Messages From the Governor.

The following messages from the Governor were received and read

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE.
SACRAMENTO, January 29, 1937.

Honorable Members of the Assembly, Sacramento, California.

GENTLEMEN:

Assembly Bill No. 331—An act making an appropriation for the contingent expenses of the Assembly at its fifty-second session, and declaring that this act shall take effect immediately—is herewith returned, the appropriation being reduced to $20,000, in accordance with the authority vested in me by section 34 of Article 4 of the Constitution of the State of California.

This reduction in the amount of the appropriation is made after the preparation of a careful estimate of the contingent expenses for the 1937 session of the Assembly. The $20,000 authorized in Assembly Bill No. 331 will give the 1937 Assembly slightly more funds for its usual contingent expenses than was used by the 1935 session of the Assembly.

Believing the Assembly would not wish to appropriate for its contingent expenses more than is necessary, and realizing a future appropriation may be made should an emergency arise, I am taking the action above indicated.

Respectfully submitted.

FRANK F. MERRIAM, Governor of California

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE,
SACRAMENTO, March 1, 1937

To the Assembly of the State of California.

Pursuant to the provisions of section 312 of the Political Code of the State of California, you are hereby notified that on the thirtieth day of January, 1937, at ten o'clock and thirty minutes a.m., Assembly Bill No. 331 was returned without my approval and, together with statement of my objections thereto, was delivered to Hon. STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE.
SACRAMENTO, January 29, 1937.

Honorable Members of the Assembly, Sacramento, California.

GENTLEMEN: I am returning herewith Assembly Bill No. 948, without my approval, the same being:

> An act to amend the Political Code of the State of California by adding thereto a new section to be numbered 3886, relating to the validation of certain tax levies, to declare the urgency thereof, and to provide that this act shall take effect immediately

This bill seeks to validate illegally collected taxes, and thus avoid repayments to the tax payers to whom such funds rightfully belong.

Also, the measure was passed by the Legislature without due consideration and without an opportunity for a hearing or protest. The constitutional safeguards to the enactment of hasty legislation were suspended and the bill rushed through without the usual lapse of time or reference to the proper committees.

Recognizing the expense and trouble of making the returns, I believe the observance of good faith with those who pay the taxes warrants such a course, and I am therefore withholding my approval.

Respectfully submitted.

House Resolution No. 80.

WHEREAS, The President of the United States has proposed to Congress a sound, workable, practical plan to increase the efficiency of the Federal Courts, expedite the business thereof and to promote thereby the dispensation of justice to the people of the United States; and

WHEREAS, The pressure of litigation and the number of cases pending before the Supreme Court and the Circuit Courts of Appeal and the District Courts require additional judicial officers to dispose of such cases; and

WHEREAS, Certain of the incumbent judges and justices are of such advanced age that they should be assisted or replaced by younger judges; and

WHEREAS, Superannuated judges have a tendency to be "tenacious of the appearance of adequacy"; and

WHEREAS, A retirement pension system for superannuated judges has long been recognized as necessary; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature of the State of California has before it this session and is expected to consider favorably bills to retire aged State judges and for the involuntary retirement of judges who become physically or mentally unable to perform their duties; and

WHEREAS, The President's proposal seeks to expedite justice and to insure speedy decisions on important public measures; and

WHEREAS, The present Supreme Court of the United States is said to be torn by violent internal dissension to an extent that certain of its members are thereby made incapable of considering essential public measures in a dispassionate and judicious frame of mind; and

WHEREAS, A majority of the members of the present Supreme Court of the United States by reason of its arbitrary and unfounded opposition to and its unwarranted repudiation of measures essential to the public good has lost the respect and veneration of the people to which its august position and wise and temperate judicial statesmanship should entitle it, and

WHEREAS, A member of the Supreme Court itself has warned the majority members of the court that:

> "A tortured construction of the Constitution is not to be justified by recourse to extreme examples."
> "It must be remembered that Legislatures are ultimate guardians of the liberties and welfare of the people in quite as great a degree as the courts."
> "Interpretation of our great charter of government which proceeds on any assumption that the responsibility for the preservation of our institutions is the exclusive concern of any one of the three branches of government, or that it alone can save them from destruction is far more likely, in the long run, to 'obliterate the constituent members' of 'an indestructible union of indestructible states' than the frank recognition that language, even of a constitution, may mean what it says"

and

WHEREAS, The opponents of the President's program are seeking to defeat it by means of an artificially stimulated and deceptively organized expression of protest by means of printed forms and catchword slogans having no actual bearing or accurate reference to the grave public issues involved; and

WHEREAS, The conservative press has attacked the program by identical means and identical arguments which were overwhelmingly repudiated in the presidential election of 1936, now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That the President's judicial reform program is hereby emphatically endorsed and approved, and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to the President of the United States, the Vice President of the United States, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and each Senator and member of the House of Representatives in the United States Congress from the State of California

By Mr. Speaker:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, LEGAL DEPARTMENT,
SAN FRANCISCO, February 26, 1937.

To the Speaker and Members of the Assembly of the State of California, State Capitol, Sacramento, California.

GENTLEMEN: On the twenty-second day of January, 1937, there was passed by the Assembly a resolution which, after recitals, reads as follows:

"Resolved by the Assembly of the Legislature of California, That the Attorney General is hereby directed to intervene in such actions for and on behalf of the State of California, for the purpose of protecting the interests of the State and securing findings and judgment in all such cases where the wells involved therein are actually penetrating and taking and removing oil, gas or other hydrocarbon substances from the State lands within the tideland boundary thereof as claimed by the State, when the facts disclosed justify such findings and judgment."

The resolution does not name the case or cases to which you intended to refer, but I assume that you had particular reference to the case of Standard Oil Company vs Southern Drilling Company, et al, then pending in the superior court of Orange County, and which had been set for trial on January 27, 1937, the trial of which commenced on that date and still continues

The complaint in this case alleges, in effect, that defendants had so slanted the well drilled by them that it entered the lands of the plaintiff and the correct location of the line between uplands and tidelands is involved, that is the line which separates the lands of private owners from lands held by the State in trust for its people.

Prior to the receipt of your resolution, this office had investigated the issues raised in this case and had considered with care the question whether the interests of the State were so involved as to demand, or even justify, an application on behalf of the State for permission to intervene, and thus make the State an active party in the litigation and subject the State to the jurisdiction of the courts in this particular case.

The conclusion was reached prior to the commencement of the trial of the case that at this time such intervention would be inadvisable. We have not failed to appreciate the importance of the correct location of the line separating uplands from tidal areas. Nevertheless, from the beginning of the trial of this case we have kept in close touch with the proceedings, indeed have had a member of this office force in attendance.

Thus far no evidence has been introduced as to the proper location of this boundary line. The case is on trial before a jury and it has not been yet determined whether the location of the line will be submitted to the jury or whether that question will be determined by the court, and the jury instructed in accordance with the court's conclusion. If it appears at any time that the State's interests would be best subserved by an active participation an application for privilege to intervene, or to be heard at amicus curiae will be made.

As indicated above it was our conclusion that the State's interests would not be best subserved by the State's participation in this suit at this time. The action is between private parties. The State is not a party, and as a result will not be bound by any determination that may be made therein Should the State intervene it would voluntarily submit itself to the jurisdiction of that court, and would of course be bound by the judgment rendered. From the facts we have and to which we have given full consideration we think it unwise, certainly at this time, to voluntarily submit the State to that court's jurisdiction.

The lands involved in this suit are what is generally known as the Huntington Beach Field Probably not all of you, but surely some of you know that in 1933 and 1934 this office, in conjunction with the State Finance Department, carried on an extensive litigation involving approximately 100 wells in this field. These actions were the first ever brought involving "slanted wells," and were brought as result of investigations made by agents of the State continuing for a long period before the commencement of the actions, through which the State became satisfied that wells were being slanted from uplands into the tidal areas. In these cases we obtained for the first time an order of court authorizing a survey of all wells to be made for the purpose of determining their course, and in pursuance of such order several wells were surveyed As a result of such litigation contracts were entered into between the State and the owners of approximately 80 wells found to have been slanted, whereby compensation for past withdrawals was paid and the State's participation in the future product was established. Such wells have been since operated under such contracts, and all of these contracts may be seen at the office of the Department of Finance.

The particular well involved in the pending suit was not involved in such litigation, nor was contract entered into between the State and its owners. Indeed, that well is not, I am informed, and has not been in production for a considerable period of time.

About this time the State intervened in and participated in the trial of the case of Bolsa Land Company vs. Vaqueros Major Oil Company, which involved lands in this same area and in which the legal line of separation between uplands and tidelands was particularly involved. By reason of such litigation we are quite familiar with this particular beach and realize the importance of the establishment of the line separating uplands from tidal areas. In the Bolsa Land Company case this was the question in which the State was concerned and was, so far as the State was concerned, the major issue.

In the case now pending the Standard Oil Company makes the same contention as to the location of the line as made by the Bolsa Land Company, while the State contended that the proper line was some 94 feet further landward. The court found the line to be 56 feet further landward than the line contended for by the Bolsa Land Company, but 38 feet seaward from the line contended for by the State. The State's contention was that the proper line is that generally known as the ordinary high tide line.

From the judgment in the Bolsa Land Company case the State appealed, and that case is now No. 15508 pending in the Supreme Court. The brief of the State has been filed and the brief of the Bolsa Land Company is due. As this case is now in the Supreme Court and will doubtless be determined long before the case now on trial can be determined by that court, and the decision will control any judgment that will be rendered in the pending case, we feel that at this time it would be unwise to submit the State to the jurisdiction of the court in the pending suit.

As indicated above, we quite appreciate the importance of the questions involved and have given these questions exhaustive investigation, the results of which are reflected in the brief we have filed in the Supreme Court in the Bolsa Land Company case.

I have, I believe, participated in every case tried in this State in which the State was a party involving tidelands, and have always contended that the boundary line is the "ordinary high water mark," except as that line has been changed through wholly natural causes, and it is this line for which we contended in the trial of the Bolsa Land Company case and for which we are contending in the Supreme Court. If such line should be by the Supreme Court approved it will give to the State 38 feet more than was given in the Bolsa Land Company case by the trial court, and 94 feet more than would the establishment of the line contended for by the Bolsa Land Company, and as being now contended for by the Standard Oil Company. While I have mentioned 94 feet as being the difference between the lines contended for by the respective parties, I am, of course, aware that this distance will vary at different points on the Huntington Beach.

Your resolution, I appreciate, directs intervention, and it has occurred to me that as the resolution was passed during the rush of the closing hours of the opening session of the Legislature it is not improbable that you were not fully advised of all of the facts involved, and for this reason I have written you thus at length.

Assuring you of my desire to cooperate in every proper way, I remain,

Very truly yours,

U. S. WEBB, Attorney General.

The Legislative Interim Committee and the Advisory Committee held meetings as follows:

June 19 and 20, 1936, in Los Angeles;
August 28 and 29, 1936, in San Francisco;
October 23 and 24, 1936, in Los Angeles;
November 19 and 20, 1936, in San Francisco;
December 18 and 19, 1936, in Los Angeles;
January 15, 1937, in Sacramento.

The Advisory Committee appointed various subcommittees, including a technical subcommittee, one on drivers' license laws, a dealers' subcommittee, one to report relative to proposed increase in the membership of the Highway Patrol and certain other subcommittees. Some of these subcommittees included only members of the Advisory Committee. In other instances, as with respect to the technical subcommittee, the membership was widely representative and such committees called into consultation numerous representatives of the motor vehicle and transportation industry to aid in the deliberations as to appropriate amendments to the motor vehicle laws. The various subcommittees held numerous meetings, in addition to the regular meetings of the Interim Committee and the Advisory Committee.

All meetings of the Legislative Interim Committee and the Advisory Committee were open to the public and such meetings were attended by a very large number of persons interested in motor vehicle legislation. Both members and nonmembers were permitted to submit suggestions and to participate in discussion. Sufficient publicity was given for each meeting to insure the attendance of those organizations, groups and individuals interested in motor vehicle legislation.

The Vehicle Code.

During the 1933 session, the Legislature by resolution requested the California Code Commission to prepare a recodification of the then existing California motor vehicle regulations and a substantial appropriation was made to the Code Commission for this purpose. The Code Commission prepared such recodification of the motor vehicle laws during the biennium 1933-1935 and said code, being merely a codification of then existing laws, was enacted early in the 1935 session. Subsequently during said session a substantial number of amendments which had been carefully considered and recommended by the then Advisory Committee were submitted to the Legislature and enacted with some minor changes.

In the codification of the Vehicle Code the Code Commission had the advantage of consulting and comparing the text of the National Uniform Vehicle Code which had been prepared and approved by the National Conference on Street and Highway Safety. The Uniform Code has been adopted either in whole or in part in approximately 45 States. The California Vehicle Code is without question one of the most modern and desirable in the entire United States.

Thus, your present Legislative Interim Committee and the Advisory Committee on Motor Vehicle Legislation are of the opinion that drastic changes should not be made destroying present uniformity. However, administrative experience under the code has disclosed the need of clarifying and revising certain present sections. The amendments proposed by the Interim Committee in the main clarify or make minor revision of present sections of the code without making any fundamental change either in respect to registration matters, operator's or chauffeur's license or the rules of the road.

The work of the Advisory Committee during the past two years and previous thereto has been of the greatest advantage to the Legislature. The volume of motor vehicle legislation proposed each year is so great that it would be impossible for the Senate and Assembly Committees on Motor Vehicles to prepare, digest and analyze all of said bills and determine the public need and advisability of such legislation without the previous work of the Advisory Committee. The Advisory Committee is so widely representative that all possible arguments for and against such proposals are developed within the committee itself. Every proposal is subjected to the closest study and consideration and the committee seeks to arrive at sound and unanimous conclusions. In view of this procedure the committee is able to weed out a vast number of irrelevant and improper proposals thus saving the time of members of the Legislature.

It is understood, of course, that any action by the Advisory Committee does not preclude in any way introduction of other measures. The Legislature is the sole and final judge of all legislative matters subject to veto by the Governor. However, experience has demonstrated that those measures proposed by the Advisory Committee and enacted have proven most satisfactory and without exception such measures have been held valid. Diligent effort is made to harmonize various provisions of the Vehicle Code. Experience has also demonstrated that invalid and contradictory provisions sometimes occur in the Vehicle Code by reason of measures or amendments introduced late in the legislative session when there is insufficient time for the members of the legislative committees to thoroughly analyze such proposals. There were several unfortunate experiences along this line during the legislative session of 1935.

Measures Recommended by the Legislative Interim Committee on Motor Vehicles and the Advisory Committee.

These include Assembly Bill No. 236, amending the "In Lieu" Tax Law enacted as an emergency measure during the first session of the Legislature, also Assembly Bill No. 576 and Assembly Bills Nos. 1199 to and including 1225, all introduced by Assemblymen Hornblower, Breed and Laughlin.

A substantial number of said measures were introduced in the Senate, including Senate Bills Nos. 377, 378, 403 and 404 introduced by Senator Seawell, Senate

Bill No 396 by Senator Powers, Senate Bill No. 408 by Senator Pierovich, Senate Bill No. 409 by Senator Law and Senate Bills Nos. 413, 414 and 665 by Senator Slater.

A complete digest of all of these measures is included in Part I of the Appendix to this report.

Proposals Definitely Rejected by the Interim Committee and Advisory Committee.

Due to the serious traffic accident situation in California many persons unacquainted with the cause and location of traffic accidents submitted all manner of proposals for new laws applicable to motor vehicles. Many such proposals have been tried out in other States and found to have no bearing whatever in reduction of traffic accidents. Other proposals were made to greatly increase penalties for certain offenses, in fact, reinstating penalties previously provided in the California Vehicle Act several years ago and later modified because it was found that juries failed to convict when penalties were unduly severe and offenders escaped without any punishment whatever. Other proposals, according to the judgment of traffic experts, would prove utterly impractical or would impose costs on the motoring public out of all proportion to any possible good which might result. In fact, your committee is of the general opinion that additional legislation will not of itself have material bearing in reduction of traffic accidents.

Unfortunately, there are many who have little knowledge of the traffic accident situation who approach the problem in a hysterical frame of mind. In fact, some officials of the Department of Motor Vehicles appear to be so afflicted. During meetings of your committee the Director of the Department of Motor Vehicles urged the enactment of various measures which your Legislative Committee and the members of the Advisory Committee, other than department officials, deemed most objectionable and quite irrelevant as having any bearing on the traffic accident situation. Nevertheless, the Director of the Department of Motor Vehicles, as he has a right so to do, caused to be introduced various measures, many of which were definitely disapproved by your committee and with respect to others the director did not condescend to submit his proposals for open debate.

Fingerprinting of Motorists.

For quite some time the Director of the Department of Motor Vehicles has been obsessed with the idea that all motorists must be fingerprinted and fingerprint records maintained by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

We are not here considering the advisability of any general plan for fingerprinting all citizens for purposes of identification and police supervision. Rather, this proposal singles out but one group, the motoring public of California, for the purposes of fingerprinting It is contemplated that the maintenance of fingerprint records will be for the confidential information of the Division of Operators' and Chauffeurs' Licenses of the department This is one of the most illogical, costly and far-fetched proposals that has ever been made as a means of reducing traffic accidents. The director submitted alternate proposals, and both were definitely rejected as of no value in accomplishing the purposes intended to be accomplished.

There is only one valid argument in support of the proposition of fingerprinting motorists. That is that a few persons whose licenses have been suspended or revoked are able by using a different name to obtain a license from a different branch office of the department However, the department has not submitted any data whatsoever nor any estimate as to the number of persons who may have fraudulently obtained drivers' licenses. A careful study of the fingerprint proposal indicates that it will not have any material effect in preventing unlicensed persons from driving.

The first proposal of the director is that fingerprints shall be required on applications for drivers' licenses, such applications being filed as at present, alphabetically under the name of the applicant. Obviously, any such alphabetical index containing fingerprint records would not in any wise prevent a suspended operator from obtaining another license under another name even though his application contained his fingerprints as the second application would be filed under the fictitious name and there would be no means of checking the same against the original application. In fact, the director admits that this system would not be perfect.

His second proposal is that fingerprints on applications be transferred to a fingerprint file and all fingerprints be arranged and classified according to the method of classifying fingerprints by police agencies. It is uncertain as to precisely what this would cost although the department has submitted an estimate showing that the cost of installation of the fingerprint system would amount to $1,000,000. In addition, the expense of maintaining the Fingerprint Bureau thereafter has been variously estimated will range from $250,000 to $500,000 per year. Estimates have been submitted that it would be necessary to employ at least 75 or probably more fingerprint experts to classify, arrange and check such fingerprint records.

In view of the fact that there are more than 3,000,000 licensed drivers in the State, this proposal would mean setting up in the department a most elaborate filing system separate and apart from, and equally as voluminous as, the present records of drivers' license applications.

Assuming such a system in operation, its utility from the viewpoint of reducing traffic accidents is nil. Admitting that an applicant whose license had been suspended or revoked might be caught upon making an application under another name, it is quite obvious that few persons would fall into such a trap. Many would operate, as some do now, without any license upon the theory that they would suffer no ill consequence unless actually stopped and requested to exhibit a license by a traffic officer. Thousands of persons can testify that they have operated for years without being requested by any traffic officer to exhibit a driver's license. Admitting that there is a real problem in preventing operation of vehicles by persons whose licenses have been suspended or revoked, the remedy certainly does not lie in the fingerprinting of applicants. In addition, the fingerprinting of three and a half million motorists in an effort to check the activities of less than 1 per cent of the motoring public, would certainly not justify the tremendous expenditure of public funds involved.

The department has paid little attention to the recommendation that there is need for closer cooperation between the Division of Drivers' Licenses and local police officials in publicizing the names of those whose licenses have been suspended, and in securing cooperation of local police to the end that such suspended drivers shall be actually prevented from operating. Unfortunately, there has not been appropriate effort to apprehend, prosecute and severely punish those who continue to drive after their licenses have been suspended or revoked. The proposal of the director for the fingerprinting of motorists has the appearance of a bureaucratic effort to unnecessarily enlarge the personnel and activities of the department. Assuredly, maintenance of fingerprint records in the department will have no bearing upon the ability of motorists to drive with safety to themselves and others.

Compulsory Inspection of Motor Vehicles.

The Director of the Department of Motor Vehicles has caused to be introduced a measure to require periodical inspection of motor vehicles by agencies appointed by the State, the fees being specified. This proposal would impose a cost on the motoring public of more than $2,000,000 each year. Your committee would favor this or any other plan, having due regard to cost, if we were convinced that it would have any material bearing in reducing traffic accidents.

Fortunately, we have the benefit of the experience in a substantial number of other States, where this type of legislation has been in force for several years past, to guide us in considering the merits of this proposal. The experience in such States has proven that compulsory inspection of motor vehicles quickly results in a commercial racket costly to the motoring public without being effective in reduction of traffic accidents. In fact, those who have studied traffic accident records and the cause of such accidents are well aware that such accidents are mainly due to inability, lack of judgment, carelessness or recklessness on the part of the man behind the wheel and attributable in a very small percentage of such accidents to mechanical defects of the vehicle. The Vehicle Code now contains ample authority to the Highway Patrol to rule off the highway any vehicle which is not equipped as required by law or which is in unsafe mechanical condition.

We refer to a very excellent summary of compulsory inspection experience in other States, found on page 287 of the Highway Research Board Proceedings for 1935. The survey was made by William S. Canning, Engineering Director of the Keystone Automobile Club in Pennsylvania, in which State compulsory inspection has been the law and practice for many years. The survey covers experience in approximately 18 States which have experimented with a compulsory inspection law. The findings and conclusions are stated as follows:

1. "That mechanical defects, as factors in highway accidents, play a very small part, perhaps the smallest of any single cause.
2. "That compulsory mechanical inspection has not resulted in a consistent improvement in the mechanical condition of the vehicles from year to year.
3. "That mechanical inspection (and presumably correction of the defects) has not resulted in reduction of the accidents attributed to this cause."

Speed Traps.

We note that the Director of the Department of Motor Vehicles has caused a bill to be introduced permitting the maintenance of speed traps although it is proposed that the highway where any such devices are maintained shall be sign-posted with large signs advising the motoring public that speed is subject to control on such highways by speed traps.

During many years California, as well as other States employed speed traps until finally prohibited by law for two reasons: (1) Maintenance of speed traps was not effective in reduction of traffic accidents; (2) Such traps were generally maintained where conditions were least hazardous, where motorists operated at somewhat more than normal speed by reason of safe conditions. The system was fruitful only in filling the coffers of municipalities and counties with substantial fines and forfeitures.

The proposal of the director to reinstate speed traps indicates a lack of fundamental knowledge of the cause and circumstances of traffic accidents Admitting that movement of vehicles is a factor in every accident, nevertheless, excessive speed is only one of many causes of traffic accidents. Unfortunately police and traffic officials have devoted almost exclusive attention to efforts to control and reduce speed. That such point of view and efforts have failed to accomplish the purpose intended is demonstrated by the increase in traffic accident injuries and fatalities

It would seem appropriate that officers devoted more attention to reckless and hazardous operation of vehicles under such circumstances as overtaking and passing on the wrong side, upon curves or other places where the view is obstructed and to more strict enforcement of the right of way rules at intersections, as a very large percentage of accidents occur at such locations though the actual speed of vehicles may be as permitted by law.

There are two theories of traffic patrol methods of enforcement. Those imbued with police theories and trained solely as policemen sincerely believe in methods of entrapment. But experience throughout the United States has demonstrated that police methods pursued for many years have not been effective in controlling the traffic accident situation. The opposite theory is that advocated by many traffic safety engineers—that traffic officers should actually patrol the highways in distinctive cars and in distinctive uniforms, regulating traffic movement in accordance with traffic laws and by their conspicuous presence prevent violations and traffic accidents.

The earlier practice which permitted traffic officers to hide in ambush or to encourage motorists to commit traffic offenses in order to catch and punish the offenders has been thoroughly discredited. The modern theory of traffic law enforcement urges manual control of traffic and the prevention of accidents by conspicuous presence of officers on the highways and the actual physical control and direction of the flow of traffic on the part of the constituted traffic authorities.

It is widely recognized as far sounder to prevent accidents than to apprehend and punish offenders after accidents have occurred.

The subject of traffic accidents, the location, circumstances and causes are discussed more fully in another part of this report.

We are informed that the director of the department has caused to be introduced various additional bills seeking to materially increase the appropriations for the support of the department, enlarging the powers and functions of the department, the majority of which have either been definitely disapproved by your Interim Committee or were held by the director secretly in abeyance until near the close of the opening session of the Legislature.

As showing the disposition of the Director of the Department of Motor Vehicles to seek additional funds for its support we refer to only one of a number of proposals A measure which the department caused to be introduced in the Senate changes the definition of the term "chauffeur." At present a chauffeur is a person who is employed by another for the principal purpose of driving a motor vehicle on the highways and receives compensation therefor. The department proposes to change the definition to describe a chauffeur as one who operates any commercial vehicle. This would mean that every farmer and every other person who operates his own small truck for transportation of his own produce shall be required to pay a chauffeur's fee. And such fees, it should be noted, are appropriated exclusively for the support of the Department of Motor Vehicles It may very well be that the legislator requested to introduce this measure did not appreciate its full effect.

Expenditures of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Under the authority of the Assembly resolution your Interim Committee requested the Department of Motor Vehicles to furnish, as provided in the resolution, "evidence of the amount of money required to be expended by the department in the performance of its duties to the end that unnecessary expense and delay caused by any of the present laws relating to the functions of the department may be eliminated."

Although the department supplied your committee with a financial statement substantially in accord with the budget allowance for the department during the present biennium, it is difficult to determine from the figures alone as to whether the department is or is not being conducted efficiently and economically. In fact, an examination of the State budgets during past years and for the coming biennium disclose increasing expenditures by the department, which we believe are excessive and out of proportion to services actually rendered.

We set forth, first, the following table showing total biennial expenditures, such figures being substantially correct so far as we can determine from the State budgets:

Total Biennial Budgets—Motor Vehicle Administration.

Biennium—
1927-1929	$2,873,589	53—Department of Finance, Division of Motor Vehicles
1929-1931	6,201,232	86—Department of Public Works, Division of Motor Vehicles, including California Highway Patrol
1931-1933	6,954,271	28—Department of Motor Vehicles, including Highway Patrol.
1933-1935	7,751,557	11—Department of Motor Vehicles, including Highway Patrol.
1935-1937	9,626,057	00—Department of Motor Vehicles, including capital outlay of $805,182.
In addition—	415,430	43—Cost of collection—motor vehicle license fee fund.
1937-1939	10,522,000	00—Estimated and proposed.
In addition—	500,000	00—Cost of collection—motor vehicle license fee fund

From State budgets 1927-1939.

However, in all fairness to the department, it is necessary to break down said figures and to show the relative and increasing costs of the various divisions of the department. Due allowance should be made for the establishment during the biennium 1929-1931 of the California Highway Patrol, the support of which has, since said biennium, been met out of the appropriations for the Department of Motor Vehicles. However, excluding budget allowances for the support of the Highway Patrol, we submit below a table showing total registration of all vehicles as compared to total budget allowance to the department for registration, the Operators' and Chauffeurs' License Division, accounting and administration.

It should be remembered that the California Vehicle Act, as revised in 1923, contained substantially the present code provisions relating to registration, the issuance of certificates of ownership and registration cards, the examination and licensing of drivers and other provisions. Since 1923 there has not been radical amendment to the vehicle laws imposing additional duties or functions upon the above mentioned divisions of the department, except in one or two respects.

It is true that in 1935 the department was given the task of collecting the "in lieu" tax. However, the costs of such collection are met from such tax revenue and are separate and apart from the usual budget allowances to the above divisions. Also in 1935 the Legislature enacted the Caravan Tax Law but this has been administered very largely by the personnel paid out of the budget of the Highway Patrol.

Registration Reports Department of Motor Vehicles.
Biennial State Budgets 1928-1937.

It appears from the foregoing that the costs of the department, exclusive of support of the Highway Patrol are increasing with undue rapidity and out of proportion to the additional costs resulting from the increase in number of registered vehicles. Your committee is convinced that the unusual increase during the present biennium and the proposed increase during the coming biennium are attributable in very large measure to actions of administrative offices during the past two years in increasing unnecessary red tape in respect to registering motor vehicles. During the past year and a half particularly the department has issued a volume of separate rules and regulations, many contradictory one to the other, greatly increasing the burden in obtaining registration and increasing the activities of the department until the system employed is so cumbersome that annual renewal of registration and transfers are tasks of great magnitude. Obviously, there is need for greater efficiency and economy in the administration of the department.

The proposed increase in expenditures by the department, exclusive of the Highway Patrol, are most astounding and in fact fail to give a true picture of the situation in view of the fact that a substantial part of those functions of the department having to do with registration and examining of operators and chauffeurs have been thrust upon the personnel of the Highway Patrol and are met out of the budget for the Highway Patrol.

Although the budget submitted for the next biennium shows a material increase in the allocation of funds to the Department of Motor Vehicles it appears from a report of the Department of Finance that the Department of Motor Vehicles at the present time enjoys approximately a $900,000 surplus over their budget allowance for the present fiscal year. The director has not indicated what disposition will be made of this surplus.

In passing, your committee desires to call attention to an innovation in governmental procedure by which departments of the State Government purchase land and erect buildings without legislative authorization. Considerable mention has been made of the building recently erected by the Department of Motor Vehicles in Sacramento. Other departments are contemplating similar enterprises. Your committee feels that this matter is of such importance that the Legislature should give the entire subject careful thought and study And while this practice may be advantageous in some instances, the question arises as to whether or not it is sound in principle and if it may not eventually lead to serious consequences.

Administrative Costs.

There is also evident in the opinion of your committee an unnecessary increase in the cost of the purely administrative work of the director's office of the department. Prior to 1935, during a period of approximately four years, the director of the department served without compensation and with a minimum of expense. The budget recently submitted to the Legislature shows a purely administrative cost during the 1935–1937 biennium of $193,719. It also proposes a purely administrative cost for the next biennium of $304,019. We may compare this with the modest administrative cost as shown by the previous State budget of $9,002.77 for the entire biennium 1933–1935.

The very large increase in administrative costs may be attributed in part to payment of salary and expenses of the director and the employment by him of additional assistants, including administrative advisers, special representatives, administrative assistants and other personnel to aid the director in carrying on his official duties.

Unfortunately, the tremendous increase in the expenditures for the support of the department has occurred without there having been appropriate revision and increase of salaries in the lower brackets. It is notorious that a large part of the personnel of the department in the lower brackets have not received appropriate advancements in salary and are on the whole underpaid.

Likewise, there has not been appropriate revision of salaries with respect to traffic officers who have served many years in the Highway Patrol The increased costs of the department might in some respects be justified if the salaries of the rank and file had been given due consideration. However, the actual increase in costs appears to be due to complication of methods in performance of duties and the creating of new and unnecessary positions without consideration of personnel in the lower brackets who have devoted many years to service in the department.

The Division of Drivers' Licenses.

During meetings of the Interim Committee and the Advisory Committee, careful study was made of the operations and expenditures of the Division of Drivers' Licenses It was agreed that those licenses issued between January 1, 1927, and August 14, 1929, which remain outstanding and are good until called in by the department should be called in and such licensees be placed upon the same basis as other licensees subject to periodical renewal of license.

It was also agreed that the administration of the driver's license laws should be strengthened by more stringent examinations, greater activity in investigation of accidents and the suspension and revocation of licenses of those found responsible for such accidents by reason of unlawful conduct or incompetence.

In view of the tremendous task of renewing all licenses every two years your committee recommends and a measure has been introduced providing for renewal every four years instead of every two years, as under the present code. Your committee believes that this change will permit the department to conduct more thorough investigation and examination upon renewal every four years than is possible upon renewal every two years.

Your committee recognizes that during past years insufficient funds have been provided for the Division of Drivers' Licenses. This is strikingly apparent upon examining the prior budget appropriations for the Division of Drivers' Licenses as compared to the vastly greater budget allowances for the Division of Registration and the California Highway Patrol. Although the department submitted various estimates and figures, your Interim Committee does not recommend precisely what increase should be made for this division. This is partly due to the fact that some of the estimates submitted by the department contained appropriation to enable said division to carry on a system of fingerprinting which, as heretofore mentioned, your committee very definitely rejected.

It might very well be that sufficient allowance could be made for the Division of Drivers' Licenses out of the total of the department budget during the coming biennium by effecting certain economies in other divisions of the department. We may note from the current State budget that the appropriation for the Division of Drivers' Licenses during the biennium 1935–1937 was $490,876, while the proposed expenditures for the biennium 1937–1939 is $705,011. As this makes provision for a total personnel in the Division of Drivers' Licenses during the coming biennium of 212 as compared to total personnel of 98 for the fiscal year 1935–1936, it may well be that the budget allowance for 1937–1939 is ample to permit the division to accomplish the desired improvement in the administration of the Driver's License Law.

Your committee feels that if any additional funds, over and above the increase contained in the budget, are needed for the support of the Division of Drivers' Licenses that such funds should be "ear-marked" for that division. Experience of prior years has indicated that additional funds allocated to the Department of Motor Vehicles for this division have been expended for other purposes.

Cost of Maintaining the California Highway Patrol.

The history of the Highway Patrol shows constantly increasing cost and enlargement of personnel.

Prior to the organization of the Highway Patrol in 1929, the Division of Motor Vehicles was authorized to enter into contracts with the supervisors of various counties relative to the employment of traffic officers the latter being paid out of motor vehicle funds apportioned to the various counties

The State budget shows the expenditure per biennium for the salaries and support of county traffic officers as follows:

Biennium 1929–1931	1,742,500 00

Since 1929, when provision was first made for the California Highway Patrol the salaries and support of such officers has been paid out of the motor vehicle fund appropriated for the support of the Department of Motor Vehicles prior to division of net receipts thereafter remaining to the State Highway Department.

The State budgets show the following:

California Highway Patrol.

Fiscal year beginning	Total Personnel	Expense

Recently the department submitted to the Legislative Interim Committee a statement of operating cost, from which we quote the following relative cost:

California Highway Patrol

1933	1934	1935	10 Months of 1936
$1,788,102 20	$1,969,795 14	$2,068,754 10	$1,568,658 77

It will be noted that these figures do not correspond exactly with the figures from the State budget set forth above.

Salaries of Highway Patrol Officers.

From information reported to your committee it appears that there is substantial discrepancy between the salaries of patrol officers in different counties although such officers are doing substantially the same work. Also, many officers have served for many years without any adjustment of salaries.

Without desiring in any way to reflect upon the patrol personnel we entertain the view that failure to adjust the salaries must inevitably have an influence upon the morale of the patrol officers.

In considering the question of adding to the personnel of the Highway Patrol it would appear desirable to first consider whether a readjustment of salaries is more important in order to insure the greater efficiency and highest morale.

Comparison of Highway Patrols in Various States.

The National Highway Users Conference has issued a table revised January 7, 1937, showing the total personnel and cost of the highway patrols in various States Although the statement indicates that it was revised as of January 7, 1937, quite possibly it is not entirely correct at the present date. However, for purposes of general comparison we submit the following information taken from said report·

Comparative Table of Highway Patrols.

State Administration	Personnel	Expense 1 year	Duties
California Motor Vehicle Department	817	$2,440,621 (1937)	Enforcement of M V laws only
Illinois Division of Highways	325	$893,175 (1935)	Enforcement of M V and criminal laws
Michigan State Police	167	$250,000 (1935)	Enforcement of laws including M V laws
New Jersey State Police	230	$906,166 (1935)	General police duties including enforcing M. V laws
New York Division State Police of Executive Department	653	$2,220,999 (1935)	Enforcement of laws including M. V. laws
Ohio Department of Highways	60-120 max.	$473,346 (1935)	Enforcement of M V laws only
Pennsylvania Department of Revenue	518	$1,531,849 (1934)	Enforcement of M V laws only
Virginia Division of Motor Vehicles	150	$194,960 (1935)	Enforcement of M V and other laws

Apparently the California Highway Patrol enjoys a larger personnel than the patrol in any other State. It would be advantageous to further compare the highway patrols in the various States but the time and opportunity has not been available to your committee.

Consideration of Proposal to Increase the Total Personnel of the Highway Patrol.

During meetings of your Interim Committee, the department submitted definite recommendation for an increase of approximately 500 in the total personnel of the California Highway Patrol. As disclosed by the preceding portion of this report the State budget makes provision for a total personnel in the California Highway Patrol during the coming biennium of 38, at a total cost during the biennium of $5,132,958.

Both the Legislative Interim Committee and the Advisory Committee, realizing the seriousness of the traffic accident situation in California, and realizing the responsible duties required of the Highway Patrol, caused a special study to be made by a subcommittee This subcommittee consulted with various members of the Highway Patrol. Both the Interim Committee and the Advisory Committee were surprised to learn of the many duties imposed upon the Highway Patrol and particularly that so many of the functions of the Division of Registration and the Division of Drivers' Licenses have been transferred to and imposed upon the Highway Patrol.

We set forth as follows a resume of the activities of the Highway Patrol

Activities of the California Highway Patrol.

It appears that although the total personnel of the Highway Patrol as shown by the last biennial budget number 714, including approximately 575 captains, inspectors and traffic officers, the average daily personnel actually patrolling the highways during the past year in the enforcement of traffic regulations was approximately 120.

It appears that the Highway Patrol is largely engaged as a tax collecting and registration body which obviously has no relation to safety on the highways.

The following activities relate mainly to the collection of taxes and fees·

(1) Registration of motor vehicles particularly renewal of registration and collection of registration fees and the $1.75 tax

It is reported that during the renewal period beginning January 1, 1937, about one-third of the Highway Patrol personnel will be engaged in office work incident to renewal of registration It is reported from some counties that practically all Highway Patrol officers will be so engaged, leaving perhaps one or two in certain counties to perform the primary function of patrolling the highways.

Officers are required periodically to attend traffic school in Sacramento or at branch office headquarters at which a large portion of the time is devoted to study of registration and license tax matters Those measures have become quite complex, due in part to the new $1.75 tax.

It is obvious that such studies and activities seriously interfere with the effectiveness of the Highway Patrol in performing its primary function of regulating and safeguarding traffic on highways.

(2) Assisting the State Controller and the State Board of Equalization in collecting the 3 per cent transportation tax applicable to common carrier and for-hire motor vehicles.

When the State Controller and the State Board of Equalization desire to seize those vehicles upon which such tax is delinquent they require the presence of a Highway Patrol Officer.

Also, when an inspector of the State Board of Equalization desires to stop vehicles on the highways for purposes of inspection he does so in the presence of a Highway Patrol Officer.

Such officers are also frequently engaged in picking up license plates which are forfeited when the 3 per cent tax is not paid.

Engaged in revocation matters mainly due to the 3 per cent tax are seven Highway Patrol Officials in Los Angeles County, two in San Francisco and one each in Fresno, Sacramento and San Diego counties. A large part of this work is carried on by district inspectors who receive salaries of from $225 to $285 per month.

It would appear to be unnecessary as well as rather startling to employ uniformed Highway Patrol Officers to collect taxes.

(3) Enforcement of certain laws and rules of the California Railroad Commission.

Whenever the Railroad Commission issues orders requiring certain common carrier or for-hire vehicles to cease and desist from operating, officers of the Highway Patrol are assigned to prevent such commercial vehicles from operating. In each of 17 districts one officer is assigned part-time to this enforcement duty.

(4) Enforcement of the California caravan law.

The California Highway Patrol maintains a personnel of approximately 40 inspectors and clerks at border stations whose main function is collection of the caravan tax and the issuing of visitors' permits.

Officers of the patrol advise that in the absence of the Caravan Law it would not be necessary to maintain these border stations as visitors' permits could be issued from nearest county headquarters of the Highway Patrol.

(5) Operators' and Chauffeurs' Examinations.

Although the department has a division known as the Division of Operators' and Chauffeurs' Licenses with its own personnel, nevertheless a substantial number of Highway Patrol Officers are required to give operators' examinations and driving tests and to pick up suspended operators' and chauffeurs' licenses.

While this activity on the part of the Highway Patrol might be justified in some of the smaller counties where the issuance of operators' licenses is incidental to general patrol work, nevertheless throughout the State of California a substantial portion of the time of numerous patrol officers is devoted to this activity which means that they can not at the same time be upon the highways regulating or safeguarding traffic.

(6) Checking of garages for abandoned and stolen motor vehicles.

The Highway Patrol has a special detail engaged in this work which would appear to be a proper function of the local police.

(7) Checking automobile wrecking establishments and auto camps.

Patrol officers are assigned to check automobile wrecking establishments to require surrender of license plates and certificates and to check for stolen vehicles. It would appear to be a function of the Division of Registration rather than of the Highway Patrol to recover license plates and certificates.

Comment:

Originally, the primary and almost exclusive function of the patrol was to actually patrol the highways enforcing the rules of the road and regulating and safeguarding traffic. Its opportunity to perform these essential duties has been seriously interfered with by requiring the Highway Patrol to perform many functions rightfully belonging to the Division of Registration, the Division of Operators' and Chauffeurs' Licenses and in aiding in collection of taxes and enforcement of laws in cooperation with the State Controller's Office, the State Board of Equalization and the Railroad Commission.

The seriousness of this situation is further emphasized by reviewing many other activities of the Highway Patrol which may rightfully be regarded as necessary and appropriate activities.

Additional Activities:

(8) Enforcement of school bus regulations.

Approximately 19 officers are engaged in enforcing the regulations in the Vehicle Code and those formulated by the State Board of Education applicable to the construction, equipment and operation of school buses. When such officers assigned to school work are not so engaged they devote a part of their time to giving traffic safety talks in schools which would appear to be a function of the school authorities rather than of the Highway Patrol. This point might not be so important if sufficient patrol officers were actually available on the highways.

(9) Escorting large caravans.

On numerous occasions Highway Patrol Officers are assigned to escort caravans as, for example, school bus caravans, transporting football squads, other caravans of visiting officials and in many instances such caravans are escorted many hundreds of miles.

(10) Serving of warrants and transporting prisoners.

A heavy burden is imposed on the Highway Patrol because of the necessity of serving traffic warrants and transporting persons arrested long distances to place of trial. For example, during the month of September, the Los Angeles office served 698 warrants and made attempt to serve an additional 1,687 warrants.

Without discussion, we enumerate various other activities of the Highway Patrol which apparently are logical functions.

(11) The investigation of automobile accidents.

(12) Investigation of complaints of officers relative to hazards upon highways.

(13) Group brake enforcement work.

(14) Group light enforcement work.

(15) Enforcement of county ordinances regarding movement of vehicles.

(16) Enforcement of truck regulations.

(17) Testifying in criminal court cases and civil damage cases; collecting of evidence to be used in the prosecution of misdemeanor and felony violations of the code.

(18) Controlling traffic at big games, picnics and other similar types of mass assemblages.

(19) Investigating authorized emergency vehicles for siren and red light permits.

(20) Enforcement of the Agricultural Code with reference to handling movements of live stock upon the public highways.

(21) Investigation of unsafe vehicles.

Comment:

The foregoing gives a comprehensive picture of the activities of the Highway Patrol although it does not include certain details which might be mentioned.

In view of the seriousness of the traffic accident situation it appears to your Interim Committee imperative that the activities of the Highway Patrol must be strictly limited to enforcement of the traffic regulations to be accomplished by actual presence and patrol upon the highways. The patrol should be entirely divorced from the collection of taxes and fees.

Under present assignment of duties in the Department of Motor Vehicles and assuming an increase in the personnel of the Highway Patrol there is no assurance whatever that such additional personnel would be assigned to actual patrol duty. On the contrary, there appears to be a definite policy of transferring registration and tax matters to the Highway Patrol. For example, when the Caravan Law first became effective the collection of the tax was carried on largely by the Division of Registration. Subsequently, the entire responsibility was imposed on the Highway Patrol.

It is our understanding that some personnel including registration clerks were transferred to the Highway Patrol to aid in collecting the caravan tax.

All of this means, of course, that the total budget of the patrol amounting to approximately $4,500,000 a biennium is no longer available to provide for traffic enforcement and accident prevention but on the contrary it is used in large measure to provide registration and tax collection service.

The Traffic Accident Situation—National.

Although traffic accidents are daily featured in the public press and while the loss of life and personal injuries involved are alarming there is need to approach the problem with a due sense of proportion. The most recent publication of the National Safety Council, dated February, 1937, discloses the record of accidental deaths throughout the United States during the calendar year 1936. We quote the following table of total accidental deaths in the United States during the years 1935 and 1936:

Total	111,000	100,000
Motor vehicle	38,500	37,000
Other public	19,000	18,000
Home	30,000	31,500
Occupational	18,000	16,500

(Some of the above deaths are listed under two classifications, hence a slight discrepancy appears in the totals.)

The astounding fact not commonly known or appreciated in reference to accidental deaths is the large number of fatalities in home accidents disclosed in the above table. The report of the National Safety Council recites that.—

"For the first time in eight years home fatalities in 1936 exceeded motor vehicle deaths.

Last year also witnessed new wheels turning in American industry and, thus, a great new exposure to work accidents. The result was an increase of 1,500 occupational fatalities, from 16,500 in 1935 to 18,000 in 1936.

The tornadoes in the south, and last spring's floods in New England and the Ohio River Valley were heavy contributors to the 1936 increase of 1,000 deaths in public accidents—from 18,000 in 1935 to 19,000 last year."

The report also discloses a 4 per cent increase in traffic fatalities while "exposure to traffic accidents increased nearly three times as much as indicated by a 11 per cent advance in gasoline consumption. * * * Mile for mile of travel, therefore, the American motorist operated more safely in 1936 than in 1935."

Traffic Accident Situation in California.

The 1936 edition of Accident Facts, issued by the National Safety Council, shows total and comparative traffic accidents in the various States for prior years. Said report compares traffic accident fatalities in the various States on a population basis, also on the basis of gasoline consumption. It shows that in California the death rate relative to gasoline consumption is 20.9 or 1.9 lower than the general average of 22.8 throughout the United States. It shows, however, that in California the motor vehicle fatality rate for every 100,000 population is 49.6 or 20.6 above the general average of 29 throughout the United States. This is due, however, to the much larger number of cars, relative to population, in California than in any other State in the Union. For example, during 1935, in the State of New York, there was one motor vehicle for every 5.53 persons; in Pennsylvania one for every 6.11 persons, in Illinois one motor vehicle for every 5.12 persons. However, in California there was one motor vehicle for every 2.62 persons. Thus, upon any reasonable basis of comparison, such as total number of vehicles or total miles of operation, the traffic accident record in California is below the national average. This does not, of course, excuse the very large number of traffic fatalities and injuries in California.

However, it is necessary to pursue this subject further, particularly to ascertain the location of accidents in California and whether rural or city, to gain a fair picture of the situation. Particularly is this desirable in order to determine whether enlargement of the personnel of the California Highway Patrol would have material effect upon the traffic accident situation in this State. For this reason careful examination has been made of the California traffic accident report for 1935, issued during 1936 by the Department of Motor Vehicles.

This report deals mainly with the traffic accident situation and records of arrests and convictions. From this report a number of tables have been prepared which are attached hereto and to which we invite the earnest consideration of the members of the Legislature.

Table I shows the number of accidents involving death or personal injury by county of origin. Summarizing this report we find that 49.9 per cent, or practically one-half of all such traffic accidents, occur in the county of Los Angeles.

We find that 71.1 per cent of such accidents occur within five counties, including Los Angeles, Alameda, San Francisco, San Diego, and Sacramento.

We find that 81.9 per cent of all such accidents occur in ten counties including those above mentioned and in addition Fresno, Santa Clara, San Joaquin, Orange and San Bernardino.

We find that 90.1 per cent of all such accidents occur in 17 counties out of the 58. Thus, only 9.1 per cent of all such accidents occur in the remaining 41 counties.

It is obvious that a real attack upon the traffic accident problem should be very largely concentrated in those counties and upon those highways where we find the largest volume of such accidents.

Table II compares total accidents by counties with total registration and shows that the most serious traffic accident problem exists in those counties having the largest registration of vehicles.

Table III compares traffic accidents with total street and highway mileage in various counties. It shows for example, that the five counties in which 71.1 per cent of the accidents occur have only 21.82 per cent of the total street and highway mileage.

Traffic Accidents Mainly a City Problem.

Table IV shows the total accidents, fatal and personal injury during the year 1935 by counties and whether rural or city. It shows that in Los Angeles county 88.82 per cent of such accidents occur within cities.

It shows that in the five counties having 71.1 per cent of the total accidents, 88.95 per cent of such accidents occurred within cities.

It shows that in the ten counties having 81.9 per cent of all accidents 84 per cent of such accidents occurred within cities.

The table further shows that in other counties mainly rural the majority of traffic accidents occurred within rural territory rather than within the cities therein.

However, these tables emphasize that the serious traffic accident situation exists in a relatively small number of counties and that it is mainly a city problem This is further emphasized by Table V which shows the number of persons injured in motor vehicle accidents in 1935 by counties and whether within rural territory or within cities.

Again we find in the five counties having 71.1 per cent of all accidents, fatal and personal injury, that of all such accidents involving personal injuries 87.03 per cent occurred within cities.

We may now state several propositions as follows:

(1) An increase of 500 in the personnel of the State Highway Patrol would involve an additional expense annually of approximately $1,500,000. Chief Cato advises that $3,000 per year is the cost in respect to each patrol officer.

(2) Such increase in personnel and additional cost would appear to be not warranted.

(a) There is no assurance that such additional personnel would be utilized to patrol the highways.

(b) If such additional personnel were utilized to patrol the State and county highways it would have no bearing with reference to the 73.58 per cent of personal injury and fatal traffic accidents which occur within cities

Chief Cato called attention to that part of the statistical report showing the location of deaths in traffic accidents. It shows in 1935 that 48.1 per cent of such deaths occurred in urban territory and 51.9 per cent of such deaths in rural territory.

From data in the statistical report Table IX has been prepared which relates only to deaths in motor vehicle accidents and shows the location thereof, whether city or rural and whether pedestrian or occupant. However, we find that the majority of such deaths occur in a relatively small number of counties.

We suggest the importance of comparing the figures in Table IX with those in Table I. While the majority of deaths as well as the majority of personal injuries occur in relatively few counties the sequence of counties according to the number of injuries is not identical with the sequence of counties according to the number of deaths.

Referring particularly to accidents in rural territory further study would, we believe, demonstrate that the majority occur on a very low per cent of the total of State and county highways. We believe the department should conduct further studies on this phase of the matter.

The State Department of Public Works conducted a study of accidents on rural State highways covering the first six months of 1936. The report of the Department of Public Works shows that while those highways concerned represent only 6½ per cent of the mileage they account for nearly 47 per cent of all accidents reported.

Another point of special interest is that in nearly every instance these accidents are found to be on highways that embody the highest standards of location, design and maintenance. This illustrates that in respect to rural State and county highways there is need to concentrate the activities of the Highway Patrol upon a rather limited mileage showing the greatest volume of traffic and greatest frequency of traffic accidents.

Additional Facts Relative to Traffic Accidents.

The report of the department contains additional matter of great importance in the consideration of the traffic accident situation. In fact, there is need for further study and in some instances need for additional breakdown of figures to determine the nature of the traffic accident problem in particular localities, as, for example, the fatality and injury record as it relates to pedestrians and occupants of motor vehicles. For our present purposes, however, it seems important to mention the following.

One of the tables in the report shows, as has been known to be true and recurring each year, that the highest accident frequency occurs between the hours of three to ten p.m. This higher frequency of accidents during these hours indicates the need for concentrating in large measure the enforcement activities during said hours.

Examining the accident record according to days of the week on which they occur we find the greatest frequency on Saturdays and Sundays. This also indicates the need for concentrating the efforts of the traffic officers during times of greatest volume of traffic.

Recommendations of Legislative Interim Committee.

The Legislative Interim Committee on Motor Vehicle Laws submits the following specific recommendations:

(1) That the Legislature enact those measures contained in the Senate and Assembly bills digested in Part I of the Appendix hereof, which have been prepared and are sponsored by the Advisory Committee on Motor Vehicle Legislation

(2) That the Legislature reject those measures which the Department of Motor Vehicles caused to be introduced containing proposals definitely disapproved by the Legislative Interim Committee. The Legislative Interim Committee gave such proposals thorough consideration and reached the unanimous conclusion that they were not in the public interest.

(3) That in the interests of efficiency and economy consideration should be given to consolidating the entire Motor Vehicle Department with some other department of the State Government. There would appear to be many good reasons why the Highway Patrol in particular should be administered as a part of the Department of Public Works.

(4) The activities of the California Highway Patrol should be strictly limited to patrol of the highways for the purpose of enforcing traffic regulations, preventing accidents, apprehending offenders and making arrests for crimes committed upon highways, or in their presence.

It should be the policy of the California Highway Patrol and city traffic officers to actually patrol the highways in conspicuous uniforms and vehicles for the purpose of regulating and controlling traffic in order to prevent accidents and violations of law and to gain the cooperation of motorists in safe driving practices. Traffic patrol officers should be concentrated upon those streets and highways where there is greatest volume of traffic and at times when there is greatest traffic hazard. Patrol officers should refrain from methods of entrapment and numerous arrests for petty offenses which have caused congestion in the courts, harassment of motorists and which have not been effective to reduce loss of life and property in traffic accidents.

(5) That the minimum salaries of members of the California Highway Patrol be standardized at $200 per month. This is the standard wage which was formerly adopted for members of the patrol and out of which retirement benefits, uniforms, etc., must be paid Your committee feels that the present maximum of $215 per month should remain undisturbed.

Referring to the report of the Senate Fact Finding Committee of 1933 we find the following recommendation with respect to salary standardization of members of the California Highway Patrol, "There seems to be no parity by which the salaries of the same classification are fixed and we therefore recommend that all salaries paid to those who have been in the service for a period of two years or over be placed on a parity." This recommendation was concurred in by the present Director of the Department of Motor Vehicles who was then a State Senator and a member of the Senate Fact Finding Committee.

(6) That notwithstanding a request by the department for additional Highway Patrol Officers your committee feels that it would be appropriate to recommend an increase in the personnel of the Highway Patrol only when the present members are released from other activities and reassigned to Highway Patrol work.

Your committee recommends that only such additional patrol officers be added as are actually needed to properly patrol the highways and further, that efficiency and economy in the administration of the department be considered in determining the need for such additional traffic officers.

Explanation of Vote on House Resolution No. 80.

The following explanation of vote was received and read.

When the vote was taken on House Resolution No. 80 yesterday I reached over and pushed the "Aye" button on my voting device. I found, however, that my "Aye" vote had not been registered on the board, and endeavored to make the necessary correction at the desk.

I understand that in order to make this correction that it must be made from the floor. Upon inquiry I find a number of other instances where the voting machine has failed to register on the board even though a member voted. Perhaps in many cases the question voted upon is of no great consequence and it does not greatly matter whether the correction is made.

House Resolution No. 80, however, concerns a question which is attracting public interest throughout the country and I believe that the people who sent me here are entitled to know definitely upon which side I stand.

I therefore wish to make my position clear in the record that I voted "Aye" on House Resolution No. 80, even though it did not show on the board. I therefore ask that it be printed in the Journal that my action was for an "Aye" vote.

LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, March 5, 1937

James Smyth, Chief Clerk, Assembly of California State Legislature:

A very serious situation is developing in Los Angeles County through action State Relief Director in cutting approximately 2,000 clients from State relief rolls before continuation of relief can be provided by other relief agencies or a determination made as to their eligibility in other relief groups or without allowing other relief groups to provide necessary finances for this additional responsibility. This condition is not a new one, and actions similar to this have been repeated several times in the past few years, indicting clearly the confusion existing in relief activities in our State because of duplicating agencies and almost a complete lack of coordination between them. Los Angeles County's record in relief is one proving we have never held back in assuming our share of the relief responsibility. No system of relief will be satisfactory in this State until there is a fixed status of those determined and remaining eligible for same. Without this, great hardship will always result to relief clients and public bodies will have no way to determine proper and adequate relief budgets for their fiscal periods. In view of relief legislation before your Honorable Body, and a need for all important and vital information as to present relief machinery in the State to guide you in making any changes which are apparent, may I suggest that committee or agency be appointed or designated by the Legislature of the State to investigate and hold hearings on this latest incident in Los Angeles County so the information may be brought before you in order that legislation may be enacted to guard against such practices in the future.

HERBERT C LEGG, Los Angeles County Supervisor.

Recess.

At two o'clock and fifty minutes p m., on motion of Mr. Lore, the Assembly was declared at recess until three o'clock p m., of this day.

Reassembled.

At three o'clock p m., the Assembly reconvened.

Speaker Jones in the chair.

Resolution.

The following resolution was offered:

By Mr. Lore:

House Resolution No. 90.

WHEREAS, It is charged by officials of the county of Los Angeles that the State Emergency Relief Administrator has arbitrarily declared 1500 clients of his organization in that county employable, and has removed or will in the immediate future remove them from the relief rolls; and

WHEREAS, The support of these 1500 clients and their families will become a responsibility of the county of Los Angeles; and

WHEREAS, The press has published that the State Emergency Relief Administrator contends that many of the aforementioned 1500 clients have been removed from relief rolls for the reason that they are eligible for aid under the Old Age Security Act, although there appears to be no evidence that these people were given either an opportunity to make proper application for such aid, or time to have their cases properly investigated and approved; and

WHEREAS, The alleged action of the State Emergency Relief Administrator would indicate a woeful lack of coordination between the several relief agencies of the State and counties; and

WHEREAS, There are now before the Legislature for consideration several measures which propose consolidation of certain relief functions in the interest of human welfare and financial economy; and

WHEREAS, The aforementioned dismissal of 1500 clients from the rolls of the State Emergency Relief Administration has created a financial crisis in the county of Los Angeles which may force officials of that county to call on the State for temporary financial assistance; and

WHEREAS, For the reason that only a few months remain of the present fiscal year, and for the reason that funds of both State and counties are at a low level, it is incumbent upon all elected representatives to make certain that the appropriated moneys remaining undistributed are allocated fairly and equitably between the State and the various counties thereof in such a manner that human suffering may be held to a minimum; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That the Social Service and Welfare Committee of the Assembly is hereby appointed as a Special Committee to sit at the State Capitol and to completely study and investigate accurately all matters herein referred to, for the purpose of recommending legislative action in relation thereto; and be it further

Resolved, That the committee is hereby authorized and empowered to require the production of books, agreements, documents and papers of every kind; to issue subpenas, and to compel the attendance of witnesses and production of testimony. Each of the members of said committee is hereby authorized to administer oaths, and all of the provisions of Article VIII of Chapter II, Title I, Part III of the Political Code, relative to the attendance and assembly of witnesses before the Legislature and committees thereof, shall apply to the Special Committee appointed under this resolution. The Special Committee shall report to the Legislature with all convenient speed, the result of its investigations and studies, with legislative proposals which it recommends, and said Special Committee may also report from time to time such results of its investigations and studies as it may deem necessary for the action and advise of the Legislature; and be it further

Resolved, That the sum of $100, or so much thereof as may be necessary, is hereby set apart, reserved and appropriated out of the contingent fund of the Assembly, which may have been heretofore or may hereafter be appropriated for the contingent expenses of the Assembly at this session of the Legislature for the purpose of paying the expenses incurred by the Special Committee of the Social Service and Welfare Committee of the Assembly hereby created, and for the purposes herein set out, such payments to be disbursed from time to time by Controller's warrants, to be drawn against such contingent fund on the written orders of the Chairman of said Special Committee of the Social Service and Welfare Committee of the Assembly, and the said Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed to pay the same

Request for Unanimous Consent.

Mr. Lore asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to take up House Resolution No. 90, at this time, without reference to committee or calendar.

House Resolution No. 90 read, and adopted by the following vote:

215.13 Any person operating such sales yard shall keep records of all swine passing through said yard including the names and addresses of persons offering swine for sale and the names and addresses of purchasers of swine from said yard. Such records shall show definite information relative to description of animals, such as breed, weight, color, and marks and are to be kept on file for one year, during which time they shall be at the disposal of the director, or his agent, for inspection.

215.14. Operators of sales yards shall select a veterinarian, acceptable to the department, who shall make all necessary inspections and apply such treatments as may be necessary under the provisions of this article. Communication.

The following communication was received and read:

By Mr. Speaker:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL,
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, March 6, 1937.

Honorable William Moseley Jones, State Capitol, Sacramento, California.

DEAR MR. JONES: This is to confirm my statement orally made that it would be most agreeable to me should the Legislature choose to exercise its option to designate some person other than the Legislative Counsel as a member of the Personnel Board until January 15, 1939.

Such would be entirely in harmony both with the letter and the spirit of Article XXIV of the Constitution, which designated the Legislative Counsel a member of the Personnel Board for a limited period and at the same time declared that > "The Legislature, by majority vote of each house, may at any time prior to January 15, 1939, appoint any person of its choice to serve at its pleasure as a member of said board in lieu of the Legislative Counsel, until January 15, 1939."

Moreover, I sincerely believe it would make for greater efficiency if the two offices were separated by having different persons solely charged with the duties of each respectively. The functions of these two offices are quite different. The holder of one is a policy-determining officer. The holder of the other should not, in fact must not, concern himself with questions as to policy.

It may be of interest to note the history of the preparation of the initiative petition which resulted in the addition of Article XXIV to the State Constitution.

The writer was asked to assist in the drafting of that measure pursuant to the provisions of section 2 of the statute creating the office of Legislative Counsel. During the course of that work he urged the committee in charge of the measure to omit the Legislative Counsel as a member of the then proposed Personnel Board, feeling that the two offices were quite incompatible in fact. A copy of a memorandum dated April 9, 1934, which he mailed to each member of the Legislature in April, 1934, discussing this question, is enclosed.

Later the committee omitted the ex officio officers entirely and then subsequently provided for three ex officio officers, each for a limited period, including the Legislative Counsel for a four-year period. At the urge of the writer, the above quoted clause was inserted for the purpose of giving the Legislature complete freedom of choice in the matter. Thereupon the undersigned, under date of June 2, 1934, mailed to each member of the Legislature a copy of the then completed draft of the initiative proposal. A copy of his letter of transmittal of June 2, 1934, is enclosed.

I can not say too emphatically that whatever the Legislature may wish in this regard is my wish and that I would more than welcome the opportunity to devote all of my energies to the work of Legislative Counsel in an endeavor to discharge the duties of the office as they should be discharged.

Very sincerely yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel.

(COPY)

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, June 2, 1934.

To the Members of the Legislature of California:

Under date of April 9, 1934, I wrote to you in respect to the then status of the constitutional amendment relating to Civil Service, proposed by the State Employees' Association.

Since that date the State Employees' Association Committee has prepared a number of drafts and redrafts of that measure, now has it in print and is, I am informed, about to circulate the petition for signatures for the purpose of placing it upon the ballot for approval or rejection by the voters at the next general election.

A mimeographed copy of this measure in its present form is enclosed.

Much of a statutory nature has been removed.

As to the make-up of the board, their plan has changed to a board of five appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate—save for a transitory period: First, three ex officio until January 15, 1937; two ex officio until January 15, 1939, one ex officio until 1941. As to the legislative representative it will be noted that the Legislature may designate any person of its choice until January 15, 1939, when a member appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate takes the place of the legislative representative. (See last sentence of subdivision (a) of section 2 of the text of the proposed measure.)

Yours very truly,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel.

A copy of this memorandum, with a letter of transmittal, was mailed to each member of the Legislature in April, 1934:

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, April 9, 1934.

In re THE INITIATIVE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT RELATING TO THE STATE CIVIL SERVICE, AS PROPOSED BY THE STATE EMPLOYEES' ASSOCIATION—Particularly with Reference to the Method of Selection of the Legislative Representative upon the Proposed Personnel Board.

The draft of March 24, 1934, provides for administration of the State civil service by a board of five members; four ex officio, one elected by the members of the State civil service. The Legislative Counsel is included as one of the ex officio members.

In connection with the latter, certain queries suggest themselves which may, possibly, merit consideration before final decision is made, particularly in view of the fact that the proposed measure, if adopted in its present form, will become a permanent part of the Constitution, not amenable to change by the Legislature if some of its provisions should prove not to work as perfectly as intended.

The designation of the Legislative Counsel as an ex officio member of the board would seem to have as its fundamental basis the conviction that the Legislature should have representation on the board. That seems entirely logical and sound.

It occurs to one, however, that the Legislature conceivably might prefer not to have its hands tied in this manner, so that, upon occasion, it would be free to designate the Legislative Counsel, or some other person more suitably equipped by training and experience to perform the duties of board member, as the Legislature in its wisdom might choose.

It is not unnatural that in the drafting of this measure it should occur to the proponents to designate the Legislative Counsel as the legislative representative, in view of the fact that it happens at the present time he is the only State official chosen by both houses of the Legislature.

Yet there is no legal reason why the legislative member of the Personnel Board could not be specially chosen for the purpose—by the Senate and Assembly sitting in joint session or through the adoption of a concurrent resolution designating the appointee of their choice.

It is no new thing for the Legislature to make appointments to office. During the history of California, several offices have been filled by appointment in this manner.

For example, from 1872 to 1899, the State Library was managed by a Board of Trustees elected by the two houses of the Legislature in Joint Convention assembled, each appointee holding office for a term of four years. (Political Code, Sec. 2292, as enacted in 1872.)

The power of appointment to office is not essentially an executive function. In People vs. Freeman, 80 Cal. 233, at 236, our Supreme Court said:

> "We feel constrained to hold that the power of appointment to office, so far as it is not regulated by express provisions of the Constitution, may be regulated by law, and if the law so prescribes, may be exercised by the members of the Legislature."

In the instant case, there would seem to be certain additional features which might suggest themselves for serious consideration.

Heretofore, neither the Legislative Counsel nor any member of his staff has been permitted to oppose or urge legislation of any kind or character. Otherwise, how could each of the members of the Legislature be efficiently and impartially served? This principle is expressed in section 3 of the statute creating the office:

> "Neither the Legislative Counsel nor any employee of the bureau shall oppose or urge legislation, but the bureau shall, upon request, and so far as may be in its power, aid and assist any member of the Legislature as to bills, resolutions and measures, drafting the same into proper form and furnishing to them the fullest information upon all matters in the scope of the bureau."

Yet the civil service draft of March 24, 1934, would superimpose upon this wise and prudent regulation a proviso declaring, in legal effect, that—

> "as a member of the State Personnel Board the Legislative Counsel is charged with the duty and responsibility of determining questions of major policy in the administration of the State civil service"— questions some of which, possibly, by the terms of the proposed constitutional amendment, will be found to be distinctly legislative in character.

The question naturally occurs to one whether it would be possible to find a person who could, at one and the same time, efficiently and satisfactorily discharge the duties of two offices which seem, at first blush at least, so different in character.

Even if such a person could be found, the seeming dissimilarity in the two positions and the potential conflict of interests and points of view might conceivably diminish the confidence which the members of the Legislature might otherwise feel free and safe to repose in their Legislative Counsel, in the drafting of their bills and in the analysis of legal problems incident to the consideration of those bills.

If the members of the Legislature should be of the view that they should be allowed a greater freedom of choice than would be possible under the draft of March 24, 1934, it would be legally feasible to provide that their choice be expressed either by concurrent resolution or by vote taken in joint session (majority vote, or any other percentage that might be desired), with authority to designate a member of the Legislature, or the Legislative Counsel, or any other State officer to serve ex officio as their representative, or some suitable person not holding State office.

In the latter connection, it is worthy of note that there are precedents in organic acts which accord to the appointing power reasonable freedom of choice, yet prescribe minimum qualification requirements for the appointee

Thus, section 140 of the San Francisco charter requires each appointee to file in the office of the county clerk the following declaration:

> "I am opposed to appointments to the public service as a reward for political activity and will execute the office of Civil Service Commissioner in the spirit of this declaration" (Statutes of 1931, p. 3060)

In a "model draft" for a State Civil Service Law prepared and recommended by a certain National conference on the merit system, a copy of which appeared in "Public Personnel Studies," January, 1926, qualification requirements of the following nature were recommended for consideration for insertion in a statute:

> "Each appointee 'shall be a person of good repute in his business, profession, or occupation, known to be in sympathy with the merit system in the public service and with the control of employment matters through a central personnel agency. No member shall hold any other public office or employment.' (Public Personnel Studies, Vol. 4, p. 29, January, 1926.)"

These queries are not suggested, by the undersigned, as recommendations. They are intended merely to indicate what it might be legal to do, with the thought in mind that the proposed measure is a constitutional amendment, not a mere statute; that the time limited by the State Employees' Committee is April 14, 1934; and that it is a subject of real and intimate concern to the legislative department

From a legal standpoint, there would not seem to be any greater reason under the Federal Constitution to tie the hands of the Legislators, the regularly constituted representatives of the people, than there would be to tie the hands of the State employees in the selection of their representative. In this respect, the draft in its present form leaves the State employees free to choose whom they may wish, so long as their appointee is himself a civil servant. In one sense at least, the legislative representative and the State employees' representative upon the board would seem to stand upon somewhat similar footing—that of a representative, as distinguished from the other three members of the board Each of the latter would seem to be acting strictly in an ex officio capacity, each a member of the executive or administrative branch of the State Government.

Respectfully submitted

FRED B. WOOD.

Explanation of Vote on Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 31.

In explanation of our vote in connection with Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 31, the undersigned members of the Assembly, who voted against said resolution, offer the following statement as the basis for the votes so rendered by them:

Under the constitutional provisions providing for the appointment of the Legislative Counsel as a member of the State Personnel Board, it is specifically stated that he shall hold office at the pleasure of the Legislature. Therefore, it is not within his power or function to tender his resignation as a member of said Personnel Board without resigning as Legislative Counsel.

At the session of the Assembly held March 9, 1937, a motion was made that the Assembly resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House to hear Mr. Wood. The motion was voted down, and Mr. Fred Wood, the Legislative Counsel, was not given the privilege nor afforded the opportunity of expressing himself on the question of his removal, to the members of the Assembly. We deem this action as unfair, and as an additional slight to Mr. Wood, whose integrity and ability as a member of the Personnel Board has not only been not questioned, but praised. The action of the Assembly in adopting the said resolution amounts to a vote for the removal of Mr. Wood without a hearing or trial, and is, in our opinion, a gross injustice.

Explanations of Vote.

I am voting for this measure because of the following reasons:

First. If Tom Mooney is not guilty of the crime, he has suffered much in vain.

Second. If he is guilty he has already suffered 20 long years.

Third. I have seen sworn testimony that he was framed which puts a doubt in my mind. Were I a juror in any criminal case, and possessed with such a doubt, it would be my duty to vote against conviction, therefore I am now voting for his freedom.

S. L. HEISINGER.

Resolved, That the Legislative Counsel Bureau shall, at the request of the committee, cooperate with and aid the committee in the investigation

To the Assembly:

In pursuance to the above resolution your Committee on Dairy Investigation submits the following report and recommendations:

We have held public and private hearings throughout the State, hundreds of pages of testimony having been given under oath. The committee has gone into every phase of the dairy industry, and has learned many things which is not generally known.

The State law, which is quite comprehensive relative to dairy industries, is supplemented by dozens of the cities' ordinances, nearly all of which run counter to each other and to State law.

The several cities in their endeavors to enforce their ordinances send out their inspectors, many traveling over 200 miles. These inspectors overlap the work of other city inspectors, each of whom may and do give different instructions relative to the construction of buildings and equipment of dairies and of the operation of the dairy plant.

These conflicting instructions confuse and upset the dairymen, until in many instances he is forced to make costly changes in equipment and at times is arbitrarily shut out of a cities' market.

To illustrate, walls would be ordered set back or forward, doors to swing either out or in to suit the whim of the inspector, milk houses changed from north to south or vice versa. A dairy may feed while milking, another could not. A dairyman with a good grade of milk might be allowed to market, while another would be shut out.

Useless changes in buildings costing thousands of dollars were required by the multiplicity of inspectors' orders

An illustration: A dairyman with about 200 purebred tubercular tested Guernsey cows was, in 1934 and previously, delivering grade "A" raw milk to several of the finest hotels in San Francisco at a price of $0.21 per quart. An ordinance enacted by the city health department excluded his milk from the consumers and he was forced to seek other markets, and finally is now selling to small cities at a price of $0.13 per quart, which causes him a loss of $0 08 per quart, even in better financial times.

The dairymen ask that these overlapping and conflicting ordinances and inspections be cared for by appropriate and uniform State legislation.

Most of the city health officers under questions from the committee admitted there were too many inspections. Therefore, it appears that the present chaos will continue if not remedied by law. Some of the cities have adopted ordinances which will not allow natural raw milk to be delivered and other cities threaten to do the same. Such ordinances automatically forces the producer to sell his milk to a distributor who can meet the requirements of pasteurized milk, and this takes away from the consumers the privilege of using the milk of their choice.

It is plain to be seen that should such practices be continued, the ultimate result will be almost if not a complete monopoly of the distribution of milk by the large concerns.

A report of the Federal Trade Commission indicates that such results are now almost if not totally in effect in many eastern milk sheds, and that some of the larger distributors were making tremendous profits even during the depression, while thousands of small dairymen were being put out of business.

However, nearly all the witnesses before this committee stated they desired such overlapping and duplication inspections corrected by more unified legislation.

The standards set by State law are quite adequate, as indicated by its enforcement within Los Angeles, since the courts set aside that city's milk ordinances.

Upon questions from the committee, the health officer of Los Angeles stated that no outbreak of sickness attributable to milk had occurred in that city since that time.

However, the preponderance of testimony indicates that a high standard of milk is desired for all the people of California as well as for the large cities. This is expressed most tersely by our State Director of Agriculture, Mr. A. A Brock, when he said, "The State and Federal inspection of meat products is accepted by all and is sold with no complaints and is demanded by every market in the State. I see no reason why State inspection of milk and milk products could not be as successful, which would give all residents within the State the high standards which the cities now have."

Many complaints were lodged with the committee about short weights, under testing, under grading and degrading by the distributors of milk. The distributors pay the weighers and testers in their plants. The committee investigated these complaints and it was found that thousands of dollars losses are suffered by the dairymen. The Department of Agriculture has returned many thousands of dollars of these losses to the dairymen, but the process is slow and cumbersome and should be corrected by law.

In answer to a question, Mr. Brock said, "It is very clear and plain that neither the dairymen nor the distributors should be allowed to weigh and grade milk. I believe this should be done by a disinterested licensed department as is now in operation for nearly all products commercially handled."

It was testified under oath that for a period of about a year several of the large milk distributors of Los Angeles furnished about $200 per month, which was by one of their agents paid to Dr. George Parish, health officer of that city, and that he delivered weekly radio talks, which talks were edited by the distributors and that such talks contributed to help centralize the distribution of the milk of that city into the plants of those distributors.

Dr. Parish has admitted that he took the money and the only comment of the committee is that it believes such conduct to be very unprofessional and tends to monopoly and against the best interests of the people.

Another very unprofessional matter which came before the committee was a letter dated February 16, 1937, by Dr. Parish to Dr. Geiger of San Francisco, a paragraph of which reads as follows:

"Los Angeles and this district has approximately 30 Assemblymen; San Francisco about 12· Oakland about 8. We three should bring great pressure to bear on our Assemblymen to see the fallacy of the claims of these men, who place a dollar and filth in front of a life and cleanliness." The general testimony before the committee was to raise the standards of milk all over the State so that the children and the wife of the humblest man in the smallest hamlet in California should receive the same high quality of dairy products which the large cities now enjoy.

Dr. Parish not only misrepresented the facts in this paragraph, but he resorted to what is known in legislative procedure as gang or force coercion of legislation which no fair minded citizen can condone.

Your committee thoroughly investigated the bovine tuberculosis situation in California

The present law provides that the Director of Agriculture may declare certain counties to be under a tubercular control zone or area. In such controlled areas, indemnities are paid by both Nation and State, while in uncontrolled areas, only the Federal Government makes payments. This condition has caused dissatisfaction in the uncontrolled areas and greatly retarded the work of tuberculosis eradication. The controlled areas assisted several counties to be almost free from tuberculosis, but the uncontrolled areas are a constant menace to even the counties within the controlled areas, because the committee learned that tuberculosis cattle are constantly being bootlegged into the clean territory which, if not prevented, will undo what the State and Federal Government has already accomplished.

The testimony is general that the Legislature should make an appropriation sufficiently large to pay for a state-wide clean up of tuberculosis as a health measure, and that the whole area of the State should be included. The testimony indicates that California now has more tubercular cows than all the other States combined, and it is feared that a nation-wide embargo may be placed on our cattle and on dairy products.

Should the present conditions continue, this State may loose millions of dollars in this industry, aside from the constant menace to the health of our people.

The Department of Agriculture estimates that the number of tubercular cows in the State is 100,000, and believes it would take an appropriation of $2,500,000 to eradicate the disease providing the Federal Government would provide a like sum.

Dr Geiger, Health Officer of San Francisco:

Question by Mr. Heisinger: Do you believe that the tubercular cattle should be cleaned up in this State?

Answer by Dr. Geiger: If you can do that, you will do the finest thing that has ever been done for the public health of the people of California.

Question Do you believe that, as this is a health measure, that all of California should pay the cost?

Answer: I certainly agree that the farmer should be compensated for his cattle and that the State should pay the cost.

The matter of milk inspection brought more complaints than all other phases of the inquiry Thousands of producers have complaints against the city inspectors, the city milk ordinances, and against the distributors

The city health officers stoutly maintain that they, and they alone, should have complete control even to the extent of barring out of their markets certain milk which does not meet the standards as set up by their inspections and ordinances.

The committee has patiently and diligently gone into this perplexing problem and we wonder if a happy medium may not be reached whereby the producers may be freed from the autocracy of the city ordinances and inspections, and their attempted enforcement and where the cities may be assured of a pure and healthful milk supply.

The matter of transportation has had consideration, and it has been learned that a concerted and determined effort is being made to sell the old ferries crossing San Francisco Bay to the State, which if done would place an additional burden of $6,000,000, part of which the dairy industry would be required to pay. The request of the Ferry Transportation Company for a reduction in rates before the Railroad Commission is probably the first wedge which will open up this whole question in which it is hoped by them that the low rates may be granted by the commission, which in turn will take from the Bay Bridge sufficient transportation to force the State, in self-protection, to buy out the ferries for $6,000,000.

These ferries, as an investment, are worth nothing to their owners, and would be worth nothing to the State; therefore, the people of California should demand further hearings before the commission, and should insist that no lower fares be granted to the ferries than are granted for transportation over the bridge.

Labor organizations, farm organizations, women's clubs, civic clubs, and the people generally should resist these efforts to swindle the State.

The menace of the holding companies reach all the way from the Chase National Bank and the J. P. Morgan Company in New York, through their subsidiaries, the colossal dairying concerns with multiplied millions of capital, which in turn controls practically every pasteurizing and distributing company within our large cities. Under our present laws, these distributors pay for the services of weighers, testers and graders who operate within their plants.

Therefore, it is easily to be seen why thousands of complaints are made by dairymen relative to these several operations. Many of the ordinances of the large cities provide that all this work should be done within their own city limits, which, if followed out, will bring about almost a complete monopoly of the dairy business of California within the hands of these great corporations.

The testimony shows that further restrictions which would require all milk to be pasteurized, would make the monopoly almost 100 per cent within the territory covered by such ordinances.

The second menace to the dairy industry is the meat trust which operates under similar holding companies and their subsidiaries operate in all our cities. If slaughtering of tubercular animals can be forced precipitately they buy the meat at reduced prices which in turn forces down the price of all live stock and is one of the factors which keeps the farmers in financial distress.

In answer to a question relative to higher standards, Dr. Geiger, health officer of San Francisco, said: "I have every confidence in the Department of Agriculture as it is constituted today. I may say, gentlemen, that there is no doubt but what it has done a great deal towards a health regulation for the City and County of San Francisco in the last few years, four or five years, and which we would like to see continued. I am perfectly willing to accept Oakland inspection, because it is equal with ours. I am perfectly willing to accept Sacramento inspection and perfectly willing to accept Los Angeles inspection, because I know it is equal with ours. I have perfect confidence in the department (Agriculture). I think everybody will accept that."

Mr. Heisinger made this statement: "I am glad to hear you say that, because most city health officers insist on their own inspection and may I say, that inasmuch as the Los Angeles milk ordinance has been set aside by the court, therefore, that city is now and has been for a long time operating under State law, and as you say, their standards are high enough for you. It would follow that by raising State standards, all cities could be well protected.

In the unanimous opinion of the three judge court in the Los Angeles case, the court said: "We think that it was the intention of the Legislature not only to prescribe and fix certain standards that would be state-wide in application so that the citizens of the State could travel throughout its realm and call for the grade milk of their choice, and receive an article uniform in standard for the respective grade designations, but also that the far flung dairymen of the State, likewise throughout its length and breadth, could comply with code requirements and, having complied, could market their products wheresoever in the State they might find buyers therefore, under the designations fixed for them."

And in a recent unanimous decision of the State Supreme Court in the Santa Rosa case the justices said: "And in this regard it is important to note that nowhere in the act is any distinction made between raw and pasteurized milk. It is obvious that where a milk inspection service or district has been established in accordance with the provisions of the Agricultural Code it is without the power of any agency therein to limit or place restrictions in conflict with the State law upon the sale of milk, raw or pasteurized, which has been inspected and graded in accordance with the act. It, therefore, follows, assuming as we must that the allegations of the complaint are true, that the ordinance here involved is invalid as to the appellant."

Recommendations of the Committee.

First: Of paramount importance to the health of the citizens of California is the eradication of bovine tuberculosis within the State.

As expressed in a resolution by the California Tuberculosis Association held in San Francisco, March 3, 1937, "such eradication should not be attempted by a piece meal method, but by a state-wide drive with an appropriation of State funds sufficient to pay indemnity to the dairymen"

The committee recommends that the Legislature appropriate $2,500,000 which, if matched by the Federal Government, will clean up the State within two years.

We recommend that the whole State be a controlled area and that the eradication be done in a systematic, economical and thorough manner, and that no more than 5,000 tubercular animals be slaughtered in any month, so as to disturb live stock markets as little as possible. As has been testified by nearly every witness, this would be a health measure and the expense should be borne by all the people.

Second: We recommend that dairy buildings and dairy equipment be under the direction and inspection of the Director of Agriculture, and that such buildings and equipments should be standardized as nearly as possible in all parts of the State and should meet the requirements of the market which they might serve.

Third: We recommend that the State laws be so amended as to raise the standards of milk and milk products sufficiently high that all residents within the State should be able at all times to procure good, pure, wholesome milk, such as can now be obtained in the larger cities.

Fourth: We recommend that the Department of Agriculture appoint all weighers, testers and graders, of milk products, which may be needed to properly and impartially weigh, test and grade the milk which may be used in the large distributing plants within the State and that such employees should be paid by the State and not by the plants where they are employed.

Fifth: We recommend that the Director of Agriculture be authorized and empowered to appoint, upon nomination by city health officers, or upon his own nomination, such employees as are now employed and qualified to perform the duties of milk inspectors and that the director may bring about such harmony as will terminate overlapping and duplicating milk inspections.

Sixth: We recommend that dairymen pay no more fees for inspection by cities, but only such costs as may be fixed by law.

Seventh: We recommend that every city which nominates and receives its own inspectors shall pay the total costs of their inspections.

Eighth: We recommend that the distributors pay directly to the State such dues, or licenses as will offset the salaries which they now pay to the weighers, testers and graders employed in their plants

Committee.

For many months the State Chamber of Commerce has been making a study of overlapping and duplication milk inspection, and even though this report is completed, the committee desires to append hereto the resolution which has just been received and reads as follows:

> It is the sense of this meeting that the solution of this problem lies in amending the code relating to approved milk inspection services together with such additional authority to the Director of Agriculture as may be necessary to prevent duplicate and conflicting inspections.

Motion to Print Supplementary Report in Journal.

On motion of Mr. Garibaldi, the following supplementary report of the Special Interim Committee was ordered printed in the Journal:

Preface.

The availability of an adequate supply of pure wholesome milk, cream, and other dairy products is admittedly a necessary adjunct to the maintenance of a high level of public health. No other single food is so basically essential to the procurance and maintenance of a satisfactory nutritional standard in the human family as is milk and its products. Being a highly perishable food and one constantly exposed to contamination, milk, if not properly produced, handled, processed and distributed, may well serve as a liability to those consuming it. Because of the perishability and extreme liability to contamination, it follows that only those milk supplies which are produced, processed, and distributed under capable and adequate sanitary supervision should be accepted as fit and desirable for human consumption.

The need for capable supervision and regulation of all phases of dairy production has been recognized for years and research, experience, and changing conditions have necessitated frequent revisions of, and additions to, the regulations pertinent to the dairy industry in California as well as in other States. The general interpretation and enforcement of such regulations and provisions have been, and still are, vested in the California State Department of Agriculture. The law provides, however, that any unit of government or other group in the State desiring approval of a local milk inspection service may apply for the same to the State Department of Agriculture, and upon satisfactory compliance with certain fundamental requirements be granted permission for inauguration of such a local unit.

The fact that practically all cities and sizeable towns in California now have local milk inspection services attests the interest of these communities in attempting to preserve and protect public health. In practically every case, these inspection services have developed until each is now an important function of local government.

The development of the numerous local inspection services has, however, created a number of problems, some of which can no longer be disregarded if the best interests of the dairy industry are to be served. As communities have expanded, particularly in the more populous areas of the State, local inspections and regulations have been found to conflict in many instances, the inevitable result being injustice to many dairymen and distributors in the contiguous areas. There is nothing in the regulations of the State department governing dairy control to prevent individual cities and towns from adopting and enforcing their own ordinances provided they are not lower than, and do not conflict with the State provisions. In practically every case this has been done with the result that conflicts have arisen which have proved genuinely detrimental to dairymen and distributors whose locations were such that they fell under the jurisdiction of more than one inspection service.

Among the evils arising from such a situation may be mentioned duplication of territories and inspections; the attempted enforcement of ordinances differing in their standards; payment of plural inspection fees; and last but certainly not least, the development of grave doubt in the minds of dairymen and distributors as to what actually constitutes sound standards of sanitation and methods of inspection. These unsatisfactory conditions prevail at present in many sections and constitute a situation incompatible with sound dairy industry and the maintenance of the confidence of dairymen and distributors.

Standardization Needed.

Citizens of California may rightfully point with pride to the enviable position of their dairy industry today. By the same token there can be no doubt as to the necessity of encouraging and aiding such an important business in every possible manner. But it is obvious that under the conditions previously mentioned wherein differences of opinion among inspectors of separate or even the same services, payment of duplicate fees, and other undesirable results have arisen, there appears a serious need for abolishing such unnecessary and conflicting practices. Not infrequently producers are faced with the irritating problem of attempting to comply with the conflicting edicts of inspectors of different services, as are distributors who, because of location are in a position to distribute to more than one community.

There have been cases in which a change in personnel or territorial assignments within a single unit has resulted in dairymen being forced to alter their equipment or methods or both because of a mere difference of opinion of two inspectors of the same unit. That such a variance in opinion should exist between inspectors of different services is conceivable, but to find such variations in judgment between representatives of the same unit is incompatible with soundness. Dairymen and distributors in such instances find themselves victims of mere whims—whims that frequently are very costly and disconcerting. No conscientious producer or distributor objects to competent and impartial inspection; on the contrary both fully recognize the necessity of competent supervision and welcome constructive suggestions from capable inspectors. The old adage that "no man can successfully serve two masters" is definitely applicable in this instance.

One of the most flagrant of the abuses which have arisen from the present system of inspection is that which concerns producers who happen to be located outside the so-called "milk shed" of a certain community. Although his dairy may be under the inspection authority of his own local area and his past record satisfactory, yet in many cases he finds it virtually impossible to ship his milk either as an individual or as a member of a collection agency to any other territory. A new application must be filed, an inspection made and another fee paid. More likely than not he will be told that to obtain a permit he must make certain additions to his equipment, alter some part of his barn or milk house, change the drain, or otherwise comply with a set of distinctive instructions. In view of a satisfactory record as a producer for one market for years past, it is rightfully puzzling to such a producer as to just what does constitute a satisfactory and sanitary dairy. Experience strongly indicates that most local units are highly zealous in their own right and extremely jealous of other units.

Like any other progressive enterprise, dairy production is extremely susceptible to changing conditions. Areas formerly devoted to dairy farming are gradually being diverted to more intensive uses, because of increasing populations and rising land values. As a result "milk sheds" are being gradually but definitely established farther away from markets, thereby increasing the distance between source and outlet. This change has brought about the establishment of collecting plants and factories at locations in the center of production areas at some distance from the greater markets. Such plants are under the supervision of the inspection service having jurisdiction over the marketing area, with inspectors of that service frequently in residence. Application by such a plant, however, to dispose of its products in another area is usually met with a firm declaration that one or more inspectors of the proposed marketing area must be installed, and salaries and expenses paid. Such a condition emphasizes the discrepancies which exist either in standards of ordinances or qualifications of inspector, or both. The payment of duplicate fees and costs to obtain permission to ship milk already satisfactory for one community into another area, constitutes a genuine financial hardship which not many such plants can afford to pay. Thus, the distributor as well as the producer is a victim of inter-unit jealousies and variation in standards.

It appears impossible to advance any plausible reason for such a condition. Either the standards adopted by the localities differ to an unreasonable extent, or there exists a definite lack of confidence between units, or both. Either is inimical to the progress of the industry and unless corrected will serve as a restraining factor capable of doing incalculable damage. Bearing in mind that the local services have been established under permit from the State Department of Agriculture it would appear logical that the general requirements and capabilities of the various inspectors should be basically uniform. It is disconcerting and certainly creative of doubt as to motive to learn that milk supplies within the jurisdiction of one service are refused entry into another area. Especially is this true when the only reason advanced by the chief inspector in the proposed new market is that the qualifications of his deputies are so much higher than those of inspectors in the first area as to justify the prohibition of entry of products originating within that jurisdiction. The rank injustice of such petty reasoning to the distributor operating in more than one territory is self-evident and precludes any attempt to render his supplies flexible.

If such wide variations in the capabilities of inspectors actually do exist, it is a serious reflection upon the soundness of the entire system as it now exists, and further emphasizes the need for reorganization and stabilization. If, on the other hand, such alleged differences are advanced only for selfish or political reasons, the need for revamping the present system is equally imperative. Finally, if ordinances of such widely divergent standards are retained, the restrictive effect upon the progress and expansion of the dairy industry is plainly evident.

What Standardization Might Accomplish.

Since it is apparent that many of the drawbacks of the present system may be attributed to variation in standards, whims of individualistic inspectors, duplication of inspection, and intolerance between units, the need for stabilization and unification is obvious. Certified milk has reached its present state of excellence and general acceptance only because it has been produced under stringent as well as uniform regulations. It could never have approached its exalted position in the milk world had its production been subjected to widely varying regulations plus the pet theories and hobbies of individual inspectors.

The need for uniformity in regulations pertaining to milk supplies has been recognized by the United States Public Health Service and has resulted in the formulation of a standard Milk Ordinance and Code with the recommendation that it be adopted by States and communities in the interest of greater uniformity in milk control. This code is the summation of intensive and extended studies of milk production under widely varying conditions. In those communities in which it has been adopted and followed, the results have been excellent.

The task of unifying inspection systems in California would be no small undertaking. With the present State regulations as the base, however, stabilization and unification could be effected to the extent of practically eliminating the whimsical conflicts and duplications which exist at present. Over-lapping of territory; duplication of inspections and fees; lack of uniformity in standards and requirements; petty jealousies among local services; and inequalities in the capabilities of inspectors could all be reduced to the minimum by the expediency of centralization of activities. Administration would of necessity be centralized, thus affording uniform interpretations and application. If as has been stressed by some, such wide differences in the qualifications of inspectors do exist, there is urgent need for correction of the condition.

The dairy industry of today with few exceptions, stands ready to invoke all possible means to assure the purity and wholesomeness of its products. Tuberculin testing of herds and pasteurization have in themselves effected almost miraculous benefits to human health, especially to those people who reside in the larger cities and towns. For the inhabitants of the smaller, isolated places, however, comparatively little has been done to insure a wholesome supply of milk. For obvious reasons these rural communities are not in the position to inaugurate and finance their own inspection units. Nevertheless, it is just as important that the people residing in such communities be afforded the protection of a pure milk supply as it is for city dwellers to be given that assurance. Only by a plan of centralized statewide inspection will it be possible for rural communities to enjoy the benefits of regulated milk supplies, comparable to those of larger towns and cities.

Under unified regulation, the relationship between the various divisions of the State Department of Agriculture would serve to foster close cooperation between them with reference to dairy problems common to all. There is urgent need for realization of the public health hazard of milk containing micro-organisms of tuberculosis, undulant fever, and other diseases. The safeguarding of milk supplies involves much more than mere sanitation inspection, and in the various divisions of the State Department are men well qualified to give aid and advice in these as well as in other disease control problems having a vital bearing upon the welfare of the dairy industry.

In consideration of the foregoing statements, it is our belief that a system of centralized and uniform dairy inspection in California is urgently needed. Such a program would insure the following:

1. Elimination of territorial overlapping in inspection activities—Such as now exists to the consternation and detriment of producers and distributors alike. Formation of definite territories, carefully allocated as to needs and extent, would assure uniform regulation and control of all milk supplies therein, large and small.

2. Elimination of duplication of inspection and fees—To require dairymen and distributors to comply with the edicts of more than one inspector is not only needless but a waste of time, money, and effort In addition, such edicts are often in conflict both on major and minor details to the extent that producers and distributors are at a loss as to compliance. The financial burden imposed by duplication of inspection and the concomitant plural fees constitutes a genuine hardship needlessly thrust upon an already harassed industry.

3. Provision for stabilization of standards and requirements—Milk which is safe and wholesome for the inhabitants of one area should certainly be acceptable to those in another district. Uniform requirements and high standards would in no way jeopardize the safety of already satisfactory supplies, and in addition would be the means of assuring rural communities of safe milk supplies Such uniform provisions would also remove the present strenuous and justified protests of producers and distributors since all would be operating upon the same impartial basis.

4. Elimination of existent jealousies between different inspection units—That such jealousies exist cannot be doubted, and again producers and distributors are the victims of a condition incompatible with progress and equal opportunity in the industry.

5. Provision for more uniform qualifications of inspectors—Those to be assigned as inspectors would be given uniform instruction, and their activities in the field much more closely correlated. The benefits of such training would be encouragement of capable inspectors and removal of the temptation of political intervention.

6 Provision for uniform interpretation and regulations—Points now controversial would be impartially interpreted and the basic requirements and standards made conducive to save milk supplies over the entire State.

7. Provide for acceptance of milk in any established market without prejudice as to territorial origin—And thus greatly increase the flexibility of supplies.

Summary.

In conformity with this report, it is recommended:

WHEREAS, Such presence will assure and insure a continuance of the Honorable Patrick Joseph McMurray's custom to blarney, harass, harangue, wheedle, cajole, flatter, fret, worry, vex, plague, tantalize, torment, molest, tease and tire his fellow members of this Assembly for many hale and hearty years to come; now therefore, be it

Resolved, That the good wishes of this assemblage be extended our noted colleague, the Honorable Patrick Joseph McMurray, for a long and happy life, the years of which will be devoted to his legislative activities without interruption or defeat!

Amendment No. 14.

Add a new section to be designated "Sec 13.", to read as follows:

"Purposes of the Act. The purpose of this act is to recognize a public obligation by the city to such of its officers and employees as may become incapacitated by age or long service in its employment and its accompanying physical disabilities, by making provision for a retirement pension or annuity as an additional element of compensation for future services, and at the same time, to provide a means whereby public officers and employees who may become incapacitated may be replaced by more competent officers and employees to the betterment of public service, and without prejudice and without inflicting a hardship upon employees removed. Motion to Print Report in Journal.

On motion of Mr. Burns, Michael J., the following report of Special Interim Committee on Unemployment Relief was ordered printed in the Journal:

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY INTERIM COMMITTEE ON UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF.

The Assembly Interim Committee on Unemployment Relief, James F. Brennan, Chairman, met at the Sacramento Hotel on December 17, 1935, and organized.

There were present: James F. Brennan, Chairman, Michael J. Burns, Hugh P. Donnelly, John D. McCarthy, John Pelletier, and Frederick Petersen.

Mr. John D. McCarthy was elected Vice Chairman, and Mr. Hugh P. Donnelly was elected Secretary. Mr. William B. Hornblower was appointed legal advisor and volunteered to act without compensation and at his own expense.

The committee proceeded to hear testimony concerning the administration of the Old Age Security Act of the State of California. After hearing testimony the committee found that the Old Age Security Act of the State of California was administered differently in the various counties and localities in the State, and almost in every instance the amount awarded was less than $35 per month. Thereupon a resolution was passed recommending that the amount to which each applicant was entitled should be determined by assuming and presuming the applicant was entitled to $35 per month and by deducting therefrom all income from any other source.

A further resolution was passed providing that each member of the committee could act as a Committee of One, with power to administer oath, hear testimony, and make recommendations.

Thereafter the committee met on numerous occasions at the City Hall in San Francisco, and heard further testimony concerning the administration of the said Old Age Security Act of the State of California. Assemblyman William B. Hornblower attended and actively and effectively participated in all of said hearings.

As a result of said hearings, and the testimony offered therein, Assembly Bill No. 7 was proposed by Assemblyman William B. Hornblower, passed by the special session of the Legislature in 1936, and was approved by the Governor on May 28, 1936, carrying into effect the resolution of said committee that "the amount of aid to which any applicant shall be entitled shall be when added to the income of the applicant from all other sources, $35 per month."

Thereafter, as a further result of the meetings of said committee and the evidence heard, Assembly Bill No. 1 was proposed by Assemblyman William B. Hornblower and others, in the present Assembly meeting in 1937, to further improve the administration of said Old Age Security Act of the State of California, and providing for additional aid to the applicants thereunder.

In the various meetings the committee expended for traveling and other necessary expenses the sum of $288.37, vouchers for which are on file with the Controller of the State of California. The total amount appropriated for the use of the committee was $2,500, leaving a balance on hand in the sum of $2,211.63 to be returned to the general fund, and due notice be given.

Respectfully submitted.

ASSEMBLY INTERIM COMMITTEE ON UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF.
JAS. F. BRENNAN, Chairman.
JOHN D. McCARTHY, Vice Chairman
HUGH P. DONNELLY, Secretary.
JOHN B. PELLETIER.
MICHAEL J. BURNS.

Whenever it appears to the State Board of Public Health to be reasonably necessary for the purpose of protecting the health of any person or carrying out the provisions and purposes of this act, it shall make and promulgate rules and regulations designating the callings which persons having a venereal disease in an infectious state shall or shall not enter or continue in.

SEC. 8. Suspected Sources May Be Examined. Amendment No. 1.

On page 1, line 1 of the title of the printed bill, strike out "1357", and insert in lieu thereof the following: "s 1205, 1357, and 1359".

Amendment No. 2.

On page 1, line 2 of the title of the printed bill, after "voters", add the following: "and marking of ballots".

Amendment No. 3.

On page 1 of the printed bill, above line 1, add the following: "Section 1205 of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

1205 On receiving his ballot the elector shall forthwith, and without leaving the enclosed space, retire alone to one of the places, booths or compartments provided, to prepare his ballot. In voting he shall stamp a cross (+) in the voting square after the name of every candidate for whom he intends to vote, and this shall be counted as a vote for each person after whose name the elector has stamped such cross, or he may vote for a candidate or person whose name is not printed on the ballot by writing a name for such office in the blank space left therefor, in which latter case the vote of such elector for that office shall be counted for the person whose name is so written. Where two or more candidates for the same office are to be elected, and the elector desires to vote for candidates for that office, he must stamp a cross (+) after the names of all the candidates for that office for whom the elector desires to vote, not exceeding, however, the number of candidates who are to be elected.

In case of a question, proposition or constitutional amendment, submitted to the vote of the electors, the elector shall mark his ballot by stamping in the appropriate voting square a cross (+) opposite the answer he desires to give as to such question, proposition or constitutional amendment.

Except in the case of ballots marked by voters absent from their precincts on the day of election, all crosses shall be made only with a stamp, which with necessary pads and ink, shall be provided by the officers who by law are required to furnish election supplies for each booth or compartment provided for the marking and preparation of ballots. Before leaving such booth or compartment the elector shall fold his ballot in such a manner that the number on the ballot shall appear on the outside thereof, without displaying the marks on the face thereof, and shall keep it folded until he has voted. Having folded his ballot, the elector shall deliver it folded to the inspector, who shall announce in an audible tone of voice the name of the elector.

The ballot clerk having in charge the copy of the index to the register or affidavits of registration shall, in like manner, repeat the name and shall write in the ruled space opposite the name in figures, the line number designating the position of the name on the roster for each elector who votes.

The inspector shall then separate the slip containing the number from the ballot, deposit the ballot in the ballot box."

Amendment No. 4.

On page 1, line 1, of the printed bill, strike out "TION 1", and insert in lieu thereof the following: ".2".

Amendment No. 5.

On page 2, line 8, of the printed bill, strike out the comma and "and a small", and on page 2, line 9, thereof, strike out "rubber stamp and stamp pad for marking said ballots".

"SEC. 3. Section 1359 of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

1359. (a) Any voter applying for and receiving a ballot as herein provided may, on any day prior to the day of election for which such ballot is to be voted, appear at the office of the county clerk or registrar of voters of the county or city and county, or in case of a municipal election at the office of the clerk of such municipality, in which such voter resides and is a qualified elector, and stamp and seal his ballot under the scrutiny of such officer, and in the following manner: The voter shall first display the ballot to such officer as evidence that the same is not marked, and shall then proceed to mark the ballot in the presence of such officer, but in such manner that such officer is unable to see how the same is being marked, and shall then fold said ballot and enclose the same in the identification envelope. The voter shall then make out or cause to be made out and swear to the affidavit printed on the face of such envelope and deliver the same properly sealed to the officer before whom the ballot is marked. Said officer shall then certify to the affidavit printed on the identification envelope and after writing or stamping his name across said seal shall deposit said envelope in a safe place in his office, to be kept by him and thereafter delivered to the proper canvassing board as hereinafter provided.

(b) In case said voter is absent from his election precinct in the county, or city and county, of his residence, at the time of a State or county election or other election conducted by the county clerk or registrar of voters of the county or city and county, or in case he is absent from the city of his residence at the time of a municipal election, or in either instance on account of physical disability, the said voter is unable to go to his polling place, he may appear before the clerk or any registrar of voters or any notary public or any officer of the district, or city, or county, or city and county, or Territory or other Federal district, authorized to administer oaths within the city, city and county, county, or town, within the State of California, or in any other State, Territory or district within the United States, or in the District of Columbia, in which he may be at the time of receiving his ballot, or at any time on or before the date of election, but not thereafter, and mark and seal his ballot under the scrutiny of such officer, in the manner hereinabove set forth, except that such voter may mark his ballot with pen and ink or indelible pencil, instead of with rubber stamp. Such officer shall then certify to the affidavit printed on the identification envelope and enclose said envelope in the return envelope and seal same, and, after writing or stamping his name across said seal, shall deliver said envelope to the voter to be by him returned to the office of the county clerk or registrar of voters of the county or city and county of his residence, or in case of a municipal election to the clerk of the municipality of his residence, conducting said election, as the case may be."

ON THE OCCASION OF THE CELEBRATION OF THE CALIFORNIA STATE ASSEMBLY OF SAINT PATRICK'S DAY, 1937.

On this, thy Feast Day, O Glorious Saint Patrick, we come before thee in spirit to offer once again our need of homage and praise A saint thyself, and the nephew of a saint, Martin of Tours, it is no wonder that thy work was blessed by the Almighty and Eternal God. To lift by one's power of prayer and intercession with God but a small number of men from the slough of Paganism is feat worthy of a great man, but with God's help thou didst lift a whole Nation into the fold of Christianity,—and thou didst imbue them with that self-same spirit which carried thee from the home of the Shepherd into the limelight of history, so that wherever the flag of a Nation may wave it has its loyal Celt, shining with love of his adopted country and yet never losing a tittle of the deep love he bears the land of his forefathers,—and never faltering an instant in the love he bears the God of Whom thou didst preach to him. On this day, O Patrick, be with us in spirit and inspire in our hearts a return to that simplicity of virtue and magnanimity of manhood which thou didst inspire in the Irish of old. To thee, all glory on this holy day, and may thy spirit, under God, continue its ennobling work in our hearts, and in the hearts of all men today and always. Amen.

In determining minimum wholesale prices and minimum retail prices in any marketing area, the director shall first make an investigation in such marketing area to establish such facts as shall be necessary to permit him to carry out the intent of this article within the standards herein prescribed. In making such investigation, the director may examine the books and records of distributors in such marketing area and shall hold one or more public hearings, take testimony and may subpena witnesses. All testimony received at such hearings shall be under oath. Notice of any hearing held by the director, pursuant to this article, shall be given by the director to every distributor in such marketing area whose name appears upon the records of the Department of Agriculture or files a request for the same with the department, by mail or by publication for the time and in the manner prescribed in section 736 1 of this chapter. A record of any and all hearings held by the director, pursuant to this article, shall be made and filed in the office of the director and shall, at all times, be available to inspection by any interested person.

In determining minimum wholesale and minimum retail prices for any marketing area, the director shall take into consideration the following economic factors operative in such marketing area:

(1) The quantities of fluid milk or fluid cream, or both, distributed in such marketing area.

(2) The quantities of fluid milk or fluid cream, or both, normally required by consumers in such marketing area.

(3) The prices being paid to producers by distributors in such marketing area for fluid milk or fluid cream, or both.

(4) The reasonable costs of handling fluid milk or fluid cream, or both, incurred by distributors, including all costs of hauling, processing, selling and delivering by the several methods used in such marketing area in accomplishing such hauling, processing, selling and delivery, as such costs are determined by impartial surveys or audits, or both, of the books and records of all, or such portion of the distributors of each type or class in such marketing area as are found by the director to be representative to indicate the costs of all distributors in such marketing area.

(5) The amount of the available capacity for processing and distributing fluid milk, or fluid cream, or both, of all distributors in such marketing area and the estimated extent to which such available capacity is being used by such distributors.

(6) The purchasing power of consumers in such marketing area.

Following such hearings, investigations and examinations authorized above, the director shall establish minimum wholesale and minimum retail prices for such marketing area, provided that the director finds, in writing, with respect to such prices,

(1) That such prices are sufficient, but not more than sufficient, to cover all necessary costs, according to the method or type of distribution, including a reasonable return upon necessary capital invested, of reasonably efficient distributors engaged in the distribution of fluid milk, fluid cream, or both, in such marketing area as such necessary costs of reasonably efficient distributors are shown to the director by the facts available to the director from the investigations, surveys, audits, and hearings required in this section.

(2) That such prices will tend to maintain in business such number of reasonably efficient distributors of fluid milk and fluid cream, or both, in such marketing area as the director finds is necessary to insure to consumers in such marketing area sufficient distribution facilities of the several types or methods commonly used by consumers.

(3) That such prices will protect the interests of consumers of fluid milk, fluid cream, or both, in such marketing area by insuring to them adequate and efficient distribution facilities of the several types or methods commonly used by them without requiring such consumers to pay more for their supplies of such fluid milk, fluid cream, or both, than is necessary to maintain such adequate and efficient distribution facilities in such marketing area."

GREETING.

There will be held at Cisco, California, on the twenty-first of March, the last huge ski event of the year.

Sigmond Ruud, former ski champion of the world and Norway's ace of the ski jump, will be present to compete with Henry Sotvedt, Canada's champion, and the cream of Nevada and California's best men.

In addition to the biggest jumping contest of the year there will be the open slalom, women's slalom and a novice obstacle race.

The military patrol race, held for the first time in the United States, between teams from the 184th Infantry and the Bowman Rifle Club, will offer an instructive action with men carrying full equipment over difficult terrain and firing twenty rounds at the targets from 200 yards before finishing.

You are most cordially invited to attend this, the biggest ski event of the year and the Auburn Ski Club will be happy to do all in its power to make your stay pleasant and instructive.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL,
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, March 18, 1937.

Honorable William Moseley Jones, Speaker of the Assembly, Assembly Chamber, State Capitol, Sacramento, California.

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: In view of increased demands made upon us by members of the Legislature, we have augmented the stenographic staff of this office This we did upon consulting the Attorney General, the scope of the extended service being indicated in an opinion from him, a copy of which is transmitted herewith.

It will be appreciated if the members, in availing themselves of the additional service thus extended, will keep in mind the limitations expressed in the Attorney General s opinion

Very sincerely yours,

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel.

(COPY)

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, LEGAL DEPARTMENT, March 17, 1937.

Honorable Fred B. Wood, Legislative Counsel,
State Capitol, Sacramento, California.

DEAR SIR: From your communication of this date furnished me, it appears that members of the Legislature and committees of the two houses, because of the shortage of the necessary officers, employees and attaches of the Legislature, are daily calling upon you for the assistance of your department to a greater extent than has heretofore been the custom, and in order to furnish this additional assistance your clerical and stenographic force is necessarily increased.

It is understood, of course, that this increase of force is to enable you to perform your duties, and is not to be used to enable the Legislature, its members or committees to perform the duties which the law casts upon them.

You have asked to be advised what additional clerical help and assistance you may furnish the Legislature, its members and committees under the authority of the act establishing the Legislative Counsel Bureau, of which you are the head.

In 1913 (Chap 322, Stats. 1913), the Legislature created the Legislative Counsel Bureau, and therein set out certain powers, duties and responsibilities incumbent upon the bureau, and I think to more clearly answer the question you have asked it is well to set forth in somewhat complete detail the nature of these powers, duties and responsibilities.

Section 1 of the act creates the bureau, to be in charge of a chief to be known as Legislative Counsel of California to be selected biennially in each odd-numbered year by the Senate and Assembly in joint session

Section 2 of the act requires you to prepare and assist in the preparation, amendment and consideration of legislative bills when requested or upon suggestion, as provided in the act, and further provides that upon request you shall advise any State officer, commissioner or bureau as to the preparation of bills to be submitted to the Legislature, and further that when requested to do so, you shall advise as to their work with any legislative committee appointed to carry on investigations between sessions of the Legislature.

Section 2 further provides that you shall advise the Legislature from time to time as to needed revision of the statutes, and that you shall present to each session of the Legislature a statement calling attention to laws which have been repealed by implication or which have been declared unconstitutional by the courts, but which have not been expressly repealed.

Section 3 of the act provides that the Legislative Counsel shall prepare or assist in the preparation or amendment of legislative bills, at the suggestion, in writing, and as in the act set forth, of any committee of the Senate or Assembly of the Legislature of the State, and further provided that from the time the Legislature of the State convenes until it has adjourned finally, the Legislative Counsel shall give such consideration to and service concerning any bill before the Legislature, as circumstances will permit, and which is in any way requested by the Senate or the Assembly or any committee of the Legislature having such bills before it for consideration. The section further provides that neither the Legislative Counsel nor any employee of the bureau shall oppose or urge legislation. The section further provides that the bureau, upon request, and so far as may be in its power, aid and assist any member of the Legislature as to bills, resolutions and measures, drafting the same in the proper form, and furnishing to them the fullest information upon all matters in the scope of the bureau, and further that neither the Legislative Counsel nor any other member of the bureau shall reveal to any person outside thereof the contents or nature of any matter which has not become a public record, except with the consent of the person bringing such matter before the bureau.

Section 4 of the act requires the Legislative Counsel to be in attendance upon all sessions of the Legislature and that his permanent office shall be in the State Capitol in Sacramento, convenient to the chambers of the two houses of the Legislature, and that for the convenience of members of the Legislature, and when in his judgment the conduct of his work requires, he may maintain temporary offices at other places in the State of California.

Section 5 of the act authorizes the Legislative Counsel to employ such professional assistants and such clerical and other employees as he may deem to be necessary for the effective conduct of the work under his charge.

Section 7 of the act provides, with the exceptions therein noted, that all books, papers, records and correspondence of the bureau pertaining to its work, shall be public records and shall be filed with and recorded and kept at the permanent office of the bureau.

Section 8 of the act provides that any and all persons receiving service from the bureau, as provided in the act, may, by request in writing filed with the bureau, have all their personal papers and correspondence temporarily kept private and confidential, but that said papers and correspondence shall become public records whenever the Legislature shall so order or said written request is withdrawn.

From all of the foregoing, particularly the provisions of section 5 of the act, it must be held that as to your authority to employ professional assistants, clerical help and other employees, you can do so only to the extent that you deem it to be necessary for the effective conduct of the work under your charge. In other words, they can be employed by you only for the performance of the duties incumbent upon you and not to perform any duty or duties incumbent upon any other officer or person. It would appear therefore that the thing for you to consider and determine in each instance is whether or not the service you are asked to furnish is a service that you are required or authorized by law to furnish as a duty of your office, rather than a duty incumbent upon some other officer or person. The statute clearly does not contemplate that the employees of your office could be used to do the work of others whose duties are otherwise prescribed by law.

No doubt a member of the Legislature could call at your office and request either yourself or a member of your staff to advise with him as to the legality or interpretation of a bill or resolution, and ascertain from you how the same might, if necessary, be amended to accomplish the purpose he desires, and to request of you that you prepare such a bill, resolution or amendment or furnish him a legal opinion in connection therewith, all of which it would be your clear duty to do. The member of your staff would then, in giving consideration to the request, prepare such a bill, resolution, amendment or opinion, and in doing this he would, of course, use such of your clerical force as might be necessary to comply with the request. This being true, I can see no legal or other objection to this same legislator who might be qualified to prepare for himself such bill, resolution, amendment or opinion, to be submitted to you for consideration and approval or rejection, to ask for the temporary use of a member of your clerical force to dictate the matter directly rather than through a member of your legal staff. This would clearly be a case of assisting you in the performance of your work with no extra expense to your department, but with some saving of expense and time to you and the member, and I can see no objection to such a member performing other things of a similar nature such as using a member of your clerical force to write a letter to a constituent furnishing such person such information concerning pending legislation that the same legislator could ask you to furnish him for transmittal to such constituent. Although it might technically be said that the duty to furnish a constituent this information is a duty of the legislator and not a duty of your bureau, nevertheless the legislator could request this same information of you for his use which he could transmit to his constituent, so in truth and in fact you would merely be doing by the shorter method a duty incumbent upon you by the longer method.

On the other hand, as it is no part of the duty of your bureau to take part in any of the private correspondence of a member of the Legislature, you could not loan a member of your force to do this for such legislator, and again, as it is no part of your duty or of your force, clerical or otherwise, to act as clerk of the various standing committees, and keep the minutes and records thereof, this could not be done by your office but is a duty to be performed by the employees and attaches of the Legislature

Further, I can anticipate that quite a number, if not all, of the members of the Legislature receive requests from interested parties for copies of pending bills, desiring to know the contents thereof, and as the member might not be familiar with the particular bill, or know its number, he could, no doubt, under the provisions of section 3 of the act requiring you to give service concerning any bill before the Legislature, ask you to search for and find a particular bill in question and furnish it to the member, and if he could do this, I can see no objection to his requesting you to forward the bill direct to the person requesting it, saving the time and the trouble of transmitting it to the member through the legislator. On the other hand, no doubt the legislators receive many letters from constituents urging the passage or defeat of certain legislation. Naturally the members would desire to, and do acknowledge these letters, stating in substance or effect that they will be pleased to give the matters due consideration. These, I think, are matters entirely for the member and not those for your office to perform for the members, because, needless to say, your office could not know, and therefore could not tell what consideration the members of the Legislature would give to any legislation.

Again, you may be called upon, and doubtless are, from time to time, to prepare arguments for and against certain legislation or bills Clearly, you could not do this, either in person nor through your clerical force, by reason of section 3 of the act, which prohibits yourself and all of your employees from opposing or urging legislation.

Many other examples might be cited setting forth the things that you could legally do, as well as those you are not privileged to do, but I have suggested a few of them, trusting the same might be helpful in assisting you in determining in each instance whether or not the particular service or services you are asked by the members of the Legislature to permit your clerical force to perform fall within the category of things you are either required to do, authorized to do, privileged to do, or forbidden to do. However, I hope what has been stated will be of some help in guiding you in your desire to furnish the Legislature the additional help necessary to carry on to a greater extent the service now being requested of you by the members thereof.

Yours very truly,

U. S. WEBB, Attorney General.
By JESS HESSION, Deputy Attorney General

Amendment No. 3.

On page 1 of the printed bill, immediately after the enacting clause, insert the following:

"SECTION 1. Section 441 of the Political Code is hereby amended to read as follows:

441. Whenever the State Controller draws his warrant upon the State Treasurer payable out of the general fund in the State Treasury, and said warrant represents an amount in excess of the unapplied money in the general fund, the State Controller shall upon the date that such warrant is drawn present such warrant to the State Treasurer, who shall indorse upon the back thereof the date of presentation by the Controller and that the same is not paid for want of funds and bears interest at the rate fixed by the Governor, Treasurer and Controller from the date of such registration to and including the date upon which the State Treasurer first advertises that said warrant is payable upon presentation. Indorsement by the Treasurer in the manner hereinabove prescribed shall constitute the registration of such warrant.

The Governor, Treasurer and Controller, acting as a committee shall by majority vote fix the rate of interest paid on warrants registered hereunder but such rate shall not exceed 5 per cent per annum.

After the registration thereof the State Treasurer shall return warrants to the State Controller for distribution.

The State Controller shall furnish the State Treasurer with a separate warrant register for warrants which are registered under this section, and the State Treasurer shall stamp on said warrant register the date on which any warrant is registered and the date on which said warrant is first advertised as payable.

Registered general fund warrants shall be paid, together with all interest due thereon, at such times as the Controller, with the approval of the committee herein created, shall determine, and at such times the Controller shall notify the State Treasurer of the numbers of the warrants which are to be redeemed. The State Treasurer shall immediately publish notice that said warrants are redeemable by advertising for six consecutive days, Sundays excepted, in newspapers publishing legal notices published in the city of Sacramento, in the city of San Francisco, and in the city of Los Angeles.

Said notice shall read substantially as follows:

"NOTICE TO HOLDERS OF STATE OF CALIFORNIA WARRANTS.

State Controller's warrants number_____to number_____, inclusive, drawn against the general fund in the State Treasury are now payable upon presentation to the State Treasurer.

(Name of State Treasurer)
State Treasurer."

Warrants registered in accordance with the provisions of this section shall cease to bear interest on the date following the day upon which said advertisements first appear.

After payment of support of the public school system, as provided for in section 14 of Article XIII of the Constitution, all moneys remaining in the general fund in the State Treasury shall be first applied to the payment of the principal and interest of any outstanding bonds of the State of California as such principal and interest become due. If at any time it is necessary to register warrants for the payment of such principal and interest, warrants so registered shall constitute a prior lien in the order of their issuance on any moneys thereafter received into the general fund in the State Treasury, and said warrants shall be paid before any other warrants regardless of the prior issuance of the latter.

For the purposes of this section "unapplied money" means money in the general fund in the State Treasury for which outstanding warrants have not already been drawn and which would remain in said general fund if all outstanding warrants theretofore drawn were paid."

2 In which he is interested as a holder or owner of any capital stock of a corporation, or of any bond note or other security issued by a corporation,

3. When he is related to either party, or to an officer of a corporation, which is a party, or to an attorney, counsel, or agent of either party, by consanguinity or affinity within the third degree computed according to the rules of law; provided, however, that if the parties appearing in the action and not then in default, or the petitioner in any probate proceeding, or the executor, or administrator of the estate, or the guardian of the minor or incompetent person, or the commissioner, or the referee, or the attorney for any of the above named, or the party or his attorney in all other or special proceedings, shall sign and file in the action or matter, a stipulation in writing waiving the disqualification mentioned in this subdivision or in subdivisions 2 or 4 hereof, the judge or court may proceed with the trial or hearing and the performance of all other duties connected therewith with the same legal effect as if no such disqualification existed

4. When, in the action or proceeding, or in any previous action or proceeding involving any of the same issues, he has been attorney or counsel for any party; or when he has given advice to any party upon any matter involved in the action or proceeding; or when he has been retained or employed as attorney or counsel for any party within two years prior to the commencement of the action or proceeding,

5. When it is made to appear probable that, by reason of bias or prejudice of such justice, judge, or justice of the peace a fair and impartial trial can not be had before him

Whenever a judge or justice shall have knowledge of any fact or facts, which, under the provisions of this section, disqualify him to sit or act as such in any action or proceeding pending before him, it shall be his duty to declare the same in open court and cause a memorandum thereof to be entered in the minutes or docket. It shall thereupon be the duty of the clerk, or the justice if there be no clerk, to transmit forthwith a copy of such memorandum to each party, or his attorney, who shall have appeared in such action or proceeding, except such party or parties as shall be present in person or by attorney when the declaration shall be made.

In justices' courts when before the trial, either party makes and files an affidavit that he believes that he can not have a fair and impartial trial before the justice before which the action is pending, by reason of the interest prejudice or bias of the justice, the court may order the transfer of the action, and the provisions of section 398 of this code shall apply to such transfer

Whenever a judge of a court of record who shall be disqualified under the provisions of this section, to sit or act as such in any action or proceeding pending before him, neglects or fails to declare his disqualification in the manner hereinbefore provided, any party to such action or proceeding who has appeared therein may present to the court and file with the clerk a written statement objecting to the hearing of such matter or the trial of any issue of fact or law in such action or proceeding before such judge, and setting forth the fact or facts constituting the ground of the disqualification of such judge

Within five days after the presentation and filing of any such statement, the judge alleged therein to be disqualified may file with the clerk his consent in writing that the action or proceeding be tried before another judge, or may file with the clerk his written answer admitting or denying any or all of the allegations contained in such statement and setting forth any additional fact or facts material or relevant to the question of his disqualification The clerk shall forthwith transmit a copy of the judge's consent or answer to each party or his attorney who shall have appeared in such action or proceeding Every such statement and every such answer shall be verified by oath in the manner prescribed by section 446 of this code for the verification of pleadings The statement of a party objecting to the judge on the ground of his disqualification, shall be presented at the earliest practicable opportunity, after his appearance and discovery of the facts constituting the ground of the judge's disqualification, and in any event before the commencement of the hearing of any issue of fact in the action or proceeding before such judge.

No judge of a court of record, who shall deny his disqualification, shall hear or pass upon the question of his own disqualification; but in every such case, the question of the judge's disqualification shall be heard and determined by some other judge agreed upon by the parties who shall have appeared in the action or proceeding, or, in the event of their failing to agree, by a judge requested to act by the Chairman of the Judicial Council, and, if the parties fail to agree upon a judge to determine the question of the disqualification, within five days after the expiration of the time allowed herein for the judge to answer, it shall be the duty of the clerk then to notify the Chairman of the Judicial Council of that fact; and it shall be the duty of the chairman of the judicial council forthwith, upon receipt of notice from the clerk, to request some other judge, not disqualified, to hear and determine the question.

If such judge admits his disqualifications, or files his written consent that the action or proceeding be tried before another judge, or fails to file his answer within the five days herein allowed, or if it shall be determined after hearing that he is disqualified, the action or proceeding shall be heard and determined by another judge or justice not disqualified, who shall be agreed upon by the parties, or, in the event of their failing to agree appointed by he Chairman of the Judicial Council; provided, however, that when there are two or more judges of the same court, one of whom is disqualified, the action or proceeding may be transferred to a judge who is not disqualified.

Motion to Print Report in Journal.

On motion of Mr. Dawson, the following report of Special Interim Committee on Klamath River was ordered printed in the Journal:

REPORT OF THE 1935 CALIFORNIA ASSEMBLY INTERIM COMMITTEE ON KLAMATH RIVER.

To Be Submitted to the 1937 Assembly of the California Legislature.

1935 ASSEMBLY INTERIM COMMITTEE ON THE KLAMATH RIVER.

Hon. Charles W. Fisher, Chairman.

Hon. Kennett B. Dawson

Hon. Herbert J. Evans

Said committee was appointed pursuant to Assembly resolution adopted May 23, 1935 (see 1935 Assembly Journal, page 45), introduced by Assemblyman Charles W. Fisher of Alameda County and Michael J. Burns of Humboldt County, which reads as follows:

Resolution.

WHEREAS, The Klamath River is one of the last remaining rivers in the State of California where salmon and steelhead run; and

WHEREAS, The upper reaches of the Klamath River including its tributaries furnish an essential area for the breeding and propagation of salmon and steelhead; and

WHEREAS, There are individuals and organizations engaged in the industry of mining in and about the said Klamath River and its tributaries; and

WHEREAS, Hydroelectric power is developed in the upper reaches of said Klamath River; and

WHEREAS, General controversy exists between those engaging in mining and in hydroelectric power development in and about said Klamath River and its tributaries, and the sportsmen, recreationists and conservationists of the State, now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Speaker of the Assembly appoint a committee of three members of the Assembly to investigate and report on the matters set forth in the premises; and be it further

Resolved, That said committee is authorized to hold hearings at any and all places, and is authorized and empowered to require the production of books, agreements, documents, records, accounts and papers of every kind, also to issue subpenas to compel the attendance of witnesses; and be it further

Resolved, That said committee report its findings to the Assembly at the fifty-second session thereof, together with such recommended legislation as the committee may deem necessary; and be it further

Resolved, That the sum of $600 or so much thereof as may be necessary for the purpose of defraying the expenses of the committee and the cost of its investigation, is hereby made available and appropriated for the use of the committee, and the State Controller is authorized and directed to draw his warrants in favor of the person or persons entitled thereto for such expenditures as may be certified to him from time to time by the chairman of the committee, and the State Controller is hereby authorized and directed to pay the same.

Foreword.

The committee has set about in this report to secure sufficient facts upon which to base its recommendations in the hope of facilitating the passage by the California State Legislature of enforceable laws for the protection of fish life in the Klamath

River; for the insurance of sufficient clarity of the waters of this stream so that the many thousands of sportsmen may enjoy fishing during the major steelhead and salmon runs, and so that those engaged in the industry of mining adjacent to said stream may know how and to what extent they may engage in this industry.

As the committee appropriation of $600 was insufficient to permit a complete, far-reaching and independent investigation of the entire problem, the committee has used in so far as practicable data obtained from the California Division of Fish and Game, from the United States Biological Survey of Streams and Lakes in the Klamath and Shasta National Forests of California, dated February, 1935, results of the Klamath-Trinity River Fact Finding Committee of the California State Chamber of Commerce, from personal observation on the part of members of the committee, and from meetings held by the committee at which were present representatives of the mining industry, the California Oregon Power Company, and sportsmen.

The members of the committee pursuant to said resolution made trips into the Klamath region in order that they might be personally familiar with the problems involved.

Inasmuch as the Trinity River flows into the Klamath at Weitchpec, the problem is one involving not only the Klamath River, but the Trinity River and the tributaries of both of said streams.

The report will be divided into two specific parts, i.e.

Firstly, having to do with the effect of mining operations in the district concerned upon fish life and fishing, and

Secondly, the effect of the operation of the California Oregon Power Company's dam at Copco upon fish life and fishing in the Klamath River

Report Dealing with the Mining Aspect.

The Klamath River running particularly approximately 200 miles from the Oregon boundary near the California Oregon Power company's dam at Copco (hereinafter referred to as Copco) and emptying in the Pacific Ocean, has never been a stream of the crystal clarity of the average Sierra Nevada stream, but during late years it has been claimed by those interested in fish life and sport fishing that it has gradually been becoming more and more roiled and muddied and to such a degree that even during the months of August, September, October and November fly fishing has for protracted periods been impossible.

The Present Law.

The Klamath and Trinity rivers have long been famous not only in California, but throughout the Nation and elsewhere for the splendid fishing found there for salmon and steelhead. The Klamath River is recognized by the California Fish and Game Commission as the most important stream left in California where salmon and steelhead run in abundance and reproduce. To protect this resource, and prevent destruction of the sea-run migratory species of game fish by power development on the river, the people of the State of California in 1924 adopted Initiative Measure No. 11 which created the Klamath River Fish and Game District.

The specific law designed to prevent pollution of the Klamath during part of the steelhead season is contained in section 482 of the California Fish and Game Code which reads as follows:

> "It is unlawful, between July 15th and October 15th, to pollute, muddy, or roil the waters of the Trinity and Klamath River District, or deposit, or permit the depositing of, any substance in said waters, so that the clarity thereof is affected. The clarity of said waters shall be deemed affected only when said waters, for a distance of one mile or more, contain more than 50 parts per million, by weight, of suspended matter. Any structure or contrivance which contributes to the condition, the causing of which is herein prohibited, is a public nuisance."

Since the increase in 1932 of the price of gold, gold mining has increased by leaps and bounds along the Klamath and Trinity rivers and their tributaries and although many instances of mining operations were seen of a large and small degree where mud and tailings were sluiced directly into the Klamath so that muddying of that stream was visible to the naked eye, the law as stated in section 482 of the Fish and Game Code is practically unenforceable, and so far as the committee has been able to ascertain, there has never been a conviction under it. In order to sustain such a conviction proof would have to be given not only of the fact of pollution, but of the clarity of the stream immediately above the point of pollution, the clarity of the stream at least one mile below the point of pollution, and the fact that no other extraneous substance was entering into the stream within the entire distance of one mile. It has been admitted by District Attorney Edwin J. Regan of Trinity County and others that the law as now set forth is extremely difficult of enforcement.

Recreational Considerations.

From the point of view of the enjoyment of the people, the Klamath and Trinity River systems offer much of both direct and indirect value to the State of California. The following list indicates a portion of the values involved, viz., (1) sport fishing for salmon and steelhead and for small stream trout; (2) resort value; (3) general tourist values including camping, hiking, horseback riding, touring by automobile, hunting and other activities.

The Klamath River, over its 200 mile course from the Oregon line to the ocean, offers several varieties of fishing that have attracted people from all over the world to participate in this sport. Considering the types of fishing first, trolling for salmon and steelhead in the estuary offers splendid sport to hundreds of tourists who travel north and south on the Redwood Highway that crosses the mouth of the river at Klamath. This fishing generally begins in early July, reaching its peak about the middle of August. Much revenue goes to residents, resort owners, etc., in this region from this class of fishermen. It might be added that these people are largely seeking a leisurely sport that produces large fish, does not take much physical endurance, and eliminates the danger of wading the swift riffles farther upstream. Any consideration of the problem must take into account this type of fishing afforded at the mouth of the river.

Farther upstream, particularly from Weitchpec on, most of the fishing is devoted to sea-run steelhead. Here various types of tackle are used and sportsmen come long distances to fish with light tackle for these heavy fish. Many resorts are found at various points along the river whose profit is dependent upon this class of fishermen. But few of the average tourists, who do not care as a rule to drive over steep, irregular mountain highways, seek sport in this region of the river. The anglers then, who fish the middle section of the Klamath are for the most part those who seek the thrill of heavy fish and fast water with light tackle.

Again, in the upper river both above and below Hornbrook, sea-run steelhead are much sought after by many groups of people. Here the upper river is crossed by the main north-south inland automobile route at the mouth of the Shasta River which gives easy access both above and below this point on the main Klamath. Here also many tourists will fish the river, the more venturesome driving down the river to enjoy fishing under less crowded conditions. The season in the middle and upper reaches of the Klamath runs from July 15th into January.

Many sportsmen have built fishing lodges along the river in which they may reside the year around or in which they may reside only during fishing seasons. Many people camp out along the river at various points when the fish are running. All the above classes must be given consideration from the viewpoint of both their indirect and direct interest in the problem under consideration.

In addition to the fishing for sea-run migratory species along all reaches of the Klamath and Trinity rivers, a considerable amount of fishing takes place in the summer time for small salmon and steelhead in the tributary streams prior to their seaward migration. In addition, lakes lying in the Klamath Basin that have been stocked with eastern brook and other species afford good sport for those able to get into the back country.

It should be noted at this point that in considering the two natural resources, minerals, and fish life, found in this region, the former is an inorganic resource the supply of which can eventually be removed by mining operations. The latter is an organic resource which by proper management and protection can be perpetuated for the pleasure and use of the people of the State for all time.

Effect of Silt Carried in Suspension on Aquatic Fish Foods.

Definite quantitative measurements of the effect of heavy silt on bottom foods was obtained in the summer of 1934 from stream and lake survey work carried on under the direction of the Bureau of Fisheries. Funds allotted to the Bureau of Fisheries by the Public Works Administration permitted placing three stream and lake survey parties in California. One of these surveyed the Klamath River tributaries, and lakes, from the mouth to the Oregon line. In the mimeographed report of the field work of Mr. A. C. Taft and Mr. Leo Shapovalov (P. 15, 1935), the following data was submitted:

> "As far as the smaller streams of the Klamath watershed are concerned, silt caused by mining is as important a factor as any, if not the most important factor, in determining the amount of bottom food present. With no mining silt present, the factors mentioned heretofore play dominent roles. That mining silt is detrimental to bottom food organisms is borne out by the following tests. On the afternoon of June 15th, two stations were selected on the East Fork of Scott River, one a short distance above Grouse Creek, which carried considerable mining silt into the East Fork, and one below Grouse Creek. With the exception of Grouse Creek, no tributaries enter the East Fork between these stations, the stream has essentially the same character, and the land bordering the stream between these two stations is uncultivated. Thus, it seems that the only factor to change the stream between the two stations would be the entrance of the silt at Grouse Creek.

The riffles on which the quantitative samples were taken at the two stations were picked to resemble each other Three quantitative samples were taken at each station

As shown by the following table, there was a marked decrease in all the main groups of good organisms. This table shows the numbers of trout food organisms per square foot collected in the areas polluted and not polluted by mining silt.

Stoneflies	3	3	3	9	3
Crayfish	2	--	2	4	1

Observations in other streams seem to bear out these tests. In Merrill Creek, a tributary of the Salmon River, the bottom of the lower portion of the stream is composed largely of coarse mining silt. This silt was productive of almost no food except snails

Whenever a series of quantitive bottom samples was taken in one stream or in a series of similar streams during the summer, the average number of good organisms in the one square foot samples was always less in mined areas than in nonmined areas

From these measurements the affects of silt are obviously quite marked. Of the total 2003 aquatic organisms taken in both series of samples, only 12.8 per cent were found in the silted water while 87 1 per cent were taken from the nonsilted area.

That streams foods will recover from the effects of heavy silting is evidenced by the main Klamath Mining silt here used to be much heavier in the earlier days of mining when this stream was used to 'run practically a stream of mud.' Observations by the chairman of this committee and others have shown that if extremely heavy silting is stopped stream bottom foods such as mayflies, stoneflies, caddisflies, and others will again become abundant and furnish large amounts of food to fishes. However, we believe that the immediate effect is bad and will continue to be bad as long as the silting is heavy and continuous.

Turbidity of the main Klamath during warm weather in the summertime, aside from mining silt usually present, is due to excessive amounts of small plants and animals carried in suspension (plancton). Turbidity due to these organisms probably have a portion of their source in the upper Klamath and Copco Lake where the water flows through tule bordered areas, picking up much organic matter as it flows along The very marked green color of the Klamath River in warm seasons is largely due to this cause. Biological studies of these materials have shown many kinds and types of algae present under these conditions This type of turbidity is in no sense deleterious to the aquatic life of the river In fact the reverse is quite true, for these minute organisms afford the bottom dwelling organisms tremendous amounts of food which in turn is probably one of the major reasons why the Klamath River is so rich in aquatic fish foods."

The effect of a limited amount of mining silt on the eggs of sea-run fish has not definitely been shown to be harmful. Heavy silting of spawning areas in small tributaries is probably harmful however due to the smothering action of the silt on the eggs. Steelhead and salmon usually spawn in the shallow riffles or tails of pools where some water seeps down through the gravel over the eggs. Undoubtedly heavy masses of silt would close the crevices in the bottom gravel and stop the water supply to the eggs. During the winter the danger to fish life is probably less by reason of larger water flows and hence greater dilution of silt, at this season of the year as compared to the summer season and fall.

In order to conduct mining operations in the Klamath-Trinity watershed it is necessary for those engaged in the industry, other than those operators who conduct their operations in and along the main river beds themselves, that they have a considerable head of water, hence the great proportion of mining operations in this entire area are carried on during the rainy season and the season when the streams are running with a considerable head of water. Conversely, the best steelhead fishing is had on the Klamath and/or Trinity in the later dry months up to and running into the early rainy season.

In this report the fishing at the mouth of the Klamath is not being considered as it is for the most part trolling and the principal effect on this fishing would be from the general effect of pollution and the muddying and roiling of the waters of the stream upon fish life so that the time as to just when the waters in question shall be kept clear is not a question of moment to those who fish at the mouth.

King Salmon.

In the early days, two runs of king salmon used to take place annually in the Klamath River, one in the spring and one in the fall. The spring run of fish, on good authority, was depleted early in the history of the river and is of little consequence today. The summer run of king salmon is the important one today and one that, as noted above, attracts many people to the mouth of the river for trolling in July, August, and September when the fish are in the estuary. Dr. J. O. Snyder, in his paper entitled, "King Salmon of the Klamath River, California" (Fish Bulletin, No. 34 of the California Division of Fish and Game), says that, "Migration of king salmon in the Klamath River begins in July, mounts rapidly by the last of the month, reaches its maximum in August, declines gradually in September, and falls away almost entirely before the beginning of winter." He also says at another point in the same paper:

> "Migration of king salmon does not consist of a steadily increasing flow with a similar decline, but rather a continuation of successive waves of varying size which on the whole mount higher and higher until a maximum is reached, and then die away in much the same manner as they came."

In support of his statements, Dr. Snyder submits catch records furnished by the Klamath River Packers Association covering the commercial catches for the years from 1913 to 1926 inclusive.

Steelhead Trout.

"A few steelhead enter the estuary of the Klamath along with king and silver salmon early in the season but do not reach their migratory peak until fall in the months of September, October, and November. The so-called winter run occurs in December, January, and February, but weather conditions at this time do not permit comfortable angling conditions. A few scattered steelhead will be caught in the estuary with king salmon in the latter part of July as noted below. Their upstream migration apparently progresses from 2½ to 3 miles per day and in the upper river near the mouth of the Shasta River, their peak is reached in late November.

In the following table will be seen a count of the steelhead migration into the mouth of the Shasta River, as recorded by Snyder in "A Steelhead Migration in the Shasta River," California Fish and Game Magazine, October, 1933, No. 4. This is the only factual data the committee was able to obtain on the actual numbers of steelhead entering any given tributary. While these figures do not apply to the main river itself, it is well known that the steelhead will lie for several days or weeks in the main river below the mouths of tributaries up which they will later migrate. Thus in reading the table these data in general can be applied to the main Klamath below the mouth of the Shasta if the dates be advanced correspondingly to compensate for the time between resting in the Klamath and passing through the counting weir in the Shasta River.

It is well known that steelhead migrate to the uppermost tributaries where they spawn in late fall, winter, or in early spring, after which if they survive, will migrate to the ocean, not always dying after maturity as do the salmon."

Rainfall and River Flow Data.

It is, of course, obvious that conditions relating to rainfall and river flow are of great importance both to mining and to fishing. Rainfall largely determines when placer mining can be profitably conducted and of course is a major stimulus to the runs of migratory salmonoid fishes up the Klamath. The weather data submitted below has been embodied in this report because of its significance in pointing out the approximate period when rains begin to come in the fall, and their influence on river flows and migrations. Naturally this data while factual as applied to the individual stations and dates recorded can only be applied in a general way to the problem of mining and fishing seasons as a whole.

In the following table it was evident that the rains begin to fall in early November, decrease somewhat around the twelfth of November, and from this point average daily precipitation increases to about the thirtieth of November.

Thus on the basis of rainfall it is evident that the water supplies contributing both to the fish runs and to mining do not become heavy in any sense of the word until the middle of, or late November.

* From U. S. Dept of Agriculture, Monthly Weather Review, Supp No 34 "The Daily, Monthly and Annual Normals of Precipitation in the U. S Based on the 50-year Period, 1878 to 1927, Inclusive" 1930

From all of the sources of information which the committee has been able to contact steelhead fishing progresses upwards along the Klamath River from the early part of July in the lower section into the month of December in the upper reaches with good fishing often found in the upper reaches during the months of January and February. With the heavy rainfall and cold weather setting in particularly from the month of December on, the sport during these winter months is only enjoyed by the most hardy, the months of October and November being the best fishing season for the middle and upper reaches of the Klamath.

At a meeting of the Assembly committee held in San Francisco on December 4, 1936, at which were present members of the Fact Finding Committee of the State Chamber of Commerce and District Attorney Edwin J. Regan of Trinity County, the final question of a new Antipollution Law was discussed. Many sportsmen and conservationists had contacted the committee requesting that they be given clear water in the Klamath and Trinity Basin for six months of the year running from July 1st to January 1st. Mr. Regan, representing the principal mining interests in the Klamath-Trinity Basin, stated that the miners would agree to clear water and a strictly enforceable law at the point of pollution for the Klamath and Trinity rivers and all tributaries thereof from July 15th to November 15th.

Recommendation Re Pollution.

Taking into consideration all phases of the situation, the committee recommends that section 482 of the California Fish and Game Code be amended so as to provide four and a half months of clear water running from July 15th to December 1st in any one year and covering the Klamath and Trinity rivers and all tributaries thereof. In order to accomplish such purpose a new fish and game district should be established as an amendment to the California Fish and Game Code reading as follows:

"NEW SECTION OF FISH AND GAME CODE NUMBERED SECTION 96.5 CREATING A NEW FISH AND GAME DISTRICT ENTITLED _____ DISTRICT.

SEC. 96.5. The following shall constitute the ____ Fish and Game District: The Trinity River and all streams and their tributaries flowing into said river and the Klamath River (excepting that portion thereof now included in the Klamath River Fish and Game District) below the California-Oregon Power Company Dam at Copco and all streams and their tributaries flowing into said river."

With such a change said section 482 should be amended to read as follows:

"482. It is unlawful between July 15th and December 1st, both dates inclusive, to pollute, muddy, contaminate, or roil the waters of the ------ Fish and Game District and the Klamath River Fish and Game District It is unlawful, between said dates to deposit in or cause, suffer or procure to be deposited in, permit to pass into or place where it can pass into said waters, any substance, affecting the clarity of said waters, including the dumping, depositing or passing into said waters of any debris, substance or tailings from hydraulic, placer, milling or other mining operation. Any structure or contrivance which contributes to or causes the condition, the causing of which is hereby prohibited, is a public nuisance."

In making the above recommendation the committee has taken the stand that it can not differentiate between the various types of mining and that an Anti-pollution Law should apply to them all to be thoroughly effective. The committee considers that in general the taking of no natural resource should be permitted to an extent wherein it means the destruction of another natural resource, particularly where the value of each of said natural resources may be of benefit to the public at large, and in forming a rough opinion as to the comparative values of the mining industry in the area concerned and the fish life therein purely from the recreational standpoint and not taking into consideration the deep sea commercial fishing of the salmon which run into the Klamath River, the committee presents the following table showing the value of gold produced in counties in the Klamath-Trinity watersheds from 1925 to 1934, inclusive, and the results of a Klamath River economic investigation by Robert Allen:

"Klamath River Economic Investigation.

BY ROBERT ALLEN.

The following information gathered in the succeeding period was obtained from a personal contact with those whose business activities were directly concerned, as a result of the recreational facilities offered in the district. The information is based on the 1935 season and is as authentic as conditions and the methods of recording the facts by those people were made possible. Also by contacting as many of the visitors and tourists as possible who were here during 1935, as well as a great many others here only during the 1936 season to date. Averages are based on the finding as given out by those visitors, which was given freely by them

The total number of families registered in the camps, parks, and other facilities reached a total of 25,833 during the 1935 season As this was a rather slack season due to the economic condition the facilities were not all used during the season. A check on the number registered during June and July, 1936, showed an increase in registration ranging from 20 per cent to 300 per cent, averaging a total increase from all sources, of 118 per cent Using this as a basis for computing the 1936 registration it should, if it continues at the present rate, reach the total registration of 30,485 families

In checking the homes from which these visitors came, it was found that a great range of distance was covered to reach the Klamath district While not all of the visitors came for the express purpose of fishing for salmon and steelhead, the great percentage of them did. Many came to view the great Redwood district and to enjoy the world famous scenery of this area Many upon learning of the fishing, stayed on to be introduced to this sport, but many, combining a vacation with saving, came to secure a winter supply of salmon for their families. They came from every State in the United States, Canada, Mexico, South America, England, Hawaii, and the Philippines.

showing the international fame of this area of California. The distance traveled by those coming here to view the country and to enjoy the fishing showed a total average distance traveled by each family to be 789 miles for the one way trip, making a grand total of 20,382,237 miles. As the return journey must be made, those same visitors, although they will of course see other places and enjoy other recreations, must have to travel 40,764,474 miles to enjoy the offerings of this district.

The average miles per gallon of gasoline consumed was found to be about 15; thus showing that they invested in this commodity to the extent of 2,717,632 gallons. The price of this from differences in various localities, was found to average 16 cents per gallon, making a total of $434,821.12. Using the accepted mileage of 250 miles per quart of oil as the average, the oil consumed would amount to 163,058 quarts. The average price paid for oil purchased was found to be 22 cents per quart and would cost the visitors $35,872.76. Summing up the total cost of transportation alone, not considering various repairs and other incidentals, would reach the total of $470,693.88. This distributed along the routes traveled creates business along those routes, but is brought about directly by the recreational facilities offered by Klamath and its adjacent territory.

In attempting to arrive at the amount of business brought into the area by those same visitors but not taking into account the transient business, it was necessary to contact a great many of them to arrive at a figure which would represent them all and at the same time come within the reach of all. Many who come, care little for expense. While others must be very conservative because of conditions. A figure of $3 per day was finally set as about the amount used daily by an individual. While many used much more, it was found that there were others using much less. Using then, the $3 per day as a basis, the 77,499 individuals produced in direct business $232,497, this being scattered throughout the district to business enterprises in proportion to the facilities offered.

Making the same contacts and basing an average of one fisherman to each family, although many had more, to secure the amount invested in fishing tackle used by these visitors and arriving at an average of $60 per angler, the total amount invested would reach $1,549,980. Much of this can be, and is, used in other places for sport, but at least 25 per cent of it is directly responsible to the district. A replacement and new purchase to fit the different conditions here would amount to 10 per cent of the total amount of $15,499, and would go directly to the district.

The facilities offered by the district to accommodate these visitors in camp grounds, cottages, rooms, boats and incidentals was found to be 229 cabins, 57 rooms, and 290 boats. The investment in these facilities by those offering the accommodations was $425,500.

The business investment in Klamath City, while not depending entirely upon the recreationists, reached a total of $143,810 or a grand total of investment of $569,310.

This does not take into account the business given to the 20 Indian boat pullers who are available to those who desire that accommodation, which amounted to approximately $3,000 in 1935.

The accommodations during the 1936 season now in progress, which has increased to 118 per cent over 1935, has reached the saturation point. More facilities or a longer season must be supplied to take care of the tremendous number of visitors seeking to enjoy the offerings of this area.

With the present short season of two and one-half months, it is not feasible to increase the investment to a paying basis. A longer season will make the investors feel that improvements and other equipment to take care of the recreationists could be made.

Business would favor an extension of time so employees' vacations could be staggered, allowing them to go over an extended length of time with not many at one time, which curtails the operation of enterprise especially in the case of skilled or administrative help.

It would mean a less congested condition on the recreation grounds with more visitors being taken care of by the same equipment."

California-Oregon Power Company Dam and Operations at Copco.

In 1918 the California-Oregon Power Company completed and put into service their dam and power plant at Copco about 13 miles up the Klamath River from Hornbrook. From a history of the California-Oregon Power Company we learn that the Copco Dam No. 1 is constructed of concrete, is arched on a radius of 356 feet, and, including gate structures, contains approximately 70,600 cubic yards of material. Deep pockets in the foundation made it necessary to excavate to a maximum depth of 120 feet and greatly increased the total yardage. The river bed at the dam is about 2,472 feet above sea level and the lowest point of the foundation about 2,352 feet. The width of the canyon at the ultimate crest level of the dam (including the gate structures) is 420 feet and the width at the river bed is 60 feet. The dam is 95 feet thick at base and 30 feet at the spillway level, the piers rising above the spillway lip are, however, only 15 feet thick at their bases. An outlet tunnel, 16 feet square and 13 feet above the original river bed, pierces the rocky point 85 feet in from the south end of the dam, and in the top of the dam are 16 openings, 7½ feet wide and 8 feet deep, which are provided with flashboards that may be removed to allow floods to pass over the crest of the dam

When the Copco plant is in daily operation a rush of water leaves the power plant raising the level of the Klamath River at the plant between three and four feet in 15 minutes This flood continues on down the river with such force and volume that even at Weitchpec, some 175 miles below the Copco Dam, the level of the Klamath River is changed from 8 to 12 inches The operation of the Copco plant is perhaps the most deleterious element on the Klamath River; damaging to fish life, dangerous to human life whether they be sportsmen, miners, agriculturalists or recreationists who may be engaged in and adjacent to the Klamath River It has been informally reported to the committee that since the operation of the dam at least 16 people have been drowned in the Klamath River largely due to the tremendous and abrupt change in the level of the river without warning by reason of the operation of the plant.

The United States Biological Survey, herein mentioned, comments upon the California-Oregon Power Company Plant as follows:

> "The Klamath River proper presents a problem in fluctuation all its own Dams and power plants are located at Copco, California, some 200 miles above the mouth of the Klamath, and also above in Oregon.
> These plants let through amounts of water which vary with the 'load' being carried. Under present conditions this causes sudden and irregular fluctuations of the river At times these fluctuations come daily while at other times the amount of water let through is varied only after several successive days of high or low water.
> The section of the Klamath River immediately below Copco Dam is the one in which the rise and fall of the river is the greatest and most abrupt. There the water may drop or rise several feet in the space of 20 minutes. Millions of young fish are planted each year in Fall Creek, which enters the Klamath in this section, and work down into the main river There they are sometimes caught unawares by the quickly dropping river and left stranded along its shores.
> Great damage, too, is done by the fluctuations to the invertebrate life, i.e., to the potential fish food. On May 26th numbers of roving bottom organisms such as the young of mayflies and stoneflies were found dead in areas exposed by low water.
> The regulation of the water to a steady flow by the construction of an equalizing dam below the Copco power plant would (1) widen the zone of production of bottom fish food, which at present is limited to the area covered by low water from Copco, (2) eliminate the stranding of young fish and of roving bottom organisms which serve as food for fish, (3) save some of the salmon spawning grounds and provide new areas for salmon spawning, and (4) eliminate a source of real danger to fishermen in the stream"

In a memorandum relating to the influence of the uneven flow of water in the upper Klamath River caused by operations of the dam at Copco we find Dr. Snyder, Chief of the Bureau of Fish Conservation of the California Fish and Game Commission, stating as follows:

> "It is well known that the ordinary operations of the dam at Copco cause sudden and prolonged high tides followed by periods of very low water in the Klamath River, extending down for a long distance below the junction of Shasta River with the Klamath. These floods cause the water to extend unusual distances up the bank, while the periods of low water drain the sand bars in the middle of the river and greatly diminish its flow This condition is detrimental to both natural and artificial propagation in the river. Natural propagation is seriously interfered with because in the region affected, eggs which are deposited on the sand bars and riffles during high water are entirely exposed and spoiled during the period of low water This statement does not rest upon assumption, but upon actual observations which have been made from time to time
> During the spawning season of 1934, when our new racks at Klamathon were not completed in time to obstruct the run of salmon, the whole migration was allowed to pass into the upper portion of the river. Observers were placed in the region to give an account of what actually occurred there Most of the sand bars were exposed during the low water when they were completely drained and exposed to the action of the hot sun. At the time of low water there is a relatively small amount of suitable spawning area which is covered during high water, numerous bars which become riffles with a considerable amount of water covering them are ideal spots for spawning and are taken advantage of by the fish which are present. Our observers found that most of the spawning in that portion of the river was done during the periods of high water and was carried on in places which were uncovered and drained during periods of low water. Numerous nests were found uncovered and examined and in most cases the eggs and developing embryos were destroyed The loss between the racks at Klamathon and the base of the Copco Dam was apparently so complete as to justify the assumption that all eggs taken by artificial means from the salmon at the racks might be safely regarded as salvage.

The eggs taken at the racks at Klamathon in the amount of about 4,000,000 were sent to the hatchery at Fall Creek which is located on a perennial stream which enters the main river at a short distance below the Copco Dam. The resulting fry from these eggs are planted in the river at two seasons. One is in the spring when the migration of naturally spawned salmon passes down the river. They are then little fish approximately two or three inches in length or even less. The second planting is done in the fall at about the time the fall run of young fish normally passes down the river. The plants are made at this time to imitate nature as nearly as possible in the belief that nature, through a long period of time, has best learned how to attend to the natural propagations of its species. When planting either in the spring or fall, this unnatural and violent fluctuation in the river operates disastrously in the case of young fish. If at any place along the river the little fish are passing down stream, they seem to prefer the edge to the middle of the stream and the sudden retreat of the water invariably leaves large numbers of them stranded on the open bars and in little pools along the edge where they either die from suffocation, increase of water temperature, or are quickly picked up by marauding birds and animals.

The superintendent of the hatchery tries to coordinate his plants in such a way that the fish will be least affected by the variation of the water. The little fish themselves take a hand in the matter and go downstream exactly when they please instead of when the hatchery man desires. One remedy might be suggested for this. That is, that the little fish be hauled down the river a sufficient distance to prevent the action of these extreme rises and falls of the river. There are two reasons for not doing this. First is the high cost of transportation for the long distance required. This high cost not only involves the actual transportation of the fish, but it would necessitate a large equipment, particularly in carrying the large sized fall fish. Another objection to the proposal is that salmon are known to return on their adult migrations to approximately the place from which they started as young fish. If these fish then were transported far enough down the river to avoid the destructive fluctuations, it is altogether probable that the returning migration would fall short of the Klamathon racks and eventually the run at that place, which we have every reason to believe is sustained by artificial propagation, would be destroyed.

What is said of the salmon is practically true of the steelheads, except that before the steelhead run is well on the racks at Klamathon are removed Artificial propagation of steelheads in that part of the stream depends principally on fish which reach Bogus Creek and Fall Creek where traps are maintained for their capture and artificial spawning. The little steelheads turned out from the hatchery at Fall Creek meet with the same difficulties as do the young salmon. Little fish drifting in from Shasta River, Beaver Creek and other places along the Klamath which are subjected to these violent fluctuations in the flow, are subjected to the same hazards as are the artificially propagated fishes.

It seems that whether the rise or fall of the water is sudden or gradual makes little difference in the stranding of the fish. The only corrections would be the resumption of a steady and natural flow of the river. This adverse situation gradually grows less as one moves down the river. It is difficult to say just where the matter comes of little influence, perhaps in the region of the mouth of Scott River, perhaps farther down or maybe a short distance above.

Reference is directed to a short article on Klamath River spawning conditions in 1932 which was published in California Fish and Game, Volume 20, Number 1, page 71."

Recommendation Re Operation of California Oregon Power Company Power Plant.

The committee realizes the difficulties involved in legislating upon the problem of the operation of the Copco plant wherein adequate use of the facilities of this investment can be reconciled with protection of the fish life of the 200 miles of river running below the dam and protection of fishing along this river and the lives of the people who go to the river for business or recreation

The California Oregon Power Company should be vitally interested in assisting in the proper settlement of the Klamath River problem. Very often when matters of this kind are allowed to drift, public opinion accumulates and unnecessary harm may result from a mass movement in the form of an initiative or otherwise.

The committee likewise feels that the United States Government has a definite interest in settling the Klamath problem as it involves the welfare of one of the most valuable migratory fish in the ocean, i.e., the salmon.

The State of California is also vitally interested in settling the Klamath problem as the size of the river, the runs of fish, the initiative action of the people taken in 1924, and unquestioned evidence show it to be one of the greatest natural recreational areas in the State of California.

While it has been suggested that the fluctuation of the water in the Klamath River caused by the operations of the power company and which results in a devastating loss to fish and fish food could be corrected by a leveling dam, the cost of such a contrivance would be large. It is not believed to be within the province of this committee to insist that the expense of constructing a dam to maintain an even flow of the water should be borne by an individual enterprise if another means to secure the desired result can be obtained. Although such a leveling dam would be the ultimate solution to the problem of the area lying below such dam.

It is a matter of knowledge that the area between the Klamathon egg station racks and the Copco Dam an area of less than 20 miles comprises the most important salmon spawning ground in California. Since the migrating, breeding salmon are unable to proceed beyond the power company's dam at Copco, they have no alternative but to spawn in this area. This small stretch of the river becomes, therefore, the key to successful and continued salmon spawning for the entire State. It is to this spawning ground that salmon now come to make their last stand. It is also here that the Division of Fish and Game obtains its supply of salmon spawn for artificial propagation.

For these reasons the area between the Klamath racks and the Copco dam must be assured of correct water conditions and made safe for the propagation and protection of the State's sole supply of salmon.

It appears to this committee that accomplishment of this desired condition can only be secured by the power company allowing during the daily low water periods, a constant flow of water over its dam in sufficient volume to adequately cover the comparatively limited area between the dam and the Klamathon racks. By these means the salmon spawn previously deposited by the fish will be preserved and the bottom feed maintained for later use. Also the presence of this minimum volume of water will minimize the scouring effect to which the fish life is exposed at present by the sudden rise in the daily water level when the power company begins operations.

In view of the premises, the committee recommends that the State of California, either through its Department of Natural Resources or the Division of Fish and Game, set about with dispatch to arrange with the California-Oregon Power Company or its officers, that the company shall be required to operate its power plant and send the flow of water over the dam at regular stated intervals in order that the public may be safeguarded by having such information and in this regard it is recommended that the regular shutdown periods of said power plant should be in effect on legal holidays as well as Saturdays or Sundays as it is on these days that the greatest number of people congregate in and about the Klamath River.

Supplementary Comment.

While not lying strictly within the purview of the appointing resolution, there are two matters which came to the committee's attention in the course of its investigation which the committee deems important enough for comment.

It was observed that several property owners, particularly along the upper reaches of the Klamath River, have fenced in their properties in such manner as to prevent members of the public from having access to the Klamath at these points. The committee condemns this practice as it feels that no riparian land owners should be able to close any part of this great stream to the sport-loving public and particularly in view of the fact that the fish in the Klamath are an ocean-run fish and the adjoining land owners are in no way responsible for their existence.

From an examination of the United States Biological Research Report of 1936 the committee finds that there are numerous small dams and blockades on a number of the tributaries of the Klamath and that most of these dams and blockades have been abandoned for many years and serve no purpose except that they prevent the salmon and steelhead from running up such streams to spawn.

The committee recommends that the California Division of Fish and Game take prompt measures toward having these useless obstructions removed Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 6.

A resolution to propose to the people of the State of California, an amendment to the Constitution of the State by amending section 1a of Article VI, relating to the Judicial Council.

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That the Legislature of the State of California, at its fifty-second regular session, commencing on the third day of January, 1937, two-thirds of all the members elected to each of the houses thereof voting in favor hereof, hereby proposes to the people of the State of California that the Constitution of said State be amended as follows.

First—That section 1a of Article VI of the Constitution of the State of California be amended to read as follows:

Section 1a. There shall be a Judicial Council. It shall consist of the Chief Justice or acting Chief Justice, and of two Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, two Justices of District Courts of Appeal, three judges of trial courts, one of whom shall be a judge of an inferior court, assigned by the Chief Justice to sit thereon for terms of two years; provided, that if any judge so assigned shall cease to be a judge of the court from which he is assigned, his term shall forthwith terminate, three members of the State Bar of California appointed by the Board of Governors of the State Bar to sit thereon for terms of two years; two lay members appointed by the Governor of this State to sit thereon for terms of two years; the chairman then in office of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, and the chairman then in office of the Judiciary Committee of the Assembly; provided, that whenever there shall be more than one Judiciary Committee in either the Senate or the Assembly, the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the Assembly, respectively, shall designate the Chairman of a Judiciary Committee who shall be a member of the Judiciary Council. The Chief Justice or acting Chief Justice shall be chairman. No act of the council shall be valid unless concurred in by eight members.

The Judicial Council shall from time to time:

(1) Meet at the call of the chairman or as otherwise provided by it.

(2) Survey the condition of business in the several courts with a view to simplifying and improving the administration of justice

(3) Submit such suggestion to the several courts as may seem in the interest of uniformity and the expedition of business.

(4) Report to the Governor and Legislature at the commencement of each regular session with such recommendations as it may deem proper.

(5) Adopt or amend rules of practice and procedure for the several courts not inconsistent with laws that are now or that may hereafter be in force, and the council shall submit to the Legislature, at each regular session thereof, its recommendations with reference to amendments of, or changes in, existing laws relating to practice and procedure.

(6) Adopt or amend rules of judicial conduct governing all judges in this State.

(7) Exercise such other functions as may be provided by law.

The chairman shall seek to expedite judicial business and to equalize the work of the judges, and shall provide for the assignment of any judge to another court of a like or higher jurisdiction to assist a court or judge whose calendar is congested, to act for a judge who is disqualified or unable to act, or to sit and hold court where a vacancy in the office of judge has occurred.

Motion to Print Report in Journal.

On motion of Mr. Donihue, the following report of the Special Assembly Committee on Auditing was ordered printed in the Journal:

REPORT OF THE SPECIAL ASSEMBLY COMMITTEE ON AUDITING.

To the Honorable William Moseley Jones, Speaker, and to the Members of the Assembly of the California Legislature, Fifty-Second Session, 1937:

The Special Assembly Committee on Auditing was created by a resolution adopted by the Assembly during the fifty-first session of the State Legislature, copy of which resolution is attached hereto and made a part of this report.

Following the adoption of the resolution and pursuant to its provisions, the Speaker of the Assembly appointed the following members of the Assembly as members of said committee.

Leon M. Donihue, Chairman, Fifteenth District;
Ford A. Chatters, Thirty-Eighth District;
C. C. Cottrell, Thirty-First District;
Ralph W. Evans, Forty-Sixth District;
C. Don Field, Forty-Third District.

From the time of the appointment of the committee it has continuously functioned until the date of this report. Meetings of the commitee have been held in Sacramento, San Francisco, Oakland, San Jose, Los Angeles, and Long Beach.

The oral testimony given before the committee extends over approximately 5,000 pages. The reports of the investigators, including auditors and accountants, are voluminous and this report is, of necessity, limited only to the more important of the matters investigated.

The committee wishes to acknowledge the cooperation of Governor Frank F. Merriam, who came to its assistance by appropriating to the committee $20,000 from his secret service fund after the original Assembly appropriation of $5,000 had been exhausted

Summary of Findings and Recommendations.

Within the time at its disposal, the committee carried its investigation into several phases of State Government, which are treated in detail in the body of the report. These include: State auditing procedure; administration of tax law, particularly the sales tax and gasoline tax statutes, by the State Board of Equalization; liquor administration; and administration of the Horse Racing Act, by the California Horse Racing Board.

1. AUDITING.

Finding: The State of California, with more than $400,000,000 handled in its biennial transactions, has no thorough or complete system of auditing and accounting in its administrative departments. The major auditing of departmental budgets that has been attempted has been in the nature of a checking of the additions and subtractions; that is, the balancing of departmental reports, and even this work at the time your committee made its examination was from two to seven years behind current departmental fiscal transactions. We are happy to report that following our examination, additional help was employed to bring this work up to date. There has been very little, if any, auditing that did go beyond departmental reports for the purpose of determining whether the taxpayer was receiving value received for tax dollars spent.

Sound policy dictates independence for auditors. It likewise dictates that the Legislature, having made appropriations and specifications for specified purposes, should most carefully and zealously seek to ascertain that the mandates of the laws had been followed. It should also decide whether administration was economical and efficient. Members of the Legislature are responsible to the people and are aware of the burden of the taxation.

Recommendations: A permanent standing Committee on State Audits and Accounts should be formed by the Legislature composed of members of both houses. At the outset, it might be advisable to proceed slowly and merely require the present auditing staff or agencies to make such special audits as the joint committee may request and to report to the joint committee all special and regular audits made. Such audit reports and findings shall include all material required by said committee.

It may be as time goes on and as the joint committee profits by its accumulated experience, the joint committee and the Legislature may see the wisdom of having full control over the selection and management of the State auditing personnel, as is in effect in some foreign and domestic governments. However, for the present this committee recommends only the first step and leaves the rest for whatever experience may determine to be the best.

2. ADMINISTERING OF TAX LAW.

According to the testimony of those engaged in administering the Sales Tax Law, large sums estimated as high as $2,000,000 in the Los Angeles area alone, since the inception of the act have escaped collection; in seeking the cause of this weakness, the committee found that some confusion or inefficiency would naturally be present in the early period of the law's application, which confusion and inefficiency probably would be eliminated as experience developed familiarity with the problems involved A more serious cause in the loss of the collection of the tax has been due to the fact that reports of errors in the tax returns and reports of delinquencies in the payment of the tax and miscellaneous reports requiring investigation, auditing, and possibly adjustments in the field, have been held up too long in the Sacramento office of the State Board of Equalization. The committee is not able to say whether the delay in sending these reports to the various divisions is excusable or not; however, if the fact should be that an enlarged personnel is necessary to speed up the handling of sales tax returns, the committee wishes to point out that the increased cost would undoubtedly be returned to the State many fold, stopping evasions and delinquencies.

The State Board of Equalization also is charged with the duty of assessing and levying the gas tax and the truck taxes, but in these instances payments are made directly to the Controller.

Recommendations: In studying the mechanics of levying and collecting taxes, your committee had the benefit and advice of various State officials experienced and familiar with the subject and university professors and certified public accountants who had given special attention to the subject. Practically all the authorities were agreed on the proposition that it was not the best arrangement to have the tax levying and the tax collecting functions in any one governmental agency. They were further agreed that it was the best modern practice to have a State Tax Commission handle the levy or assessment of all State taxes, payment of which should be made to another State department

It appears to your committee that in recent years the State Board of Equalization has been placed in charge of administering laws dealing with subjects entirely outside of the purpose for which the State Board of Equalization originally was designed and created.

Your committee believes that the levy and assessment of all taxes now being handled by the State Board of Equalization be placed in charge of a new State Tax Commission, and that the taxation system of the State, in so far as the levy and collection of taxes is concerned, be hereafter aimed at centralizing the levying with this State Tax Commission and the collecting with some other department of the government, possibly under the Treasurer's office.

There are, of course, many ways of creating a new tax commission, several of which may be equally effective in attaining an independent, impartial, and efficient commission.

The Legislature will no doubt have various ideas on this particular phase of the subject. As a suggestion and beginning point, the committee points out that a tax commission of five, appointed by different officials or departments of the government, would accomplish the desired objective; for example, one member to be appointed by each of the following: Governor, Controller, Treasurer, Senate, and Assembly. We would recommend that their terms be for six years and that they be staggered so that experienced persons would always be in office.

3. LIQUOR ADMINISTRATION—BOARD OF EQUALIZATION

Finding: The committee found State liquor control and enforcement inefficient and somewhat chaotic, largely due to the lack of uniform enforcement throughout the State. This condition was partially due to the practice of permitting each board member to determine the policy of enforcement within his district. This practice the committee vigorously condemns as it is a circumvention of the intention of the Liquor Control Act, which contemplated a five member board control instead of one man control in each of four districts.

At this writing, this condition has been partially corrected by placing liquor enforcement under the control of the Chief Liquor Enforcement Officer, which tends at least towards uniform enforcement.

The evidence gathered by this committee on liquor licensing and enforcement does not reflect with credit on the State Board of Equalization, upon whom rests the responsibility for administering the Beverage Control Act. Your committee could list innumerable instances of lax enforcement methods that permitted a certain amount of corruption and that have made the public skeptical of the possibility of an honest administration of this act. Numerous instances of irregularity in law enforcement are presented in the report section on liquor control and in the transcript of committee hearings on file with this report.

The taxation phase of liquor control investigation showed serious inefficiency, resulting in evasion of liquor excise taxes and in some instances the sale of bootleg liquor in licensed places.

Recommendation: The administration of the liquor laws should be placed in an Alcoholic Beverage Commission, divorced entirely from the State Board of Equalization, which is primarily a tax adjusting body. It would be advisable to provide for an appointive commission of five or seven members with staggered terms of sufficient length to remove them as far as possible from outside selfish influences seeking special favors. This commission might well be selected in the manner hereinbefore suggested for a State Tax Commission.

The committee, in making this recommendation, has not been unmindful of the advantage of governmental control under a system that would remove the profit motive from the distribution of liquor. The committee, however, has attempted to deal with the problem in a practical way. The fact is that the people themselves have voted for private operation within the past few years and in view of the tremendous investments now in the business, it has seemed to your committee that a recommendation so extreme at this time would not be acceptable.

4. ADMINISTRATION OF HORSE RACING ACT—STATE HORSE RACING BOARD

This subject has been fully covered by this committee in reports previously filed with the Assembly—see majority report on file in the Assembly Daily Journal of January 18, 1937, and minority report in Assembly Daily Journal of January 20, 1937.

During the course of this committee's investigation into the affairs of the State Board of Equalization, it was called to the attention of the committee that the section of the State Constitution listing the officers of the State subject to impeachment by the Legislature does not include members of the State Board of Equalization. Your committee can see no reason for an exception in the case of that office, and believes that those members should be answerable to the Legislature in the same manner as are the several other elective officials named.

Your committee therefore recommends a constitutional amendment to make this correction.

Resolution.

WHEREAS, The subject of finances is at the present time one of the most important subjects confronting the State; and

WHEREAS, A check on the expenditure of State money is equally as important as the raising of State money; and

WHEREAS, The State auditing is now done by the Department of Finance and the head of that department is appointed by the Governor; and

WHEREAS, The heads of the various departments to be audited also are appointed by the Governor, with the result that the auditing department is directly under the control of the Executive who, through his appointive powers, is responsible for the administration of the various departments to be audited; and

WHEREAS, It is generally recognized and conceded that every audit in private as well as State business should be absolutely independent and free from any superior control or influence; and further

WHEREAS, Under the system now in effect auditing of some of the departments of the State is done only after intervals of two to six years time, which is a condition that should be changed; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the Assembly, That a Special Assembly Committee on Auditing, consisting of five members of the Assembly, be appointed by the Speaker to study the financial affairs and auditing systems and conditions of the State, and its various departments, and to report thereon to the Legislature at its fifty-second regular session; and be it further

Resolved, That all officers and employees of the State shall furnish to the committee such assistance, information and access to records as the committee request; and be it further

Resolved, That the committee is authorized to do all things necessary to make a complete investigation of the matters herein referred to and to require a production of, and access to, books, documents, reports, and papers of every kind, to issue subpenas to compel the attendance of witnesses and to procure testimony. Each member of the committee is hereby authorized to administer oaths and all the provisions of Article XIII of Chapter II of Title I of Part III of the Political Code, relating to the attendance and assemblage of witnesses before the Legislature and committees thereof shall apply to the committee created by this resolution, and the committee is hereby authorized to sit during the session of the Legislature and during the interval between sessions, at such places in the State as the committee shall from time to time determine; and be it further

Resolved, That for the purpose of paying the expenses of the committee and the members thereof, the sum of $5,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby set apart, reserved and appropriated out of the contingent fund of the Assembly, payments to be made by warrants of the State Controller drawn against the contingent fund upon written order of the chairman of the committee.

Section I. Auditing and Accounting.

AUDITING PROCEDURE.

The State of California makes no adequate auditing of its State expenditures. This is true, notwithstanding the fact that it annually collects more revenues from its citizens than does most any other State Government in the Union.

In brief, the State sees to it that the records that it does get are correct on their face, but no comprehensive audit is made by any disinterested auditor to ascertain whether the goods and services paid for are actually delivered and rendered, and whether the State gets "value received."

Post-Auditing Far Behind.

Specifically, the committee found at the time of its investigations, the following:

1. The audits that have been made for at least the past 20 years have not been adequate.
2. That bond redemptions and coupon payments have not been completely audited since 1915.
3. That the State Treasurer ordinarily holds in his vaults from $175,000,000 to $185,000,000 in securities, and that two audits only have been made of these in the past five years.
4. That the deposit account of the State's fiscal agent in New York had never been completely audited and reconciled with the Treasurer's records.
5. That interest upon State money held in deposit in banks had not been checked in detail by the auditing agency of the State; and that the banks do not make simultaneous reports to the State Treasurer and State Controller of money flow, so that the Controller is dependent upon the Treasurer for his advices.
6. That an audit of the $150,000 revolving fund in the Treasurer's Office had never been made by the auditing agency of the State.
7. That the revolving funds of several departments had been misused frequently by some of the employees thereof, in some instances for personal accommodations.
8. That $3,000,000 of the State's money is split into 99 revolving funds and that many of them have never been properly audited.
9. That there was considerable padding of expense claims in the transportation of prisoners to State institutions by the San Francisco sheriff's office, under the administration of a former sheriff of that city and county.

10. That the Department of Finance, charged with the duty of post-auditing and making the audit of State finances, was from two to seven years behind in the performance of its duty. Within a few weeks after this committee began its labors, the staff of auditors was materially increased and several new assignments begun, but there is no reasonable prospect that all State bureaus, boards, commissions and offices can be completely audited for several years.

In all fairness to the Department of Finance, it must be admitted that the money allowed them in the budget for auditing was not sufficient to permit full and complete audits that were necessary for a proper safeguarding of the State's interest.

Proper Auditing Requisites.

Without the finances to employ a large staff of auditors, nor the time to permit an extended investigation, this committee was able to do little more than ascertain the nature and extent of the auditing that has been done.

The committee's principal efforts were to investigate the circumstances and conditions surrounding the auditing done by the State, the manner in which audits were made and concluded, and whether the machinery provided by law was adequate for its purpose.

It should be noted here that numerous recommendations made by the auditors of the Department of Finance were never carried out by the particular department involved. This illustrates the need for an absolutely independent system of auditing, either by an outside auditing agency, or by a staff of auditors responsible and accountable to the Legislature, and not to the department whose books of account they are required to audit.

In addition to the pre-auditing of claims, performed by the Controller, there are two kinds of post-auditing which should be done to insure that the State of California gets value for its dollars.

One necessary kind of auditing is concerned with auditing the books, vouchers, records and accounts of the several departments, to ascertain whether the balances struck by the department agree with the total of items representing receipts and expenditures. The second sort of auditing, which is never overlooked in private business, is based upon the correctness of the records, but which goes much further. It seeks to find out whether the reported expenditures were in fact made, and whether the State of California got full consideration for taxpayers' money spent. The committee was unable to discover any auditing of the latter kind which is being done.

Efficiency of Administration Not Investigated

There is a prevailing view that the department or board charged with the administration of a law is in duty bound to spend the State's revenues as directed by law, and to get full consideration therefor—but it is not sufficient that the head of each department is responsible by law for expenditures made by his department. It is the function of auditors to see that it is being and has been done.

Changes should be made in the law to affirmatively require that complete and intensive post-auditing be made. Legal, efficient and economical administration of the laws governing the handling and expenditure of State funds would appear to be not less important than accurate bookkeeping records for the shelves.

Independent Auditing a Crying Need.

If our auditing system is intended to do no more than re-check the accuracy and completeness of the figures of departments, we might well save the State the cost of much of its auditing. But it is certain that taxpayers expect the State Government to watch, with jealous care, the spending of the half billion which California will collect from its taxpayers during the next two years. Clearly, if the execution of our laws is to be assuredly legal, efficient and business like, there must be changes in the auditing of the State.

Auditing a Guide Toward Economy.

In the opinion of this committee, default in the performance of auditing can be ended by the creation of an independent State Bureau of Audits and Accounts. It should be fully separate from every agency which collects or expends public funds. The laws should be sufficiently broad to permit and require the bureau to determine whether revenue laws are properly administered, and whether economy and efficiency have been practiced by department heads and employees. Cost of the bureau would be saved many times over. Elimination of leaks in revenue collection would result in greater efficiency and economy of administration.

EXPENSE ACCOUNTS.

The far-flung business of the State of California provides an additional means of wastage of the State's revenues. Payment of living expenses and transportation charges of public officers and employees annually costs the State a large sum of money.

Boards which, under the law, have to hold meetings at stated times in Sacramento, and officials who have duties to perform in various cities of the State all collect the traveling costs, including hotels and meals, from the State. Much of this, but far from all, is strictly legitimate.

In other words, the head of a department who comes from Los Angeles can continue to "live" in Los Angeles during his entire tenure of office, and if he spends most of his time in Sacramento or elsewhere, he draws $8 a day in addition to his salary. A State car, of course, is also assigned to the department head

It is not customary in private business to pay an employee's living expenses in the city where he spends most of his time. The same rule ought to apply to the public's business. Regardless of legal domicile, no living expenses should be paid an employee when incurred in the city where he actually spends the most of his time. One accepting public office is presumed to accept it for the opportunity to render a service to the public and is paid therefor by the salary provided by law.

Another habit of recent years has been attendance at conventions. Results are of questionable value, and the cost, measured in dollars and inattention to duty, has been great. It would seem desirable that the lesser conventions be ignored more often. The executive head can end this by refusing to permit approval of many out-of-State trips.

Your committee has not made a careful and detailed study of the "wandering evil" that would permit it to recommend specific legislation at this time as a cure. It is our suggestion that a thorough survey and study of this situation be made by the present committee on governmental reorganization and that said committee submit corrective legislation to a subsequent session of the Legislature that will eliminate abuses resulting from this practice. Such an investigation could be conducted entirely in Sacramento and would pay for itself many times over.

1. That the State Board of Control be authorized to make rules and regulations in regard to reimbursable expenditures of all State employees and officers.
2. That out-of-State trips be curtailed.
3. That meetings of boards located in Sacramento be more often held there.
4. That a long range survey of the expense account problem be made.

Section II. Taxation and Regulation of Liquor Traffic.

(Agency: State Board of Equalization.)

LIQUOR CONTROL.

Rumors of irregularity and evidence of dissatisfaction with the California liquor control system preceded the committee's investigation. Another legislative agency, the Senate Civil Service Committee headed by Senator Sanborn Young of Los Gatos, during 1935, uncovered evidence of corruption of liquor regulation. When the Senate Civil Service Committee made these discoveries, removal of certain liquor officers in southern California resulted.

SYMPTOMS OF CONTROL FAILURE

The revelations made to the Senate Civil Service Committee were not the only symptoms of failure of California liquor control. Keeping pace with rumors of graft was an increasing public conviction that an independent liquor control commission must be created. For example, the California League of Municipalities early in 1936 passed a resolution demanding removal of liquor control powers from the Board of Equalization.

This committee approached its investigation of liquor control from a standpoint of taxation, and found that full development of conditions required exhaustive examinations of methods of regulation. In both fields, taxation and regulation, the committee found inefficiency.

It was strikingly illustrated that in most instances whenever the interests of good administration in the general public's interest clashed with selfish group desires, backed up with a certain amount of voting support, the latter group won out and sound administration suffered. This is the essence of the weakness of placing liquor control in a public agency that can not afford, from a political standpoint, to antagonize too many minority groups.

AMENDMENTS NEEDED NOW

In presenting the detail of findings, the committee will make two general divisions: (1) Taxation, and (2) Regulation. The committee has recommended an independent liquor commission, to be created through a constitutional amendment. The mechanics of amending the Constitution make it obvious that some time must pass before such a commission can be created and can begin to function. The hereinafter recommended amendments to the statutory Alcoholic Beverage Control Act should be made at once, in order that liquor control conditions immediately can be improved as much as possible, pending creating of a new liquor commission.

TAXATION.

Excise taxes, at rates varying from 2 cents a gallon on beer and light wines to 80 cents a gallon on distilled spirits, are the principal source of revenue to the State from the traffic in liquor.

Tax stamps are the means of collecting the excise tax on distilled spirits The committee found that the Board of Equalization, in 1935, abandoned the essential protective features of the tax stamps—serial numbers—and attempted to award to a contractor with influential connections, a highly lucrative tax stamp contract.

Excise Liquor Tax Stamps.

Under the provisions of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, section 33, it is provided that the excise liquor tax stamps shall be of such size, type and character as the board shall determine, and of such character, design and process as to insure to the State the maximum amount of protection against counterfeiting According to Rule 15 of the regulations of the State Board of Equalization governing traffic in alcoholic beverages, it was provided that these stamps be serially numbered The action of the board in this regard was subsequently abandoned and stamps now bear no mark by which they may be traced, nor do they provide any means by which the packages to which they are subsequently affixed can be traced back from the hands of the retailer to the wholesaler

The information presented to the committee is that every State, including the District of Columbia, using liquor tax stamps, uses stamps serially numbered The Federal Government requires that its excise liquor tax stamps likewise be serially numbered The purpose is to insure a means of identifying and tracing particular packages of liquor. By requiring the person affixing the stamp to the package to keep a record of the number of stamps, the contents of the package to which it is affixed and the person to whom it is sold or delivered, this end would be attained.

This committee recommends:

(1) That the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act be amended so as to provide that excise tax stamps be serially numbered; and be affixed over outlet of bottle or container in same manner as affixed by Federal Government, that the wholesaler keep a written record showing the serial number of each stamp purchased, the nature of the contents of the package to which it is affixed, and the name and address of the person, firm or corporation to whom such package is transferred; that the wholesaler be required at monthly intervals to file a duplicate of such record, verified by oath, with the agency responsible.

(2) That laws of the State governing award of public contracts be strengthened to assure competitive bidding and award on merit, with, however the requirement that California concerns, California labor and California products be given the preference, all other things being equal

Tax Collection Inefficiency

In the actual collection of the excise tax on distilled spirits, the committee found laxity in enforcement.

Section 22 of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act provides that the licensed wholesalers shall report quarterly to the Board of Equalization the amount of alcoholic beverages manufactured or sold during the preceding quarter

Section 30 exempts from the excise tax all alcoholic beverages sold and actually exported from this State by a licensed manufacturer or importer-exporter. This section requires every manufacturer and importer to report such exportation to the board in such detail as the board might require, otherwise the exemption becomes invalid. The section further directs the exporter to execute an export certificate, and that such certificate must be completed and on file in the office of the board within 30 days after the close of the calendar month in which the shipments were made, and that the filing of any certificate beyond the 30-day period is of no effect in claiming the exemption.

Also exempted from the tax are sales by a jobber or wholesaler to another bona fide, licensed wholesaler.

$2,000,000 Revenue Loss

It was testified before the committee, by a high executive officer of the Board of Equalization, that the State failed to collect the excise tax on 25 per cent of all distilled spirits sold at retail in California The Board of Equalization officials said that the liquor escaping the excise tax largely was bootleg The same officer said the State collected $7,000,000 in liquor taxes during the preceding year That figure represented the amount of excise stamps sold to wholesalers. On the basis of that figure, if 25 per cent of the liquor sold in California escaped the excise tax, then it is apparent that the State lost revenue of more than $2,000,000 during the year.

All liquor sold at retail is subject to the sales tax, as well as the excise tax The Board of Equalization officials admitted that they had never made an effort to compare the amount of liquor on which retail sales tax was paid with the amount on which excise tax was paid. If the sales tax showed sale of liquor in excess of the amount on which excise tax was paid, a ready means of identifying either sale of bootleg or sale of untaxed legal liquor would be in the hands of administrative officials

One other readily available method of determining whether the State was collecting fully the excise tax on liquor was found to have been either overlooked or avoided by the Board of Equalization. That method was a comparison of gallonage on which State tax was paid with gallonage reported by wholesalers to the Federal Government. Board of Equalization officials admitted they had never attempted this reconciliation.

No Check With United States Reports.

Prior to the August, 1936, hearing of the committee, no comparison of the records of any manufacturer or importer of alcoholic beverages had been made with the returns and reports that such manufacturer or importer filed with the Federal Government. The Federal officers, charged with the collection of revenue on the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages, exert a far more stringent supervision over manufacturers, importers and exporters of alcoholic beverages than do those of the State of California, and a comparison of the returns and reports filed with the Board of Equalization with those filed with the Federal Alcohol Tax Unit would give much valuable information to State officers.

Having determined that the Board of Equalization failed to use two obvious methods of checking on excise tax collections—i. e., comparison with retail sales tax returns and comparison with Federal alcohol tax unit records—the committee attempted to learn if the board had made any audit of its own of the records of its licensed wholesalers and importers.

Prior to the latter part of 1936, when the committee was engaged in this phase of its investigation, only 10 per cent of the manufacturers and wholesalers of distilled spirits had had their books checked by any of the auditors of the Board of Equalization and, as stated above, no comparison had been made, even in the case of the 10 per cent that had been audited, of the records of such wholesalers with the records of sales filed by them with the Federal Government.

Tax Deficiency Exposed.

In this regard, the committee took at random six representative wholesale firms in the State of California, and had a comparison made between the amount of excise tax liquor stamps purchased by these wholesalers with the number of gallons of distilled spirits the same wholesalers reported to the Federal Government that they had sold covering the same period of time. It was disclosed that the reports made to the Federal Government showed that they had sold distilled spirits amounting to one-sixth more than the gallonage for which they had purchased excise tax stamps from the State of California.

For the year covered by the investigation $7,000,000 worth of excise liquor stamps had been purchased by the wholesalers in this State. If this sum in fact represents but five-sixths of the amount of taxable liquor that was sold by the wholesalers, it is manifest that the State had lost in taxes the sum of $1,400,000. Allowing for necessary adjustments that may have to be made in these figures due to causes not developed in the course of the examination, nevertheless, the differential is so great as to justify some affirmative action being taken whereby it is made mandatory on the State officers to check the Federal and State reports filed by the wholesalers.

Export Claims Not Checked.

When investigating whether any check was made to ascertain if the export certification filed, and for which exemption from taxes was claimed, did in fact represent alcoholic beverages that had been exported from the State, it was learned that no such check had been made by the Board of Equalization. Thus, exemptions from taxes could be procured by any manufacturer or exporter merely by filing a certificate of exportation within 30 days and claiming pro rata deduction in the tax payable.

Section 33 of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act provides that the tax assessed upon the sale of distilled spirits shall be collected by means of attaching to each package containing such distilled spirits stamps equivalent to the amount of the tax imposed upon the sale of the contents of the package. The act further provides that the stamps shall be delivered by the wholesalers to the holders of on-sale and off-sale licenses when such licensees purchase the liquor from the wholesalers, and the duty is placed upon the purchaser to immediately attach the necessary stamp or stamps to each bottle or container in the package.

The committee learned that this section of the law was subject to serious abuse with resulting loss of revenue to the State. There were instances where the wholesaler delivered to the retailer the unbroken packages of distilled spirits accompanied by the requisite amount of stamps, and the retailer failed to affix the stamps to the containers. The retailer returned the stamps, through various channels, to the wholesaler and received credit therefor. Other instances came to the committee's attention wherein a retailer affixed the stamps to but one bottle or container and refilled such bottle from others of like character on which no stamps had been affixed.

Unlawful Wholesale Exemptions.

Other testimony before the committee was that in many instances individuals purchased, from a wholesaler, distilled spirits upon the representation that the purchaser was himself a wholesaler. Under the law, where one wholesaler sells to a retailer he must accompany such sale with the requisite amount of stamps. In many instances the person represented to be a wholesaler was not one in fact, but was a retailer who used the liquor so purchased to refill bottles on which stamps had been affixed.

The committee was advised that the reason why excise tax stamps were required to be placed on the bottles by the retailer, instead of the wholesaler, was merely because of the greater convenience in having the retailer do so, than to cause the wholesaler to affix the stamps at the time the liquor is received on his premises, and that to have the stamps affixed by the wholesaler would destroy some of the beauty of the original package. The committee is of the opinion that neither the convenience of the wholesaler, nor the aesthetic effect of the original package adequately compensate the State of California for the loss of revenue running into seven figures.

Lack of Agency Cooperation.

There should be brought to the Legislature's attention the lack of cooperation between the State Bureau of Food and Drugs and the Board of Equalization, in so far as there are violations of the Food and Drugs Act by the retail sellers of alcoholic beverages. The evidence discloses that in many instances where a seller of alcoholic beverages had diluted the contents of an original package or had substituted a different product for the one originally contained therein, or had added some substance to the original package, that arrests have been made by the officers of the Bureau of Food and Drugs. It should be remembered that one of the channels through which untaxed liquor is sold to the public is where a retail liquor dealer takes an original container on which the tax has been paid and refills or dilutes the same with an untaxed preparation. This results in loss of revenue to the State and accounts for part of the $2,000,000 annual loss heretofore referred to.

In each case where a conviction was obtained on charges of bottle or liquor dilution, the Bureau of Food and Drugs reported to the State Board of Equalization the detail of the offense. In no case, up to the time of our inquiry, had the board taken action.

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Act fails to provide any penalty for the possession of untaxed alcoholic beverage. Therefore, if an employee of the Board of Equalization apprehends an individual in possession of a quantity of untax-paid alcohol, there is no penalty against the wrongdoer now in the law, the only penalty is confiscation of the liquor. Further, if this individual is transporting the untax-paid alcohol by means of an automobile, truck or other vehicle, the act does not give the employee of the State of California the authority or power to confiscate the car or truck in which the transportation is being made.

Excise Tax Recommendations.

(1) That the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act be amended to require a reconciliation of excise tax-paid liquor gallonage with retail sales tax-paid liquor gallonage. This may call for provision in the Retail Sales Tax Act for a proper segregation of tax paid on liquor sales.

(2) That a study be made of the form of report required from wholesalers by the Federal Government, and that a similar form of report be adopted for use by the State. This will facilitate comparisons between such reports, and do away with any pretended excuse that the difference in the forms provided is responsible for any discrepancies that may occur in the figures.

(3) That wherever wholesalers and manufacturers are required to render a periodical report of their activities to the liquor enforcement agency, that a failure to do so, for a period of 30 days after the report should have been filed, shall automatically cause a suspension of the particular license or permit.

(4) That the Liquor Division auditing staff be increased to permit necessary audits, checks and reconciliations of books, records and reports affecting collection of the excise tax on liquor at intervals of not more than 90 days.

(5) That the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act be amended to require liquor tax stamps must be affixed on each bottle either at the point of manufacture or by the wholesaler or importer, at the point where the liquor first comes to rest within the jurisdiction of the State of California.

(6) That the laws governing the Bureau of Foods and Drugs, State Department of Health, be amended to require that officers of the bureau shall immediately notify the State Liquor Administrator, or his successor, and the Chief Liquor Control Officer in the district involved, or his successor, of all cases, of arrests by officers of the bureau for liquor bottle refilling or dilution; and that the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act be amended to provide that State liquor officers must investigate, and where warranted take action toward license suspension or revocation.

(7) That the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act be amended to provide adequate penalties for possession of untax-paid liquor, and to further provide for the confiscation of any vehicle of transportation used in transporting untax-paid alcoholic beverages.

Beer and Wine Taxation.

Wine and beer enjoy a favored position in the tax-regulatory structure of California Liquor Laws. Instead of the 80-cent a gallon excise tax borne by distilled spirits, beer and wine pay the nominal tax of 2 cents a gallon.

In such a situation, it is obvious that the marketing of an alcoholic product with the semblance and effect of distilled spirits and the tax and regulatory status of wine would open great possibilities of commercial profit.

The drinking public by now is familiar with concoctions known as "ready mixed" cocktails. The advertising represents these drinks as "highballs" or "fizzes," or some other variety of hard liquor drink. Originally, the incentive for these preparations was the desire to find some means of purveying hard liquor by the drink, at a time when the first California liquor amendment specifically prohibited sale by the drink. To evade this prohibition, the manufacturers conceived the premise that ready-mixed cocktails and fizzes, when sufficiently diluted with carbonated water, might have the approximate alcoholic content by volume of wine. These ready-mixed drinks appeared on the market, advertising themselves as "cocktails," but legally claiming refuge within the definition of wine.

Incentive for Concoctions.

After the California liquor control amendment was modified to permit sale of hard liquor, by the drink with meals in bona fide eating places, the original incentive for these ready-mixed "wine cocktails" was removed. But other attractions remained for the manufacturers. If these drinks could be maintained in the status of wine, they could be sold under a tax of 2 cents a gallon, while competing made-to-order cocktails paid on their alcoholic ingredient 80 cents a gallon. Further, a wine classification permitted sale of these products in wine and beer taverns, enjoying a low license rate, while restaurants and bars serving hard liquor paid a high license fee.

These were the circumstances and motives which the committee encountered in its investigation of the "Jinricky" cocktails. Certain companies had placed these cocktails on the market, under the trade names "Tux Old Fashioned," "Tux Highball," "Tux Fiz," "Jinricky Highball," "Jinricky Sour," "Kick's Highball," and "Kick's Cocktail." It will be noted that the trade name used on each of these concoctions was one designed to convey to the public that the contents were in fact distilled spirits.

Federal Classification.

The State Board of Equalization, in 1935, had directed the discontinuance of the sale of these products on the ground that they were distilled spirits and at that time could not legally be sold in the State of California. It is interesting to record that these products were classified by the Federal Government as hard liquor or distilled spirits, and every bottle had affixed to it the United States Government strip stamp, required to be affixed to all distilled spirit beverages, which evidenced the tax collected by the Government therefor.

Later on, the State Board of Equalization changed this ruling back to a wine classification, upon a showing made before it that the formula used in manufacturing the products had been changed to comply with the law.

Much evidence was introduced before this committee as to just what was done in order to change into wine that which the Federal Government considered to be distilled spirits, for the purpose of taxation by the Board of Equalization. Much jumbling of words occurred as to the meaning of subparagraphs (d) and (e) of section 2 of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, and as a result this committee is of the opinion that the definition of "distilled spirits," and "wine" should be redrafted so as to classify such products under distilled spirits.

Change in Law Needed.

(1) That the wine definition in section 2 of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act be amended so as to provide that any product obtained by the fermentation of grapes or other agricultural products, whether or not containing natural or added sugar, that is fortified with grape brandy, ethyl alcohol, spirits of wine, whisky, rum, brandy, gin or other distilled spirits, including all dilutions and mixtures thereof, wherein alcoholic content is increased by ten per cent or more of alcohol by volume, shall be classified and taxed as distilled spirits.

The investigation in this phase also disclosed that a closer supervision should be maintained and provided for, over the wine and beer industry and the sale of wine and beer at retail.

At the present time, all that is required is that the manufacturer or importer render a monthly report to the State Board of Equalization showing the amount of such beverages sold by the manufacturer or importer, during the preceding calendar month. While in most instances the honesty of the manufacturer and importer will insure to the State the full return of the tax, nevertheless, the law is not stringent enough to do away with those loopholes by which unscrupulous manufacturers can defraud the State of a large amount of tax.

Federal Checking Method.

The committee is informed that as a check upon the amount of sales made by wholesalers, manufacturers and importers of beers and wines, the Federal Government has evolved a plan whereby it can compute, to some degree of mathematical certainty, what tax should have been paid, based upon formulas showing the amount of wines and beers that should have been produced by the use of certain quantities of hops, grapes, etc. The committee has been unable to get full details as to the Federal plan.

The committee recommends:

That an investigation of the Federal plan be made, and the same incorporated into the laws of California, if deemed appropriate, or if the Legislature be not in session, that the same be adopted as a rule by the Board of Equalization.

Fixers and Racketeers.

An attendant evil coupled with the administration of the Liquor Control Act has been the large number of so-called "fixers," "leaches," "racketeers," "hangers-on," and people of this type with pretended political power, who claim to be able to obtain special licensing favors, fix violation complaints, and obtain special concessions from the Liquor Administration Board. This is an evil that probably will exist to some extent under any administration. Your committee, however, feels that the failure of the Board of Equalization to establish and maintain uniform regulations throughout the State of California, frequently-changed policy rulings, lack of firmness and consistency in policy, and failure to establish and carry out a vigorous policy of license revocation and punishment for liquor law violations, permitted more than ordinary chaos throughout the State under which there thrived a system of "racketeering" involving liquor dealers paying for protection to individuals claiming powerful influence. This permitted "leaches" to prey upon those honestly intending and desiring to obey the law by collecting so-called protection money.

We feel that the Board of Equalization, in its hearings, should carefully scrutinize the merits and demerits of the applicant and the application, and the facts surrounding the matter before it, and refuse to heed or consider the solicitations of individuals interceding on behalf of the applicant or the matter pending before the board. Your committee believes that the general recommendations that we have made will tend to minimize these evils.

Liquor Enforcement and Gambling.

Outstanding was the attitude taken by some enforcement officers of the Board of Equalization relative to the conduct of open gambling by and on the premises of license holders. At the hearing held in San Jose it developed that three of the more prominent road houses in the vicinity, were not only engaged in the sale of alcoholic beverages on the premises, but were conducting such sales well after the hour of two o'clock in the morning, and that on each of these premises there was being operated openly for the use of the public such prohibited games of chance as black jack, craps, roulette, etc. Investigators for the committee, though unknown in any of these places, had no difficulty in gaining admittance, purchasing chips, and gambling in each of these road houses. Such conditions are not restricted to the vicinity of San Jose. Our investigation has shown that this condition is not uncommon throughout California.

The committee inquired as to the attitude of the Board of Equalization relative to the conduct of gambling on premises where liquor is sold under State license. The reply made by Mr. Don Marshall, San Francisco liquor enforcement chief, was that the board did not concern itself with any violations of the law except violations of the provisions of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, the board had no grounds for revoking licenses, irrespective of what other public offenses and crimes might be committed by the license holder wherein he used his premises as the arena for such crime. Mr. Marshall has furthermore stated that they considered all violations of the law, other than the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, fell within the purview of the local law enforcement officers and that it was not part of their business to interfere.

The "public welfare" section of the liquor laws was enacted in order to authorize license revocation for just such offenses as gambling. Enforcement officials have ignored that section.

In addition to these major gambling games it was found that practically every retail on-sale liquor establishment was operating one or more slot machines or pin ball games, or both, upon the licensed premises. This slot machine and pin ball business has in many instances grown into a racket. The evidence disclosed that these petty gambling machines are not owned by the liquor licensee but are placed in such establishments on a commission basis, the license holder receiving anywhere from 20 per cent to 40 or 50 per cent of the amount of money going through the machines. While the amount of each individual play is small, running from 5 cents to 50 cents, the profits are enormous. Some liquor licensees testified that they cleared enough out of their percentage from the operations of the machines to pay their rent and overhead.

Slot Machine Racket.

The owners of these machines, i. e., those who place them in the establishments, had in many instances banded together in protective organizations. In some districts, rivalry between two or more of such protective organizations has been keen, and all manner and means of influence, from injuring the business of such on-sale liquor establishments to violence, has been resorted to in order that the machines of one or another operator be used exclusively.

In order to furnish additional grounds for compelling a license holder to use a particular kind of machine or the machine of a particular individual or organization, the same tactics have been resorted to as in the case of revocation of licenses. The owners of the machines claimed to have such influence with the Board of Equalization that, if individual license holders did not use their particular machine, then their licenses would be revoked.

In San Luis Obispo County a protective organization was formed to combat any efforts that would be made by the Board of Equalization to prohibit the use of these machines by the holders of liquor licenses. According to testimony before the committee, a fund was collected for the avowed purpose of influencing the members of the Board of Equalization in order that they would desist from interfering with the operation of any liquor establishment that had slot machines and pin ball games upon its premises. The evidence of this was sent to the district attorney of San Luis Obispo County.

The committee recommends:

That the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act be amended so as to provide that any wilful violations of any criminal statute of the State, including the gambling statutes, conducted and committed on the premises of a license holder, and by such license holder, or with his consent, shall constitute grounds for the immediate revocation of such license; and making it a duty of the enforcement officers of the Board of Equalization, or their successors, to enforce such provisions.

2.00 A.M. Closing Law.

Some controversy has arisen as to whether licensees engaged in the on-sale of liquor are required to desist from such sales at the hour of two o'clock in the morning. This investigation has disclosed that, in the same localities, some establishments are required to close promptly at two o'clock under penalty of losing their license, while others are allowed to run to a much later hour, in some instances not closing at all, without molestation from the enforcement officers.

The committee recommends:

That the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, and the penal statutes, be amended to make it mandatory that all places engaged in the sale of alcoholic beverages must discontinue such sales at the same hour and that making of a sale after that hour shall be cause for immediate revocation of the license.

Quarterly License Evil.

Section (8) of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act provides that all retail on-sale licenses shall be issued on a calendar year basis, and shall automatically expire at midnight on the last day of December of the year for which issued All other licenses shall be issued on the basis of a fiscal year, commencing July 1st, and ending June 30th, and shall automatically expire at midnight on the last day of June of the year for which issued.

The foregoing provisions of the act make it mandatory that all licenses issued under authority of the act shall be on a yearly basis and does not, either directly or by implication, authorize the issuance of licenses for quarterly periods

Despite the foregoing provisions of the act, the Board of Equalization has seen fit to adopt a policy whereby licenses are issued for three-month periods, and this policy has been pursued despite the fact that on July 2, 1935, a resolution of the Board of Equalization was adopted whereby it was ordered that no quarterly on-sale distilled spirits licenses be issued after the close of the year 1935. The action of the board in issuing quarterly licenses has resulted in loss of revenue to the State of California. Before showing just how this loss occurs we call attention to the fact that the issuance of quarterly licenses increases the amount of work that has to be done by the board with a corresponding increase in the cost of enforcing the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act Investigations, hearings, bookkeeping the issuance of licenses, etc., instead of having to be done but once in every 12 months as to each license, have to be done four times

System Costly to State.

Turning to the loss sustained by the State, the committee found the following interesting facts: Of all licenses issued during the first quarter of 1936, the number for which no renewals were applied for or granted for the second quarter amounted to 322. Of these holding licenses throughout the second quarter but who did not renew or were denied licenses for the third quarter the sum was 525 The licensees who did not apply for or renew their licenses for the fourth quarter, though holding licenses during the third quarter, were 565. The supervising auditor in charge of the Liquor Control Office of the State Board of Equalization has testified that the greater number of on-sale liquor licenses are issued in districts where the fee is $117.50 per quarter. It is a mere matter of figures to show that if all of these licenses had been issued to the end of the license period prescribed by the act, that the State would have received an additional $300,017.50 under this one item alone. It is debatable of course whether the same number of applicants for a quarterly license would have applied and paid for an annual license.

The committee recommends:

That under and in conformity with section (8) of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act all licenses be issued on an annual basis, and that the full fee therefor be paid when the license is originally granted.

Concealment of Ownership.

The committee discovered several instances wherein Rule 5 of the Board of Equalization has been used to defeat an order of the board revoking a license for a particular premises. Thus, where one has committed some offense or has so conducted his business in a manner that the Board of Equalization has permanently revoked such license, a subterfuge has been resorted to so as to defeat the order of the board. Some member of the family, some silent partner, or some close friend appears as an alleged bona fide purchaser of the premises and the business. As such, he applies to the board for a new license and if his record justifies the same, such license is issued. In fact, the new licensee has no interest in the place at all, and the old licensee continues to operate it under the name of the new licensee.

Interest of Manufacturer.

Attention is called to the various provisions of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act that prohibits a manufacturer, rectifier, distiller, etc., from holding any interest in an establishment holding an on-sale license. The investigation by this committee has disclosed that said sections of the act have been disregarded and that the machinery for the enforcement thereof is inadequate

The committee recommends:

(1) That the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act be amended so as to require that at the time of filing an application for an on-sale permit, such application must contain a true statement to the effect that no manufacturer, rectifier, distiller, etc., has any interest in the establishment, and as above, making it a felony to file a false statement in this regard.

(2) That the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act be further amended to provide that every holder of a liquor license must report in writing to the Board of Equalization any change in the ownership or business of such licensee, together with the names and addresses of any persons who have acquired any active or beneficial interest in the ownership, and that a failure to so report be punished with an appropriate penalty.

Prosecution Delayed.

In the course of the committee investigation it was developed that, in many instances where arrests have been made by the enforcement officers of the Board of Equalization, immediate interest was lost in the outcome of such prosecution. Instances were found where cases had been allowed to remain dormant in the dockets of the courts because no activity was shown by the enforcement officers Experience has shown that honest prosecutions promptly pressed to final judgment result either in creating a decent respect for the provisions of the law, or in the repeal of such law if it does not meet with the public approval, but an indifference to the law, shown by the persons charged with its enforcement, can produce no other result in the public mind than a contempt for such law

The committee recommends:

That the Alcoholic Beverage Control Act be amended so as to make it the duty of the liquor law enforcement officers to press to a final hearing all cases in which they have caused an arrest to be made; that such enforcement officers be required to report to their superior officer and to the State Liquor Administrator all arrests, followed by reports showing all stages and results of the particular prosecution, and making it a ground for discharge of such employees not to render such reports.

Section III. Gasoline Tax.

GASOLINE TAX.

Your committee deemed it advisable to consider the method used in assessing and collecting gasoline taxes for the State of California, but for reasons which will appear obvious, undertook no extensive investigation of the subject. Many rumors of shortages in the collection of taxes had been heard as well as rumors that the State was not receiving the full amount of tax moneys due it from gasoline because of a temperature adjustment method of measuring gasoline by reducing the actual gallonage to a 60°F basis.

The revenue laws of the State of California provide for the collection of the tax on gasoline under the act known as the "Motor Vehicle Fuel License Tax Act" and section 3 thereof is the section that applies to gasoline taxes and, in part, reads as follows:

"Said license tax shall be according to or measured by the gallonage of motor vehicle fuel refined, manufactured, produced, blended, or compounded by such distributor in this State and so distributed by him in this State."

It will be noted that the above provision of law makes the gasoline tax not a sales tax upon the consumer but a tax upon the distributor. The distributor in the majority of instances is the refinery or the large company.

The question that your committee tried to determine was whether the amount of gasoline tax collected from the consumer by the retail outlets, such as service stations, was the same in amount as that remitted to the State of California by the distributor.

Your committee employed a certified public accountant of Los Angeles to examine the books of two companies for the months of June, July, and November, 1935. These audits were designed merely as a test to determine just what method was used by the large distributors or refineries. We find that in many instances the two companies tested remitted tax payment to the State of California on the basis of the exact gallonage refined and distributed irrespective of temperature, and in many instances remitted taxes on the adjusted gallonage basis of 60°F. The difference for one company for a three months' period totaled 23,720 gallons, and for the second for a month's period, was 6,997 gallons.

We find that it is a custom of the trade to reduce gasoline pumped to a 60°F. basis on certain billings to buyers and that this custom has caused some confusion, conflicting ideas and resulting discussion as to whether the tax paid the State should be paid on the gallonage of gasoline reduced to the 60°F. basis or on the actual gallonage irrespective of temperature adjustment. For example, and in order to make this matter clear, we set forth here two sample invoices with the name of the consignee and the company left out, illustrating the 60°F billing.

Invoice No. 1

Date		At Loading Temperature 70°F.	Net Shipment at 60°F.
	Trailer 403	3625	3603
		6325	6287

Invoice No. 2.

7-15-35	Tank Car	8000	7883

From the first sample invoice you will note that in one truck and trailer 6,325 gallons were actually loaded at 70°F. and that this was reduced to 6,287 gallons at 60°F. or a difference of 38 gallons in one truck and trailer load. A further illustration exists in the second invoice of one carload lot loaded July 15, 1935, in which 8,000 gallons were loaded at 84°F. and reduced to 7,883 gallons at 60°F or a difference of 117 gallons. If the State is entitled to a gasoline tax on these differences in gallonage, as shown on the two invoices, it can readily be seen that the State has been and is losing a very large amount of revenue. So large in fact, that this committee urges that the whole subject be a matter of further study and audit. It may be expected that auditing in this field would have to be extensive and necessarily expensive but would be one that would pay for itself many times, with the further advantage that it would finally settle this controversial matter.

Conclusion.

In bringing this report to a conclusion, the committee wishes to emphasize that much remains undone. Literally hundreds of complaints, verbal and written, were received by the committee. Further, the committee's investigation frequently brought an added increment of new evidence defining proper spheres of inquiry. Within the time available to the committee, it was necessary to concentrate on those phases of investigation originally opened, leaving for future consideration other examination of governmental departments.

The investigation has disclosed that there is in this State an imperative need for a committee, vested with the powers and duties of this committee, to continue the work heretofore commenced and to investigate every branch of the State Government in order to ascertain whether it is operating in strict accordance with the law and in an efficient manner.

Bills and resolutions carrying into effect the recommendations contained in this report, are being submitted for the approval of the Legislature.

This report is being signed by the various members of the committee with the understanding that if, upon further consideration, any member of the committee wishes to file in his own behalf an additional or supplemental report, he may do so.

Respectfully submitted.

If the time for the payment of the tax or any installment thereof is extended by the commissioner, there shall be collected as part of such tax interest thereon at the rate of 6 per cent a year from the date upon which such payment should have been made if no extension had been granted until the date the tax is paid.

Interest upon the amount determined as a deficiency shall be assessed and paid at the same time as the deficiency at the rate of 6 per cent per year from the date prescribed for the payment of the tax (or, if the tax is paid in installments, from the date prescribed for the payment of the first installment) to the date the deficiency is assessed.

At any time within three years after the delinquency of any tax, penalties, and interest, or any installment thereof, the commissioner may bring an action in a court of competent jurisdiction in the county of Sacramento in the name of the people of the State of California to collect the amount delinquent, together with penalties, and interest, and such action shall be tried in the county of Sacramento unless the court, with the consent of the Attorney General, orders a change of place of trial. In such action a writ of attachment may be issued, and no bond or affidavit previous to the issuing of said attachment is required. In such action a certificate by the commissioner showing the delinquency shall be prima facie evidence of the levy of the tax, penalties, and interest, of the delinquency and of compliance by the commissioner and the State Board of Equalization with all the provisions of this act in relation to the computation and levy of the tax

At any time within which an action can be brought to collect any delinquent amounts as provided in the preceding paragraph, the commissioner may collect the tax, together with penalties and interest, in the following manner: The commissioner shall seize any property, real or personal, owned by the bank or corporation against whom the tax is assessed, and thereafter sell at public auction such property so seized, or a sufficient portion thereof, to pay the tax due hereunder, together with any interest, and any penalty or penalties imposed hereby for such delinquency, and any and all costs that may have been incurred on account of such seizure and sale Notice of such intended sale and the time and place thereof, shall be given to such delinquent bank or corporation and to all persons appearing of record to have an interest in such property, in writing at least ten days before the date set for such sale by enclosing such notice in an envelope addressed to said bank or corporation at its last known place of business in this State if any, and, in the case of any person

At any such sale, the property shall be sold by said commissioner or his duly authorized agent in accordance with law and said notice, and the commissioner shall deliver to the purchaser a bill of sale for the personal property, and a deed for any real property so sold, and such bill of sale or deed shall vest title in the purchaser. The unsold portion of any property so seized may be left at the place of sale at the risk of said bank or corporation. If, upon any such sale, the moneys so received shall exceed the amount of all taxes, interest, penalties and costs due the State from such bank or corporation, any such excess shall be returned to the bank or corporation and a receipt therefor obtained; provided, however, that if any person having an interest in or lien upon the property has filed with the commissioner prior to any such sale notice of such interest or lien the commissioner shall withhold any such excess pending a determination of the rights of the respective parties thereto by a court of competent jurisdiction.

If, for any reason, the receipt of such bank or corporation shall not be available, the commissioner shall deposit such excess moneys with the State Treasurer, as trustee for such owner, subject to the order of such bank or corporation or its successor through reorganization, merger, or consolidation, or its stockholders upon dissolution

It is expressly provided that the foregoing remedies of the State shall be cumulative and that no action taken by the commissioner shall be or be construed to be an election on the part of the State or any of its officers to pursue any remedy hereunder to the exclusion of any other remedy for which provision is made in this act."

There is hereby created within the Department of Self-Help Cooperatives a board consisting of five members, of which board the director of the department shall be a member ex officio, and shall be the executive officer of the board, and shall preside at all its meetings. 723. It is the purpose of this article to make the unemployed self-sustaining through the medium of producer and consumer cooperatives and cooperative enterprises, to organize and carry out a comprehensive unemployed cooperative work and service program to rehabilitate the unemployed, to provide for and establish proper facilities for such purposes, to relieve the taxpayers of this State from the burden of relief expenditures, to make unemployed persons and families and persons with incomes insufficient to sustain a decent condition of life self-supporting, to provide machinery capable of absorbing the shocks of unemployed relief burdens and expenditures against future economic depressions, to acquire natural resources, real estate, tools and equipment to be used by unemployed persons in producer and consumer cooperatives and cooperative enterprises coming within the provisions of this act.

723.5 Any producer and consumer cooperative desiring to qualify itself to make application for funds or for other benefits under this article, shall apply to the board for such benefits upon such terms and conditions and in such manner as the board shall prescribe.

723.6 Such application shall contain, among other things, a statement of The names of the officers of the said cooperative; the address or place of business or headquarters of said cooperative; the purpose for which the same was organized, and the date upon which the same was first qualified to conduct business, the number of members of said cooperative; the number of male members of said cooperative and the number of female members thereof; the number of families of said cooperative and the number of persons in each such family; whether or not the constitution, by-laws or other governing law of said cooperative provides that any distribution to members of accumulated surpluses is made upon a participation basis to all members directly proportionate to their participation or contribution thereto, or to the activities of said cooperative, the percentage of the membership of said cooperative of persons who are actually eligible for relief under the laws of this State or of the United States then in force and effect, as distinguished from craftsmen who may be members of such cooperative by reason of necessity for their services as instructors or supervisors; whether or not the members of said cooperative conduct the same upon a democratic basis among themselves, and in such manner that each member of such cooperative is entitled to one vote; whether or not in voting, proxies are permitted; the nature of the principal product of said cooperative; and a statement of the then existing liabilities and assets of said cooperative, and a general statement of the ownership thereof, and the manner that the said assets were accumulated by said cooperative.

723.8 After the receipt by the board of such application, which shall be received and filed by it in all cases without the payment by the applicant cooperative of any fee or charge whatsoever, the board shall fix a date for a hearing upon the said application, which hearing may or may not be public, as the board shall determine. Upon the said hearing the board shall determine the propriety of the application, and after a full and fair inquiry thereon, shall approve or reject the said application, and in approving the same, may grant the sum of money prayed for therein, or may increase or decrease the same, or may increase or decrease the allotment of real or personal property or natural resources or other assets that are applied for therein. The board shall have the power in conducting such hearings, to take testimony, subpoena witnesses, require the appearance before it of any interested parties, as in a court of law.

723.9. In passing upon said application, or upon granting any benefit sought to be obtained by any cooperative under the provisions of this article, the board shall be guided in general by the following rules of interpretation.

(a) A cooperative entitled to the benefits of this article shall be operated by its members and engaged in the production and exchange of labor, goods and services as alternative to living off Federal, State, city or county relief or private charity.

(b) A cooperative entitled to the benefits of this article shall be a self-help producer and consumer cooperative organized under a system of participant management.

(c) A cooperative entitled to the benefits of this article shall be a nonprofit organization, operating upon a democratic basis wherein each member has one vote and no proxies are allowed, and wherein any distribution to members of accumulated surpluses shall be made upon a participation basis to all members directly proportionate to their participation in the production thereof, and in which not less than 90 per cent of the persons members thereof are actually eligible for relief.

723.10. Upon the approval by the board of any such application, any grant of funds or moneys to the cooperative shall be made upon a basis of the sum of $1,500 per family for rehabilitation purposes. The board may place qualifications or restrictions upon the use of such funds of money, and upon any allotments of real or personal property or natural resources or other assets allowed to any such cooperative. Grants of funds and moneys to any such cooperative may be designated for administration expenses, for a specific enterprise, or for use to be paid out as part cash wages supplementing the credit or "point" wage commonly used in self-help cooperative units.

723.11. Any and all property or properties acquired by cooperatives under the provisions of this article with funds acquired from the State or from the Federal Government through the State, shall remain the property of the State of California. The board shall have the power to provide for the repayment of the grants or funds allowed to the cooperatives or for the payment for real or personal property or natural resources or other assets acquired by the cooperatives under the provisions of this article, and may fix the terms and conditions of such repayment, and shall in all cases amortize the same at periods of 20 years. Upon the full and complete discharge of such obligations the title to such funds and properties or other assets shall pass to the cooperative. The funds and grants so made and the obligations established by the grants or funds may be paid or repaid by the cooperative in cash, or labor, or services, or commodities as and when the same are available. Such payments shall be acceptable to the board, according to the terms of the grant or allotment made by it to any such cooperative. When payments are made in commodities they shall be transferred or delivered only to other State agencies or institutions, and on such terms as shall be established by the board. Provided, however, that commodities may be exchanged by the cooperative for payment in whole or in part for other commodities of different kinds.

SEC. 2. The sum of $5,000,000 is hereby appropriated out of any money in the State Treasury, not otherwise appropriated, for carrying out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 3. If any section, subsection, clause, sentence or phrase of this act which is reasonably separable from the remaining portions of this act is for any reason held to be unconstitutional, such decision shall not affect the remaining portions of this act. The Legislature hereby declares that it would have passed the remaining portions of this act irrespective of the fact that any such section, subsection, clause, sentence or phrase of this act be declared unconstitutional."

The facts constituting the necessity are as follows:

The manufacture of alcoholic beverages, particularly wine, and the raising of wine grapes are important and growing industries in this State, and are the source of livelihood of many thousands of citizens. It is necessary for the continued growth and prosperity of these industries that the market for their products in other States be free from discriminatory restrictions. Such restrictions have been imposed by the Legislatures of several States and further restrictions are proposed by pending legislation in many of the States in which the Legislatures are now in session. The enactment of such legislation will imperil the industry and commerce of this State, and result in unemployment. The legislation proposed by this act is part of a plan for the elimination of interstate restrictions upon the sale of alcoholic beverages. It is necessary that this act take immediate effect, in order that the Legislatures of other States may be persuaded to refrain from enacting further discriminatory legislation and that they may be impelled to repeal existing discriminatory provisions in their laws."

Article 4 Commencement of Business

11501. No corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter shall establish, maintain and operate its hospital service plan unless and until it shall have procured a certificate of approval from the State Department of Public Health approving the hospital, or hospitals, with which such corporation has entered, or proposes to enter, into contracts for the furnishing of hospital service to its subscribers and such corporation shall not enter into any contract with any hospital within this State for the furnishing of hospital service to its subscribers unless the hospital with which it contracts has procured a certificate of approval from said department, provided, however, that hospital services may be rendered to the subscriber in a hospital not holding a certificate of approval if the subscriber requiring hospitalization has removed from or is absent from the State, or in cases of emergency where immediate treatment is necessary and removal to an approved hospital would endanger the life or health of the subscriber The State Department of Public Health shall not issue any certificate of approval provided for in this chapter unless and until the applicant therefore shall have established to the satisfaction of said department that the hospitals wherein subscribers to hospital service plans concerned are to be hospitalized possess adequate physical facilities, mechanical equipment, and personnel for the study, diagnosis, treatment and care of patients

11502. The State Department of Public Health, before issuing its certificate authorizing any hospital to furnish hospital services under any hospital service plan, shall cause the hospital to be inspected by an inspector appointed by the said department The report of such inspection shall be filed with the State Department of Public Health. If the State Department of Public Health shall find after such inspection that the hospital making application to render hospital services under the hospital service plan fully complies with and possesses the standards set forth in this section, it shall issue its certificate of approval upon the payment of a registration fee, not to exceed twenty-five cents ($.25) per bed, computed upon the daily average number of beds, other than bassinets, occupied during the preceding calendar year, but in no event less than fifteen dollars ($15.00) per hospital

11503 The State Department of Public Health shall have the right and power to investigate, regulate and enforce the hospital standards set forth in sections 11501 and 11502 of this chapter in respect to all hospitals furnishing and rendering hospital services under the provisions of this chapter and to revoke certificates of approval theretofore issued to any hospital, or any hospital service corporation. Upon complaint deemed by the department to be sufficient to warrant such action, or upon its own motion, the State Department of Public Health shall hold a hearing at which the corporation or hospital under investigation and against which action is proposed to be taken shall have the right to be heard. At least ten days' written notice of the time and place of such hearing shall be served upon or mailed to said corporation and said hospital. At such hearing the department shall have the right to order and direct the corporation or the hospital, as the case may be, and within such period of time as the board may prescribe to remedy and remove the causes complained of and in which to comply with the acts and things required in such order, and may continue the hearing until the expiration of said period of time. If the department upon final hearing shall find that its order has not been complied with, and that the hospital does not possess the hospital standards set forth in sections 11501 and 11502, or that services are rendered by the hospital service corporation in and through hospitals not possessing said standards, the board shall enter its order revoking the certificate of approval to any such hospital or hospital service corporation and shall notify the Commissioner of Insurance in writing of the fact of such revocation and of the fact that the services rendered under the hospital service plan are not being rendered by hospitals holding certificates of approval Upon receipt of such notice, it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of Insurance to revoke his certificate of authority to the establishment, maintenance and operation by such corporation of a nonprofit hospital service plan

11504 No corporation shall establish maintain or operate a nonprofit service plan as authorized by the provisions of this chapter unless it shall first have procured a certificate of authority from the Commissioner of Insurance of this State for the establishment, maintenance and operation of said hospital service plan

11505 The Commissioner of Insurance shall not issue his certificate of authority to any corporation proposing to establish, maintain or operate a nonprofit hospital service plan until such corporation shall have established:

(a) That the corporation has entered into contracts with hospitals holding certificates of approval issued by the State Department of Public Health and having an aggregate bed capacity sufficient to render the services contemplated to be furnished under the hospital service plan.

(b) That the contract proposed to be entered into by such corporation with those who may become subscribers is not such as will work a fraud or injustice upon such subscribers or any person.

(c) That the rates, dues, fees or other periodic charges to be imposed upon subscribers and the fees, rates or other considerations to be paid for services rendered to subscribers, are not such as will, after providing for such legal reserves as the Insurance Commissioner may deem necessary and reasonable, result in profit to such corporation, and are such as will enable such corporation to furnish or provide the hospital services which it proposes to make available to its subscribers without impairment of the legal reserves fixed and required by the Insurance Commissioner, and without a constant depletion of the assets of such corporation

Article 5 Finances and Reserves.

11507. No corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter shall establish, maintain or operate a hospital service plan unless it shall have and at all times maintain a reserve fund equal to the following minimum amounts in relation to the number of subscribers to its plan:

Number of Subscribers	Amount of Reserve Fund
2500 or less	$10,000 00
2501 to 3500 inclusive	12,500 00
3501 to 4500 inclusive	15,000 00
4501 to 5500 inclusive	17,500 00
5501 and above	20,000 00

In computing said reserve fund, the commissioner shall include the amounts agreed to be paid by contracting hospitals to the corporation or its equivalent value of hospital service to be rendered without charge by the contracting hospital to the hospital service corporation

11508 A corporation organized hereunder shall be deemed to be insolvent if its reserve fund shall be impaired so as to be less than the amounts set forth in this section of the chapter. In determining whether there has been an impairment of the reserve fund of the hospital service corporation, the unexpired portions of all premiums, dues or other payments received by and paid to the corporation on contracts then in force shall be deemed a liability.

11509 Every corporation subject to the provisions of this chapter shall annually, on or before the first day of March, file in the office of the Commissioner of Insurance of this State a statement verified by at least two of the principal officers of said corporation, showing its condition and affairs as of the thirty-first day of December then next preceding, which shall be in such form as shall be required by said commissioner and shall contain statements relative to the matters required to be established as a condition precedent to maintaining or operating a nonprofit hospital service plan and to other matters as said commissioner shall prescribe.

11510 All acquisition costs in connection with the solicitation of subscribers to such hospital service plan shall at all time be subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Insurance, and the administrative expenses for any calendar year of any such corporation organized under this chapter, including acquisition costs, shall be limited to 25 per cent of the aggregate amount of gross premiums actually received during that year. If the commissioner shall find that acquisition costs of any corporation operating under the provisions of this chapter are excessive, or that the administrative expenses exceed the amount above stated, such finding shall be sufficient ground to justify the commissioner in revoking his consent to the establishment, maintenance and operation by such corporation of the hospital service plan

Article 6. The Contract.

11512. No hospital service contract shall be entered into between a corporation proposing to furnish or provide any one or more of the services authorized under this chapter and a subscriber:

(a) Unless the entire consideration therefore is expressed in the contract;

(b) Unless the times at which the benefits or services to the subscriber take effect and terminate are stated in a portion of the contract above the evidence of its execution;

(c) If the contract purports to entitle more than one person to benefits or services, except that a husband and wife and their child or children may secure the benefits under one contract if the contract is issued and marked as a family contract;

(d) Unless every printed portion and any endorsement or attached papers is plainly printed in type of which the face is not smaller than ten points;

(e) Unless the exceptions of the contract are printed with greater prominence than the benefits to which they apply;

(f) Unless, if any portion of such contract purports, by reason of the circumstances under which an illness, injury or disablement is incurred to reduce any service to less than that provided for the same illness, injury or disablement incurred under ordinary circumstances, such portion is printed in bold-faced type and with greater prominence than any other text of the contract;

(g) If the contract contains any provisions purporting to make any portion of the charter, constitution or by-laws of such nonprofit corporation a part of the contract unless such portion is set forth in full in the contract,

(h) Unless such contract for hospital service contains in black-faced type not less than ten point the following provisions

"Nothing in this contract contained shall in any way or manner restrict or interfere with the right of the subscriber to select the contracting hospital or to make a free choice of his attending physician, who shall be the holder of a valid and unrevoked physician and surgeon's certificate issued by the Board of Medical Examiners of the State of California and who is a member of, or acceptable to, the attending staff and board of directors of the hospital in which said hospital services are to be provided and rendered."

11513. A hospital service contract shall not be issued or delivered in this State until:

(a) A copy of the form thereof, and, if more than one class of risks is written, of the classification of risks, and the consideration payable by the subscriber pertaining thereto are filed with the commissioner

(b) Either:

(1) Thirty days expires without notice from the commissioner after such copy is filed, or,

(2) The commissioner gives his written approval prior to that time.

11514. If the commissioner notifies the corporation, in writing, that the filed form does not comply with the requirements of law, specifying the reasons for his opinion, it is unlawful for the corporation thereafter to issue any contract in such form.

Article 7. Exemptions, Exceptions and Special Provisions

11517. The provisions of this code governing domestic incorporated insurers, their business, and their contracts shall so far as applicable and not inconsistent herewith, govern corporations subject to this chapter and the business and contracts of such corporations, except that such corporations, their business and contracts shall not be subject to the following provisions of this code

Report Printed in Journal.

The following portion of the Biennial Report of the State Board of Equalization was ordered printed in the Journal pursuant to the terms of House Resolution No 106, adopted March 22, 1937:

PARTIAL BIENNIAL REPORT OF THE STATE BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.

PRESENT TAX STRUCTURE SOUND.

Changes in the revenue system, made largely upon recommendation of the State Board of Equalization, have combined with better economic conditions to give California a sound tax structure.

This improvement is to be noted especially in State finances, but the close relationship between the central and local governments makes it possible to say that the entire fiscal structure is sounder than it has been in several years.

If present sources of revenue are left undisturbed and if public expenditures are kept reasonably in check, there should be a substantial surplus in the State Treasury within the next two years.

PROPOSED CHANGES REQUIRE SCRUTINY.

Numerous measures will be urged at the present legislative session, proposing amendment or repeal of existing tax laws, or enactment of new revenue statutes. A regard for the public interest requires careful evaluation of these proposals

Thorough comprehension of basic facts is essential to the effective solution of any human problem. This is particularly true in the field of taxation, where haphazard experimentation is apt to be fraught with disastrous results.

Until we can assure ourselves that a new tax law is really a better tax law, we shall be much better off without its enactment. Nor should we abandon tried and effective revenue measures until we know what the effect will be on the functions of government.

UNWISE CHANGES DISTURB BUSINESS.

Under modern conditions, the public has come to expect a great deal of government, and all business is oriented accordingly. Disturbance in State revenues is reflected immediately in unsettled commercial conditions. Tinkering with tax laws has an unwholesome effect not only on the government but on private business as well.

REPORT GIVES ESSENTIAL FACTS.

Realizing this, the State Board of Equalization has endeavored to present in the following biennial report data setting forth in detail its activities of the past two years, particularly from the standpoint of the actual operation of the present revenue laws.

During the biennium the board has developed steadily as the major taxing unit of the State Government. As an indication of this increased activity, combined with the substantial gain in revenues resulting from improved economic conditions, reports of the various divisions show a gain of more than $117,000,000 in revenue assessments for the 1934-1936 biennium as compared with the previous two-year period.

REVENUES REGISTER SUBSTANTIAL GAINS.

For the eighty-sixth fiscal year (July 1, 1934, to June 30, 1935), revenues assessed by the board amounted to $143,873,707.21. Of this amount, $2,763,761.65 or 1.92 per cent, was expended for costs of administration. For the eighty-seventh fiscal year (July 1, 1935, to June 30, 1936), the total revenues assessed amounted to $172,879,325.31, of which $3,095,159.99 was spent for administration, or 1.79 per cent of the assessments.

Revenues and expenditures under the jurisdiction of the board for the biennium included:

	Revenues	Administrative expense	Percentages; expense to revenues
General administration		$114,040 37
Insurance tax	$13,407,278 75	9,120 00	0.0680
Valuation of utilities	60,000,000 00	219,940 91	0.3666
Motor transportation tax	3,671,523 21	660,763 62	17.9970
Motor vehicle fuel tax	86,789,398 51	215,083 89	0.2478
Retail sales tax and use tax	133,893,092 74	2,869,919 95	2.1434
Liquor licenses and control	8,189,975 78	1,516,103 56	18.5239
Excise taxes on alcoholic beverages	10,801,763 53	252,946 25	2.3417
Totals for biennium	$316,753,032 52	$5,858,921 55	1.8497

Indicative of the general upward trend in returns from taxes administered by the board, the records show that collections under the retail sales tax amounted to $60,538,156.53 during the eighty-sixth fiscal year and, with the addition of the use tax, jumped to $73,064,256.01 in the eighty-seventh fiscal year. The present forecast is an annual income in excess of $80,000,000 from this single source of revenue.

SALES TAX MEETS COSTS OF EDUCATION.

This estimated income is approximately the amount required for the State's outlay for the support of common schools and for the maintenance of the University of California, the State colleges and other State establishments for public education.

This form of tax now has become a well-established part of the revenue system, not only in this State but also in a substantial number of other States. The fact that the per capita yield, after making due allowances for differences in per capita income and for exemptions, is higher in this State than in any other jurisdiction, is evidence of efficient administration.

FIELD WORK BRINGS RESULTS.

The high yield and effective administration have been largely the results of the organization of a program of field audits and investigations. It is essential that this phase of the work be further developed. The funds heretofore appropriated have been insufficient to provide the staff of auditors required by the large number of taxpayers and great volume of work. A relatively small increase in the staff would produce additional revenues many times its cost and would permit more effective administration of these tax acts.

FURTHER SALES TAX EXEMPTIONS UNWISE.

Exemption of food products, through the 1935 amendment, has done much to remove such irritation as the buying public may have felt because of the sales tax. Those, who by reason of limited resources, have been required to spend a relatively large share of their income for food doubtless have found this exemption of appreciable benefit.

Other exemptions will be advocated during the current legislative session The wisdom of allowing them is subject to serious question. Individually many of the proposals may appear to have merit, but their enactment would tend to impair materially the effectiveness of the tax

If the sales tax is to continue as a successful revenue measure, it must be kept on as broad a base as possible Its principal value as a source of public funds is the universality of its application Extending to practically all retail sales of personal property, it is producing a large amount of revenue at a low rate. This can continue only so long as the base of the tax is left undisturbed

One additional exemption will undoubtedly lead to another Soon others will follow, supported by the argument that they are fully as meritorious as those allowed previously. Exemptions, reasonable enough when considered individually, will form a vicious cycle destroying the usefulness of the measure, and will plunge the State back into the "tax crisis" from which it was rescued through the adoption of the Sales Tax Act

USE TAX PROTECTS LOCAL MERCHANTS

The Use Tax Act has accomplished its purpose of placing California retailers on equal terms with their out-of-state competitors Adopted in 1935 upon recommendation of this board, the act applies only to the use of property which has not been reached under the sales tax It imposes the same rate on the sales price of the property as would have been collected from the retailer had the sales tax been applicable

Thus, the device of buying property out of California to avoid paying the sales tax is no longer effective An equivalent use tax must be paid. Local merchants are not deprived of any business because of a tax advantage accruing to their out-of-state competitors

More than $2,500,000 has accrued directly from the use tax during the year and a half since the law has been in force. But, as above indicated much more revenue is attributable to the use tax. Trade, which otherwise might have been diverted from California retailers, has been retained here and has swelled sales tax collections substantially Moreover, since the tax rates are identical and but one report is used for both sales and use tax payments, taxpayers frequently make no distinction between the gross receipts subject to the different taxes. Much "sales tax" revenue is doubtless, strictly speaking, collected under the use tax law

CHANGE IN USE TAX UNWISE.

Changes will be advocated in the use tax The Legislature will be told that the law is of doubtful validity or that it is productive of hardships in certain instances

After reviewing the entire problem, and obtaining competent legal advice, the board is convinced that the California Use Tax Act will avoid successfully the pitfalls of unconstitutionality besetting any measure dealing with goods which have moved in interstate or foreign commerce The act has been drawn to conform to the United States Supreme Court decisions holding similar laws constitutional and, if left undisturbed, should be able to withstand the assaults of those who seek to have it declared invalid.

Incalculable harm may result if there is any tinkering with the use tax at this stage of developments No court has held the act unconstitutional Our legal advisers say that, in its present form, the law should be upheld by the United States Supreme Court, under a ruling consistent with recent decisions There is everything to gain and nothing to lose in retaining this law upon the statute books without substantial amendment.

GROSS INCOME TAX INADEQUATE.

Repeal of the sales tax and the use tax, as well as the net income tax, has been urged. In replacement, a gross income tax is proposed. Nothing in the experience of any other State, compared with what has transpired in California, lends support to such a change.

Estimated revenues from the sales and use taxes alone during the next biennium are in excess of $183,000,000. Income tax revenues for the same period have been estimated at $33,000,000, making a total of more than $216,000,000

Advocates of the change cite the success of the gross income tax in Indiana. In that State, with a population approximately half that of California, the tax on gross income yields less than $17,000,000 per year, yet the rates are as high as are feasible, and apply to foodstuffs exempt from tax here.

Comparison on basis of population would indicate a yield of $35,000,000 annually from a similar tax in California. Making allowance for trade factors might increase this to $50,000,000, although there is no assurance of such a yield There would be, at most, a biennial revenue of $100,000,000 from the gross income tax to replace $216,000,000. A deficit of more than $100,000,000 would result.

This brief review of the situation should serve to convince those interested in the solvency of government of the undesirability of scrapping our present tax laws in order to substitute a gross income tax. Moreover, administrative expense would be greatly increased, because instead of limiting our accounts to some 180,000 retailers as we now do, the number of individual taxpayers would be multiplied many times. The tax yield would be cut in half, but the expense of administration would be doubled.

OTHER TAX YIELDS INCREASED.

Gratifying results have been obtained by the board from other tax measures, as well, entrusted to our administration. During the past biennium the yield from the motor vehicle fuel tax has jumped from $39,922,123 for the year ended June 30, 1935, to $46,847,585 for the second half of the two-year period, with allowance for differences in rates. No other State approaches our yield from gasoline taxes in proportion to the number of vehicles licensed for operation.

Motor vehicle transportation license tax yields have also shown marked gain. In the first year of the biennium the 3 per cent gross receipts tax on motor vehicle operators was $1,128,650. This increased to $2,011,477 for the year ended June 30, 1936 Part of the gain is attributable to extension of the tax to common carriers, taxed prior to January 1, 1935, under a different law, but, again, California has established an enviable record for the amount of tax obtained. No State with a comparable statute has found it as productive of revenue.

LIQUOR TAX REVENUES GAIN.

During the first half of the biennial period covered by this report, the only special excise tax applicable to alcoholic beverages was the tax at 2 cents per gallon on beer and wine. This amounted to $1,573,537 for the year ended June 30, 1935. With the addition of the excise tax at 80 cents per gallon distilled spirits, the revenue from liquor taxes rose to $9,228,225 in the following year, making a total of $10,801,762 for the biennium. At the conclusion of the first year's experience with respect to the distilled spirits excise, it was found that 9,166,237 gallons had been taxed. This means that California collected a tax on 1.482 gallons of distilled spirits for every inhabitant of the State The nearest approach to this figure is that for Illinois, where 1.07 gallons were taxed per capita.

California's distilled spirits tax collections are so much greater than those of any other State, in proportion to population, that the comparison points to the definite conclusion that we have had the most effective administration of the tax

LIQUOR LICENSES BRING MORE FEES.

Liquor license fees collected during the first half of the biennium amounted to $3,725,261 and, during the following year, increased to $4,464,714, making a total of $8,189,975 for the two year period. A substantial part of this gain was due to changes, effective July 1, 1935, in the amounts of fees and dates of payment, but some of the additional revenue is attributable to a greater number of licenses

The board does not regard increased revenue as a prime objective in liquor license administration. Consequently, in the absence of upward adjustment of fees, further substantial gains from this source are not anticipated.

Inasmuch as this report is concerned with revenue matters, no attempt will be made here to discuss the social problems involved in the sale of alcoholic beverages. It may be observed, however, that any design to augment revenues by increasing the number of places at which such beverages may be obtained is subject to serious criticism.

NEW UTILITY ASSESSMENTS INCLUDED

For the first time in the history of the State, this report includes schedules of ad valorem assessments made by the board, covering approximately one-seventh of the taxable wealth in California. Most of this property is owned by public utilities (railroads, car and express companies, gas and electric companies, telephone and telegraph companies); but intercounty pipe lines and ditches, regardless of the character of ownership, are also assessed by the board. In pursuance of a constitutional amendment (Article XIII, section 14) adopted in 1933, the first valuations were made in 1935. Upon undertaking this work, the board found itself faced with three major problems:

(1) Valuation of the various utility companies, pipe line or ditch systems as a whole;

(2) Segregation of the value of the component items of property in the several taxing jurisdictions; and

(3) Equalization of these assessments with those made by local assessors so that common tax rates might be applied equitably.

UTILITY SYSTEM VALUATION ESSENTIAL.

From the very nature of their business, public utilities hold in single ownership vast properties of varied types located in numerous taxing jurisdictions. This circumstance was doubtless the underlying factor responsible for the constitutional provision that such holdings should be centrally assessed, even though taxed in the same manner as other property.

Recognizing the need for finding the system value of a utility in order to determine the worth of the component parts, the board has had valuation studies made with respect to each utility as a whole. Similar studies had been completed earlier for the purposes of comparing gross receipts tax burdens on utility property and ad valorem tax burdens on common property, under the system of separation of sources prevailing prior to amendment of the Constitution in 1933.

Thus, although much work of an exacting nature was involved, this task did not present an unfamiliar problem. Access was had to the earlier studies, which were brought down to date, and the board was enabled to find system values for the taxpayers whose properties it must assess.

APPORTIONMENT OF SYSTEM VALUE DIFFICULT.

The second problem was mechanically a much greater task than the first. Aside from the difficulty of determining to what extent each of the properties contributed to the value of the system containing it, the board was compelled to ascertain the exact location of these properties, assigning each to the proper taxing jurisdiction.

Even under most favorable conditions, apportioning for taxation a seventh of the wealth in the State, comprised in the system values of about 400 companies many with far flung activities, would present a serious problem. Under the conditions actually existing, the task was appalling.

ALMOST 5,000 TAX DISTRICTS IN STATE.

In addition to 58 counties and 281 cities, there are in California 2,820 elementary school districts, 315 high school and junior college districts, and 1,496 special districts of various kinds, making a total of 4,970 distinct tax levying entities. Despite occasional consolidations, the number is increasing and soon will exceed 5,000.

An unfortunate feature of these districts aside from the fact that they are so numerous, is that one does not necessarily leave off where another begins. On the contrary, they overlap in a most irregular manner. Occasionally, a single piece of property will be included in as many as 12 districts, each with distinct power to tax. Instances of seven or eight districts overlapping are not at all uncommon; four or five are the rule.

STATE HAS 11,862 DIFFERENT TAX RATES.

To meet this situation, the board has devised a system whereby the State is divided into "code areas" each including a geographical unit in which all the property is subject to a common group of taxes. There are 11,862 such areas in California. This is merely another way of saying that there are almost 12,000 different tax rates applicable to property within the State.

By indicating on the assessment rolls which we prepare, the "code area" for each parcel assessed, we have simplified the task of apportionment, but the fact remains that there are too many separate taxing jurisdictions. Only in the City and County of San Francisco is but one "code area" found. At the other extreme, there are 4,882 "code areas" in the county of Los Angeles alone.

Legislation tending to reduce the number of taxing jurisdictions would be of benefit not only to taxpayers but to those engaged in tax administration. From the taxpayer's standpoint, eight or ten tax rates, each determined independently and applying to a single piece of property, offer a serious threat. From the administrator's standpoint, this divided responsibility leads to misunderstanding and makes efficiency difficult to attain.

VALUES EQUALIZED THROUGHOUT STATE.

When the State Board of Equalization was created in 1879, its prime constitutional function was the equalization of assessed values between the counties. At that time the State, in common with the counties, derived its principal support from ad valorem taxes. The State rate applied to the values determined by county assessors

Equalization between individual assessments within counties was left to local boards, but, after this function was performed, the assessment level for one county might vary considerably in comparison with that in another. An unequal distribution of the State tax load would result; hence, the necessity for a State Board of Equalization.

In 1911, however, State ad valorem taxes were abandoned with the inauguration of the system of separation of sources whereby certain utility and other property was taxed exclusively for State purposes. The need for equalization between counties ceased, and for 25 years the function lost its practical significance

State ad valorem taxes have never been resumed, but now that the utility property is assessed by the board and entered on local tax rolls, the necessity for equalization on a State-wide basis has returned During the interval of a quarter of century, large discrepancies in assessing standards and practices had developed among the local assessors.

Extensive studies were made to determine the level of assessment of property valued by county assessors, and, after public hearings, the board ordered equalization of assessment rolls of 34 counties, through percentage adjustments of 1937 valuations as follows

County	Percentage	County	Percentage
Alpine	—10	San Bernardino	+50
Butte	+10	San Joaquin	+16
Contra Costa	+27	San Mateo	+85
Del Norte	+10	Santa Barbara	+15
El Dorado	+ 7	Santa Clara	+10
Humboldt	+ 8	Santa Cruz	+40
Imperial	+10	Shasta	+30

Kern	+35	Sonoma	+40
Marin	+35	Stanislaus	+25

Orange	+35	Ventura	+15
Plumas	—10	Yolo	+10
Riverside	+50	Yuba	+ 5

— indicates decrease
+ indicates increase

No change was made in the assessment rolls of those counties not listed.

Following further studies and hearings, the board found it necessary in 1936 to equalize three county tax rolls by increasing the assessments as follows:

County	Percentage
Fresno	20
Kings	80
Tehama	10

In those cities which have separate assessors for purposes of municipal taxation, special studies were made to determine the variation between the level of county and city assessments, and, after public hearings, orders were made to adjust accordingly the level of public utility assessments for municipal taxation The details of this work appear in schedules appended to this report.

CHANGE HAS BENEFITED TAXPAYER

Definite benefit to taxpayers generally may be found from the revision of the California tax system following adoption of the 1933 constitutional amendment. Not only has the State taken over school costs amounting to some $40,000,000 annually financing these from the proceeds of the sales tax instead of from county ad valorem levies, but there has been returned to local tax rolls utility property assessed at approximately $900,000,000 Annual ad valorem taxes on this utility property amount to $30,000,000 This means that tax burdens of at least $70,000,000 per year have been removed from common property owners. Moreover, the new law has resulted in greater uniformity in assessments and assessment practices.

LOCAL TAX OFFICIALS OF GREAT HELP.

The board is most grateful to county assessors and other tax officials throughout the State for their splendid cooperation during the biennium. Without their generous assistance, much that has been accomplished for the betterment of the revenue system could not have been achieved. The people of California are most fortunate in the intelligent devotion to public service which characterizes the work of their local tax officials.

EXPENDITURE LIMITATION OF PROVEN VALUE.

After four years' experience with expenditure limitation, the wisdom of its adoption in 1933 is demonstrated. When relief to the property taxpayer was planned through transfer of school costs and return of utility property to the local tax base, it was recognized that, as the burden of local taxes became less oppressive the pressure to increase expenditures would grow.

In the absence of complete data as to actual needs of each of the local units of government, the expenditures for the fiscal year 1932-1933 were taken as a starting point. The basic plan contemplates that an annual increase not exceeding 5 per cent should suffice to meet the need for additional expenditures.

During the past biennium there have been fewer instances of expenditures in excess of the limitation than were noted in the preceding years. In many cases the occasion for exceeding the limit arose from cooperation with the Federal Government in public works projects. Now that local authorities have become accustomed to the limitation, the tendency to exceed it seems to have decreased.

Removal of any restraint would be followed inevitably by substantially greater expenditures and higher taxes. There is unremitting pressure on local taxing authorities by many well organized groups to spend more money out of the public treasury. These advocates of projects requiring appropriations are so intent on the benefits to be derived that they give little thought to the ultimate effect on the taxpayer. Frequently, there is no organized opposition and the funds are spent.

If, on the other hand, the taxing authorities can point to a limitation which can not be exceeded save in case of real emergency, much can be accomplished to combat this tendency to spend first and think later.

LIMITATION METHODS NEED REVISION.

Unless the Legislature enacts new laws on the subject, there will be no expenditure limitation after June 30, 1937. Although the acts passed in 1933 and 1935 have been of definite value, it is to be hoped that 1937 may bring some improvement in this type of legislation.

Continuance of the limitation on a percentage basis, without adequate facilities for a review of all budgets, may be expected to result in a large number of automatic increases to the maximum allowable. Always safeguarding democratic control of government, some provision could be made for more effective review of proposed expenditures of public funds.

STATE TAX ADMINISTRATION EFFICIENT

As already shown, California taxes, administered by the State Board of Equalization, yield more revenue than is realized relatively in any other State in the Union. This productivity of tax laws is achieved at comparatively low cost.

The ratio of total revenues to total administrative expense as shown in the table on page 29 of this report is 1.8497 per cent. When liquor licenses are eliminated from revenues, and liquor regulation from expenditures, thus confining consideration to actual tax administration, the percentage drops to 1.4—a record among tax commissions throughout the country.

Low administrative cost has not been achieved, however, at the price of efficiency. The revenues produced show conclusively that our tax assessment and administration have been exceptionally effective. The board finds itself indebted in no small degree to an efficient staff whose cooperation has made these results possible.

LIQUOR CONTROL TRANSFER LOGICAL.

Whenever a feasible plan is devised to transfer liquor regulation to some other administrative authority, we shall be glad to be relieved of this responsibility. Given to us in 1933 upon the repeal of prohibition through an amendment of the Federal Constitution, the task of alcoholic beverage control is one of such magnitude as to merit the attention of those who have no other administrative duties to perform.

Our willingness to have liquor law enforcement in other hands is not occasioned by any thought that the board's administration of these duties has been inacceptable to the people, who defeated so decisively the recent ballot proposals to transfer this responsibility. If, however, the Legislature and people should see fit to relieve us of the duties of liquor regulation, the board would have a better opportunity to devote its effort toward further improvement of tax administration. We believe that, with the cooperation of county assessors and other local tax officials, a well balanced, efficiently administered revenue system has been achieved. We would like to make it even better. Our principal interest is in tax administration. Elimination of other responsibilities would be consistent with the fundamental purposes for which the board was created.

REPORT IN REVISED FORM

This is the thirty-second biennial report of the State Board of Equalization. Although departures from previous reports are evident in style and arrangement, the continuity of the basic tax figures published by the board for more than 60 years has been maintained. To make these essential data more convenient of reference, the size of the report has been reduced through elimination of detailed statistics, which we believe have not been of general interest.

Charts and graphs have been used to illustrate some of the features of the State tax structure, so that the taxpayer may obtain a general knowledge of the operation of the revenue system without resort to detailed statistics. The increasing interest of citizens in the subject of taxation will justify, we hope, our effort in this report not only to disseminate tax statistics but to prepare and compile these data in forms which will be concise, understandable and useful.

Motion to Print Report in Journal.

On motion of Mr. Cassidy, the following report of the Special Committee on Institutions was ordered printed in the Journal:

REPORT OF SPECIAL COMMITTEE ON INSTITUTIONS.

Honorable William Moseley Jones, Speaker, Fifty-Second Session, 1937, Assembly of the State of California, Sacramento, California.

Your Special Committee on Institutions heretofore appointed in accordance with the resolution herewith submits a partial report specifically covering the Veterans Home of California at Yountville. The Veterans Home of California is maintained for the care of any eligible veterans who have been residents of California for at least six (6) years and part of the cost of maintenance of each member of the Veterans Home is borne by the Federal Government.

Your committee investigated, particularly, the condition of the buildings in which these men were being housed, fed and cared for. In examining these facilities we find that a condition exists which is a disgrace to the State of California. Many of these buildings were completed about 1883 and they are gradually falling to pieces. For example, the barracks, buildings which are of a type of construction widely used in the early 80's, are three-story buildings in which are housed 637 men. In case of fire it would be almost a certainty that the members living on the third floor of these old ramshackle wooden buildings would be unable to escape.

The budget has recommended $324,000 for construction. Of this amount $260,000 is for the erection of additional barracks sufficient to house 200 men. In order to bring the conditions at this institution to a place where these men are properly housed and taken care of, your committee recommends that there be included in Item No. 122, as shown in the budget submitted by the Governor, the following additional items:

Two (2) additional barracks to take care of all of the men now housed in the old insanitary buildings	$520,000 00
Addition to the hospital providing extra beds	200,000 00
New mess hall	300,000 00
Mechanical service lines to these new buildings	35,000 00
Present item for construction in the budget	324,000 00
Total	$1,379,000 00

This construction is absolutely essential to protect these men, who are wards of the State of California, and unless this is done immediately there exists a very great danger of a holocaust. The responsibility for any loss of lives will be squarely upon the shoulders of this body, in case of failure to appropriate the necessary funds to remedy the existing conditions.

With reference to the water situation. Supply of this institution is very precarious, it has been necessary several times in the last three years for the Commandant to take extreme measures for the conservation of water. For taking baths water has been restricted and even shaving facilities have been cut down in an attempt to protect the small and inadequate supply of water.

Your committee strongly urges that the sum of $1,250,000 be appropriated for the purpose of securing a water supply for this institution. Such a supply, when acquired, can also be used to take care of the needs of other institutions in the Napa Valley and its environs.

Respectfully submitted.

CASSIDY, Chairman.
McMURRAY.
