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, unless the owner shall have filed with the political subdivision a written stipulation consenting and agreeing to accept the just compensation fixed by the commission

7. If the political subdivision, in a petition of the first class, fails to file said action in a court of competent jurisdiction within said period of sixty days after the commission has made and filed its said finding, or if the political subdivision, in a petition of the second class, fails to proceed diligently to submit said proposition to its voters or fails, if its voters have voted in favor of the acquisition of said lands, property and rights, or of said part or portion thereof, to file said action in a court of competent jurisdiction within sixty days after the voters have voted in favor of said acquisition, the owner of such lands, property and rights, or of said part or portion thereof, may file with the commission a verified petition in writing setting forth said fact, which petition may also set forth in detail the expenditures which the owner has necessarily incurred in the proceeding before the commission. The commission shall thereupon cause written notice of not less than ten days, with a true and correct copy of the owner's said petition attached thereto, to be served upon the political subdivision, to appear before the commission at a time and place specified in the notice, to show cause why an order should not be made by the commission (1) finding that the political subdivision has failed to pursue diligently its rights herein conferred, (2) determining that said finding as to just compensation shall no longer be of any force or effect, and (3) determining the reasonable expenditures necessarily incurred by the owner which, in the opinion of the commission, should be assessed against the political subdivision. If the commission shall determine that the political subdivision, in case of a petition of the first class, has failed to commence said action in a court of competent jurisdiction within said period of sixty days after the commission has made and filed its said finding of just compensation, or that the political subdivision, in case of a petition of the second class, has failed to proceed diligently to submit said proposition to its voters or has failed, after its voters have voted in favor of the acquisition of said lands, property or rights, or said part or portion thereof, to file said action in a court of competent jurisdiction within said sixty days after the voters have voted in favor of said acquisition, the commission shall make and file its order declaring that said finding shall no longer be of any force or effect, and make its finding as to the reasonable expenditures necessarily incurred by the owner in the proceeding before the commission, which the commission may find should be assessed against the political subdivision. The political subdivision shall thereupon be liable to the owner in the amount thus found by the commission and the owner may thereupon maintain an action against the political subdivision for said amount in any court of competent jurisdiction.

8. The finding of the commission fixing the just compensation to be paid by the political subdivision for said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, shall be final and shall not be subject to modification, alteration, reversal or review by any court of this State. The court in which the political subdivision shall have commenced its action, subsequent to the making and filing by the commission of its finding as to just compensation, as hereinbefore specified, if said court shall first decide that the political subdivision has the right and power under the law to take said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, shall enter a judgment in favor of the complainant in said action, as provided by law, fixing as the just compensation which shall be paid for the taking of said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, the just compensation fixed by the commission. The judgment may include therein the allowance of such costs between the parties as is provided for in the law of eminent domain of this State. The judgment of said court in so far as it refers to the just compensation to be paid for said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, shall be final and shall not be subject to modification, alteration, reversal or review by any court except as hereinafter in section forty-seven (b) of this act specified. The judgment of said court shall include a provision, in substance, that said judgment is subject to modification by reason of such increase or decrease in the just compensation to be paid as may thereafter be certified to said court by the commission, as hereinafter in section forty-seven (b) of this act provided

9. At any time within thirty days subsequent to the entry of said judgment of said court, the owner of said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, may file with the commission a verified petition in writing, alleging that by reason of expenditures made by the owner subsequent to the date of the filing of the original petition with the commission, for the purpose of preserving or improving said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, or by reason of other acts and occurrences subsequent to said date, the just compensation theretofore fixed by the commission should be increased and praying that the commission make its finding increasing said just compensation At any time within thirty days subsequent to the entry of said judgment of said court, the political subdivision may file with the commission a verified petition in writing, alleging that by reason of loss or destruction of said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, or a part thereof, or by reason of depreciation or deterioration thereof or by reason of other acts and occurrences, subsequent to the date of the filing of the original petition with the commission, the just compensation theretofore fixed by the commission should be decreased and praying that the commission make its finding decreasing said just compensation. The commission shall, in each instance, cause a copy of said petition or petitions to be served upon each party, other than the petitioner, who was named as the political subdivision, owner or claimant in the original proceeding before the commission, together with a written notice specifying the time and place of hearing on said petition or petitions, which time shall be within forty-five days after the entry of said judgment by said court, and shall cause written notice of the time and place of said hearing to be served upon each petitioner in said petition or petitions. If both such petitions are filed, the commission shall have the power to consolidate said petitions for hearing and decision. After a hearing, the commission shall make and file its finding fixing, as of the date on which such finding is made and filed, the extent to which the just compensation theretofore fixed should be increased or decreased by reason of the matters alleged in said petition or petitions. If the claim is made that the just compensation theretofore fixed by the commission should be increased by reason of expenditures made by the owner subsequent to the date of the filing of the original petition with the commission for the purpose of preserving or improving said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, the commission may increase said just compensation, by reason of such expenditures, only to the extent to which the commission shall determine that such expenditures were beneficial to said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, and reasonably and prudently made. The finding of the commission fixing the extent to which the just compensation theretofore fixed should be thus increased or decreased shall be final and shall not be subject to modification, alteration, reversal or review by any court of this State. The commission shall thereupon transmit to said court its finding, certified under the seal of the commission, fixing the extent to which the just compensation theretofore fixed by the commission shall be increased or decreased Said court shall thereupon modify its judgment so as to conform with said finding of the commission. The judgment of said court, as thus modified, in so far as it refers to the just compensation to be paid for said lands, property and rights, or said part or portion thereof, shall be final and shall not be subject to modification, alteration, reversal or review by any court. The filing of either or both the petitions in this paragraph specified shall not act as a stay of the judgment in condemnation, but upon the payment of the just compensation fixed in the original judgment of condemnation the plaintiff in the action in said court shall be entitled to immediate possession of said lands, property and rights, or of said part or portion thereof.

10 The provisions of this act with reference to rehearing and review shall be applicable to the findings of the commission made and filed under the provisions of section 47 (b) of this act Petitions for rehearing must be filed within twenty days from the date of making and filing the finding as to which a rehearing is desired. If a finding of the commission made and filed under the provisions of section 47 (b) of this act is set aside by the Supreme Court of the State of California, the matter shall be referred back to the commission for further action in the proceeding before the commission, and the commission shall have the right, in taking further action, to consider the entire testimony theretofore taken in the proceeding before the commission as well as such further testimony, if any, as may be presented in connection with such further action Should a writ of review be obtained from the Supreme Court of the State of California, the time within which the political subdivision must file an action in a court of competent jurisdiction or submit said proposition to its voters shall be extended to not more than sixty days beyond the final decision of the Supreme Court upon said writ of review

11 The procedure provided in section 47 (b) of this act shall be considered as alternative and cumulative and not exclusive and the political subdivision shall continue to have the right to pursue any other procedure now or hereafter established providing for the acquisition under eminent domain proceedings of the lands, property and rights, or any part or portion thereof, of any public utility, and section 47 (b) of this act shall not be construed as repealing any law of this State providing for such eminent domain proceedings Section 47 (b) of this act shall not affect pending actions or proceedings, but the same may be prosecuted and defended with the same effect as though section 47 (b) had not been amended.
