CALIFORNIA LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE ON ADMINISTRATIVE REGULATION
CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, June 17, 1947

Hon Sam L. Collins
Speaker of the Assembly
Sacramento, California

MR. SPEAKER: Your committee, in its report filed February 3, 1947, directed attention to the need for more adequate statutory definition of the nature and scope of the quasi-legislative function, whenever delegated to an administrative agency, and for more certain and specific standards to guide the administrator, the citizen, and the courts, and the need for a continuous study of such empowerments and standards by a legislative committee.

Illustrative of these needs and of aid to any such committee in its work is a paper prepared by the Legislative Counsel for use in his office entitled "Administrative Regulation. Observations on the drafting of statutory clauses granting quasi-legislative powers to state-wide administrative agencies in California." It is appended as a supplement to our report.

Respectfully submitted.

ADMINISTRATIVE REGULATION

Observations on the Drafting of Statutory Clauses Granting Quasi-Legislative Powers to State-wide Administrative Agencies in California

FRED B. WOOD, Legislative Counsel

December 21, 1944

Need for Adequate and Clear Description of the Exact Nature and Limits of the Powers Conferred

The growing practice of conferring quasi-legislative powers upon state-wide administrative agencies, and the growing body of administrative regulations, have given rise to much discussion and to the urge in some quarters for a public hearing procedure governing the enactment and amendment of such regulations and for a more adequate and expeditious method for judicial review of the regulations after their issuance.

Very little attention has been given to an equally important, perhaps more fundamental, aspect of the problem. We refer to the need for adequate and clear description, in the statute, of the exact nature and limits of the power conferred, in terms as exact, as precise, as definite, and as certain as the subject matter permits and suitable words can be found to express.

We have in mind not the minimum constitutional requirement for the furnishing of a standard but the desirability of expressing the legislative intent so clearly that the administrator will have a truly accurate and certain guide in his exercise of the power, and the courts in their review of his action.

No set formula has been devised for the attainment of this objective. A standard or formula adequate to one situation has no necessary or even presumptive relevancy to another. Each time a quasi-legislative power is conferred, it is necessary to examine fully the factual situation, to visualize as vividly and precisely as may be, what it is that the administrator is to do in the way of supplementing the statute, and then to express the concepts thus derived in words as simple, as plain, and as clear as may be.

One should ask oneself such questions as these:

If the power to make rules is conferred, are they rules merely for the internal management and government of the agency? If so, say so. And should something more be said, such as the power of a board to determine its own quorum, or to delegate certain of its powers to subordinates, or to prescribe minimum qualifications for its appointees, or to prescribe a procedure for the conduct of its meetings or of hearings held by it?

Is it a power to issue rulings interpretive of a statute administered by the agency? If so, that should be suitably, narrowly expressed, not in the usual broad, ambiguous form of "such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry into effect the purposes of this act."

Is it a power to prescribe a rule of conduct, a power to implement and fill out the details of general rules expressed in the statute? If so, what are the purposes to be attained? What facts must the administrator find before exercising this power? Let these also be expressed in the statute as definitely and as certainly as may be.

If the administrator is to prescribe "standards," whether of conduct in the carrying on of a business or as to the size, shape and quality of containers for the shipment of merchandise, what are the essential factors that shall govern him in prescribing those standards, and the objectives to be attained?

If he is given a power to relax a statutory requirement or to grant tolerances, under what conditions, within what limits, and for what purposes may he do so?

If it is the rate-making power, whether the fixing of a minimum or of a maximum rate, upon what subject does it operate, to what transactions does it apply, under what sets of circumstances may the power be exercised, what factors and elements make up the rate base, what is the result to be accomplished?

If one asks oneself such questions as these and any others that the nature of the subject suggests, the picture will develop naturally and a reasonably clear expression of norms, standards, formulas and definitions will evolve.

It is hardly possible to overemphasize the fact that the problem of clearly expressing the legislative intent arises anew in the drafting of each statute and is dependent for its solution upon the mastery of all aspects of the particular subject matter. There is very little available in the way of forms or of statements of general principles upon which one may draw in finding a solution. Most of that which has been written is from the standpoint of constitutionality, discussing the question whether or not the standards expressed in a particular statute meet the minimum requirements of the constitution. That falls considerably short of the needs of the draftsman. Some help may be derived from one or more of the works cited in the references appended hereto.

Mere Compliance with Minimum Constitutional Requirements, in Defining Powers and Prescribing Standards, May Not Adequately Express the Legislative Intent, Nor Furnish the Administrator and the Courts a Sufficient Guide in Carrying Out the Intent

It will profit us to give some consideration to the constitutional aspects of the problem as reflected in a few significant decisions. Our Supreme Court in the recent case of Miller v. Municipal Court (1943), 22 C. 2d 818, reduced the constitutional requirements to this formula:

> "Congress must state, insofar as reasonably practicable, considering the nature of the subject matter and the regulation sought, the purpose which it seeks to accomplish and the standards by which that purpose is to be effectuated.
> "It may then constitutionally delegate to an administrative agency the power to determine the details essential to carry out the legislative purpose * * *
> "The exercise of judgment by an administrative agency will be upheld where it is within the prescribed limits and where the procedure which it is directed to follow and the record of its action 'are such that Congress, the courts and the public can ascertain whether the agency has conformed to the standards which Congress has prescribed.' " (p. 832.)

Considering the terms of the challenged statute (the Emergency Price Control Act of 1942), the court found the purposes adequately stated in Section 1 (the furtherance of the national defense and security in time of war by checking speculative and excessive price rises, price dislocations, and inflationary tendencies, specified in some detail), and in Section 2 it found expressed sufficient standards to be applied by the administrator in effectuating these purposes. The standards, in general, were these:

> "Whenever 'in the judgment of the Price Administrator * * * the price or prices of a commodity or commodities have risen or threaten to rise to an extent or in a manner inconsistent with the purposes of this act, he may by regulation or order establish such maximum price or maximum prices as in his judgment will be generally fair and equitable and will effectuate the purposes of this act."
> In establishing a maximum price the administrator shall "So far as practicable, * * * ascertain and give due consideration to the price prevailing between October 1 and October 15, 1941," and shall make adjustments for such relevant factors as "Speculative fluctuations, general increases or decreases in costs of production, distribution, and transportation, and general increases or decreases in profits earned by sellers of the commodity or commodities, during and subsequent to the year ended October 1, 1941."
> In addition to certain exceptions in favor of agriculture and fishery commodities, there is a limitation that the powers granted "shall not be used or made to operate to compel changes in the business practices or methods, or means or aids to distribution, established in any industry, except to prevent circumvention or evasion of any regulation, order, price schedule, or requirement under this act."

These declared purposes and standards, said the court, "are as specific as, or even more definite than, many of the standards upheld in previous decisions by the United States Supreme Court," citing as furnishing adequate standards such general formulas as "equalization of costs of production," the "public convenience, interest or necessity," certificates "of public convenience and necessity," "purity, quality and fitness for consumption," "just and reasonable" commissions, "in the public interest," and "unreasonable obstruction to navigation." (p. 834.) In view of the detailed specification of the purposes of the Emergency Price Control Act, "the requirement that the administrator establish a maximum price which 'will effectuate the purposes of this act' is a sufficiently definite standard for administrative action " (p. 835.)

These are vague and uncertain formulae, yet they satisfy the constitutional requirement. Indeed, it is not always necessary that the purpose of the act or the standard to be applied be explicitly stated, or labeled, to satisfy the constitutional requirement. Frequently they may be derived from the provisions of the statute as a whole. A few illustrations will suffice.

In 1901 the Legislature passed an act to regulate the practice of architecture, creating a board to examine applicants and to issue licenses for the practice of that profession. (Stats. 1901, p. 641.) It declared that the board

> "shall * * * formulate and adopt a code of rules and regulations for its government in the examination of applicants for certificates to practice architecture in this State; and such other rules and regulations as may be necessary and proper, not inconsistent with this act." (Sec. 3.)

In Ex parte McManus, 151 Cal. 331, it was contended that the Legislature should have fixed in the act some standard for determining the qualifications of applicants and that the purported delegation was of an arbitrary power in the exercise of which unreasonable and unfair rules might be established. In overruling that contention, the court observed that the Legislature, "notwithstanding it may do things itself, may nevertheless authorize them to be done by ministerial officers or boards when it believes that they can do them more conveniently and effectually than it can itself," especially in the regulation in the public interest of particular professions "which involve the exercise of skill and the possession of special knowledge and experience," through boards composed of persons "technically skilled and trained" in that profession and who are "usually better able to determine whether an applicant for a license * * * to practice * * * is competent to do so, under reasonable rules and standards adopted by them, than under those which might be prescribed by the Legislature." (151 Cal. 335.)

In respect to the clause which conferred the rule-making power, the court said that the authority thereby conferred was that of promulgating "necessary and proper rules on the subject; rules which must be reasonably adapted for the purpose of determining the qualifications of all applicants * * * on subjects pertaining to that profession"; that there is always implied in such a grant of authority "that it shall be exercised reasonably and fairly so as to effectuate the end contemplated"; and that "it may not be presumed that the authority conferred will be abused * * * and from such presumption declare the act to be unconstitutional." (151 Cal. 336.)

A statute of 1931 for the regulation of clothes cleaning and dyeing shops and spotting, sponging and pressing establishments had as its declared purpose that of fostering fire prevention and the safeguarding of life and property, laid down certain minimum requirements in respect to such establishments, committed to the state fire marshal considerable discretion in the granting of permits, and authorized him "to formulate such rules, orders and regulations as may be necessary to promote fire prevention in such occupation." (Stats. 1931, p. 972.)

In In re Weisberg, 215 Cal. 624, the court upheld the main features of the statute, including the grant of the rule-making power. The necessary standards were derived from the act as a whole, from which the court concluded that neither unreasonable nor arbitrary powers had been conferred upon the fire marshal. Of the rule-making powers, it said:

> "The act does not improperly delegate a legislative function. It declares what the law shall be. This function has not been delegated to the fire marshal. He is merely given authority to adopt any necessary and reasonable rules and means to carry out the legislative intention as expressed in the act." (p. 633.)

The court recognized a need in many fields of legislation, including this one, for the Legislature to commit to an administrative officer a very considerable amount of discretion in administering a statute and applying its provisions to varying conditions and circumstances in furtherance of the legislative intent. In this regard, quoting from an earlier decision, the court said:

> " 'It has become increasingly imperative that many quasi-legislative and quasi-judicial functions, which in smaller commu> nities and under more primit ve conditions were performed directly by the legislative or judicial branches of the government, are entrusted to departments, boards, commissions and agents. No sound objection can longer be successfully advanced to this growing method of transacting public business. These things must be done in this way or they cannot be done at all, and their doing, in a very real sense, makes for the safety of the republic, and is thus sanctioned by the highest law. * * *' '' (p. 632.)

The Corporate Securities Act authorizes the Commissioner of Corporations to issue a permit for the sale of securities "upon such terms and conditions as the commissioner may in said permit provide." This might seem to confer unlimited discretion. But, as indicated by the Supreme Court, it "must be read in connection with the context, which provides that the commissioner must inquire into the method of doing business and shall ascertain if the same is fair, just and equitable and that the methods used in disposing of them would not work a fraud upon the purchasers thereof"; the "terms and conditions to be prescribed in the permit must not be such as would make a greater burden than is consistent with safety and security"; and "the condition imposed must be such as could fairly be said to be necessary to accomplish that purpose." (Agnew v. Daugherty, 189 Cal. 446, 449.)

> The Bank Act provides that no bank shall open a branch office— "without first having obtained the written approval of the Superintendent of Banks to the opening of such branch office, which written approval may be given or withheld in his discretion, and shall not be given by him until he has ascertained to his satisfaction that the public convenience and advantage will be promoted by the opening of such branch office." (Deering Act 652, Sec. 9.)

This appears to be the granting of a very wide discretion. Yet it is not an uncontrolled discretion. The requirement that the "public convenience and advantage will be promoted by the opening" furnishes a standard to guide the superintendent in granting or withholding a permit and the courts in reviewing his action. The law implies a requirement that this power will be exercised impartially and that each application will be acted upon within a reasonable time. That the Legislature has not attempted to define the phrase "public convenience and advantage," nor to declare where or how or under what circumstances the public convenience and advantage would or would not be promoted by the opening of a branch bank in any particular case, does not prevent that phrase from furnishing a standard. Such failure to define, said the court in Bank of Italy v. Johnson, 200 Cal. 1, 16, was for the reason that "it would seem to be impossible to define it so that the definition would comprehend every variety and set of circumstances surrounding each particular application"; and "So, too, it is impossible for the court to lay down any hard-and-fast rule that would be applicable to every case"; but "the impossibilities of definition do not detract * * * from the necessity of undertaking the task * * * in each case, and it is for the superintendent to so proceed * * * in the exercise of his power." The court noted, too, the failure of the Legislature to indicate whether the word "public" as used in this phrase has reference to the people of the State at large or to the people of the locality in which a branch bank is sought to be established. The court was inclined to view the latter as the prime consideration but said it was not prepared to hold that the superintendent might not consider the convenience and advantage of the people of the entire State.

Another illustration of the grant of the rule-making power in general terms is furnished by the Corporate Securities Act. It provides that the Commissioner of Corporations:

> "shall have the power to establish such rules and regulations as may be reasonable or necessary to insure the disposition of the proceeds of such securities in the manner and for the purposes provided in such permit * * *"

This, of course, must be read in its context, which supplies a sufficient legal standard to guide the administrator in the exercise of the power. Of such a grant, the court said in People v. Kuder, 93 Cal. App. 42, at 51:

> "This general power is conferred by all statutes creating state boards and commissions, in the same or similar language, and in no instance of which we are aware has it been held invalid because conferring legislative or judicial authority."

A certain statute had for its object the conservation of food fish for purposes of human consumption. It authorized the fish and game commission to grant permits to take fish for reduction purposes when "it shall be shown and appear to the satisfaction of the * * * commission that such use of such fish will not tend to deplete the species, or result in waste or deterioration." This was the essential feature of the standard which the legislature laid down for the guidance of the commission; held valid in People v. Globe Grain & Mill Co., 211 Cal. 121. Interesting in this connection is the fact that in an earlier form this statute contained more specific restrictions upon the exercise of the powers of the commission, particularly as regarded requirements for a hearing; upheld in People v. Monterey Fish Products Co., 195 Cal. 548. Of these differences, the court in the later case said:

> "The two statutes are similar in the one important respect that in each the discretionary power vested in the commission is controlled by a standard or guide set forth in the law itself.
> "It is true that one contains more specific restrictions than the other. This is purely a matter of legislative policy, and does not affect the constitutional problem.
> "The only substantial difference between them, so far as concerns the question of administrative discretion, is that the original statute expressly provides for a hearing. The difference is not material.
> "The essential requirement of due process is merely that the administrative officer or body be required to determine the existence or nonexistence of the necessary facts before any decision is made. If the statute requires this, it does not vest an uncontrolled discretion, and the officer or body may not act arbitrarily." (211 Cal. 126.)

Here is a clear indication of the fact that the minimum constitutional requirement of due process is one thing and that which additionally a statute might well provide (either by way of a more precise definition of a standard or of a procedure to govern the administrator in making his decision or ruling) is quite another. It would hardly be possible to overemphasize the significance of this point. Too often, the draftsman of such a statute gives consideration only to meeting the minimum constitutional requirement. He should in each case proceed further with his inquiry and evolve the clearest and most specific statement possible of the legislative standard and of the desired administrative procedure. The degree of particularity will, of course, in each case differ, according to the nature of the subject and the legislative policy in respect to that subject. This is not unduly to tie the hands of the administrator. It is rather to facilitate his administration of the statute by furnishing him a more certain guide in the discharge of his duty of enforcement.

Relative to the sales and use taxes, the State Board of Equalization "may prescribe, adopt, and enforce rules and regulations relating to the administration and enforcement of this part," and "may prescribe the extent to which any ruling or regulation shall be applied without retroactive effect." (Rev. & Tax. Code, Sec. 7051.) Like authority is given the administrator in relation to each of the following:

Revenue and Taxation Code

Car tax, private	Sec. 11651

In some instances, in a general grant of power to make rules, words somewhat more descriptive of the purpose or the subject matter have been used, such as the following:

"Rules and regulations governing . . . the admission of applicants for examination for certificates of registration of optometrists, and the practice of optometry." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 3025.)

"Rules concerning the holding of examinations and the manner of issuance and reissuance of licenses" to practice dentistry. (B. & P. Code, Sec. 1614.)

"Such rules . . . as the department may prescribe" for the conduct of examinations for trained attendants of the sick (B. & P. Code, Sec. 4518.)

"Rules . . . as may be necessary for the proper care of the sick by trained attendants." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 4501.)

"Regulations governing the issuance of . . certificates of inspection and release" of nursery stock (Ag. Code, Sec. 1235)

"Rules for the qualification of any person who engages for hire in the business of eradicating or controlling pests . ." (Ag Code, Sec. 150.)

"Rules . . . governing the conduct of, and application of methods of control or eradication used in, the business of eradicating or controlling pests for hire . ." (Ag Code, Sec. 150.)

"Rules, regulations and conditions consistent with the provisions of this chapter under which all horse races, upon the results of which there is wagering, shall be conducted . . ." (B & P. Code, Sec. 19561)

"Such by-laws and regulations not inconsistent with the laws of this State, as may be necessary for the protection of the public, and appertaining to the practice of pharmacy and the lawful performance of its (the board's) duties." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 4009.)

"Rules and regulations or sanitary requirements for the conduct of barber shops and colleges which may be adopted by the board in aid or furtherance of this chapter." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 6566.)

The Director of Agriculture "shall establish regulations and standards as the basis for the certification of pure cottonseed in the State and fix and collect reasonable fees for the certification of pure cottonseed," (Ag. Code, Sec 931) and "shall make rules and regulations to carry out the provisions of this article, and to make possible careful checking of previous crops, foundation seed, and necessary field inspections " (Ag. Code, Sec. 933.)

In enforcing the law in respect to agricultural warehouses, the Director of Agriculture from time to time "may establish and promulgate standards for products by which their quality or value may be judged or determined." (Ag. Code, Sec. 1248.)

"Subject to the provisions of this code, the State Board of Education shall adopt uniform regulations governing the keeping of attendance in all secondary schools." (Ed. Code, Sec. 7301.)

"The State Board of Education shall adopt rules and regulations fixing minimum standards entitling" high school or junior college "districts to receive state aid for the support of junior colleges " (Ed. Code, Sec. 8823.)

Where continuation education classes are maintained in high schools "The State Board of Education shall prescribe and enforce standards and regulations for the organization and administration of programs of guidance, placement and follow-up, for programs of coordination and instruction in continuation education, for the special reimbursement thereof, and for the certification of teachers and coordinators for continuation education." (Ed Code, Sec. 9036.)

"Reasonable regulations relating to the construction, design, operation, equipment, and color of school buses." (Ed. Code, Sec. 16272.)

"The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall establish reasonable and uniform standards not in conflict with the provisions of this chapter," relating to child care centers, "for child care centers established and maintained under the provisions of this chapter * * * ." (Ed. Code, Sec. 19605.)

In administering any funds appropriated or made available to the Department of Social Welfare for disbursement through the counties for welfare purposes, the department shall "establish rules and regulations, not in conflict with law or the policies formulated by the" social welfare "board, defining and controlling the conditions under which State aid may be granted or refused." (Wel. & Inst. Code, Sec. 114.)

The Youth Authority "is authorized to make and enforce all rules appropriate to the proper accomplishment of its functions." Wel. & Inst. Code, Sec. 1751.)

In a number of cases some differentiation is made between different types of rules which an agency is authorized to prescribe:

As to the rule-making power of the State Board of Education:

"The board shall adopt rules and regulations not inconsistent with the laws of this State (a) for its own government, (b) for the government of its appointees and employees, (c) for the government of the day and evening elementary schools, the day and evening secondary schools, and the technical and vocational schools of the State, (d) for the government of the several teachers colleges of the State, and (e) for the government of such other schools, excepting the University of California, as may receive in whole or in part financial support from the State." (Ed. Code, Sec. 112.)

The Board of Cosmetology "may adopt reasonable rules:

"(a) For carrying out the provisions of this chapter.

"(b) For conducting examinations of applicants for registration and license.

"(c) For governing the recognition of, and the credits to be given to, the study of cosmetology, or any of its branches, under a hairdresser and cosmetician or cosmetologist, or in a school of cosmetology, licensed under the laws of another state." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 7310.)

The Board of Cosmetology "may adopt such rules governing sanitary conditions as it deems necessary in regard to the precautions to be employed to prevent the creating or spreading of infectious diseases in cosmetological establishments and in schools of cosmetology, and in the practice of a hairdresser and cosmetician or cosmetologist, and in any branch of cosmetology." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 7311.)

The Board of Funeral Directors and Embalmers "may adopt and enforce reasonable rules and regulations relating to:

"(a) The practice of embalming.

"(b) The business of a funeral director.

"(c) The sanitary condition of places where such practice or business is conducted, with particular regard to plumbing, sewage, ventilation and equipment.

"(d) Carrying out generally the various provisions of this chapter for the protection of the peace, health, safety, welfare and morals of the public." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 7606.)

"The director, by rules and regulations promulgated as provided in Section 917.5, shall:

(a) Adopt germination standards for vegetable seeds

(b) Adopt tolerances to be applied in all enforcement procedure required by this article.

(c) Prescribe methods of procedure in the examination of lots of agricultural and vegetable seeds, and in securing samples thereof.

(d) Fix the maximum number of samples that may be tested free of charge for any one person in any period of time.

(e) Fix a schedule of charges for tests or samples in excess of those tested free of charge.

(f) Adopt a procedure for hearings to show cause why complaint should not be filed for alleged violation of any provision of this article.

(g) Issue such other orders, schedules, and announcements as will assist in carrying out the purposes of this article." (Agr. Code, Sec. 917.3.)

More specific description of the nature and scope of rules to be prescribed are furnished by the following:

In respect to the state civil service, "By rule of the board, competition in promotional examinations may be limited to employees with a permanent status who have superior qualifications as shown by their performance reports and who are serving in the class or classes designated by the board as appropriate for promotional purposes." (Deering Act 1404, Sec. 82.)

The State Civil Service Act directs the Personnel Board to "establish minimum qualifications for determining the fitness and qualifications of employees for each class of positions" (Sec. 86) but puts a limitation on that power by declaring that "The board shall not establish any minimum or maximum age limits for any civil service examination," and that "Age shall not be construed to be a minimum qualification for any state employment," but that this does not authorize the employment of a person who has reached the retirement age. (Sec. 86.1 of Deering Act 1404.)

"The State Department of Public Works shall by regulation determine a distinctive roadway marking which shall indicate no driving over such marking, and is authorized either by such marking or by signs and markings to designate any portion of a state highway where the volume of traffic or the vertical or other curvature of the roadway renders it hazardous to drive on the left side of such marking or signs and markings." (Veh. Code, Sec. 525.)

"The Department of Public Works may adopt rules and regulations not inconsistent with this division" (relating to vehicular crossings) "for the control of traffic on any vehicular crossing to aid and insure the safe and orderly flow of traffic, and shall so far as practicable notify the public of such rules and regulations by signs on such vehicular crossing." (Veh. Code, Sec. 609.)

"Prescribe methods of selecting samples of lots or containers of honey, which shall be reasonably calculated to produce by such sampling fair representation of the entire lots or containers sampled * * *" (Agr. Code, Sec. 841.)

"Prescribe methods of selecting samples of lots or containers of fruits, nuts and vegetables on a basis of size, or other specific classification, which shall be reasonably calculated to produce by such sampling fair representations of the entire lots or containers sampled." (Agr. Code, Sec. 782.)

A distinction is sometimes indicated between rules of general and those of special application:

The Director of Agriculture is authorized to "make special rules and regulations applicable to each specific inspection station and the conditions under which same shall be established and maintained," and to "promulgate, amend or repeal rules and regulations for sampling, grading, inspection and certification for the purposes of carrying out the provisions of this chapter." (Agr. Code, Sec. 892.)

In administering the California Small Loan Act, the Commissioner of Corporations is authorized "to make general rules and regulations and specific rulings, demands, and findings for the enforcement of this act, in addition hereto and not inconsistent herewith." (Deering Act 7700, Sec. 21.)

A similar provision appears in Sec. 22 of the Personal Property Brokers Act, Deering Act 5825.

Upon occasion, the administrator is directed to establish regulations comparable to those issued by the Federal Government.

State regulations for the labeling and advertising of certain kinds of cheese "shall conform as nearly as possible to those proclaimed and established by the Secretary of the United States Department of Agriculture." (Ag. Code, Sec. 543.)

Likewise, in respect to standards for field crop products. (Ag. Code, Sec. 892.)

"All standards and tolerances promulgated" under the California Seed Law "shall be as nearly as practicable like those established under the Federal Seed Act." (Ag. Code, Sec. 917.4.)

"Federal standards for grain established under authority of the United States Grain Standards Act shall be followed as closely as possible by the director." (Ag. Code, Sec. 1248.)

Regulations for the government of the Veterans' Home shall be "in conformity as nearly as possible, to the rules and regulations of the national military homes and the United States Veterans Administration for their facilities." (M. & V. Code, Sec. 1023.)

Meat inspection regulations "shall conform so far as possible to the rules governing meat inspection of the United States Department of Agriculture." (Ag. Code, Sec. 315.)

The power to prescribe quarantine regulations customarily, it would appear, has been conferred in broad, general terms, perhaps because of the nature of the subject and the difficulty of precise definition of its scope and limits:

The Director of Agriculture "may establish such quarantine, sanitary, and police regulations as may be necessary to circumscribe and exterminate" contagious or infectious disease affecting domestic animals or poultry. (Ag. Code, Sec. 200.)

"The Director of Agriculture may establish, maintain and enforce such quarantine regulations as he deems necessary to protect the agricultural industry of this State from pests, by establishing quarantine at the boundaries of this State or elsewhere within the State. He may make and enforce such rules and regulations as he deems necessary to prevent any plant or thing which is or is liable to be infested or infected by or which might act as a carrier of any pest, from passing over any quarantine line established and proclaimed pursuant to this chapter." (Ag. Code, Sec. 106.)

"No such animal (dying from a contagious disease) shall be transported, except to the nearest crematory, in accordance with such rules and regulations as the director may promulgate." (Ag. Code, Sec. 184.)

The interpretive ruling is sometimes mentioned in a statute:

The Fruit, Nut and Vegetable Standardization Act declares that the Director of Agriculture shall "establish and issue official color charts depicting the color standard and requirements established in this chapter." (Ag. Code, Sec. 782.)

Similarly he is directed to issue color charts depicting color standards established in respect to honey. (Ag. Code, Sec. 841.)

The following are illustrative of grants of authority to an agency to prescribe a procedure for the conduct of administrative proceedings:

In respect to the wages, hours and working conditions of women and minors, the Industrial Welfare Commission "may make and enforce rules of practice and procedure and shall not be bound by the technical rules of evidence." (Labor Code, Sec. 1178.)

In connection with workmen's compensation proceedings within its jurisdiction, the Industrial Accident Commission may:

"(a) Adopt reasonable and proper rules of practice and procedure.

(b) Regulate and provide the manner in which, and by whom, minors and incompetent persons are to appear and be represented before it.

* * * * * * *

(e) Regulate and prescribe the kind and character of notices, where not specifically prescribed by Division 4" (relating to workmen's compensation and insurance) "and 5," (relating to safety in employment) "and the service thereof."

(f) Regulate and prescribe the nature and extent of the proofs and evidence." (Labor Code, Sec. 5307.)

The rule or regulation which pertains to the internal organization and management of an agency or institution is frequently given specific recognition in a statute:

The board of directors of the Veterans' Home shall "adopt rules and regulations for the government of the home." (M. & V. Code, Sec. 1023.)

The board of directors of the Women's Relief Corps Home "shall * * * adopt rules and regulations for its government." (M. & V. Code, Sec. 1085.)

The Department of Finance "may establish rules and regulations for the government and maintenance of the State buildings and grounds, * * *" (Pol. Code, 716.)

The State Lands Commission "shall adopt rules governing the conduct of the business of the commission." (Pub. R. Code, Sec. 6105.)

The State Park Commission "may establish rules and regulations not inconsistent with law for the government and administration of the State Park System." (Pub. R. Code, Sec. 5003.)

The Chief of the California Highway Patrol may "adopt rules and regulations relative to all activities of the California Highway Patrol." (Veh. Code, Sec. 124.)

The Chiropractic Board has power "to adopt * * * such rules and regulations as the board may deem proper and necessary for the performance of its work." (D. A. 4811, Sec. 4(b).)

The Reclamation Board "may adopt, amend or repeal rules to promote the convenient, orderly and just conduct of the business of the board and of the" Sacramento and San Joaquin "drainage district." (Water Code, Sec. 8571.)

The California District Securities Commission "shall adopt reasonable rules for the conduct of its affairs, which rules shall not conflict with law." (Water Code, Sec. 20022.)

The Athletic Commission shall "make, amend or abrogate rules for the administration of their office, not inconsistent herewith, as they may deem expedient." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 18624.)

The Board of Accountancy "shall formulate rules for the government of the board." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 5003.)

The Board of Registration for Civil Engineers "may adopt rules and by-laws, not inconsistent with law, needed to govern its action." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 6717.)

The Board of Dental Examiners "may adopt rules concerning its meetings * * *" (B. & P. Code, Sec. 1614.)

The Board of Optometry may make rules and regulations governing the procedure of the board. (B. & P. Code, Sec. 3025.)

The Real Estate Commissioner may "promulgate necessary rules and regulations for the conduct of his office." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 10080.)

Additional citations of statutes that confer the rule-making power appear in Larmac, Index to California Laws, 1943, at pages 1260 to 1263.

Statutes in respect to the rate-making power in the public utility field appear to be more complete and specific in the prescription of standards and procedures than those in other fields, perhaps because the former have had a longer period of development and it is recognized that the Railroad Commission exercises legislative, not merely quasi-legislative, powers. The Public Utilities Act (D.A. 6386), among other things:

Declares that all charges shall be just and reasonable. (Sec. 13.)

Permits less than a maximum reasonable rate when the needs of commerce or public interest require, subject to certain prescribed limitations. (Sec. 13½.)

Prohibits discrimination in rates and refunds, limits the issuance of passes to certain defined classes of persons, and defines the conditions under which and the purposes for which property may be carried without charge. (Secs. 17 and 17.5.)

Prohibits preferential rates as between persons and localities. (Sec. 19.)

Authorizes the commission to permit a utility to profit from improved methods of operation. (Sec. 20.)

Permits sliding scales of charges when approved by the commission. (Sec. 21.)

Prescribes regulations concerning long and short hauls and communications. (Sec. 24.)

Prescribes minimum rates for street-car fares, with authority in the commission to grant an increase upon a proper showing. (Sec. 27.)

Declares a policy favoring a differential in favor of water carriers, to the end that "water carriers shall be fairly able to compete," and taking "into consideration quality and regularity of service and class and speed of vessels" (Sec 34a.)

The factors which the California Toll Bridge Authority shall take into consideration in fixing rates of toll and other charges for toll bridges and other highway crossings under its jurisdiction appear to be specified with reasonable certainty in Section 7 of the California Toll Bridge Authority Act, D.A. 956.

The Commissioner of Corporations has authority to fix "maximum rental or charges to be charged tenants" of a land chest corporation, such charges to be determined:

"Upon the basis of the actual costs of the projects so that such rentals, together with all other income of the corporation, shall be sufficient to meet all fixed charges and interest requirements, and other charges of the corporation approved by the commissioner. (D.A 3482, Sec 7; actual costs and fixed charges defined in Sec. 2.)

A similar standard is prescribed in respect to the fixing, by the Commission of Immigration and Housing, of maximum room rentals chargeable by a limited dividend housing corporation. (D.A. 3481, Sec. 11; actual costs and fixed charges defined in Sec. 2.)

In 1935, California inaugurated the policy of regulating the minimum prices payable to producers of marketing milk and cream (Stats. 1935, Chapter 241, p. 922) for the declared purposes, among others, of stabilizing production and of assuring an adequate and continuous supply of pure fresh wholesome milk and cream at fair and reasonable prices. In 1937, this measure was amended in various particulars and amplified to provide also for the fixing of minimum wholesale and retail prices for the sale of such milk and cream (Stats. 1937, Chapter 3, page 42).

In this form the act comprised Sections 735 to 738, inclusive, of the Agricultural Code, and was held constitutional as to various of its features, in Jersey Maid Milk Products Co. v. Brook (1939), 13 Cal. (2d) 620, and Ray v Parker (1940), 15 Cal. (2d) 275.

The factual conditions recited, the policy in respect to the remedying of those conditions declared, and the objectives and purposes stated in Sections 735 and 735.1 of the code, are considered important and significant elements of the standards laid down for the guidance of the administrator.

In respect to the designation of marketing areas wherein the Director of Agriculture "finds the conditions affecting the production, distribution, and sale of fluid milk, fluid cream, or both, are reasonably uniform," and "which he deems necessary or advisable to effectuate the purposes of this chapter" (Sec. 736), the existence of such conditions and the factor of uniformity furnish a standard sufficient to satisfy the constitutional requirement.

When a marketing area is established, Section 736.1 gives the director authority to formulate a stabilization and marketing plan for the area, in accordance with a certain procedure prescribed.

If he finds such a plan "necessary to accomplish the purposes of this chapter" he shall formulate one and hold a hearing upon it. If he then determines that the plan will "tend" to accomplish "the purposes of this chapter within the standards herein prescribed," he issues his order and the plan goes into effect. There is here a standard sufficient to satisfy the constitutional requirement in view of the explicit statement of "the purposes of this chapter" set forth in Section 735.1.

The statute also prescribes a legally sufficient standard for the fixing of prices. There are, for example, the requirements that the minimum price be based upon the "economic relationship of the price of fluid milk for the marketing area involved to the price of manufacturing milk, taking into consideration the additional costs incurred" in producing the former, and that the director find that such prices "will tend to effectuate the purposes and policy of this chapter" and "will insure consumers a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk" (Sec. 736.3).

In respect to the fixing of minimum wholesale and retail prices, the provisions of Section 736.12 are somewhat more detailed in the specification of factors to be considered. They do not authorize the fixing of a higher minimum price for milk delivered in a fibre container than for the same quantity and quality of milk delivered in a glass bottle. The requirement of Section 736.12 that the director take into consideration "the reasonable cost of handling fluid milk or cream, * * * incurred by distributors and retail stores, including all costs of hauling, processing, selling and delivering by the several methods used in such marketing area," reasonably refers only to the variations of method involved in serving wholesale, retail store, and home delivery customers. The differing needs of these several classes of customers have a definite effect upon the cost of serving them, but a differential in price for the same quantity, quality and type of delivery, merely because of a difference in the construction of the container used, serves only to increase inter-trade friction and violates the aim of a uniform minimum price in the area. Such a differential would not serve the objects and purposes of the act, is not required for the maintenance of an adequate supply, is not essential to continuance in business, is not aimed at an unfair trade practice, and is violative of that provision of the statute which declares that the minimum prices shall not be more than reasonably sufficient to cover the necessary costs, including a reasonable return upon necessary capital invested, of reasonably efficient distributors and retailers. (Challenge Cream and Butter Assn. v. Parker (Nov., 1943), 23 Cal. (2d) 137.)

The length of treatment given this question by the court in the case just cited suggests that the standards laid down in the milk price control law, though they meet the constitutional requirement, may be susceptible to more definite and precise expression. Such, perhaps, is also inferable from the introduction of various bills during recent legislative sessions specifying more definitely the factors which may or may not be taken into consideration in fixing prices.* J. M. Tinley, writing in 1938, observed, in respect to the wide discretionary powers of the director under this act, that many students of political science and government administration maintain that where control over important economic undertakings is necessary, the powers and the basis of procedure should so far as possible be definitely provided in the statute; that a clearer definition and limitation of the powers of the authority controlling milk prices might eventually become necessary; that inclusion of that detail in the initial legislation might have been unwise, milk-stabilization legislation having entered an uncharted field; and that after some experience under the act it could be amended, if found desirable, to define in greater detail the powers and the basis of procedure of the control authority. (Public Regulation of Milk Marketing in California, by J. M. Tinley, p. 85.)

Other statutes which give the administrator a wide discretion and prescribe standards in much the same manner as the milk price control law, are these:

The Agricultural Pro-rate Law, Deering Act 143a; held valid in Agric. Prorate Com. v. Superior Court (1936), 5 Cal. (2d) 550, and Whittier, etc. Assn. v. Agric. Prorate Com. (1938), 11 Cal. (2d) 470.

The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1935, Deering Act 146; held valid in Brock v. Superior Court (1937), 9 Cal. (2d) 291, and People v. Western Fruit Growers (1943), 22 Cal. (2d) 494.

The California Marketing Agreement Act (Stats. 1935, Ch. 677, p. 1856; expired by limitation in 1937).

Sometimes the Legislature, instead of committing to the administrator the making of regulations in the first instance, writes the regulations into the statute and then authorizes the administrator to prescribe tolerances, make exceptions, or issue substitutional regulations in appropriate situations. This method has been used of late principally in relation to subjects of regulation that are affected by changing conditions caused by the wars in which this Country is now engaged.

* Such as these, perhaps A B Nos 558 and 2013 S B Nos 126 and 127, of 1941, S C R No 22, First Extra Session, 1941-1942, A B No 1203 and S B No 187, of 1943

One illustration is furnished by Section 35 of the Agricultural Code. If the Attorney General certifies to the Director of Agriculture that a certain > "provision, condition, standard or price established by or under authority of this code is in conflict with a federal law, order or regulation made under the federal war powers, and is thereby rendered ineffectual and unenforceable," the director prepares a substitutional provision (condition, standard or price), and holds a hearing thereon, upon notice. If he finds (1) that the conflict "seriously impairs or prevents the effectuation of the purpose and intent" of the existing provision or of the statute of which it is a part, (2) that such purpose or intent will be best served by the adoption of the substitutional provision, and the conflict will be removed, (3) that the substitutional is "as similar to the existing provision * * * as is reasonably possible without being in conflict with such federal" regulation, and (4) that the substitutional provision will protect the agricultural interests and conserve the agricultural wealth of the State and protect the health and general welfare of our citizens during the life of the conflicting federal regulation, the director transmits his determination and recommendations to the Governor, for review by the Governor.

The Governor, if he finds that "the purposes and objectives of this section are to be attained thereby," issues "an order formulating and making effective such new provision, condition, standard or price."

A somewhat similar method of prescribing administrative standards in lieu of statutory provisions is authorized by Section 790.5 of the Agricultural Code. It is confined to fruit, nut, and vegetable standards prescribed by Chapter 2 of Division 5 of the code. It has reference to statutory standards which are rendered "difficult or impossible of performance by reason of laws or orders promulgated under the war power of the Government of the United States, or because of scarcity of materials or equipment used in the production or marketing" of a commodity, or to a statutory standard which "results in serious waste of useful produce otherwise available for human consumption."

In such a case, the Director of Agriculture may establish emergency standards "reasonably calculated to effectuate the purposes of the standards which they supersede," but none shall be established "which tend to lower any standards relating to carrying or keeping quality of any commodity," and none shall be construed "to modify * * * any provision of this chapter designed to prevent deception or mislabeling, or designed to prevent the marketing of produce which is unwholesome or which fail to give consumer satisfaction."

An act of 1943 creates a zone of restricted lighting and prescribes for that zone specific detailed regulations relative to lighting and to air raid precautions. (Stats. 1943, Chapter 229, page 2001; Deering Act 2001.) These regulations were the same in every respect as the then existing regulations on the same subject issued by the Commanding General of the Western Defense Command. It was desirable, of course, to provide for modification of these statutory regulations to coincide with such changes as the commanding general might make in the regulations issued by him.

Accordingly, Section 4 of Chapter 229 authorizes the Governor to proclaim additional or different restrictive lighting regulations if proposed by the State War Council (if, after study, investigation or hearing, the council finds that such are required in said zone or in other areas "in order to prevent aiding the operations of the enemy") and if the Governor concurs in such proposals The council, in making such determination, is directed to consider the findings and recommendations of the Commanding General of the Western Defense Command or other military agency designated by the Secretary of War. The Governor is prohibited from proclaiming "more restrictive regulations than those specified by said commanding general, it being the intention that insofar as possible the regulations so adopted shall be uniform with the orders or recommendations of the said commanding general." (Sec. 4.)

Similarly, additional or different air raid precaution regulations may be issued by the Governor if the State War Council finds they "are required in order to protect life or property" and if both the Governor and the Commanding General of the Western Defense Command "concur therein." (Sec. 15.)

The War Production Act declares that certain restrictions on activities of employees should be temporarily revised, wholly or in part, "in order to increase production and to win the war." (Stats. 1943, Chapter 14, page 124; Deering Act 4050.) It authorizes the Governor, after investigation and report to him by the appropriate state administrative agency, to issue permits in respect to designated places of employment, permitting "employment of female employees at or for such hours, and at such type of work, and under such conditions, as may be helpful in increasing production and furthering the war effort without unreasonably increasing the risk of impairing the health or safety of said female employees, in view of the emergency." (Sec. 3.)

The Minors Emergency War Employment Act provides in a similar manner for relaxation of restrictions on the activities of minor employees. (Stats. 1943, Chapter 771, page 2547; Deering Act 4051.)

CONCLUSION

It would seem impossible to overemphasize the importance, when drafting a statutory empowerment or standard, of ascertaining precisely and exactly the legislative intent, visualizing as fully as may be every factual situation which may arise under the proposed statute and the powers which the Legislature wishes the administrator to have and exercise in relation to each such situation, and then to express that intent in words as precisely, as clearly, and as adequately as may be.

That should facilitate, not hamper, the work of the administrator in carrying out the legislative intent, and the work of the courts in construing the statute and passing upon the validity of regulations adopted to implement its provisions.

2. Statutory Procedure Governing Adoption of Administrative Regulations

Existing statutory provisions of this nature are infrequent and meager. Some appear in the statutes on the following subjects:

Agricultural Prorate, D.A. 143a.

Agricultural Products Marketing,
D.A. 146 and D.A. 146.1,

Economic Poisons, Ag. Code, Sec. 1068.
Employment Stabilization, D.A. 8780d, Sec. 90.
Milk Price Control, Ag. Code, Secs. 735-738.
Public Utilities, D.A. 6386.
Seed Law, Ag. Code, Secs. 917.3-917.6.

The affirmative vote of seven out of ten members is required for the adoption of a rule by the medical board (B. & P. Code, Sec. 2119.)

Publication of rules is required, in some cases with postponed effective date, in relation to:

Collection agencies, B. & P. Code, Sec. 6866.
Education, State Board of, Ed. Code, Sec. 112.
Marks and brands, Ag. Code, Sec. 331.
Personnel Board, State, D.A. 1404, Sec. 35.

Furniture and bedding inspection regulations take effect not earlier than 30 days after approval by the director (B. & P. Code, Sec. 19034); practice of pest control regulations, 30 days after notice given to all licensees (B & P. Code, Sec. 8525).

In some instances, regulations issued by one officer or agency require approval by an independent officer or agency before becoming effective:

"The Superintendent of Public Instruction may, with the approval of the State Board of Education, establish rules and regulations governing agreements affecting courses of study in the schools of the Public School System or cooperative arrangements entered into between any agency, officer, or employee of any part of the public school system and the Government of the United States or any agency thereof." (Ed. Code, Sec. 10605)

"No standards relating to child care centers proposed to be established by the Superintendent of Public Instruction in accordance with the provisions of this chapter," relating to child care centers, "shall take effect unless and until such proposed standards have been reviewed and approved by the California State War Council." (Ed. Code, Sec. 19614.5.)

"The Director of Natural Resources shall, with the approval of the Governor, promulgate any rules and regulations which are necessary or desirable to effectuate the purposes of this article," relating to state forests.

The Chief of the Bureau of Furniture and Bedding Inspection, with the approval of the Director of Professional and Vocational Standards "may adopt rules and regulations necessary for the administration of this chapter and declaring the policy of the bureau." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 19034.)

"With the approval of the Supreme Court, the board of governors may formulate and enforce rules of professional conduct for all members of the bar." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 6076.)

"Under rules and regulations adopted by the board and approved by the director, the Registrar of Contractors may investigate, classify and qualify applicants for contractors' licenses by written or oral examination or both." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 7065.)

"No rule governing sanitary conditions," adopted by the Board of Cosmetology, "has any effect until it has been approved by the State Department of Public Health." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 7311.)

The Structural Pest Control Board "subject to the control of the director, may adopt and enforce reasonable rules and regulations relating to the practice of pest control and the administration of this chapter." (B. & P. Code, Sec. 8525.)

In 1941, a legislative bill was introduced to require the Attorney General's approval of administrative regulations, as to their legality, prior to their taking effect. (A.B. No. 999.)

There are cases, too, in which one agency makes regulations governing the conduct of the affairs or property of another agency:

"The Division of Architecture may from time to time make such rules and regulations as it deems necessary, proper, or suitable effectually to carry out the provisions of this article," relating to approval of plans and supervision of construction of schoolhouses. (Ed. Code, Sec. 18202.)

"The State Fire Marshal shall make and enforce orders, rules, and regulations, not inconsistent with existing laws or ordinances relating to fire protection in the design and construction of, the means of egress and the adequacy of exits from, the installation and maintenance of fire alarm and fire extinguishment equipment or systems in, and the installation and maintenance of equipment and furnishings that present unusual fire hazards in, any state institution, factory, asylum, hospital, sanitarium, nursery, church, school, hall, theater, amphitheater, night club, or a similar occupancy or other place where a large number of persons work, live or congregate." (H. & S. Code, Sec. 13108.)

By Sec. 716 of the Political Code (Stats. 1941, Ch. 628, p. 2087) the Codification Board is empowered to make regulations for carrying out the provisions of the code, relating to filing and publication of regulations.

"The State Board of Education shall prescribe general regulations and general standards governing examinations for the elementary certificate by county boards of education." (Ed. Code, Sec. 12441.)

"The county board of education shall on or before the first day of February of each year establish rules and regulations under which elementary school districts governed by school trustees shall purchase standard school supplies and equipment through the county superintendent of schools, or when so directed by him, through a county purchasing agent. The county board of education shall list as standard school supplies and equipment such supplies and equipment as can be advantageously purchased in quantity." (Ed. Code, Sec. 18551.)

In respect to district or county fairs, "the Department of Finance shall prescribe rules and regulations for the judging of exhibits, and the maximum amount of premiums which may be offered and paid for all classes, sections, and types of exhibits." (Ag Code, Sec. 92.)

In the following cases, the regulations prescribed by one agency are required to be consistent with those prescribed by another agency:

"The governing board of any school district shall:

(a) Prescribe and enforce rules not inconsistent with law or with the rules prescribed by the State Board of Education, for its own government, and for the government of the schools under its jurisdiction." (Ed. Code, Sec. 2204.)

The governing board of any school district "may adopt such reasonable rules and regulations governing the child care center or centers maintained by it as are not in conflict with law or the standards established for child care centers by the Superintendent of Public Instruction. Such rules and regulations may include, among others, rules and regulations relating to the admission of children to, and their exclusion from, such center or centers." (Ed. Code, Sec. 19609.)

In 1941, a legislative bill was introduced declaring that no administrative regulation be adopted unless reasonably necessary and unless required (by a strict construction of the statute) to effectuate the purposes of the statute; also declaring that the mere fact of the adoption of a regulation does not create a presumption in favor of its validity. (S.B. 663.)

3. Judicial Review of Quasi-Legislative Action of an Administrative Agency

Our statutes are almost entirely silent on this subject.

There is a suggestion of a statutory proceeding for such a review in the Milk Price Control Law. Section 735.6, Ag. Code, declares:

"Any order of the director hereunder substantially affecting the rights of any interested party may be reviewed by any court of competent jurisdiction."

This is not to be confused with the "writ of review," which issues only to correct judicial action:

"It * * * was intended * * * that an interested party have a right to put in issue before a superior court a question arising as a result of the promulgation of any order" the administrator might make. (Ray v. Parker, 15 Cal. (2d) 275, at 290; approvingly quoting from Agricultural Prorate Com. v. Superior Court, 31 Cal. App. (2d) 518, 524.)

A comment in Laisne v. Cal. St. Bd. of Optometry, 19 Cal. (2d) 831, at 842, indicates that a review pursuant to Section 735.6, Ag. Code, might not be a review of a quasi-judicial act unless it were a review of an administrator's order revoking a license pursuant to Section 737.11, Ag. Code.

The differences between a quasi-legislative and a quasi-judicial proceeding of an administrative body are discussed in Ray v. Parker, 15 Cal. (2d) 275, at 304-310, indicating the nature and scope of the judicial review of a quasi-legislative act.

The principal actions or proceedings thus far used to test the validity of quasi-legislative acts are the equity suit for injunction (Ray v. Parker, 15 Cal. (2d) 275) and the statutory action for declaratory relief (Louis Eckert B. Co. v. Unemployment R. Com., 47 C. A. (2d) 844, and Viner v. Civil Service Com., 59 C. A. (2d) 458). In Cal. Drive-in Restaurant Assn. v. Clark, 22 C. (2d) 287, both remedies were applied for in one action.

For a discussion of these and other remedies, see Appendix to tentative report of Judicial Council of California, Administrative Agencies Survey, 1944, pages 93-97; 14 Cal. Jur. 200-202; 14 Cal. Jur. 868; 5 Ten-Year Supp., Cal. Jur. 107; 42 Am. Jur. 665-685, Pub. Admin. Law, Secs. 227-242.

It is probable that it is competent for the Legislature to provide more fully than it has yet undertaken, for judicial review of quasi-legislative acts of administrative agencies.

4. Administrative Review of Administrative Action

There are a few instances in which provision has been made for review of administrative action by an independent administrative body.

Thus, a person aggrieved by the disapproval of a claim by the State Controller may appeal to the Board of Control. (Pol. Code, Sec. 668.)

Certain appeals to the State Department of Social Welfare from decisions by a county are provided for in the Welfare and Institutions Code: In respect to aid to the blind, Sec. 3086; children's aid, Sec. 1551; old age security aid, Sec. 2182.

A determination by the State Board of Equalization that any amount, penalty or interest under the Sales and Use Tax Law has been paid more than once or has been erroneously or illegally collected or computed, is subject to approval by the Board of Control. (Rev. & Tax. Code, Sec. 6901.)

A similar approval is required in respect to certain refunds and overpayments in connection with the Motor Vehicle Fuel License Tax (Rev. & Tax. Code, Secs. 8126 and 8192); in respect to excess payment of insurance taxes (Rev. & Tax. Code, Sec. 12976); and in respect to overpayment under the Bank and Corporation Franchise Tax Act (D. A. 8488, Sec. 27.)

Upon appeal by the taxpayer, the State Board of Equalization reviews the action of the Franchise Tax Commissioner in disallowing a claim for refund under the Bank and Corporation Franchise Tax Act (D. A. 8488, Sec. 27.)

"SEC. 2. Section 92a is hereby added to the Civil Code, to read as follows:

92a. When the husband and wife have heretofore or hereafter lived separate and apart without cohabitation, by consent or otherwise, for seven consecutive years or more immediately prior to the commencement of the action, the court shall grant a final judgment of divorce at the suit of either party, irrespective of the cause of the separation.

In actions for divorce based on this cause, the court must file its decision and conclusions of law as in other cases and if it finds that the parties have lived separate and apart, without cohabitation, for seven consecutive years or more immediately prior to the commencement of the action, it shall forthwith enter a final judgment granting the divorce, and such final judgment shall restore the parties to the status of single persons and permit either to marry after the entry thereof; and such other and further relief as may be necessary to complete disposition of the action. The court may, in its discretion and regardless of whether or not a request therefor was included in the prayer of the complaint, restore the maiden name of the wife or the name under which she was married

Recrimination or limitation and lapse of time shall not be a defense or bar to any action brought under this section Nothing herein contained shall prevent the filing of a cross-complaint by the defendant on any of the grounds specified in Section 92 of this code, but if a cause of action be proved under this Section 92a, the court shall grant a divorce in accordance with this section, but the evidence in support of such cross-complaint shall be received and considered by the court for the purpose of determining the property rights of the parties and for the purpose of determining to which of the parties the final decree of divorce shall be granted. In such case the court, if it finds the cause of action pleaded in such cross-complaint has been proved by the evidence, shall assign, apportion and divide the community property and assign the homestead of the parties in accordance with the appropriate provisions of Section 146 of this code

In any action brought under this section, irrespective of which party caused the separation or is granted the divorce, the court may compel either party to make such suitable allowance to the other party for support during life or for a shorter period as the court may deem just, having regard to the circumstances of the parties respectively, and the court may from time to time modify its orders in these respects

In all actions brought under this section the court shall likewise have the power to provide for the custody, support, care and maintenance of the minor children of said parties and may from time to time modify its orders with respect thereto as the welfare of the said children may require, and may also make suitable disposition of the community property of the parties as provided in Sections 146, 147, and 148 of the Civil Code.

All actions brought under this section shall be otherwise governed by the provisions of Articles 2, 3, and 4 of Chapter 2 of Title 1 of Part 3 of Division 1 of this code, not inconsistent therewith"

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, SACRAMENTO, June 19, 1947

To the Honorable Members of the Assembly
State of California, Sacramento, California

GREETINGS: I am returning herewith without my signature

Assembly Bill No. 2202, entitled: "An act to add Chapter 18, comprising Section 19500, to the Revenue and Taxation Code, relating to personal income taxes, declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately."

My objections are as follows:

This bill was sponsored by the Franchise Tax Commissioner to extend for an additional year the limitation period for mailing deficiency assessments and for the filing of claims for refund with respect to returns under the Personal Income Tax Law filed for the calendar year 1942. It is an exact duplicate of Assembly Bill No. 373, now Chapter 12, Statutes of 1947, except that this bill carries an urgency clause. I am advised by the chief tax counsel for the commissioner that approval of this bill at this time will not be of any value in the administration of the law, and that they can rely on the bill earlier approved.

In view of this situation, I am returning the bill without my approval

Respectfully submitted.

EARL WARREN, Governor

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, SACRAMENTO, June 18, 1947

To the Honorable Members of the Assembly
State of California, Sacramento, California

GREETINGS: I am returning herewith, without my signature,

Assembly Bill No. 2443, entitled: "An act to amend Sections 12460, 12461, 17030, 17031, and 17032, and to repeal Sections 17033 and 17034 of the Government Code, relating to the duties of the Controller."

My objections to this bill are as follows:

This bill amends several sections of the Government Code relating to the issuance of warrants. The same sections would have been amended by Assembly Bill No. 1726 which I vetoed at the request of the Director of Finance, the Controller, and the Attorney General.

This bill corrects one of the points to which I objected in the earlier bill but leaves several of the other grounds on which the Attorney General asked that I veto that bill, equally objectionable, in this. It contains no change from Assembly Bill No. 1726 to meet the objections of the Attorney General relating to the method of paying judgments. It would still preclude the Attorney General from paying judgments to the clerk of the court as is customary practice.

Because this bill is a reenactment of some of the features responsible for my disapproval of the earlier bill, I am returning this one without my approval.

Respectfully submitted.

EARL WARREN, Governor

Assembly Bill No. 2443 ordered to unfinished business file.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, SACRAMENTO, June 20, 1947

To the Honorable Members of the Assembly
State of California
Sacramento, California

GREETINGS: I am returning herewith, without my signature,

Assembly Bill No. 498, entitled: "An act to amend Section 3700 of the Health and Safety Code, relating to the use of common drinking receptacles."

My objections are as follows:

This bill lowers the present standards of the law with regard to the use of common drinking cups on railroad trains. Present law prohibits the use of common drinking cups on railroad trains, but this bill would restrict this prohibition to railroad trains carrying passengers I see no reason for relaxing such health measures.

In fairness, it should be stated that as originally introduced the bill would have strengthened the law, but subsequent amendments have weakened it.

For these reasons I am returning this bill without my signature.

Respectfully submitted.

EARL WARREN, Governor

Assembly Bill No. 498—An act to amend Section 3700 of the Health and Safety Code, relating to the use of common drinking receptacles.

House Resolution No. 275

Relative to memorializing the President and the Congress of the United States in relation to the application of the 160-acre limitation of the Federal Reclamation Law to the Central Valley Project

WHEREAS, The Federal Reclamation Law, as originally enacted, was designed principally for the reclamation of arid lands on the Great Plains by developing a water supply for said lands and bringing them under cultivation; and

WHEREAS, In the earlier projects much of the land was owned by the United States and open to homestead and the maximum agricultural homestead on public lands had been traditionally established at 160 acres; and

WHEREAS, Not all of the land benefited by such reclamation was necessarily in public ownership and there was a possibility that a project might include considerable tracts of privately owned land which would be rendered more valuable because of the project; and

WHEREAS, To avoid conferring disproportionate benefits upon privately owned land in what were essentially public land projects the Congress limited the acreage for which water would be made available to 160 acres; and

WHEREAS, The Central Valley Project of California is being constructed under the Federal Reclamation Law but under entirely different circumstances than existed when the 160-acre limitation was written into said law, because it is not a project for the reclamation of arid public land but a multiple purpose project the water features of which involve principally a supplemental water supply for land in private ownership and already capable of producing crops; and

WHEREAS, A large part of the supplemental water supplied by the project will be utilized for replenishing the underground water supply which will present an entirely different picture from the early Great Plains projects where the utilization of water supplied by gravity flow could be adequately measured so that the 160-acre limitation could be practicably applied; and

WHEREAS, Within the Central Valley Basin there is a vast difference between parcels of land lying in different areas in the basin, whereas the land of the Great Plains projects for which the 160-acre limitation was originally designed was generally uniform as to nature and productiveness; and

WHEREAS, The application of the 160-acre limitation to the Central Valley Project would result in breaking up agricultural units which experience under California conditions has demonstrated are the proper size for efficient operation; and

WHEREAS, The application of the 160-acre limitation, if, indeed, such limitation can be practicably applied, would serve no useful purpose, disrupt an agricultural economy long established, and would apply the federal statute to a situation not contemplated at the time of its enactment; and

WHEREAS, There is pending in the Congress of the United States Senate Bill 66 to make the 160-acre limitation inapplicable to the Central Valley Project of California; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That the Congress of the United States is hereby memorialized and requested to enact said Senate Bill 66 and the President of the United States is memorialized and requested to approve said Senate Bill 66; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly is directed to transmit copies of this resolution to the President of the United States, the President pro Tempore of the Senate, the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to each Senator and Representative from California in the Congress of the United States

CONSIDERATION OF HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 159

House Resolution No. 159

Commending the State Capitol telephone operators

WHEREAS, The State Capitol switchboard serving state offices throughout the City of Sacramento is operated entirely by the State of California and is staffed by girls employed by the State; and

WHEREAS, The present emergency status of telephone service throughout the Country has made the task of these state telephone operators much more difficult because those operating the regular telephone exchanges are for the most part unfamiliar with the equipment and inexpert in telephone work, causing delays and interruptions in service; and

WHEREAS, The state telephone operators are working extra hard during this emergency to maintain efficiency of the Capitol service and to get the legislative calls through expeditiously in spite of the handicaps and difficulties of the emergency; and

WHEREAS, The Capitol telephone operators are not to be confused with the telephone company operators who staff the long distance switchboard in the second floor corridor, but are the operators employed by the State to operate the state switchboard which is housed in Room No. 216, of the Capitol, where in spite of inadequate equipment and office space, these state operators are doing a marvelous job for Assemblymen, Senators and state officials; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That Mrs. Cruz Wallquist, Chief Operator for the State Capitol, and the members of her able staff are hereby commended for the fine work they have done in maintaining the efficiency of the Capitol Exchange at all times and particularly during the present emergency, and for the patient and courteous manner in which their work is carried on; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of this Assembly transmit a suitably prepared copy of this resolution to Mrs Cruz Wallquist and her assistants as a token of appreciation by the Members of this Assembly and as an expression of the pride which they take in the commendably high stand of efficiency set by this fine group of state employees.

Resolution read, and adopted.

CONSIDERATION OF HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 210

House Resolution No. 210

Relating to memorializing and petitioning Congress to enact legislation adequate to stamp out and abolish the evil of lynching

WHEREAS, During the last few years and throughout the Nation as a whole, there have been many lynchings and attempts at lynching; and

WHEREAS, There is inadequate legislation by the United States and among the several states to discourage lynching; and

WHEREAS, Proper legislation by the Congress of the United States would have a salutary effect and would greatly tend to decrease the number of lynchings and attempts at lynching; and

WHEREAS, It has been definitely proved that legislation by the United States of America with regard to other crimes has tended to decrease such crimes, and that public protection now demands that the United States of America extend its legislation to this field of crime; and

WHEREAS, Many measures to curb lynching are now pending in the Congress; and

WHEREAS, This Assembly desires to affirm the position taken by the Legislature of California in 1935, and reaffirmed in 1937 and 1939, in urging the National Government to enact effective legislation to prevent lynchings; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That the Congress of the United States is hereby memorialized to enact legislation adequate to decrease and abolish lynching; and be it further

MESSAGES FROM THE SENATE

SENATE CHAMBER, SACRAMENTO, June 20, 1947

MR. SPEAKER: By direction of the Senate I am returning herewith

Assembly Bill No. 537, by Sam L. Collins, "An act to amend Section 817 of the Penal Code, relating to peace officers," for the reason that the same was held to be in violation of Joint Rule No. 9, in that the bill as introduced on January 20, 1947, would have added a section to the Civil Code relating to the venue of an action to obtain a decree of nullity of marriage, while as amended in the Assembly on March 27, 1947, the bill would amend Section 817 of the Penal Code relating to peace officers. Subsequent amendments adopted by the Assembly on April 3d, and the Senate on April 17th, have not restored the subject covered by the bill as introduced on January 20th.

Joint Rule No. 33 provides: "If either house shall violate a joint rule a question of order may be raised in the other house and decided in the same manner as in the case of the violation of the Rules of such house, and if it shall be decided that the Joint Rules have been violated, the bill involving such violations shall be returned to the house in which it originated, and such disputed matter be considered in like manner as in conference committee." The point of order was raised in the Senate on this day that the bill as amended was in violation of Joint Rule No. 9, which point of order was held to be well taken.

Therefore, pursuant to the provisions of Joint Rule No. 33, the Senate has this day appointed Senators Jespersen, DeLap, and Mayo as a Committee on Conference to meet a like committee from the Assembly to consider the matter of Assembly Bill No. 537.

J. A. BEEK, Secretary of the Senate

SENATE CHAMBER, SACRAMENTO, June 20, 1947

MR. SPEAKER: I am directed to inform your honorable body that the Senate amended, and on this day passed, as amended:

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, SACRAMENTO, June 20, 1947

To the Honorable Members of the Assembly
State of California,
Sacramento, California

GREETINGS: I am returning herewith without my signature

Assembly Bill No. 1868, entitled: "An act to add Section 1771.5 to the Labor Code, relating to legal holidays on public works."

My objections are as follows:

This bill would amend the Public Works Law of the State of California requiring the payment of the prevailing rate of wages on public works. Its effect would be to require that legal holidays would be those prescribed by labor agreements rather than those specified by law. I am advised that there is no uniformity in the specification of holidays in labor agreements and that in this respect they differ from locality to locality and even as between various crafts. Such a provision as proposed by this bill could only lead to confusion in public works contracts. A further objection to the bill arises from the provisions therein relieving the governing body awarding a public works contract of the necessity of enforcing the payment of the prevailing rate of wages insofar as holiday wages are concerned. For many years it has been the policy of this State to prescribe that the prevailing rate of wages shall be paid on public works and I do not believe that it is desirable to depart from this policy with respect to the payment of the prevailing rate of wages on holidays. For these reasons I am returning the bill without my approval.

Respectfully submitted.

EARL WARREN, Governor

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, SACRAMENTO, June 20, 1947

To the Honorable Members of the Assembly
State of California
Sacramento, California

GREETINGS I am returning herewith without my signature

Assembly Bill No. 158, entitled: "An act to amend Section 599 of, and to add Section 58 to, the Vehicle Code, relating to inflammable liquids and vehicles transporting the same."

My objections are as follows:

This bill adds to the Vehicle Code a definition of the term flammable liquids. I am advised by the State Fire Marshal and the Director of Motor Vehicles that under the definition proposed by this bill such liquids as kerosene, stove oil and diesel fuel would not be classed as flammable liquids. The result would be that under the Vehicle Code vehicles carrying such liquids would no longer be required to stop at railroad crossings With such accidents as the recent one at Kingsburg still in mind, I do not believe that it is desirable to exempt vehicles carrying such liquids from the requirement now in the law that they stop before railroad crossings Both the Fire Marshal and the Director of Motor Vehicles point out the hazard of this bill, which I am returning without my approval

Respectfully submitted

EARL WARREN, Governor

STATEMENT OF MR. HOWARD CRAMER REGARDING SENATE BILL NO. 1075

Mr. Speaker and Members of the Assembly

Some six weeks ago I made some remarks on the floor of the Assembly regarding a bill authored by Senators Swing and McBride. These remarks were wrongly interpreted as attacks on the authors. I wish to state that my objections were directed entirely against the contents of the bill itself and not against the authors, whom I regard as fine men and a credit to this Legislature.

Immunity of Legislator from Arrest—No. 5152

DEAR MR. DILLS: You have asked whether a Member of the Legislature, during the session and 15 days before and after, is exempt from arrest for a traffic violation, or from other criminal process.

The immunity from arrest granted to legislators is set forth in Section 11 of Article IV of the State Constitution as follows:

> "Members of the Legislature shall, in all cases, except treason, felony, and breach of peace, be privileged from arrest, and shall not be subject to any civil process during the session of the Legislature, nor for 15 days next before the commencement and after the termination of each session."

This provision of the Constitution was construed by the court in In re Emmet, 120 Cal. App. 349, and was held to extend to civil cases only, and provided no exemption from criminal process.

In this case a legislator while being cited by a police officer for a traffic violation asserted that he was privileged from arrest, and in the course of the discussion that followed he struck the officer. He was charged with battery, and convicted. The court in its decision on his application for discharge through a writ of habeas corpus, reviews the leading cases on this subject, and traces the history of the exemption contained in Section 11 of Article IV of the Constitution, and finds that the framers of the Constitution intended to incorporate into the constitutional exemption the interpretation given to the words "treason, felony and breach of the peace," as had attached thereto by the common law.

The rule that there is no exemption from arrest in criminal cases is clearly stated in 5 C.J. 388, and that the construction given to the constitutional provision is governed by the common law as it existed at the date of the adoption of the Constitution, is there clearly stated as follows:

> "A congressman or member of a state legislature is not privileged from arrest for the commission of a criminal offense. The constitutional privilege of senators and representatives from arrest in all cases 'except treason, felony, and breach of the peace' during their attendance at the session and in going to and returning from the same, confers merely a privilege from arrest in civil cases, as the terms of the exception from the privilege comprehend all criminal offenses. This was the construction of those words in England, as applied to parliamentary privilege, and American constitutions, using these same initial words, use them in the sense which they had been settled to mean in England."

The court concludes:

> "It is not necessary for us to decide that a violation of the ordinance referred to herein constitutes a breach of the peace as defined by our criminal codes, as the cases which we have cited show that the words of the Constitution are taken in their generic sense and include all crimes known to common law. Misdemeanors are crimes known to the common law. We may state, however, that violations of the traffic ordinances would necessarily lead to disorder, and in large measure impair personal peace and security. It follows that the first question propounded herein (Is a member of the legislature exempt from arrest where the charge is the commission of a criminal offense?) must be answered in the negative."

This decision, although containing some dicta, appears to be supported by legal authority and reason, and we believe would be followed by the courts of this State on the question raised.

Very truly yours,

No. 47/132

FRED N. HOWSER
Attorney General;
STACY H. ASPEY,
Deputy Attorney General

June 4, 1947

The Honorable Vincent Thomas, Assemblyman for the Sixty-eighth Assembly District, has submitted the following seven questions relative to the rights and duties of Members of the Legislature:

1. Can a legislator enter private employment during a constitutional recess and after adjournment?

2. Can a legislator, who is an attorney, practice law during a legislative session?

3. Can a legislator enter into any private employment, after adjournment, with any corporation or association?

4. Can a legislator appear before state agencies in behalf of a constituent and receive compensation therefor?

5. After adjournment, is a legislator still considered a public official?

6. Can a legislator retain his position as city councilman, city attorney or notary public during his term of office?

7. Is a legislator within his legal rights in establishing a public relations office upon adjournment, and continuing in business until the convening of the next legislative session?

The conclusions reached in answer thereto are summarized as follows:

Members of the Legislature are public officers during their entire terms of office but may nevertheless engage in any lawful private employment or activity during their tenure of office which does not impair their capacity to perform the necessary functions of public office or which does not subordinate their public duties to personal aggrandizement. Members of the Legislature may not, during their terms of office, accept or hold any office, trust or employment under this State, except an elective office, nor any lucrative office under the United States. Neither may a legislator simultaneously hold two or more incompatible offices.

It would not be reasonably possible to cover the general field of rights and duties of legislators in anything short of a treatise and therefore this opinion will be restricted to a discussion of the particular rights and duties involved in the specific questions presented.

Since all of the questions are premised upon the official status and duties of legislators, their status must first be established. Although, in the absence of statute, the legislative duties of legislators may cease upon adjournment sine die, the nonlegislative duties and functions of legislators continue and they remain public officers during the entire term for which they are elected. As stated in Rich v. Industrial Accident Commission, 36 C. A. (2d) 628 at page 632:

> "That Members of the Legislature are considered officers of the State during their entire term of office is evidenced by certain constitutional limitations, such as accepting other office (Art. IV, Sec. 19) and their manner of payment of salary. (Art. IV, Sec. 23.)"

The next step is to ascertain and consider the law controlling the extra-official activities of public state officers. We find this law principally embodied in Section 19 of Article IV of the State Constitution and in the common law prohibition against the occupation of incompatible public offices.

Section 19 of Article IV of the Constitution reads:

> "No Senator or Member of Assembly shall, during the term for which he shall have been elected, hold or accept any office, trust, or employment under this State; provided, that this provision shall not apply to any office filled by election by the people ''

The purpose of this provision is stated in Parker v. Riley, 18 Cal. (2d) 83 at page 87, as follows:

> "It is clear, therefore, that the purpose of the constitutional provision here involved is to prevent the acceptance by a legislator of any position under the State, whether an office or merely employment, which creates the opportunity for private aggrandizement, pecuniary in nature or otherwise."

And it must be borne in mind that this prohibition continues through the entire term for which the legislator has been elected, regardless of the time he actually holds office. (Rice v. National City, 132 Cal. 354; Chenowith v. Chambers, 33 Cal. App. 104.)

It is at once apparent that the application of this constitutional prohibition depends upon what constitutes an "office, trust, or employment under the State." In this connection it must be noted that an office or employment which merely adds to or enlarges the duties or functions of an existing office, such as the appointment of a legislator to a committee on interstate cooperation, is not deemed to create a new and different office within the meaning of said provision. (Parker v. Riley, 18 Cal. (2d) 83, 88; Curtin v. State of California, 61 Cal. App. 377.)

The words "public office" are used in so many senses that precise definition is not adequately possible. However, in Leymel v. Johnson, 105 Cal. App. 694, 697, consideration is given to the following definitions in connection with the constitutional prohibition in question:

> "* * * a public office is said to be the right, authority, and duty, created and conferred by law—the tenure of which is not transient, occasional, or incidental—by which for a given period an individual is vested with power to perform a public function for public benefit.
> "The most essential characteristic of an office is that the incumbent in his individual capacity is clothed with some part of the sovereignty of the State to be exercised in the interest of the public and required by law, and that the duties are of a continuous character as opposed to a mere temporary employment."

Although an office includes an employment, every public employment does not imply an office, and in Leymel v. Johnson, supra, it was held that the position of a high school instructor was not an office or employment under the State within the meaning of Section 19 of Article IV. Although many features of such employment are regulated by statute, the employment is essentially under the employing agency—in that case under the Board of Education rather than under the State. Upon the same reasoning, we decided in Opinion NS5288, on January 20, 1944, (3 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 18), that a Member of the Legislature might properly hold the position of City Attorney in a city of the sixth class without doing violence to said Section 19, it being primarily an employment under the city.

In Budway v. Hollibaugh, 68 Cal. App. (2d) 473, it was held that an Assemblyman was eligible for election to the office of councilman of a city of the sixth class because the office was one filled by election by the people and therefore within the exception stated in said Section 19 of Article IV. It should be noted in passing, however, that the court expressly refrained from deciding any question of compatibility between the two offices. And in Carter v. Commission of Qualifications etc., 14 Cal. (2d) 179, it was determined that an appointment by the Governor of a Member of the Legislature to fill a vacancy in the office of associate justice of the Supreme Court fell within the "elective office" exception since the office was one ordinarily filled by election by the people.

In Opinion NS5352, March 7, 1944 (3 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 153), we held that the Constitution did not prohibit a Member of the Legislature from holding a position as member of a city board of education. And in Opinion NS3607, January 25, 1941, we stated that although a legislator might properly join the State Guard, said constitutional prohibition might prevent his acceptance of a commission therein.

On the other hand, in the leading case of Satterwhite v. Garrison, 34 Cal. App. 734, involving a Member of the Legislature who also was a deputy district attorney, and in which a hearing by the Supreme Court was denied, the appointive position of deputy district attorney was held to be within the constitutional prohibition. In connection therewith, the court said:

> "While it must be conceded that a deputy district attorney is not one of the state officers provided for by the Constitution and he is what is generally known as a county officer, we think the terms of the Constitution 'office, trust or employment under this State' have a much broader signification than that contended for by appellant, and that his office must be held to be covered by them. In People v. Leonard, 73 Cal. 230, (14 Pac. 853), it was held that a supervisor—who also is a county officer—is the holder of a 'civil office of profit under this State.' So also of a county superintendent of schools in Crawford v. Dunbar, 52 Cal. 117 * * *
> "Upon the merits of the whole case we are of the opinion that the intent and purpose of the framers in proposing, and of the people in adopting, this constitutional provision was the preclusion of members of the law-making branch of the State Government from seeking or holding any appointive office or employment in or under any department or subdivision of the general State Government, by the seeking or holding of which his independent action as such Member of the Legislature might be in any wise influenced or affected."

In Opinion NS5766, dated February 2, 1945 (5 Ops. Cal. Atty. Gen. 59), we stated upon the authority of prior opinions and out-of-state decisions that Members of the Legislature could not constitutionally hold commissions as notaries public during their terms of office inasmuch as such commissions constitute public offices under the State. In our letter LB 168/217, July 12, 1938, we decided that a Member of the Legislature was not eligible for the office of county agricultural commissioner. Under date of March 19, 1940, we rendered Opinion NS2411 holding that a Member of the Senate could not accept an appointment as a trustee of the Sonoma State Home. And in our letter LB 210/350 we held that an Assemblyman was prohibited by Section 19 of Article IV from acting as a member of the advisory panel of the Youth Correction Authority.

A further constitutional limitation is embodied in Section 20 of Article IV which provides:

> "No person holding any lucrative office under the United States, or any other power, shall be eligible to any civil office of profit under this State; provided, that officers in the militia, who receive no annual salary, local officers, or postmasters whose compensation does not exceed five hundred dollars per annum, shall not be deemed to hold lucrative offices."

A discussion of this provision would involve substantially the same principles and would largely duplicate the discussion of Section 19 of the same article and we do not think it advisable to lengthen this opinion by unnecessary repetition.

Thus far, our discussion of the propriety of legislators holding two or more public offices or employments simultaneously has been confined to the absolute prohibition imposed by Section 19 of Article IV of the Constitution. We now take up the common law rule relative to the holding of two or more incompatible offices, which rule constitutes a separate and distinct limitation.

The doctrine of incompatibility of office is succinctly stated in People ex rel. Chapman v. Rapsey, 16 Cal. (2d) 636, at page 641, as follows:

> " 'The doctrine arising from attempts by single individuals to exercise the functions of incompatible offices springs out of considerations of public policy * * *, such considerations arising naturally from the view that two offices cannot be held by one person when, from the divergent character of the offices, the public interest will suffer thereby.' "
> " 'Two offices are said to be incompatible when the holder cannot in every instance discharge the duties of each. Incompatibility arises, therefore, from the nature of the duties of the offices, when there is an inconsistency in the functions of the two, where the functions of the two are inherently inconsistent or repugnant, as where antagonism would result in the attempt by one person to discharge the duties of both offices, or where the nature and duties of the two offices are such as to render it improper from considerations of public policy for one person to retain both. The true test is whether the two offices are incompatible in their natures, in the rights, duties or obligations connected with or flowing from them.' "

And "public offices" within the meaning of said doctrine are defined on page 639 as follows:

> " 'It seems to be reasonably well settled that where the Legislature creates the position, prescribes the duties, and fixes the compensation, and these duties pertain to the public and are continuing and permanent, not occasional or temporary, such position or employment is an office and he who occupies it is an officer. In such a case, there is an unmistakable declaration by the Legislature that some portion, great or small, of the sovereign functions of government are to be exercised for the benefit of the public, and the Legislature has decided for itself that the employment is of sufficient dignity and importance to be deemed to be an office.' ''

There are few cases in which the doctrine of incompatibility has been judicially applied to the office of legislator. In Budway v. Hollibaugh, 68 Cal. App. 473, it was decided that an Assemblyman was eligible for election to the office of councilman of a sixth class city during his legislative term, but, as hereinbefore pointed out, the court deliberately refrained from passing on the question of compatibility between the two offices and therefore the decision cannot be considered as establishing compatibility between such offices. In Weza v. Auditor General, 298 N. W. 368; 297 Mich. 686, it was held that the appointment of a member of the State Legislature to the office of county school commissioner operated to forfeit and vacate the legislative office, because of incompatibility between the two offices. Because the county school commission was created by act of Legislature and the powers, duties, salary and manner of election of commissioners was fixed by the Legislature, the court held the county office to be subordinate to the legislative office and therefore incompatible.

In our Opinion 10575 of March 11, 1936, we expressed the view that a Member of the Assembly could properly hold the position of attorney for the Sheriff of the City and County of San Francisco as the duties of the two offices were not incompatible. In a letter dated September 21, 1942, designated LB 221/800, we stated that a city councilman of a sixth class city elected to the Legislature would not be entitled to retain his city office as the state and city offices were incompatible. However, in a letter to a legislator in 1946, although we suggested the possibility of incompatibility between the offices of city councilman of a chartered city and state legislator, we did not express any opinion either way.

In 1939, we determined, in Opinion NS1620, that the offices of city councilman and California Highway Commissioner were incompatible by reason of the adverse duties imposed upon the respective offices by the Streets and Highways Code. Reference to additional instances in which compatibility or incompatibility has been determined between offices other than legislative offices may be helpful. The offices of Director of the Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District and Supervisor of Marin County were declared to be incompatible in People ex rel. Bagshaw v. Thompson, 55 Cal. App. (2d) 147, largely because the interests and duties of the two offices in tax matters were adverse. In People ex rel. Kraemer v. Bakshaw, 55 Cal. App. (2) 155, it was decided that the duties of a councilman of an unchartered city of the sixth class were incompatible with the duties of a supervisor of the county in which the city was located when they were imposed upon the same person. People v. Garrett, 72 Cal. App. 452, holds that the office of justice of the peace is incompatible with that of police court judge in the same township when held by the same person because two separate and distinct courts of varying jurisdiction are clearly contemplated and consolidation of the two through administration by a single judge would contravene public policy. This case also concisely states the rule of operation of the doctrine of incompatibility in the following language:

> "The rule is settled with unanimity that where an individual is an incumbent of a public office and, during such incumbency, is appointed or elected to another public office and enters upon the duties of the latter, the first office becomes at once vacant if the two are incompatible."

In the application of this rule it should be noted that the forfeiture of the first office does not result from the mere fact of appointment or election to a second and incompatible office, but rather results from the entering upon and performance of incompatible duties.

An analysis of the cases dealing with the doctrine of incompatibility establishes the futility of attempting to lay down any general rule by which incompatibility may be ascertained in every instance. In each case the nature and duties of the respective offices must be examined to determine the degree of repugnancy between them. So too must be determined the status of the offices with respect to whether one is subordinate to and controlled by the other to any appreciable extent. In the final analysis, incompatibility may be deemed to exist where "the nature and duties of the two offices are such as to render it improper, from considerations of public policy, for one incumbent to retain both." (People v. Garrett, 72 Cal. App. 452.)

This brings us to a consideration of the seven specific questions submitted, which are repeated for purposes of recollection:

1. May a legislator enter private employment during a constitutional recess and after adjournment?

2. May a legislator who is an attorney practice law during a legislative session?

3. May a legislator enter into any private employment after adjournment with any corporation or association?

4. May a legislator appear before state agencies in behalf of a constituent and receive compensation therefor?

5. After adjournment, is a legislator still considered a public official?

6. May a legislator retain his position as city councilman, city attorney, notary public, during his term of office?

7. Is a legislator within his legal rights in establishing a public relations office upon adjournment, and continuing in business until the convening of the next legislative session?

The first three and the seventh of said questions can be answered together. We know of no reason why Members of the Legislature may not engage in any lawful private employment or activity in the same manner and to the same extent as any other person, during recesses, after adjournment, or even during sessions so long as the legislative duties and functions are not adversely affected.

The fourth question presents a somewhat more delicate situation. It is a matter of common knowledge that Members of the Legislature, particularly attorneys at law, do appear before state boards and agencies for compensation in behalf of private clients and there is no statutory prohibition or established rule of public policy to prevent them from so doing, at least so long as they act in a purely private capacity. On the other hand, where the public board or agency is one subject to regulation, control and support by legislative action, public policy would seem to dictate that every precaution be taken to prevent any possible appearance or suggestion that the legislator acting privately in the interests of his clients is attempting to influence the action of the board or agency by reason of his legislative position.

The fifth question has hereinbefore been answered to the effect that after adjournment and during his entire term of office a legislator is deemed to be a public official.

The sixth question falls squarely within the scope of the above discussion concerning dual office holding. The question inquires specifically about the office of city councilman, city attorney, and notary public. The office of city councilman being ordinarily one filled by election by the people would not fall within the prohibition of Section 19, Article IV of the Constitution, so the question would be one of compatibility. As before pointed out, determination of this question would require examination into the duties and functions of the particular councilmen and the interests of those they serve, for comparison with the duties and functions of legislators and the interests they serve, to ascertain whether or not any repugnancy existed between the duties and functions of the respective offices and the extent to which the interests of the city might be inconsistent with and subordinate to those of the State. Following this formula, it will be found that the functions of both offices are definitely legislative in character; and that the duty of a councilman is to serve the best interests of his city, whereas the duty of the legislator is to the State, or at least to his district, as a whole without discrimination between cities or other political subdivisions. It further appears that charters and charter amendments of chartered cities are subject to legislative approval; that cities existing under the general law may be seriously affected by legislative changes in that law; that grants to cities of state property are by legislative enactment; that allocations of various moneys to cities are dependent on legislative will; and that numerous other instances may be found wherein the interests of individual cities are inconsistent with and dependent upon state interests. Under such circumstances and in the light of the law laid down in such cases as People ex rel. Kraemer v Bagshaw, supra, and Weza v. Auditor General, supra, the conclusion is inescapable that the offices of city councilman and state legislator are repugnant and incompatible.

The status of the office of city attorney presents a somewhat more troublesome problem. Because the office of city attorney and other comparable local offices are not legislative in character, considerably less repugnancy must necessarily exist between such offices and that of legislator And, as above mentioned, in Opinion NS 5288 we did state that a Member of the Legislature might properly and simultaneously hold the office of city attorney of a sixth class city. On the other hand, the duties and functions of city attorneys and comparable local officers may vary considerably, depending upon the provisions of the various city charters of chartered cities, and a careful examination of the facts and circumstances of each instance would seem indicated. We do not, therefore, feel that we can properly express any general unqualified opinion on the question of compatibility between such offices and those of legislators.

We have previously committed ourselves to the opinion that a commission as notary public is an office under the State within the meaning of Section 19, Article IV of the Constitution and is, therefore, an office which may not be held simultaneously by a Member of the Legislature.

MESSAGES FROM THE SENATE

SENATE CHAMBER, SACRAMENTO, June 20, 1947

MR. SPEAKER: I am directed to inform your honorable body that the Senate on this day adopted the report of the Committee on Conference concerning:

Senate Bill No. 1423—An act making an appropriation to the Regents of the University of California for the purpose of expanding the educational and research facilities of the university.

By C. V. TAYLOR, Assistant Secretary

COMMITTEE FROM THE SENATE

Senators Kraft, Watson, and Donnelly appeared before the bar of the Assembly, and announced that the Senate had concluded its labors and was now ready to adjourn sine die.

COMMUNICATIONS

By the Chief Clerk:

The following communication was received, read, and ordered printed in the Journal:

ASSEMBLY—CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE

As Viewed by Attaché Frances Elmo

My experience in the Legislature
  Has been an exciting one;
'Specially down upon the Assembly Floor—
  That's where it's really fun!

Trying to watch the proceedings,
  And at the same time listen,
To my boss's dictation—which, I assure you—
  Is not fiction!

Also, observing the Assemblymen
  Present through their "Mike"—
Various bills for consideration,
  Which you've never heard the like!

For example, when Vince Thomas
  Talked about the Abalone—
And divorcing his home city
  From all ties of "matrimony"!!

Or the time when Philip Boyd
Discussed the Barber "Game"—
For the services they render,
And charge all men the same;
Even though some have "real foliage,"
"Hair" to most is just a "name"!!

So, appropriate wigs were given
Just to illustrate this measure,
To Messrs. Silliman and Gannon,
Who accepted—with much pleasure!
Likewise, Author Honorable Boyd,
Wore one to cover up his "void"!

Also, when the Honorable Don Grunsky
Was reposing with the world,
And one of his colleagues decided
That his "pose" should be "uncurled"!!

So, this little "demon" proceeded,
While "hizzoner" was unaware,
To set a nice, red fire cracker—
Beneath his easy chair!

Just at the opportune moment,
"Yours Truly" walked down the aisle—
And OFF goes the loud explosion,
Causing both to jump 'most a MILE!!

Poor Donald—he turned extremely white—
While "Yours Truly" almost died with fright!
So we both found a chair free from any tacks
And for a few moments just sat and RELAXED!

Whereupon, the entire Assembly—
Was turned into an hilarious mood;
And, DOWN goes the gavel by Speaker Collins,
To restore order—as he should.

But, with all the turmoil and excitement,
Our Assemblymen deserve a hand,
For the excellent legislation they pass,
To make California a better land.

So, here's to a fine delegation—
Representatives of our Golden State,
Who pass laws by their fine "oration,"
And live up to their name, "Delegate."

And I'm very proud and happy
That I played a minor role,
In the Fifty-seventh Session
Which finally attained its goal!!

In accordance with the provisions of Joint Rule No. 37, we submit herewith an additional report of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee to the Fifty-seventh Session of the Legislature.

PARTIAL REPORT FILED

The Joint Legislative Budget Committee rendered a partial report on March 3, 1947, transmitting the report of the Legislative Auditor to the Budget Committee, analyzing the Budget and Budget Bill for the Fiscal Year, July 1, 1947 to June 30, 1948. This partial report was printed as a supplement to the Senate Journal of March 21, 1947. This report was in your hands for use in considering the Budget Bill during this session. We believe that this report and analysis of the Budget has been helpful in legislative consideration of the largest Budget the State has had. We now wish to render a report on the work of the Legislative Budget Committee during the last two years and to make certain recommendations concerning future work of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee.

FULL REPORT—1945-1947

By the provisions of Joint Rule No. 37 the Budget Committee is a continuing committee dealing constantly with matters "concerning the State Budget, the revenues and expenditures of the State and of the organization and functions of the State, its departments, subdivisions and agencies with a view of reducing the cost of the State Government, and securing greater efficiency and economy."

During the past two years the committee has been concerned with all of these matters. It has had its Legislative Auditor and staff studying state revenues, the expenditures of the several departments, the organization and procedure and operation of the various agencies of the State in order to forward the purpose of the committee.

BUDGET AND APPROPRIATION BILLS MAJOR TASK

Our primary activity, as previously reported in our partial report, has dealt with the State Budget and Appropriation Bills. A great deal of preliminary work had to be done before it was possible to work effectively on the Budget and appropriations. A continuous check of all departments is also necessary to see if the appropriations as approved by the Legislature are actually expended as the Legislature intended.

The committee instructed the Legislative Auditor to devote himself and his staff primarily to the State Budget but to do such studies as would yield information useful in considering the Budget and special appropriation bills. Many studies have been conducted in the past two years concerning the operations of the State, preliminary to the analysis of the Budget. This information was used in the Budget hearings and in hearings on reorganization of departments of the State and in connection with special appropriation bills and further expansion of state services.

We have already reported, in the partial report published in the Senate Journal above referred to, on the cooperation rendered the Governor's Budget makers in relation to the Budget. This work resulted in a reduction of the Budget at the time it was formulated. We feel that the Budget itself as submitted to the Legislature was materially smaller and better balanced because of this assistance.

BUDGET HEARINGS BEFORE LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEES

After the Budget analysis and report was prepared the Legislative Auditor and his staff continued to work on these matters, particularly with the Finance Committee of the Senate and the Ways and Means Committee of the Assembly. Assistance was rendered these committees in considering the Budget, help with hearings, participating therein and assisting in the preparation of reports for the several subcommittees. Information was provided the subcommittees wherever they requested it.

CONTROL IN BUDGET BILL

Technical assistance was rendered in suggesting and drafting amendments to the Budget Bill. An examination of the Budget Bill as it was first introduced and as it was finally passed by the Legislature will at once show that a large number of controls in relation to expenditures were written into this document. These were to a large extent suggested by the staff of the Budget Committee. These controls are in line with the general principles adopted from time to time by the Budget Committee.

BUDGET EXPEDITED

It is our feeling that consideration of the Budget was materially forwarded and improved not only through the analysis of the Budget provided by the Budget Committee, but also by the assistance rendered to the several committees and subcommittees of the Legislature dealing with the Budget Bill.

The Legislative Auditor was requested to give his recommendation in relation to each item of appropriation for each department and agency of the State provided for in the Budget Bill. This was considered in connection with the recommendations of the Director of Finance and the committees and the Legislature had an opportunity to consider this information as the basis for its decision. This procedure we believe has many advantages and we recommend its continuance and enlargement.

BUDGET COMMITTEE TASKS INCREASE WITH BUDGET

This is the third Budget the Joint Legislative Budget Committee has considered and the first annual Budget. This is also the largest Budget the State has ever had. The work of the Legislative Budget Committee has increased with the increased size of the Budget. Now with an annual Budget the work of the committee is approximately doubled. This condition will continue and now with the Legislature adjourning in the last part of June, there will be but a short period of time before the Legislative Budget Committee and staff must be concerned with the Budget for 1948-49.

It is the sincere hope of the Budget Committee that further progress can be made in expediting the consideration of the Budget so as to get it out of the way earlier in the session. This will release the log jam of special appropriation bills. Steps have already been taken along this line. One suggestion which we believe will be materially helpful is that all members of the Budget Committee from the Senate should be on the Finance Committee, and all Members from the Assembly should be on the Ways and Means Committee. This would provide a nucleus of legislators in each house familiar with the Budget and its preparation at the time it was introduced.

The Budget Committee is also taking steps to encourage the production in the first instance of as good a Budget Document as is possible and to assist in as full a consideration as is possible of all requested appropriations. The committee has instructed the Legislative Auditor to this effect.

Reference to the Budget Document for 1947-48 and the recommendations concerning it found in the Budget Analysis covering the 1945-47 Budget will show that many of the recommendations made on behalf of the Budget Committee have been carried into effect so that the Budget Document for 1947-48 is much improved. There has also been a closer administration through budgetary control of expenditures as set up in the Governor's Budget than has been evidenced in prior years. The Budget Committee has insisted that this should be the case, and we are assured that there will be as close adherence to the 1947-48 Budget as is practical. This procedure makes it all the more necessary that the Budget Document in the first instance should be well considered. It has been our endeavor to insist on this and to cooperate in making it effective.

The consideration of the Budget and appropriation bills by the Legislature at the budget session next March, 1948, will present some additional problems. Provision is not made for a recess during which time previously the Budget Committee has been enabled to consider the Budget Bill A revised procedure is now being considered to meet this situation.

LEGISLATORS' BUDGET JOB LARGER

The task of each legislator, considering the Budget annually, has likewise been increased. The Budget Committee believes that by bringing the Legislature a better Budget Document through the assistance we render, providing a comprehensive analysis of the Budget, thereby giving the Legislature information which we know to be reliable and in which we have confidence, that we can serve you and the people in the most valuable way. The committee has tried to have its staff prepared to provide all fiscal information whenever it is desired, so that facts might be before the Legislature in order to act intelligently on all fiscal matters, both in the Budget and in the many appropriation bills. This service will be more complete as the files of the Legislative Budget Committee are expanded.

STUDIES AND REPORTS

In our preliminary report we stated that other studies made on particular matters of government operation, expenditures and organization would be reported to you as well as an account of other actions of the committee.

The following major specific studies and reports have been conducted in addition to the Budget Analysis:

1. Operation of the State Printing Plant.

34. Economic trends in California and their influence on revenues of the State.
35. Administrative procedures in relation to the functioning and rule making of boards and commissions.
36. The length of the veteran education problem.

These are only the major specific studies that have been made. Many other numerous smaller studies have been carried out. All of these studies have yielded information affecting state expenditures, the organization of State Government, or efficiency in the operation of State Government, all within the purview of the Budget Committee. Each and every one of them has been used either in considering the Budget, special appropriation bills or in improvement in the state administration. Many of these reports have yielded definite and specific results.

Some of the minor reports were made to answer requests for information. Innumerable requests have been received for information on the agencies of the State, the cost thereof, the cost of government, the effect of taxes and, in fact, almost every other conceivable subject concerned with State Government. Answers have been supplied wherever this information was available and fell within the scope of the activity of the Budget Committee.

SOME RESULTS SECURED FROM STUDIES

While the committee does not claim full credit for economies and improvements achieved in the State Government following suggestions made by the committee and its staff for such economies and improvements, it does not hesitate to claim that it assisted directly in this matter. Frequently the suggestions made through the committee's operation resulted in large economies which have saved the State vast sums of money. These savings will accrue over the years. The committee believes that it assisted materially in initiating such action and frequently was the moving force.

Some definite improvements and savings in printing costs resulted from the Printing Plant study. This agency has been completely reorganized. A new State Printer was appointed and more businesslike management established. We believe that additional results can be secured from this agency in the future.

The mechanization of motor vehicle registration flowed directly from the report on this subject prepared jointly for the Budget Committee and the Senate Committee on Governmental Reorganization. This mechanized procedure was studied out completely and to the closest detail by our staff even to the floor location of equipment.

The bills providing for this system were drawn by the employees of the Legislative Budget Committee and sponsored by the committee, together with the Senate Committee on Governmental Reorganization. The Legislature approved the plan, appropriated the necessary funds, and it is now being installed. The added service alone to the public by this system will justify the expenditure; but in addition to this, on the basis of the same work performed manually, there will be a large saving, probably approaching $250,000 a year.

Other installations of mechanized accounting equipment in other departments will yield comparable results. Others will follow from this example. The published report on the mechanization of motor vehicle registration is in demand throughout the United States.

The report on the Department of Employment resulted in considerable improvement and in remedial legislation, saving the taxpayers many millions of dollars by reducing the tax.

The study of the Horse Race Board and the taxation of the proceeds of horse racing also provided information as the basis for remedial legislation.

The report on the DeWitt Hospital resulted in securing this institution which, together with Hammond Hospital, has assisted materially in relieving the crowding in our mental institutions.

Many other reports have resulted in material improvements in government and in economies producing very large savings. The committee will not take time or space to detail these results. They are already known to many of you and many of them you have encountered in the consideration of the State Budget and others you will find in the operation of state departments and agencies.

SERVICES TO OTHER LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEES

We have previously mentioned the services rendered to the Senate Finance and the Assembly Ways and Means Committees and the subcommittees thereof. The Legislative Budget Committee at its second meeting in December, 1941, instructed the Legislative Auditor to render such services as were possible and consistent with his duties to other legislative committees. This has been done continuously and the information supplied and the additional information secured through this cooperation has been used to carry out the duties of the Budget Committee.

Assistance was rendered to the Joint Agriculture and Livestock Problems Committee in its study of the agricultural operations of state institutions and also in its consideration of the hide and brand inspection law and procedure and costs, and also it was supplied information in regard to the operation of the State Fair.

Information was provided the Joint Committee on Highways, Streets, and Bridges. We also assisted with information for the Assembly Committee on County and City Jails. On several occasions information, research, and investigatory service was rendered the Governmental Efficiency Committee of the Assembly. Information was rendered the Senate Committee on State and Local Taxation. Other services were rendered to numerous committees where financial matters, governmental organization, auditing and other procedures affecting the efficiency of government were under consideration. We will not attempt to list these numerous items.

ASSISTANCE AND COOPERATION RENDERED STATE AGENCIES

The Legislative Auditor was instructed to render such services and cooperation to the state departments in studying their fiscal problems as was consistent with the constitutional division of the functions of government. Such assistance was for the purpose of securing information consistent with the purposes of the Budget Committee and useful in making recommendations to the Legislature subsequently for necessary and remedial legislation.

Through studying these matters at first hand and getting the views of the administrative officers of the several departments, the Legislative Auditor is then able to report to the Budget Committee and the Legislature his conclusions on all such matters. The Legislative Auditor is also in a position to inform the agencies of the State what action the Legislature has previously taken on such matters and what recommendation he will make to the Legislative Budget Committee. This procedure frequently initiates the consideration of matters on the basis of the Legislature's previous action and intent. Large values have been secured in relation to the Budget and the building program through this procedure.

The Legislative Auditor on instructions from the Budget Committee has worked closely with the Director of Finance in the preparation of the Budget and in the estimates of the revenue of the State and in the consideration of the original plan for state buildings and the modification thereof due to increase in price and changing conditions of the State. Close cooperation is maintained on all fiscal matters. We have already outlined the operations in connection with the State Budget.

In relation to the building program the Director of Finance formed an unofficial committee consisting of a representative of his own department in addition to himself, the State Architect, the representatives of the several departments interested in state buildings, a representative of the Taxpayers' Association and the Legislative Auditor. This committee during the past two years has conscientiously studied the entire building program. The recommendations made by the Director of Finance have come from this study. In this way the Legislative Budget Committee has had available precise and accurate information on each and every building project of the State. We believe it has been demonstrated at this session during the consideration of appropriations for capital outlay and in setting up of reserves therefor that the Legislature has had available accurate and reliable information on all these matters sufficient for the basis of an intelligent decision.

The procedure in allocating of funds for building, controlling the timing of building and the priority of each has resulted from the functioning of this program in which we have participated. The Budget Committee staff has become intimately familiar with the institutions of the State and their building needs. Between each session the staff makes an inspection of each institution.

Members of the staff have served on other interdepartmental committees considering such matters as personnel, pay rates, pay roll procedure, purchasing, property control and the payment of vendors. These surveys involve the operation of the Department of Finance, the Personnel Board, the Controller's office and other offices. This function has been for the purpose of assisting in improvements that will result in economies and efficiency in the operation of State Government. Such assistance and services were also rendered in connection with the Motor Vehicle Department. Numerous other like services were rendered which we will not detail here. A resolution is now pending requesting the Budget Committee continue to cooperate in the matter of pay roll procedure.

BUDGET COMMITTEE BILLS

Out of the numerious studies conducted and the functioning of the Legislative Auditor and in line with the general instructions of the Budget Committee, numerous suggestions for remedial legislation have arisen. Some 25 bills were introduced into the Legislature as follows:

	S.B. No.
Alcohol Beverage Control Fund, repealing continuing appropriation	1343
Annual budget, expenditure of funds	1332

1344	1348
1345	1349
1346
1347
1350

Some of these bills were introduced on the basis that all wartime agencies should be abolished and the matter should be brought before the Legislature. Other bills were in line with general procedure of the committee fostering economy and efficiency and others were to correct abuses found in the studies conducted.

Some of these bills were tabled at the request of the Budget Committee after they were considered in connection with other bills before the Legislature. Other bills were amended as appeared to be most desirable. Final action has not yet been taken on all these bills. At the present date 12 of them have been approved by both houses. Eight of these have been signed by the Governor and four have been vetoed. The bills that have been vetoed are ones eliminating the authority of the Director of Finance and the Governor to allow deficiencies in the Motor Vehicle Fuel Fund, State Lands Fund and the State Park and Beach Funds. The Governor stated that this elasticity was desirable. The Budget Committee has held that now with an annual Budget closer control of State expenditures by the Legislature can be made effective, and for this reason such control should rest in the Legislature and continuing appropriations should be eliminated.

This general principle has been followed in these bills, and they provide for the elimination of continuing appropriations wherever possible and return to the Legislature full control over appropriations.

Some of these bills approved will save the State large sums of money. Others will materially increase efficiency. The bills in relation to sick leave of state employees will go a long way to eliminate long standing abuses. No one can say just how much these measures will save or what will be the benefit through increased efficiency, but we are satisfied that there will be material results in both lines.

RESULTS JUSTIFIED PROCEDURE OF BUDGET COMMITTEE

Your committee believes that there is general agreement that the results secured through the operation of the committee have amply justified it. Moreover, there are very large results that flow from the very existence and operation of the committee and its staff which cannot be seen. We believe that large benefits result merely from the fact that the Legislative Budget Committee is in existence and that it has a Legislative Auditor and staff to make audits, investigations and studies and to make reports to the Legislature and ultimately find its way into remedial legislation. Many improvements in government will result merely from the fact that attention is directed to the possibility of improving the function of many state agencies. Irregularities and losses which might have occurred will not occur with such an agency in existence.

Original budget requests from the departments and agencies of the State we believe have been and will be more nearly in line when they are first presented than they would have been if they were not subjected to the scrutiny of the Budget Committee staff. Further reductions are made in the hearings on the Budget through the participation of the representative of the Budget Committee. What is even more important, the allocation of funds in the Budget is better balanced and subsequently the coordination of special appropriation bills with the Budget is secured through the fact that the Legislative Auditor as well as the Department of Finance watch this matter and call it to the attention of the several committees. In addition to this, the legislative intent is continually expressed and notice thereof is frequently incorporated into the Budget Bill and in special appropriations.

Following the original determination of the Budget Committee, the Legislative Auditor continually observes the functioning of all new agencies and expansion of existing agencies and reports back to the Legislative Budget Committee as to their costs and efficiency and the services they render. The Legislature has this information before it for appropriate action.

GENERAL COOPERATION SECURED

The Budget Committee is happy to report that it has received the fullest cooperation from the Department of Finance, the Personnel Board, the Department of Public Works and most other departments and agencies of the State Government. Information and assistance has been rendered generally wherever requested. The assistance of the State Employees' Association and individual state employees and the general public has also contributed much to our success.

The committee has not had to make use of the subpena of a witness or of documents in a single instance during its existence since 1941.

The committee wishes to take this opportunity to thank the many state officers and employees who have cooperated and supplied information for the Budget Committee and its staff. In particular it wishes to compliment the state employees and to say that in general there have been surprisingly few irregularities encountered and in most instances there has been a ready acceptance of suggestions for improved methods of procedure and a full endeavor to make reasonable economies and improved procedure effective

Respectfully submitted.

Mr. Brady asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent that the following report of the Assembly Interim Committee on Tide and Submerged Lands be ordered printed in the Journal in 10-point type:

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY INTERIM COMMITTEE ON TIDE AND SUBMERGED LANDS

Committee Members

BERNARD R. BRADY, Chairman; EDWARD F. GAFFNEY, FRANCIS DUNN, JR., KATHRYN T. NIEHOUSE and CARL FLETCHER

PURPOSE OF COMMITTEE: To investigate the potential developments of the tide and submerged lands owned by the State of California.

This committee was created by House Resolution No. 297 (June 15, 1945) and continued by House Resolution No. 29 (Jan. 15, 1947).

Resolution No. 297 follows:

Relating to the creation of the Assembly Interim Committee on Tide and Submerged Lands

WHEREAS, The coast line of the State of California offers many advantages in the way of harbor development for the purpose of commerce, navigation and the establishment of industry; and

WHEREAS, There has been very little development along said coast line between Santa Barbara and San Francisco and between the Oregon Border and San Francisco, and

WHEREAS, This lack of development has worked great hardship upon the many vessels which ply the waters off the coast line of the State of California by depriving such vessels of access to safe harbor areas in the event of storms or mechanical troubles, or the necessity of safety or repairs, and

WHEREAS, The State of California, in its sovereign capacity, is the owner of all of the ungranted lands lying oceanward, bayward or riverward of the mean high water mark, and

WHEREAS, There has existed and does exist today a situation whereunder private individuals, associations, companies and corporations are, in many instances, making use of such sovereign lands of the State of California by unwittingly trespassing thereon, and without compensation or payment to the State of California, and

WHEREAS, Many piers, jetties, and other structures have been constructed upon State sovereign tide and submerged lands by many persons who have believed that their ownership of lands littoral to the tide and submerged lands gave them the right to the use of such tide and submerged lands of the State of California, as well as certain portions of the beds of navigable rivers, without making payment to the State of California for such use, and

WHEREAS, The State of California, or its administrative departments, have lacked adequate staffs for the purpose of supervising and controlling this trespass condition, and

WHEREAS, It is highly important that the State of California extend every effort toward encouraging the location of commercial establishments along California's Coast in order to develop our natural harbor areas and provide employment during the immediate and subsequent postwar period, and

WHEREAS, It is highly important that the State receive adequate revenue from those who are, at the present time, using such sovereign lands of the State of California without compensation for such use; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, As follows:

1. The Assembly Interim Committee on Tide and Submerged Lands is hereby created and appointed and authorized and directed to ascertain, study and analyze all facts relating to the subject matter referred to in the recitals hereof, including but not limited to the operation, effect, administration, enforcement and needed revision of any and all laws in any way bearing upon or relating to the subject of this resolution, and to report thereon to the Assembly, including in the reports its recommendations for appropriate legislation.

2. The committee shall consist of five Members of the Assembly appointed by the Speaker thereof. The Speaker shall also appoint one of the committee members chairman of the committee. Vacancies occurring or existing in the membership of the committee shall be filled by the appointing power.

4. The committee and its members shall have and exercise all of the rights, duties and powers conferred upon Investigating Committees and their members by the provisions of the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly and of the Standing Rules of the Assembly as they are adopted and amended from time to time, which provisions are incorporated herein and made applicable to this committee and its members.

5. The committee has the following additional powers and duties:

(a) To cooperate with and secure the cooperation of county, city, city and county, and other local law enforcement agencies in investigating any matter within the scope of this resolution and to direct the sheriff of any county to serve subpenas, orders and other process issued by the committee.

(c) To do any and all other things necessary or convenient to enable it fully and adequately to exercise its powers, perform its duties, and accomplish the objects and purposes of this resolution.

6. The sum of eight thousand dollars ($8,000) or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby made available from the Contingent Fund of the Assembly for the expenses of the committee and its members and for any charges, expenses or claims it may incur under this resolution, to be disbursed, after certification by the chairman of the committee, upon warrants drawn by the State Controller upon the State Treasurer.

EXCERPT FROM THE MINUTES OF THE MEETING OF THE STATE LANDS COMMISSION OF JUNE 21, 1946

(Survey of Tide and Submerged Land Values for Rental Determination)

Upon motion duly made and unanimously carried, a resolution was adopted establishing the following uniform policy for the rental of tide and submerged lands for commercial and industrial purposes:

1. Appraisal and survey costs to be borne by lease applicant;
2. Annual rental to be fixed at 6 percent per year of the appraised value of the land with an increase of 10 percent of the initial appraised value of the land every five years for the term of the lease;
3. Maintenance of all structures on the demised premises to be assumed by the lessee;
4. In the event that tidelands with structures in place are leased by anyone other than the constructor thereof, the appraised value of such structures is to be included in the total valuation for the initial rental determination; however, no appreciation in value of structures is to be considered in rental determination during the term of the lease, or any extension thereof;
5. Minimum annual rental for any lease issued to be $50.

TIDE AND SUBMERGED LANDS REPORT

The tide and submerged lands of the State constituting the sovereign lands of the State may be classified first as to jurisdiction and, secondly, as to location on the open ocean or on inland waters.

All ungranted tidelands whether on the open ocean or on inland waters were placed under the jurisdiction of the State Lands Commission by Chapter 5 of 1938. Such lands are along the 1,500-mile length of the California coast, except where grants have been made to cities or counties, and include all of the navigable rivers and lakes of the State including the Colorado, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Klamath, Eel, Noyo, Russian, and other northern coastal rivers, as well as the navigable lakes such as Clear Lake, Lake Tahoe, Mono Lake, Owens Lake and other smaller lakes.

Granted lands include those sovereign lands where there has been a legislative grant transferring complete fee title in perpetuity and without reversion, except for certain mineral reservation to the State, to cities or counties. Generally, these grants include both inland and open ocean lands within or fronting on the respective city and within limited areas. Such grants are listed on the following tabulation:

In the case of granted lands, all development is either directly at the expense of the political subdivision, or by private enterprise on a lease basis. The most notable examples of commercial and recreational development on granted lands are at the cities of Oakland, Los Angeles, Long Beach, Richmond, San Diego, Alameda, Monterey, Redwood City, San Rafael and Newport. Practically no development has occurred on granted lands at Crescent City, Burlingame, Capitola, Santa Barbara, Ventura, Hermosa Beach, Manhattan Beach and Redondo. At San Francisco, the port has been developed at the expense of the State under the jurisdiction of the Board of State Harbor Commissioners

On ungranted lands, the one notable development with public funds is by the Harbor District at the Port of Stockton.

All development on ungranted lands, now under jurisdiction of the State Lands Commission has been by private enterprise through the medium of a short term lease. If development occurred prior to 1938, authority for such development was by the respective county board of supervisors under a twenty-year franchise.

RESOLUTION

The following resolution by the California State Marine Parks Association on April 11, 1947, and sent to Chairman Brady for consideration by the committee:

Resolved, That the Assembly Interim Committee on Tide and Submerged Lands (H R. No 297, June 13, 1945) is urgently requested to approve and endorse recommendations contained in a report on California Ports and Harbors dated October 1946, to wit:

"That, The State Reconstruction and Reemployment Commission undertake specifically: (1) to develop a master plan for a state-wide system of small craft harbors along the coast for commercial fishing craft and for the convenience and refuge of other small craft; and, (2) a master plan for a system of marinas for recreational purposes on the navigable waters in the State;" and be it further

Resolved, That the said Committee on Tide and Submerged Lands be urged to secure appropriate legislation to insure that the preparation of such master plans be undertaken by the State Reconstruction and Reemployment Commission, or such other state agency as may be vested with the duties, powers, purposes, responsibilities and jurisdictions related to carrying out the provisions of the State Planning Act; and be it further

Resolved, That should the Legislature fail to adopt said recommendation or recommendations contained in said report, then and in the event the California State Marine Parks Association urgently petitions the Members of the California Legislature to adopt such legislation which will accomplish the purpose set forth in said report.

STATEMENTS

The following statement was made at a hearing conducted by the United States Engineers Department at Point Arena, California, January 23, 1947 of the subject of Harbors for Light-Draft Vessels on the Coast of California, by Mr. Charles A. Winslow, President of the California State Marine Parks Association:

"My speech will be more or less on the broad lines of establishing the interest of the citizens of California in harbors. I am also interested in the state parks in connection with harbors.

The connection between the state parks and the small harbor is that we are hopeful of developing marine parks that can be used by the boat owner as well as the car owner.

In your locality you have reasons for commercial development of harbors as well as the possibility of developing harbors for harbors of refuge, for commercial reasons, for recreational reasons. In other words, there are a lot of good, sound reasons for the improvement and development of harbors in this locality, as pointed out by Mr. Moir, and the interest of the California State Marine Parks Association or the Statewide Committee of Small Harbor Development, in this project, is favorable and we urge that those of you who are interested in this locality lend every effort possible toward the coordinating of the interests involved, whether it be recreational, whether it be commercial or whatever it may be, but outlining the program in written form and making a request that this material become part of the record.

I offer it as a basis for the general interest of the boat-owner in the development of small harbors on the coast of California. I call attention to some of this printed material, which comes, incidentally, from similar development on the East Coast as an example of how far we are behind in our development of facilities for boating and yachting in general in comparison with our eastern neighbors, and for the development of harbors of refuge in particular.

I don't know how many of you folks have had the experience of navigating on the coast, especially from the north or from south to north during bad weather, but any operator of a small boat, whether he be a commercial fisherman or out for pleasure, can appreciate the necessity of some safe harbor of refuge within a distance that would be practical to go with a small boat, as an example, and I say an outstanding example would probably be the pleasure boat man who is not a professional operator of a vessel. He therefore doesn't have the facilities that a commercial man does and he is more or less dependent upon good luck and weather for the safe operation of his vessel, and the safety of his family.

Those people now who operate such boats are reluctant to go outside of the Golden Gate unless the weather is perfect. They are reluctant to make a trip from San Diego to San Francisco or San Francisco to Seattle, but if we had small harbors of refuge on the coast close enough that the safety of the vessel and its crew would not be jeopardized by a long run to a port, the interests of the boat-owner and the safety of the operation of the small boats would be enhanced and we would have thousands of boats or tens of thousands of boats where we now have a very few.

I again call your attention to the number of boats registered in the various naval districts in proportion to the facilities and the safety of their operation. Seattle has many beautiful harbors that are safe to operate, and as compared to San Francisco, we have very few facilities for the safe operation of boats as compared to Seattle.

Therefore, Seattle's registration of boats far outnumbers San Francisco's. You folks along the coast having harbors between those points would share in the travel of boats between the larger ports and larger centers of vessel registration if we had places that we might stop between those larger centers of registration

As pointed out in this speech that I previously made in Long Beach a month or so ago, there are other important considerations, such as the possible development of these harbors that may come for military reasons I am not a military man, but anyone who is interested in the development of defenses for the country can appreciate that our ideas are going to change in a marked degree when you consider what has happened with the atomic bomb and the Bikini experiments. I mean by that that after viewing the Navy pictures of what can happen from one atomic bomb, you can appreciate that there never again will be any great concentration of large Navy vessels such as we had at Pearl Harbor.

Therefore, if we are going to have different types of vessels and we are going to scatter them out where no single bomb or group of bombs could eliminate the Navy or the Army's vessels, then we must have more harbors.

Therefore, for military reasons, we are hopeful that there will be an increase in the development of harbors up and down our coast line, whether it be the Atlantic or the Pacific.

That again is a consideration that may be superimposed on all the efforts that we are now considering for recreational or commercial reasons.

I believe that that about covers the interest of the boat-owner and I again urge that you folks who are interested in this locality lend every effort that you can for the encouragement and development of small harbors on the coast in general and a safe haven and harbor in this locality in particular.

I want to close with the statement that there is no competition between harbors on the coast. Whether those harbors be for commercial or pleasure reasons, whether the harbor incorporates a state park or whether it incorporates a fish camp, there is no competition.

In other words, every harbor is an aid to the next one. Every harbor on the coast is a rung in the ladder that the boatman may use in travel up north or down south.

The people in Southern California, who now have development far exceeding anything that has happened on the north coast, would like to come north, but again I say they need these harbors of refuge. If this committee does not have as part of the record the programs that have been developed in the south—I don't want to go into a lot of elaborate material to clutter up the record, but I do want to point out that our southern neighbors have done a swell job of shoreline planning.

In other words, this is only one book (indicating), and it only covers one locality, but the shoreline development is actually under way in Southern California to a degree that would surprise most folks in the north.

There are also other publications, Master Plan of Shoreline Development for the State of California, covering all of the southern counties, so you folks in the north here want to get busy and get your fair share of money expended for harbors and state parks ''

W. E. Stewart, Director of Natural Resources for the California State Chamber of Commerce, recently notified this committee that his organization is commencing a special study of the problem of the management of tidelands and land under navigable waters. Other organizations, including the Shoreline Planning Association of California, Inc., Los Angeles, California, of which George P. Larson is executive secretary, are making an intensive study of this problem.

The committee respectfully submits the following observations:

1 (a). Commercial Fishing Industry

It is established that this great industry could be aided and encouraged to a greater success by state-wide organization of the shoreline development of proper installations.

There are at least 50 ports (major and minor) starting with Crescent City in the north down to Tia Juana River in the south. Many of these ports have facilities of some sort. Mostly privately owned and operated. The larger ports of Humboldt, San Francisco, Los Angeles, etc., are operated under their own port and harbor authorities. However, discussion with fishing operators and investigations reveal that nearly all facilities are inadequate as well as far from modern. Also, the industry is well scattered and necessarily small operators are without facilities.

It is believed that a state-wide study of this industry is in order and that an over-all plan should be developed to insure the greatest possible and the most practical harvest and distribution of salt water fish.

1. The study should include a master plan of ports of operation.

(a) Home ports—with docking, shipping, processing and maintenance facilities properly laid out for speedy and economical handling of product and equipment.

(b) Sub-ports—Refuge ports (safe docking) minor maintenance—fuel and supplies, etc. Also planned storage and handling sub-ports for efficient handling of product.

(c) State operated stations—should be erected and charged with the responsibility of encouraging and aiding the industry as is the University of California at Davis with agriculture.

(d) State fostered study of the problems of design in fishing craft with the hope that efficiency and economy will enable us to profitably handle our own fish, rather than a foreign country, make inroads again as they did in the past.

(e) Cooperation with the Fish and Game Commissioner to make reserves available, etc.

(f) A complete study of the available finances and recommendations for additional financing taking into consideration the following:

United States Government and agencies or committees
State Government and agencies or committees
Local Government and agencies or committees
Industry participation.

This is not a recommendation for socializing the fishing industry—but a recommendation and a plea for an orderly and planned encouragement of a great industry.

1 (b). Sport Fishing Industry

State and local development of proper piers and launching facilities, as well as storage and docking of small sportsman fishing boats is certainly in order. This could be an adjunct to the industry fishing development which would encourage even more people to take advantage of this sport. We believe that this would prove to be a valuable asset to many of the smaller coastal towns.

2 (a). Harbor and Safe Docking Facilities for Small Pleasure Craft

It is agreed by all concerned that this is a program that should be separate from the fishing industry. No one wants to expend substantial sums of money for a pleasure boat and then be surrounded with the smells, etc., of the fishing fleet or their shore installations. There are now under construction and other contemplated many installations which will help the congested and inadequate plight of this sport. However, it is felt that if an over-all state shore line plan of development were developed and accepted that a much greater advantage to the yachtsmen would be in evidence. Parallel to the fishing industry they have much the same problems. Both the docking facilities and sphere of operations are controlled by the same limitations.

2 (b). Ocean Going Harbor and Dock Facilities

This title should be given careful consideration in the Recommended Master Shore Plan as developed. The ocean going traffic in and out of ports is definitely a responsibility of State Government encouragement. The competition between ports should be carefully protected; however, all the possible traffic of goods, etc., should be encouraged to enter through our ports. We have seen how much material can come and go and there is no valid reason why the State should not be concerned over any situation in which our ports are not working to capacity at all times. A responsibility for the lack of tonnage and facilities should be placed and an accounting of the facts rendered.

3. Sea Plan Harbor Developments

No research completed but the importance of the project is reorganized—to wit Seaplane Base of San Francisco for Stockton, Sacramento traffic.

4 and 5. Sand and Gravel and Cement Industries

It is interesting to note that there are on order hundreds of thousands of tons of cement in California for export. There is a limited supply of cement and if there were no cement shortage there is a very good prospect that there would be no ships available and what's more there are piers available in San Francisco as well as employees to handle these cargoes.

A complete study of cement and sand as industries potentially using tide and submerged lands should be made as well as the following: Salt reduction matters, chemicals, dyes, etc.

In summary we would like to list the places as shown on the map as well as those investigated which would be directly affected by the suggested program:

Crescent City, Trinidad Harbor, Humboldt Bay, Shelter Cove, Fort Bragg, Noyo, Casper, Mendocino, Albion, Point Arena, Arena Cove, Bodega Bay, Tomales Bay, Drakes Bay, Bolinas Lagoon, San Francisco Bay, San Pablo Bay, Pillar Point, Big Sur River, Arroyo de la Cruz, San Simeon Bay, Estero Bay, Morro Bay, San Luis Obispo Bay, Santa Barbara Harbor, Ventura and many others south of the border.

We believe that we have developed the magnitude of the subject and also the importance of it to the State as a whole, and are therefore presuming to make certain recommendations and comments that seem to be pertinent.

We believe that, as contained in Senate Bill No. 1415 (as amended), the sum of twenty-five million dollars ($25,000,000) should be appropriated to the Division of Beaches and Parks, Department of Natural Resources, out of any money in the State Treasury not otherwise appropriated to be expended in the manner provided by law for the acquisition and development of beach parks and harbors for light draft vessels on the coast and in the tidewater bays and inlets, and lands along tributary rivers for recreational purposes for public use, including areas for harbors of refuge for light fishing craft, and for approved erosion projects for the restoration and protection of shore and beach areas, under Public Law 727, Seventy-ninth Congress Chap. 960, Second Session (H. R. 2033) by act of Congress, whereby one-third (⅓) of the total cost will be paid by the Federal Government, and for emergency projects for restoration and protection of the beaches from erosion in conjunction with the Federal Government when the United States has agreed to provide a portion of the funds for such emergency protection of the seacoast, and where the State Park Commission and the Director of Finance determine that such action is a matter of general public and state interest.

We believe that the State Lands Commission or a special committee should be charged with the responsibility of the development of the State's tide and submerged lands by the best possible methods and in conjunction with the various governmental and vested interests concerned to the end that the people of California can be assured of the greatest benefits therefrom.

We believe that the commission office should be adequately staffed and financed to enable them to operate effectively.

We believe that a study of all laws, rules, regulations pertaining to tide and submerged lands and the operations thereon be examined and a revamping and clarification of these laws be attempted so that proper exercise of authority and responsibility can be maintained.

We believe that the topics and recommendations as reported are pertinent and should be carried out.

We believe that this program will be revealing in that the State is not now receiving all of the income it should from these assets.

We believe that it will develop many improvements which have been avoided or overlooked.

We believe that almost every city adjacent to these properties is ready, willing and able to encourage this development.

We believe that the limited study allowed by this committee has developed the problem and respectfully request that this committee be continued so that this body may keep abreast of the studies being made by various civic groups and so that it may cooperate and be of assistance to these groups.

Respectfully submitted.
