INTRODUCTION OF BILLS

Introduction and Reading of Bills.

30. Any member desiring to introduce a bill shall rise in place and address the Speaker, and upon being recognized shall present the same. It shall then be numbered and read the first time at the Clerk's desk and referred to a standing committee, and be printed, and a copy placed upon the desk of each member. Every bill shall be read at length on three several days previous to its passage, unless in case of urgency two-thirds of the House shall, by vote of ayes and noes, dispense with this provision. The Speaker shall give notice at each reading, whether it is the first, second or third reading. All bills to appropriate money for contingent purposes shall be presented by the Committee on Ways and Means. The chairman or clerk of each committee of the Assembly shall notify the author of any bill or proceeding pending before such committee of the hour and place of hearing or acting upon such bill or proceeding.

Joint and Concurrent Resolutions and Constitutional Amendments.

31. Joint and concurrent resolutions shall be treated the same as bills; provided, that they shall be read but once, and that after they have been reported by a committee; and provided, further, that the ayes and noes shall not be called upon the adoption of concurrent resolutions, except those presenting charter amendments, unless regularly demanded, or required by statute or the constitution. Proposed amendments to the constitution shall be treated the same as bills; provided, they shall be read but once, and only after they have been reported by a committee. All bills, constitutional amendments, and joint and concurrent resolutions may be amended by a majority of those voting.

Procedure on First Day of Introducing Bills.

32. In each legislative session on the first day when bills are introduced, under the "Order of Business" or "Introduction and Reference of Bills," the roll shall be called from A to Z and then back again from Z to A, and as each member's name is called, he shall have the privilege of introducing one bill, constitutional amendment, joint or concurrent resolution. After these two roll calls, bills, constitutional amendments, joint or concurrent resolutions shall be introduced by members on recognition of the Speaker, as provided by the rules of the Assembly; and all bills, constitutional amendments or joint or concurrent resolutions introduced before the standing committees of the Assembly are appointed, shall be referred to committees, references to take effect when the committees shall be appointed.

Introduction of Bills by Committee.

33. Any committee may introduce a bill appertaining to any subject coming within its consideration, whereupon it shall be read the first time and placed upon the proper second-reading file. When such bill is designed to be a substitute for one or more Assembly bills, the bills for which it is such a substitute shall, by a majority vote of the House, be deemed withdrawn, and shall not appear upon the file. Upon the introduction of a bill by a committee, it shall be numbered as a new bill, read, ordered printed, and placed upon the Assembly file for further action.

Introduction of Bills After Constitutional Recess.

34. Immediately upon convening after the constitutional recess the Speaker shall appoint a standing Committee on Introduction of Bills, to consist of three members.

All motions for leave to introduce bills after the constitutional recess shall be sent to the desk in writing, under the order of "Introduction of Bills," and at no other time. The motion shall give the title of the bill, and shall be accompanied by the bill. The bill shall thereupon be referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills.

Joint and concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments shall not be referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills, and shall not require a vote to authorize their introduction.

The committee shall examine bills referred to it with particular reference to the question as to whether there is already any bill in either House of the same character which might be amended to effect the results sought, and generally as to the advisability of introducing the measure.

The committee shall report upon each bill so referred to it on the same legislative day. The report shall be made at the conclusion of the consideration of the Senate Special File.

The committee may, in its discretion, incorporate more than one bill in the resolution to grant leave to introduce, incorporating in the resolution the title of each bill in full, and the roll shall be called upon the adoption of the resolution and no resolution to introduce any such bill shall be adopted without the consent of three-fourths of the members of the Assembly.

If a division of the question is demanded upon the introduction of any particular bill, the division shall be allowed, and the roll called separately upon the bill. The author of any bill shall have not more than ten minutes within which to speak to the question of the introduction of his bill and the Committee on Introduction of Bills may have the same time for reply.

Reference of Bills.

35. At the time of introduction the Speaker shall first indicate to what committee a bill or resolution ought to be referred, and it shall be so referred, unless upon a motion, without debate, the Assembly by a majority vote refer it to some other committee. A motion to re-refer a bill shall be debatable as to the propriety of such re-reference.

Order of Reference.

36. When a motion is made to refer any subject, and different committees shall be proposed, the question shall be taken in the following order:

The Committee of the Whole House.
A Standing Committee.
A Select Committee.

Referring With Special Instructions.

37. No amendment shall be received for discussion at the third reading of any bill; but it shall at all times be in order, before the final passage of such bill, to move its commitment to a select committee, under special instructions to amend.

Reference of Senate Bills.

38. When a Senate bill has been received by the House with a message announcing that the same has passed the Senate, such bill shall be referred to a standing committee; provided, however, that when a Senate bill is received the provisions of which are stated by a member to be identical with those of an Assembly bill which has already been considered and reported by a committee of the Assembly, such Senate bill shall be referred to the Committee on Engrossment and Enrollment for comparison, which committee shall report on the next legislative day whether or not said bill is identical with the Assembly bill, and if reported identical, shall be read the second time, be substituted for the Assembly bill (the latter being considered withdrawn), shall take the latter's place on the Assembly file, and be considered as having received the same recommendation of the Assembly committee; provided, that the fact that the bills are identical shall be entered in the Journal.

Bills to Be Reported Back to Committees.

39. All committees shall act upon bills, constitutional amendments and resolutions referred to them as soon as practicable, and when acted upon each bill shall be reported back to the Assembly forthwith, and the chairman of each committee is charged with the observance of this rule; provided, that the Assembly may at any time, by a majority vote of all its members, recall a bill, constitutional amendment or resolution from any committee.

ORDER OF CONSIDERING BILLS.

Order of Making File.

40. Upon the introduction of bills they shall be read the first time, and referred to committees as provided in Rule 30. When reported back they shall be placed upon the General File, to be kept by the Clerk, as follows: All bills when reported to the House by the committees, except such bills as are by the report re-referred to another committee, shall be placed at the foot of the second-reading file, in the order in which the reports are made, and after the second reading they shall be placed at the foot of the third-reading file, in the order of reading, and precedence shall be given in the consideration of bills in the following order: Second-reading file and third-reading file, unless otherwise ordered by unanimous consent or by two-thirds vote of the House. The bills upon third reading shall be considered in the order in which they appear upon the file, unless otherwise ordered by unanimous consent or by vote of majority of the members present, such vote to be taken by roll call; provided, that if a bill is passed on file for any reason, other than the absence of the author by leave of the Assembly, note of the fact shall be made in the General File, and when passed on file a second time the bill shall be ordered to the foot of the file, and notice of the fact of the bill having been passed on file prior to the order placing it at the foot of the file shall be omitted from the General File. The Clerk shall post, in a conspicuous place in the chamber, a daily statement of the bills on the General File, setting forth the order in which they were filed, and specifying the alterations arising from the disposal of business each day.

Order Making Special File.

41. The Clerk shall, from time to time, make up a file, to be known as the Special File, on which he shall place bills relating to appropriations for the support of the State government and State institutions, revenue, election laws and constitutional amendments, in the order named, and in the order in which the same may be reported to the Assembly, and he shall place no other bills thereon, nor shall any bill on the General File be substituted for any bill thereon.

Ordering Bills to Third Reading.

42. After being read the second time bills shall be ordered by the Speaker to third reading (or, in the case of Assembly bills, to engrossment and third reading). When any member makes objection to any bill thus being ordered to third reading, the final question for such bill shall be, "Shall the bill be ordered to third reading?"

Bills Considered During Last Seven Days.

43. No Assembly bill shall be passed by the Assembly within seven days of the time set for adjournment sine die of the two houses of the Legislature, unless permission to vote on such bill be granted by a three-fourths vote of the Assembly after being recommended by the Speaker of the Assembly.

QUESTIONS AND MOTIONS.

44. When a question is under debate, or before the House, no motion shall be received but: To adjourn; to lay on the table; for the previous question; to postpone to a day certain; to commit or amend; to postpone indefinitely; which several motions shall have precedence in the order in which they are named, but the first three shall be decided without debate, and no motion to postpone to a day certain, to commit, or to postpone indefinitely, being decided, shall again be allowed on the same day and at the same stage of the proceedings. A motion to strike out the enacting clause of a bill shall have preference over a motion to amend, and, if carried, shall be considered equivalent to its rejection. A dilatory motion shall not be considered intervening business within the meaning of parliamentary usage.

Division of Questions.

45. Any member may call for a division of the question, which shall be divided if it comprehend propositions in substance so distinct that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the House. A motion to strike out being lost, shall preclude neither a motion to add to nor a motion to strike out and insert.

Substitute.

46. A motion to substitute shall be deemed and held to be a motion to amend, and be treated in all respects as such.

Subjects Different from the One Under Consideration.

47. No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted as an amendment.

Question Indefinitely Postponed.

48. When a question is postponed indefinitely, the same shall not again be introduced during the session.

PROCEDURE OF DEBATE.

Motions to Be Stated by Speaker, and If Desired Shall Be Reduced to Writing, or May Be Withdrawn.

49. No motion shall be debated until the same be seconded and distinctly announced by the Speaker, and it shall be reduced to writing, if desired by the Speaker, or any member, and be read by the Clerk, before the same shall be debated. A motion may be withdrawn, by leave of the House, at any time before amendment or decision.

Order in Speaking to Questions.

50. Every member, when he speaks, shall, standing in his place, address "Mr. Speaker," and when he has finished he shall sit down. No member shall speak more than twice during the consideration of any one question, of whatever nature, on the same day and at the same stage of proceedings, without leave being granted, except the author of a bill or resolution, or mover of a question, who shall have the right to close the debate. No member shall be allowed to speak more than fifteen minutes upon any question except by leave of the House, and except further, the author shall be allowed fifteen minutes to open and fifteen minutes to close.

Speaker to Decide Who Is Entitled to the Place.

51. When two or more members shall rise at once, the Speaker shall name the member who is first to speak.

Calling Members to Order When Transgressing Rules.

52. If any member, in speaking or otherwise, transgresses the rules of the House, the Speaker shall, or any member may, call to order; in which case the member so called to order shall immediately sit down, unless permitted to explain; and if called to order by a member, such member shall immediately state the point of order. If the point of order be sustained by the Chair, the member shall not be allowed to proceed; but if it be not sustained, then he shall be permitted to go on. Every such decision from the Chair shall be subject to an appeal to the House, but no discussion of a question of order shall be allowed, unless an appeal be taken from the decision of the Chair.

Called to Order for Offensive Words in Debate.

53. If any member be called to order for offensive words spoken in debate, the person calling him to order shall report the words excepted to, and they shall be taken down in writing at the Clerk's table; and no member shall be held to answer, or be subject to censure of the House, for language used in debate, if any member has spoken or other business has intervened after the words spoken and before exception to them shall have been taken.

Questions of Order After Previous Question Is Ordered.

56. All incidental questions of order arising after a motion is made for the previous question, and pending such motion or previous question, shall be decided (whether on appeal or otherwise) without debate; provided, that after the previous question shall have been ordered, ten minutes shall be allowed for explanation of the matters covered by the previous question, of which five minutes shall be given to the member moving the previous question, and five minutes to those opposed thereto.

Said motion of reconsideration shall have precedence over every other motion, except a motion to adjourn No notice of reconsideration shall be in order on the day preceding the last day of the session. Upon a motion being carried for a call of the House the Speaker shall immediately order the doors to be closed, and shall direct the Clerk to call the names of the absentees as disclosed by the last previous roll call. Thereupon no one shall be permitted to leave or enter the Assembly Chamber except by written permission of the Speaker, or except such members as are taken into custody as herein provided. Those members who are found to be absent and for whom no excuse or insufficient excuses are made, may, by order of those present, be taken into custody, as they appear, or may be sent for and then taken into custody by the Sergeant-at-Arms wherever found, or by special messenger to be appointed for that purpose. In the absence of a quorum, a majority of the members present may order a roll call of the House and compel the attendance of absentees in the manner above provided. No recess can be taken during a call of the House; provided, however, that during a call of the House it may consider and transact any matter or business that the members then present shall unanimously decide to consider, but no call of the House shall be had, during the call of the House, on any matter so taken up or considered while the House is under call. When a call of the House is ordered, pending completion of a roll call, the pending roll call shall become unfinished business, the consideration of which shall be continued until further proceedings under the call of the House are dispensed with, when it will forthwith become the order of business before the Assembly.

Members Absenting Themselves

82. No member shall absent himself from attendance at a session of the House without the leave of the House, and no member shall obtain leave of absence, or be excused without a vote of two-thirds of the House, or by unanimous consent.

Fees for Witnesses.

83. Witnesses summoned to appear before the House or any of its committees shall be paid as follows. For each day a witness shall attend, the sum of three dollars; for each mile he shall travel in coming to and going from the place of examination, the sum of ten cents. No mileage shall be paid, except where the witness has actually traveled for the purpose of giving testimony.

No Committee Expenditures Permitted

84. No member of any committee shall be permitted to incur any expense by visiting any part of the State on official business, except that the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means shall, during the constitutional recess, be allowed his actual expenses while on such business.

RULES OF PROCEDURE.

Parliamentary Rules.

85. The rules of parliamentary practice contained in Robert's Rules of Order shall govern the House in all cases to which they are applicable, and in which they are not inconsistent with the Standing Rules and Orders of the House and the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly.

Suspending and Changing Rules

86. No standing rule or order of the House shall be rescinded or changed without a vote of two-thirds of the members of the Assembly, and one day's notice being given of the motion therefor; provided, that the Committee on Rules may at any time, except during a roll call, report a temporary rule providing for the consideration of any bill on the files of the House belonging to either of the following classes:

1. Bills affecting the State government, its revenues, its various departments or commissions or appropriations therefor.
2. Bills affecting county and township governments, or roads and highways.
3. Bills affecting town, city, city and county governments, or the municipal affairs of the same.
4. Bills amending election or primary election laws.
5. Constitutional amendments.
6. Bills amending or repealing the Codes or sections thereof.

Such temporary rule shall provide when a bill so selected shall be taken up for consideration, and the time when final vote shall be taken thereon and pending amendments thereto, if there be any.

It shall always be in order to call up for consideration such report. The same shall be subject to amendments by the House.

On the adoption of such temporary rule by the House by a two-thirds vote thereof, if the bill be on third reading, and by a majority vote of the members elected to the House, if otherwise, such bill shall thereupon be made the special order for the time fixed therein.

A rule or order may be suspended temporarily by a vote of two-thirds of the members present, except Rule 43 and that portion of Rule 30 relating to third reading of bills. A motion or resolution proposing to increase or diminish a standing committee shall not be adopted until the same has been referred to the Committee on Rules.

The Committee on Rules may also, at any time, report a temporary rule or regulation. When such temporary rule or regulation shall have been adopted by a two-thirds vote of the House it shall have the effect, for the time being, of a standing rule, and if such temporary rule shall be in conflict with a standing rule it shall supersede said standing rule for the time being, and shall be enforced by the Speaker.

MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR FRIEND WM. RICHARDSON REGARDING ACTS OF EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY.

To the Senate and Assembly of the State of California.

In accordance with the provisions of the constitution and the statutes, I am reporting to you each act of reprieve, commutation and pardon by me since my last report at the beginning of the forty-sixth legislative session. Following the practice established in my previous message, I am setting forth the full text of pardons and commutations of sentence granted, a statement of the case, the crime for which the person was convicted, the sentence and its date, and the date of the commutation or pardon, together with my reasons for granting the same.

I have exercised only five acts of executive clemency during the past two years. Four pardons have been granted and one commutation of sentence issued. I have issued no reprieves during the past two years. Several hundred applications for clemency have been made. Each case has been carefully investigated and considered, but only in these five cases have I felt justified in exercising the power vested in the Governor.

In the one case of commutation, a sentence of "five years to life" was shortened to five years upon the recommendation of the trial judge and district attorney of Sacramento County because a young man, not eighteen years of age at the time of the commission of the crime of robbery, later materially assisted the State in securing the conviction of an ex-convict who had led him into the commission of crime.

In each of the four cases of pardon I was convinced after careful consideration that the person convicted was innocent and that a miscarriage of justice had resulted from his conviction and sentence to the State penitentiary. All four of these convictions were had in Los Angeles County, and in each case the trial judge recommended pardon. In three cases the district attorney of Los Angeles county admitted he had made a mistake, but was loath to admit his error in the last case of pardon issued by me.

Pardon matters have occupied much of my time and attention during my term as Governor, not only in connection with the consideration of the various applications made to me, but in the consideration of the theory of pardons and the proper use of the executive power of clemency given to the Governor by section 1 of article VII of the constitution.

My conclusion is that the pardoning power is given to the Governor solely to prevent a miscarriage of justice. I feel that the governor of a state in the discharge of his duty and in keeping with his oath of office to support the constitution and laws of the state has no right legally or morally to pardon one convicted of crime, either during or subsequent to his incarceration in a state prison, for reasons of sentiment or pity, or because pressure has been brought to bear upon him by "sob sisters," relatives, or politicians. It is an easy thing for a Governor to grant pardons and it is hard to deny some applications To issue pardons freely is the easy way, but I feel that an executive should stand inflexibly for law enforcement and adequate punishment of criminals, and not weakly give way to pleas for clemency.

In many cases every imaginable pressure has been brought to bear to induce me to issue pardons. Sympathy has been aroused by sentimentalists and in many cases the denial of pardons appeared to be the unpopular thing at the time. I believe, however, that the sober, thinking men and women of the State of California agree with and approve my stand for law and order.

In the case of Clarence (alias Tuffy) Reid, petitions containing more than 50,000 names asking the commutation of sentence poured into the Governor's office.

Two chains of newspapers made a determined campaign to save the convict's life. In this, as in every other case of murder involving the death penalty that has come to my attention during my term of office, I felt that the prisoner had been fairly tried, justly convicted and that the sentence of the court as fixed in accordance with the verdict of the jury should be carried out

During my term of office thirty-seven men have been hanged in the prisons of this State. In each of these cases an appeal was made to me to commute the sentence to life imprisonment, either by the prisoner or persons interested in the case and I have made a careful examination of the evidence and been fully convinced that the verdict of the jury was sound The death penalty is a needed protection to the peace officers of the State, as guardians of the life and property of our citizens. The facts are yet fresh in the minds of the people of two ruthless young murderers, whose lives were spared by a sentimental jury, escaped from the State prison and were responsible for the taking of at least two additional lives. It is absurd for sentimentalists to claim that life imprisonment is a greater punishment than death. Every one of the thirty-seven cold-blooded murderers who paid the penalty of his crime during the past four years, was anxious to have his sentence commuted to life imprisonment. Moreover, a life sentence does not mean remaining in prison for the remainder of the natural life of the murderer. Experience over a period of years since the adoption of the parole law shows that the average time served for a life sentence is thirteen and one-half years.

The matter of pardoning convicts who have conducted themselves properly on parole has been presented to me many times. A convict is presumed to observe the law and the rules of the prison board. His reward for good conduct is his remaining outside of prison. If he fails he is returned to prison. I do not believe that good behavior in prison or on parole justifies clemency by the Governor.

Under the decisions of the courts a pardon virtually wipes away the sins of the convict. It not only takes away the disabilities resulting from conviction of a felony but, in effect, it gives him a new character, spotless, clean and white.

Some plan should be devised whereby a prisoner who has served a sentence for the commission of a felony or other high crime within the meaning of the constitution, may be restored to citizenship rights, after he has demonstrated over a length of time that he has left his life of crime and become a useful member of society, without giving him a full pardon and thus pronouncing him innocent of the crime of which he is guilty.

There should be further limitation on the power of the Governor with respect to acts of executive clemency. Section 1 of article VII of the constitution, giving the Governor power to perform acts of executive clemency, is limited only by such regulations as may be provided by law relative to the manner of applying for pardons. The Legislature should prescribe that certain proof or showing be required in the application, and limit the acts of executive clemency to cases of miscarriage of justice.

The jury system has come down to us from antiquity and has become such a time-honored part of the law of the land that the opinion of the executive should not be substituted for the opinion of the jury. It has been my practice to sustain the verdict of juries. If the jury, which has seen the witnesses and heard the evidence, is satisfied of the person's guilt I have declined to set the verdict aside. If new facts have developed since the trial and did not come to light within sufficient time to present to the court on a motion for a new trial, I have considered such facts in relation to the evidence adduced at the trial. I have also examined into claims of perjury and into improper motives on the part of law enforcement officers. However, I have felt that such showing should be sufficient to convince any ordinary man that a miscarriage of justice would result from the carrying out of the sentence and have invariably made it a practice to submit all of the evidence to the trial judge and district attorney, believing that in practically all cases their recommendation should be followed

In other words, it is my theory that executive clemency should be supplemental to the law and should not be so exercised as to defeat the purpose of the law. Pardons too freely issued lend hope to those who have violated the law and to the criminally inclined, thus taking away to a large extent the deterrent effect of conviction and punishment.

Only by strict enforcement of our criminal statutes and the elimination of sentimentalism in meting out punishment can law and order be maintained.

I have had constantly in mind a desire to protect the women and children of California in their homes. If sentimentalists and hysterical newspapers should succeed in their endeavors, shotgun brigades would be necessary in every community and no home would be safe. The stern enforcement of the law and adequate punishment of criminals is necessary to protect our citizens. The execution of one criminal is a greater deterrent of crime than the confinement of one hundred in prison. The fear of the noose on the part of the criminal element is a measure of protection to every citizen.

Following are the acts of executive clemency done by me during the past two years:

PARDON OF SIDNEY WOOD.

Sidney Wood was convicted of robbery in the first degree in the superior court of the county of Los Angeles on March 3, 1924, and two days later was sentenced to an indeterminate term of from five years to life in the State Prison at San Quentin, where he was taken and given prison No. 39150.

He was charged with participating in the holdup of a Pacific Electric train near Los Angeles, California, on November 7, 1923, and was tried by a jury The jury disagreed and he was tried by another jury and convicted. He protested his innocence and attempted to prove an alibi. Several passengers on the electric train identified Wood and the jury convicted him on this evidence.

Asa Keyes, district attorney of Los Angeles County, says that a mistake was made and that one James E. Hovermale and three others were the robbers and that Wood was innocent. Hovermale was convicted of this robbery on March 11, 1925, and the other three robbers are in jail awaiting trial. One of them has made a complete confession The district attorney called at this office yesterday and presented the facts and asked that Wood be pardoned. Eleven of the twelve jurymen who tried Hovermale have expressed their belief in the innocence of Wood. Officials and detectives of the Electric company have written stating their belief in Wood's innocence.

District Attorney Keyes in asking for a pardon says·

> "On the 3d day of March, 1924, Sidney Wood was convicted of first degree robbery on the testimony of two witnesses who positively identified him as one of the perpetrators of the Pacific Electric Short Line robbery at Valley Junction in the county of Los Angeles on November 7, 1923, the evidence being to the effect that he was the one who stood upon the rear platform of the Pacific Electric car during the hold-up and had fired the shots into the roof of the rear vestibule The identification by these two witnesses was based upon a similarity in the eyes, the lower portion of the forehead and the upper portion of the nose, the upper portion of the forehead of the man who actually perpetrated the robbery being concealed by a cap and the lower portion of his face from the bridge of the nose down concealed by a bandana handkerchief. chief
> "He was sentenced on March 5, 1924, by the Honorable W. J. Wood in Department 21 of the superior court in and for the county of Los Angeles previous to which time he had filed a motion for a new trial which was denied. His defense was that of an alibi.
> "Representatives of the Pacific Electric Railway, to wit, P. R. Fysh and C. R. Smith, made a very thorough and careful investigation of the robbery in question, and as a result of that investigation one James E. Hovermale was arrested, tried in Department 12 of the superior court in and for Los Angeles County during the week of March 11, 1925, and convicted of robbery in the first degree and sentenced by the Honorable Judge Sidney N. Reeve on March 19, 1925, to San Quentin, the evidence in that case showing that the said James E. Hovermale was the real party who stood upon the rear platform at the time of the robbery of the aforementioned Pacific Electric Short Line train on the aforesaid date, and had fired the shots into the roof of the vestibule.
> "As a result of the conviction of James E Hovermale indictments were returned against Mark Godfrey, Russell Smith and Roy Smith charging them with this same robbery, Russell Smith and Mark Godfrey having been arrested and extradited from Idaho and Mark Godfrey since his arrest having made a complete confession of his participation in the hold-up, and identifying Hovermale, Russell Smith and Roy Smith as the other three parties who with him held up the Pacific Electric Short Line train on the aforesaid date.
> "In view of the testimony now available which is conclusive as to those who actually participated in the hold-up the undersigned unhesitatingly states that in so far as Sidney Wood personally is concerned, there has been a miscarriage of justice—that he is a victim of mistaken identity; had absolutely nothing whatever to do with the hold-up; is innocent of the offense of which he has been convicted and unqualifiedly recommends to your excellency that the said Sidney Wood receive an immediate pardon"

Superior Judge Sidney N. Reeve, who presided at the trial of Hovermale, has recommended the pardon of Sidney Wood, and says.

> "Having presided during the trial of James E Hovermale, as judge of Department 12 in the superior court of Los Angeles County, and being thoroughly familiar with the evidence introduced therein, unhesitatingly join in the above request and recommendation that your excellency grant Sidney Wood an immediate pardon"

The jurymen who tried Hovermale, the real culprit, have filed the following request for the pardon of Wood:

> "We, the undersigned, jurors in the Hovermale case above referred to, who have heard and passed upon the evidence in connection therewith, feel that in so far as Sidney Wood is concerned, there has been a miscarriage of justice, and that he is absolutely innocent of the crime with which he stands convicted, and cheerfully join in the above recommendation and request that Your Excellency grant an immediate pardon to Sidney Wood."

Frank Karr, chief counsel and vice president of the Pacific Electric Railway Company, joining in the request for a pardon, says that

"On January 4, 1925, I received a letter from Sidney Wood complaining that he had been wrongfully convicted and sentenced to a term of from five years to life in San Quentin The undersigned immediately requested a report on the conviction of Sidney Wood and started an investigation and from that investigation has arrived at the conclusion that Sidney Wood was erroneously and wrongfully convicted of the crime of train robbery, and therefore in order that justice may be done joins in the recommendation that a pardon be granted said Sidney Wood"

F. R. Fysh, chief special agent of the Pacific Electric Railway Company, says he—

"read the above statement in support of the petition of Sidney Wood for a pardon, am thoroughly familiar with the contents and have an independent knowledge thereof, and most heartily concur in the recommendation on the part of the Honorable Asa Keyes, district attorney of and for the county of Los Angeles, to your excellency, that the said Sidney Wood receive at your hands an immediate pardon."

From the above statements of facts, I am convinced that Sidney Wood was wrongfully convicted of the crime for which he was charged and that he is rightfully entitled to his immediate freedom.

Now, therefore, by virtue of authority vested in me by the constitution and laws of the State of California, I do hereby pardon the said Sidney Wood.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed, this fifth day of May, 1925.

[SEAL] FRIEND WM. RICHARDSON, Governor.

Attest. FRANK C. JORDAN, Secretary of State.
By ROBERT V. JORDAN, Deputy.

COMMUTATION OF SENTENCE.

Raymond V. Fredericksen pleaded guilty in the superior court of Sacramento County on October 22, 1923, on a charge of robbery, and was sentenced to the State Prison at San Quentin for a term of from five years to life, under chapter 127, Statutes 1923. He was received at San Quentin on November 1, 1923, and has been serving his sentence since that date.

At the preliminary hearing he testified that he was 18 years of age. Subsequently, after the court had lost jurisdiction of the case, showing was made that he was born on March 26, 1906, from which showing it appears that he was 17 years old at the time of the commission of the offense, and his plea of guilty. He later made the explanation that he did not want to admit that he was under 18 years of age, so great was his fear that he would be compelled to go to a part-time school.

An application for probation was denied upon the recommendation of the probation officer, who felt that notwithstanding the young man's prior good behavior, he was precluded from recommending probation inasmuch as the robbery was committed with the aid of a weapon.

The investigation of the probation officer and of the trial court showed that the robbery was the result of association with a hardened criminal, one George B. Dix, who had led the young man to participate in several crimes, although the actual perpetration of the crimes was conducted by Dix.

Dix attempted to escape the severe penalty for robbery by pleading guilty to the crime of burglary, and it was only upon the testimony of Fredericksen that he was convicted of the crime of robbery and received proper sentence for his misdeeds. It required considerable courage on the part of Fredericksen to so testify. At the time of the trial he had already been confined in San Quentin penitentiary.

Ellis W. Jones, sheriff of Sacramento County, makes the following statement

"At the time Fredericksen was arrested he stated to the arresting officer 'I see where I have done wrong, and I will tell the whole story,' which he did. If it had not been for Fredericksen's testimony I do not believe George B. Dix, who was an ex-convict, would have been convicted. After taking into consideration the fact of Fredericksen's age, and feeling that Fredericksen unwillingly participated in the crime of highway robbery, for which he was sentenced to the State Prison at San Quentin, I believe this is a case where the influence of a hardened criminal was brought to bear upon a youth."

Charles O. Busick, judge of the superior court of Sacramento County, who sentenced Fredericksen, has made the following statement

"The defendant, Fredericksen, pleaded guilty to the charge of robbery and was sentenced under the 1923 statute, chapter 127, codified under section 211*a*. Prior to sentencing, application for probation was made and by the court referred to the probation officer and the probation officer held that he was not permitted under the law to make a recommendation for probation, therefore the defendant was sentenced and is now in San Quentin Prison.

"Subsequently thereto, Dix, the leader in this crime, was tried in this court before a jury and the defendant Fredericksen appeared as a witness for the State, told a straight, truthful story of the crime, assisting the State in convicting Dix, the leader of the two, and a man who already had a prison record

"The investigation of the probation officer showed that defendant Fredericksen previously had a good character and reputation; had been regularly engaged in a useful occupation and had been a member of a Sunday school class; had no previous bad record, came of a good family and had undoubtedly been misled by the experienced criminal, Dix.

"The file in the case also shows affidavits filed in his behalf, after sentence, in a motion to set aside the judgment, from persons who lived at his former home, showing that the defendant was born March, 1906, although the boy, himself, testified that he was 18 years old. At the time of passing sentence the court had nothing but Fredericksen's statement as to his age before it, therefore accepted the testimony of Fredericksen as correct, and for that reason did not remand him to the juvenile court

"It appears to the undersigned that the sentence in this case, although in conformity with law, is much too severe; in that unfortunately the lad's rights were frittered away by a failure to make the showing that possibly could have been made as to his age.

"The youth has now spent nearly a year in prison, a severe punishment for the part he took in the commission of the crime and it is the belief of the undersigned that justice would best be served in granting a pardon to this youth. It is with a firm belief in these statements that I make these recommendations."

J. J. Henderson, district attorney of Sacramento County, says:

"I endorse the statement of Honorable Charles O. Busick, and join in his recommendation."

After carefully reviewing the above statements and the facts in the case I do not feel that a pardon should be granted, as the young man actually participated in a robbery and in one or more burglaries However, I have taken into consideration the fact that if the young man's age had been established prior to sentence, he probably would have been sent to the reform school rather than to the State penitentiary, and the additional fact that he risked bodily injury at the hands of other prisoners at San Quentin who make a practice of intimidating any prisoner who is willing to testify against another prisoner Fredericksen materially aided the State in the conviction of the director and instigator of the crime in which he participated. The conduct of the prisoner since his incarceration in the State penitentiary has been exemplary and he has given unmistakable evidence of his desire to reform and lead a better life I feel that he is entitled to executive clemency, and that his sentence should be reduced to permit early parole.

Now, therefore, I, Friend Wm. Richardson, Governor of the State of California, pursuant to authority vested in me by the constitution and statutes of said state, do hereby commute the sentence of Raymond V Fredericksen from five years to life to a term of five years in the State penitentiary at San Quentin.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed at Sacramento, this twenty-sixth day of February, 1926.

[SEAL] FRIEND WM. RICHARDSON,
Governor of the State of California.

By the Governor.
FRANK C. JORDAN, Secretary of State.
By FRANK H. CORY, Deputy

PARDON OF JAMES W. PRESTON.

James W. Preston was convicted by a jury in the superior court of Los Angeles County of first-degree burglary, first-degree robbery and assault with a deadly weapon. He was sentenced on March 16, 1925, on each of the counts to serve a term in the State Prison at San Quentin as prescribed by law, the three sentences to run consecutively. He was subsequently received at the State prison and given No. 40598.

The charges grew out of the cowardly shooting of Mrs. Dick R. Parsons of Los Angeles on the night of October 18, 1924, during the robbery of her residence.

After the commission of the crime, the robber and would-be murderer, who was heavily masked, made his escape. Investigation by the police disclosed that the criminal had made his entrance through a rear window of the house and fingerprints were discovered on a screen and photographed.

Subsequently, Preston was arrested and placed in the Los Angeles city jail on a charge of unlawfully wearing the uniform of the United States Navy. His description generally fit that given by Mrs. Parsons of her assailant. Preston's fingerprints were taken and submitted to the State Bureau of Criminal Identification together with a photograph of the fingerprints found on the screen The superintendent of the State Bureau advised the Los Angeles officials that the picture was not sufficiently clear to make a positive comparison, although there was a similarity in the general contour of the two fingerprints. The fingerprint expert of the Los Angeles Police Department stated at the time that the fingerprints were not the same. It was erroneously reported in a Los Angeles newspaper that Preston had been positively identified through fingerprints. He was taken to the bedside of Mrs. Parsons, who had previously been misinformed through the newspaper accounts as to the fingerprint identification. Her mind undoubtedly influenced by the belief that the fingerprint identification had been made, Mrs. Parsons identified Preston as the man who had robbed her home and shot her and so testified at the trial. This identification, based only on the similarity of Preston's voice and eyes with those of the actual assailant, together with conflicting statements made by Preston as to his whereabouts on the night of the crime, led to his conviction, although he denied his guilt and claimed that he was not in Los Angeles at the time of the commission of the crime. The district attorney did not produce the evidence in his possession as to the dissimilarity of fingerprints.

More than one year later, one Earl M. Carroll was arrested, charged with the commission of certain burglaries in the city of Los Angeles. His fingerprints were positively identified through comparison by the fingerprint experts of the Los Angeles Police Department as those found on the screen of Mrs. Parson's home

Carroll has been charged with the commission of the crime for which Preston was convicted. His trial, however, has been delayed owing to the fact that he has developed evidences of insanity, and it is possible Carroll will not be brought to trial on this charge.

I was hopeful after the facts of this case were first presented to me that a jury might determine the evidence against Carroll before acting on the application of Preston for pardon, but the evidence appears to be so clear and convincing and in view of the recommendation of the trial judge and district attorney of Los Angeles County, I am disposed to act on this case without further delay, believing that an innocent man has been convicted and that the carrying out of the judgment means a miscarriage of justice.

Asa Keyes, district attorney of Los Angeles County, says:

> "I am wholly satisfied in my own mind that while the conviction of James W. Preston might be proper at the time, subsequent developments are such that it is clear that the guilty party is Earl M. Carroll. Under all of the circumstances, I feel wholly justified in recommending pardon for James W. Preston and do so recommend.

Honorable Carlos S. Hardy, judge of the superior court in and for Los Angeles County, who presided at the trial of Preston and subsequently made investigation of the evidence that has developed subsequent thereto, has recommended a pardon. He reviews the case as follows:

> "The district attorney of this county and certain officers of the police department and of the sheriff's department have called to my attention developments in connection with the case of James W. Preston who was tried before a jury in my court in March, 1925 and was convicted of first-degree burglary, first-degree robbery and assault with a deadly weapon and was sentenced by me to San Quentin.
> "The district attorney advises me he has recommended to Your Excellency that this defendant be pardoned, believing as he does, that Preston was not guilty of the offenses of which he was convicted and that his identification was the result of a mistake. The district attorney is strongly corroborated in his views by Mr. H L. Barlow of the Los Angeles police department who is an expert on fingerprints, and Mr. Frank Dewar, deputy sheriff, who is serving as jailer of Los Angeles County.
> "I have reviewed the evidence taken at the trial at which Preston was convicted. The identification of Preston was made chiefly by the one witness, his victim, testifying to peculiarities in the voice and of the eyes, which peculiarities are found in the defendant Preston. The victim in the case, who was chief witness in the prosecution, was an unusually intelligent lady and her testimony was positive and conclusive and her description of the voice of the person who attacked her and of the peculiar way in which he would close his eyes down until they were mere slits was most striking and definite and these peculiarities, as above stated, were noticeable in the court room during the trial of the defendant and were of such a rare nature that one might say would be seldom met with in the course of a lifetime.

"In addition to this testimony of identification, there was furnished me, but did not go to the jury, evidence by the officers who had investigated the case that the fingerprints of the person who committed the offense had been taken and compared with the fingerprints of Preston then on file in the State Identification Bureau in Sacramento and some report was shown to me from the superintendent of the bureau stating in effect that Preston's fingerprints were similar to those of the person who committed the offense. The photographic copies and reproductions of the fingerprints of the person committing the offenses were imperfect in some respects and for that reason it was explained that a perfect identification by fingerprints was impossible. The officers were satisfied that they were Preston's fingerprints

"Preston had an alibi, portions of which placed him in San Diego or near San Diego at the time when the offenses were committed This alibi was entirely destroyed by the showing that he was in the city jail in Los Angeles at the time when he claimed to be elsewhere.

"The matter of these discrepancies in his alibi have never been cleared up so far as I know, but from a reading of the affidavits which I am advised are now on file in your office and which have been exhibited to me by the district attorney, I am now led to believe that the fingerprints of the person who committed the offenses are not the fingerprints of Preston but that they are the fingerprints of one Earl M. Carroll who is now under arrest and who is believed to have committed the offenses for which Preston is now serving sentence. Carroll has not yet been brought to trial I am also advised by the district attorney and the other officers of the case that Mrs. Parsons, the victim of these crimes, has seen Carroll and states that he more nearly fills the bill of the man who had committed the offenses and that he possesses the peculiarities of voice and eyes that she described and which went so far in securing the conviction of Preston

"Upon these representations referred to above and the new disclosures, it would seem to me that Preston is entitled to executive leniency and I join with the other officers in so recommending"

Sergeant H L. Barlow, fingerprint expert of the Los Angeles Police Department, has filed with me an affidavit reading in part as follows:

"Affiant further says that he has positively identified the fingerprints that he photographed on the lower edge of screen frame which was removed by a burglar on the night of October 18, 1924, at the home of Mrs. Richard Parsons, 906 West 50th street, as being impressions made by the right middle and right ring fingers of Earl M. Carroll, L. A. No 21674-A; also a portion of palm print that he photographed on the opposite side of screen frame from the fingerprints which he has positively identified as being an impression made by the right hand palm of Earl M Carroll

"Affiant further states that he compared the fingerprints of the said James W. Preston, L. A. No. 23668-M-2, with the fingerprints that he had photographed on the Parsons screen frame and they were postively not made by his, the said James W. Preston's fingers. He informed the officers who were working on the case at that time of this fact. This comparison was made at the time Preston was suspected of this crime, in 1924."

Mrs. Dick R. Parsons has made and filed with me an affidavit reading in part as follows:

"Affiant now realizes that, believing the fingerprints possibly being Preston's, made her more certain in her mind as to her assailant being Preston than she might have been had this statement never been made, and in the light of this new evidence, granting that Mr Barlow is correct and which affiant now feels she can not doubt, affiant believes now that she could have been mistaken in identifying James W. Preston as the man.

"While affiant did not realize it at the time, she can now readily see how her identification of Preston was unconsciously influenced from having had read to her before seeing said Preston, articles from newspapers, to the effect that he, Preston, had been arrested on account of the similarity of his fingerprints and the fingerprints of the burglar taken from the window screen of her house.

"Affiant further states that, in view of all the facts that have come to light since the arrest and investigation of the said Earl M. Carroll and the positive identification of his fingerprints with the fingerprints of the burglar left on her screen, she, said affiant, feels that it is possible and entirely probable that she has made a mistake in identifying James W. Preston as her assailant, and that, in making said identification, affiant was undoubtedly influenced by the statements which had been made to her as above set forth, leading her to believe that the said James W. Preston had been connected with said crimes by evidence independent of said affiant's identification."

Frank Dewar, deputy sheriff and jailer of the Los Angeles County jail, has made and filed an affidavit in which he says in part:

"That since said conviction and sentence, and particularly within the past few weeks affiant has been actively engaged in cooperating with H. L. Barlow, police sergeant in charge of the Police Identification Bureau of the city of Los Angeles, and has become satisfied that said Preston was not the perpetrator of the crimes committed against the person and property of Mrs. Richard Parsons and that it now appears that the perpetrator of such crime is one Earl M. Carroll who is now in custody in the county jail of Los Angeles County and being prosecuted by the district attorney of said county for said crime."

Detective Lieutenant T. D Robinson of the police department of the city of Los Angeles has made and filed with me an affidavit in which he expresses his belief in the innocence of Preston and says:

"Affiant further states that it has since been demonstrated to him by fingerprint expert H. L. Barlow of the Los Angeles police department, that the prints on the screen belong to Earl M. Carroll who was arrested by said Los Angeles police department on the charge of burglary. Affiant is also convinced that owing to the similarity of build and description of the said James W. Preston and the said Earl M. Carroll that Mrs. Parsons could have made an error in her identification at that time, especially as she saw only the eyes of the man who shot her, between the top of a handkerchief tied over Preston's face and a pulled-down hat and that she, the said Mrs. Parsons, heard his, the said Preston's voice in a moment of intense excitement."

M. M. Moran, police officer of the police department of the city of Los Angeles, and Police Officer H. L. Bain, who investigated the charges against Earl M. Carroll, have made and filed with me affidavits in which they express their belief that Carroll, and not Preston, is the person guilty of the crime for which Preston is now serving in the state prison. These affidavits set out the fact that Carroll has made certain damaging admissions to the officers connecting him with the crime in addition to the positive identification of the fingerprints

G. E. Benedict, deputy public defender of Los Angeles County, who represented Preston at the time of trial, has made and filed with me an affidavit in which he states that Preston at all times maintained his innocence and further that the deputy district attorney in charge of the prosecution before the commencement of the trial offered to drop the charges on which Preston was convicted if he would plead guilty to simple assault, but that Preston refused to plead guilty to any charge in connection with the robbery and shooting of Mrs. Parsons.

I have made an independent investigation and from all of the facts and circumstances believe that James W. Preston is not guilty of the crime for which he was convicted. This is in no way a reflection upon the jury that found Preston guilty. In most cases I am willing to accept the verdict of juries. But facts in this case have developed subsequent to trial which I believe if submitted to the jury would have resulted in a verdict of acquittal. I have no hesitancy in stating that I believe that it is the duty of officers charged with the preparation of cases for trial and of district attorneys who prosecute to present all of the facts to the jury in order that a fair determination of the guilt or innocence of the accused may be had. I strongly believe in vigorous prosecutions of criminals, but I also believe in fair play for those accused of crime. Had the deputy district attorney who prosecuted Preston presented to the jury the evidence showing the dissimilarity between the fingerprints found on the screen of the Parsons residence and those of Preston, there is no doubt in my mind that Preston would have been acquitted by an intelligent jury without the subsequent additional proof that the fingerprints found on the screen were those of Earl M. Carroll

In view of the circumstances of this case publication of notice of intention to apply for pardon is hereby waived.

For reasons hereinabove stated by virtue of authority vested in me as Governor of the State of California by the constitution and laws of this state, I hereby pardon James W. Preston on each of the three charges of which he was convicted.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed, this second day of September, 1926.

Governor of the State of California.

PARDON OF T. H. HEAPE.

Trafford Henry Heape was convicted in Los Angeles County of the crime of grand larceny by trick and device and on October 30, 1924, was sentenced to serve an indeterminate term of from one to ten years in the State Prison at San Quentin. After the determination of an appeal, he was received at the State prison on August 15, 1925, and given No 41161. Prior to his incarceration in the State penitentiary he had been confined five months in the Los Angeles County jail, making his total imprisonment for the crime for which he was convicted up to the present time, with credits allowed for good behavior, more than one year and seven months.

The crime of which Heape was convicted grew out of a real estate transaction with somewhat complicated details, all of which it is unnecessary to state. Heape entered into a business partnership with one T. C. Hughes for the purpose of building and selling houses. They entered into a contract with Bruce Gordon Kingsley whereby Kingsley was to advance $250 and a trust deed, the face value of which was $1,019, which money was to be used in the purchase of a lot and erection of a house to be sold in ninety days and out of the proceeds Kingsley was to receive his money back, plus the remarkable profit of $1,000. Kingsley put up his money and security, but Heape and Hughes failed to purchase the lot or erect the house, and in due time Kingsley, becoming dissatisfied, demanded his money back, but failed to receive it. In the meantime, it appears that the trust deed had been disposed of and the proceeds used for other purposes. The criminal complaint followed, although it appears from evidence not submitted to the jury that Kingsley attempted to use the criminal process as a means of collecting his money, plus his contemplated profit, and made representation to Heape that if he would pay to him approximately $3,000, Kingsley would secure the dismissal of the criminal action. In pursuance of such understanding, Heape executed a promissory note in favor of Kingsley and turned over to him an equity in his home by way of restitution. Subsequent to the trial, Kingsley dispossessed Heape's family and took possession of the house.

The complaint, however, was not dismissed and Heape went to trial His attorney withdrew from the case immediately before the trial Heape secured a new attorney and the judge refused to grant a continuance in order that the attorney might post himself on the facts in the complicated case. Hence, Heape was improperly represented and evidence that could have been presented to the jury was not presented. From evidence developed subsequent to trial and which has been submitted in connection for pardon, it appears that Heape entered into the contract with Kingsley in good faith and turned the money and trust deed over to his business associate, Hughes, but that Hughes converted the money and proceeds from the sale of the trust deed to his own use.

In addition to the loss of his home, Heape lost approximately $3,500 advanced to Hughes in connection with their brief relationship Hughes was subsequently convicted of embezzlement in connection with another transaction and is now incarcerated in the State prison

The complaining witness, Bruce Gordon Kingsley, was particularly vindictive at the trial and at the time Heape asked the judge for probation. Since the trial Kingsley says he has become convinced of the innocence of Heape, is deeply repentant of the mean part he played as prosecutor, and has filed two affidavits and various statements in which he says in part as follows

> "That affiant since the trial of said cases received new information which caused him to believe that it was rendered impossible for said Heape to carry out his contract with affiant because of the very money upon which the defendant was depending and which was necessary for the fulfillment of said contract was withheld from Heape by his business associates, that said new information consists of the affidavits of Claude A. Shutt, Edgar L Martin, and data consisting of documents showing that Heape was depending upon the action of one T C Hughes, his business associate, for the necessary financial support with which to complete said contract and that said T. C Hughes, who has since been convicted of embezzlement, failed and refused to supply the necessary funds which Heape had the right to expect and did expect from said Hughes; that on account of new information obtained since the aforesaid trial affiant believes that the said Heape is not to blame for the crime of which he stands convicted."

The affidavits referred to in the above statement have been filed in connection with the application for pardon and tend to show the facts as hereinabove set forth.

Asa Keyes, district attorney of Los Angeles County, has made a statement in the case at my request under section 1420 of the Penal Code, in which he says in part:

> "From a careful perusal of the transcript of the testimony in this case, I believe that it fails to show the commission of the crime of grand larceny by Heape The theory of the prosecution at the trial undoubtedly was that at the time Heape obtained this money and trust deed from Kingsley he had larceny in his heart and did not intend to complete or carry out the contract which he made. From Mr. Heape's testimony at the trial, I am satisfied and at a loss to understand why the jury did not so find that Mr Heape never at any time intended to steal either the $250 or the trust deed which had been entrusted to him by Kingsley and I believe that if he had been properly defended and all of the facts brought out at the trial which could have been produced in his defense, he would never have been convicted.
> "I believe from what I have learned subsequent to his conviction that the failure of Mr Heape and his partner Hughes to carry out their contract with Kingsley was due entirely to the fault of Mr. Hughes (Heape's partner) in not producing as he had promised the proper financial backing to carry this deal through.
> "Mr Heape's attorney did not ask a single question of the most important witness on cross-examination nor did he call Mr. Hughes in Hr Heape's defense. The testimony of this man is particularly important when it is remembered that Mr. Heape testified positively that although he had received this money, the same had been disbursed on Mr Hughes' order and for his benefit and that he was unable to complete this deal for Kingsley by reason of the fact that Hughes had spent this money and had failed to produce other capital which he had promised for the carrying out of this contract. From this testimony, I am of the opinion that Mr Heape did not commit the crime of grand larceny as found by the jury and that his application for pardon should be granted"

The district attorney criticizes Heape's attorney by saying that he improperly defended his client. As it is the duty of the district attorney to seek justice rather than conviction why did he not advise the jury to acquit? This is the sixth pardon I have given men convicted in Los Angeles County and later declared innocent by the district attorney.

Judge Carlos S. Hardy, who presided at the trial, was strongly of the opinion that Heape was guilty. When Heape applied for probation Judge Hardy brought out the facts of bad check transactions on Heape's part. Until just recently Judge Hardy has maintained Heape guilty. After reviewing new evidence Judge Hardy says

> "In consideration of these matters, I respectfully recommend pardon for Mr. Heape."

Nine of the twelve members of the jury have signed statements in which they state that they have reviewed new evidence not produced at the time of the trial and that "had said evidence been presented to the jury I would have voted for an acquittal instead of conviction. It is my opinion that there has been a miscarriage of justice and that a pardon should be granted by the Governor." This statement can not be considered of great weight, as the jurymen were probably strongly solicited. Still, the statement is entitled to some consideration

I have carefully reviewed the evidence presented at the trial and the affidavits containing additional information which was not submitted to the jury. I do not feel that Heape was entirely blameless in the matter or had been entirely upright in his financial transaction. He made extravagant promises of profits amounting practically to a get-rich-quick scheme and did not properly safeguard the money turned over to him by Kingsley He should have known that he could not have returned the huge profits promised within the time specified in the contract without material loss and he should have been prepared to meet such a loss before entering the contract However, from all the facts and circumstances, I feel that Heape has been sufficiently punished, and that he will become a good citizen after this severe lesson In view of the recommendation of the district attorney, the trial judge, and the prosecuting witness and the jurymen, I feel that he should be pardoned.

Now, therefore, by the virtue of authority vested in me by the constitution and statutes of the State of California, I hereby pardon Trafford Henry Heape of the crime of grand larceny by trick and device.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed, this twenty-fourth day of September, 1926.

PARDON OF C. A. M'CORMICK.

Clifford A. McCormick was convicted in the superior court of Los Angeles County of the crime of first-degree robbery on two counts, and was sentenced on November 29, 1924, to the term prescribed by law. The judgment was affirmed by the appellate court and he was subsequently received at the State Prison at San Quentin on July 10, 1926, where he was given No 42429.

McCormick was charged jointly with one Carey Wilson. A separate trial was requested but denied. It was charged that McCormick, in company with Wilson and Godfrey H. Cowdrey, participated in two robberies, one being the holdup of the Sultan Turkish Baths in Los Angeles and the second the holdup of a passenger bus belonging to the Los Angeles Railway. At the time of the trial, McCormick interposed the defense that during the time he had associated with Cowdrey and Wilson (and appeared to be planning the commission of the crimes) he was acting as a private detective under instructions of and securing information for his employer, J. N. Pyles Detective Agency.

The jury was undoubtedly justified in disbelieving his story on the basis of the evidence adduced at the trial. However, since the trial additional evidence has been developed, which has been carefully investigated, showing that McCormick's story was true and that he assisted the law enforcement officers by giving information relative to crimes committed by Wilson and Cowdrey.

During his association with these criminals as a detective, McCormick learned that Cowdrey had murdered one Joseph Langley during a holdup in Los Angeles This information was conveyed to the authorities and Cowdrey was subsequently identified by a witness to the killing and convicted of murder in the first degree. McCormick testified against Cowdrey at the murder trial and was instrumental in securing the conviction. Cowdrey, after his conviction, was bitter against McCormick and was used by the district attorney as one of the principal witnesses against McCormick. Being under life sentence, Cowdrey had little to fear on account of perjury.

Some of the newly discovered evidence which has convinced me of McCormick's innocence is the following

McCormick's employer, J. N. Pyles, called at the office of the sheriff of Los Angeles County and advised that he had an "under cover" man associating with some known criminals and that it would be necessary for him to appear to be associating with them in the commission of crime in order to secure evidence against them. McCormick reported the plans to commit the crimes to his employer but it appears that Pyles, being anxious to secure rewards and full credit for the detection and conviction of those responsible for the commission of the crimes, particularly in connection with the murder of Langley, was not frank in disclosing all the information in his possession to the officials. However, through information given by McCormick a holdup of the Leighton Cafeteria in Los Angeles was frustrated and Cowdrey and Wilson taken into custody. Subsequently, McCormick gave the sheriff's office full information relative to the crimes in which he appeared to be participating. The cooperation of McCormick with the officials and the fact that Pyles had previously furnished information to the sheriff's office was not properly presented in evidence, possibly, because of the fact that McCormick was represented by the attorneys of J. N. Pyles who were primarily instrumental in protecting Pyles from criticism and against the loss of his detective license

At the trial of McCormick the two deputy district attorneys who prosecuted the codefendants both represented and stated in their arguments to the jury their belief that McCormick had committed perjury in testifying against Cowdrey; that his story in the Cowdrey case was unworthy of belief and that they intended to apply to the Governor for a pardon on behalf of Cowdrey, believing him innocent. I am unable to ascribe a motive on the part of the district attorney's office in prosecuting McCormick and making such representations to the jury. The district attorney's office of Los Angeles County and neither of the deputies who prosecuted McCormick or Cowdrey have ever attempted to secure a pardon for Cowdrey. Additional evidence has been presented strengthening the guilt of Cowdrey and supporting the testimony of McCormick at Cowdrey's trial. Such evidence includes affidavits made by inmates of the county jail as to damaging admissions of guilt made by Cowdrey and an affidavit made by Carey Wilson to the effect that he was present at the time of the confession made by Cowdrey to McCormick concerning which the latter testified at McCormick's trial.

I have requested Asa Keyes district attorney of Los Angeles County, to investigate the facts of this case and furnish a statement to me under section 1420 of the Penal Code. I have been unable to secure any expression from District Attorney Keyes relative to this case. His assistant, Charles W. Fricke, has expressed himself as not favorable to the granting of a pardon, asserting that "I feel from the entire record that the deefndant McCormick was fairly and justly convicted of the crimes with which he was charged" Mr Fricke has not expressed his personal opinion as to the guilt or innocence of McCormick. Arthur Keetch, the judge who presided at the trial of McCormick and Wilson, and who has carefully examined the evidence discovered subsequent to the trial, has recommended a pardon. I quote in part from his statement as follows

> "I am heartily in sympathy with the application and believe it is a proper one for executive clemency, particularly in view of the fact that no jurisdiction remains in the courts to grant the relief which, I am convinced, the case demands I denied the motion for a new trial because the legal ground for the motion was insufficient. I am satisfied, however, that had I known at that time as much as I do now, I should have granted the motion. I am also satisfied, in the light of subsequent knowledge, that the motion for a severance of the trial of McCormick from that of Carey Wilson could have been granted
> "I am satisfied in my own mind that if there was not actually a suppression of evidence during the trial of the case, as far as McCormick was concerned, much evidence of a vital character in support of the defense that he was acting as a detective and feigned accomplice was not presented. The fact, as stated in the affidavit of Mr. Harry Wright, the chief deputy in the sheriff's office, that he had instructed his subordinate, Harvey Bell, to take steps to protect McCormick by calling the attention of the district attorney to the fact that he was acting as a detective, and which Harvey Bell admits he neglected to do, was of the most vital importance to McCormick, and there are other matters set out in the petition and supported by affidavits, which were of equal importance to him in the trial of the case before a jury. Furthermore, the fact that McCormick was jointly charged and jointly tried with Carey Wilson, against whom the evidence was unequivocal and convincing, undoubtedly was greatly prejudicial to McCormick if the jury believed he was a real accomplice and not a feigned one
> "In view of all the facts and circumstances which now appear in the case, I am satisfied that if the judgment is enforced it will result in a miscarriage of justice I, therefore, earnestly join in the request for executive clemency at the hands of the Governor"

R. H. Wright, chief criminal deputy of the sheriff's office of Los Angeles County, has made a careful investigation of all the facts and circumstances relative to the association of McCormick with Cowdrey and Wilson and his alleged participation in the crimes for which he was convicted and has recommended unconditional pardon. He says in part:

> "In talking with McCormick relative to this robbery, I am firmly convinced that he was placed in a position of carrying out this robbery because if he 'back fired' from this job, it is most probable and likely that Cowdrey and Wilson would never have been brought to justice for the commission of the crime for which they were convicted and they might have gone on indefinitely committing numerous crimes of violence which perhaps might have resulted in the death of other persons as in my opinion they were criminals of the most desperate kind"

Mr. Wright states that Detective Pyles came to him before the commission of the crimes and stated that he had an "under cover" man working with Cowdrey and Wilson and desired to have him protected and that he, Wright, instructed a deputy sheriff to arrange with the district attorney's office for McCormick's protection and subsequent immunity. Why this was not done has not been satisfactorily explained. Mr. Wright states in conclusion:

> "I have given this case a great deal of thought, and have come to the conclusion that it is a case in which executive clemency should be granted. I firmly and sincerely believe that McCormick was a bonafide operative of the Pyles Detective Agency, and was so at all stages of the proceedings, and that at no time did he ever depart from his true character as an operative, and that in his participating in the La Brea bus job he did so believing that it was necessary in order to carry out the purposes of his employment, and I sincerely hope that His Excellency, Governor Richardson, will grant an unconditional pardon to this man. I have no personal interest in this matter other than to do all in my power to see that justice be done, and I sincerely hope that the Governor can see this case the same as I do"

E. Raymond Cato, assistant captain of detectives of the Los Angeles police department, has made a statement in which he says in part

"It was my opinion at the time that McCormick was arrested, and this was substantiated later by the results of my investigation, that McCormick at the time he committed the robberies for which he was convicted, was working under the instructions and in the belief that Deputy Sheriff Harvey Bell and Pyles would protect him in his acts in order to secure evidence against Godfrey Cowdrey and Carey Wilson, codefendants with McCormick. In conversations with me after his arrest, McCormick expressed the belief that he had nothing to fear and that his actions had been in accordance with instructions from the officers for whom he was operating"

Statements of several of the members of the jury have been filed in this office in which the jurors state that had the additional evidence been presented at the time of the trial and that had it been clearly made to appear that McCormick was in the employ of a private detective agency and working in connection with such employment at the time of the commission of the crimes for which he was charged, they would have voted for a verdict of acquittal.

After carefully reviewing the facts of this case, I have reached the conclusion that not only was McCormick acting in the course of his employment as a private detective at the time the crimes were committed, but that he was acting in the interest of justice in securing evidence against dangerous criminals and I feel, as does Judge Keetch, that the carrying out of the judgment would amount to a miscarriage of justice. It is regrettable that the district attorney's office of Los Angeles County did not properly investigate this case or if the facts were known that the truth was not fully presented to the jury

For the reasons above stated and pursuant to authority vested in me by the constitution and laws of the State of California, I, Friend Wm. Richardson, Governor of the State of California, hereby pardon Clifford A McCormick on account of his conviction of two charges of robbery.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the Great Seal of the State to be affixed, this twenty-first day of December, 1926.

[SEAL] FRIEND WM. RICHARDSON,
Governor of California.

By the Governor:

FRANK C JORDAN, Secretary of State.

EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY DENIED

Executive clemency has been denied in a large number of cases The reasons for denial in a few of the more noted cases are included herewith in order that my policy in such matters may be fully understood

CLARENCE (ALIAS "TUFFY") REID CASE.

A strong effort was made to secure the pardon, or commutation of sentence, of Clarence Reid of Los Angeles, convicted of murder and sentenced to be executed More than fifty thousand persons signed petitions asking Reid's release. Certain sensational newspapers waged a strong campaign with the object of intimidating me, so that a miscarriage of justice might be forced. Offers of political support and threats were resorted to. Plain lying about the facts in the case filled the columns of a certain newspaper published in Los Angeles.

In denying the pardon I released for publication the following statement

"The murder of Charles Weingarten, a Los Angeles merchant, by Clarence (alias "Tuffy") Reid was one of the most cruel and cold-blooded of the many murders I have reviewed. Reid was doubly prepared for murder and when the deceased grabbed his right hand Reid deliberately reached in his pocket with his left hand for another pistol with which he killed the merchant. Reid then cursed his partner in crime for not shooting. Thus incited, his partner fired. Then the murderers fled. Reid had a fair trial and the higher courts have approved the verdict. The fact that Reid was a user of drugs aggravates rather than palliates his cold-blooded crime. Drug users should pay the penalty for their crimes While in the county jail Reid entered into a plot for a general jail delivery and would have killed a turnkey but for the timely aid of a guard Reid is a confirmed criminal with a long career of crime from the reform school to the murder

"An affidavit presented by Laurence McMullen who was Reid's partner, is so inconsistent and conflicting that it deserves no consideration The sympathy in this case should go out to the unfortunate victim and his family. When Reid pays the penalty for his crime it will be a solemn warning to other criminals that California is not a safe place for murderers, and that no influence, however powerful, of journalists, politicians, attorneys, or the sob sisters can avail to prevent the law being enforced. Threats of personal and political reprisal will not deter me from doing my duty."

False Statement of Reid's Partner.

Lawrence McMullen, a prisoner serving a life term sentence in San Quentin, the partner with Clarence (alias "Tuffy") Reid, in the murder of Charles Weingarten, a Los Angeles merchant, confessed after Reid was hung that the affidavit made by him at the request of Assemblyman Dodge, before the hanging of Reid, was entirely false and was made for the sole purpose of securing for Reid a commutation of sentence In an affidavit voluntarily made to a member of the prison board McMullen said:

"That on February 13, 1925, I signed a statement, purporting to be a confession, testifying to the alleged fact that I. Lawrence McMullen, and not Clarence Reid, fired the shot which killed one Charles Weingarten in Los Angeles on January 21, 1923. That the statement sworn to by me on said February 13, 1925, and especially as to the part thereof in which I confessed the killing of Weingarten, is wholly and completely false, and was made solely for the purpose of exonerating Clarence Reid in the hope of securing for him a commutation of sentence, and that the shot which killed Weingarten was not fired by me"

This affidavit was sworn to before a notary public in Marin County. McMullen said that it was considered good ethics among prisoners confined at San Quentin to make any affidavit or statement necessary to save their companions from execution. He laughingly ridiculed that part of his affidavit secured by Assemblyman Dodge wherein he said he had dyed his hair from its natural red to black. McMullen said he had never dyed his hair in his life and the false affidavit was made in order to meet the insistence of Reid's friends to help his partner in crime.

CASE OF CHARLOTTE A. WHITNEY.

One of the most noted cases in which I have been asked to grant a pardon was that of Charlotte A. Whitney of Oakland, convicted of violating the criminal syndicalism law. Hundreds of citizens wrote asking me to grant a pardon. Some worthy citizens mistakenly joined in the plea. Anarchists, syndicalists and Bolsheviks from all over the United States took this occasion to spread their false propaganda and to make the untruthful claim that Miss Whitney was to be imprisoned for merely expressing an opinion. That she was convicted for her acts of syndicalism and not for what she said, did not prevent the continued reiteration of the false statement. Some of the yellow metropolitan press, of course, aided in the campaign.

In the following letter to Upton Sinclair I expressed my convictions regarding the case:

October 31, 1925

Upton Sinclair,
Pasadena, California

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of the 28th inst. asking a pardon for Miss Charlotte A Whitney, who was arrested on November 28, 1919, and convicted of criminal syndicalism by a jury in the superior court of Alameda County on February 20, 1920. This verdict was upheld by the State appellate court, the State Supreme Court, and recently by the United States Supreme Court. Her powerful influence and wealth has kept her out of prison for nearly six years. Other violators of this law, who have lacked this influence, have been serving their terms in prison.

Many others have written and telegraphed me regarding this case. The tenor of your letter and the letters of some others is that I should respond to popular clamor and release this woman without any showing of a mistrial or even an application from her for a pardon Applications for pardons are considered by me in an orderly manner, based on facts presented in written documents The humblest prisoner is given the same opportunity to be heard as the richest and most powerful offender.

You ask me to set aside the verdict of a jury which heard all the testimony and found her guilty, and to nullify the decisions of the courts. You say she was convicted for merely "holding a political opinion," but the decision of the Supreme Court shows she was convicted of criminal syndicalism as defined by the law.

You say: "I know your views concerning the criminal syndicalism law." This is a loose statement made without investigation of facts. The act defining criminal syndicalism and prescribing penalties for its violation was passed by the Legislature of 1919, by unanimous vote in the Senate and only nine noes in the Assembly, and approved by Governor Wm. D. Stephens. It was considered so important that it was adopted as an emergency measure as "necessary to the immediate preservation of the public peace and safety" and became effective April 30, 1919.

During my term as Governor, two attempts have been made to repeal the law, one at the legislative session of 1923 and one at the 1925 session. Both attempts failed in the Legislature and the bills did not reach the Governor. Officially, I have never had occasion to act upon or comment upon this law. Under these circumstances I ask that you correct your statement.

While I had no part in the passage of this law, still I have taken an oath to support the constitution and the laws of the State. It is my duty to stand for the enforcement of all the laws. The law penalizing criminal syndicalism is just as solemn and binding as the laws against murder, robbery, treason, arson and other crimes. Those who object to the criminal syndicalism law should appeal to the Legislature or take the matter direct to the people by initiative. To ask me to nullify the law is to ask me to violate my oath and set myself against the will of the people as expressed through the Legislature.

While I am Governor I propose to stand staunchly for the laws of the State and to support the constitution. Those who have been convicted, after fair trials by juries, sustained by decisions of courts, can not expect to escape punishment of their crimes by appealing to me. It is my duty to stand up for the laws and to protect society, and I will not issue pardons merely because of popular clamor.

Yours sincerely,

FRIEND WM. RICHARDSON, Governor.

CASES OF TANKO AND HALL.

A reward was offered by me for the arrest and capture of Joe Tanko and Floyd Hall, two life termers who escaped from the State prison. These young men committed a particularly cold-blooded murder in San Mateo County. The city marshal of San Bruno apprehended them for violating a traffic rule and followed them on a motorcycle and tried to stop them. They ran him into the curb and caused him to fall off of his motorcycle. Thereby he broke his leg. Then these young criminals stopped their car and went back and shot the officer in cold blood as he lay on the ground. The jury, owing to "sob sister" influence, gave them life imprisonment. These men had criminal records and had been in reform schools in another state. While in State prison they succeeded in escaping and terrorized different communities, killed one citizen and wounded an officer. If society is to be protected against murderers the law must be rigidly enforced. It is particularly important that every criminal who murders a police officer should be severely dealt with as these officers are simply representing the majesty of the State, and when a criminal attacks an officer he is in effect defying the whole people of the State. I sincerely hope that the criminal exploits of these two young murderers will be a warning to kind-hearted but misguided jurors in murder cases.

FERDINAND, SEARS AND GEREGAC.

The three men named above were convicted in Los Angeles County and sentenced to be executed. After a careful review of their crime I made the following statement:

"More than a year ago three men, named Ferdinand, Sears and Geregac, were arrested in Los Angeles charged with murder. They were subsequently tried and sentenced to be hung in January of this year. These three men engaged in rather promiscuous holdups of automobile parties. On the night of the crime they were in an automobile which they parked and then went a short distance to where two men and two women were in a car standing along the side of the street The criminals had figured that in cases of this kind, where men were out with women not their wives, they suffered very little danger of apprehension, as the victims would prefer to suffer financial loss rather than gain publicity. After holding up these two couples and taking their valuables, the three criminals rode on the running board of the car, and with drawn pistols compelled the owner of the car to drive on until they came to another car standing alongside of the road, in which was a third couple of a man and a woman not his wife. Ferdinand and Sears got off the running board and held up this third couple, while Geregac stayed on the running board and kept the first two couples under subjection Ferdinand stood in front of Chapman, the male member of the third couple, and took from him his pocketbook and other valuables and then went behind him, and while behind him, while the poor victim was holding his hands in the air and offering no resistance whatever, he deliberately shot him in the back and killed him. The victim fell forward and then Ferdinand turned him over and continued his search, finding some money in his watch pocket. Then the three criminals jumped on the running board and compelled the driver to conduct them further up the street, where they came alongside of another car parked at the roadside, in which was a fourth couple consisting of a man and a woman not his wife. This fourth couple were compelled to get out of their car and they were also robbed After that the criminals again mounted on the running board and compelled the driver to drive them back into the vicinity of where their own car was located When they arrived there, the criminals turned off the lights, took the key out of the car and threw it down, and then ran to their own car and got aboard and went back to their rooms in Los Angeles.

"I have looked into this case very carefully and read the transcript and the statements of the criminals after their sentence, and various letters and documents in connection with the matter The evidence at the trial was overwhelming as to the guilt of all three of the defendants, and the Supreme Court has sustained the sufficiency of the evidence to warrant the convictions.

"The crime which these three criminals committed is such a serious one that it is necessary that something drastic be done to warn other criminals that crimes of this kind will be punished severely, and that there are in California juries, judges and other officials who will not listen to the pleas of criminals, but will stand firmly by the law and see that it is enforced, so that it may be a lesson to criminals generally. It is a sad thing that these three young men should have engaged in wholesale robbery of this kind It is particularly sad that they should have mothers and other relatives who have suffered on account of their crimes It is tragic that they should have intentionally murdered a man by shooting him in the back, but this is not a matter for sentiment. This is a matter where society must be protected, where the law must be upheld, and where an example may be made which will help sustain the very foundations of society.

"After a full investigation of the matter, I am firmly convinced that the verdict of the jury in condemning these men to be executed was warranted by the facts, and that Geregac and Sears are equally guilty with Ferdinand although they did not fire the fatal shot."

ALEXANDER A. KELS CASE.

A statement was issued by me on the case of Kels, the Lodi murderer, on January 2, 1924, in which I said:

"Alex A. Kels committed one of the most cold-blooded and deliberately planned murders in the history of the State. His victim was a workingman unknown to his assassin. Kels, after his flight and arrest, appeared in court, plead guilty, calmly told all the details of his brutal crime (too horrible to be repeated here), was carefully cross-examined by the court, was subsequently examined for his sanity, and then sentenced to death by the superior judge of San Joaquin County. The laws as enacted by the people were carefully carried out.

"Since his commitment to State prison Kels has been repeatedly examined and found sane The statement made by Mrs Kels shows she knew nothing of the crime and she gives no extenuating circumstances.

"The Governor may, for good reasons, commute sentences but in this case there is not a single fact on which to base any such action. To subvert the will of the people in this case would be to violate my oath of office and deserve impeachment.

"The wife and young children of the murderer deserve sympathy but it should be remembered that Kels deliberately brought this sorrow and disgrace upon them. It should not be forgotten that the man so foully murdered was a poor wandering, friendless laboring man.

"This case has brought to public notice the foul methods of the yellow press, which will even prey upon the grief of a wife and the sorrow of young children to intimidate officers who refuse to bow to their yoke

"The law as enacted by the people must take its course and Kels must pay the penalty of his horrible crime. His fate should be a warning to criminals that the laws will be enforced in California and that influences, no matter how powerful, can not prevent their execution."

THE LINDSLEY CASE.

In denying the application for pardon of Alfred Lindsley, a Eureka editor, confined in the county jail in Humboldt County for contempt of court, I emphasized the importance of respect for the law and the viciousness of the policy of certain yellow journals in attempting to intimidate the officials of the courts and said:

"Alfred Lindsley was found guilty of contempt of court and sentenced to pay a fine of $2,000, with the alternative of 1000 days in the county jail of Humboldt County. Not having paid his fine he is now in jail

"The question of the liberty of the press is not involved in this case. The contempt was based upon the finding of the superior court that Lindsley had published four articles in his newspaper for the deliberate purpose of influencing the judgment of jurors and witnesses, to embarrass the judge, and to interfere with the administration of justice. Lindsley did not deny that his purpose in publishing the articles was to interfere with the administration of justice. His application for pardon is based upon a plea that the sentence is excessive.

"Lindsley has had his day in court and his case has been passed upon by the appellate and Supreme courts of this State. His legal and constitutional rights have not been violated. The issue presented to me is one of maintaining respect for the courts and a fair trial for those charged with crime, and has nothing to do with the liberty of the press A fair trial, in my opinion, means not only one which is fair to the accused but also fair to the people The rights of the people must be considered as well as the rights of the one accused The sentence of Lindsley should stand, in my opinion, and he deserves the punishment inflicted.

"He attempted to interfere with the administration of justice and exhibited contempt for the courts. I have read several copies of Lindsley's newspaper and articles written by him. His newspaper is of the gutter type and his articles clearly attempt to intimidate the courts and prejudice the public and thus create a miscarriage of justice. His punishment should be an object lesson to some of the yellow journals in our metropolitan cities

"After carefully reviewing the case I am convinced that Lindsley's acts are not a credit to the journalistic profession, and that he does not deserve the sympathy of any respectable newspaper publisher or editor."

Respectfully submitted.

FRIEND WM. RICHARDSON, Governor.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

Motion carried.

SECOND BIENNIAL MESSAGE OF
GOVERNOR FRIEND WM. RICHARDSON.

To the Senate and Assembly of the State of California.

The State government during the past four years has been conducted on a business basis with the practice of strict economy and the highest efficiency. This is proved by the fact that the surplus in the general fund has been built up from practically nothing to more than twenty million dollars without increasing the rate of taxation and without impairing any State function. This is an achievement unparalleled in California history and is proof positive that pledges made previous to my election have been redeemed in full and that the accomplishment more than exceeds the promises made.

The State of California has never been in better financial condition and the various departments of State government have never been on a more efficient and businesslike basis. When I took office, the surplus in the general fund had been exhausted and it was necessary that the strictest economy should be practiced in the administration of the State government. The 1923 budget was an economy budget and the figures of actual cost of government have proved that it made a saving compared with the budget of 1921 of $12,000,000. This great surplus has been built up despite the fact that during the past four years there was an increase of $16,498,457.47 in the fixed charges of State government, an emergency expenditure of $2,950,359.17 for foot and mouth disease, a great increase in the population of the various State institutions, and a building program of $5,510,450.46, the greatest amount appropriated in any biennium in the history of the State. In addition to this the sum of $1,983,000 was appropriated for permanent improvements on the San Francisco harbor front, out of the San Francisco Harbor Improvement Fund. The surplus in the general fund is now estimated by the State accountants to be $20,420,923.81. The surplus in the general fund on June 30, 1923, was exactly $30,371.39 and in September of that year it was necessary to borrow from other funds to prevent the registration of warrants. My administration refused to compromise a suit for franchise taxes due from corporations and finally won a complete victory in the courts and turned $6,316,364.16 into the treasury. This money was conserved by me and not permitted to be squandered. Building up this great surplus required constant resistance to spendthrifts and the vetoing and suppression of legislative bills carrying millions of dollars in appropriations.

A BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION.

In making selections for men to head the various departments, I have been fortunate in securing business men of the highest integrity and ability. While insisting that economy and efficiency must be exercised in every department, I have made it a rule not to interfere in the details of the management of any department. In short, the present government has been a business government and not a political government. I have maintained in office a number of heads of departments who served under the previous administration for the reason that I was looking for service to the State and not to reward friends or politicians. I want to express my appreciation generally to the splendid officials who have so faithfully served the State during my term of office.

BOARD OF CONTROL.

The functions of the Board of Control during my term of office have included the compilation of two biennial legislative budgets; the supervision of the expenditure of $234,611,000; the purchase and sale of bonds valued at $12,664,500; the auditing of the accounts of all the departments, boards, bureaus, commissions and institutions; the complete reorganization of the accounting system of the State Highway Commission and the State Harbor Commission of San Francisco; the payment of claims aggregating $412,916,681; the approval of contracts and leases; the purchase of supplies for the different departments, totaling $21,258,832, the supervision of a constructive building program at the hospitals, homes for the feeble-minded, penitentiaries, teachers colleges, corrective schools and the industrial home and school for the blind, involving the expenditure of between eight million and nine million dollars and necessitating thousands of miles of travel by the members of the board; frequent hearings for the adjudication of claims; conferences with every department, including regular monthly conferences with the Civil Service Commission; the purchase of farm lands for Agnews State Hospital; an extended public hearing on the Folsom Dam site, and almost innumerable other duties connected with the financial policies of the State. The Board of Control is practically the right arm of the Governor in the management of State finance. I have been particularly fortunate in securing members of this board who have shown fidelity to State service, business ability, and strict integrity. This board has saved the taxpayers great sums by its insistence on strict economy.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

This department is functioning with the highest efficiency and has been of untold benefit to the agricultural interests of the State. The director is in full sympathy with the farmers of California and has shown great energy and skill in handling his difficult position. During the last two biennial periods this department has been nearly fifty-five per cent self-supporting as against forty per cent prior to that time. This department has tried in every way to be of service to the farming interests of the State and to assist in promoting this essential industry and has had by earnest cooperation, as I fully realize the tax burden under which the farmers are struggling. The unofficial Agricultural Council, composed of representative farmers, was appointed by me and has been of great benefit to the department. Among the outstanding achievements has been the complete eradication of the dread foot and mouth disease among cattle and other livestock in California.

The total expenditures for eradication and indemnities of the hoof and mouth disease have been as follows: Indemnities $2,239.106; expenditures for eradication $711,253.17, making a total of $2,950,359.17. This is only the State's portion, the federal government expending a like amount These expenditures were financed by a legislative claim for indemnities in amount of $2,239,106, by $130.192.33 from the appropriations of the Department of Agriculture; and by $598.061.84 from the emergency fund of the State. Had it not been for the economy practiced by me, it would not have been possible to expend this great sum without increasing tax rates.

CALIFORNIA NATIONAL GUARD.

In no department of the State has there been a more marked improvement than in the National Guard. The Adjutant General selected by me is a military and business man who has brought to this department a degree of efficiency previously unknown in the history of the Guard. The enrollment in the National Guard has increased from 3125 to 5258 during my term of office and this has been accomplished with a reduction in the cost of the maintenance of the department The National Guard of California, as now constituted, is an efficient military organization, ready for action within a few hours' time While fortunately it has not been necessary to call out the National Guard to repress any lawlessness during the past four years, still the Guard has been ready and, I feel, has been a moral influence to restrain the lawless element Every anarchist, law violator and criminal in California knows that back of the police force in the various communities is the National Guard of California, equipped, manned and ready to maintain peace and order within the boundaries of the State. Probably nothing that I have done in my program of law and order has gained for me stronger disapproval of the Bolshevik element than the building up of the National Guard and having it on a military basis for protection to the lives and property of the people.

CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION

The civil service law and the merit system has had my staunch approval and I have always supported the Civil Service Commissioner in his efforts to maintain a strict administration of the law. There has been a complete elimination of the political spoils system. The number of temporary appointments has been reduced one-third. Notwithstanding the increase in the work of this department and the increase in efficiency, there has been a reduction in the cost of operation. During the past four years no funds have been solicited or accepted for any political campaign purposes.

CALIFORNIA HIGHWAY COMMISSION.

This commission has been put on a business basis and efficiency has been the motto. I was particularly fortunate in being able to secure the services of three high class business men to serve on this commission and to select an able engineer, whose sole object is to build good roads and who has no political connections whatever. During the past four years there has been a marked improvement in the administration of this department, of which the splendid work done on the highways is a testimonial. Visitors from other states are strong in their praises of the road improvements in California. In every part of the State are evidences of the splendid work done.

The construction of highways by prison labor has proved a success where the convicts are used in isolated sections and on work requiring much hand labor. The all-year Merced-Mariposa road into the Yosemite Valley was opened last year and is a good illustration of the work done by convicts. Convicts have also done good work on the Smith River road in Del Norte County

Owing to cheap and faulty construction previous to my administration, it has been necessary during the past four years for the State Engineer to reconstruct, widen and thicken many of the highways of the State. I have stood staunchly against extending the highway system and both after the 1923 and 1925 sessions of the Legislature vetoed a number of bills attempting to put purely local roads into the State system. I have striven to prevent the Legislature from putting the roads on a "pork barrel" basis

At the present time the State of California is spending about fifteen million dollars annually on state roads and I believe that this is all the money that can be spent wisely and economically. The people at the last election voted against two measures providing for additional revenues for State road building, thus showing that they are satisfied with the amount of the present expenditures and the present rate of highway construction, and rebel at added tax burdens being placed upon them. Should there be an increase in the amount of money available for State highway purposes, I predict that a large number of unimportant county roads will be forced into the State system, thus adding to the tax burden of the people and doing no good to main line roads. At the present time there are 6500 miles of roads in the State system and at least 1500 miles of these are "pork barrel" roads pure and simple, and should never have been taken into the system. The people of California will be building roads for many decades and the present burden of $15,000,000 a year is all that the taxpayer can stand.

EXECUTIVE PROCLAMATIONS

The Governor is authorized in certain cases to issue proclamations and I have kept strictly within the law and refused to issue any proclamations unauthorized by statute. A great abuse has grown up in California in the issuing of unauthorized proclamations by officials. I would suggest that the statute be amended so as to prohibit city, county and state officials from issuing any proclamations unwarranted by law.

A proclamation should be a solemn affair issued by legal authority and for the public benefit. To issue proclamations declaring certain days in the interest of animals, fruits and vegetables, or for special propaganda is to bring the law into disrespect and to make the issuers of such proclamations ridiculous. There have been no proclamations issued by me setting apart "Onion Day," "Horseradish Day," "Cauliflower Day," "Jack Rabbit Day," or "Squander Your Money Day."

APPOINTMENT OF JUDGES.

Sixty-four judges have been appointed by me during the past four years. This has required considerable time and study as I have made appointments solely on merit without regard to personal or political considerations. I have appointed two Chief Justices of the Supreme Court, six Associate Justices of the Supreme Court, seven Justices of the Appellate Court, thirty-five Judges of the Superior Court of various counties, and fourteen Municipal Judges of the cities of Los Angeles and Long Beach.

To maintain respect for the law, it is necessary that there should be judges of the courts who have the highest character and integrity besides the necessary legal learning and judicial poise. I am particularly proud of the men whom I have elevated to the judiciary of California. The appointments of these judges have been part of my program of law and order for the benefit of the whole people and the protection of their lives and property.

EXTRADITION OF CRIMINALS.

For many years extradition and interstate request matters have been handled in the Governor's office in a hit or miss manner Each district attorney made an application for the return of fugitives from justice according to his own individual ideas with the result that fifty-eight different kinds of requests and extraditions were being sent from California. Moreover, in some of the smaller counties, district attorneys, being unfamiliar with the method of returning fugitives from justice, failed to make applications with the result that some guilty persons went unpunished.

I have standardized applications and for the first time in the history of the State have made public rules governing applications for the rendition of fugitives from justice. I have had prepared and printed and distributed to all district attorneys in the State forms for the making of application and also forms for the proper certification of all papers attached to applications which form the basis for the return of fugitives to this State. The result has been uniform requests and extraditions from this State. Less difficulty has been experienced in returning fugitives from justice and the expense to State agents has been reduced. California is now recognized as among the first of the states in the Union in the matter of strict compliance with constitutional and legal requirements in the rendition of fugitives.

EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY.

In a separate message, I have submitted to you my acts of executive clemency during the past two years Pardon matters have occupied much of my attention. I have taken the position that the pardoning power is given to the Governor solely to prevent a miscarriage of justice and to be used only in extraordinary cases

Executive clemency should not be exercised to defeat the ends of the law, to override the verdicts of juries or the decision of courts. Only by strict enforcement of the laws and the elimination of sentimentalism in meting out punishment can law and order be maintained. I have had constantly in mind the desire to protect the women and children of California in their homes. If sentimentalists and hysterical writers should succeed in their endeavors, shotgun brigades would be necessary in every community and no home would be safe. The stern enforcement of the law and adequate punishment of criminals is necessary to protect our citizens

I have made it a rule to require written statements and not to listen to oral appeals All statements properly belong in the files where they can be reviewed calmly in connection with other matters regarding the case. The power of the Governor should, in my opinion, be used only in cases where the prisoner is innocent and the jurisdiction of the court to correct the mistake has expired I have issued no reprieves for persons to be hanged, except in one case where the murderer was under eighteen years of age and the law prohibits hanging under that age

The people have by law provided for the death penalty and the personal views of the Governor should not be exercised to thwart the verdict of the juries, the decisions of courts and the will of the people as expressed by the law. Those who oppose capital punishment should resort to the Legislature or the initiative to change the law and should not importune the executive to set aside the will of the people by acts of wholesale jail delivery.

STATE PRISONS.

What can be accomplished through the application of principles of economy and efficiency and good business practice is nowhere better illustrated than in the case of the state prisons

Prior to my term of office much was said about the moral uplift to prisoners and many public speeches were delivered on the reformation of converted criminals, but little was done within the prison walls for the material benefit of the prisoners Buildings and equipment had been permitted to fall into a sad state of disrepair, particularly in San Quentin prison. No provision was made for the future to take care of the rapidly growing increase in the prison population The result of the one-sided reform policy in the maintenance of the State prisons has been that the two penitentiaries, at San Quentin and Folsom, are now greatly overcrowded. At San Quentin a cell building started in 1908 was abandoned one-half completed in 1912.

During my administration and upon my recommendation an appropriation was made to complete this building. In addition a fine new women's building is nearing completion, which will not only relieve the overcrowded conditions of the women's ward but will provide for the industrialization of the women's department

The general crime conditions and awakening throughout the State to the necessity of more vigorous prosecution of crime has resulted in a marked increase in the prison population. At San Quentin, the number of prisoners has increased from 2450 to about 3400; at Folsom from 964 to 1750 In addition there have at all times been several hundred prisoners at the several highway prison camps. Notwithstanding the increase in the number of convicts strict discipline and better moral conditions exist at both of the prisons than prior to 1923. The men are better clothed and far better fed than ever before. As a result of the application of economy and efficiency, the per capita cost at San Quentin for the complete care and maintenance of prisoners has been reduced twenty-eight per cent and at Folsom nineteen per cent, during the past four years

Other improvements at San Quentin that might be noted are the elimination of so-called "Crazy Alley"; the building of a new shed so that prisoners while waiting in line for the mess hour do not have to stand in the rain during bad weather, the completion of the west wing of the prison; better sanitary conditions; the closing of a public road running through the prison grounds, which has permitted the throwing of dope and possibly other articles over the prison walls, the fitting up of a waiting room for the accommodation of visitors to the prison; and other improvements for the benefit of the prisoners.

BUREAU OF CRIMINAL IDENTIFICATION.

The State Bureau of Criminal Identification and Investigation has been of material advantage to the various law enforcement agencies of California by keeping a record of the fingerprints of criminals and by assisting in the identification of those charged with crime. During the past four years, over 40,000 identifications have been made This great volume of business has been conducted with a very slight increase in overhead expenses The department has rendered valuable service to the cause of law and order and the superintendent is entitled to much credit.

FISH AND GAME COMMISSION.

Prior to my administration the Fish and Game Commission had been conducted for years in a most unbusinesslike and haphazard manner The commission was actually expending more than was taken in through fees and obtaining small results so far as the purposes of the commission in the carrying out of the various acts for the preservation of wild game and fish were concerned The administration of the commission was for the benefit of a few, rather than for the big majority of sportsmen of the State. Moreover, an important food supply of this State was being impaired through insufficient regulation of fish canneries and fertilizing companies.

I induced one of the most successful and best known business men in California to accept an appointment on the commission together with a well-known jurist. The result has been the protection of the interests of the people of California, at the same time affording greater opportunities to the sportsmen of the State. I am very proud of the record of the Fish and Game Commission during the past two years.

VETERANS' WELFARE BOARD.

The businesslike manner in which the work of the Veterans' Welfare Board has been conducted was undoubtedly largely responsible for the vote of approval given by the people to the veterans' bond issue at the last election, this being the only tax measure approved by the people. I have been fortunate in securing men on this board of ability and thorough loyalty to the interest of veterans. Prior to my administration, the overhead expense in the administration of this board was .1459. In 1925 the cost was reduced to one-eighth. The percentage this year will be about the same as 1925. This board has invested the great sum of $10,867,808.28 in farms and homes in California for veterans. All of this amount is being repaid under the terms of the Veterans' Act and the amount of delinquency has been only three-tenths of one per cent.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.

Water development, water conservation and irrigation have received much of my attention. The future of the State largely depends upon the development of water resources. I have done all I could to bring about the fullest possible utilization of the waters of the Colorado River. This depends upon the construction of a dam at Black or Boulder Canyon, which, by reason of the enormous estimated cost, can only be undertaken by the federal government.

Under my direction, the late W. F. McClure, former State Engineer and the present State Engineer, Paul Bailey, have been working for more than two years on plans for the bringing of water from the Colorado River dam to points in the southern part of the State. I secured the support of the National Editorial Association for this project and much favorable sentiment has been created throughout the country in this manner. I have endeavored to keep this question out of politics. There is no opposition in California to the building of the dam.

I believe that the Senate and Assembly should have unconditionally ratified the Colorado River Compact, but I hope that failure to do so will not prevent the passage of proper legislation in Congress.

I have encouraged the investigation of the water resources of the State and signed a bill appropriating $94,125 for that purpose. A report will be submitted to you by the State Engineer during the present session of the legislature. The plan, I hope, will point the way to remove the limit upon development of those areas having an inadequate natural water supply and will, I trust, lay a scientific basis for the fullest possible utilization of the waters of the State. Storage reservoirs for irrigation and domestic purposes, generating of power and control of floods should be planned.

During my term of office, the Kern River, Buena Vista, Tulare Lake, San Joaquin River and Tulare Lake Basin water storage districts have been formed, comprising an aggregate of 1,078,000 acres. There is also under consideration the formation of the Kern River Water Conservation District, comprising approximately one million acres, and storage at the Pine Flat reservoir site of 600,000 acre-feet is planned. Since January 1, 1923, twenty-four irrigation districts have been fully organized, aggregating 402,052 acres.

DIVISION OF IRRIGATION.

The Division of Engineering and Irrigation of the Department of Public Works has been carried on in a businesslike manner. The volume of work has increased approximately twenty per cent while the expenditures have decreased three per cent. Approval of the construction of thirty-five dams and nine bridges over unnavigable streams has been given. New works for the protection of river banks from flood damage have been devised and various investigations have been made. Work on the Santa Ana River watershed and basin in cooperation with Orange, Riverside and San Bernardino counties has resulted in conserving the water supply. A survey to prevent damage from salt water in the agricultural districts along the lower San Joaquin and Sacramento rivers has also been made.

DIVISION OF WATER RIGHTS.

The work of the Division of Water Rights, based upon the number of applications passed upon, has increased seventy-eight per cent during the past four years, and during the same time unit cost of operation decreased thirty-five per cent. Action on water matters has been expedited and details minimized through the elimination of unnecessary red tape and the application of economy and efficiency.

During the past four years, 3123 applications have been acted upon as compared with 1755 applications in the preceding four years and 892 in the next preceding four years. By increasing the rate of action from 28 to 67 per month since January 1, 1923, the number of pending matters before the Division of Water Rights has been reduced from 945 to 647.

DIVISION OF ARCHITECTURE.

The greatest building program in the history of the State has been carried on during the past two years as the 1925 budget contained more than six million dollars for the erection of new buildings at the various State institutions. During the four years of my administration, the construction of State buildings represents the overhead cost of only 5.26 per cent as against a figure of nearly three times that much for private construction. The State Architect has served the State faithfully and well.

DEPARTMENT OF INSTITUTIONS.

The expense of maintaining the Department of Institutions has been reduced seventeen per cent during my administration. The total overhead expense for this department has been $90,032, as compared with $109,167 during the previous four years.

The work of this department is the business management of the various State institutions, including State hospitals and reform schools. One of the new branches of humanitarian work undertaken by this department during the past four years, has been the work among the blind Field workers visit the blind in their own homes and instruct them in various kinds of work so they may be self-supporting.

During my administration there has been more building and improvement at the various State institutions than at any similar period in the history of the State. Much needed equipment and additional buildings have been erected at all of the State hospitals and I believe, it can be truthfully said, that the State institutions have never been better operated or conducted in a more efficient and businesslike way, than at the present time.

During the period July 1, 1923, to June 30, 1927, there will be an approximate saving in the management of the state institutions of $2,924,000 over the four previous years. In determining whether or not the institutions of the State are efficiently managed, the per capita cost of inmates should be taken into consideration In basing this estimate the actual population and expenditures for the year July 1, 1925, to June 30, 1926, were used for the current fiscal year which is not yet completed In the seven State hospitals during the period July 1, 1919, to June 30, 1923, there was an average yearly inmate population of 12,279 with a total expenditure for support and maintenance of $13,935,810.46 with an average yearly inmate per capita cost of $283.74. During the period July 1, 1923, to June 30, 1927, the average yearly inmate population is estimated at 13,963. The total expenditure for support and maintenance is estimated at $14,040,427 24 and the average yearly inmate per capita cost at $251 38, being a decrease in the per capita cost for the last four years of $32.36. This decrease in the per capita cost, multiplied by the average inmate population of 13,963, equals a decrease in cost based on per capita expenditures of $1,806,672.57. While expenses have decreased the inmates have been better cared for, fed and housed than at any other time in the State's history. This reduction has been accomplished by the application of business principles and the elimination of politicians and spendthrifts Superintendents and other officials have been selected upon merit.

On the same basis the decreased cost based on per capita expenditures for the prisons would be $554,203.26, the correctional schools $545,067.68, and the two homes $18,233.75

HOSPITALS—
July 1, 1919-June 30, 1923	12,279	$13,935,810 46	$283 74

			$32 36
PRISONS—
July 1, 1919-June 30, 1923	2,998	$3,465,441 96	$288 98
July 1, 1923-June 30, 1927	4,238	4,344,593 03	256 29
CORRECTIONAL SCHOOLS—
July 1, 1919-June 30, 1923	831	$2,495,446 76	$750 73
July 1, 1923-June 30, 1927	998	2,451,867 16	614 19
			$136 54
HOMES—
July 1, 1919-June 30, 1923	746	$1,350,385 48	$452 54
July 1, 1923-June 30, 1927	725	1,294,136 26	446 25
			$6 29

The great decrease in the cost of operating the various institutions is summarized as follows:

State Hospitals	$1,806,672 57
Prisons	554,203 26
Correctional Schools	545,067 68
State Homes	18,233 75
Total saving	$2,924,177 26

BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS.

The Labor Bureau has rendered greatly increased service at a slight increase in the cost of operation. There has been an increase of six per cent in the total number of jobs filled by the free employment system at a decrease of six per cent in the cost of maintaining the employment bureaus. The bureau has investigated and handled 48,214 complaints of violators of the labor laws, an increase of eighty-five per cent, while the amount of unpaid wages collected increased one hundred and ninety-two per cent.

Approximately ninety per cent of the work of this department has been the collection of unpaid wages. The law enforcement activities of the bureau have increased nearly eighteen per cent. The commissioner has been given a free hand and has labored to deal fairly and justly. At my suggestion when I took office, the commissioner gladly dismissed from the service a number of political barnacles, thus saving expenses and increasing the efficiency of the office.

NOTARIES PUBLIC.

The issuing of notary public commissions has required much of the time of the clerical force of my office. The number of notaries in all of the counties, except one, that may be appointed is unlimited. In San Francisco the limit is 155. There have been insistent demands to increase the number of notaries in San Francisco in order to accommodate the business of that great city. Los Angeles County has upward of 4000 active notaries and Alameda County more than 1000. I have required all notaries to sign an application blank, giving their age, sex, place of nativity and other facts and have required the endorsement of at least five persons as to their character and reputation. The law provides that a person must be a citizen of the State and reside in the county for which the notary commission is issued.

As the work of notaries is highly technical and demands some knowledge of the law, the Legislature should consider the matter of providing for some kind of an examination to test the qualifications of applicants. I have had several complaints of misconduct on the part of notaries. I submitted one of the most flagrant cases referred by the United States Collector of Internal Revenue, to the Attorney General and he held that the Governor had no power to remove a notary public, even for cause, and that there was no specific requirement of law that a person must personally appear before a notary at the time an affidavit is taken. This defect in the law should be remedied Otherwise, affidavits can be of little use and the Internal Revenue Department may be forced to refuse to receive affidavits purported to have been sworn to before a notary.

STATE BOARD OF FORESTRY.

The State Board of Forestry has used every endeavor to protect the forests of the State and to stimulate replanting so that future generations may be provided with lumber. A number of counties have assumed a portion of the protective cost by cooperative agreement with the State. Through the cooperation of the Surveyor General and the United States Forest Service, State-owned school lands within the boundaries of the National Forest are being exchanged for other timber land of equal value. This department has been conducted on a businesslike basis, sanely and intelligently. The department has striven to undo the great harm done mountain resorts by the false forest fire tales of malicious metropolitan yellow journals.

STATE BANKING DEPARTMENT.

The resources of State banks under the jurisdiction of the Superintendent of Banks have increased from $1,985,289,586 to $2,662,588,284, and individual deposits have increased from $1,634,064,309 to $2,093,976,613 between January, 1923, and June, 1926.

The past few years have been a period of consolidation, with the result that the number of State banks has decreased from 429 to 357.

The total expenses of the State Banking Department have not increased despite the tremendous increase in the work of the department. This department is maintained by a levy of one one-hundredth of one per cent of the capital surplus and contingent funds, profit and deposits of the banks. The Superintendent of Banks has reduced the fees to seventy-five per cent of the amount authorized by law and has expended only ninety-seven per cent of the amount collected.

No better commendation of the head of this department can be made than the fact that during the past four years not a dollar has been lost by any depositor in any State bank in California. The superintendent has stood staunchly for a fair administration of the banking laws. Recent victories in the courts have shown him to be both legally and morally right.

CORPORATION DEPARTMENT.

The Corporation Department has expanded its operations, particularly in the matter of investigation and audit of corporations selling stock in this State and this function has increased the amount of work threefold. Through the work of this department, greater protection has been given the people of the State against crooked stock promoters and high-pressure salesmen.

The cost to the State in salaries per $1,000,000 aggregate par value of stock represented by the applications was decreased seventeen per cent during my administration, through the application of economy and efficiency. The number of permits issued has increased ninety-one per cent.

The two commissioners who have served in this department during my term have been able and honest in their efforts to prevent the sale of fraudulent securities. Naturally this department has incurred the hostility of dishonest men who have been curbed in their plots to rob the public.

STATE INSURANCE DEPARTMENT

The Department of Insurance is maintained by fees collected. In the four years previous to 1923 forty-two per cent of the income was required to maintain the department. During the past four years only thirty-two per cent of the fees collected has been used in maintaining the department. There has been an increase in the number of insurance agencies and brokers of thirty-seven per cent. The receipts of the department based upon fees for certificates of authority, filing of annual statements, agents, brokers, surplus line brokers and adjusters fees have increased thirty-four per cent. The net premium income of insurance companies of California has increased sixty-three per cent. The department is well organized and well managed

BUILDING AND LOAN COMMISSION.

As a result of the constructive policies of the Building and Loan Commission during my term of office, the assets of building and loan associations in the State of California have more than trebled and the number of associations has almost doubled.

From assets amounting to $64,732,760, four years ago, the assets have increased to $224,714,597. The number of associations has increased from 102 to 193 and the number of investors and members has doubled and the borrowers trebled. During the past four years, building and loan associations have assisted in the construction of 35,000 homes in the State of California

Although the work of the department has trebled, the cost of maintaining the department to the associations has been materially decreased. Four years ago, a charge of twenty-four cents per one thousand dollars of assets was made. This fee was reduced to fifteen cents per one thousand dollars of assets in 1926. This record was made possible through the strict adherence to a policy of economy and business principles.

Strict enforcement of rules and regulations by the commissioner has made the California associations among the safest in the world. There have been no failures among California building and loan associations during my term of office. Credit is due the commissioner for his good work.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The State Board of Health has never been administered in a manner reflecting more credit upon its members. There has been a slight increase in the expenses of maintaining the department due to additional expenditures for humanitarian work, particularly in connection with child hygiene and the prevention of disease. The cost of administration of the department has decreased from $108,443 to $99,192 covering a three-year period. A decrease of $9,000 in the cost of registration and licensing and a saving of $22,989 in sanitary engineering work and a material decrease in the cost of the work of analysis and investigation has been made.

The work to control and regulate sewage disposal has increased twofold without an increase in the sanitary engineering staff. Owing to the prompt and efficient action of the State Board of Health, two epidemics in California were prevented The canning industry has been materially assisted by the board.

RAILROAD COMMISSION.

Despite a material increase in the work of the Railroad Commission, the actual expenditures have decreased. In the past three fiscal years, ending June 30, 1926, the total expenditures were $1,240,078 as compared with $1,486,777 for the three fiscal years previous. For the years from 1923 to 1926 the commission rendered 6373 decisions as compared with 5119 formal decisions for the years 1918 to 1922, inclusive. During the same period the formal applications increased from 4270 to 4979 and the formal complaints from 14,843 to 18,635. I have exercised great care in the selection of men for membership on this important commission, and have been fortunate in securing men of learning, integrity and industry.

STATE PARKS.

California has six State park areas, including the Humboldt-Mendocino and Del Norte parks containing approximately 3200 acres. California Redwood Park at Boulder Creek contains approximately 9300 acres; Burney Falls Park, 335 acres; Bidwell State Park approximately 100 acres and Mt. Diablo State Park approximately 600 acres, or a total of 13,500 acres of State park area.

During my administration, the endeavor has been made to permit the enjoyment of California State parks by the greatest number of citizens, particularly those who can not afford expensive vacations. During the summer just past, between twenty-five and thirty thousand people spent at least a part of their vacation within these parks. Portions of the most attractive groves have been prepared as public camp grounds and pure water has been piped and other conveniences provided. To take care of such expense, a nominal charge of fifty cents per night has been made, with the result that these accommodations have been furnished campers without expense to the state.

California's oldest State park is the California Redwood Park in the Santa Cruz Mountains. Many improvements have been made at this park during the past year to provide facilities and conveniences for campers. The plan of placing it under the control of the State Forester, as executive officer, has proved successful Richardson Grove in Humboldt County has been under the supervision of the State Forester since its acquisition and has been well and popularly managed. The total expenditures for maintaining these parks have been materially reduced from $159.181 for the three and one-half year period ending June 30, 1923, to $114.280 for the corresponding period ending June 30, 1926 With the decrease in cost there has been a bettering of public service.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENT COMMISSION.

That reduction in expenditures does not mean inefficiency is shown by the records of the Industrial Accident Commission During the first biennium of my administration, the cost of maintaining this department was $501,162 as compared with an expense of $805,296 during the preceding two years The expenses during the past two years have been correspondingly low The work of the commission has never been carried on in a more efficient manner The decisions and rehearings and other procedures have materially increased but the unit cost for each proceeding has been reduced from $37.47 to $21 60

In the safety department of the commission, the unit cost has been reduced from $12.30 to $4 48 per activity. The State Compensation Insurance Fund has been administered in a businesslike manner. The premium revenue has increased from $4,635,000 to $5,811,000 and during the past four years an average of thirty per cent dividend has been returned Through the work of engineers and inspectors of the commission, and a careful study of accident prevention, deaths and serious injuries in the industries of California have been materially reduced

MOTOR VEHICLE DEPARTMENT.

The Motor Vehicle Department has been conducted with great efficiency. While the total registrations have increased one hundred and twenty-one per cent, there has been only a thirty-seven per cent increase in expenditures. The cost of registration per automobile license has been reduced from ninety-one cents to fifty-seven cents. The work of the department has practically doubled during the past four years.

In 1922 the total registration of motor vehicles in California was 883,649 while in 1926, to and inclusive of November 30, a total of 1,626,131 vehicles had been registered By statute, a maximum of twenty per cent of motor vehicle fees collected is allowed for the maintenance of the department During the year 1926, only slightly more than seven per cent has been used, the balance of $3,350,000 having reverted for maintenance work on the highways of the State.

A Statewide traffic squad has been organized At the present time, there are approximately two hundred traffic officers operating in forty-five counties Fifteen hundred headlight adjusting stations have been established to assist motorists in an effort to rectify the headlight evil.

New and larger offices have been provided and equipped in Los Angeles, San Diego and Fresno, while the main office at Sacramento has recently moved into a new building especially constructed for it The Division of Motor Vehicles now has the finest equipped department in the United States Its superintendent deserves especial commendation.

STATE REAL ESTATE DEPARTMENT.

By the application of economy and efficiency, the proportion of revenue collected by the Real Estate Commission that has been required to run the department has been decreased from seventy-two per cent to fifty-four per cent during the past four years During this period a total of $427 344 has reverted to the general fund, being a saving to the State through economy and efficiency practiced in this department. The average cost per license issued has been reduced from $3 28 to $2 The total number of licenses issued has increased from 92,050 during the four-year period prior to 1923 to 246,771

A saving to the State has been accomplished despite the material increase in the work of the department. The bonding and educational features of the Real Estate Act added in 1923, has increased the work of the department twenty-five per cent while the number of adjustments made on complaints filed has increased fifty per cent. The effective operation of the department has increased one hundred and fifty per cent with an actual reduction in the cost of maintenance of at least twenty per cent. The surplus of collections over expenses shows that the fees can be decreased The two commissioners serving under me have been faithful in the discharge of their duties.

MEDICAL EXAMINERS.

In no other state has there been so much activity in connection with the prosecution of illegal medical practitioners as in California. A large number of physicians found guilty of criminal practice have had their licenses revoked, and this exceptional record of law enforcement has been accomplished with a reduction in cost. The members of this board, all of whom have been appointed by me, have shown particular care in licensing practitioners with the result that the standard of the medical profession in California is now as high as any state in the Union. In 1922 the cost of maintaining this department was $68,971, while in 1925 the cost had been reduced to $43,653. The activity of the board in investigating and prosecuting holders of fake medical diplomas has been a protection to the people and to the medical profession. The diploma mill industry has been stopped.

DENTAL EXAMINERS.

The work of the State Board of Dental Examiners has been greatly increased during the past four-year period due to an influx of dentists from other states and increased enrollment in the dental colleges of this State.

There are at present 4980 practicing dentists in California, of which number approximately 1800 were licensed during the past four years. In addition to the work of licensing dentists, the board has been very active in maintaining the ethics of the profession and prosecuting violators of the law.

Through the application of the principles of economy and efficiency, the surplus in the dentistry fund has increased from $4,316 to $23,212. Dentists have been appointed of the highest skill and integrity to the board, which has been freed from political domination.

STATE BOARD OF PHARMACY.

A saving of $77,422 is shown by the records of the State Board of Pharmacy during the past four years. The surplus of this department during the same period increased from $22,421 to $132,008. The efficiency of the board has been greatly increased by the elimination of political control and by placing on the board practical pharmacists with high ideals and a desire for public service.

The membership on the board has been distributed throughout the State so that places other than the two largest centers of population now have representation on the board. The men appointed by me have striven to protect the public as well as the profession of pharmacy.

CHIROPRACTIC EXAMINERS.

The Board of Chiropractic Examiners was created by initiative during my term of office. In the appointment of the members of this board I have endeavored to carry out the will of the voters by selecting bona fide chiropractors rather than practitioners who use other means of treating disease. The board has carried on its work honestly and in a businesslike way, although greatly hampered by malicious litigation. The expenditures during the seventy-sixth and seventy-seventh fiscal years have amounted to $30,013 which have been nearly covered by fees collected.

BOARD OF AGRICULTURE.

The members of the State Agricultural Board have charge of the State fair at Sacramento and that the fair in September, 1926, was the greatest in the history of the State is a testimonial to the ability of the present board. I have been able to secure men of the highest standing and character and representative of agricultural interests from all parts of the State to accept appointments on this board and serve without compensation. A grandstand was erected last year which is one of the finest in the country and added materially to the attendance at the fair. The State fair is of particular importance to the State as it gives to the people a better understanding of the resources of California. The fair is conducted on a business basis and for the benefit of agricultural and livestock interests. The secretary is to be commended for his faithful and intelligent service.

MINING BUREAU.

Reduction of expenses has been effected in the State Mining Bureau and at the same time the highest efficiency has been maintained. During the four years preceding my administration, the Mining Department cost the state $275,998 and the cost for the past four years has been only $194,264. A reduction in expenses has also been effected in the Oil Department of the Mining Bureau despite the tremendous increase in oil production during the past four years. In 1919 the oil production was $53,219,000. In 1925 the value of oil produced aggregated $330,000,000 and the minerals amounted to $100,000,000. Under a law signed by me in 1925, the practice of "high grading" has greatly checked.

STATE PRINTING OFFICE

During my administration this department has been conducted with the highest skill and efficiency with great saving to the State for printing. The printing of school books has proved an entire success and the estimated saving during the past four years on this item alone is $1,137,148. Notwithstanding the fact that the cost of paper, labor and general overhead expenses has increased, the cost of manufacturing school textbooks has been reduced six per cent as compared with previous cost. The two superintendents who have served during my administration have managed the great printing plant with efficiency and ability. All of the employees are on a civil service basis and are judged upon the merit system.

IMMIGRATION AND HOUSING COMMISSION

For the past three and one-half years the Immigration and Housing Commission has expended $224,726 as compared with $251,113 expended for a like period previously. This reduction has been made, despite increased work, through the application of businesslike principles A reduction of $23,394 in administrative costs alone was realized. The problems have been met and the work taken care of without increase in the force through cooperation with local officers and other departments of State government. Some of the best citizens in California have served on this commission faithfully and without compensation The commission has done a constructive and humane work

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA.

As president of the Board of Regents, I have taken a personal interest in the affairs of the State university and have attended regularly every meeting of the board, something never done before by an executive of this State

The University of California has advanced more during the past four years than during any similar period in its history The present average student attendance in the university in all its parts widely distributed over the State, is approximately 16,500 or about 4000 larger than any other state university. The standards of scholarship within the university have been decidedly raised so that its standing as an institution of learning is one of the highest in the world The citizens of California may well be proud of their State university.

Plans have been developed and brought to fruition for the relocation of the Southern Branch of the University of California and the erection of new buildings at a beautiful site near Beverly Hills. The Southern Branch will be entirely divorced from the Teachers College, which will remain on Western avenue in Los Angeles city.

During the past four years 9658 degrees have been conferred by the authority of the Regents of the University Notable achievements in research have been attained The work of the University Extension Division has continued to grow with the result that a greater number of the adults of the State have been benefited. The Agricultural Extension Service with resulting benefit to nearly one-half million men and women in the agricultural areas of the state has been extended

During the past four years a number of new buildings have been erected and completed at the university These include the Memorial Stadium, the Students Union, Le Conte Hall, Haviland Hall and Hesse Hall Of these the Memorial Stadium and the Students Union have been paid for completely from private funds and five-sevenths of the cost of Haviland Hall has been met by the Haviland bequest.

Bonds voted by the citizens of California at the last election will make available $3,000,000 for buildings on the new campus at the Southern Branch and $3,000,000 for the replacement of temporary wooden buildings on the Berkeley campus.

I have appointed to the Board of Regents men of the highest standing and character, who have rendered signal service to the cause of education.

STATE HARBOR AT SAN FRANCISCO.

The Board of State Harbor Commissioners has charge of the State property at the waterfront of San Francisco This department has never been handled in as efficient and economical a manner and the commissioners have been particularly vigilant in serving the interests of the harbor.

When I took office, it was found that the piers, warehouses and buildings were in great need of repair and this necessitated a large expenditure for permanent improvements to protect the State property A great many important improvements have been made. Notably, the overhead crossing for passengers from the Ferry Building across The Embarcadero to the foot of Market Street, the subway under the street car lines in front of the Ferry Building for vehicular traffic, the reflooring of the reception rooms of the Ferry Building with California marble and many other notable improvements for the convenience of the public and for the efficiency of the harbor.

The State Harbor is now on an absolutely business basis and employes are selected from the Civil Service list and maintained because of their merits.

DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WELFARE

The coordination of the State Department of Public Welfare and the State Bureau of Children's Aid is an illustration of efficient management. These two departments were supervising orphanages, following up the adoption of children, inspecting maternity wards, county hospitals, jails and poorhouses; studying plans of public buildings for State and county charges; and to these duties the last Legislature added the inspection of homes for the aged During the last four years nearly six million dollars has been disbursed by the State through the Bureau of Children's Aid for the welfare of widows and orphans and 14,000 children are now receiving assistance. The work has greatly increased, but the cost of operating the two departments has been greatly reduced. The accountant's report shows that, notwithstanding the growth of the work and the increased number of beneficiaries, the coordination of these two departments under one executive secretary effected a saving of $52,314.36 during the last biennium. The members of this board are doing a public service freely and are deserving of credit. The secretary and other officers are efficient and work earnestly for the public good.

INDUSTRIAL WELFARE COMMISSION.

The minimum wage law of California has been administered efficiently and at a decrease of thirty-four per cent in the cost of maintaining the Industrial Welfare Commission.

In May, 1923, seven and four-tenths per cent of the women and minors in the mercantile, laundry and manufacturing industries were receiving wages under sixteen dollars per week. In 1925, only five and four-tenths per cent of the women and minors in these industries received wages under the minimum wage schedule. Not only has the welfare of female and minor employees been improved, but general conditions have been bettered through an educational program of the commission.

There has been no attempt in California to test the constitutionality of the minimum wage law, as was feared following an adverse decision of the United States Supreme Court in April, 1923. This result was largely due to the work of the Industrial Welfare Commission and the cooperation of employers.

STATE ATHLETIC COMMISSION.

The State Athletic Commission was created by an initiative measure, and although I am not personally a follower of the so-called sport of boxing, I endeavored to select men for the commission who would see that boxing was handled in an honest manner and at the same time give full effect to the will of the people as expressed through their vote. The total attendance at boxing contests during this period up to November 30, 1926, was 3,218,446, and the sum of $4,118,841 was actually paid in box office receipts to see pugilistic contests. The administration of the Athletic Commission cost the State only approximately one-half of the limit fixed by the law, or in the neighborhood of twenty-two thousand five hundred dollars per year. The State has realized in fees approximately two hundred forty thousand dollars that can be used toward the erection of buildings at the Veterans' Home at Yountville as soon as action is taken by the Legislature making the necessary appropriation. The commissioners and the secretary have been faithful, honest and efficient.

STATE RECLAMATION BOARD.

An excellent example of what can be accomplished by the application of business principles and the practice of economy is exemplified in the records of the State Reclamation Board. The operating costs of the department have been reduced from twelve per cent to less than five per cent and the average decrease in all of the expenses of the board has been fifty-three per cent. Despite this strict practice of economy, the work of the commission has gone forward and much has been accomplished. The board has worked out a plan for the more equitable distribution of costs between the State, the federal government and local interests. The members of the board deserve great credit for their intelligent and efficient services to the people of the Sacramento and San Joaquin reclamation districts.

LAND SETTLEMENT BOARD.

Prior to my term of office the administration of the State Land Settlement Board was almost a public disgrace. Officials of the State of California had resorted to the worst practices of misrepresentation in connection with the sale of land and the taxpayers were forced to bear the burden of unwarranted administrative costs. During my term, the overhead expenses of the Delhi Land Settlement were reduced from $38,369 to $11,500 per year, and at the Durham Land Settlement the administration cost was reduced from $8,000 to $3,100. By the elimination of private automobiles for administration heads, a saving of $3,600 per year was effected. In all, a reduction of $179,156 was brought about through the application of plain businesslike principles to the land settlement operations. Moreover, land sales during my term, have been made to persons most fitted to undertake agricultural work, thus eliminating the necessity of foreclosure.

A practical man of experience was put in charge of land settlement by me. It was necessary at the 1925 session of the Legislature to appropriate $600,000 for relief, of which $350,000 was used to pay the interest due the State from settlers on the loans made and $250,000 to carry on the financing of the settlement and to make loans to settlers which had been promised by the former administration. In addition to this appropriation of $600,000 an act was approved whereby interest charges to the settlers were rebated from July 1, 1925, to July 1, 1930. The small colony at Durham has been in a measure successful. The experience at Delhi and Durham shows that State colonization is not successful. The plan of the Veterans' Welfare Board has been to distribute land purchases throughout the State and this has proved successful.

STATE LIBRARY

During the past three fiscal years, the cost of maintaining the State Library has been $326,768, as against $439,478 during the preceding three fiscal years. The circulation of books reached the highest point in the history of the State, 46,800 volumes being circulated in the various counties. The total appropriations for the State Library during the four fiscal years ending June 30, 1927, have been $456,700, as compared with $565,900 for the preceding four years. Under the policy followed by the State Library, every citizen through his local branch has access to the literary and scientific works in the State Library, so that the small country and village branch libraries are put on equal footing with the large libraries in the metropolitan cities The State Library leads the world in the completeness of its service. Forty-six of the fifty-eight counties are associated with the State Library. The library is scientifically managed and reflects great credit upon the able and efficient librarian.

PUBLIC EDUCATION

Education is one of the most important functions of any government. The taxpayers of the State of California have been liberal in sustaining educational institutions. The State maintains the university with its various departments, several teachers colleges, a school for the deaf and blind and an industrial school. It also acts as a collecting agency and turns many millions of dollars over to the various school districts of the state.

I have taken a deep interest in all educational affairs, have fostered the interests of the university, and have approved appropriations for new buildings, additional lands and improvements at the teachers colleges amounting to $521,000 in excess of those provided for during the administration of my predecessor, and have provided liberally for their maintenance Generous provision has been made for the school for the deaf and blind while the kindergartens, elementary and high schools have had my earnest support. Men and women of the highest integrity and business ability have been appointed to membership on the State Board of Education The total expenditure for state educational purposes for the four fiscal years ending June 30, 1923, was $73,096,932, while during the four fiscal years of my administration appropriations reached the great sum of $115,714,815. This is an increase of $42,617,872 or more than fifty-eight per cent

Under the present constitutional provisions, the Governor and the Legislature are in a large measure powerless to prevent this rapid increase in the cost of education. I can not refrain from repeating the warning given in my 1925 message, that the present rate of increase in the cost of education in California will soon absorb all the revenues of the State and create a burden too heavy for the taxpayers to carry

The people of California are willing to contribute liberally to educational needs but they insist that their money be expended wisely and economically. The trustees elected in the various school districts should have larger powers over the financial affairs of the districts. Educators can be safely trusted with the education of the coming citizens of the State, but business men should control expenditures This policy has worked well in university affairs and would result in a great saving if applied to the common schools. Such economy would result in better schools and better education for the rising generation.

CONCLUSION.

I appreciate better than anyone the heavy load of official responsibility which my successor will in a few minutes assume, and extend to him my best wishes It is with pleasure that I lay down the heavy burdens of this great office Only with the aid and guidance of Divine Providence have I been able to carry on the work.

The people of California have my sincere thanks for the great confidence they have reposed in me and for the high offices they have given me by their votes. As a private citizen, I will labor to repay, in a measure, the debt I owe to the people.

In closing, I wish to thank the Senators and Assemblymen for their courtesies and the State officers for their assistance during the past four years. In my trip around the world in the good ship "California," I will remember my thousands of friends in California with pleasure and gratitude It is good to be free.

Respectfully submitted.

FRIEND WM. RICHARDSON, Governor.

INTRODUCTION OF LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR BURON R. FITTS

Hon. Edgar C. Levey, Speaker of the Assembly, addressed the Joint Convention as follows:

It is a profound privilege to rise, on this auspicious occasion, for the purpose of making the introductory remarks to the address which will be delivered to you by the incoming Lieutenant Governor.

A few years ago, this nation was happily engaged in peaceful pursuits. Suddenly the call to arms was heard and the brain and brawn of the land responded. Among the youth who answered, was a young man, strong, stalwart, firm in body and in his very prime With his fellows, he crossed the ocean, and, as lieutenant in the Ninety-first Division of the American Army, he led his troops in combat on the battlefields of France.

When the conflict ended, he returned to the land of his birth, scarred in body but still unmarred in spirit. His loyalty to his flag continued to call him to public service and led him to an honorable career as Assistant District Attorney of Los Angeles County. Not satisfied to perform these duties alone, he gave himself to the cause of his fellows who, like him, had worn the uniform for the preservation of democracy. He became Commander of the Department of California of the American Legion and, in this capacity, labored hard and well for his buddies and his colleagues.

Finally, true recognition was granted him and, by what is said to have been the largest vote ever given a candidate for public office in California, he was chosen, by a poll of over 800,000 of his constituents, to become the second highest executive officer in this commonwealth. He needs no introduction—I simply present to you the Lieutenant Governor of California, the Honorable Buron R. Fitts.

Lieutenant Governor Buron R Fitts then addressed the Joint Convention.

"Star Spangled Banner."

Benediction by Rev. Bryant Wilson, Chaplain of the Senate.

SPECIAL ORDER.

The hour of 11 o'clock a.m. having arrived, the special order heretofore set to pay suitable tribute to the memory of the late Honorable Alfred C. Murray, a member of the Assembly for the forty-seventh session of the Legislature, was taken up.

Eulogistic addresses were delivered by the following members of the Assembly:

BY HON. FRANK L. COOMBS OF NAPA.

Honorable Alfred C. Murray was a member of the Legislature of the State of California in the forty-sixth session, from the Seventy-seventh Assembly District, and was re-elected at the last election as a member of the present House.

He was born in Woodland, Yolo County, thirty-seven years ago and, with his family, was on his way to his native place in order to spend the holidays with his parents amid the scenes of his childhood.

He was coming home with the triumph of a high ambition, so far fulfilled and gratified, and with the exaltation arising from the knowledge that those who were anxiously waiting to welcome his coming would, more than all the world beside, share the glories of his success.

Upon his journey he met with the accident which caused the death of himself, his wife and his two children.

A rendezvous with death; not that which he would have chosen, with his breast to the foe upon some battle front in the war in which he had enlisted, but, in the peaceful anticipation of pleasure to come, the ancient enemy overtook him unawares.

Alfred had qualities that were rare; such as might inspire the closest associations of friendships, while in public life he had the audacity of moral courage and an innate love of truth. The world was richer with his presence, it is poorer with his loss.

Whatever our age; whatever of life's paths we have trod; with whatever of conflicts we have striven; whatever there has been of world philosophies; whatever out of contemplation we have learned—yet we have not conquered. There still remains the unfathonable, the inscrutable—

There is the door to which we have no key,
There is the veil through which we can not see.

Death is still the great adventure; we stand under the stars when meditation is deep upon us and imagine the zone reaches to some distant bourn. We summon in review the shades of those who have gone. We see our friend upon some distant shore and, looking again, the surf and the spray; the stream of life and the storm of action. Is he with his comrades in arms, those who fell in the iron years that made death and ashes? Does he hear again the dying echoes of the bugle or the beat of the faroff drum? To these questions life has made its appeal through the interminable ages, and still the eternal mystery. It were better so. The mystery of the future is a part of what is solemn in life. It allures the mind to great heights of contemplation, onward and upward to an attainment beyond the present. Without these mysteries, these unrealized ideals, all ambition to an end would be lost. God is wise in not disclosing what lies in the eternal years.

Farewell, brave friend, we will meet again, for who shall know
Which of us will be the first to go,
Who will be the first to breast the swelling tide
And step with thee upon the other side?

BY HON. BYRON J. WALTERS OF SAN DIEGO.

MR. SPEAKER: I desire to make a few remarks upon this most solemn occasion, as the seat-mate of Alfred Murray.

During the long days and months of the 1925 session of this Assembly we sat side by side and I came to know Alfred Murray perhaps more intimately than any other member of this body.

May I state for you some of the high points in the history of his life: He was born in Woodland, California, just a few miles from this place, thirty-seven years ago; he was graduated in law from Stanford University; practiced in Woodland for a time, went away into the great World War and at the time of his sudden passing was practicing law in Riverside, California. He was married and had two fine young sons. He was president of the Exchange Club of Riverside, and was former Post Adjutant of Riverside Post, American Legion and trustee of the First Baptist Church of Riverside, and otherwise very active and energetic in matters civic. He was ever at the forefront where welfare and comfort of his fellow citizens were involved.

He was elected to this Assembly for the first time in 1925 from the seventy-seventh district, Riverside, and was re-elected without opposition to the present session of this Legislature. He was on his way to the present session of this Legislature, together with Mrs. Murray and his two babies, when he was suddenly taken away with his wife and eldest son. We shall miss Mrs. Murray as we do Alfred. She sat between us many times here at this seat and always displayed so much interest in Alfred's welfare, as a good wife does. His interests were her interests.

But I am not sad today—rather, I am joyful. God, in his all knowing wisdom has taken him from us. The reason we cannot know. I knew Alfred Murray and knew him to be a man, and I knew him as a true friend We looked through the same glasses in several respects. We had together the viewpoint of ex-service men. We were both members of the National Exchange Club, a great organization banded together for the good of men. More than this, we viewed life together as young men.

My joy is this: I know that Alfred Murray so lived on earth that when God took him away he took him to that fine reward which He has promised—a reward for a life of service—a reward concerning which we need have no question.

BY HON. BRADFORD S. CRITTENDEN OF TRACY.

We were greatly shocked at the tragic death of our former colleague in the Assembly and his wife and child. It has cast a gloom over this body at this time which is deeply felt by every former member of the session of 1925.

He was always very active in the performance of his duties here. His youth, pleasing ways, fine appearance and lofty purposes made him a perfect example of young American manhood. All of these qualities made him very influential in all matters in which he participated. His kind ways made him loved by all.

Time only can heal the sorrow we all suffer because of his absence. His influence will last forever and we will be a little better men and women for having met him.

BY HON ISAAC JONES OF SAN BERNARDINO.

I think perhaps I was as close to Al Murray as any member of this body. I knew his ambitions and ideals. No word that I may speak, no sentiment that I may utter is of moment or importance to impress your minds with the memory of our departed member.

To those of you who were acquainted with him, his splendid character, his honesty of purpose, his courteous manner and his sincere desire to serve, have, I am sure, impressed on your minds a monument to his memory that will endure as long as reason shall linger.

Alfred C. Murray was a native son of California. He loved every inch of the soil of his State, from the Oregon boundary to San Diego, from Arizona and Nevada to the sea. He was well fitted to serve his State and county and his earnest wish was to perform fully the duties of a loyal citizen.

He may, in fact, be said to have died in the service of the State. It was his intention to arrive at Sacramento some little time before the session convened that he might more fully inform himself upon certain matters that he wished to present to this body for its consideration, and it was on the trip north that he met his death.

I know something of his aspirations and his desires in the position of a public servant. He looked upon his position of Assemblyman as demanding from him the best that he could deliver in service to the State. He believed it was just as important that he deliver a full measure of service to the State as it was necessary that he deliver faithful service to a client who had employed him to serve. He looked upon himself as an agent for the State of California and it was his opinion that it was just as incumbent upon him to deliver an honest account of his agency for the State as it was important that he give an honest account to any other principal whose agent he was.

He was tolerant and sympathetic with the views and opinions of others; he was absolutely unyielding when he had taken a position for what he believed to be right.

It matters little what we do or what we say here today, unless we gather an inspiration and incentive from the character and example of Al Murray, that will cause us to give to the State he loved something of the unselfish service performed by him in the interests and for the welfare of California.

BY HON. MISS ELEANOR MILLER OF PASADENA.

Mr. Murray was a man of sterling character, of fine integrity of soul; a man who thoroughly appreciated the responsibility of public office and one who endeavored to improve every opportunity for service by allying himself with every righteous cause.

We deplore his loss, but we remember with joy his friendship and are inspired by his devotion to duty and his unflagging zeal.

With those who loved and honored him we are sure that

"Love will dream, and Faith will trust,
(Since He who knows our need is just)
That somehow, somewhere, meet we must.
Alas for him who never sees
The stars shine through his cypress-trees!
Who, hopeless, lays his dead away,
Nor looks to see the breaking day
Across the mournful marbles play!
Who hath not learned, in hours of faith,
The truth to flesh and sense unknown,
That Life is ever lord of Death
And Love can never lose its own?"

BY HON. EDGAR C. LEVEY, SPEAKER OF THE ASSEMBLY.

In closing these ceremonies, it is fitting for the Speaker to say a few words on behalf of the general membership of the Assembly in connection with the passing of our member, the Honorable Alfred C. Murray of Riverside County. Those of us who had the privilege of knowing him during the last session found him to be an honest worker and one who was particularly attentive to the interests of his constituents and of the people of the entire State. He was kindly and likeable in his every conduct and action and endeared himself to his fellow-members of this House. His unexpected passing, coming as it did just previous to the convening of this session, has left a void in this body which will surely be remembered even after adjournment; however, there is consolation in the fact that while the body is interred, yet the spirit remains. The poet has truly said:

"Life is real, life is earnest,
And the grave is not its goal;
Dust thou art, to dust returnest,
Was not spoken of the Soul."

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The following message from the Governor was received and ordered printed in the Journal:

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, STATE OF CALIFORNIA,
SACRAMENTO, January 6, 1927.

To the Senate and Assembly of the State of California.

The State of California is vitally concerned with the development of the lower Colorado River. A comprehensive plan for its development has been worked out by federal agencies. This contemplates what is known as the Boulder Canyon project and is authorized by the Swing-Johnson bill now pending in the Congress of the United States. This bill is before both houses of Congress in almost identical form and has received favorable committee action.

The State as such should have some official representation at Washington to aid and assist the State's representatives in the Senate and the House in forwarding this vitally important legislation. I therefore respectfully ask your authorization to designate three or more citizens of California to represent the State in this respect.

Again it is desirable that a tri-state compact or agreement between the states of Arizona, California and Nevada respecting the use of the waters of the Colorado River be reached. A legislative committee has been working faithfully to this end. As yet it has not been possible to arrive at a completely satisfactory agreement. Negotiations looking to such a tri-state agreement should be carried on without delay. I therefore urge prompt action to provide an appropriate board or committee to represent the State in carrying on these negotiations with representatives of the states of Arizona and Nevada.

Respectfully submitted.

C. C. YOUNG, Governor.

INTRODUCTION OF BILL—(OUT OF ORDER).

The committee shall examine bills referred to it with particular reference to the question as to whether there is already any bill in either House of the same character which might be amended to effect the results sought, and generally as to the advisability of introducing the measure.

The committee shall report upon each bill so referred to it on the same legislative day. The report shall be made at the conclusion of the consideration of the Senate Special File

The committee may, in its discretion, incorporate more than one bill in the resolution to grant leave to introduce, incorporating in the resolution the title of each bill in full, and the roll shall be called upon the adoption of the resolution and no resolution to introduce any such bill shall be adopted without the consent of three-fourths of the members of the Assembly

If a division of the question is demanded upon the introduction of any particular bill, the division shall be allowed, and the roll called separately upon the bill. Bills to Be Reported Back to Committees.

39. All committees shall act upon bills, constitutional amendments and resolutions referred to them as soon as practicable, and when acted upon each bill shall be reported back to the Assembly forthwith, and the chairman of each committee is charged with the observance of this rule; provided that the Assembly may at any time, by a majority vote of all its members, recall a bill, constitutional amendment or resolution from any committee.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSION FOR THE REFORM OF CRIMINAL PROCEDURE, TO THE LEGISLATURE.

To the Honorable, the Legislature of the State of California.

The Commission for the Reform of Criminal Procedure created by your honorable body in 1925 (Statutes of 1925, page 622), presents its report. By the act creating said Commission, your honorable body directed this Commission,

> "To make a study of the methods of criminal procedure and to recommend to the legislature of the State of California, which will convene in the year 1927, such new system of criminal procedure or such amendments to the present system as will in its opinion tend to provide for this State the most efficient system for the swift and certain administration of criminal justice."

Pursuant to your mandate, the Commission has made the study directed and herewith submits a number of recommendations, all designed to secure an efficient system for the swift and certain administration of justice.

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT.

The studies of your Commission have shown that the amount of crime in this State, and indeed throughout the United States, is appalling. The first and most fundamental duty of every state is to insure the safety of the lives, homes and property of its citizens. It is sad, but true, that this primary duty is being performed worse throughout the United States, including the State of California, than in any other civilized country in the world The prevalence of crime, particularly crimes of violence, in this country is simply staggering Human life has become so cheap, disregard for it so great, that we have a homicide rate fifty times as high as that of England. Robberies at the point of a gun of citizens on the streets, of banks, stores, oil stations and like institutions, are of daily occurrence. No one's home is safe, for gangs of burglars always armed and ready to kill break into every habitation from the mansion to the humblest dwelling, and in our cities and towns, every morning sees the report of a long list of burglaries frequently accompanied by most atrocious acts of violence. Gangs of gunmen ply their profession of killing for profit or pleasure. In broad daylight and in the streets of our greatest cities, it is necessary to use armored cars protected by men armed to the teeth—veritable engines of war—to transport money or valuables. Even to move the United States mail, it has become necessary to call upon the armed forces of the United States designed to repel foreign enemies and to use armed marines acting under orders "Shoot to kill," in order that this function of our national government may be carried on. Whether we realize it or not, we have a state of war, all the forces of organized crime making war upon the law-abiding citizenry of our country. Crime has become an organized business. It operates throughout the length and breadth of the land. It pays no attention to such artificial boundaries as city lines, county lines or state lines. It makes use of every modern invention, the high-powered automobile, the airplane, the automatic pistol, the machine gun Crime is anti-social It undermines the very foundations of the entire social structure. Either society must control and destroy organized crime, or organized crime will control and destroy society.

There are probably a number of causes which contribute to the vast amount of crime. One of the main contributing causes, if not indeed the chief one, undoubtedly is the gross inadequacy and inefficiency of our system of criminal procedure to meet the present day conditions In dealing with the crime situation, as it exists today, we are dealing with a peculiarly twentieth century problem. Our system of criminal procedure is essentially a seventeenth and eighteenth century system A procedure that may have been quite adequate to meet the conditions of those centuries is utterly inadequate in the present century. It is slow, cumbersome archaic, inefficient. It should be swift, certain, modern and highly efficient. The present system, with its many opportunities for delay, with all the loopholes which it offers for the escape of the guilty, can almost be said to be an encouragement to crime. A swift, certain and efficient system, on the other hand, will be a most real and potent deterrent to crime. The entire history of criminal jurisprudence proves the truth of these observations.

The reasons for the defects in our present system of criminal procedure are mainly historical. The system grew up in England. It grew up at a time when criminal prosecutions very frequently were crown persecutions for political offenses. Another strong contributing factor in the development of the system was the fact that punishment for crime, even relatively trivial crimes, was hanging, and the rights given to defendants were very few As a result of these conditions, there was gradually evolved a series of technical rules deliberately designed to give protection to the defendant, irrespective of whether he was guilty or innocent of the crime charged Many of the rules were deliberately designed to prevent the proceedings from arriving at the truth. We have inherited, to a large degree, this system of rules They may have been proper enough for the times and conditions under which they were evolved. They have no application in this day or to the conditions of today England, where these rules grew up, discarded them and adopted a modern system of procedure seventy-five years ago The result was a great and immediate reduction of the amount of crime. The old system was designed primarily for the protection of the defendant. It ignored almost entirely the rights of the public. The new system must protect all legitimate rights of a defendant, but at the same time must insure and protect, so far as possible, the great body of law-abiding citizens, the public. In the recommendations submitted herewith, great care has been taken not to infringe any right of a defendant At the same time it has been constantly borne in mind that the safety of the great body of law-abiding citizens must also be conserved

The great objective of any judicial proceeding should be to arrive at the truth In criminal proceedings, particularly, the truth should be reached with swiftness and certainty. In general, it may be stated that those provisions which tend to aid courts and juries in arriving at the truth are good, conversely that those which tend to prevent or make more difficult the arrival at the truth are bad. Likewise far too little attention has been paid heretofore to the great importance of prompt and speedy hearings in criminal matters. This is of great importance from two aspects First, as making it much more likely that the truth will be reached; second, in its deterrent effect upon the commission of other crime. The more promptly a case can be heard the more likely it is that a true verdict will be reached.

Indeed when a matter of this kind is delayed, the chances of a miscarriage of justice increase probably not merely in arithmetical, but almost, if not quite, in geometrical ratio. Witnesses scatter, their memory becomes dimmed, they are subject to influence, and a host of other things arise that render likely a miscarriage of justice. Delay has been one of the greatest weaknesses in our criminal procedure and one of the greatest shields of the guilty.

Likewise, delay in the administration of criminal justice greatly weakens its deterrent effect, which is one of the great objectives of the criminal law. Punishment administered promptly after the commission of the crime, while the memory of that crime is still fresh in the minds of the public, brings forcibly to the attention of all the fact that punishment does follow crime. This tends strongly to deter the commission of other crimes. When punishment does not follow promptly after the crime, a very large percentage of this deterrent effect is lost. Every consideration, therefore, proves the correctness and wisdom of the mandate of your honorable body that the criminal law should be made to function with swiftness and certainty. Your mandate has at all times been foremost in the minds of the Commission. The system which we are recommending has this as its objective. That in administering criminal justice the proceedings shall arrive at the truth and do so with the greatest simplicity, swiftness and certainty.

Much of the foregoing object can be accomplished by direct enactments of your honorable body. Certain parts of it, however, can only be accomplished by amendments to the constitution. The Commission, therefore, recommends the adoption of certain statutory enactments and that your honorable body submit to the people of this State for their consideration and action at the next general election certain constitutional amendments. Bills to carry out these recommendations have been prepared and are submitted concurrently with this report. The statutory enactments recommended will first be presented.

GENERAL OUTLINE

It seems advisable to submit a general statement of some of the principal statutory enactments recommended

SWIFTNESS.

There are three primary recommendations on this point:

First—Promptness in filing information and in proceedings prior to trial;

Second—Promptness in bringing the case to trial,

Third—Promptness in the hearing of the appeal

Preliminarily, the Commission recommends the adoption, as section 681*a* of the Penal Code, which is the first section dealing with the matter of criminal procedure, a statute substantially as follows:

> Sec. 681*a*. The welfare of the people of the State of California requires that all proceedings in criminal cases shall be heard and determined at the earliest possible time. It shall be the duty of all courts and judicial officers and of all district attorneys to expedite the hearing and determination of all such cases and proceedings to the greatest degree that is consistent with the ends of justice

The purpose of this statute is self-evident. It declares, as the public policy of this State, a principle as to which we believe there can be no dispute, and imposes a mandate upon all courts, judicial officers, and district attorneys, which should permeate the entire conduct of criminal proceedings with a spirit of promptness and efficiency.

TIME FOR FILING INFORMATION.

The Commission next recommends that section 809 of the Penal Code be amended to require district attorneys to file the information within fifteen days (instead of thirty days, as is now the law) after a defendant has been committed by a magistrate. This seems to be ample time for the district attorney and is also to the advantage of those defendants who for any reason are unable to secure their release on bail. It is further recommended that this section expressly permit the information to charge either the crime named in the order of commitment or any offense shown by the evidence taken before the magistrate. This will save time and avoid uncertainty and vexatious delays in cases where for any reason the order of the committing magistrate does not correctly designate the crime shown by the evidence.

TIME FOR TRIAL.

To insure cases being brought on for trial promptly, the Commission is recommending the enactment of a new section of the Penal Code to be known as section 1050, providing as follows:

> Sec. 1050 (new). The court shall set all criminal cases for trial for a date not later than thirty days after the date of entry of the plea of the defendant. No continuance of the trial shall be granted except upon affirmative proof in open court, upon reasonable notice, that the ends of justice require a continuance. No continuance shall be granted for any longer time than it is affirmatively proved the ends of justice require. Whenever any continuance is granted, the court shall enter in its minutes the facts proved which require the continuance. Criminal cases shall be given precedence over civil matters and proceedings. If any court is unable to hear all criminal cases pending before it within thirty days after the respective defendants have entered their pleas, it must immediately notify the chairman of the Judicial Council.

The purpose of this section is self-evident. Perhaps the greatest delay in the past has been in bringing causes on for trial. As already noted, the sooner they can be brought to trial the greater the likelihood of a true verdict being reached. Practically all cases can be brought to trial with fairness to all parties within thirty days after defendant's plea is entered. To guard against injustice in the exceptional case, the court is given power to grant a continuance where it is affirmatively proved that the ends of justice require it, but only for such time as it is proved that the ends of justice require. The facts proved which require the continuance should be entered in the minutes for the sake of the record. The proposed statute also gives criminal cases precedence over civil matters. It is believed there can be no dissent from this proposition. The welfare of the entire public is involved in the prompt determination of criminal matters to a far greater degree than in civil matters. It is finally recommended that if a court for any reason can not hear all criminal matters pending before it within thirty days it report that fact to the chairman of the Judicial Council, to the end that additional judges may be assigned to assist in clearing the over-crowded calendar. Under our present procedure delays extending through many months are not uncommon.

TIME FOR HEARING APPEALS

It is recommended that the statute be amended to provide that all appeals in criminal matters shall be heard not later than thirty days after the filing of the record on appeal, unless upon affirmative proof to the satisfaction of the court that the ends of justice require a continuance. This statute, if adopted, will mean that in each district the District Court of Appeal should call a criminal calendar once each month and should insure the prompt hearing of practically all appeals in criminal cases. At the present time, it is not infrequent that six, nine, or even twelve months may elapse after the record is filed in the appellate court before a case is brought on for hearing. No delays should be granted on stipulation of counsel, but only where it is proved to the court that the ends of justice require it.

CERTAINTY.

A number of recommendations are submitted designed to make the functioning of our criminal laws more certain. Only a few of the major recommendations will be referred to here.

PLEADINGS.

A more simple form of pleadings, both of indictments and informations, is recommended. It is believed that this will result in doing away almost entirely with technical questions of pleading and with cases being determined upon formalities rather than upon the merits, at the same time fairly advising the defendant of the nature of the case against him. It should save much time now consumed by demurrers, motions and proceedings of a similar character which relate only to questions of pleading.

TRIALS

One of the fundamental effects in our method of trying criminal cases is that to a very considerable extent the trial has been a game between counsel for the people on the one hand and counsel for the defendant on the other, with the judge a mere umpire. We have had far too much of the "sporting element" in our administration of criminal justice. The administration of justice is far too important a matter to be made a game. The "sporting element," indeed all elements of chance, should be removed to the utmost possible extent and the greatest possible certainty of arriving at the truth substituted therefor. To this end statutes are recommended making it not only the right, but the duty, of the trial court to control the conduct of the trial to limit the examination and cross-examination of witnesses, the introduction of evidence and arguments of counsel to relevant and material matters. For the same reason and also for increasing the swiftness of the operation of the law, a statute is recommended making it primarily the duty of the trial court to see that a fair and impartial jury is selected, with the discretionary power of permitting reasonable examination of prospective jurors by counsel. Nowhere in the world is as much time consumed in selecting a jury, with all the consequent expense and delay and congestion of calendars, as we permit in this country. The proposed statute is designed to cure this evil.

CERTAINTY OF PUNISHMENT.

Several recommendations designed to increase the certainty of proper punishment are made in connection with parole, indeterminate sentence and probation laws. These will be more fully explained later.

BAIL.

The present statutes relating to bail have been carefully reviewed and several changes recommended. These will be more fully discussed later in the report.

With this preliminary statement, we will proceed to take up in their order as they appear in the Penal Code the sections which it is recommended should be amended, or repealed, and new sections which it is recommended should be added, stating briefly the reasons for the several recommendations.

STATUTORY CHANGES RECOMMENDED.

(To the Penal Code)

Section 165. This section relates to the crime of bribery. It is proposed to amend it by making it a crime for a member of a common council, board of supervisors, board of trustees, etc., to solicit or offer to receive a bribe. It has been held that under the law as it now stands such a public official who offers to receive, or solicits a bribe is not guilty of any crime.

Section 190. This section relates to murder in the first degree. Under the law as it now stands, it is made the duty of the jury, when a defendant is convicted of murder in the first degree, to fix the penalty either at death or life imprisonment. It has recently been held by the Supreme Court, People vs. Hall, 72 Cal. Dec. 341, that where the jury unanimously agree that defendant is guilty of murder in the first degree, but fail to agree upon the punishment, the judgment of conviction must be reversed and a new trial ordered. To cure this condition, the amendment recommended provides that if the jury finds a defendant guilty of murder in the first degree but can not agree upon the penalty, the court shall determine the same.

Section 484 (new). This is a new section. It consolidates the present crimes known as larceny, embezzlement and obtaining property under false pretenses, into one crime, designated as theft. The basis of all of these crimes as at present known is the unlawful taking or converting to one's own use of the property of another. The crimes are so similar that as the law now stands it is difficult, frequently practically impossible, to tell which crime has been committed in a particular transaction. By combining them all as the crime of theft, this difficulty will be obviated. In addition, the statute is so drawn that hereafter one who obtains real property by false pretenses will be guilty the same as one who obtains personal property by like pretenses. That seems clearly to have been the intention of the Legislature in the statute as it now stands, but it has been held that as the statute is drafted this object is thwarted. (People vs. Folcey, 50 C. A. D. 203.)

Sections 485–490, inclusive. These sections dealing with the distinction of grand larceny, petty larceny, etc., are recommended to be amended to conform to section 485. In section 487 the word "automobile" is added so as to make one who steals an automobile guilty of grand theft without the necessity of proving its value.

Section 490*a* (new). It is recommended that this new section be added, providing that wherever any law or statute of this State mentions larceny, embezzlement, or stealing, it shall hereafter be read and interpreted as if theft were the crime referred to, thus obviating the necessity of amending several sections which relate to the crimes now sought to be consolidated into the new crime of theft.

Section 644. This is the habitual criminal statute. It is recommended that the statute be amended to provide that any person convicted of a felony, who has been twice previously convicted of a felony, either in this State or elsewhere, shall be adjudged an habitual criminal and sentenced to imprisonment for life. The law now is that a person convicted of a felony, who has been twice previously convicted of robbery, burglary, rape with force and violence, arson, or any of them, shall be adjudged an habitual criminal but he is not for that reason alone punished by life imprisonment. The Commission recommends that this distinction, which makes one who has been convicted three times of certain felonies, an habitual criminal, and one who has been convicted the same number of times of other felonies, not an habitual criminal, be abolished, and that all persons who are convicted the third time of any felony be adjudged habitual criminals and sentenced to imprisonment for life. Under the law as it now stands, one might, for example, be convicted three times of murder, or might be convicted of murder, grand larceny and embezzlement or of bribery, extortion and grand larceny and still not be adjudged an habitual criminal. It is submitted that when a person has three times committed and been convicted of crimes of the seriousness of felonies, it is the right and duty of society to put him where the law-abiding citizens of the State shall no longer be subject to his depredations. The habitual criminal is a fact. Law-abiding citizens are entitled to be protected from him.

If your honorable body feel that this provision is too severe, the general purpose may be preserved and at the same time those felonies which it is deemed are not sufficiently serious to come within the rule may be specifically excepted from its operation. If your honorable body should adopt this view such crimes as violation of the Corporate Securities Act, falsification of public records, and certain other minor felonies (if any crime which your honorable body has declared to be felony may be deemed to be a minor crime) may be excepted.

Section 668. It is recommended that this section be amended to include section 644 within its terms.

Section 669. This section relates to the matter of consecutive or concurrent sentences where a person is convicted of two or more offenses. Its meaning may not be entirely clear. At least it has resulted in considerable confusion in actual practice. It is recommended that the section be amended to provide that when any person is convicted of two or more offenses he shall be sentenced separately for each offense and such sentences shall run consecutively. This will carry out the intent of your honorable body as expressed in the present section, is in accord with sound policy, and will remove the confusion that has heretofore existed.

Section 681*a* (new). This being the first section relating specifically to criminal procedure, it is recommended that it declare the policy of the law as follows:

> Sec. 681*a*. The welfare of the people of the State of California requires that all proceedings in criminal cases shall be heard and determined at the earliest possible time. It shall be the duty of all courts and judicial officers and of all district attorneys to expedite the hearing and determination of all such cases and proceedings to the greatest degree that is consistent with the ends of justice.

The purpose of this section is to announce a principle and policy which shall be mandatory upon all judges, judicial officers and district attorneys to expedite criminal cases and proceedings from their inception to their final conclusion. This will vitalize all criminal proceedings with a new spirit. The present section 681 is made section 681*b*.

Section 809. This section requires the district attorney to file his information within fifteen days (instead of thirty days as at present) after defendant has been committed by the magistrate. It also authorizes the information to charge any offense shown by the evidence taken before the magistrate. Its purpose has already been explained.

Section 825. It is recommended that this statute be amended so as to require that a defendant be taken before a magistrate within not more than two days after his arrest, excluding Sundays and holidays. No specific time is fixed by the statute as it now reads.

Section 859. It is recommended that this section be amended to provide that the magistrate may postpone the examination for not less than two, nor more than five days, to permit defendant to send for counsel. No limit of time is fixed in the statute as it now reads.

Section 861. It is recommended that this section which relates to continuances of preliminary examination be amended to provide that such examination may be continued for not more than two weeks in all when consented to by defendant.

Section 869. It is recommended that subdivision five of this section be amended so as to require reporters' transcripts of preliminary examinations to be filed within five days after the close of the examination instead of ten days as at present, and provides that should the reporter fail to file the transcript within said time he shall receive but one-half of the compensation to which he would be otherwise entitled. This is necessary in view of the requirement that the information shall be filed within fifteen days after the order of commitment instead of thirty days as at present. It also provides that a copy of the transcript be served on the defendant at least five days before trial.

Section 915. This section now reads that the grand jury "must" inquire into all public offenses committed or triable within the county and present them to the court by indictment. It is recommended that the word "must" be changed to "may." A large percentage of crimes are now prosecuted by complaint and information and it is impossible for the grand jury to inquire into all public offenses. The statute as it now reads is simply ignored.

Section 925. It is recommended that this statute be amended so as to require that every defendant indicted by a grand jury shall be served with a copy of the evidence given against him before the grand jury. As the statute stands at present, he is only entitled to such transcript if a stenographic reporter is present. Thus some defendants receive a copy of the evidence given against them and some do not. Either all defendants should receive a copy of the evidence or none should receive it. The Commission has resolved the doubt in favor of the defendant and recommends that all defendants have this benefit.

Sections 941–942. It is recommended that these sections be repealed. They relate to the effect of the failure of a grand jury to find an indictment. They seem to serve no useful purpose and might well thwart justice being done in some cases.

Section 951. It is recommended that this section be amended to provide a more simple form of indictment or information. If adopted, an indictment for murder (for example) may be in the following simple form:

> "The grand jury of the county of_____ hereby accuses A. B. of a felony, to wit: Murder, in that on or about the_____ day of_____, 19____, in the county of_____, State of California, he murdered C. D."

This is one of the statutes designed to eliminate technicalities in pleading and to make proceedings more simple.

Section 952. To help accomplish the same purpose it is recommended that this section be amended to conform in spirit and intent with section 951 as amended.

Section 954. It is recommended that this statute, which relates to joinder of offenses in an indictment or information, be enlarged to embrace complaints as well as indictments and informations and amended by changing the clause which now reads, "different statements of the same offense" so that it will read, "different statements of the same transaction." This is somewhat broader and more in line with correct policy and is in accord with what was evidently the intent of the Legislature in adopting the section It is also recommended that a sentence be added reading as follows

A verdict of acquittal of one or more counts shall not be deemed or held to be an acquittal of any other count

It not infrequently happens that where the same transaction is charged in two counts the jury, having convicted of one, feels that it should and it does acquit of the other. Defendant then argues that since the same transaction was involved in both counts the acquittal on one operates as a matter of law as an acquittal on the other. The proposed amendment will obviate such contention.

Section 956. It is recommended that this be amended by adding the words "or of the place where the offense was committed, or of the property involved in its commission" This is in accordance with sound policy and with the evident intent of this statute as it now reads

Section 959. This section, which relates to the sufficiency of indictments and informations, is recommended to be amended to include complaints as well, but to omit sections six and seven for the reason that their subject matter is fully covered by section 952 as proposed to be amended

Section 960. It is recommended that the words in this statute "which does not tend to the prejudice of a substantial right of the defendant upon its merits," be amended to read, "which does not prejudice a substantial right of the defendant upon the merits" This accords with article VI, section 4½ of the constitution. It should also be made to embrace complaints as well as indictments and informations.

Section 969. This section now provides that not more than two previous convictions must be charged in any one indictment or information. It is recommended that it be amended to provide that "all known previous convictions, whether in this State or elsewhere, must be charged." The entire criminal record of a defendant should be before the court in every case. This is particularly necessary, in view of the policy of the habitual criminal act.

Section 969*a* (new). It is recommended that this new statute be adopted designed to cover cases where, after the filing of an indictment or information, it is discovered that defendant has previously been convicted of felonies which were not known at the time of the filing of the indictment or information. If the discovery is made before sentence, the pending indictment or information shall be amended upon order of the court and the case proceed as if such prior convictions had been charged in the original indictment or information. If discovery is not made until after sentence, the statute provides for the filing of a supplemental information. Defendant shall be arraigned thereon and if he admit the prior convictions, shall be resentenced accordingly If he deny them, the issue shall be tried. If the issue be determined in the defendant's favor, the proceeding shall be dismissed. If the issue be determined against him, he shall be resentenced accordingly.

The justice of this provision seems to require no argument. If a defendant has in fact been convicted of one or more previous felonies he ought not escape the consequences thereof simply because he has succeeded in concealing them.

Sections 995 and 995*a*. Section 995 now provides, among other things, that an indictment must be set aside if the names of witnesses who testify before the grand jury are not inserted at the foot of the indictment or endorsed thereon, and that an information must be set aside when not subscribed by the district attorney. To set aside a proceeding for such trivial reasons seems absurd It is proposed that this be amended by eliminating these two provisions and adding a new section, 995*a*, providing that if the names of witnesses are not endorsed on the indictment or the information is not subscribed by the district attorney, the court may order this defect to be cured and the proceedings shall then continue.

Section 1006. It is recommended that this section be amended to require immediate hearings on demurrers unless exceptional cause for a delay be shown.

Section 1008. This section relates to amendments of indictments and informations. It is proposed to change the section to facilitate such amendments and further to provide that the sustaining of a demurrer and consequent dismissal of the charge shall not be a bar to instituting a new prosecution for the same offense It is submitted that a mere defect in pleading in an indictment or information ought not to prevent a trial on the merits if the charge can be stated in such a way as to avoid the defects in pleading.

Section 1011. This section relates to pleas after demurrer disallowed. The changes recommended are to require the plea to be made forthwith and to eliminate the provision that "if defendant does not plead, judgment may be pronounced against him."

Sections 1016, 1017, 1020, 1026 (new), 1026*a* (new), 1151 and 1167. Insanity. These sections are grouped for the reason that they all relate to the matter of the defense of insanity and proceedings based thereon This subject has been one of the most troublesome ones in the administration of American criminal law. The abuses of the present system are great. Under a plea of "not guilty" and without any notice to the people that the defense of insanity will be relied upon, defendant has been able to raise the defense upon the trial of the issue as to whether he committed the offense charged. This lack of notice that such defense would be made has very frequently placed the people at a very great disadvantage. An even more serious fault of the present system is that a defendant, when on trial as to whether he committed the offense, is able to bring into the case the whole matter of his sanity at the time of the offense charged. This enables him to submit to the jury great masses of evidence having no bearing upon the question whether the offense was committed. This is frequently made the basis of appeals to the sympathy or prejudice of the jury and even though this is not done, often introduces great confusion into the trial. It not infrequently happens that a jury finds a defendant not guilty when, in fact, it is convinced that the defendant committed the crime but believes he was insane at the time. Thus persons who are really dangerous to society through suffering from criminal insanity are turned back upon the public and become a menace to society.

After much study and consultation with experts, the Commission has worked out a system which it is believed will eliminate these evils. We recommend the establishment of a state hospital for the criminal insane. This will be more fully considered later in the report. So far as the legal proceedings relating to the matter of insanity are concerned, we recommend that section 1016 be amended to provide that where a defendant intends to raise the defense of insanity at the time the alleged offense was committed, he shall plead "not guilty by reason of insanity." This plea may be joined with any of the present pleas, but one who does not make such plea shall be conclusively deemed to have been sane at the time of the commission of the alleged offense. When defendant pleads "not guilty by reason of insanity" joining with it any other pleas, he shall first be tried in the regular way as to the issue raised by the other pleas without any question of insanity being raised. In such trial, for example, if defendant pleads "not guilty" and also "not guilty by reason of insanity" he shall first be tried in the regular way on the plea of not guilty. If the verdict be in defendant's favor, that, of course, ends the matter. If the verdict be in favor of the people, then the issue as to whether defendant was sane at the time the offense was committed shall be promptly tried, either by the same jury or by a new jury in the discretion of the court. If it be found that defendant was sane, he shall be given the legal sentence. If, on the other hand, it be determined that defendant was insane he shall be committed to the hospital for the criminal insane, or if such hospital be not yet established, to some other state hospital for the insane. Such commitment shall continue until it be judicially adjudicated that defendant's sanity has been restored. A person so committed, after having been in the hospital for one year, may file an application to have it adjudged that his sanity has been restored. If, on such application, the court finds in his favor, he shall be discharged. If the finding be against him, he may, at the expiration of a year, file a new application.

It is believed that this will obviate practically all the difficulties in the present system. The making of the plea "not guilty by reason of insanity" will give to the people notice that they must meet this issue. By having the trial on the merits distinct from the trial as to the issue of sanity, the present great confusion will be avoided, the issue will be clean cut and much time will be saved. If the defendant is found not guilty, all of the time, expense and delay now consumed in trying the issue of insanity will be saved. If defendant be found guilty, the issue of his sanity will be tried without any confusion with other matters. Where it is determined that a defendant is criminally insane, he will be committed to an institution. Thus the public will be saved from the constant menace to which it is subjected when insane persons with criminal tendencies are allowed to roam at large. By being in an institution designed for care and treatment of such persons, the insane person will be saved from many menaces to himself and will be given treatment which may result in the restoration of his sanity. It is believed that the plan recommended is sound, from a legal, practical and humanitarian standpoint.

In accordance with this policy, section 1167 should be repealed, and section 1151 amended by striking out that portion which refers to acquittals because of insanity.

Section 1044. It is recommended that a new section numbered 1044 be enacted to read substantially as follows:

> It shall be the duty of the judge to control all proceedings during the trial, and to limit the introduction of evidence and the argument of counsel to relevant and material matters, with a view to the expeditious and effective ascertainment of the truth regarding the matters involved.

This is probably only declaratory of the power which the courts now have but which is far too little exercised. The purpose of the statute is to make it mandatory upon the court to control its proceedings to the end that justice shall be done. As heretofore noted, one of the great defects in our criminal proceedings has been that it has been too much a game between opposing counsel with the court acting merely as umpire. It has frequently been declared that in our country it is better to have a poor case and a good lawyer than a good case and a poor lawyer. This may not be entirely sound, but there certainly is an element of truth in it. The aim of judicial proceedings should be to arrive at the truth, regardless of the ability of counsel for the respective parties. To accomplish this, as well as to expedite the proceedings, it is essential that the court be more than a mere umpire. He should at all times control the proceedings. It is believed that the enactment of this statute will be very helpful in attaining this object.

Section 1049. This section now provides that after his plea the defendant is entitled to at least two days to prepare for trial. It is recommended that the words

"two days" be changed to "five days" The Commission does not know of any cases where the present statute has been abused Nevertheless, there might be cases where it would be unfair to force a defendant to trial in as short a time as two days. By increasing this time to five days this possibility of injustice to a defendant will be obviated.

Section 1050 (new). This statute requires that all criminal cases be set for trial for a date not later than thirty days after defendant enters his plea, and no continuance may be granted unless it is proved that the ends of justice require the same. This has already been fully discussed in the early part of this report.

Section 1052. It is recommended that this section be repealed, the matter being fully covered by section 1050.

Section 1070. Peremptory challenges. It is recommended that this statute be amended to provide that the state and the defendant shall have an equal number of peremptory challenges, ten in capital cases and five in other cases. The law now gives the defendant twice as many challenges as the people.

Sections 1077–1078. It is recommended that section 1077 be repealed and section 1078 be amended to read as follows:

> Section 1078 It shall be the duty of the trial court to examine the prospective jurors and to select a fair and impartial jury. He may, in his discretion, permit reasonable examination of prospective jurors by counsel for the people and for the defendant.

The purpose of this section is twofold: First, to cut down the great amount of time now consumed in the selection of juries; second, to increase the probability that a fair and impartial jury will be selected. As heretofore noted, there is no place in the world where anything like the amount of time is taken in selecting a jury as is common in this country in criminal cases. Days, weeks, sometimes even months, are used up in this way. Moreover, at the present time, the selection of a jury is to a large extent a game between counsel It is but natural that each side should endeavor to secure jurors who will be favorable to that side. The ideal should be to select a fair and impartial jury. Each side is entitled to that. Neither side is entitled to more. This statute is designed to make it primarily the duty of the trial court to bring about the selection of such a jury There are undoubtedly cases in which reasonable examination by counsel should be permitted. The proposed statute permits this. It makes it the right and duty of the court always to control such examination to the end that justice shall be done and no undue delay occur.

Section 1089. It is recommended that this section be amended to equalize peremptory challenges to alternate jurors

Sections 1096 and 1096*a*. Presumption of innocence Reasonable doubt. Section 1096 now reads:

> A defendant in a criminal action is presumed to be innocent until the contrary is proved, and in case of a reasonable doubt whether his guilt is satisfactorily shown, he is entitled to an acquittal

It is recommended that this be amended and a new section added, to read substantially as follows

> Section 1096. The defendant in a criminal action is presumed to be innocent until the contrary is proved, but the effect of this presumption is only to place upon the state the burden of proving him guilty, beyond a reasonable doubt Reasonable doubt is defined as follows: "It is not a mere possible doubt: because everything relating to human affairs, and depending on moral evidence, is open to some possible or imaginary doubt It is that state of the case, which, after the entire comparison and consideration of all the evidence, leaves the minds of jurors in that condition that they can not say they feel an abiding conviction, to a moral certainty, of the truth of the charge"
> Section 1096*a*. In charging a jury the court may read to the jury section 1096 of this code and no further instruction on the subject of the presumption of innocence or defining reasonable doubt need be given.

The question of the effect of the presumption of innocence and of the meaning of reasonable doubt has been one of the most troublesome in the whole field of criminal procedure. It would be difficult to estimate how many mistrials and how many reversals have resulted from instructions on this subject that have been held erroneous. If the proposed section is adopted, it will remove all doubts and uncertainties on this subject, and provide a clear statement of the law which can be given in every case and to which nothing need be added. This statement of the law is as fair and favorable to the defendant as any defendant can ask The definition of "reasonable doubt" is copied verbatim from the most classical statement in American jurisprudence, namely, the decision of Chief Justice Shaw in Commonwealth vs. Webster, 5 Cushing 320. This definition has received the approval of courts and text writers ever since it was pronounced and has frequently been commended and declared to be the best definition by the Supreme Court of this State. (See for example, People vs. Miller, 171 Cal. 649.) The adoption of this statute will add much to the certainty of the operation of criminal law.

Section 1098. This section now provides that when two or more defendants are tried jointly, each of them is entitled to five peremptory challenges in addition to those allowed by section 1070, but the State is given only "one-half the number of all the additional separate challenges allowed the defendants, any fraction to be regarded as an additional challenge." It is proposed to give the State "additional challenges equal to the number of all the additional separate challenges allowed the defendants," in conformity with the amendment suggested for equalizing the number of peremptory challenges.

Section 1123. When section 1089 was added to the Penal Code, authorizing the calling of alternate jurors, this section was apparently overlooked as the two are inconsistent as they now stand. It is recommended that section 1123 be amended to conform to section 1089.

Section 1156. This section now provides that the court must order a new trial for certain defects in a special verdict which could easily be remedied by further deliberation of the jury after instructions from the court pointing out the defects. The recommendations proposed will bring about a proper verdict at the first trial.

Sections 1168 and 1203. Probation, Indeterminate Sentence and Parole Law. It seems advisable to group the presentation of the recommendations made with reference to these laws. Many persons feel that these laws are wrong in principle and frequently abused in practice. After a careful study, however, the Commission has reached the conclusion that they are sound in principle. At the same time, it must be conceded that great errors and sometimes even serious abuses have occurred in their operation. The Commission therefore sought to work out a plan which would preserve all of the benefits of these systems and minimize their evils. It is believed this result has been accomplished.

A—Probation.

We are convinced that probation has a proper place in the law and serves a very useful purpose. Properly applied it is a great force for good. Improperly applied it is an undoubted force for evil. It is believed that the true purpose and function of probation is this: That one who has for the first time breached the social compact by an act so serious as to constitute a felony, but has not shown himself to be a menace to the lives of his fellow men, should be entitled to apply to the State as a matter of grace (for it should always be remembered that probation is a matter of grace only, not of right) for a chance to redeem himself and not have stamped upon him the brand of a penitentiary sentence. Conversely, however, a person who has more than once been convicted of a crime so serious as to be a felony, or a person who in committing a felony for the first time has shown himself to be a menace to the lives of his fellow citizens, should not be entitled to this act of grace on the part of the State. If probation be granted to such a person, the whole purpose of the law is prostituted. The law-abiding citizens of the State are subjected to a menace which is most unjust to the individual and dangerous to society. For all practical purposes it may be affirmed that any person who commits a felony while armed with a deadly weapon is a potential murderer. By that very act he demonstrates that he is a menace to the lives of his fellow citizens and to society. The person who arms himself with a deadly weapon to commit a felony does so that he may use it, that he may wound or kill if it seems necessary or advisable to insure the perpetration of the crime or his escape. The welfare of society demands that adequate steps be taken to deter such persons from carrying deadly weapons. It is, therefore, recommended that the probation law be amended so as to provide: First, that no person who has been previously convicted of a felony, either in this State or elsewhere, shall be eligible for probation; second, that no person who, at the time of the commission of the offense, or at the time of his arrest, was armed with a deadly weapon shall be eligible for probation; third, that the present provision which prevents public officials guilty of bribery, embezzlement or extortion from receiving probation, be retained.

It is further recommended that subdivision (e) of section 1203 be amended. That section now provides that a defendant who has been admitted to probation may, after such probationary period is complete, withdraw his plea and have the proceeding dismissed, and that he "shall thereafter be released from all penalties and disabilities resulting from the offense or crime of which he has been convicted." It is recommended that there be added to this subdivision immediately after the words quoted the following:

> "except that in any subsequent prosecution of such defendant for any other offense such prior conviction may be pleaded and proved and shall have the same effect as if probation had not been granted or the accusation or information dismissed."

If one who has been convicted of a felony and has received the grace of the State through probation, thereafter commits another felony, there would appear to be every reason, indeed, if anything, more reason, why he should be treated as a second offender, than one who upon his first conviction received and served a sentence. To say that such a person, when he commits the second felony, is really a first offender, is simply to deny the truth. The Commission would not withdraw from the person who has received probation and thereafter lives a life of rectitude any of the protection now given him by this law. But if such person thereafter again becomes a felon, the law should permit the truth to be shown.

B—Indeterminate Sentence.

There is very considerable objection to the indeterminate sentence law. The Commission, however, believes that it serves a useful purpose, but that one very important change in it should be made. Under the system formerly prevailing in this State, the trial court fixed the sentence. This had certain disadvantages, the chief of which probably was the great disparity sometimes existing between the sentences given by one judge and those given by another judge for the same crime committed under like conditions. It had, however, certain very real advantages. The judge of the trial court, who knew local conditions, who saw and observed the witnesses, who saw and observed the defendant, had an opportunity to form an opinion as to the real degree of culpability which the board of prison directors, sitting perhaps hundreds of miles away and acting on a printed record, can not possibly have. Realizing that there were advantages in each system and disadvantages in each, the Commission sought to work out a plan by which the advantages of both could be retained and the disadvantages of both minimized. Such a plan has been evolved. The plan recommended is this: That at the time of, and as part of the sentence, the trial court shall recommend the minimum term for which in his opinion the defendant should be confined before being eligible for release on parole or otherwise. This, it is to be noted, is not the fixing of the sentence, but only a recommendation as to the minimum term of actual confinement. The board of prison directors shall have jurisdiction and power to release the defendant prior to the expiration of such recommended term, but shall not do so unless in its opinion exceptional cause therefor is shown. This leaves power in the prison board to correct any abuses that may arise through excessive recommendations, and to take into consideration facts which may develop subsequent to sentence and which were not known at that time. The plan thus preserves to a large extent the undoubted value of the opinion and recommendation of the trial court without in any substantial degree infringing upon the indeterminate sentence law or the power of the board of prison directors. As a matter of fact, this board has for a long time attempted to get the opinions of trial judges in practically all cases coming before it.

C—Parole.

No changes are recommended in the parole law, except one to insure that second offenders and those who are armed with deadly weapons at the time of the commission of felonies or at the time of arrest shall receive adequate punishment, largely to the end that others may be deterred from embarking on a life of crime or at least from using deadly weapons in the commission of crime or arming themselves to resist arrest. It is recommended that offenders of this class shall not be released on parole except in accordance with the following schedule:

1. A person sentenced to life imprisonment shall not be eligible for parole until he has served a minimum of twenty-five years.

2. A person convicted of a felony, who at the time of the commission of the offense or his arrest was armed with a deadly weapon and who has theretofore been convicted of a felony, shall not be eligible for parole until he has served a minimum of fifteen years.

3. A person not theretofore convicted of a felony, but who at the time of the commission of the offense or his arrest was armed with a deadly weapon, shall not be eligible for parole until he has served a minimum of ten years.

4. A person for the second time convicted of a felony, but who was not armed with a deadly weapon at the time of the commission of the offense or his arrest, shall not be eligible to parole until he has served a minimum of seven years.

It is believed that this plan, if adopted, will have a great deterrent value. At the present time many persons sentenced to life imprisonment are released on parole in ten years. There is a strong feeling that a sentence of imprisonment for life should mean exactly what it says, and that a person so sentenced should serve for life, unless released by pardon or commutation of sentence. There is much to be said in favor of this view. The Commission feels, however, that if the law provides that a person so sentenced must serve at least twenty-five years, the deterrent value will be almost as great as if no parole were allowed. There may be cases where after twenty-five years the parole board will find it proper to release such persons on parole. The second offender who uses a deadly weapon ought to be made to realize that he must serve a very substantial sentence. Such a law will probably tend to deter those who have been once convicted from committing other felonies, or at least, if they do commit them, from using a deadly weapon in their perpetration. The purpose of the other two recommendations is obvious and is along the same line.

Section 1180. This section as it now stands provides, among other things, that "the granting of a new trial places the parties in the same position as if no trial had been had." Its effect has been practically nullified by judicial decision. It is believed that it can be restored by amending it to provide that a defendant who makes a motion for a new trial, or who appeals from a judgment of conviction, thereby consents that if a new trial is granted or the judgment reversed, the effect shall be the same as if he had never been tried, and that he may again be tried upon the original charge, irrespective of the verdict of the jury in the first trial. The constitutionality of such a provision is established by the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in Trono vs. United States, 199 U. S. 521, and a series of cases both in the federal and state courts since that time. The proposed amendment will simply make effective the clear intent of the legislature expressed in the statute as it now stands.

Section 1181. It is recommended that subdivision six of this section be amended so as to provide that where a defendant has been convicted of a crime and the evidence is found insufficient to justify the conviction for that crime, but does justify the conviction of a lesser degree of the crime, or of some lesser and included crime, either the trial court or the appellate court, as the case may be, need not set aside the verdict entirely, but may modify the judgment of conviction to the lesser crime.

The value of such a statute was illustrated by a recent decision of our Supreme Court in People vs. Nagy, 72 Cal. Dec. 192. In that case, defendant was convicted of arson in the first degree. The evidence clearly showed that the defendant was guilty of arson in the second degree, but was insufficient to show the presence of a human being in the property burned, which is necessary to constitute arson in the first degree. The court was compelled to set aside the judgment entirely and grant a new trial. Under the proposed statute, it would have been able to enter a judgment of arson in the second degree. The proposed statute in no way infringes upon the province of the jury, since it authorizes the court to pronounce only judgments on crimes which are lesser than and included within the verdict of the jury.

Section 1191. The proposed amendment to this section requires that judgment be pronounced immediately after plea or verdict of guilty, or after a verdict against the defendant on a plea of former conviction or acquittal, or once in jeopardy, instead of at a time (not less than two nor more than five days thereafter) to be appointed by the court, as now provided.

Section 1243. It is recommended that this section be amended to provide that the granting of a stay of execution on appeal shall rest in the sole discretion of the judge of the trial court. The evident intent of the Legislature in adopting the section as it now stands was to make the issuance of such certificate a matter of discretion. This intent has, to a large extent, been nullified by judicial decision. The proposed amendment will restore it. It is felt that this discretion should rest with the judge of the trial court rather than with the justices of the supreme or appellate courts, who can have no personal familiarity with the case.

Sections 1246, 1247*d*, inclusive. These sections all relate to the matter of making up the record on appeal. It is recommended that they be repealed and in lieu thereof a section be adopted providing that the record on appeal shall be made up within the time and in the manner prescribed by rules to be promulgated by the Judicial Council, and until such rules are promulgated the rules applicable January 1, 1927, shall apply. This suggestion is in accord with the prevailing policy that such matters of detail as making up of records on appeal should be regulated by rules of court rather than by hard and fast statutes.

Section 1252. It is recommended that this statute be amended to provide that all appeals in criminal cases shall be set for hearing for a date not later than thirty days after the filing of the transcript and that no continuance shall be granted unless the court shall find that the ends of justice require it. No continuance shall be granted upon stipulation of counsel. It is further provided that upon an appeal by defendant the appellate court shall, in addition to the points raised by defendant, consider and pass upon all rulings adverse to the State which it may be requested to pass upon by the Attorney General. The purpose of this proposed amendment is to carry out the policy of increased swiftness in the functioning of the criminal law. It is not uncommon under the present system that from six months to a year elapse after the verdict of conviction before the appeal is brought on for hearing. This is not the fault of the courts but rather the fault of the system now in force. There is no good reason why the great majority of cases on appeal can not be heard promptly. Where, for some peculiar reason, the ends of justice require a longer time, the proposed statute permits the court to grant the continuance.

The additional provision that the appellate court shall pass upon rulings adverse to the State which it is requested to consider by the Attorney General is deemed an important one. At the present time the State has no way to review ruling adverse to it made during the trial. The proposed amendment will give this right, and thus a way will be opened to settle many disputed questions.

Section 1256. It is further recommended that a provision be added to the present statutes making it the duty of the district attorney to assist the Attorney General in presenting all matters on appeal. It is believed that it will prove very helpful, both to the Attorney General and to the court, to have the assistance of the district attorney who tried the matter in the court below.

Sections 1270–1307. Bail. The entire subject of bail has received the careful attention of your Commission. As a result of the study of the present system and its practical application, several changes are recommended. The present system has been and is subject to a number of very serious abuses. Perhaps first among these is the so-called "straw bail" evil, that is, the giving of bonds which are not collectible. Another series of abuses has grown up in connection with the bail bond business, that is the business of giving bail bonds for pay. In considering the entire subject of bail, it should always be remembered that while it is right and proper in most cases for a defendant to be released on bail, still the bail bond must be of such a nature and in such amount that it will in practically every case (theoretically at least, in every case) insure that the defendant will not leave the State or secrete himself to escape punishment. The bail bond should be a secured obligation in favor of the people of the State of California. When cash is used as security, the cash must be deposited. If property is made the basis of security, the people are entitled at least to a lien upon that property. They are entitled to insist, certainly as much as any private client would be entitled to insist, that that security shall be a real, not merely a nominal, security.

This is of the utmost importance from each of two aspects: First, unless the security is of this nature there is a definite inducement to the defendant to flee and so thwart the whole course of justice; second, as the holder of a secured obligation the people are entitled to insist that the security shall be such that the obligation will be certainly collectible.

The general plan proposed is this: The sureties must justify upon oath and list the property which it is proposed to give as security for the bond. They must satisfy the trial judge that they own the property and that its value above all prior liens is ample to satisfy the amount of their undertaking. When the undertaking is approved by the trial judge it becomes a lien upon the property offered as security. This is designed to cure one of the great defects in the present system. Now the undertaking does not become a lien upon anything. There is now nothing to prevent a surety from encumbering or disposing of his property the day after the bail bond is accepted. To remedy this condition and make the undertaking a real security to the people of the state (not merely a nominal one) it is proposed that where the property offered is personal property it shall be deposited with the court to be held until the undertaking is discharged or, in case it be forfeited, the obligation is collected. Where the property offered as security is real property, the undertaking becomes a lien thereon and provision is made for recording notice of the undertaking in the county where the real property is situated. This plan will give to the people of the State the same measure of protection and security which any private client would insist upon his lawyer obtaining for him on a secured obligation. It is believed that the people in this tremendously important matter of insuring the enforcement of the criminal law are entitled to at least this degree of protection.

It is next proposed to amend the form of undertaking by adding a provision by which the surety will consent that, in the event the bail bond is forfeited, judgement may be entered forthwith for the amount of the undertaking. Under the present system, it is necessary to bring a separate civil action to enforce collection of the bond. When such judgment is entered it may be enforced in the usual way by the sale of the property given as security. To give an additional protection to the surety, however, it is provided that if within ten days after forfeiture of the bond the defendant and his bail appear and satisfactorily excuse the forfeiture and show to the satisfaction of the court that the absence of defendant was not with the connivance of the bail, the court may discharge the forfeiture of the undertaking upon such terms as may be just.

It is next recommended that the statute expressly provide that in fixing the amount of bail, the judge or magistrate shall take into consideration the seriousness of the offense charged, the previous criminal record of the defendant and the probability of his appearing at the trial; that the proposed sureties shall be required to state upon oath what, if any, consideration, indemnity or security they have received or been promised, and from whom, and that the bond shall not be accepted unless the judge is satisfied that none of the consideration, indemnity or security was feloniously obtained by defendant. In the British Empire bail for indemnity is prohibited. Indeed, the giving of bail for any consideration is in itself a crime. The Commission feels it is not necessary to go so far here. The proposed amendments will still permit a legitimate bail bond business to be carried on, but it is only right and just that where a bail bond is given for consideration or upon indemnity, the State should know what that consideration of indemnity is and from whom received.

It is further provided that all statements made by the proposed bondsmen (which must be under oath) shall be deemed material statements and if such a bondsman makes a false statement he shall be guilty of perjury.

If this proposed plan be adopted it is believed the present abuses of bail will be substantially cured without any injustice being done to anyone. It has been suggested that the proposed plan may in some cases somewhat increase the difficulty of securing bail. This may or may not be true. If it proves true, however, it will only be in those cases where the bondsmen are unwilling to give to the people of the State real security for the appearance of the defendant. If it be conceded that the people are entitled to have a security that is real, not merely one that is a matter of form this possible objection falls to the ground. The enforcement of criminal justice is a matter of the greatest importance to the welfare of the people of this state. Unless the defendant is present, the whole course of the administration of justice is thwarted and the arms of the people are paralyzed. Hence, when a defendant asks to be released on bail, the people have a right to insist that the bond which he gives to insure his appearance shall be a real one secured in such a manner that it is certainly collectible. This is the result which the proposed amendments are designed to accomplish.

Section 1506. It is recommended that a new section be added giving the right of appeal, in habeas corpus cases, to the people or to the petitioner, from a final order discharging or remanding a prisoner, and providing that if the people appeal, the defendant shall not be released from custody, except upon bail. Under the present system, the people are very greatly handicapped by having no redress where a defendant is improperly released on habeas corpus.

HOSPITAL FOR THE CRIMINAL INSANE.

The Commission recommends that your honorable body create a hospital for the criminal insane. The fact that we do not have such a hospital is a serious blot upon the good name of the State. There can be no doubt about the fact that there are people who are criminally insane. Dementia praecox, paranoia in its various phases, and similar afflictions are real. People suffering from them are a menace to themselves and a most serious menace to society. They belong in an institution, so that this menace both to themselves and to society can be eliminated, and so that they may receive the best of care and treatment and, where possible, be restored to sanity. It is most unfair both to them and to the public that they be allowed to roam at large as most of them now do. It is most unfair likewise that they be confined in a hospital for the harmlessly insane where there are no adequate provisions for caring for them and where they are a menace to the lives of the other unfortunates committed to such institutions

Hospitals for the criminal insane have demonstrated their worth and value wherever they have been established. It is suggested that the hospital be placed under the jurisdiction of the Board of Prison Directors. The same staff of experts can then be utilized for the hospital and for the necessary psychiatric and similar examinations which should be made of all convicts in the penitentiaries. Such examinations are essential in proper penology The hospital will not only provide greatly needed security to the public and to the individuals who are afflicted, but can also be made a splendid clinic for the study of criminal insanity and cures therefor.

The cost need not be great. It can be planned and constructed on the unit system, allowing enlargement from time to time as needed The establishment of such a hospital will not only add greatly to the safety of the people of the State, but will be in accord with the finest humanitarian principles.

EXTRADITION OF WITNESSES.

The Commission recommends the adoption of a statute authorizing the Governor in proper cases to subpoena persons who are present in California, but who are material witnesses in criminal prosecutions pending in other states, to attend and testify in such proceedings; their mileage and fees must be paid by such other state. The law all over the United States is deplorably deficient through absence of provisions for securing the attendance or testimony of witnesses who have left the state If a material witness leaves a state and declines to return, there is usually no way to secure his evidence. Thus in many cases justice is completely thwarted. The proposed statute is an act of comity to assist our sister states in enforcing criminal justice. In this respect it is similar to our statutes providing for extradition of persons accused of crime If any further reason for its enactment be desired, it should be sufficient to call attention to the fact that crime is no longer localized. It has become national in its character. Every state is directly interested in the enforcement of criminal law all over the country.

The proposed statute provides in effect that the Governor of any other state of the United States may apply to the Governor of California to subpoena any person present in California to attend as a material witness in a criminal prosecution pending in said other state. If it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the Governor of California that such person is a material witness in a criminal prosecution there pending, and said other state shall advance the mileage and fees for said witness, the Governor of California may issue his subpoena requiring said witness to attend and testify in said proceeding If the Governor of California be of the opinion that said witness may refuse to obey said subpoena, he may issue a warrant for said witness delivering him into the custody of an officer of said other state to be transported to the place where said proceedings are pending. The statute shall apply equally whether the attendance of the witness be desired by the people or by the defense. It is hoped that if California adopts such a statute other states will do likewise and thus promote the enforcement of justice throughout the entire country

CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

As noted at the beginning of this report, certain changes necessary to proper administration of criminal justice can be brought about only through your honorable body submitting to the people, for approval by them, of certain amendments to the constitution. It is recommended that your honorable body submit to the people for their action at the general election of 1928 the following amendments:

First—One permitting the jury to consider the fact that defendant fails to take the stand in his own behalf;

Second—One empowering the Legislature to provide for the taking of depositions in criminal cases, either within or without this State;

Third—One permitting the waiver of a jury trial in felony cases where both the people and the defendant desire to make such waiver;

Fourth—One restoring the jury trial as originally known and developed by repealing the provision which prohibits the jury from receiving the benefit of any comments on the evidence by the trial court;

Fifth—One authorizing the Legislature to create new divisions of the district courts of appeal when necessary;

Sixth—One shortening the time within which the decision of a District Court of Appeal in a criminal case becomes final, from thirty days to fifteen days, allowing an additional fifteen days within which the Supreme Court may order a hearing before itself;

Seventh—One authorizing the Legislature in its discretion to provide reasonable compensation to the members of the State Board of Prison Directors and to provide for them the services of trained psychiatrists and similar experts;

Eighth—One providing that where a verdict or judgment of conviction is set aside on the application of defendant he may be retried on the original charge, irrespective of the grade or degree of crime of which he was convicted in such verdict or judgment.

These will be briefly considered in their order:

First—One Permitting the Jury to Consider the Fact That Defendant Fails to Take the Stand in His Own Behalf.

It can not too often be stated that the fundamental purpose of a criminal trial should be to arrive at the truth. If a defendant refuses to take the stand on his own behalf that is a fact in the case. Its weight may vary with circumstances, but whatever its weight it is a fact in the case. The law now provides that the jury must not consider this fact. It may well be doubted whether it is humanly possible to fail to consider it. Be that as it may, the jury should be entitled to consider it. In many cases it will materially aid in arriving at the truth.

The rule which prohibits the jury from considering this fact is probably an outgrowth of another rule long ago in force in England, which prohibited a defendant from testifying in his own behalf. The defendant not being permitted to testify, it was of course fair and just that his failure to testify should not be considered a fact in the case. The rule which forbade him to testify has long ago been discarded and he can now testify like any other witness. Strangely enough, however, we have still kept the companion rule after the reason for it has ceased to exist. In the interests of truth it should be discarded.

Second—One Empowering the Legislature to Provide for the Taking of Depositions in Criminal Cases, Either Within or Without This State.

The law now permits the defendant to take depositions but prohibits the people from doing so. This has brought about a condition that is intolerable. To illustrate: A murders B. C is the only witness. If C can be induced to leave the State of California there is no way to bring him back. His deposition can not be taken by the people and as a result the whole course of justice is thwarted and the arms of the people are paralyzed. The proposed amendment simply empowers the Legislature to provide, upon such terms and conditions as it may deem just, that the people may take depositions either within or without the State.

Third—One Permitting the Waiver of a Jury Trial in Felony Cases Where Both the People and the Defendant Desire to Make Such Waiver.

Jury trials may be waived in all civil cases and in all criminal cases except felony cases. It is submitted that there is no reason why it should not be permitted in felony cases also where both the people and the defendant desire the waiver. This is in no sense depriving any one of a jury trial, for he will have the jury trial unless he voluntarily waives it. This system has been in force for a long time in Connecticut and Maryland and has worked well. In a very considerable percentage of the cases the jury is waived. This results in a great saving of expense to the State and in considerably greater expedition in the trial of such cases.

Fourth—One Restoring the Jury Trial as Originally Known and Developed, by Repealing the Provision Which Prohibits the Jury from Receiving the Benefit of Any Comments on the Evidence by the Trial Court.

The jury trial as originally developed and as now known and conducted in all courts of the English speaking world (including the United States courts) except only the courts of some of the American states, of which California is one, is a trial by a jury which may receive the benefit of comments on the evidence by counsel for the people, counsel for the defense and by the trial court. Such comments by the court have no binding effect. The jury remains the sole judge of the facts. The comments are simply to assist the jury in arriving at the truth. Under the practice in this State, counsel for the people may comment on the evidence, counsel for the defendant may do likewise, but the jury is absolutely deprived of any comment on the evidence by the one trained and impartial man in the courtroom, namely, the judge of the trial court. His lips are sealed with a constitutional padlock, and the jury is ordered to struggle the best that it can to arrive at the truth without the benefit of any comment whatever from the trained judge whom the people have placed upon the bench. This is not the jury trial, which is one of the glories of Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence. The Supreme Court of the United States in Capital Traction Company vs Hof, 174 U. S. 1, describes the historical jury trial, the time-hallowed institution, as follows.

> "'Trial by Jury,' in the primary and usual sense of the term at the common law and in the American constitution, is not merely a trial by a jury of twelve men before an officer vested with authority to cause them to be summoned and impaneled, to administer oaths to them and to the constable in charge, and to enter judgment and issue execution on their verdict; but it is a trial by a jury of twelve men, in the presence and under the superintendence of a judge empowered to instruct them on the law and to advise them on the facts, and (except on acquittal of a criminal charge) to set aside their verdict if in his opinion it is against the law or the evidence. The proposition has been so generally admitted, and so seldom contested, that there has been little occasion for its distinct assertion. Yet there are unequivocal statements of it to be found in the books." (Italics ours.)

Professor Thayer, one of the greatest commentators and jurists that this country has produced, speaking upon the same subject, says

> "It is not too much to say of any period, in all English history, that it is impossible to conceive of trial by jury as existing there in a form which would withhold from the jury the assistance of the court in dealing with the facts. Trial by jury, in such a form as that, is not trial by jury in any historic sense of the words. It is not the venerated institution which attracted the praise of Blackstone and of our ancestors, but something novel, modern and much less to be respected." (Italics ours.)

It is probably true that one of the main reasons for the greater efficiency of jury trials in the courts of England and of Canada and in the courts of the United States over that existing in our State courts is the fact that there the jury can receive the benefit of the comments of the trial judge. The fundamental test to be applied to this as to other questions of procedure is: What rule will be most likely to insure that the proceedings will arrive at the truth? The commission believes that, both as a matter of sound principle and by the demonstration of long experience, a jury is more likely to arrive at the truth when it is permitted to have the benefit of the comments of the trial judge upon the evidence than when it is deprived of them. One of the most important functions of citizenship is jury service. Nothing is more essential to the welfare of society than that those who serve upon a jury should return a true verdict. We draw our jurors from all walks of life. Generally speaking, they are not familiar with the processes of adducing evidence in a courtroom, the slow and somewhat cumbersome method of question and answer, the objections and arguments of counsel, and the various matters that arise in the conduct of almost every criminal case. They may listen for days, or even weeks, to the evidence. At the conclusion counsel for the people and counsel for the defense may argue to them at length (in passing, it should be noted that this argument is not to permit counsel to display their talent, but for the reason that their comments on the evidence may assist the jury in arriving at the truth). At the conclusion of it all, the jury must sift the evidence, accept this and discard that, believe this and reject that, and by its verdict arrive at the truth. Can it be denied that in the great majority of cases they will be more likely to arrive at a true verdict if they are permitted to have the benefit of the comments on the evidence not only of counsel, but also of the one trained and impartial man in the courtroom, the representative of the people of the state in a true sense, the judge upon the bench?

Objection may be made to the proposed plan on the ground that it would be possible for the trial judge to abuse his power in commenting on the evidence. It must be conceded that an occasional abuse is a possibility. There can be no power without it being possible that such power may be abused. The pardoning power, the veto power, the power to grant probation and parole, the power of city councils and boards of supervisors, of railroad commissions, of legislatures, and even of the Congress may possibly be abused and perhaps in some instances have been abused. That is no reason for destroying the power or abolishing such bodies. There is no reason to believe that the power proposed to be given to our judges would be abused to any substantial degree. Indeed, any attempted abuse of the power, any attempt to influence the jury unfairly in favor of one side or the other, would be more likely to react against the desired result. Any marked abuse of the power by a judge would probably result in his soon ceasing to be a judge.

Many of the leading jurists of our country, such men as Chief Justice Taft of the Supreme Court of the United States, Dean Roscoe Pound of Harvard Law School, and numerous others of the same caliber believe that the proposed change is not only just and wise, but essential to insure greater certainty of true verdicts in our criminal courts. The Commission appreciates, at the same time, that there are persons who sincerely fear that the proposed power might be substantially abused. The question is one of fundamental importance. It can be decided and should be decided only by one body, namely, the people of California. The Commission believes that it is only just that the people should be given an opportunity to decide. It is, therefore, recommended that the proposed amendment be submitted to the people for their decision.

Fifth—One Authorizing the Legislature to Create New Divisions of the District Courts of Appeal When Necessary

At the present time, it is necessary to amend the constitution each time it is desired to create another division of a District Court of Appeal. The state is growing so rapidly that the business of the courts has greatly increased and the present District Courts of Appeal are far behind in their calendars. It is a fundamental truth that a delay of justice is frequently a denial of justice. Your honorable body has shown that it appreciates the importance of swiftness in the administration of justice. There would seem to be no good reason why your honorable body should not have the power to create new divisions of the District Courts of Appeal when the public interest requires it.

Sixth—One Shortening the Time Within Which the Decision of a District Court of Appeal in a Criminal Case Becomes Final from Thirty Days to Fifteen Days, Allowing an Additional Fifteen Days Within Which the Supreme Court May Order a Hearing Before Itself.

At the present time a decision of a District Court of Appeal does not become final for thirty days and another thirty days then elapses during which time the Supreme Court may order the cause transferred to itself for hearing and decision. For criminal cases, at least, this time seems entirely too long. It is not consonant with the swift administration of criminal justice. An amendment, therefore, is recommended which will provide that in criminal cases the judgment of a District Court of Appeal shall become final in fifteen days after its rendition, with an additional fifteen days allowed during which time the Supreme Court may order the cause transferred to itself. Since this Commission's activities are directed toward the administration of criminal justice only, no change is recommended with regard to civil cases.

Seventh—One Authorizing the Legislature in Its Discretion to Provide Reasonable Compensation to the Members of the State Board of Prison Directors and to Provide for Them the Services of Trained Psychiatrists and Similar Experts

The present constitution (article X, section 4) provides that the members of the Board of Prison Directors shall receive no compensation, other than reasonable traveling and other expenses incurred while engaged in the performance of official duties. This was adopted in 1879 at a time when the duties of the Board of Prison Directors were very much less onerous and less important than they are now. Since that time both the indeterminate sentence law and the parole law have been passed, imposing upon the board very important duties, which were unknown at the time the constitution was adopted. Likewise, the burden of administering the prisons has greatly increased. It is recommended that a constitutional provision be submitted to the people which will reduce the number of members of the board from five to three and authorize the Legislature in its discretion to provide reasonable compensation for the members of the board, and also to furnish them necessary expert assistants, psychiatrists, psychologists, and the like. The duties now performed by this board are of great importance. If they are to be properly carried out they require a large portion of the time of the members of the board. The proposed amendment does not in itself allow the members of the board any compensation. It simply empowers the Legislature in its discretion to provide compensation.

Eighth—One Providing That Where a Verdict or Judgment of Conviction is Set Aside on the Application of Defendant He May Be Retired on the Original Charge, Irrespective of the Grade or Degree of Crime of Which He Was Convicted in Such Verdict or Judgment.

The purpose of this amendment may be illustrated by the following example: A defendant is charged with murder in the first degree. He is convicted of manslaughter. On his motion for new trial or on his appeal the judgment and verdict are set aside. It has been held that he can not again be tried on any charge more serious than manslaughter. This is based upon the theory, which is purely legalistic, that the conviction of manslaughter amounted to an acquittal of murder. The fallacy of this doctrine has been fully exposed. See for example, Trono vs. United States, 199 U. S. 521. Moreover, where a defendant causes a verdict to be set aside, it should be set aside completely and he should not be allowed to claim any protection under it. This is the policy of your honorable body as declared in section 1180 of the Penal Code as it now stands. The Commission has recommended an amendment of that section to make this policy effective. It is believed that amendment is constitutional. To avoid any possible doubt, however, this amendment to the constitution is also proposed.

FINANCIAL REPORT

Your honorable body appropriated $10,000 for the expenses of this Commission. The Commission is happy to report that it will be able to return to the treasury of this State a very substantial part of the money appropriated, probably in excess of $3,000.

CONCLUSION.

It is hoped and believed that if your honorable body sees fit to adopt the statutory changes recommended and the people of the State approve the constitutional amendments, the result will be not merely greatly increased efficiency, swiftness and certainty in the administration of criminal justice in this State, but also a great reduction in the amount of crime. All past experience proves that this increased efficiency is always followed by such reduction in crime. The Commission has endeavored to do the task assigned to it, namely, to provide a more efficient system for the swift and certain administration of criminal justice. It has endeavored not to encroach upon other fields. Our studies have led us to the conclusion, however, that indispensable as it is that such a system of criminal procedure should be adopted, still this is only a part of the problem of crime. There are other very important phases. The Commission, therefore, has reached the conclusion and hereby respectfully recommends that your honorable body create a commission to study the other phases of the crime problem and report its findings and recommendations to you. Some of the important phases that it is suggested might well receive such consideration are:

First and foremost, crime prevention. Everything that can be done to prevent the commission of crime, to turn those disposed toward such a life into a life of honest effort, to take a boy or girl who is just entering upon the pathway of crime and turn his feet to the paths of rectitude is a social service and a humanitarian service of the highest order. There are vast opportunities in this field. Some methods also must be devised for segregating the hardened criminal from those who may be redeemed to become useful members of society. Too often the former become professors of crime, and our jails and penitentiaries (in spite of the best efforts of sheriffs, jailers and wardens) become institutions for education in all the arts of the criminal profession. The whole subject of crime prevention has been too long ignored in this country. This is one of the reasons for the tremendous price we are now paying. Both morally and financially it is cheaper and easier to prevent crime than to attempt to cure it.

Secondly, the matter of crime detection and the apprehension of criminals. The subject of the detection of crime is in itself a vast one. Recent scientific discoveries have opened entirely new fields without disturbing in any substantial degree fundamental principles that have long been known among experts. Those who are charged with the detection of crime should be given the best education in their profession and furnished with all the facilities which the scientific world affords. The matter of the apprehension of criminals is also one where much improvement can be made. The criminal pays no attention to artificial boundaries, whether of city, county or state. Too often our officials charged with the apprehension of criminals are bound down, hampered and limited by such lines. Such a commission as is recommended might be able to evolve a plan which would result in far greater efficiency than we now have in the fields of detection and apprehension.

Third, another subject worthy of careful and complete study is that of Penology. Among other things this might involve a complete survey of our jail system, our reformatories, our penitentiaries, our road camps, and kindred institutions. An important question for consideration is that of giving to convicts in our institutions some kind of training, technical or otherwise, to fit them to earn an honest livelihood after they are released. Another subject worthy of consideration is whether the State can be of greater assistance in helping released convicts to secure employment and keeping some check of their activities for a reasonable time after their release.

The foregoing observations are made not with the idea of expressing an opinion on any of the subjects, but as indicating the great necessity of such a commission as that recommended, the wide scope which its activities may well take and the great public benefits which may result.

Such a commission should be adequately financed. If objection be raised to the State spending the necessary money, it may be worth while to note that it is estimated the cost of crime to the United States is ten billions of dollars each year. Just what is the cost to the State of California can not be accurately stated, but it is fair to assume that we bear at least our fair proportion of this tremendous total. Bearing in mind the human and social, as well as the financial, cost of crime, it would seem doubtful whether money could be better expended than in ameliorating these conditions. Certainly no greater humanitarian service can be rendered.

The problem of crime is probably the most vital one now confronting our State and our nation. All our citizens, whatever their walk in life, their race, their color, their vocation or their political beliefs are equally subject to this menace. All are equally concerned in preserving the lives of their loved ones and themselves, in securing the sanctity of their homes and the security of the property accumulated by their toil. Serious as is the problem of crime, it is by no means a hopeless one. If we meet it with true American courage and determination the problem will be solved and the lives, homes and property of our citizens will be made safe and secure.

Respectfully submitted.

PRESENTATION OF PETITIONS.

The following petition was presented, and ordered printed in the Journal:

By Mr. Heisinger:

PORTERVILLE, CALIFORNIA, January 12, 1927.

Hon. S. L. Heisinger,
State Legislature,
Sacramento, California.

DEAR ASSEMBLYMAN: I noticed in the Fresno Bee a bill which you are going to present and I sincerely trust you will get it through.

The penalties on our taxes are an outrage and from the statement which I am enclosing you will see that the Tulare County court house should have three balls on its front instead of being a hall of justice.

This man has a family to keep and his orange grove has not even paid expenses and he was unable to meet these taxes. He gave a chattel mortgage for them this year and while he has not received full return from his crop, it will not pay more than one-half of the mortgage.

Will you kindly return this statement to me after you have gone over it, and if it is of any benefit to you, you may take a copy to have for your personal use.

I want to congratulate you on the taking up of a matter of this nature. As you can readily see, it is a highway robbery and a man with a little twenty acres and a family to keep, paying probably twice as much tax as the average tax payer, for he has no way to cover up anything, and has a big mortgage on this property, so you can see the amount he is paying on his equity is simply awful.

Our good State has a law that would cancel this debt and put the parties making this charge in disgrace, but for the State of California to charge a man 45% penalty, charge him interest and costs, is an outrage, and if you will take this statement year by year you will find that the penalties, interests, costs, etc., are nearly as much as the original tax. In other words, the great State of California has practically doubled its money in four years.

I want to congratulate you on your efforts, and trust you may put the bill through unanimously.

Respectfully yours, W. E. SIMPSON.

BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS

Scope of Word "Bill."

4. Whenever the word "bill" is used in these rules it shall include constitutional amendments, joint and concurrent resolutions.

Joint and Concurrent Resolutions.

5. Joint resolutions are those which relate to matters connected with the federal government. All other resolutions relating to matters to be treated by both houses of the Legislature are concurrent resolutions.

Resolutions Treated as Bills.

6. Joint resolutions, concurrent resolutions and constitutional amendments shall be treated in all respects as bills; except that they shall be read but one time in each house and that they shall not be deemed bills within the meaning of section 2 of article IV of the constitution, and shall not be referred to the Committee on Introduction of Bills, and shall not require a vote to authorize their introduction. As in the case of bills, they shall be engrossed in the house in which they originate before being voted upon.

PREPARATION AND INTRODUCTION OF BILLS.

Title of Bill.

7. The title of every bill introduced shall convey an accurate idea of the contents of the bill and shall be indicative of the scope of the act and the object to be accomplished. In amending a code section, the mere reference to the section by number shall not be deemed sufficient.

Division of Bill Into Sections.

8. Bills amending more than one section of existing laws shall contain a separate section for each section amended.

Bills which are not amendatory of existing laws shall be divided into short sections, where this can be done without destroying the sense of any particular section, to the end that future amendments may be made without the necessity of setting forth and repeating sections of unnecessary length.

Changes from Existing Laws to Be Marked by Author.

9. In case of a bill amending a code section, or general law, all omissions must be shown by the insertion of heavy parentheses or brackets without including the omitted matter; all additions must be shown by underlining the new matter. When printed, the new matter so underlined shall be enclosed in heavy brackets in the printed bill and also heavy brackets shall be retained to show omissions.

Committee on Revision and Printing to Examine Bills When Introduced.

10. Unless otherwise ordered by the house in which the bill was introduced, all bills before being printed shall be immediately sent to the Committee on Revision and Printing, which shall examine the bill, with the aid of the Legislative Counsel Bureau. The committee, by and with the written assent of the author filed with it, shall have authority to correct any clerical error such as in orthography, adding or correcting the enacting clause, mistakes in numbering sections and refences thereto, errors in grammar, phraseology, or in the form of the bill; provided, that no bill which bears the stamp of the Legislative Counsel Bureau showing that before introduction it has been examined as to form, shall be sent to the Committee on Revision and Printing.

NOTE—The submission of bill copy to Legislative Counsel Bureau for approval of form before introduction will expedite its course.

Bills Introduced to Indicate Changes in Existing Laws.

11. The Committee on Revision and Printing shall see to it that rules 7 and 9 of these joint rules are observed by the author, and that the bill shall not be sent to the printer until the provisions of these rules have been carried out

Reports of Committee on Revision and Printing

12. The Committee on Revision and Printing shall return to the Secretary of the Senate or Chief Clerk of the Assembly all bills in the order in which they were sent to it, but shall not retain any bill for longer than three legislative days, unless otherwise ordered.

(b) All titles of bills, resolutions, etc., shall be set in italics, statute form, and the length of the lines used in the titles shall not exceed that of the body of the bill.

(c) The lines of all printed bills shall be numbered by page and not by sections, and amendments shall be identified by reference to title, page and line only; provided, however, that concurrent resolutions approving city or county or city and county charters or amendments thereto may be set in smaller type and without line numbers.

When a bill is amended in either house, the first or previous markings shall be omitted. When a bill amendatory of a code section is engrossed, all figures or symbols shall be removed Distribution of Bills During Constitutional Recess.

All requests for mailing or distribution by the members shall be filed with the Secretary of the Senate or Chief Clerk of the Assembly, who shall compile the same with the elimination of duplication as a general mailing list. 34. Upon the third reading of an act which is an urgency measure within the meaning of section 1, article IV of the State constitution, the presiding officer shall direct that the section of said act setting forth the facts constituting the necessity for such urgency (which shall be known as the urgency section) be then read and put to vote. The question shall be thus stated: "Shall this section, setting forth the urgency features of this bill, be passed?" If upon such final vote two-thirds of all the members elected to the house in which the vote is being taken shall not vote in the affirmative, no further action shall be taken on the bill; but, in case an identical bill without such an emergency clause be again introduced into such house, such bill shall be placed on file without reference to any committee.

Passage of Bills Preceding Final Adjournment

35. No Senate bill shall be passed by the Senate and no Assembly bill shall be passed by the Assembly within seven days of the time set for adjournment sine die of the two houses of the Legislature, unless permission to vote on such bill shall be granted by a three-fourths vote of the house of its origin after being recommended by the presiding officer thereof.

Enrollment of Bill After Passage

36. After a bill shall have passed both houses, it shall be duly enrolled after being carefully compared, by the engrossing and enrolling clerk and committee of the house in which it originated, with the engrossed bill, as passed in the two houses. It shall then receive the signatures provided for in joint rule 37, and be presented to the Governor of the State

Enrolling Committee to Present Bills to Governor.

37. After a bill shall have been thus passed in each house, it shall be presented by the engrossing and enrolling committee of the house in which it originated to the Governor of the State for his approval (it being first endorsed by the presiding officers of the two houses, and by the Secretary of the Senate and the Chief Clerk of the Assembly). The said committee shall report the day of presentation to the Governor, which time shall be carefully entered on the Journal of the house in which the bill originated.

AMENDMENTS AND CONFERENCES

Amendments to Amended Bills Must Be Attached.

38. Whenever a bill or resolution which shall have been passed in one house shall be amended in the other, it shall immediately be reprinted as amended by the house making such amendment or amendments. Such amendment or amendments shall be attached to the bill or resolution so amended, and indorsed "adopted," and such amendment or amendments, if concurred in by the house in which such bill or resolution originated, shall be indorsed "concurred in," and such indorsement shall be signed by the Secretary or Assistant Secretary of the Senate, or the Chief Clerk or Assistant Clerk of the Assembly, as the case may be; provided, however, that an amendment to the title of a bill adopted after the passage of such bill shall not necessitate reprinting, but such amendment must be concurred in by the house in which such bill originated.

To Concur or Refuse to Concur in Amendments

39. In case the Senate amend and pass an Assembly bill or the Assembly amend and pass a Senate bill, the Senate (if it be a Senate bill) or the Assembly (if it be an Assembly bill) must either "concur" or "refuse to concur" in the amendments. If the Senate concur (if it be a Senate bill), or the Assembly concur (if it be an Assembly bill), the Secretary or Chief Clerk shall notify the house making the amendments and the bill shall be ordered to enrollment.

When Senate or Assembly Refuse to Concur.

40. If the Senate refuse to concur (if it be a Senate bill), or the Assembly refuse to concur (if it be an Assembly bill), the Secretary or the Chief Clerk shall notify the house making the amendments of such refusal, and ask that they recede from their amendments. If they refuse to recede, the presiding officer shall appoint a committee of three (3) on conference and the Secretary or the Chief Clerk shall immediately notify the other house of the action taken and request the appointment of a like committee. Two of the members comprising such committee from each house shall be selected from those voting with the majority on the point about which the difference has arisen, and the other member from each house of such committee shall be selected from the minority, in the event there is a minority vote. The first Senator named on the conference committee shall act as chairman of the committee from the Senate, and the first Assemblyman named on such committee shall act as chairman of the committee from the House, and the chairman thus selected shall arrange the time and place of all meetings and prepare or direct the preparation of reports. The Committee on Conference shall report to both the Senate and Assembly.

Committee on Conference.

41. In every case of an amendment of a bill agreed to in one house and dissented from in the other, if either house shall request a conference and appoint a committee to confer, the other house shall appoint a like committee; and such committee shall meet at a convenient hour, to be agreed upon by the respective chairmen of the committees.

Committee on Free Conference.

42. If the conference fail to agree or either house refuse to adopt the report of the committee, a Committee on Free Conference shall then be appointed, which shall consist of three members from each house, to be constituted and appointed in the same manner as a Committee on Conference. The Committee on Free Conference is hereby directed to include in its report any amendments which it may adopt as a committee, and such amendments shall be attached to the bill.

The report of the Committee on Free Conference shall not be subject to amendment, and if either house refuse to adopt such report the conferees may be discharged and other conferees appointed.

It shall require the affirmative vote of not less than four of the members constituting the committee to agree upon a report. No member who has served on a Committee on Conference shall be appointed a member of a Committee on Free Conference on the same bill.

When Conference Committee Report Is in Order.

43. The presentation of the report of a committee on conference or free conference shall always be in order, except when the Journal is being read or a question of order or a motion to adjourn is pending, or during roll call, and, when received, the question of proceeding to the consideration of the report, if raised, shall be immediately passed upon, and shall be determined without debate.

Miscellaneous Provisions.

44. The Committee on Joint Rules shall be empowered to compile a list of suggestions as to the form of bills and resolutions prepared for introduction into the Legislature.

Press Rules.

45. A person desiring recognition by the Senate or Assembly as a newspaper correspondent shall make application in writing to the President of the Senate or Speaker of the Assembly.

(a) The applicant shall state in writing the name of the newspaper or newspapers he represents and that he is not engaged and will not become engaged as a lobbyist for any person, copartnership, corporation or interest and that he is not and will not become the agent or representative of any person, copartnership, organization or corporation in advocating or attempting to defeat any measure pending in either branch of the Legislature, that he is not employed in any executive, administrative or legislative department of the State government and will not become so employed while accepting the privileges of a press representative.

(b) It shall be the duty of the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the Assembly to assign one or more rooms for the exclusive use of correspondents during the legislative session, which room shall be known as the press room. The press room shall be under the control of the Superintendent of the Capitol Building and Grounds; provided, that all rules and regulations shall be approved by the President of the Senate and Speaker of the Assembly.

Adjournment.

46. Adjournment for the constitutional recess and adjournment sine die shall be made only by concurrent resolution; and the resolution for adjournment sine die shall be passed by both houses at least fourteen days before the date of such adjournment.

Joint Address to Governor.

47. When the Senate and Assembly shall judge it proper to make a joint address to the Governor, it shall be presented to him in his audience chamber by the President of the Senate in the presence of the Speaker of the Assembly and a select committee of six members from each house appointed by the respective presiding officers.

Dispensing With Joint Rules.

48. No joint rule shall be dispensed with except by a vote of two-thirds of each house; and joint rules twenty-seven and thirty-five can be dispensed with only in the manner provided for in said joint rules. If either house shall violate a joint rule a question of order may be raised in the other house and decided in the same manner as in the case of the violation of the rules of such house; and if it shall be decided that the joint rules have been violated, the bill involving such violation shall be returned to the house in which it originated, without further action. Or, at the option of such house, the President or Speaker may direct the Secretary or the Chief Clerk to mark the section or sections in conflict with the rules as nonconcurred in or negatived.

The following communication was received, and ordered printed in the Journal:

By Mr. Speaker:

SUMMARY REPORT ON THE WATER RESOURCES OF CALIFORNIA.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

January 1, 1927.

To the Members of the Legislature.
State of California, Session of 1927.

In accordance with chapter 477 of the 1925 Statutes, I have the honor to transmit herewith the concluding report on six years of investigation of the water resources and of the present and future requirements for water in California.

As the result of this extensive study, a plan has been prepared for coordinating the development and use of water for all purposes to secure the greatest public advantage. This plan is presented as the most feasible engineering solution for the coordination of the several uses of water and the means by which California may obtain the water necessary for future development.

The plan is very broad in its scope. It deals primarily with the larger areas deficient in local supply that require the importation of water from distant sources for their full development It is necessarily based upon the beneficial use of all water. It involves many problems of execution that could be considered at this time only to the extent necessary to produce an engineering plan with minimum difficulty in other respects No attempt has been made to indicate the adjustments that would have to be made with vested rights and existing uses of water. These and other problems are of such complexity and magnitude that their solution can be reached only through the cooperative effort of all those interested in the development of the State. The facts are presented, therefore, in order that the advantages of adopting this coordinated plan may be weighed with the probable cost and other difficulties and appropriate action be taken.

In conclusion it is my desire to call to your attention the great value received by the State from the services of the consultants to these investigations. Eminent in their profession and mature in experience and judgment, these men have given much time from their busy lives at nominal compensation in order that the State may have for its use the best the engineering profession may offer. I am enclosing herewith a letter in which this committee has expressed a thought pertinent to the coordinated plan so well taken that it should be yours in its original statement.

Respectfully submitted

PAUL BAILEY.
Director of Public Works.

LETTER FROM ENGINEERING ADVISORY COMMITTEE.

December 30, 1926.

Sacramento, California.

DEAR SIR: After six years of association with the Division of Engineering and Irrigation in the discussion of the problems arising in the investigation of the water resources of California, this committee feels that it should at least record its good impression of the efficient manner in which the entire program of investigation has been organized and carried out by the division. Seldom has such an intensive study been made over a long period of time with the thoroughness, efficiency, and complete cooperation of all interests concerned, as has been accomplished in the work described in the accompanying report and its appendices The plan which has been evolved is one of great magnitude and complexity, serving as it does irrigation, domestic water supply, power development, navigation, flood control, hydraulic mining and the prevention of the encroachment of salt water in the delta of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers.

It is the opinion of the committee that the results of the studies as set forth will be of exceedingly great value to the future progress of the state. However, the committee feels that it would be lacking in candor if it did not point out at this time that the value of such a plan depends entirely upon its ultimate completion and operation as outlined, no matter whether constructed by private interests, by the state or federal governments, or by any combination of them.

In order to obtain the benefits of coordination which is the essential feature, it is necessary that the plan be adopted as a whole and a policy be devised that will insure its progressive execution in harmony with existing, pending, and future local projects, and that when completed, the whole be operated in accordance with the method outlined. With such a policy adopted construction may proceed by units.

Respectfully submitted.

FOREWORD

This report, with its appendices, completes an investigation of the Water Resources of California commenced in 1921. It comprises a survey of water supplies and flood flows throughout the State, a determination of their characteristics, an estimate of the present and future needs for water, and the formulation of a comprehensive and coordinated plan for future development that will insure adequate water supplies for all purposes. Reports have already been rendered upon the work of the first four years. The material and data comprising this report are so voluminous that only a summary statement is contained herein. Details are given in separate volumes, appendices to this report, being prepared for publication as bulletins of the Division of Engineering and Irrigation, entitled, as follows:

Bul. 13—"The Development of the Upper Sacramento River."
Bul. 14—"The Control of Floods by Reservoirs"
Bul. 15—"The Coordinated Plan of Water Development in the Sacramento Valley."
Bul. 16—"The Coordinated Plan of Water Development in the San Joaquin Valley."
Bul. 17—"The Coordinated Plan of Water Development in Southern California."

Other bulletins pertaining to these investigations that have been published prior to this report are.

Bul. 4—"Water Resources of California." (A report to the Legislature of 1923 on the first two years of investigation.)
Bul. 5—"Flow in California Streams."
Bul. 6—"Water Requirements of California Lands"
Bul. 9—"A Supplemental Report on the Water Resources of California." (A report to the Legislature of 1925.)
Bul. 11—"Ground Water Resources of the Southern San Joaquin Valley."

The first appropriation for these investigations was made by the Legislature of 1921, chapter 889 of the 1921 statutes, in the amount of $200,000. This resulted in the publication of bulletins Nos. 4, 5, and 6. These contain a complete inventory of all the waters within the State's boundaries, an estimate of the future needs of water for all purposes, and a preliminary comprehensive plan for ultimate development that will secure the greatest public service from the State's limited water supply.

No provision was made for the continuance of the investigations by the 1923 Legislature but at the urgent request of the farmers of the southern San Joaquin Valley, the Chambers of Commerce of San Francisco and Los Angeles advanced $90,000 for the study of a first unit of the comprehensive plan that would relieve the stress in a section of the State most in need of an imported water supply. With this money, works were planned that would transport the surplus waters of the Sacramento drainage basin into the San Joaquin Valley and make a new supply available for the southern half of the valley. An account of this work is published in Bulletin No. 9, a report to the Legislature of 1925.

Chapter 477 of the 1925 statutes made $150,000 available to the division for continuance of the work. With this money, the accompanying report and its appendices were prepared, concluding the investigation of the water resources of California.

SUMMARY REPORT*

WATER RESOURCES OF CALIFORNIA.

California, extending for eight hundred miles along the Pacific shore of the United States, enjoys a moderate and pleasing climate favorable for human activity. The forests and minerals of its mountains, the fertile soils of its valleys, and the commercial potentialities of its seaports destine this State to advance in wealth and population until the exhaustion of some of life's necessities imposes a limit upon further expansion. With spacious areas of flat lands at low elevations, there is much smooth and accessible ground suitable for habitation Natural resources for supporting man's activities, excepting water, are near at hand in abundance.

The water supply of this great State is derived from its annual drenching by rain and snow Falling with greatest intensity upon the mountain areas, these upland regions constitute expansive collectors of precipitation which concentrates in stream-channels and flows to the ocean, passing by on the way the lower lying lands favorable for human occupation. Once a year the short winters wet the mountains and lowlands alike so that the bulk of the flow in California's streams occurs at the time of least demand for water Three-fourths of all the State's waters reach the ocean within forty-five days after the time of their precipitation as rain or snow upon the mountain areas The long, warm, almost rainless summers require water in large quantities for all human endeavor, but the summer flow in the streams, most valued of all, is only the drain water in wake of the great volume of winter and spring run-off. Those streams to which even the highest mountain areas are tributary, are well sustained by melting snow only through the first half of the summer months

Practically all the summer flow of California's streams that are accessible is now in use Further advancement is attendant upon the construction of reservoirs that will make available for use at the needed time, the great volume of winter and spring run-off of normal years. Including this, ample water originates within the State's boundaries for all future needs, but it is very unequally distributed geographically. Three-fourths of all this water lies within the northerly third of the State's area, while three-fourths of the need for water lies in the southerly two-thirds of the State's area. There is some water available to California in addition to that originating within the State's boundaries in the Colorado and Klamath River systems. Of these, however, the Colorado River is the only one geographically situated to alleviate the very unequal distribution of the waters This survey of the available waters and of the future needs for water shows that full development of the latent resources of California can be attained only through the storage and distribution of water in accordance with some comprehensive plan, embracing both State and interstate streams, that will overcome the very unequal geographic distribution of the State's waters and that will insure adequate supplies for all localities.

CHARACTERISTICS OF A COMPREHENSIVE PLAN.

The agricultural lands, by reason of their flatter topography, their temperate climate, and their accessibility, are most suitable of all the State's lands for habitation. Except for areas about the State's seaports, the urban communities of the future must largely spread over lands now classed as agricultural Since cities of fairly mature growth use water about equal in amount to that required for irrigating crops on the same area, a plan that will provide an adequate allotment of water for all the agricultural lands, together with additional amounts for urban expansion about the State's seaports, will meet the future demands for water in the maximum development of the State's resources.

*A full description of the geography, land and water resources of California and matters pertaining thereto, together with a preliminary comprehensive plan for their development, is contained in previously published reports of the Division of Engineering and Irrigation as follows:

At the present time, ninety-six per cent of the water consumed in California is utilized in irrigating farm lands This ratio will continue to be large for many generations because the growth of municipal areas relative to areas farmed, must necessarily be slow. The principal features of a comprehensive plan, therefore, must revolve about the greatly preponderant need of water for agriculture. However, the importance of municipal, industrial, navigation, hydro-electric and mining uses in the future growth of the State requires liberal provision for their needs.

Fortunately the agricultural, municipal, industrial and navigation uses will expand upon areas of low elevation, for three-fifths of the agricultural lands are less than five hundred feet above sea level. The mining and hydro-electric uses will expand in the mountainous regions that rise above the agricultural lands Since these mountain uses of water return to the stream channels practically the full amount diverted, reservoirs to re-regulate the flow situated at levels intermediate between the agricultural and the mountain areas, will permit the unrestricted development of hydro-electric power and mining in harmony with a complete re-use of the same water on the plains below Large reservoirs at these intermediate elevations, therefore, are important features of a comprehensive plan to secure the greatest use from the State's waters.

IMPORTANCE OF ORDERLY DEVELOPMENT

It may be observed in traveling about the State that cities and towns do not flourish where water is deficient. The most prosperous centers of population are those enjoying ample water for both the municipal and adjacent country areas. In a State whose potential wealth, whether derived from industry in the cities or the cultivation of country lands, can only be realized in its full munificence through the artificial development of water supplies, there can be no greater subject for consideration than the creation of a State water policy designed to secure an orderly development of its water resources for the greatest public benefit

NECESSITY OF ACTION.

Since the easily developed waters are now practically all in use, the future must spend greater sums for water than has been necessary in the past. Following the present uncoordinate procedure, the costs of securing additional water in localities of short supply will be large and will become prohibitive as local supplies are exhausted. The expanding population of these communities will then seek more favored localities, either within or without the State's borders. As the unfavorable conditions spread to greater areas the loss to the State will increase rapidly, for only the northerly half of the State has ample water for future local use.

The approach to exhaustion of local supplies in many parts of California presents even more serious aspects than the loss of anticipated wealth through curtailment of expansion. Large areas deriving their supply from underground sources are facing a dropping ground-water plane. These areas are extending as their communities expand. Without additional supplies, well levels in these regions will continue to drop until either the underground basins are exhausted or the cost of pumping water to the ground surface exceeds its value. For the most part, these areas of dropping ground-water plane are only partially developed and are without additional local supplies. Their natural expansion, therefore, will unavoidably destroy the values of their established properties and convert them into decadent communities.

A series of wet years might afford temporary relief to the regions of dropping ground-water plane as well as to other areas of acute water problems; however, unless plans for permanent relief are perfected during the surcease, the disaster will be the greater, for the next succeeding dry years will be entered upon with increased demands for water but no greater supply. The prosperity of any part of this great State should not rest even temporarily upon the chance occurrence of greater-than-normal years Works to relieve these communities are extensive in their character and involve many difficulties. They cannot be executed without long preparation. To defer action, therefore, is to invite future disaster.

Much has recently been said about converting agriculture from a "gamble" into a "business" so that farming may be as other industries. This would be done through diversification of crops and control of production. The diversification of crops and control of production can only be attained in localities where irrigation water is available as needed in all seasons of the year. Variability in the water supply forces the selection of crops best adapted to expected shortages. Uncertainty in supply forces the farmer to gamble on the occurrence of stream flow and prohibits the control of production

Not over two-thirds of the area now under irrigation in California can obtain water as needed with reasonable certainty. Large areas of the State's irrigated lands have been planted to crops most suited to the irregular character of their water supplies and suffer the losses contingent upon variable soil moisture. The perfection of controlled supplies is under way in many communities that can afford the cost. However inadequate local sources, the heavy costs of regulating last increments of stream flow, and conflicting claims to water rights, make progress slow. Progress would be facilitated by the adoption of a comprehensive plan that would ultimately furnish with reasonable certainty adequate supplies to all localities throughout the growing season.

VALUE OF COORDINATED DEVELOPMENT.

The cost of carrying out a comprehensive plan that would permit the agricultural industry to operate as a business and that would remove the limitations of development on half of the area of this State, would be large; yet, there is no alternative if these objectives are to be attained. The costs may be minimized, however, by coordination of the development of water for all purposes. Through this means the cost of conflict may be removed, the cost of duplicate works may be eliminated, the cost of expensive reconstruction may be avoided as works are enlarged, and the greatest re-use of water may be secured This report is the first to present the advantages of coordinated effort It is believed that through this means only can values be created commensurate with the large costs of a comprehensive plan, and that possibly through this means the State may enjoy advantages not heretofore believed possible.

THE COORDINATED PLAN.

As directed by your honorable body in chapter 477 of the 1925 Statutes, the Division of Engineering and Irrigation, State Department of Public Works, has prepared a coordinated plan for the development of the waters in the major geographic divisions of the State. This plan provides for the storage of flood waters for conservation purposes, the transportation of surplus waters of the Sacramento drainage basin to the deficient areas in the San Joaquin Valley, an adequate summer flow in the Sacramento River for navigation and salt water control, the resumption of hydraulic mining in the Sierra Nevada Mountains, the control of floods by reservoirs, the expansion of irrigation along the lower Colorado River in southeastern California, and the diversion of water from that river to the Pacific slope for municipal purposes All sections could not be considered because of the limitations of time and money. However, any policy that may result from this report should be extended to all parts of the State.

A general description of the plan follows in this report. The volume of pertinent engineering data and detail dimensions is contained in separate appendices,* one for each geographic section of the State.

THE SACRAMENTO VALLEY.

The Sacramento Valley, 170 miles long and 30 miles wide, contains 2,900,000 acres of agricultural land on the valley floor and 2,300,000 acres in its marginal plains and foothills This valley has been growing rapidly. About 1,000,000 acres are now under irrigation systems, mostly on the valley floor The expansion of irrigation has absorbed practically the entire summer flow of the river during the last several years of subnormal run-off, so much so, that for a time each season, navigation was seriously curtailed upstream from the city of Sacramento. The War Department issued warnings to the valley irrigators that sufficient water for navigation must be left in the river. In response, the irrigators organized a state supervisorship over their diversions to reduce them to a minimum quantity. A critical situation is approaching wherein the necessary appropriation of water for irrigation is conflicting with the national jurisdiction over navigation.

Further difficulties arise near the mouth of the river The diminished low water flow of the Sacramento River has been insufficient to hold back the salt water of Suisun Bay. For a period each season, the sweep of the tide through the channels of the delta region at the mouth of the river, carries in salt water from Suisun Bay that mixes with the fresh water of the river. As the summer flow in the river decreases, the menace of salty water becomes more serious in the channels from which the delta lands have habitually obtained their supply. These threatened lands are some of the most fertile in the State

Although the unused summer flow of the Sacramento River is rapidly diminishing, the winter and spring flow is large In their natural state, these waters overflowed large areas along the river. In 1911 the State Legislature and in 1917 the National Congress adopted a general plan of reclamation by which channels and by-passes lead this flood water in Suisun Bay without inundating the valley floor. These channels are wide due to the great flood flows of the Sacramento River. They take up much room and will constitute increasingly awkward barriers to traffic as the valley becomes more thickly populated. Although some of these channels and by-passes are already constructed, nevertheless, reduction in the size of floods would afford greater margins of safety and, on those channels not yet constructed, the widths could be materially decreased. Floods can be reduced in size only through their control by reservoirs Therefore, at this time when the construction of reservoirs is necessary in order that agriculture may continue to expand in the Sacramento Valley, it is appropriate that the control of floods by reservoirs should receive consideration

*A detailed description of the coordinated plan with engineering data is in preparation for publication in bulletins of the Division of Engineering and Irrigation as follows: Bul. No. 15 "The Coordinated Plan of Water Development in the Sacramento Valley." Bul. No. 16. "The Coordinated Plan of Water Development in the San Joaquin Valley." Bul. No. 17, "The Coordinated Plan of Water Development in Southern California."

Attention should also be given in a program of reservoir construction to the rejuvenation of hydraulic mining. On January 7, 1884, a decision of a federal court prohibited further hydraulic mining in California because the debris dumped in the stream channels was washing down on to the farm lands of the Sacramento Valley floor. Although later congressional enactments provided for the resumption of hydraulic mining under restrictions, the 1000 million cubic yards of gold-bearing gravels in the Sierra foothills remain unmined. It would mean much to the State to revive this industry and much to the nation to increase its gold production. In order that this industry may be revived, it is necessary to place barriers in the stream channels to restrain the debris from reaching the valley floor. Reservoirs constructed for conservation purposes may be so used. If these are located on the lower reaches of the streams, several years will pass before the debris will work its way down the stream channels to lodge in or near the upper edge of the reservoirs. Much of it would pile up at their margins or fill the channels for a distance upstream Other material would lodge in the channels before reaching them. Such material would not impair their capacity. Reservoirs employed as debris barriers, therefore, would maintain their full conservation values for many years after mining started and would never have their capacity impaired to the full extent of the volume of mining debris dumped into the stream channels above them.

The coordinated plan for the Sacramento Valley comprehends the solution of all these public problems, water for navigation and salt water control, the reduction of flood flows, and the restraint of mining debris, while at the same time providing for the increasing demands for irrigation water through the construction of a large reservoir on the Sacramento River, one on each of its main tributaries, and the diversion of the upper portion of the Trinity River into the Sacramento drainage basin. These reservoirs are all located in the foothills near the edge of the valley floor. In this position, with almost the entire watershed tributary to them, they are admirably situated for the control of floods and the storage of mining debris as well as for conserving flood water for irrigation. Also, in this strategic position, they separate the mountain and valley use of water, permitting each to proceed as best suits its needs without conflict, and so secure the maximum public service from the State's limited water supply. Lastly, they occupy the sites of least cost for the many advantages obtained.

The units of a coordinated construction program comprise a high dam near Kennett on the upper Sacramento River, one on the Feather River near Oroville, one on the Yuba River near Smartsville, one on the Bear River near the State highway crossing, and one on the American River near Folsom The Trinity River diversion would introduce a new supply from the Klamath River system into the Sacramento Valley These would each be integral parts of the comprehensive plan for ultimate development, could be constructed progressively, and would provide sufficient water to meet all the increase in demands of navigation, of salt water control and of conservation during the next half century if operated in accordance with the plan herein presented. The reservoir capacities of these units are adequate to reduce floods and, on those streams on which placer gravels exist, to restrain mining debris for many years without interference with their conservation values. Also a large amount of electric power could be generated at the dams.

In preparing this coordinated plan, special attention has been placed upon devising a safe procedure for the use of reservoirs for flood control without sacrifice of their conservation values Heretofore, it has been considered impossible to use the same space for the two purposes, because for flood control it should be held empty during the season of large run-off in readiness to absorb flood flows, while for conservation it should be allowed to fill while the water is available After elaborate research to determine the characteristics of floods, a method has been evolved whereby the space reserved for flood control can be safely released in time to fill for conservation as the season progresses.

The application of these principles to the operation of the series of proposed reservoirs in the Sacramento Valley would effect a marked reduction in the flood flows in all the large tributaries as well as in the main channel. On the upper Sacramento, the flood flow would be cut to half the maximum, a reduction that would make it feasible to reclaim Butte Basin, if desired On the Feather, Yuba and Bear rivers, floods would be controlled to two-thirds their maximum volume. This reduction would permit reclamation along the Feather River to be completed without much additional levee construction and with the use of the present levee alignments except for a mile or two in a particularly restricted section of channel below Marysville On the American River, the Folsom reservoir operated under this plan, would limit floods on this tributary to a flow that could be confined between levees on the banks of the present river channel The cities of Sacramento and North Sacramento could then expand to the river's edge and so eliminate the awkwardness of the present crossing that spans a wide area of overflow land between them.

Since power is the most readily marketable product of the reservoir system, the plan proposes to operate these reservoirs for the first period of years in a manner that will produce the greatest revenue from power. The block of power generated at these reservoirs should produce a substantial income if successfully marketed. The output is large. Including the Trinity River diversion, it is about equal to the present total production of power in northern California. To sell this large block of power will require skill in laying out the construction program and the complete cooperation of every marketing agency. Without this cooperation, a program as herein described would be wholly impracticable. With this cooperation, the sale of power could do much toward carrying the construction costs.

In proposing to operate this system of reservoirs for the first period of years to obtain the greater power revenue, the other benefits to be derived from their construction would not be neglected. Through the program of reservoir operation devised by these investigations, the flood control values could be secured without material interference with the generation of power. The water from the tailrace of power plants would be ample for navigation, irrigation and salt water control for a long time. On the streams on which placer gravels exist, the accumulation of mining debris in the reservoirs, in being slow and not affecting the power drop at the dam, would not materially affect the power output.

At the end of the period of operation for greatest power revenue, the system of operating the reservoirs would be gradually changed to that producing the largest flow regulated for irrigation purposes. This change in the method of operation would about double the summer flow yield of the reservoirs. Power could still be generated, but being largely seasonal power, could only be marketed in part. Following this scheme, the summer flow in the Sacramento River could be adequately maintained for all purposes in the face of increasing diversions for the next half century.

The realization of such a program would be of inestimable value to navigation, salt water control, mining, flood control, irrigation and farming in general. It would secure for the present day the great advantages of a substantial summer flow in the Sacramento River for navigation, the advantages of salt water control in the delta region, the rejuvenation of hydraulic placer mining, and a substantial reduction in the flood flows. None of these could be obtained in nearly such full measure for years to come except through a coordinated program of development. These advantages all have such real and substantial value that earnest consideration should be given to the recommendations contained in this report.

The probable costs of the units of the coordinated plan, including spillways, gates, sluices, tunnels, conduits and power plants required to accomplish the results described herein, are:

Unit	Stream	Height of dam, feet	Capacity of reservoir, acre-feet	Total cost
Kennett Reservoir	Upper Sacramento	420	2,900,000	$80,000,000
Oroville Reservoir	Feather	300	345,000	35,000,000
Narrows Reservoir	Yuba	435	445,000	30,000,000
Parker Reservoir	Bear	250	100,000	6,000,000
Folsom Reservoir	American	190	307,000	11,000,000
Fairview Reservoir	Trinity	370	1,400,000	*46,000,000
Total				$208,000,000

The plan does not include the construction of canals for distributing the water developed by these reservoirs, although studies have been made of alternate layouts. In general, the public advantage of following one particular scheme of canal construction was not found to be large. It is believed that this part of the program can be most effectively carried out by local effort as necessity arises. Therefore, the plan for the Sacramento Valley is confined to the production of a full supply of water in the stream channels in a way that will secure the maximum public service from these waters at the least expense.

THE SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY.

The San Joaquin Valley, 250 miles long and 40 miles wide, comprises the largest continuous block of agricultural land in the State. On the vast plains of the valley floor are 6,600,000 acres of land having gentle slope and flat surface conformation favorable for agriculture. The marginal foothills to the east and south add 1,800,000 acres more, making a total of 8,400,000 acres of agricultural land in the San Joaquin Valley, one-third of all the agricultural lands in the State.

Favorable conditions for growing crops, other than scant rainfall, have made this valley a pioneer section in irrigation. One-half of the lands now under irrigation in California are in the San Joaquin Valley. Much of this land has an imperfect water supply. Some receives little or no water in dry years, other areas receive only a partial supply, and over half of the projects are short of water during the late summer months. Less than half of the area under irrigation has an adequate water supply throughout all seasons. Nevertheless, this development is utilizing all the low-water flow of the streams in the northern half of the valley and four-fifths of the entire run-off of the streams in the southern half.

The perfection of supplies in the northern half of the valley concerns principally the preparation of suitable economic plans for constructing storage reservoirs to hold over winter and spring flood waters for summer use. This has already been done or is now in progress on most of the projects in the northern half of the valley. In the southern half, however, the perfection of present inadequate supplies necessitates the importation of large amounts of new water that presents problems insurmountable to local effort. Here more than four-fifths of the mean flow of the streams is now in use although no reservoirs have been constructed. The irregular diversions from the rivers are supplemented by pumping from underground sources on one-third of the irrigated lands while on another third the entire supply is derived from wells. Favored with large areas overlying excellent supplies of underground water,* the southern San Joaquin Valley has enjoyed an attractive source of water easy for individuals to develop. So encouraged, extensive communities dependent upon irrigated agriculture have come into being. Their wealth is reflected in their assessed valuation that shows a greater investment in rural improvements than any other section of the State excepting properties adjacent to our largest cities.

Although intensive development is in progress, there is still much good land in these communities without an adequate water supply. Nevertheless, so extensive is the use of underground water that the water plane is receding in many places. Experience is demonstrating that these underground supplies are not sufficient for the full development of the overlying lands so that at some point in the progress of expansion, the draft from the underground waters must exceed their average supply. There are now about half a million acres in the southern San Joaquin Valley supporting prosperous communities, that are either overdrawing their underground supplies or are approaching this condition. These areas are constantly growing larger. Their available surface supplies are already put to full use. Therefore new water from some outside source is essential for continued growth and prosperity. Without it, the level of the underground waters upon which the southern half of the valley is so dependent must permanently recede over extending areas until the profit in farming is entirely consumed in pumping the irrigation supplies to the ground surface.

The complication in the approach to exhaustion of the water supply in the southern San Joaquin Valley is of State-wide concern, for there is no simple means of relief. There is no way to stop the sinking of new wells. All the overlying lands have the legal right to pump from the underground sources if they choose. The construction of storage reservoirs on local streams would help temporarily, but little new water would be created thereby because four-fifths of the mean flow in the streams is already in use. The principal value of storage reservoirs would be in effecting a controlled supply. Unused water in other parts of the San Joaquin Valley is not available for the southern half, because there are areas of deficient supply close at hand to the few regions of surplus. The valley as a whole has little more than half enough water for its future needs. Therefore, a permanent solution to the water problem of the southern San Joaquin Valley can only be attained by the importation of a large supply from some outside source.

The most accessible region of surplus is the Sacramento and upper Trinity drainage basins. Here is ample water, taken with the San Joaquin Valley streams, for the full development of both valleys. The complication and large cost of transporting the surplus waters of the Sacramento several hundred miles to the southern San Joaquin Valley, requires a comprehensive treatment of the problem. The coordinated plan proposes to correlate the conveyance of a new supply into the southern San Joaquin Valley with the development of water for local needs throughout the length of the two valleys. In this way the new supply may be obtained with full protection to established properties.

Accordingly, the new supply for the San Joaquin Valley would be derived from the water used to maintain navigation in the channel of the Sacramento River. After serving its useful purpose in the Sacramento Valley, this water would be diverted at the mouth of the river into the San Joaquin. Passing through the channels of the island region forming the delta of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, it would be boosted up the main channel of the San Joaquin by a series of pumping plants, each one pumping the water over a low dam to the higher level of the pond behind it. These dams would be collapsible so that they would not obstruct the channel during the flood season. They would be so located that, if desired, locks could be constructed alongside them that would make the San Joaquin River navigable for a distance of 160 miles from its mouth.

This series of dams and pumping plants, extending the length of the main channel on the valley floor, would also constitute a means of conserving the scant water supply of the San Joaquin Valley. Water entering any section of the channel would be caught by these dams and redistributed throughout its length by the pumping plants. Thus water, entering the lower reaches of the channel, that often escapes into Suisun Bay, could be readily utilized by the greater area upon which it could be served.

The new supply of water obtained through the operation of these dams and pumping plants would be distributed to the lower lying lands in the San Joaquin Valley in order that the pumping lift may be a minimum. This would release San Joaquin water now used on these lower lands, at high elevations for diversion by gravity to the lands in the southern San Joaquin Valley that need more water. In this manner, the new supply could be obtained with a maximum pumping lift of 160 feet. The exchange of waters would save 340 feet of pumping lift. All plans for conducting the new supply directly to the higher lands that need water, either by gravity or by pumping, were found to be prohibitive in cost. The only plan of practicable proportions includes exchanges of water and involves properties extending the entire length of Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys. The exchange of water is now practiced in several western states.

In diverting the water used for navigation in the Sacramento River to the San Joaquin, a certain portion would escape into Suisun Bay unless a physical barrier were constructed below the junction of the two rivers. Investigations of the cost of such a barrier have been completed recently in cooperation with the United States Bureau of Reclamation. These reveal that the probable cost would vary from $45,000,000 to $90,000,000 according to the site selected. This exceeds considerably the cost of developing the volume of water that would escape into Suisun Bay if no barrier were constructed. At some future time when this volume of escape water is needed for irrigation in the San Joaquin Valley, a physical barrier could be constructed in order to make it available. In the meantime, the escape of this water into Suisun Bay would automatically dispel the menace of incursion of salt water into the channels of the delta region. The volume of water desirable for navigation in the Sacramento River is adequate for both salt water control and diversion into the San Joaquin Valley for a long time. Thus, the coordinated plan avoids the large cost of a barrier for many years to come.

In pumping the new supply from the Sacramento up the grade of the San Joaquin River, it will be necessary to construct levees along the banks of the river for a distance upstream from each dam in order to confine the water to the stream channel at its increased level. The required height of these levees would grow less as the next upstream dam is approached, until at some intermediate point, the ponded stream would be confined within the natural banks of the channel. The coordinated plan proposes to incorporate these levees in a general plan of reclamation for the overflow lands of the San Joaquin Valley.

Unlike the Sacramento Valley, the strip of overflow land in the San Joaquin is so narrow that the reservation of a channel large enough to pass the maximum flood leaves an insufficient area benefited to pay for the cost of the levee system. Although much study has been placed on plans for reclaiming these overflow lands, an economic plan of complete reclamation has not yet been devised. However, opportunity is afforded by the coordinated plan to improve these conditions because the required width of flood channels could be reduced if the scheme of reservoir operation devised by these investigations, were applied to the reservoirs on the tributaries of the San Joaquin that are either already constructed or will be required to meet the demand of the next few years for irrigation water. These will have sufficient capacity to reduce flood volumes without interference with conservation, to nearly half their maximum flow except for the lower one-third of the main river channel. On this section some reduction could be effected but not as much as on the upper two-thirds of the channel.

At some later time, a greater degree of flood control can be effected on the San Joaquin River than here described. The reservoirs now constructed and at present contemplated on its tributaries will not develop the entire run-off of these streams. Additional storage will have to be provided at some future time for conservation purposes. By including this additional storage in the flood control system, floods may be reduced to smaller volumes than described above. This additional storage is part of the comprehensive plan for the ultimate development of the San Joaquin Valley, but is not included in the units here suggested because it will be some time before it is needed for conservation purposes.

Large reservoir units, sufficient in size to make the entire run-off of the streams available in controlled supplies, are included in the coordinated plan for the southern part of the San Joaquin Valley. Such a large fraction of the entire stream flow is already utilized in this part of the valley, that even by the construction of these large reservoirs, the new supplies made available would be sufficient to serve the normal growth for only a few years. However, they could temporarily relieve the stress caused by the overdraft on underground waters in the southern half of the valley.

The construction of these reservoirs would accomplish more than the development of some additional water and the delivery of completely controlled supplies. A very considerable amount of power could be generated as well. In order to generate the largest amount of power possible with an economic installation, the coordinated plan proposes that about one-fifth of the peak irrigation demand on the area served directly from the reservoirs, be supplied by pumping from the underground basins.

By so doing, the draft on the reservoirs would be more nearly constant throughout the season and a greater output of salable power could be generated. Also, by pumping still greater volumes of water from the underground basins during years of subnormal run-off, completely regulated supplies could be delivered to the land with smaller reservoirs than otherwise would be needed. The coordinated plan proposes that this be done to the extent that the total cost of completely regulated supplies would thereby be reduced. An exceptional opportunity exists for an economic arrangement of this character, for one-half of the area now receiving water from the rivers through canals is already equipped with wells and pumping plants.

These same reservoirs could easily be used for controlling floods. Their capacity would be sufficient, if operated under the plan herein proposed, to reduce floods to one-half their maximum flow without interference with their conservation functions.

Plans for constructing storage reservoirs on the upper San Joaquin, Kings and Kern rivers, the largest streams of the southern San Joaquin Valley, are now being perfected by water-storage and conservation districts. These are organizations of the many corporate units that now utilize water from these streams or desire to do so. The coordinated plan in no way conflicts with the plans of these districts. It is distinguished from them in providing for a more complete development than the studies of the districts indicate are desirable if the entire costs are assessed against the lands within the projects. The coordinated plan sets forth greater accomplishments for public consideration.

A series of trunk canals is included in the comprehensive plan for the ultimate development of the San Joaquin Valley. These canals would extend southerly, one from each main tributary of the San Joaquin River and one also from the American River in the Sacramento Valley. They would divert at the highest practical elevation on the edge of the valley floor that would not involve expensive foothill construction. The function of these canals would be to feed the water from each tributary into systems of distribution canals at the highest possible elevation. This would take water now used in one system and deliver it to another system further south upon receipt of an equivalent amount from some other source. No exchange of ownership in supplies is suggested. Following this system, the entire valley floor may ultimately be brought under irrigation with the maximum economy in pumping the new supply imported from the Sacramento Valley. Even with this economic arrangement, the pumping lift on much of the imported water that ultimately will be required to irrigate the entire valley floor will be large.

Only two of these trunk canals will be needed for some time to come. These two take out from the upper San Joaquin River and the Kings River, respectively, and are necessary to convey a new supply into the area of dropping ground water plane in the southern San Joaquin Valley. They are part of the first construction units of the coordinated plant for importing surplus Sacramento River water into the San Joaquin Valley. With these two canals in operation, new supplies could be delivered into the heart of the area that needs them

The probable costs of the reservoirs of the coordinated plan in the southern San Joaquin Valley that will yield, in conjunction with the ground water development already existent, completely regulated supplies of irrigation water, control floods to one-half their maximum values, and develop incidental hydro-electric power to the greatest economic extent, are:

Unit	Stream	Height of dam, feet	Capacity of reservoir, acre-feet	Total cost
Temperance Flat Reservoir	Upper San Joaquin	595	1,100,000	$51,000,000
Pine Flat Reservoir	Kings River	450	1,400,000	35,000,000
Isabella Reservoir	Kern River	250	1,100,000	40,000,000
Bakersfield Reservoir	Kern River	140	200,000
Total				$126,000,000

The foregoing estimates include the cost of spillways, gates, sluices, tunnels, conduits and power plant required for conservation, flood control and power development. On the Kern River the estimate includes conduits and power plants to develop the entire power drop through the Kern Canyon, between the Isabella Reservoir and the Bakersfield Reservoir, exclusive of the capacity of the power plants now operating in the Kern River Canyon.

The probable cost of the first units of the coordinated plan for introducing a new supply from the Sacramento into the southern San Joaquin Valley, that will have a capacity of three thousand second-feet, the equivalent supply for 450,000 acres of new land, is

Item	Cost
Dams and pumping plants on San Joaquin River complete with levees along river banks	$13,000,000
Canals extending southerly from Friant on upper San Joaquin River to Kings River and from Kings River southerly to near Earlimart	11,000,000
Total	$24,000,000

The foregoing estimate does not include the cost of the salt water barrier that will undoubtedly be ultimately required, nor any part of the cost of the coordinated plan in the Sacramento Valley that is necessary to make the surplus water of the Sacramento drainage basin available for diversion into the San Joaquin Valley; neither does the estimate of cost of the dams and pumping plants on the San Joaquin River include the cost of locks that would be necessary at each dam to render the river navigable.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

California, southerly from Tehachapi Pass, embraces twenty per cent of the area of the State that is favorable for human habitation, while but little over one per cent of the State's waters, exclusive of the Colorado River, are tributary thereto. Although possessing a disproportionately small share of the waters originating within the State's boundaries, these lands have experienced a rapidity of settlement and improvement that has amazed the entire world. Already one-fifth of the area possessing a water supply on the Pacific slope lies within the limits of incorporated cities and towns, and this ratio is continuously growing larger. The relinquishment of agricultural land for urban use does not reduce the total water consumption, as cities of fairly mature growth use water in amounts about equal to that required for irrigating the same area. The demand for water, therefore, can never grow less in southern California, but larger supplies will be needed for industries and manufactories within cities, and for the extension of agriculture to the limits of the available lands if supplies for this purpose can be found.

A survey of the available waters, both surface and underground, shows that four-fifths of the local supplies on the Pacific slope of southern California, excluding Owens Valley, are now in use. Utilizing four-fifths of the available local water, less than half of the favorable area is occupied by cities or towns and irrigated lands. In order that growth and expansion may continue to the full limit of the natural resources other than water, the Pacific slope of southern California will require three times the volume of water that can be obtained from nature's allotment to this territory. Unless this additional water can be secured, the future must face a curtailed growth incommensurate with the opportunities offered by the other natural endowments of this remarkable territory.

The development and use of the local supplies is attended not only by the usual complexities of the California water law but also by the problem of dropping ground-water plane similar to that of the southern San Joaquin Valley. The problem is serious because three-fourths of the local waters now in use are taken from underground sources. Observations of ground water levels during the years 1922 to 1925 show that drops have generally prevailed and that, in three seasons, the water plane has receded over large areas as much as fifteen to fifty feet Although the greater values in southern California permit pumping from greater depths than in the San Joaquin Valley, nevertheless, the inadequacy of the underground supplies for the support of the full development of the overlying lands results in a similar necessity for imported water. Unless large amounts of water can be so obtained, the southern communities must suffer from the destructive competition of pumping from underground sources that have a receding water-plane Such competition will burden the communities with prohibitive pumping costs and attendant loss in property values, and in the end reach their limit.

The threatened exhaustion of local waters has not occurred only through the foresight of Mr. William Mulholland, chief engineer of the Bureau of Water Works and Supply of the city of Los Angeles. Because of the importation of water from Owens Valley for the city of Los Angeles, there are still some local waters available for the expanding uses of adjacent territory. Further relief may be obtained by extending the Owens Valley project to include the waters of Mono Basin. However, a complete development of the surplus or unused water from these sources would import in total but a quarter of the water that will ultimately be desired for the Pacific slope of southern California in addition to their local supplies Nevertheless, Owens Valley and Mono Basin are important sources of additional water, as they will be required ultimately in any event irrespective of the acquirement of other supplies. Studies have been pursued to find sources from which adequate supplies for the future may be secured These investigations show that sufficient surplus water exists in California, only in the north Pacific coast region 600 miles distant and separated by mountain barriers that could be pierced only at costs beyond our present conception of possibilities.

In the absence of supplies sufficient for all future purposes, attention should be directed toward providing for municipal and domestic needs. The rapid rate at which lands, formerly agricultural, are being converted into urban and suburban properties in southern California, makes it difficult to distinguish between irrigation and potential domestic water. In fact, it appears that ultimately, practically the entire use of water on the Pacific slope will be urban or suburban in character. The pleasing climate of this section is attracting residential settlement from all the states of the Union that will be limited only by the available water supply. However, distinguishing between these two uses for the next third of a century, an analysis of the past and present rate of increase in the demand for municipal water indicates that a continuous supply of 1500 second-feet will be required in addition to water in present use, to serve the normal expansion of the metropolitan areas of this region.

It is generally conceded in the division of the waters of the Colorado River that fifteen hundred second-feet should be allotted to the Pacific slope of southern California for municipal purposes. It is anticipated that this will become available with the passage of the Swing-Johnson bill for the construction of the Boulder Canyon dam on the Colorado River, now pending in Congress It is vitally important to the entire State, not only that this water should be secured for the cities and towns of the Pacific slope of southern California, but also that the advantages that will accrue from the construction of the Boulder Canyon dam in the control of floods and of the greater summer flow, should be obtained for the California lands bordering on the lower Colorado River.

The construction of the Boulder Canyon dam is one of the most important issues before the public at this time for the deficiency in the natural water supply of southern California and the control of floods on the lower Colorado River is a matter of serious concern. Although it is not apparent from what source the required large volumes of new water can be obtained for the full development of the Pacific slope, nevertheless, present attention should be directed towards securing those new supplies that are available on the Colorado River and elsewhere and in coordinating their use to obtain the greatest benefit from their limited amounts. In this effort, these investigations have cooperated to the fullest extent with the Bureau of Water Works and Supply of the city of Los Angeles in their projected plans Data, analyses, and plans of accomplishment have been exchanged with this office Separate and independent estimates of water requirements, of water supplies and of plans of development have been made and placed at its disposal.

In the study of local supplies, special attention has been placed upon the coordination of surface storage in reservoirs, the control of floods, and the replenishment of the underground basins from which such a large part of local water is obtained. The Los Angeles County Flood Control District has under way the construction of a series of twelve reservoirs for these purposes on the principal streams in Los Angeles County. Such reservoirs will be desirable on all local streams in southern California as growth continues. The intensive development in progress creates a particularly large flood hazard and makes the reservation of large flood channels undesirable. The reduction of flood flows by reservoirs is therefore very desirable.

Unfortunately, reservoirs on nearly all the streams are costly One exception is at the Prado site near the entrance to the Santa Ana Canyon. Here large capacity can be obtained at fair costs A reservoir at this point would control the floods of the Santa Ana River on the coastal plain and make available for use considerable amounts of flood water that now run into the ocean. A plan for the complete development and control of floods on the Santa Ana River is now in process of assembly through special investigations being carried out in cooperation with San Bernardino, Riverside and Orange counties Reservoir sites have been selected on all the tributaries of the Santa Ana River at locations that would control the floods as they debouch on the valley floor. These sites are all more costly than the one at Prado; however, it is believed that their construction will become desirable.

The coordinated plan proposes that reservoirs be constructed on all the principal streams and that they be operated both for conservation and flood control. Although the total quantity of flood water reaching the ocean is relatively small, still it can be most effectively conserved by these methods. The principal storage of water would be in the large natural underground basins on the lower reaches of the stream where these are available. These offer a splendid opportunity for cheap storage in many basins. However, some surface storage is necessary even in these instances in order to equalize the stream flow. In the natural state, flood waters rush down the channels in volumes too large for absorption by the underground basins. By reducing these flows through reservoir control, practically their entire volume could be introduced into the underground basins through absorption by the stream channels or by prepared spreading works.

The desirable capacities for these reservoirs have not been finally determined at the time of writing this summary report so that their cost can not be tabulated, however, they will be large The coordinated plan will secure the greatest results from their use in the same manner as proposed in the coordinated plan for the Sacramento and San Joaquin valleys By the application of the principles developed by these investigations for the combined use of reservoirs for conservation and flood control, the conservation value of their space will not be sacrificed for flood control. In this way the maximum results will be attained at minimum cost.

It is believed that these principles of reservoir operation for flood control can also be applied to the Boulder Canyon reservoir to advantage. Their application should result in a more effective utilization of the reservoir capacity than has been contemplated because they secure flood control without the sacrifice of any reservoir space. These principles will be fully set forth in an appendix* to this report.

RECOMMENDATIONS.

California, endowed by nature with climate, soils, forests, minerals, and harbors favorable for an advanced civilization, is dependent, nevertheless, upon the artificial development of water-supplies for the complete fruition of its many advantages. At this time in the progress of expansion when all the easily developed supplies are now in use, it is of the greatest importance to every person and to every industry that expects to partake of the future prosperity of this State, to have assurance that progress shall not be arrested by the lack of adequate water supplies.

The creation of a State water policy that will insure to present and future generations the uncurtailed development of natural resources along sound and economic lines would be an outstanding achievement. The benefits would be far reaching. All activities are vitally concerned in water. Although the total requirements of agriculture greatly exceed those of industry and commerce, nevertheless, industry and commerce would indirectly reap the greater benefit. They will endure and expand most successfully in the midst of thriving agriculture. Agriculture in California requires large quantities of water. The total supply is limited and unequally distributed over the State.

This report presents an engineering plan whereby, through coordination of effort, those sections deficient in local supply may enjoy adequate water for agricultural and all other purposes. The new supplies for the deficient areas would be taken from regions of surplus after providing for their complete development. This plan is presented as the one containing the fewest difficulties in the attainment of the desired accomplishments. While only the major areas were considered in formulating the plan, any policy that may result should extend to all parts of the State alike.

So extensive is the area, so many and varied are the interests, and so great are the expenditures involved in this plan that the usual method of procedure is impracticable. The economic, financial, legal and political problems relating to its execution are so complex and far reaching that they should be the subject of careful deliberation. The broad values and public advantages of the plan should be weighed with the costs and difficulties. Methods of execution, of operation and of financing should be considered along with the extent to which costs should be distributed. In view of the intricate nature of these problems and their momentous bearing upon the future of California, the division and its advisors earnestly recommend that a committee representative of all those concerned in the development of the water resources of California, including national and State offices, be appointed solely for the purpose of determining first, the practicability of carrying out this plan, and second, if found to be practicable, to recommend a method of procedure.

PRESENTATION OF PETITIONS.

The following petitions were presented, and ordered printed in the Journal:

By Chief Clerk:

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION OF CALIFORNIA,
SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, January 17, 1927.

Believing that the law known as the "California Anti-syndicalism Law" is contrary to the constitutionally guaranteed rights of American citizens, and contrary to the principles upon which true democracy is founded, we, the "Woman's Christian Temperance Union of California" in executive session assembled, petition the California Legislature at its present session to repeal the "California Anti-syndicalism Law."

By Mr. Speaker:

CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO, January 17, 1927.

State Legislature, Sacramento, California.

Enclosed please find copy of verdict in the case of Mario Pagano, deceased, which is self-explanatory.

Very sincerely,

THOS. B. W. LELAND,
Coroner of the City and County of San Francisco.

State of California, }
City and County of San Francisco } ss.

Inquisition taken at the coroner's court on the twenty-first day of October, 1926, before Dr. T. B. W. Leland, coroner of said city and county, upon view of the body of Mario Pagano, then and there lying dead, upon the oath of ten jurors, good and lawful men of the city and county, who being duly summoned and sworn to inquire into all the circumstances attending the death of the said Mario Pagano and by whom the same was produced, and in what manner and when and where the said Mario Pagano came to his death, do say upon their oath aforesaid:

That the said Mario Pagano, male, white, about 36 years old, single, born in Italy, occupation, merchant (soft drink parlor), residence, 1005 Powell street, came to his death at Clay and Powell streets on October 10, 1926, from shock and hemorrhage following gunshot wound of chest severing right subclavian artery.

And we further find: That said deceased came to his death at the hands of Clarence Kelly and Lawrence Weeks, and we hereby charge said Clarence Kelly and Lawrence Weeks with the crime of murder.

On account of the ease with which the two men concerned in this crime obtained their firearms from irresponsible persons and on account of the wave of crime existing in the United States at the present time in which not only ordinary firearms but machine guns are being used, we the jury, recommend the passage of a national bill to restrict the sale and use of firearms; also that the Governor, State Legislature, the public press and all State and civic bodies lend their active support toward the passage of proper legislation controlling the sale, possession and use of firearms.

By Mrs. Woodbridge:

COMMISSIONER FOR CALIFORNIA
NEVADA TRANSCONTINENTAL HIGHWAYS EXPOSITION

AUBURN, January 18, 1927.

Cora M. Woodbridge, Member of the Assembly,
Sacramento, California.

DEAR MRS. WOODBRIDGE: As you were one of those who took a prominent part in the introduction and passage of the act of the Legislature making provision for California's participation in the Nevada Transcontinental Highways Exposition to be held at Reno, June 29 to August 5, 1927, I am pleased to inform you that the California Building is completed, and is a credit to the architect and the builders. It is of Mission architecture.

Everything is moving nicely, applications for county exhibit space are coming in rapidly, and the exposition proper has gotten to the point where it is an assured success. Reno is going to give us a wonderful show, typical of the West and great out doors, and California will do her part, both as to exhibits of her wares, and also as to genuine hospitality toward the visitor.

Should the members of the Legislature desire to make the trip to Reno some time in the future, say during the second part of the session, I would be glad to make the necessary arrangements with the exposition management for the dedication of the California Building, and with the Reno people for their reception and entertainment.

Yours very truly,

W. A. SHEPARD,
Commissioner for California.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The following message from the Governor was received, read, and ordered printed in the Journal.

BUDGET MESSAGE OF C. C. YOUNG, GOVERNOR OF CALIFORNIA.

To the Members of the Senate and Assembly

The budget herewith presented has been prepared in accordance with section 34 of article IV of the State constitution, which reads in part as follows:

> "The Governor shall, within the first thirty days of each regular session of the Legislature, and prior to its recess, submit to the Legislature, with an explanatory message, a budget containing a complete plan and itemized statement of all proposed expenditures of the State provided by existing law or recommended by him, and of all its institutions, departments, boards, bureaus, commissions, officers, employees, and other agencies, and of all estimated revenues, for each fiscal year of the ensuing biennial period; together with a comparison, as to each item of revenues and expenditures, with the actual revenues and expenditures for the first fiscal year of the existing biennial period and the actual and estimated revenues and expenditures for the second fiscal year thereof.
> "If the proposed expenditures for the ensuing biennial period shall exceed the estimated revenues therefor, the Governor shall recommend the sources from which the additional revenue shall be provided. The Governor, and also the Governor-elect, shall have the power to require any institution, department, board, bureau, commission, officer, employee, or other agency to furnish him with any information which he may deem necessary in connection with the budget or to assist in its preparation. The budget shall be accompanied by an appropriation bill covering the proposed expenditures, to be known as the budget bill."

I have quoted fully these budget provisions of the constitution in order to show how the budget is prepared and what it should contain. The fact that these provisions have not been carried out in former budgets compels us, in conformity with the purpose of the constitution, to strike out along new lines and to incorporate into this budget features which have been wanting in those which have preceded.

A COMPLETE BUDGET.

In the first place it will be noted that the constitution requires the Governor to submit a complete plan of "all proposed expenditures of the State provided by existing law or recommended by him." The budget submitted in 1923 purported to total less than $79,000,000 for the ensuing biennium, although the actual total State expenditures for that biennium exceeded $142,900,000. The budget of 1925 was announced as totaling $103,430,000, as against an actual total of more than $180,000,000. That it should not have been difficult to determine what these totals really were is evidenced by the fact that the figure of $179,000,000 was announced nearly a year and a half ago, at the beginning of the present biennium period, both by the State Controller and by myself—a figure which was afterward raised to $180,000,000. Notwithstanding this fact, owing to its incomplete presentation this $180,000,000 budget has, during the past six months, been quoted as of varying amounts ranging all the way from $44,000,000 to $104,000,000.

ITEMS NOT SUBJECT TO BUDGET.

By frankly including in the budget every State expenditure, all possible grounds of future budget controversy will be removed, the budget requirements of the constitution will be satisfied, and the people of the State will have a complete knowledge of the cost of every department, institution, or activity of their government. The only agencies which can not be included are those which, though established and conducted under State law, do not receive or expend State funds. Such agencies are the State Compensation Insurance Fund, the Public School Teachers' Retirement Salary Fund, the Veterans' Welfare Board, the State Land Settlement Board, the State Reclamation Board, the State Board of Accountancy, and the Board of Pilot Commissioners for San Francisco.

After consultation with the Attorney General in one specific case, it is my opinion, and the opinion of the fiscal officers of the State, that the funds and boards named above should not be included in the budget as connected with State expenditures, since they can not be included in the budget bill as beneficiaries of State appropriations. However, in order that the financial operations of these independent activities may be made known, they are reported in an appendix to the budget herewith submitted, except for the Land Settlement Board and the Board of Pilot Commissioners, which are omitted for the reasons explained in the appendix.

There has been one item inserted by error in both previous budgets—namely, the Division of Printing, which expends only such money as is supplied to it by the various departments, boards, and commissions. The actual expenditure of this money is reflected as one of the expenditures of each of the departments concerned, and the inclusion in former budgets of these same expenditures under the head of Division of Printing is an obvious duplication.

Accordingly the second presentation of these expenditures is omitted from the present budget, both for this biennium, and, in comparative statements, for the preceding biennial periods. A statement of the financial operations of the Division of Printing, including the estimated figures for the coming biennium, is also reported in the appendix to this budget.

WHAT THE BUDGET CONTAINS

Aside from the items mentioned above as not properly subject to a budget, the budget herewith submitted contains all State expenditures of every kind, irrespective of the agency through which they are made or the sources from which their revenues are secured. For instance, the budget contains large sums for schools, highways, orphan aid, tuberculosis subsidies, and the like, expended in accordance with State law, not by the State directly but through the agency of the counties. All these are properly held by the Controller to be State expenditures.

The money from which all State expenditures are made comes from a variety of sources. Much of it is derived from taxes on public utility corporations, which, in consideration of their contribution toward State support, pay no local county or city taxes on their operative property. Much comes from franchise taxes, inheritance taxes, and the like, contributed by those who also pay local taxes. Much comes in the form of fees, licenses or special taxes, such as automobile licenses, fish and game licenses, gasoline taxes, harbor revenues, corporation and real estate department fees, and similar sources, the revenue in each case fully sustaining one of the twenty-five or more so-called self-supporting activities of the State. A small part comes from revenues produced from State hospitals, agricultural boards, prisons, commissions and other like activities; while the remainder is secured from federal allotments to our highways and schools. Your attention is directed to section 12, article XIII, of the constitution adopted November 4, 1924, providing for the levy of an annual educational poll tax. The Legislature has not provided for the levy or collection of this tax. For that reason no prospective revenue from this source is estimated to accrue in the budget figures herewith presented to you. The expenditure of money borrowed through bond issues is reflected in the budget only as it is repaid in the form of interest or principal, since this constitutes the only actual State expenditure involved.

The only point here to be stressed is that the budget contains every expenditure of the State, no matter how the money to meet that expenditure is secured. In this way every citizen on examining the budget may get a complete picture of our entire State expenses for every institution, department, or activity of any kind. They are all State expenditures, whatever the agency which spends the money or whatever the source from which the bills are paid.

THE BUDGET BILL.

In conformity with the constitutional requirement, this budget is accompanied by a general appropriation bill, known as the "budget bill." My conviction is that the constitution intends that this budget bill shall be so proposed as to reflect exactly the recommendations of the budget. Accordingly, you will find that every provision of this budget appears in the accompanying budget bill, excepting those items of fixed charges and recurrent appropriations now specifically covered by existing constitutional or statutory enactments.

Certain changes of language, to clarify the budget bill in the light of past experience, have been incorporated after consultation with the State Controller and the Attorney General. I believe that in all these respects the present budget bill will be found a great improvement over any other budget bill heretofore submitted.

SPECIAL APPROPRIATION BILLS.

The constitution clearly contemplates that, as far as possible, every state expenditure shall be included in the budget. Such a procedure would do away with a vast number of special appropriation bills which in the past have contributed so much toward slowing down legislation. For instance, at the last session a hundred of these special appropriation bills were signed, many of which might properly have been given a place in the budget.

In the present budget will be found provisions for the San Joaquin Valley deep water channel, for the completion of the John Muir trail, for the purchase of land for the State Fair grounds and for other institutions, and for many similar purposes which have previously been the subjects of special appropriation bills. If any have been inadvertently omitted, it is suggested that they be included by the Board of Control as budget amendments, rather than presented as special acts. In this way we can help to reduce materially the number of bills before the Legislature.

There are bound to be certain appropriations, however, which can not be included in the budget. Among these is the payment of claims, which affect, not the ensuing biennium and its budget, but the present or past bienniums. Neither should increases of statutory salaries nor the compensation of additional statutory officers or employees be included until such increases or additions have been provided by new legislation. Nor can the budget include appropriations for the launching of new projects and policies, such as the expenses of proposed commissions and the like, until you have given to such projects legislative authorization. All other expenditures, I believe, were intended by the constitution to be included within the budget and budget bills In being thus included they are in no respect removed from the power of the Legislature, since that body has exactly the same relation to the budget bill and its amendments as it has to every other appropriation bill.

TOTAL STATE EXPENDITURES.

As will be noted from an examination of the budget herewith submitted, the total State expenditures for next biennium are estimated at $193,518,165.09. This sum has been arrived at after numerous conferences with the heads of all the institutions and departments of the State—conferences which resulted in reducing the figures submitted to the previous Board of Control by somewhat more than $10,000,000. As will be noted also, the increase of expenditures of this budget over the last is far smaller than any other increase during the past twelve years, as well as probably the smallest percentage of increase in the history of the State.

During the course of the present legislative session, I shall possibly suggest certain amendments to the budget bill submitted at this time. For instance, after solving our main highway problems it may be thought wise to make an appropriation for prison road camps. Partially offsetting this, however, would be a reduction in the maintenance cost of the prisons; so that the actual budget figures will not be materially increased.

OUR INCREASING EXPENDITURES.

Notwithstanding the comparatively small increase in expenditures for the next biennium we can not shut our eyes to the fact that State expenditures during the last decade have grown very rapidly. This growth may be seen by tracing during the past twelve years the total expenditures for each biennium, together with the increase and percentage of increase from one biennium to the next. The figures for the first three of these bienniums are taken from the State Controller's table, "Showing State Expenditures for the Past Fifteen Years." The figures for the last three bienniums are identical with those in the body of this report, and have been compiled by the State Board of Control in consultation with the Controller. They may be easily traced by an examination of the following table:

GROWTH OF STATE EXPENDITURES FOR TWELVE-YEAR PERIOD.

Fiscal years of bienniums	Date limits of bienniums	Total expenditures of bienniums	Increase over previous biennium	Percentage of increase over previous biennium
69th and 70th	1917-1919	$61,122,962.32
71st and 72nd	1919-1921	79,687,495.03	$18,564,532.71	30.3%
73rd and 74th	1921-1923	115,448,943.27	35,761,448.24	44.8%
75th and 76th	1923-1925	142,915,833.44	27,466,890.17	23.8%
79th and 80th	1927-1929	193,518,165.09	13,329,110.69	7.4%

As will be noted the percentage of increase for this biennium over last is 7.4 per cent, as compared with 23.8 per cent, the lowest percentage prior to this time during our twelve-year period This percentage of increase, for the first time in many years, has been held down to the approximate percentage of the State's growth in population. I need not say that it will be the policy of this administration to continue holding down these increases to the lowest possible figure. It is of course inevitable that expenses must grow with a growing state, but we must exercise constant care that not a dollar is spent which does not bring back one hundred cents worth of efficient service or of absolutely necessary permanent improvements. This is the kind of sound economy that the public demands.

OTHER BUDGET COMPARISONS.

The present constitutional budget provisions have been in effect for the past two biennial periods. For this reason I have presented to you certain comparative tables covering the entire experience under the budget system You will find among these a comparative table for the periods 1923-1925, 1925-1927, and 1927-1929, reflecting State revenues of every kind, from every source—the first such presentation which has ever been made. Another feature of the table of revenues reflects the disposition of these, indicating which go into the State's general fund and which go into "special funds" dedicated to certain specified uses.

Expenditures of all departments, for all purposes, during the same periods, are likewise presented for the first time. You are invited to make careful comparisons of these expenditures during the three bienniums for each agency or activity in which you are particularly interested.

ANALYSIS OF SURPLUS

From the report of the State Controller to Governor Richardson, under date of December 14, 1926, I quote the following:

"The general fund surplus will approximate $15,000,000 as of June 30, 1927 * * * In the event a $5,500,000 appropriation for highway construction, authorized at the last legislative session, is unexpended, the present surplus will be augmented to that extent.

"An analysis of the surplus indicates that it is transitory in character and will be absorbed by increased fixed charges and normal departmental expansion within the next four years * * *

"The budget for the seventy-ninth and eightieth fiscal years will reduce the general fund surplus to $10,000,000 as a minimum, without taking into consideration special appropriations for road construction or other items commonly provided for at each legislative session."

The Controller in his report properly characterizes this surplus as one which "is transitory in character and will be absorbed by increased fixed charges and normal departmental expansion within the next four years." This period of four years must elapse before we can hope to modify our tax system, should a constitutional change in that system be found necessary. On the basis of the Controller's forecast that the absolutely fixed and unavoidable increases in governmental expense will inevitably absorb our surplus within four years it is very evident that we must conserve this surplus and make it last as long as possible by the most rigid economy in every direction.

SOURCE OF PRESENT SURPLUS

It is interesting to note how it has come to pass that we have so large a surplus at this time. This is clearly shown by the same report of the State Controller to Governor Richardson On this point the Controller says:

"On June 30, 1923, there was a general fund surplus of $4,707,852.21. * * * During the past two years $11,500,000 has been paid into the general fund by railroad companies to cover the impounded taxes as a result of the King tax bill litigation. It is to be observed that the sum so received, plus the surplus on hand as of June 30, 1923, is substantially the present general fund surplus."

In other words, the present surplus, instead of being an accumulation of the past four years, in large part was actually inherited from the earlier administration, either in the form of cash or of impounded money from a suit instituted in 1921. This is an unusual situation which can not be expected to occur a second time. It is therefore imperative that some modification be made in our existing tax system before the accumulated excess of future irreducible expenditures over corresponding future revenues shall have entirely wiped out our surplus now in the treasury.

NECESSITY FOR STUDY OF TAX SYSTEM.

In pointing out these facts I am in no wise assailing our present tax system In my opinion it is incomparably better than the old system which it supplanted sixteen years ago. The last legislation produced by the present system under the form of the King tax bill a bill which not only equalized the burden of taxation, but which has also saved the State from an ad valorem tax. If the King tax bill had not been enacted, instead of a surplus we should now be faced with the necessity of levying upon all property owners to meet a $25,000,000 deficit accruing within the past six years.

The only thing to be determined by an investigation of our tax system is whether we can continue to raise the necessary revenues for our growing state by periodic new "King tax bills," or whether we must make some modification of or addition to our present system To determine this, I trust that the Legislature will authorize the appointment of a tax commission to make a careful study of the entire situation

CONCLUSION.

The budget which I am here presenting has been prepared under my personal supervision, but it would have been impossible to present it so early in the session had its details not been worked out with an immense amount of labor by the members and accountants of the present Board of Control. To them I wish to express my appreciation for their long hours of faithful service. And to you, the members of the Legislature, I herewith submit these results of our work, confident that each of you will cooperate with me in helping to make this budget a pledge to the people of California that you and I propose to unite in giving to them everything they can possibly desire in the way of an economical and business-like administration.

Respectfully submitted

REPORT OF SELECT COMMITTEE.

The select committee appointed by the Speaker to report upon some appropriate proceeding, commemorating the event of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the first convening of the State Legislature in the city of Sacramento, submitted the following report:

California was admitted into the union of states on the ninth day of September, 1850. The people had adopted a constitution on the thirteenth day of November, 1849, and at the same election Peter H. Burnett was elected as the first Governor of California and was inaugurated at San Jose on the twentieth day of December, 1849.

Thus we find evidenced the highest attribute in the pioneer, the making of a State of equal sovereignty with the several states of the Union, at a period prior to its admission into the Union as a state. The right of organization was much debated, but a constitutional convention was held at Colton Hall in Monterey on the first day of September, 1849, and a committee reported that the first session of the Legislature should be held in the Pueblo de San Jose, which should be the seat of government until moved by a two-thirds vote of the members elected to each house.

Another resolution was introduced proposing that the first session of the Legislature be held at Monterey and subsequent sessions be held at the seat of government, which should be at Pueblo de San Jose.

It was contended that San Jose would not have sufficient accommodations for the members; that Monterey had been the seat of government since 1781. Of course, this refers to the sovereignty of Spain followed by Mexico during the years prior to the American conquest. It was decided that the first session be held at San Jose and to convene on the fifteenth day of December, 1849, nearly a year prior to the admission of California as the thirty-first State of the Union

It was complained that all of the rooms in San Jose had been engaged by lobbyists and that there were no accommodations for the members and the two branches of the Legislature were compelled to meet in separate buildings.

On April 3, 1850, General Vallejo submitted to the Legislature the proposition that he would lay out a city upon the Straits of Carquinez and would grant to the State one hundred fifty-six acres of land for building purposes, and besides, pay to the State, within two years, the sum of $370,000, to be applied to the construction of buildings and asked that the proposition be submitted to the people.

On April 22, 1850, the Legislature passed an act directing the Governor to submit the same to the people at the following general election to be held October 7, 1850.

At the election the people voted for Vallejo, the votes standing Vallejo, 7477; San Jose 1292—showing the great diversity of interest in California and the zone which encompassed these interests.

Votes were cast for Donnieville, Nevada, Eureka, Yuba and San Diego.

Action was then taken by the Legislature, which resulted in the selection of Vallejo and on the fifth day of January, 1852, the third session of the Legislature convened at Vallejo. On the twelfth day of January, 1852, both houses adjourned to meet at Sacramento on the sixteenth day of January, 1852.

Just seventy-five years ago last Sunday the session of the California Legislature convened for the first time at the present Capital City. On the seventh day of March, 1852, the city of Sacramento was inundated, this being the time of the flood, which has always been a glowing, if disastrous, part of the history of northern California. On May 18, 1853, the Legislature adopted a resolution to adjourn, to meet at Benicia, and in pursuance thereof the Legislature met at Benicia in 1853 and 1854.

On the twenty-fourth day of February, 1854, while the Legislature was in session at Benicia, it passed the act to move the seat of government to Sacramento and, on the twenty-eighth day of February, 1854, the Governor and State officers removed to the new seat of government and the Legislature met on the first day of March, 1854, at Sacramento, and this city has remained the seat of government ever since, though there have been attempts to remove it to other places.

On the afternoon of Sunday, January 16, 1927, the seventy-fifth anniversary of the first convening of the Legislature was observed by a reception given by the citizens of Sacramento, under the auspices of the Woman's Council of Sacramento, to Governor C. C. Young and Mrs. Young, and Lieutenant Governor Buron Fitts and Mrs. Fitts, where congratulations were extended and heartfelt wishes offered for a successful administration of government for the next four years, to which appropriate replies were made by the Governor and Lieutenant Governor.

MESSAGE FROM THE GOVERNOR.

The following message from the Governor was taken up and read:

Sacramento, California.

Senate Bills Nos. 223, 224 and 225 make appropriations for the expenses of the Judicial Council, for the State's share of additional salaries of judges transferred by order of the Judicial Council, and the necessary expenses of the judges so transferred.

The constitutional amendment creating the Judicial Council became effective immediately after its adoption in November, 1926. The Judicial Council is now functioning in accordance with the powers fixed by that amendment.

In my opinion the appropriations necessary for the expenses of such operation during the remainder of the seventy-eighth fiscal year constitute an emergency within the meaning of article IV, section 34, of the constitution, and I therefore recommend the passage of these bills as emergency measures.

Respectfully submitted.

C. C. YOUNG, Governor.

Assembly Joint Resolution No. 7 ordered transmitted to the Senate.

ASSEMBLY JOINT RESOLUTION No. 7

Relating to an act of Congress of the United States restraining immigration of aliens ineligible to citizenship.

WHEREAS, In 1921 the Legislature of the State of California by appropriate resolution urged upon the Congress and federal administrative and executive officers the necessity for the continued adherence to the policy of the United States, which restricted the right of citizenship to the white race, and likewise protested against any attempt by treaty or otherwise to permit the immigration of ineligible aliens; and

WHEREAS, In 1924 after full investigation and consideration Congress by general law prohibited the immigration of aliens ineligible to citizenship; and

WHEREAS, Various organizations have since the passage of said act persistently sought to influence Congress to recede from such policy, and the adherence to said policy has been urged by the American Legion, American Federation of Labor, the Grange, and the Native Sons of the Golden West, the first three of which organizations have annually in their last three conventions by resolutions expressed their continued support of the congressional action, and

WHEREAS, There are now pending in Congress two bills, both of which are directly antagonistic to the General Immigration Act of 1924, and entirely out of harmony with the national policy on this subject because one of said measures, to wit, the Copeland bill, S 4505, would make eligible to American citizenship three hundred million Hindus, and the other, S. J. R. 128, would legalize the illegal action of certain courts in granting naturalization to sixty-nine Hindus; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly and Senate of the State of California, jointly, That the Legislature of this State protests against the passage of either of such bills, and against any character of action designed to modify the present immigration laws, and reaffirms its belief that the privilege of American citizenship should continue to be restricted to the white race, and that the privilege of immigration should be extended only to those peoples who may become citizens of the United States; and be it further

Resolved, That the Senators and Representatives in Congress from the State of California be urged to present the seriousness of the present situation to the attention of their colleagues and to the departments of the federal government, and to use all honorable means to prevent modification of the present naturalization and exclusion laws; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly of the State of California be and he is hereby authorized and directed to transmit a copy of this resolution to each member of the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States.

RESOLUTION.

The following resolution was offered:

By Mr. Dillinger:

WHEREAS, Within a few days, to wit, on January 24th, is the seventy-ninth anniversary of the discovery of gold in California by James W. Marshall; and

WHEREAS, As a result of that discovery of gold, at Coloma, in El Dorado County, on January 24, 1848, there came to California those hardy immigrants who, upon their arrival discovered that California held not only gold, but a wealth of other resources and of beauty as well; and

WHEREAS, During the period of nearly fourscore years that has since elapsed this great commonwealth has grown and prospered, and within that period has reached a place high in the aggregation of our several states which compose this nation; now, therefore, be it

Resolved That this Assembly, when it shall adjourn this day, do so in commemoration of the seventy-ninth anniversary of the discovery of gold, and in commemoration of the dauntless courage and high ideals of those rugged pioneers who founded this great State.

January 21, 1927.

MOTION TO PRINT ADDRESS OF HON. H. E. DILLINGER IN JOURNAL.

On motion of Mr. Williamson, the address delivered by Mr. Dillinger was ordered printed in the Journal.

ADDRESS BY HON. H. E. DILLINGER OF PLACERVILLE.

We part today, returning to our respective places of abode, there to counsel with our constituencies respecting the wisdom of our acts and to reflect upon the task that lies before us upon our return that our labors may find fruition in wise laws, for the legend above our Speaker's head "Legislatorum est justus, Leges conder" says that it is the duty of the Legislature to make wise laws.

We are nearing the anniversary of another day, that seventy-nine years ago marked the beginning of a new epoch in the history of the world On a morning such as this, a rugged pioneer toiled in a canyon near the head waters of the American; beneath his feet the swirling waters of that turbulent stream rushed down to the sea; above his head the stately pines reared their crowns to the azure skies and the twittering birds and crooning zephyrs completed that scene of virgin beauty. From this scene, that morning, sped the magic word that gold was found in California. The relentless hand that engrosses on the fair new page of time the record of the deeds of men, that writes and having wrote moves on, turned another spotless page on which to spread the stirring annals of an empire born to the world that day

The magnetic lure of adventure and gold called men from the plow, the forge, the bench, the office, the store Leaving a farewell kiss on lips that were dear to them, they broke the clasp of clinging arms to follow that call into the land of the setting sun, braving the dangers of the trackless sea or equally trackless plain. None but the highest courage would dare it, none but an unbreakable will could achieve it

By such men as these, upon a strength of purpose such as this, and upon their high ideals of simple honesty and justice was founded and built our priceless heritage, California. Nor is all the pioneering done. We are faced today with some of the most gigantic and perplexing problems that have ever faced any people. So now, let us, in the light of those high ideals, this day be consecrated to the task that lies before us, that we may prove worthy of that heritage and wisely administer that trust.

I offer this resolution Mr. Speaker, that when we adjourn we do so in commemoration, not alone of the mere accidental discovery of gold at Coloma on January 24, 1848, but in commemoration as well of the unquenchable spirit and the lofty ideals of those rugged pioneers, who with James W. Marshall, bequeathed to us our wonderful California.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, SENATE CHAMBER,
OLYMPIA, January 29, 1927.

Secretary of State,
Sacramento, California.

DEAR SIR: Enclosed herewith please find a copy of Senate Joint Memorial No 2, now pending in the Legislature of the State of Washington The subject matter affects your State as well as ours, and I respectfully suggest that you call the attention of some of your legislators to the facts stated therein

This is a matter about which honest and earnest men may differ, but it seems to me that we of the West are better able to handle, control and dispose of the public lands in our respective states than are the uninformed clerks in a bureau in Washington, two thousand or three thousand miles away

Very respectfully yours,

C. G. HEIFNER

In the Senate. By Senator Heifner.

SENATE JOINT MEMORIAL No. 2.

STATE OF WASHINGTON, TWENTIETH REGULAR SESSION.

January 27, 1927, read first and second time, ordered printed, and referred to Committee on Federal Relations.

Requesting Congress to pass legislation to provide for deeding to the respective states all government owned lands within such states.

To the Honorable Senators and Representatives in Congress Assembled.

We, your memorialists, the Senate and House of Representatives of the State of Washington, in legislative session assembled, most respectfully represent and petition as follows:

That the area of public lands in this state, title to which is still retained by the federal government, amounts to over 18,000 square miles, not including Indian reservations or parks. This is more than one-fourth of the land area of the state. Of this area more than 15,000 square miles have been placed in forest reserves, about 1,700 square miles in coal land, water power and other reserves, leaving about 1,400 square miles of unappropriated, unreserved public lands.

In the eleven Pacific and Rocky Mountain states, to wit: Wyoming, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah, Montana, Idaho, Nevada, California, Oregon and Washington, the government retains title to more than 586,000 square miles of public lands, not including Indian reservations or parks. This amounts, in the aggregate, to one-half of the total land areas of these states. Of this quantity about 205,000 square miles have been placed in forest reserves, over 75,000 square miles in coal, oil, phosphate and other reserves, leaving about 300,000 square miles of unappropriated and unreserved public land.

This unreserved land consists mainly of desert lands and mountain tops—of but little value as agricultural land but of great potential value for mining and grazing. The reserved lands all contain forest, coal, oil and other resources of great potential value, but of no actual value at all as long as they remain in public ownership.

The federal government never held any public land in the original thirteen states, nor in Kentucky, Tennessee or Texas. In twenty-one states the federal government held all the public lands but under the provisions of the constitution and various land laws has disposed of it except some small remnants of negligible value.

Therefore, there are thirty-seven states in which the inhabitants own all of the lands, and the states' sovereignty and authority covers all within their borders. The retention by the federal government of half the area of the western states before mentioned places them on an unequal basis with the other states. This is a vast injury to the western states and of no benefit to the government or the other states.

The areas placed in the forestry and other reserves aggregate 280,000 square miles, and is nearly as large as the whole of the original thirteen states. It is larger than many nations. This immense territory held by the federal government, and from which it is collecting rents and royalties, indicates the definite purpose of the government never to dispose of these lands and never to put them under the jurisdiction of the states in which they lie. It prevents the lands from becoming populated and their resources from being developed. It denies to the states the right to tax them or to make laws for them. It denies to the people of the states their growth in value, and reduces those who use them to the status of vassals instead of freeholders.

The lands held in the reserves and for leasing purposes do not produce a profit to the federal government; on the contrary they show a heavy loss. The revenues derived from the forest reserves during the last year were $5,155,661.00, while the expenditures of the Forestry Bureau for the same period amount to $22,729,343.00, showing a deficit of $17,573,682.00. The revenues derived from the leased and other lands showed a deficit for the last year, according to the report of the Secretary of the Interior, of $1,305,657.00. A part of the revenues derived from the lands is paid to the states, but falls far short of compensating them for the loss of taxes and growth, and probably does not equal the taxes the people must pay to make up the bureau deficits.

It has often been asserted that the public lands in the western states belong to all the people, but they are only an expense to the people. In their present status they are of no value to anyone except the bureaus which administer them. It was these parasitic bureaus, and not the people, who were responsible for the creation of these vast reserves.

It has been claimed that the forest reserves were established to preserve the forests. But this cannot be done. When a timber crop is ripe it must be harvested or else it decays. No bureau can stop it. In order to raise a new crop of timber the old crop must be cut away to make room for the new. The one thing that can be done for a forest is to protect it from fire. This the states and private owners can do better than the federal government, and at less expense. States that have no forests would not then be obliged to contribute to the expense of protecting those that have.

The principle that it is the duty, as well as the right, of the federal government to dispose of its public lands into individual ownership, and the right of each state to be equal in sovereign power and authority with every other state, are among the oldest principles of the constitution. The federal government itself could not have been organized without the observance of these two great rules. In fact, the formation of the Union was long delayed by reason of the inequality of the states in possession of public lands. Several of the original thirteen states owned large areas of uninhabited public lands while others owned none. Those that owned no lands insisted that the states that did should cede them to the federal government and refused to join the Union until this was done. After much discussion and debate on these two great principles the Congress of the United States in September, 1780, passed a resolution most urgently requesting those states who owned public lands to cede them to the government, pointing out that it was necessary to the very existence of the government that it be done. As an inducement to cause them to do so, on October 10, 1780, the Congress passed the following resolution:

Tuesday, October 10, 1780.

"Resolved, That the unappropriated lands that may be ceded or relinquished to the United States, by any particular state, pursuant to the recommendation of Congress of the 6th day of September last, shall be disposed of for the common benefit of the United States, and be settled and formed into distinct republican states, which shall become members of the Federal Union, and have the same rights of sovereignty, freedom and independence as the other states."

Accepting this resolution, Virginia and the other states holding public lands ceded them to the federal government. The objections of the other states were thereby removed and the Union was completed. These acts created and established the federal government. They formed a compact between the states and the government. The lands thus ceded embraced all the territory west of the Alleghany Mountains and east of the Mississippi River excepting the states of Kentucky and Tennessee, in which there were no public lands. The area thus ceded to the federal government amounted to about 400,000 square miles.

Following this the federal government devised the system of rectangular surveys, established land offices and began immediately to dispose of its public lands, at first by auction, then by pre-emption, then by donation, then by the homestead act, and the mineral, timber and coal lands were sold at a flat price per acre. This disposal of the public lands continued more than one hundred twenty years until the year 1905, when the present system of reserves began. About the year 1920 the present leasing system for oil, coal and other mineral lands was adopted.

The two great principles before mentioned therefore antedate the constitution itself. When the constitution was adopted these principles were carried into it, and paragraph 1 of section 3, article IV provides that:

"New states may be admitted by the Congress into this Union; but no new state shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other state; nor any state be formed by the junction of two or more states or parts of states, without the consent of the legislatures of the states concerned, as well as of the Congress."

Paragraph 2 of section 3 of article IV of the constitution further provides:

"The Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States."

It should be noted that the right granted to Congress was to dispose of the lands, not to hold them.

The enabling act admitting Ohio contained the following clause:

"Provided, That the people in said state shall never interfere with the disposal of the public lands therein by Congress."

Every other state admitted to the Union from Ohio in 1803 to Arizona in 1912 contained a similar provision. When the State of Washington was admitted with other western states, the enabling act provided as follows:

"That the people inhabiting said proposed states do agree and declare that they forever disclaim all right and title to the unappropriated public lands lying within the boundaries thereof, and to all lands lying within said limits owned or held by any Indian or Indian tribes; and that until the title thereto shall have been extinguished by the United States, the same shall be and remain subject to the disposition of the United States, and said Indian lands shall remain under the absolute jurisdiction and control of the Congress of the United States."

These provisions guarded the right of the federal government to dispose of its public lands, and with equal force implied the duty of the federal government to continue to dispose of them as provided in the original compact made in 1780, before quoted.

The Supreme Court of the United States has held repeatedly that the nature of the government's title in the public lands is not that of proprietor but is that of a trustee, and that its duty is to dispose of these lands to the people for their individual ownership so that each and every state shall have equal authority and jurisdiction over all the lands within its borders. In the case of Pollard's Lessee vs. Hagen, 3 How. 212, the Supreme Court declared that as to the government lands within the states the United States never held any municipal sovereignty jurisdiction or right of soil in and to that territory, or in and to the territory of any of the new states, excepting the right over them of executing the trust, which trust was to provide for their disposition by cessions or sale. It was further held in that case that every new state comes into the Union upon terms of absolute equality with all other states.

In the case of Coyle vs. Smith, 221 U. S. 559, the Supreme Court, referring to the case of Pollard's Lessee vs. Hagen, used the following language

"The plain deduction from this case is that when a new state is admitted into the Union, it is so admitted with all of the powers of sovereignty and jurisdiction which pertain to the original states, and that such powers may not be constitutionally diminished, impaired, or shorn away by any conditions, compacts, or stipulations embraced in the act under which the new state came into the Union."

At the time the State of Washington was admitted to the Union the federal government ceded to it 4,209 square miles of land for the benefit of schools of higher learning, charitable, penal and reformatory institutions and for state capitol buildings. This does not include sections 16 and 36 for the public schools. In like manner it ceded lands to each and every one of the western states before mentioned. These lands are held and disposed of by the states as their legislatures may provide. In each and every one of these states the legislatures have established a land department to dispose of and administer these grants. Each state, therefore, has the complete machinery for administration of the lands within its own borders, and in this respect duplicates the work done by the federal government through its land department and other bureaus.

Contrary to that principle of the constitution which declares that Congress shall not create any new state within the borders of an existing state without the consent of its legislature, the federal government has created a complete system of government within the states for the lands reserved as forestry lands. This government consists of a bureau whose head office is in Washington, whose chief officers are not elected by the people for definite terms but are appointed by the federal power at Washington. They hold their offices for life. They are not only granted the right to collect revenues from the people, but also are granted the sovereign right of fixing the rate of these revenues. All this without consulting the people of the states which must pay them. They are granted the right to make rules and regulations for the forest reserves which have the force of law. These rules and regulations are made without open discussion or debate and without consulting the people of the states. The rules and regulations thus made and promulgated declare that where the state laws conflict with their rules and regulations, their rules and regulations shall prevail. It is submitted that this intrunges the sovereign rights of the people and of the western states. It also violates the principles of a republican form of government.

We hold, therefore, that the reservation of 75,000 square miles of potentially the most valuable lands remaining in the eleven western states for leasing purposes, and to which the government apparently proposes to retain perpetual title and collect revenues therefrom, is contrary to the fundamental principles of the constitution and should be abolished; that the federal government has the right only to dispose of all public lands to which it obtained title, not the right to lease them, and that this ought to be done not only to place all states on an equality, but for economic reasons as well.

Wherefore your memorialists pray:

First, That the grants of sovereign and proprietory rights to the Forestry Bureau, or to any other bureau, over lands within this state or of any other state, be revoked and abolished;

Second, That the leases already granted should be converted into fee simple titles;

Third, That these lands be ceded to the several states in which they lie, and the administration by the federal government thereof be brought to an end.

And your memorialists will ever pray.

And be it further Resolved, That the Secretary of the State, under the Seal of the State of Washington, transmit to the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States at Washington, D. C., and to each Senator and Congressman from the State of Washington a full, true and correct copy of this Joint Memorial.

WHEREAS, Under our present constitution the President, Senators and Representatives, take up their duties many months after the day of election, and

WHEREAS, The provisions of the constitution herein sought to be amended are antiquated and unworkable under modern conditions, to such an extent as to be, in some cases, a positive menace to the best welfare of the Nation, and

WHEREAS, The Senate has seen fit to offer and pass a constitutional amendment known as the "Norris Amendment," providing that such officers shall take office promptly after election, and have sent the same to the House; therefore be it

Resolved, That we, your memorialists, do earnestly and respectfully pray that the House of Representatives will take similar action at the earliest possible date and present the same to the legislatures of the various states for their adoption, and be it further

Resolved, That the Secretary of State, under the seal of the State of Washington, transmit to the Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States at Washington, D. C., and to each Senator and Congressman from the State of Washington, and to the Legislature of each of the several states, a full, true, and correct copy of this joint memorial.

I, J. Grant Hinkle, Secretary of State of the State of Washington, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a full, true and correct copy of House Joint Memorial No. 3, as passed by the twentieth session of the Legislature of the State of Washington

Done at Olympia, this 14th day of February, 1927

SAN FRANCISCO, CALIFORNIA, January 20, 1927.

To the Members of the State Senate,
Sacramento, via the House.

GENTLEMEN AND SOLONS: I have been able to interest the Legislature of Colorado in the firearms reform. You are face to face with a great opportunity to do some good service for humanity by enacting suitable legislation to meet the needs of the revolver situation.

As I have said before, the death of one by a revolver or any other weapon means more than that the population is decreased one, for it means that there are made orphans, and widows, that there must of necessity be a funeral, that the expensive courts must be set in action.

Like in the question of prohibition, it will be necessary to begin the revolver reform locally, and with the hope that in process of time it will become a national affair We are not limited to revolvers, but all deadly concealable weapons and poison need better regulation.

So, I beseech of you, sirs, give us a law that will make all revolvers purchasable by the State, save for officers, with the idea that State will sell them to some other State that has no conscience, as some have very little when it comes to a moral question

I further beseech of you, sirs, give us a law making it necessary to give a week's notice before purchasing a gun and that by witnesses testifying that the purchaser is nearly normal, usually sober, calm and reliable and, so far as the witness knows, has no victim immediately in sight.

Give us a law, please, sirs, taxing weapons. Any person who really has any business or need of one will be willing to pay tax on one, and it will discourage buying them for novelty.

May we have a law making it unlawful to loan, lose, give away or throw away a gun without a note on the register.

Don't forget, gentlemen, that many accidents, suicides and murders, even robberies, come through too easy sale and the procuring and possession of deadly weapons. The Texas minister, Norris, case proves that even ministers are dangerous to themselves when armed.

Let us disarm the public.

619 HAAS BUILDING, LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, January 25, 1927.

The Honorable Representatives of the State of California,
Sacramento, California

DEAR SIRS: In furtherance of a more humane and progressive administration, I sincerely desire to direct your attention to alleviating the last remnant of barbarism from the Penal Code of the State of California, erasing once for all that infraction of the sixth commandment: "Thou shalt not kill."

Capital punishment does remove the criminal from society—so does imprisonment. Then it is reasonable to assume that a prisoner could be made to work and, besides earning his keep, show a profit which may be diverted to the relief of his victims or dependents and to defray the expense of capture and conviction.

This would also give him a chance to correct his mistakes and atone for his errors, as well as prevent all possibility of taking the life of an innocent person, and would, indeed, be far more enlightening than sensational copy for newspapers. To this end, I trust you will give your earnest consideration

Respectfully,

MRS DOLLY B KENNELL

By Mr. Speaker:

STATE OF MICHIGAN, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
LANSING, February 5, 1927.

Speaker of the House of Representatives,
Sacramento, California

MY DEAR SIR: By direction of the Michigan Legislature, I am herewith sending a copy of a resolution adopted by the Legislature yesterday, February 4.

Respectfully,

C. S. PIERCE.

RESOLUTION.

Mr Wardell offered the following concurrent resolution:

House Concurrent Resolution No. 10—A concurrent resolution urging Congress to reapportion the National House of Representatives.

WHEREAS, The constitution of the United States requires Congress to reapportion the seats in the House of Representatives to the various states, according to their respective numbers, following each decennial census; and

WHEREAS, The Congress, prior to 1920, has invariably complied with the constitutional provisions covering this subject, so that the next succeeding Congress might rightfully be represented in numbers, based upon the population of the several states, and

WHEREAS, Each succeeding Congress has, since the year 1920, failed to make such reapportionment of districts, which failure has resulted in the disfranchisement of a large number of citizens in many of the states, among which is the state of Michigan, and has brought about a condition of disproportionate representation in the House of Representatives; and

WHEREAS, This has resulted in accumulative discontent among the citizens of the states so discriminated against; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, by the House of Representatives (the Senate concurring), That we, the representatives of the people of Michigan, assembled in regular session, do most earnestly urge the immediate performance of this duty; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Honorable Calvin Coolidge President of the United States, and to the Honorable Nicholas Longworth, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to Honorable John Q Tilson, Honorable Edward W Pou, Honorable John M. Garner, Honorable Albert Johnson and Honorable Isaac Bacharach; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution shall also be forwarded to the following legislatures of the several states now in session, urging them to take similar action: California, Ohio, New Jersey, Connecticut, North Carolina, Texas and Washington.

MOTION TO REFER.

Mr. Jones moved that the above resolution be referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

Motion carried.

Resolution referred to Committee on Federal Relations.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were presented, and ordered printed in the Journal:

By Mr. Speaker:

CONGRESS OF THE UNITED STATES, HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,
WASHINGTON, D. C., January 27, 1927.

Honorable Edgar C. Levey,
Speaker of the Assembly,
California Legislature, Sacramento, California

DEAR MR LEVEY: This is to acknowledge receipt of the copy of Assembly Joint Resolution No 6, relating to the recreating of the position of United States District Judge for the Northern District of California I have filed the resolution in the House of Representatives for the information of the members.

During the last session of Congress, I succeeded in having inserted in H. R. 10821, which was passed by the House on June 8, 1926, an amendment making permanent the federal judgeship in northern California which was vacated by the death of Judge Partridge.

The bill was then referred to the Senate Committee on the Judiciary, where it was amended and reported to the Senate, then re-committed to the Senate Judiciary Committee, where it is still pending.

For the present the House has nothing to do with the bill, but I am hopeful that the Senators from our State will be able to hold in the bill the amendment passed by the House providing for the creation of a permanent judgeship in northern California.

In the meantime, Congressman Curry, of Sacramento, introduced a special bill in this connection, which bill is now on the House calendar awaiting action by that body.

I realize the importance of this matter, and I can assure you of my continued efforts and interest in the premises

With best wishes, I am

Sincerely yours,

FLORENCE P. KAHN.

Also:

WHEREAS, There has been brought to the attention of this association a proposed State act (Senate Bill No. 526) introduced by Senator Charles Lyon, the preamble of which reads: "An act to promote the public safety by providing safeguards to audiences at theatricals and similar performances by imposing a license tax on itinerant shows, carnivals and concessions, regulating the matter of maintaining or conducting same and providing a penalty for a violation thereof"; and

WHEREAS, Although so labeled and purporting to be a protective measure, study of this bill reveals it to be most undesirable for many reasons, a few of which are: (a) Section 1, in imposing a license fee of thirty (30) dollars per day upon every tent or open-air concession, show or device is prohibitive and would exterminate numerous forms of legitimate amusement now enjoyed by and within the reach of the masses. (b) Section 2, reading: "The term itinerant show or exhibition shall be construed to mean any outdoor carnival, show or concession exhibiting or operating under a tent or in the open for a period exceeding one day," is vague and indefinite, ignores the real definition of "itinerant" and would permit of discriminatory and confiscatory interpretations and applications. (c) Section 3, requiring a showman, exhibitor or concessionaire to first obtain a permit to operate from the Secretary of State and forbidding any town, city, county or municipality to issue a license until such State permit has been issued, would obviously be an usurpation by one State official of the licensing and regulatory powers of local authorities; and

WHEREAS, It being the unanimous sense of the members of this association that Senate Bill No. 526 as written and with the foregoing and other undesirable elements included in it, is as a whole a vicious piece of legislation, wholly uncalled for and making for monopoly in some forms of amusement to the exclusion of others; be it therefore

Resolved, That we, the Venice Amusement Men's Association, in meeting this fifteenth day of February, 1927, hereby place ourselves on record as unalterably opposed to Senate Bill No. 526; and be it further

Resolved, That the Recording Secretary be instructed to spread this resolution upon the minutes and to furnish copies to the public press and forward copies to Senator Charles Lyon, Assemblyman Walter Little, and to others interested.

H. C. VODDEN, President.

JACK GERETY, Secretary.

Also:

WHEREAS, The Lions' International has adopted as one of its major activities the aiding of the blind and the amelioration of their condition; and

WHEREAS, There is now under way within the State of California a statewide movement to have the Legislature of the State of California at its session of 1927 enact an adequate law creating a State department for the purpose of coordinating all means, methods and activities for minimizing the causes of blindness, to improve and extend the educational facilities for the blind youth, to establish and maintain vocational training and reeducational training, and for ameliorating the condition of the blind and making our sightless fellow citizens self-supporting and self-respecting; and

WHEREAS, We believe that such movement will tend to fulfill our State's duty and obligations to its blind citizenry and that it should therefore merit our full cooperation and support, now, therefore, be it

Resolved, By District Number Four, in convention assembled at San Francisco, on the twentieth day of July, 1926, that our organization and its various clubs shall and do hereby approve, endorse and recommend said movement, and respectfully request that the Legislature of the State of California at its 1927 session shall enact necessary laws to accomplish the purposes hereinabove mentioned; and be it further

Resolved, That each of the members of District Number Four within the State of California shall exert his best efforts to urge the Senator and Assemblyman representing their respective districts in the coming Legislature to support and vote in favor of such legislation as may result in improving the condition of the blind in California, and in aiding them in every way possible to become self-supporting, independent and valuable members of society; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of a memorial, containing this resolution, be forwarded to each member of the Senate and of the Assembly, on or before the opening of the 1927 legislative session, and that a copy thereof, at the opening of said session, be transmitted to the President of the Senate and to the Speaker of the Assembly, with the request that said memorial be spread upon the minutes of each House.

W. E STREI, District Governor.

Also:

WHEREAS, The California Council of the California Teachers' Association has gone on record as desiring to increase the probationary period of tenure from two to three years; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we, the High School Teachers' Association of Los Angeles City, with 2268 members, are most emphatically opposed to increasing the probationary period and urge the legislative committee of the California Teachers' Association to not only ask the California Legislature for tenure on the present basis, but to oppose any attempt to lengthen it; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to Mr. Mark Keppel, Chairman of the legislative committee of the California Teachers' Association; Mr. Walter B. Crane, Chairman of the Legislative Committee of the California Teachers' Association, Southern Section; Miss Mary F. Mooney, Chairman of the Tenure Committee, which has proposed the change, and that copies of these resolutions be sent to all classroom teacher organizations of the State and otherwise given publicity.

In the discussion of the accompanying resolutions the following points were presented:

1. Extension of the probationary period would be a backward step from California's progressive position

2. Leaders of our profession, our executives, can find out in the present two-year period whether the teacher is weak or strong, inefficient or efficient, by more frequent reports during the two-year period.

3. The presence of weak timber in the profession is chargeable to weak supervision rather than to inadequate probation.

4. Extension of the probationary period would not be an aid to the elimination of the unfit.

5. Extension of the probationary period might deter the more fit from entering the profession or remaining in it

6 The greatest benefit of tenure is its ultimate value to the child. This benefit should be realized as early as possible, not deterred indefinitely

7. Tenure has twice been granted on the present two-year basis, and it is reasonable to suppose that it will not encounter opposition if at this time all educational forces stand solidly back of it.

8. Our State and our local organizations are now at a maximum both in membership and in unity, and asking for tenure on the present two-year basis will guarantee continued unity, cooperation and good will

WORLD CONFERENCE ON NARCOTIC EDUCATION,
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA, January 31, 1927.

Speaker of the House of Representatives,
State of California,
Sacramento, California

DEAR MR SPEAKER: I am writing on behalf of the Board of Governors of the World Conference on Narcotic Education to enlist your cooperation and that of the Legislature of California in the observance of Narcotic Education Week, the last week in February. The board has undertaken to have this week observed in the extension of narcotic education in this country and other countries

The spread of narcotic drug addiction has rapidly grown to the proportions of a major problem, menacing to the future of civilized society. The problem takes on two forms: The old opium problem proper, affecting chiefly the people of the Orient, and the new heroin problem that now menaces the western nations. The opium problem has grown slowly through the generations. The heroin problem is spreading with inconceivable swiftness and should engage the attention of civilized nations with the least possible delay.

The health commissioner of a great city of the middle west, investigating the cause of the rising tide of crime, reported that youth are appearing in the underworld by the thousands at very tender ages, practically all of the girls and most of the boys having come by the swift drug road. Though heroin is comparatively a new drug, the number of heroin addicts in one great city of the east alone is estimated by the city bureau of criminal identification at over 100,000, practically all of them below the age of thirty. A recent survey of the prisons of New York City brought out the startling fact that more than half of all the prisoners in cases involving moral turpitude are addicts. Most of the youthful bandits committing daylight robberies, daring holdups and cruel murders are heroin addicts. The heroin addict has a mania for recruiting others, so the spread of heroin addiction is by multiplication in geometrical progression.

Practically all authorities in the treatment of addiction agree that while the addicts may be brought off the drug by several methods, they go back sooner or later. Salvage of the victims offers little hope as a remedy for this social ill. The victims deprived of their drug suffer indescribable tortures and consider providing this supply the supreme consideration of life beyond all other considerations combined. The profits are so enormous and the powerful drugs are so easily concealed that repression by legal process is as hopeless as salvage. On the other hand, knowledge of the consequences of addiction, of joining the ranks of the "living dead," arouse the deepest motives of self-preservation, making a mantle of protection against the wiles of the peddler. Recourse to education is therefore the hope of mankind

The International Narcotic Education Association is a corporation "not for profit" incorporated under the laws of California, which undertakes to meet the menace of narcotic drug addiction through organized education. This association concentrates upon the machinery of educational systems and has been operating largely through superintendents of education. A copy of the standard document, millions of which have been sent out, called the Narcotic Peril, is being forwarded to you under separate cover. This is prepared chiefly for the use of teachers and parents. A copy of Bulletin No. 2, The Menace of Morphine, Heroin and Cocaine, is also being sent you. This is a document of reference and has been approved for reference for teachers in the State of California. This association is seeking the incorporation of chapters and paragraphs on narcotic education in the textbooks. It now has pending in Congress a bill to create the United States College of Narcotic Education, the graduates from which, serving under state boards of education, are designed to organize and standardize narcotic education in the educational systems of the states.

A world conference called by the association, with representation from many nations, states, cities and organizations, founded the World Conference on Narcotic Education by the adoption of a constitution on July 8th last, the preamble of which reads "We, the people of the world, in order perpetually to protect society everywhere from the peril of narcotic drug addiction by applying the power of truth through education, do ordain and establish this constitution for humanity." The World Conference on Narcotic Education seeks the cooperation of popular agencies of society and has adopted a resolution calling for the last week of February each year to be observed in America and throughout the world, as Narcotic Education Week, inviting individuals and organizations to adopt such measures as they may deem necessary and advisable for observing this week in the extension of narcotic education. Over 3000 responses of approval have been received from leaders of thought throughout the nation, and the governing bodies of many great organizations have adopted resolutions of cooperation. Committees are now working for the cooperation of the press, the pulpit, the radio, the screen, service clubs, civic, patriotic and other organizations

I am writing, Mr Speaker, to request your good offices in bringing about appropriate observance in the Legislature of California Our Washington office will shortly send an eight page document under congressional frank, in sufficient number for the members of your chamber. They will be in your care. Kindly give the necessary directions for their prompt distribution.

Narcotic drug addiction is a secret vice and all associated activities of the traffic are under cover so that even well-informed people are not aware of the menace, leaving society exposed through its ignorance to the ravages of drug peddlers and those who "hook" the youth into this "living death," by a dare or appeal to their curiosity. In view of this ignorance, it would be a distinct public service if at an appropriate time during Narcotic Education Week, some official action will be taken by your body, whether in the form of the adoption of a resolution of sympathy and cooperation, or whether by setting aside a time for the consideration of the subject, even the reading by the clerk, of extracts from documents on the subject. You can best judge from the circumstances what would be most appropriate and most effective in extending to the people of your State the benefits of narcotic education.

Allow me to express in advance the appreciation of the board of governors for whatever you do. With cordial greetings and wishing you and your chamber great success in your high public function, I remain

Sincerely yours,

RICHMOND P. HOBSON, Secretary General.

RESOLUTION.

By Mr. Coombs:

On the fifth day of February, 1927, Mrs. Harriet Eddy passed this life at the age of seventy-nine years. She was the mother of Hon. C. D. Eddy, a member of this House. She was a resident of Napa, where she had resided for fifteen years, during which time she was prominently associated with many Christian endeavors and for a while was president of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Presbyterian Church. She was highly esteemed for her many gentle virtues and for her religious zeal. Her high ideals and work for the betterment of the community have left an example for those who cherish the Christian faith.

She was home loving and a companion to those who required her companionship. To those who have lived the allotted span, age becomes the arbiter of the human destiny. This, with the memories that are cherished, alone can offer a reconcilement upon the death of the righteous. Be it

Resolved, That the members of this House extend to the Hon. C. D. Eddy, one of its honored members, their condolence in the loss he has sustained, and to the husband, who survives, their deepest sympathy.

Resolution read, and on motion of Mr. Coombs unanimously adopted.

COMMUNICATION

The following communication was received, and ordered printed in the Journal:

By Mr. Nielsen:

To the Members of the Assembly.

GENTLEMEN: Within the halls of the federal Congress there has been waged for many hours past a heroic struggle to secure the passage of the Boulder Dam legislation—legislation which would make safe the lives and property of thousands of Californians, residents of the Imperial Valley, now endangered by the unharnessed torrents of the mighty Colorado River.

The epic of the settlement and the cultivation of the Imperial Valley is known to the men and women of southern California, but to the rest of the State and the nation the tale of heroism of the early pioneers in the region is not so well known.

Through picture and story the epic of the Imperial Valley has now been sent over the nation by the motion picture industry in the filmization of Harold Bell Wright's great novel, "The Winning of Barbara Worth."

To bring closer home to the hearts and minds of the people of northern California and to the members of the State Legislature, the story of the Imperial Valley and the need for the Boulder Dam legislation, there will be presented in Sacramento during the coming week the film presentation of "The Winning of Barbara Worth."

The management of the Capitol Theatre, therefore, extends to the members of the State Legislature an invitation to attend the showing of this great picture on Monday evening as its guests, feeling that the need for immediate aid to the people of Imperial Valley through the completion of the Boulder Dam project thus will be brought home more clearly to the men and women who legislate for the great State of California.

MERTON B. HUSTLER,
Manager, Capitol Theatre.

Resolution adopted by the California Society, Sons of the Revolution, January 31, 1927:

WHEREAS, There is a movement on foot to bring about the repeal of the criminal syndicalism law at the present session of the Legislature of the State of California; and

WHEREAS, Said law is aimed only to prevent the teaching and advocating of the use of force, violence and terrorism as a means of effecting a change in industrial ownership or control, or any political change; and

WHEREAS, The teaching or advocating of the use of such force, violence or terrorism as a means of effecting political changes or changes in industrial control is in direct conflict with, in absolute opposition to, and in contradiction of, the practices, purposes and program of a free government such as ours in the United States, and is an entirely unreasonable exercise of the right of free speech, and calculated to destroy the very instrument guaranteeing the existence of free speech, and

WHEREAS, Now, under existing law, any one may rationally and freely advocate any and all changes, political or industrial, not involving or contemplating the use of force or terrorism as a means to be employed in the effecting of such changes, and

WHEREAS, The repeal of the existing criminal syndicalism law would constitute a declaration, by implication at least, on the part of our people, that they desired, or at least were not opposed to, the advocacy of the destruction of our government by force and violence, and

WHEREAS, The Sons of the Revolution, carrying in their veins the blood of those who served and died that this government of ours might live, will ever resent any attempts to destroy it or effect changes within it based upon, or accompanied by, an appeal to force, violence or terrorism; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Board of Directors of the California Society, Sons of the Revolution, that we most earnestly protest against the proposal to repeal the criminal syndicalism law and in that wise offer direct and positive invitation for the making of inflammatory speeches, the circulating of propagandizing literature and the holding of treasonable meetings, all conceived and calculated to bring about changes in political control or industrial relations through an appeal to force and the use of terrorism rather than an appeal to reason and the employment of the ballot, and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be given to the press for publication, and that a copy, duly certified, be sent to the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, and the Speaker of the Assembly, respectively, of the State of California.

I hereby certify that the foregoing document is a correct copy of the resolution adopted by the board of directors of the California Society, Sons of the Revolution, at a regular meeting held in Los Angeles on the thirty-first day of January, 1927.

Witness my hand and the seal of said society.

Resolution read, and on motion of Mr. Anderson, Roscoe J., unanimously adopted.

MOTION TO PRINT SPEECH.

On motion of Mr. Walters, the speech of Mr. Anderson, Roscoe J., relative to the above resolution was ordered printed in the Journal.

SPEECH BY HONORABLE ROSCOE J. ANDERSON OF SHASTA.

Mr. Speaker and Members of the Assembly.

John W. Benton, at the time of his untimely death at Buenos Aires, was 30 years of age. He was one of the youngest men of high rank and great success in the aviation service of the United States. He had not yet been appointed to the highest rank of service, due entirely to his age, but he had attained the highest possible confidence of his superior officers, and they had learned to respect and rely upon him and upon his judgment. I know this to be a fact, by personal observation, for I have seen him in service in the company of his superior officers, and I have noted their deference to his position and his suggestions upon matters pertaining to the service.

When the United States went to war in the recent great World War, he immediately responded to his country's call and served faithfully and well in the aviation service, and upon his discharge he went into private business; but the call of the air service and the call of patriotic duty soon compelled him to reenlist and he became, without delay, one of the most relied upon and dependable young officers in that service. This is proven by the fact that when the United States government selected its picked crew to go on the mission of good will to the other American countries he was one of those selected for this great honor.

John W. Benton was born and raised in Shasta County, California; his family were pioneers in that part of California and were always highly respected and valuable citizens of Shasta County, California. They stood high in the esteem of the people there and have performed a great service in the development of that territory.

John W. Benton was one of the most loved and respected young men of Redding and Shasta County; his character and morals were above reproach and well worthy of being a model or pattern for other young men, and I know of no young man in that section of the State more generally loved and respected than John W. Benton. His services in the aviation corps took him away from home, but on every opportunity he would return for a visit to the old home town and the old home folks. He was intensely loyal to his friends and community as well as to his country.

Lieutenant Benton died in the service of his country, and such a wonderful service, the service of carrying good will and greetings from our great nation to our sister nations in America. He died in time of peace, but in the service and for as great a cause as though it was in time of war. Redding and Shasta County, his home town and county, honor him; the military an service of the United States government honor him, and California can well honor such a noble and successful son by the passage of the resolution proposed. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I move you the adoption of the resolution

ADJOURNMENT.

Assembly Joint Resolution No. 4 ordered transmitted to the Senate.

ASSEMBLY JOINT RESOLUTION No. 4.

Relative to memorializing Congress to adopt a bill to provide compensation in lieu of taxes for the several states with respect to certain lands of the United States within the borders of said states, and for other purposes.

WHEREAS, There has been introduced a bill in the House of Representatives of the United States, being H. R. 7075—sixty-ninth Congress, first session, which provides: "That the United States government hereby assumes, subject to the conditions of this act or any subsequent act of Congress, the payment to the several states of sums of money equivalent to the amounts which such states would receive from the taxation of said lands of the United States within their respective borders if such lands were owned by individuals"; and

WHEREAS, Under an act of Congress of the United States approved March 3, 1891, large areas of territory with the timber and other resources thereon and therein were "set apart, reserved, and withdrawn from entry" in the states of California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Arizona and New Mexico and in a lesser degree in several of the other states of the Union; and

WHEREAS, The United States government has withdrawn, set apart, and reserved within permanent national forests eighteen million eight hundred ninety-one thousand one hundred sixty-one acres of land within the State of California, approximating one-fifth of the total land area of the State, said lands being set apart, withdrawn from entry and reserved for the purpose of conserving the resources thereof and particularly the standing timber thereon for the benefit of future generations of mankind; and

WHEREAS, The lands of the United States above referred to, comprise in several of the counties upwards of one-half of the area within the borders of the counties, and, although exempt from annual taxation, are being put to commercial and industrial uses for the benefit of all the people of the United States, which fact places these lands on the same basis, as to use, as privately owned lands used for the same purpose, and said lands of the United States are in competition with said privately owned lands, and the setting aside, reserving and withdrawing from entry of these large areas of territory in the sparsely settled forest counties and on which the United States pays no taxes, results in throwing a heavy tax burden on privately owned property in the same political subdivision of government thus making the financing of local government a difficult problem indeed; and

WHEREAS, This area is not and can not be taxed by any of the thirty-nine counties of California wherein this vast domain is situated, although each of said counties is required to and do perform therein and thereon all necessary and requisite police powers, equip, maintain and operate schools; equip, maintain and operate courts for the punishment of offenders against the forest and other laws, construct, repair and maintain trails, roads and bridges and to do and perform such other acts, duties and powers as may be necessary to the enjoyment of such forests by the people of the United States as well as of other nations; and

WHEREAS, When state government was instituted and the several states admitted into the Union they were divided into counties, and townships and each of the states, counties and townships were guaranteed the full right of enjoyment of all the territory and resources within their respective borders and the declared policy of the United States government being to dispose of all the public domain, and article ten of the declaration of rights, which formed the basis for the union of the states provides, that "No state shall be deprived of territory for the benefit of the United States." In setting apart, reserving and withdrawing from entry nineteen million acres of land for national forest purposes within the boundaries of a single state, surely territory has been taken from that state for the benefit of the United States; and

WHEREAS, The following clause is contained in the enabling act of every state admitted into the Union, beginning with Ohio in 1803: "The state when admitted shall be on a basis of equality with the original states in all respects whatever." Therefore all political subdivisions of government should be on a basis of equality, which makes it necessary for all to contribute on a basis of equality to the solution of all problems of national necessity (and we deem the national forests to be such a problem), and if in so doing it becomes necessary to take territory and resources from some of the subdivisions of government, and "set apart, reserve or withdraw" the same from entry for the benefit of all the others, then those benefited should join in reimbursing the subdivisions of government from which the territory and resources were taken, otherwise there can be no basis of equality; and

WHEREAS, The Congress of the United States has enacted legislation known as the "exchange bills," and under the provisions of said law, private owners are enabled to exchange cut-over lands for standing timber on the lands of the United States, and since said law has become operative, private owners have availed themselves to the right granted to them under said law and have conveyed hundreds of thousands of acres of such lands to the United States and have received in exchange, hundreds of millions of feet of standing virgin timber from the United States, and as a result of the operation of such legislation, counties in which such exchanges have been made or in which such exchanges may hereafter be made, have had or will have taken from them and removed from the assessment rolls of such counties, many thousands of dollars in assessed valuation, and in addition to this loss of assessed valuation such counties are losing the percentage which they would receive were a sale made instead of an exchange, and as Colonel Greely, chief forester of the United States, has said of this law, "The forest counties lose both going and coming", and

WHEREAS, The Congress of the United States has enacted the so-called Clark-McNary law, and under the provisions of section 7 of said law, private owners are enabled to donate or devise to the United States lands chiefly valuable for the growing of forests, the private owner reserving the timber, mineral, grazing and other rights and when so conveyed become a part of the national forest reserve and not open to entry or taxation, and should timber owners in some of the counties in several of the western states exercise their just right under this law, and convey their said lands to the United States, thus taking from the assessment rolls of the counties the immense valuation involved and the right of taxation, it will result in putting many of the forest counties of the west out of business, because such counties will be unable to raise sufficient revenue to maintain county government, and if such counties are annexed to a nonforest county in the same state the county to which it is annexed will receive not an asset but a liability; and

WHEREAS, It is only just and right that a heavy burden of local taxation should not be placed annually on the people of any state, in which, and by reason of the fact that, extensive areas of territory having great natural resources, guaranteed to them in the beginning and later legislated from them, have been set apart, reserved and withdrawn from entry for the economic use and benefit of all of the people of the United States, and we believe that if the government of the United States can not afford to finance its national forests, then in right and justice it should not expect the sparsely settled forest counties to do so for it; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly and Senate, jointly, That the Legislature of the State of California approves of the purpose of the Raker bill referred to and respectfully request its support and adoption, by the Congress of the United States at the earliest possible date; and, be it further

Resolved, That any moneys to be paid to the State of California, by the United States under the provisions of the Raker bill or any similar bill, or any law enacted by the Congress of the United States, based on forest values of the forest counties of California, shall be divided among said forest counties in proportion to the forest values fixed by the United States bureau of public roads; provided, that by the term "forest counties" is meant those counties of California, a part of which are in the present national forests; and provided, further, that any portion of the timber sale, grazing or other receipts of national forests returned by the federal government to the State of California, are excepted herefrom; and, be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly of the State of California be authorized and directed to transmit copies of this resolution by mail to the governors of the states of Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Nevada, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona with the request that similar action be taken by their respective legislatures; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly of the State of California be authorized and directed to transmit copies of this resolution by mail, to all the by their respective legislatures, and, be it further Authority: Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 16.

To the Senate and Assembly of the State of California.

The joint committee of the Senate and Assembly appointed pursuant to Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 16 respectfully submits its report and recommendations.

By the resolution authorizing this committee, the committee was directed > "to make a further study of the records of the State Engineer, pertaining to the subject of this resolution and to report its findings and submit its recommendations to this Legislature at the forty-seventh session thereof not later than the first week in March, 1927."

The committee immediately upon commencing its work became impressed with the magnitude of the project contemplated and the momentous consequences to follow any decision of the Legislature.

The development of the water resources of the State constitutes incomparably the most gigantic and far-reaching problem in the field of material development today confronting California. Here is involved the last great natural resource of the State The project, if and when completed, is estimated to cost an enormous sum of money. Its 262 contemplated reservoirs, with a capacity of 50,000,000 acre-feet of water, bringing into production 1,500,000 acres of new land, will create new agricultural values, furnish a new supply of water for domestic purposes, a new source of power for industry and household uses, will control floods, check salt water inundation, possibly revive hydraulic mining—in a word, it will affect the daily life of every person within the confines of our State. Here is a priceless heritage that must be kept under the control of the State, for it is a fact well established by history that the agency which controls the natural resources of any state or nation controls the destiny of its people.

The State government has for many years recognized the importance of the conservation of the State's water resources. A new chapter was begun six years ago in the State's attention to the water problem when in 1921 the Legislature appropriated $200,000 with which the State Engineer should make a comprehensive investigation of the water resources of the State. State-wide recognition of the importance of this work was given in 1923, when the Chambers of Commerce of San Francisco and Los Angeles advanced $90,000 for the study of a first unit of a comprehensive plan that would relieve the stress in a section of the State most in need of an imported water supply. The Legislature of 1925 repaid this money and appropriated $150,000 additional for the completion of the investigation. A total of $440,000 has been expended by the State during the six years. A mass of invaluable engineering data has been gathered, and a coordinated plan of development proposed in which the State is under no moral obligation by having received financial assistance from any special interest.

THREE MAJOR PROBLEMS.

In taking up its study, your committee immediately recognized that the problem consisted of three major phases: engineering, legal and financial. These three different phases will be taken up and discussed separately.

ENGINEERING.

Immediately after organizing, your committee called a public hearing to be held in the Senate Chamber, January 26th and 27th. At this hearing State Engineer Bailey and his assistants were present with maps and data The coordinated plan was explained more in detail than shown in Bulletin No. 12. The plan has been denominated a "Coordinated Plan," for the reason that it coordinates irrigation, power development, flood control, hydraulic mining, salt water control and navigation. Representatives of irrigation and water interests from all over the State were present, including those whose interests are affected by the salt water menace at the junction of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers. A keen interest was apparent throughout the hearings. In addition to his able presentation of the plan, State Engineer Bailey answered readily and clearly innumerable questions from the committee and from the floor. A complete transcript of the hearings has been made and is now on file with the chairman of the committee Chief Engineer Barton of the State Reclamation Board was present and at the request of the committee submitted a report as to the value of the coordinated plan in the matter of flood control. The conclusion or summary of his report is attached hereto and marked Exhibit "A."

CONCLUSIONS.

1. That the coordinated plan, while it is endorsed by many eminent engineers, is of such huge magnitude that it would take months of intensive study and public hearings before your committee would feel justified in making a recommendation as to its practicability upon which the Legislature could take any action.

2. If attempted, construction should proceed progressively upon a unit basis which should be worked out in harmony with existing and future local projects.

3. Adequate legislative machinery must be provided for the execution and operation of the plan, if adopted.

LEGAL.

Immediately upon beginning its hearings it became apparent to your committee that the execution of the coordinated plan would bring it in direct conflict with a most serious legal obstacle—the rights of riparian owners along the streams involved. Your committee felt that it could do no greater service to the State as a whole than to seek relief from the doctrine of wasteful riparian rights, a doctrine set forth in the recent decision of the Supreme Court of California in the Herminghaus case and substantiated by a long line of court decisions. This doctrine, we believe, if carried out without limit would not only make the accomplishment of the coordinated plan practically impossible, but would endanger the rights of thousands of California's citizens whose very existence depends upon appropriated water rights.

Realizing the seriousness of this situation, your committee appointed a subcommittee to meet with legal authorities upon water rights—Supreme Court and Appellate Court Justices, judges of our trial courts, and legal representatives of all different interests affected.

The subcommittee made its report to this committee on February 9th, a copy of the subcommittee's report being appended hereto and marked Exhibit "B."

Public hearings were held in the Senate Chamber on February 15th, 16th and 17th, for the consideration of this legal problem. At these hearings the general public was invited and participated in the discussions. Representatives of the various interests affected expressed themselves in support of and in opposition to the suggestions set forth in the subcommittee's report.

As a result of the three days' hearings of this legal problem, one proposition stood out amidst all the discussions, namely: that private property in water rights can not be taken without compensation. However much it might be wished that the law were otherwise in respect to the riparian doctrine, we must face it as it is. The one thing, therefore, upon which there was a unanimous conviction on the part of the committee, was that legal machinery should be set up for expeditiously acquiring, by condemnation, the private property in water rights necessary for the consummation of the coordinated plan

In connection with the legal aspects of this problem, your committee wishes to call attention to Assembly Bill No. 1206, of the 1925 session, under which there was sold to private parties the Folsom reservoir site on the American River, a site constituting an important unit of the coordinated plan. The committee felt that in view of the possibility of the adoption of the coordinated plan that the Folsom site should not have been permitted to pass from State ownership From the hearings it appeared that the present plans of the private owners are not in harmony with the coordinated plan, at least in the matter of flood control, and that the contemplated construction by the private owners affords no dependable protection to North Sacramento against floods.

The committee found that doubt exists both as to the legality of the contract of purchase in possibly exceeding the authority given under Bill No. 1206, and also as to the legality of the bill itself because of the doubt as to whether the title properly sets forth the purpose of the bill. For these reasons the committee unanimously passed a resolution asking the Attorney General to investigate the entire matter of the legality of the sale of the Folsom site.

A transcript of the hearings before the committee on the legal aspects of the coordinated plan has also been made and is on file with the chairman of the committee.

CONCLUSIONS.

(1) That a State Water Commission should be created, vested with jurisdiction to investigate, hear and determine claims to the use of water, to hear and determine proceedings in eminent domain for the taking of water for public use, and regulation of the distribution thereof, and to fix the just compensation to be paid for the taking of such water.

(2) In view of the possibility of the adoption and execution by the State of California of the coordinated plan, this committee feels that the State of California should at once take the necessary steps, either through its proper officials or by legislation, to file on, or withdraw from filing by private parties, the water rights to be utilized and required for the consummation of the coordinated plan.

FINANCIAL.

The financing of the coordinated plan is such a stupendous task that your committee has been unable, in the few weeks we have had to consider this problem, to enter into this phase of the matter except in a very general way. The benefits to be obtained from this development are so many and varied, the effect upon the economic structure of our basic industry of agriculture so far reaching, that a plan which is economically sound can only be worked out after long and painstaking study.

The irrigation projects of our State which have gone ahead, pioneered the principle of irrigation, and built up an adequate water supply of their own, cannot be expected to consent to an increase of their already too heavy tax burden except as it would directly benefit them or the State as a whole. Likewise, lands so located that nature has failed to make a sufficient supply of water available or has provided an excess of water creating a flood hazard cannot be expected to bear the entire burden of correcting nature's mistake. Navigation, flood control, salt water encroachment, and control of mining debris, all are matters in which the federal, as well as the State, government is interested to a very appreciable degree.

The bringing of additional arid land into production by irrigation and into competition with the lands now under production and suffering from an appalling agricultural depression due to over-production, faulty distribution, or both, must be handled in a way which will not wreck the economic structure of the whole State. However, long prior to the consummation of the coordinated plan, there is every indication that the demand for agricultural products, both within this State and throughout the nation, will be such as to absorb every bit of California's agricultural production. The present rate of increase of California's population, and the growth that must come with the industrial and manufacturing expansion of the future will, beyond question, create new demands and markets for the products of the soil that will overtake the State's ability to produce. The present depression and overproduction will have passed long before a consummation of the coordinated plan.

No present or contemplated project can be expected to release its present water supply or any part of it unless the supply offered in exchange is equally as economical and dependable.

The entire project for the co-ordinated plan depends in its final analysis upon the practical question of whether the benefits received will justify the outlay required. In order to justify itself, and merit the endorsement of the State, the Legislature should be convinced that the benefits outweigh the enormous cost. This involves the whole financial and economic aspect of the project. It presents also the question of what agencies shall contribute financially to the cost—what proportion the federal government will be willing to pay in the interest of navigation, flood control and possibly irrigation, what proportion the State of California will be willing to pay in the interests of increased prosperity of all its people, what proportion specific interests should pay—irrigationists, power consumers, domestic water, hydraulic mining and saline control.

This financial-economic aspect presents a problem so vast that we feel it can not be solved except by long continued, careful study and investigation. The State Engineer, in Bulletin No. 12, says:

> "So extensive is the area, so many and varied are the interests, and so great are the expenditures involved in this plan that the usual method of procedure is impracticable. The economic, financial, legal and political problems relating to its execution are so complex and far reaching that they should be the subject of careful deliberation. The broad values and public advantages of the plan should be weighed with the costs and difficulties. Methods of execution, of operation and of financing should be considered along with the extent to which costs should be distributed."

The engineer then states that in view of the intricate nature of these problems and their momentous bearing on the future of California, that there should be a thorough investigation for the purpose of determining:

Second—If found to be practical, the recommendation of a method of procedure.

With the State Engineer's recommendation that there be this thorough investigation, your committee is in accord.

GENERAL CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

In this brief report your committee has endeavored to give to your honorable body in as few words as possible a general perspective of the entire situation as we find it, and to recommend, after serious study, what we consider to be a sound method of procedure. Your committee feels very definitely that this is a matter in which, urgent as some of the needs are, the only safe policy is to make haste slowly. Any policy or plan precipitated without the most painstaking consideration is sure to result in disaster. No loss of time will result in this investigation as it will take approximately two years for the adoption by the people of the necessary change in the constitution to permit the undertaking of the coordinated plan.

Such investigation, as a result of which the State may be asked to undertake a project of such magnitude and which the Legislature may be requested to approve, should be made by a committee of State officials, elected by and answerable to, the people of the State.

I.

That a legislative committee of four members of the Assembly and four members of the Senate be appointed as a permanent committee during the next two years to continue this intensive study, to confer with the proper federal authorities, and to hold hearings of all those concerned in the development or use of the water resources of the State, with a view to making a final report to the forty-eighth session of the Legislature. That said committee be authorized to hold public hearings in any part of the State, to the end that the public may be fully taken into its confidence and that the committee may receive first-hand knowledge of the effect of the plan on the local conditions of each community A copy of the bill to provide for such committee is hereunto attached and marked Exhibit "C."

II.

That the Governor of the State be authorized and requested by the Legislature to communicate with the President of the United States and invoke the aid of the federal government in establishing a basis for the execution of the coordinated plan A copy of a resolution making such request of the Governor is hereunto attached and marked Exhibit "D"

III.

That the printing of Bulletins 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17 of the Department of Public Works be continued, in accordance with arrangements made and funds provided by the Board of Control since the convening of the Legislature, in order that this valuable information may be available to those so vitally interested in the water situation.

IV.

That a constitutional amendment be submitted by this Legislature providing for the creation of the State Water Commission mentioned in this report, said constitutional amendment to be in substantially the form set forth in Exhibit "E," hereto attached.

V.

That the State, either through its proper officials or by legislation, at once, file on, or withdraw from filing by private parties, the water rights to be utilized and required under the coordinated plan A copy of the necessary legislation to accomplish this end is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "F."

VI.

That the Governor be requested to ask the Attorney General, in the event that he deems invalid the legislation of the 1925 session, for the sale of the Folsom reservoir site, or the contract executed pursuant to such legislation, to institute legal proceedings for the cancellation of said contract, and the reacquiring by the State of the title to said property. A copy of the necessary resolution is attached hereto, marked Exhibit "G"

The legislation proposed by your committee we believe to be absolutely necessary if California is to continue to develop her water resources in security Therefore, your committee submits the foregoing report and commends the recommendations therein contained to your favorable consideration.

Respectfully submitted.

RESERVATION OF CRITTENDEN AND BERNARD.

We have signed this report on condition that we will support an amendment thereto; that we believe E without the substance of Exhibit No. 2 and Exhibit No. 1 or the irrigation district report accomplishes little.

CONCLUSIONS.

Our conclusions, more fully set out above, are as follows:

1. That an investigation and study of the economics of the proposed plan is vitally necessary before any determination in regard to the plan can be soundly made

2. That the theory and procedure employed in analyzing the regulation of flood crests by means of storage are sound and logical, and the results obtained thereby unquestionably have merit.

3. That a reduction in peak flood flow can be obtained by means of storage without material interference with the use of the same storage capacity for conservation purposes, but we are not prepared to say to what extent this can be accomplished in each specific instance.

4. That the degree of protection afforded through controlling floods by storage is greater than that afforded by the present plan of protection by levees and by-passes.

5. That, aside from a possible saving in construction costs of the unfinished portions of the Sacramento project, and even if the whole project were completed under the present levee plan, the construction of the four main Sacramento basin storage reservoirs and their operation in the manner described, would contribute to the safety of the areas menaced by floods

6. That flood control should not be given undue weight in relation to the coordinated plan as a whole. In the four main Sacramento reservoirs, the cost of the features necessary for flood control is only one fifty-fourth of the total cost.

7. The existing Sacramento flood control plan should not be disrupted in any manner by the present consideration of this storage project. Modifications to conform can be taken step by step with the development of the storage program.

Respectfully submitted.

REPORT OF SUBCOMMITTEE TO THE JOINT COMMITTEE OF SENATE AND ASSEMBLY UNDER ASSEMBLY CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NUMBER SIXTEEN.

To the Joint Committee of the Senate and Assembly under Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 16.

GENTLEMEN: Your subcommittee appointed to meet with the legal representatives of public service corporations, irrigation districts and other organizations and individuals for the purpose of attempting to work out a legal solution to the problems confronting the people of this State with regard to water storage, irrigation and kindred subjects, had a meeting with the representatives aforesaid upon the second day of February, 1927, and after a full day's discussion those present, other than your committee and other representatives of the State government, appointed a subcommittee as follows:

Mr. Fred G. Athearn.
Justice W. M. Finch.
Former Justice Max C. Sloss.
Former Judge W. D. Tillotson.
Attorney General U. S. Webb.

The last mentioned committee met and considered the matters under discussion and rendered its report to this subcommittee, a copy of which is hereto appended, marked "Exhibit No. 1."

That your subcommittee met and carefully considered said report and respectfully reports and recommends:

1. We are of the opinion that, in order to meet the legal situation, two constitutional amendments are necessary, the first, a copy of which is hereto appended and marked "Exhibit No. 2," we suggest should be offered as a substitute for Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 19.

2. The second, a copy of which is hereto appended, marked "Exhibit No. 3," we suggest should be offered as a substitute for Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 14.

3. We recommend that, if found practicable, a bill be prepared and introduced, creating in detail the machinery authorized by Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 14 and being predicated upon the passage and adoption of that amendment by the people.

Respectfully submitted.

J. M. INMAN.
BRADFORD S. CRITTENDEN.

On account of not having had the opportunity of meeting with the subcommittee, or of studying its report, I am compelled to refrain at this time from either dissenting from or approving the recommendations herein embodied.

HERBERT C JONES.

EXHIBIT NUMBER ONE.

February 6, 1927.

To the Honorable Senators, J. M. Inman, H. C Jones and Bradford S. Crittenden.

DEAR SIRS: Following the conference had in the office of the Governor, Wednesday, February 2, 1927, for the purpose of discussing Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 14 and Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 19, the persons present at that conference, other than the Governor and members of the Legislature, met and appointed a committee to give further and detailed consideration to the subject involved in the two proposed amendments in the light of the views expressed at the general conference, and to report back to you the results of their deliberations.

The committee selected by the general conference was as follows:

Mr. Fred G. Athearn,
Justice W. M. Finch.
Former Justice Max C. Sloss.
Former Judge W. D. Tillotson.
Attorney General U. S. Webb.

The committee has spent much time in reviewing the suggestions made at the general conference held on February 2, and has had also the benefit of the views subsequently expressed in writing to it by members of the general conference.

The several views expressed by the various members of the general conference and the views of the several members of the committee have, in the final analysis, a strikingly common characteristic, viz. that there is imperative need that the limits of the right of an owner of riparian land should be set and that prevention of a wasteful use of water is a matter of paramount importance to the general welfare of the State.

The problem before your committee has been that of accomplishing these ends without working unnecessary hardship and at the same time doing even-handed justice to present and prospective users of water.

The result of your committee's labors has been, therefore, an amalgamation as it were of both proposed constitutional amendments with addition of certain matter that is not now a part of either proposed amendment. These changes and additions have been effected with reference to Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 14 and will be so referred to in this report, as a matter of convenience only and not for the reason that such changes and additions could not have been made with reference to Assembly Constitutional Amendment No 19

1 The words "lake or pond" have been stricken from the title and the word "or" inserted between "stream" and "watercourse."

2. The same change as made in the title has been made in line 15.

The reason for this change is that the committee is of the opinion that the proposed amendment should deal primarily with streams and watercourses and that there is no need for legislation affecting lakes and ponds.

3. The title has been changed so that it shall read "two new sections to be numbered three and four" The same change has been made in lines 7 and 8.

4 The word "natural" in line 9 has been stricken out.

This has been done for the reason that it appears to the committee that conditions generally, artificial as well as natural, require that the water resources of the State be conserved.

5. Following the word "prevented" in line 13, the following sentence has been added:

> "It is further declared that the surplus waters in the State are owned by the State and that the conservation and equitable distribution of such waters are subject to the control of the State."

This has been added so as to make it clear by constitutional declaration that the surplus waters of the State are owned by the State. A definition of what constitutes "surplus water" is given in another amendment which appears later

6 The period appearing at the end of line 24 is changed to a comma and the following phrase and sentence added:

> "provided, however, that nothing in this section contained shall be deemed to vest in any person, firm or corporation any additional right to water or to the use of water, and surplus waters shall be used only in such manner and to such extent as may be provided by law. Surplus water of any stream or watercourse is hereby defined as all water flowing therein in excess of that flow required to supply the rights of the owners of riparian lands, as prescribed in this article, and the rights of appropriators and others acquired pursuant to law prior to the adoption of this section."

The purpose of the first phrase, "provided, however, that nothing in this section contained", etc., is to guard against conferring a vested right on any person, firm or corporation, other than the State, in waters which shall be saved or prevented from being wasted by reason of requiring that users of water shall put the same to the highest beneficial use and without waste, as provided in section 3 of the proposed amendment

The sentence defining surplus water is designed to settle definitely that surplus waters are the waters that arise or that may be in the stream or watercourse after the rights of all persons to the use of water from the stream shall have been satisfied, and that such surplus waters shall be then owned by the State and their conservation and equitable distribution subject to the control of the State

7 Another section, to be known as section 4, has been added, reading as follows:

> "Riparian rights in a stream or watercourse attach to no more than so much of the flow thereof, as may be required or used consistently with section 3 of this article. The flow of a stream or watercourse is that flow which is confined within the natural banks thereof The definition of riparian rights made in this article is to be observed in the future, and is intended also as a statement of the law as the same has existed continuously since by act of the Legislature of California the common law of England was declared to be the rule of decision in all the courts of this State"

The purpose of this section is to define beyond the peradventure of a doubt the limits of a riparian right in a stream or watercourse, and, further, to put beyond the sphere of debate what it is that constitutes the flow of a stream or watercourse, and that such water as has escaped beyond the natural banks of a stream is not a part of the flow to which riparian rights attach This section also makes it imperative that the definition of water rights and of flow of stream be made the rule of decisions in the State of California.

Your committee also is of the opinion that there should be a separate constitutional amendment providing for the creation of a tribunal which should have the power to hear and determine questions involving rights to water and to the use thereof, as well as the power to determine the just compensation which should be paid in proceedings in eminent domain taken to condemn the right to water or to the use thereof. Such a tribunal should, in the opinion of your committee, be of expert and technical character, not bound by the ordinary rules of evidence, but with the power to make investigations at first hand, so that proceedings involving rights to water or the use of water, or the condemnation thereof, might be expeditiously determined. With that in view, your committee respectfully suggests an amendment to the constitution by adding a new section to article XX of the constitution, to be numbered 22 and to read as hereinafter set forth in Exhibit "B."

The vast importance to the people of the State of California of having the matter of water rights definitely settled in the State so that agricultural and industrial projects may go forward in security is so great that, in the event you and the Legislature see fit to take action along the lines suggested in this letter, your committee ventures to suggest and urge the advisability of calling a special election at an early date to ratify the amendments here suggested.

The constitutional amendment dealing with the conservation of water, as revised, is attached hereto as Exhibit "A."

The constitutional amendment dealing with the creation of a tribunal to handle cases involving water rights or the condemnation thereof is set forth as Exhibit "B," attached hereto.

Respectfully submitted.

EXHIBIT "A."

Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 14—A resolution to propose to the people of the State of California an amendment to the constitution of said State by adding to article XIV thereof two new sections, to be numbered 3 and 4, declaring the interest of said State in the water resources thereof, and defining the right to the use and flow of water in any natural stream or watercourse in said State by appropriators, riparian owners or others.

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That the Legislature of the State of California at its regular session commencing on the third day of January, 1927, two-thirds of all of the members elected to each of the two houses of said Legislature voting in favor thereof, hereby propose to the people of the State of California that the constitution of said State be amended by adding to article XIV thereof two new sections, to be numbered 3 and 4, reading as follows:

SEC. 3. It is hereby declared that because of the conditions prevailing in this State the general welfare requires that the water resources of the State be put to beneficial use to the fullest extent of which they are capable and that the waste or wasteful use of water be prevented. It is further declared that the surplus waters in the State are owned by the State and that the conservation and equitable distribution of such waters are subject to the control of the State. The right to water or to the use or flow of water in or from any natural stream or watercourse in this State, whether by virtue of appropriation, riparian ownership or otherwise, is and shall be limited to such water as, when used economically and by economical methods of use, including methods of diversion, transportation, and application, shall at the time of use be reasonably required for the beneficial use to be served, and such right does not and shall not extend to the waste or wasteful use or wasteful method of use of water or to the maintenance of the natural level of a stream so as to effect a diversion of a part thereof, or for depositing silt therefrom; provided, however, that nothing in this section contained shall be deemed to vest in any person, firm or corporation any additional right to water or to the use of water, and surplus waters shall be used only in such manner and to such extent as may be provided by law. Surplus water of any stream or watercourse is hereby defined as all water flowing therein in excess of that flow required to supply the rights of the owners of riparian lands, as prescribed in this article, and the rights of appropriators and others acquired pursuant to law prior to the adoption of this section This section shall be self-executing, but on the power of the Legislature to enact laws in furtherance of the policy in this section declared.

SEC. 4. Riparian rights in a stream or watercourse attach to no more than so much of the flow thereof as may be required or used consistently with section 3 of this article. The flow of a stream or watercourse is that flow which is confined within the natural banks thereof. The definition of riparian rights made in this article is to be observed in the future, and is intended also as a statement of the law as the same has existed continuously since by act of the Legislature of California the common law of England was declared to be the rule of decisions in all the courts of this State.

EXHIBIT "B."

The Legislature is hereby expressly vested with plenary power to create a State Water Commission, consisting of such number of members as the Legislature may determine, to be appointed by the Governor; to prescribe the duties and powers of said commission; and to fix the terms and tenure of office, qualifications and the salaries of the members thereof The Legislature may, in its discretion, unlimited by any provision of this constitution, other than the provisions of this section, vest said commission with jurisdiction and judicial power to investigate, hear and determine claims of right to the use of water, to hear and determine proceedings in eminent domain for the taking of water or the right to the use thereof for public use, and, in any such proceeding, to fix the just compensation to be paid for the taking of water or the right to the use thereof for public use; and may provide that, in fixing the amount of such compensation, the said commission shall take into consideration any benefits from the installation or operation of the proposed public use which are reasonably certain to accrue to lands of the owner whose right to the use of water thereon is so taken; and may further provide the method and manner of all proceedings before said commission and the rules of evidence applicable thereto, and may authorize said commission to make independent investigations of its own and to take into consideration any data and information, acquired by means of such investigations, in determining any issues in any proceeding by or before it. All decisions of said commission shall be subject to review by the appellate courts of this state in such manner and to such extent as the Legislature may provide.

EXHIBIT NUMBER TWO

Add to article XIV a new section to be numbered 3, to read as follows

The ownership and beneficial use of all waters in this state being in the natural lakes, ponds or other static repositories thereof, or flowing in any natural stream or watercourse, whether surface or subterranean, are hereby declared to be a public use and such waters a public utility, and as such subject to the police powers of the state to be exercised in the equitable control, regulation, conservation and distribution thereof, with a view to the reasonable and beneficial use thereof and of the whole thereof in the interest of the people and for the public welfare

"Provided, however, that nothing herein contained shall be construed as depriving any riparian owner of the reasonable use of water riparian to his land under modern methods of diversion, transportation and application."

While I agree that little, if any, strength would be given the language and intent of the proposed amendment, I think it might well be included in order to remove all possible doubt in the minds of riparian owners.

J. M. INMAN.

EXHIBIT NUMBER THREE

Add to article XX a new section to be numbered 22, to read as follows

The Legislature is hereby expressly vested with plenary power to create a state water commission, consisting of such number of members as the Legislature may determine, to be appointed by the governor; to prescribe the duties and powers of said commission, and to fix the terms of office and the salaries of the members thereof. The Legislature may, in its discretion, unlimited by any provision of this constitution other than the provisions of this section, vest said commission with jurisdiction and judicial power to investigate, hear and determine claims of right to the use of water, to hear and determine proceedings in eminent domain for the taking of water for public use, and, in any such proceeding, to fix the just compensation to be paid for the taking of water for public use and may provide that, in fixing the amount of such compensation, the said commission shall take into consideration any benefits from the installation and operation of the proposed public use which are reasonably certain to accrue to the lands of the owner whose right to the use of water thereon is so taken; and may further provide the method and manner of all proceedings before said commission and the rules of evidence applicable thereto, and may authorize said commission to make independent investigations of its own and to take into consideration any data and information, acquired by means of such investigations, in determining any issues in any proceeding by or before it All decisions of said commission shall be subject to review by the appellate courts of this state in such manner and to such extent as the Legislature may provide.

SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION NO._____.

Relating to securing the aid of the United States Government in establishing a basis for execution of the coordinated plan for development of the water resources of California.

WHEREAS, The Joint Legislative Committee of the forty-seventh session of the Legislature under Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 16, has submitted its report, and,

WHEREAS, During its deliberation said committee fully realized that certain features of the coordinated plan for the development of the water resources of California, as outlined in Bulletin No 12 of the State Engineer, involved matters coming within the jurisdiction and concern of the federal government, and,

WHEREAS, Governor Young, in his inaugural address, recognized the paramount importance of some comprehensive plan for the conservation and development of the water resources of California in the following words:

> "The solution of this problem can no longer be left to haphazard and unrelated development. There is no doubt that it is high time to seek some comprehensive plan which will meet the needs of both our great central valleys. The water which falls so bountifully during our winters, and which now wastes itself in bay and ocean, if properly stored and controlled and placed upon the land, would be sufficient to water every irrigable foot of this vast area, beside practically eliminating all future danger from winter floods.
> This enterprise, however, is so vast that it can be financed by no one agency alone. The farmer whose lands are benefited can not meet the expense, as he largely does in the case of minor irrigation projects The county whose cities are dependent upon local agricultural prosperity must also do its share. The State must take the leadership in coordinating and planning the whole The federal government possible must be asked to advance the money for the initial construction, just as is proposed in the Boulder Canyon project."

Now, therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Senate, the Assembly concurring, that this Legislature commend to the Governor that he communicate with the President of the United States and invoke the cooperation and aid of the federal government in establishing a basis for the execution of the coordinated plan for development of the water resources of California.

EXHIBIT "E."

The Legislature is hereby expressly vested with plenary power to create a State Water Commission, consisting of such number of members as the Legislature may determine, to be appointed by the Governor; to prescribe the duties and powers of said commission; and to fix the terms and tenure of office, qualifications and the salaries of the members thereof. The Legislature may, in its discretion, unlimited by any provision of this constitution, other than the provisions of this section, vest said commission with jurisdiction and judicial power to investigate, hear and determine claims of right to the use of water, to hear and determine proceedings in eminent domain for the taking of water or the right to the use thereof for public use, and, in any such proceeding, to fix the just compensation to be paid for the taking of water or the right to the use thereof for public use; and may provide that, in fixing the amount of such compensation, the said commission shall take into consideration any benefits from the installation or operation of the proposed public use which are reasonably certain to accrue to lands of the owner whose right to the use of water thereon is so taken, and may further provide the method and manner of all proceedings before said commission and the rules of evidence applicable thereto, and may authorize said commission to make independent investigations of its own and to take into consideration any data and information, acquired by means of such investigations, in determining any issues in any proceeding by or before it. All decisions of said commission shall be subject to review by the appellate courts of this State in such manner and to such extent as the Legislature may provide.

Members of the Legislature,
State of California,
Sacramento, California.

GENTLEMEN: Your attention is respectfully called to the following resolution unanimously adopted by the board of supervisors of the city and county of San Francisco, February 28, 1927.

WHEREAS, There are now pending before the Legislature of the State of California, Senate Bill No. 208 and Assembly Bill No. 75, the same providing for an increase in the salaries of the judges of the superior court of San Francisco, Los Angeles and Alameda counties, and

WHEREAS, The great growth of population and industry in the State of California has resulted in a very substantial increase in the business of these courts, justifying an increase of the compensation paid to these judges, now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the board of supervisors of the city and county of San Francisco does hereby endorse Senate Bill No. 208 and Assembly Bill No. 75 and urges their passage; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the members of the Senate and Assembly and to the Governor of the State of California.

By the Chief Clerk:

CITY OF ALHAMBRA.

ALHAMBRA, CALIFORNIA, March 1, 1927.

Clerk of Assembly for Committee on Labor and Capital,
Sacramento, California.

DEAR SIR: I am enclosing herewith copy of Resolution No. 3072 of the Commission of the City of Alhambra.

Yours truly,

R. B. WALLACE, City Clerk.

Resolution No. 3072

WHEREAS, A so-called "Two Platoon Bill" (A. B. No. 20) was on January 11, 1927, introduced by Assemblywoman Woodbridge, of Placer County, and referred to the Committee on Labor and Capital, and

WHEREAS, A companion bill (S. B. No. 214) was on January 18, 1927, introduced by Senator Maloney, San Francisco, and referred to the Committee on Municipal Corporations, and

WHEREAS, If either of said proposed bills should be enacted into law, it would render it mandatory for all counties, city and county, cities, towns, districts, or other political subdivisions of this State either to increase the number of the present members of their paid fire departments (the cost of which would be out of all proportion to the benefits derived or added protection extended), or (if such step could not be afforded) to "split" their present fire forces into two shifts or platoons, thereby greatly impairing the departments' efficiency; and

WHEREAS, Cities and towns of the sixth class—the smallest municipalities of the State—would be the greatest sufferers if such proposed legislation were enacted, and

WHEREAS, It is the consensus of opinion that said question is one for the self-determination of the various communities that would be affected, by reason of different conditions that prevail in various parts of the State and the varying sizes of the communities, and that such a measure should not be arbitrarily imposed upon them by legislation; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, By the Commission of the City of Alhambra, that this board go on record as opposing and being unalterably opposed to said Senate Bill No. 214 and said Assembly Bill No. 20; and be it further

Said resolution shall contain also a notice of the day, hour and place when and where any and all persons having any objections to the proposed work or improvement may appear before the legislative body and show cause why said proposed improvement should not be carried out in accordance with said resolution; said time shall not be less than fifteen nor more than forty days from the date of the passage of said resolution. The city clerk or clerk of the board of supervisors shall cause said resolution of intention to be published twice in one or more daily newspapers published and circulated in said city or in said county, provided, if there be no daily newspaper, then the publication shall be made in one or more newspapers published and circulated therein less than six days a week, and said publication shall be had twice therein. The city council or board may include in one proceeding, under one resolution of intention and in one contract, any of the different kinds of work mentioned in this act on any number of streets, properties and rights of way or portions thereof, contiguous or otherwise, and it may except therefrom any of said work already done. The lots and portions of lots fronting upon said excepted work already done shall not be included in the assessment for the class of work from which the exception is made.

The grade to which any work shall be done or improvement made shall be such as may be shown on the plans or profiles therefor or it may be done on such a grade as may have been formally established by the city council or board. If any official grade has already been adopted or established for any of the streets, avenues, or other places or property, proposed to be improved, it shall be lawful for the resolution of intention to provide that said work shall be done to new grades or grades different from those so established or adopted, and shall refer to plans, profiles or specifications for the description of the grade at which the work is to be done. Any property owner whose property is to be assessed to pay the costs and expenses of the proposed improvement may at the time fixed in the resolution of intention for hearing of objections to the proposed work and improvement, appear before the city council or board and make objection to the proposed grade or proposed modification of grade. A failure to make objection at such time shall be deemed to be a waiver of all objections to the proposed grade or proposed change or modification of grade and shall operate as a bar to any claim for damages or any subsequent action looking to the prevention of the work or the recovery of damages on account of the performance of the work to such grade or changed grade. The provisions of this section relative to grades are alternative and shall not repeal other provisions of this act, or other statutes relative to change of grade.

Whenever the contemplated work or improvement, in the opinion of the city council or board, is of more than local or ordinary public benefit, or whenever, according to estimate to be furnished by the city engineer, or county surveyor, the total estimated costs and expenses thereof would exceed one-half the total assessed value of the lots and lands assessed, if assessed upon the lots or land fronting upon said proposed work or improvement, according to the valuation fixed by the last assessment roll whereon it was assessed for taxes for municipal or county purposes, and allowing a reasonable depth from such frontage for lots or lands assessed in bulk, the city council or board may make the expense of such work or improvement chargeable upon a district, which the said city council or board, shall, in its resolution of intention, declare to be the district benefited by said work or improvement, and to be assessed to pay the costs and expenses thereof. Such district may be described by stating the exterior boundaries thereof, or by giving a description thereof according to any official or recorded map or maps or by referring to a plat or map which shall be on file in the office of the city clerk, or clerk of the board or city engineer at the time of passing the resolution of intention, which shall indicate by a boundary line the extent of the territory included in the proposed district, which said plat or map shall govern for all details as to the extent of the said assessment district. The said district need not be described in any of the notices or resolutions provided for herein, other than the resolution of intention.

After the adoption of the resolution of intention, the street superintendent or county surveyor shall cause to be conspicuously posted along the line of said contemplated work or improvement, at not more than three hundred feet in distance apart, but not less than three in all, or when the work to be done is only upon an entire crossing or intersection or any part thereof, in front of each quarter block or irregular block liable to be assessed, notices of the passage of said resolution. In case the work is chargeable upon a district as herein provided, copies of said notice shall also be posted along all the open streets within such district at not more than three hundred feet in distance apart on each street so posted, but no proceeding shall ever be held invalid for failure to post any street or streets therein if this provision has been substantially complied with. In every case all posting must be fully completed at least ten days before the day set for hearing protests or objections as provided hereinabove. Said notices shall be headed "Notice of Street Work" in letters of not less than one inch in length; and shall, in legible characters, state the fact of the passage of the resolution of intention, its date, and briefly, the work or improvement proposed, and refer to the resolution of intention for further particulars. Said notices shall contain also a statement of the day, hour and place, when and where any and all persons having any objection to the proposed work or improvement may appear before the legislative body and show cause why said proposed improvement should not be carried out in accordance with said resolution of intention. The council may, if they deem it advisable, direct the clerk to mail copies of said notices to the owners or reputed owners whose names and addresses are known to him, but the mailing of such notices shall not be essential to obtaining jurisdiction by the council, and the failure so to do shall not affect in any manner the validity of any proceedings taken hereunder.

At any time not later than the hour set for hearing objections to the proposed work as provided hereinabove, any owner of property liable to be assessed for said work may make written protest against the proposed work or against the extent of the district to be assessed or both. Such protest must be in writing and be delivered to the said clerk of the city council or board and no other protests or objections shall be considered. At the time set for hearing protests the city council or board shall proceed to hear and pass upon all protests so made and its decision shall be final and conclusive, provided, however, that when the protest is against the proposed work, and the cost thereof is to be assessed upon the property fronting thereon, and the city council or board finds that such protest is made by the owners of a majority of the property fronting on the proposed work, or when the protest is against the proposed work and the cost thereof is to be assessed upon the property within a district, and the city council finds that such protest is made by the owners of more than one-half of the area of the property to be assessed for said improvement, no further proceedings shall be taken for a period of six months from the date of the decision of the city council, or board, on said hearing, unless the said protests be overruled by an affirmative vote of four-fifths of the members of the city council, or board The words "proposed work" as used herein, shall mean and include all the work described in the resolution of intention The city council or board may adjourn said hearings from time to time.

If no protests or objections in writing have been delivered to the clerk up to the hour set for hearing as hereinbefore provided, or when a protest shall have been found by said city council, or board to be insufficient, or shall have been overruled, or, when a protest against the extent of the proposed district shall have been heard and denied, immediately thereupon the city council, or board shall be deemed to have acquired jurisdiction to order the proposed improvements which order may be made by resolution.

Before passing any resolution for the construction of improvements, plans and specifications and careful estimates of the costs and expenses thereof shall be furnished to said city council, or board, if required by it, by the city engineer of said city, or county surveyor; and for the work of constructing sewers, specifications shall always be furnished by him.

In all resolutions, notices, orders and determinations, subsequent to the resolution of intention it shall not be necessary to describe the assessment district, and in all of the same, subsequent to the resolution of intention and the notice of improvement, it shall be sufficient to refer to the resolution of intention for a description of the work or improvement and the assessment district.

AMENDMENT NUMBER THREE

That there be inserted next thereafter, the following: "Section 2. That section 6 of said hereinbefore mentioned act be amended to read as follows: "Before the awarding of any contract by the council, or board, for doing any work authorized by this act, the council, or board, shall cause notice, with specifications, to be posted conspicuously for five days on or near the council, or board, chamber door, inviting sealed proposals or bids for doing the work ordered, and shall also cause notice of said work, inviting said proposals, and referring to the specifications posted or on file, to be published for two days in a daily, semiweekly, or weekly newspaper published and circulated in said municipality, or county, designated by the council, or board, for that purpose, and in case there is no newspaper published in said municipality, or county then it shall only be posted as hereinbefore provided

All proposals or bids offered shall be accompanied by a check payable to the order of the mayor of the municipality, or president of the board of supervisors, certified by a responsible bank, for an amount which shall not be less than ten per cent of the aggregate of the proposal, or by a bond for the said amount and so payable, signed by the bidder and by two sureties, who shall justify before any officer competent to administer an oath, in double the said amount over and above all statutory exemptions. Said proposals or bids shall be delivered to the clerk of said council, or board, and said council, or board, shall, in open session, examine and publicly declare the same provided, however, that no proposal or bid shall be considered unless accompanied by said check or bond satisfactory to the council, or board

The council, or board, may reject any and all proposals or bids should it deem this for the public good, and also the bid of any party who has been delinquent or unfaithful in any former contract with the municipality or county, and shall reject all proposals or bids other than the lowest regular proposal or bid of any responsible bidder, and may award the contract for said work or improvement to the lowest responsible bidder at the prices named in his bid. If not approved by the council, or board, without further proceedings, the council, or board, may readvertise for proposals or bids for the performance of the work as in the first instance, and thereafter proceed in the manner in this section provided, and shall thereupon return to the proper parties the respective checks and bonds corresponding to the bid so rejected. But the checks accompanying such accepted proposals or bids shall be held by the clerk of said council, or board, until the contract for doing said work, as hereinafter provided, has been entered into, either by said lowest bidder or by the owners of three-fourths part of the frontage, whereupon said certified check shall be returned to said bidder.

But if said bidder fails, neglects or refuses to enter into the contract to perform said work or improvement, as hereinafter provided, then the certified check accompanying his bid and the amount therein mentioned, shall be declared to be forfeited to said municipality, or county, and shall be collected by it and paid into its fund for repairs of streets, avenues, lanes, alleys, courts and places herein mentioned, and any bond forfeited may be prosecuted, and the amount due thereon collected and paid into said fund.

Notice of such award of contract shall be published for two days in a daily newspaper published and circulated in said municipality or county and designated by said council, or board, or in municipalities or counties where there is no daily newspaper, by one insertion in a semiweekly or weekly newspaper so published, circulated and designated, provided, however, that in case there is no newspaper printed or published in any such municipality or county then such notice of award shall be posted for five days on or near the council chamber door.

The owners of three-fourths of the frontage of lots and lands, upon the street whereon said work is to be done, or their agents, and who shall make oath that they are such owners or agents, shall not be required to present sealed proposals or bids, but may, within ten days after the first publication or posting of said notice of said award, elect to take said work and enter into a written contract to do the whole work at the price at which the same has been awarded. Should the said owners fail to elect to take said work, and to enter into a written contract therefor within ten days or to commence the work within fifteen days after the date of such written contract, and to prosecute the same with diligence to completion, it shall be the duty of the superintendent of streets, or county surveyor, to enter into a contract with the original bidder to whom the contract was awarded, and at the prices specified in his bid. But if such original bidder neglects, fails or refuses; for twenty-five days after the first publication of the notice of award, to enter into the contract, then the council, or board, without further proceedings, shall again advertise for proposals or bids, as in the first instance, and award the contract for said work to the lowest regular bidder

The bids of all persons and the election of all owners, as aforesaid, who have failed to enter into the contract as herein provided, shall be rejected in any bidding or election subsequent to the first for the same work. If the owner, or contractor, who may have taken any contract, does not complete the same within the time limited in the contract, or within such further time as the council, or board, may give them, the superintendent of streets, or county surveyor, shall report such delinquency to the council, or board, which may relet the unfinished portion of said work, after pursuing the formalities prescribed hereinbefore for the letting of the whole in the first instance.

All contractors, contracting owners included, shall, at the time of executing any contract for street work, execute a bond to the satisfaction and approval of the superintendent of streets, or county surveyor, with two or more sureties and payable to such municipality, or county, in such sums as the council, or board, shall deem adequate, conditioned for the faithful performance of the contract, and the sureties shall justify before any person competent to administer an oath, in double the amount mentioned in said bond, over and above all statutory exemptions

Before being entitled to a contract, the bidder to whom the award was made, or the owners who have elected to take the contract, must advance to the superintendent of streets, or county surveyor, for payment by him, the cost of publication of the notices, resolutions, orders, or other incidental expenses and matters required under the proceedings described in this act, and such other notices as may be deemed requisite by the council, or board And in case the work is abandoned by the council, or board, before the letting of the contract the incidental expenses incurred previous to such abandonment shall be paid out of the treasury of the municipality, or county

At any time within ten days from the date of the first publication of the notice of award of contract, any person having any interest in any lot or land liable to assessment, who claims that any of the acts or proceedings relating to said improvement are irregular, defective, illegal erroneous or faulty, may file with the clerk of the city council, or the clerk of the board of supervisors, written notice specifying in what respect said acts or proceedings are irregular, defective, illegal, erroneous or faulty. Said notice shall state that it is made in pursuance with this section. All objections to any act or proceeding not made in writing and in the manner and at the time aforesaid shall be waived, providing the resolution of intention to do the work has been actually published as provided in this act."

AMENDMENT NUMBER FOUR.

That there be inserted next thereafter, the following: "Sec. 3. That Section 13 of said hereinbefore mentioned act be amended to read as follows: Sec. 13. The owners, whether named in the assessment or not, the contractor, or his assigns, and all other persons directly interested in any work provided for in this act, or in the assessment, feeling aggrieved by any act or determination of the superintendent of streets, or county surveyor, in relation thereto, or who claim that the work has not been performed according to the contract in a good and substantial manner, or having or making any objection to the correctness or legality of the assessment or other act, determination, or proceedings of the superintendent of streets, or county surveyor, shall, within thirty days after the date of the warrant, appeal to the council, or board, by briefly stating their objections in writing, and filing the same with the clerk of said council or board. Notice of the time and place of the hearing, briefly referring to the work contracted to be done, or other subject of appeal, and to the acts, determinations or proceedings objected to or complained of, shall be published for five days. Upon such appeal, the said council, or board, may remedy and correct any error or informality in the proceedings and revise and correct any of the acts or determinations of the superintendent of streets, or county surveyor, relative to said work, may confirm, amend, set aside, alter, modify or correct the assessment in such manner as to them shall seem just, and require the work to be completed according to the directions of the council, or board, and may instruct and direct the superintendent of streets, or county surveyor, to correct the warrant, assessment, or diagram in any particular, or to make and issue a new warrant, assessment and diagram, to conform to the decisions of said council, or board, in relation thereto, at their option. All the decisions and determinations of said council, or board upon notice and hearing as aforesaid, shall be final and conclusive upon any and all persons entitled to appeal under the provisions of this section, as to all errors, informalities, and irregularities which said council, or board, might have remedied and avoided, and no assessment shall be held invalid, except upon appeal to said council or board, as provided in this section for any error, informality, or other defect in any of the proceedings prior to the assessment, or in the assessment itself, where notice of the intention of the council, or board to order the work to be done, for which the assessment is made, has been actually published in any designated newspaper of said city or county for the length of time prescribed by law. No action, suit or proceeding to set aside, cancel, avoid, annul, or correct any assessment or reassessment, or to review any of the proceedings, acts, or determinations therein, or to question the validity of, or to enjoin the collection of the assessment or reassessment, or to enjoin the issuance of bonds to represent the same, shall be maintained by any person unless such action or actions shall have been commenced within thirty days after the recording of the warrant, assessment and diagram or reassessment, and thereafter all persons shall be barred from any such action or any defense of invalidity of the assessment or of bonds issued thereon or of the reassessment if such be made and of bonds issued thereon."

Warrant outstanding one year or more. Whenever a warrant shall have been outstanding one year or more, or where a warrant is by its terms not payable upon demand but is payable at a future date and payment thereof is overdue one year or more, the board of trustees shall on demand of the holder of said warrant cancel the same and issue a new warrant for the face value of the old warrant and a separate warrant for the amount of interest then due thereon in the event of any interest being due and unpaid, or, the board of trustees may allow a claim for the amount of any interest due and unpaid on any warrant so outstanding one year or more and may draw a warrant therefor, upon drawing this warrant they shall indorse on the reverse of the old warrant the fact that interest has been paid to the date of drawing the warrant for interest and the warrant drawn for the interest must state that it is for interest on warrant No. ____ to _____ (date); the board of trustees shall notify the county treasurer upon drawing those warrants for interest and he shall note on his register of warrants the fact that interest has been paid on such warrants, provided, that any warrant not paid or presented for reissuance may within four years after its date or within four years after its maturity if payable by its terms at a future date upon the demand of the holder, be extended one or more times until repayment or reissuance, for a like period of four years from the date of each extension, upon presentation to the board of trustees of the district, such extension being indorsed thereon by said board. The board of trustees and the county treasurer may cancel all warrants which have not been paid or reissued or which have not been extended one or more times, within four years after their date, or within four years after their date of maturity, if payable by their terms at a future date. Warrants issued for interest shall not bear interest All warrants which have been issued since January 1, 1915, by any reclamation district, and which have been extended one or more times, and which have not, before the passage of this act, been paid reissued or cancelled are declared to be as valid and binding against said district as when originally issued

In case an action or proceeding based upon any warrant or connected therewith, be commenced within four years after the date of such warrant, or within four years after the maturity thereof, if payable by its terms at a future date, and final judgment be obtained in favor of the holder or owner thereof, such warrant shall be paid the same as if it has been paid before the expiration of said four years from the date of said warrant.

Determination of amount due. In any proceeding for a writ of mandate to compel the trustees to issue a warrant, if a controversy arises as to the amount that may be due to the plaintiff, the court must determine the same in the manner provided for determining controversies in other civil actions, and shall cause a writ to issue for such sums as may be found to be due. The date of a warrant shall be the day on which the same is signed by the board of trustees.

The trustees may issue warrants payable at a future date, and more than three years from the date thereof, and for this purpose may use the form of warrant herein provided for, adding thereto upon the face thereof that it is not due or payable until a certain date, which shall be specified.

Warrants when assessment is unpaid. Where there is an existing assessment on the lands in any district which is wholly or in part unpaid the trustees may issue warrants, including warrants payable at a future date, on which the interest shall be paid semiannually on January first and July first of each year, until such warrant is paid, and for this purpose may use the form of warrant herein provided for, adding thereto upon the face thereof that interest thereon is payable semiannually on January first and July first of each year upon presentation of the warrant to the county treasurer. Said interest shall be paid upon presentation to the county treasurer who shall indorse upon the reverse side of such warrant the fact of such interest payment, specifying the amount thereof and date of payment.

The interest due at any time on any unpaid assessment, or any part or installment thereof, may be called at any time by the trustees of the district without calling any installment of the said assessment. All interest hereafter paid on any assessment or any part or installment thereof shall be deposited with the county treasurer in a fund to be known as the "warrant interest fund" and shall not be used for any purpose except the payment of interest on warrants unless the trustees of the district request the county treasurer to transfer the same, or a part thereof, to the general fund of the district.

At least ninety days before any installment of interest is due on any warrants interest on which is payable semiannually the trustees of the district shall estimate the amount of money necessary to pay such interest after crediting thereon the funds in the "warrant interest fund" applicable to the payment thereof and shall add thereto fifteen per cent of such aggregate sum to cover possible delinquencies and make a call on interest due on any unpaid assessment equivalent to said amount. All laws relative to the making of calls on any assessment, or installment thereof, and the sale of property for nonpayment thereof, and redemption thereof, shall be applicable to the making of calls for interest only as herein provided and for the sale of property for nonpayment thereof, and redemption thereof.

Payment before maturity. Notwithstanding anything herein contained to the contrary it shall be the duty of the county treasurer to pay all or any warrants payable at a future date, before the maturity thereof, upon the request of the trustees of the district providing there is in the hands of such treasurer sufficient funds so to do, after payment of all outstanding warrants of the district payable upon demand.

COMMUNICATION

WHITTIER, CALIFORNIA, March 3, 1927

Honorable Harry F. Sewell,
Care of California State Legislature,
Sacramento, California.

DEAR HARRY: We are sending you by express today five boxes of Whittier Washington navels with the compliments of the Whittier District Fruit Exchange. We trust that you and your colleagues will enjoy them.

In looking over your district we are interested to find that a considerable proportion of it is devoted almost exclusively to the production and sale of citrus fruit. Approximately 4000 growers in your district derive their livelihood from 35,000 acres of citrus property. For the purposes of preparing their fruit for market, they have organized and are operating forty-seven shipping associations. Last year these shipping associations marketed through the seven district exchanges in your district over 5,000,000 boxes of citrus fruit which brought to these growers $17,500,000 in money.

The Whittier District Fruit Exchange is the largest marketing unit in your district, and last year the revenue to your home community from citrus fruit alone was over $4,000,000.

Our shipments are distributed under Sunkist labels to every market in the United States, Canada, and the Pacific ocean and in addition many thousands of boxes are annually sold in the great markets of Europe.

The shipment from these associations alone pay an annual tribute to the railroads in freight and refrigeration charges of $7,500,000, and the annual cost of producing a crop approximates $10,000 000.

Yours very truly,

WHITTIER DISTRICT FRUIT EXCHANGE.
D. A. FIELD, Manager.

COMMITTEE AMENDMENT.

During second reading of the bill, the following amendment was submitted by the committee:

AMENDMENT NUMBER ONE

Strike out everything following "Section 1" in line 1, page 1, of the printed bill, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

For the purpose of this act the term "produce dealer" shall include every person, firm, exchange, association or corporation who shall receive produce for sale on commission or contract with the producer thereof for farm products to be sold by him on commission or accept in trust from the producer thereof for the purpose of resale, or who shall sell or offer for sale on commission or shall solicit consignments within the state of any kind of farm products, or who shall in any way handle for the account of or as an agent of the producer thereof any kind of farm products. The term "farm products" for the purposes of this act shall include all agricultural, horticultural, viticultural and vegetable products of the soil, poultry and poultry products, live stock and live stock products, honey and cut flowers, but shall not include timber or timber products. The term "consignor," for the purpose of this act, shall include every person, firm, exchange, association or corporation who shall ship or deliver to any produce dealer any farm products.

SEC. 2. This act shall not be construed to apply to or include any cooperative organization, operating under and by virtue of the laws of the State of California or of any other state or the District of Columbia or under federal statute, or the agents, individual or corporate, or such organizations in the performance of their duties as such agents, except as to that portion of the activities of such organization, or agent, as involves the handling or dealing in the farm products of non-members of such organization.

SEC. 3. On and after the effective date of this act, no person, firm, exchange, association or corporation shall act as a produce dealer without having obtained a license as provided in this act. Every person, firm, exchange, association or corporation acting as a produce dealer as herein defined shall file an application with the state director of agriculture for a license to transact the business of produce dealer and such application shall be accompanied by the license fee herein provided for. Such application shall state the class or classes of farm products applicant proposes to handle, the full name of the person, firm, exchange, association or corporation applying for such license, and if the applicant be a firm, exchange, association or corporation, the full name of each member of the firm, or the names of the officers of the exchange, association or corporation shall be given in the application. Such application shall further state the principal business address of the applicant in the State of California and elsewhere and the name or names of the person or persons authorized to receive and accept service of summons and legal notices of all kinds for the applicant. Such applicant shall further satisfy the state director of agriculture of his or its character responsibility and good faith in seeking to carry on the business of produce dealer. The state director of agriculture shall thereupon issue to such applicant, upon the execution and delivery of a bond as hereinafter provided, a license entitling the applicant to conduct the business of produce dealer at the place named in the application until the first day of January next following or until the same shall have been revoked for cause.

SEC. 4. The director of agriculture shall publish in pamphlet form as often as he thinks necessary, a list of all licensed produce dealers together with all necessary rules and regulations concerning the enforcement of this act. Each licensed produce dealer shall post his license or a copy thereof in his office or salesroom in plain view of the public; provided, that any agent of a licensed produce dealer shall show in writing his authority from his principal or employer to act as such agent. The fee for such license shall be twenty-five dollars ($25) for each year or part thereof. All license fees collected under the provisions of this act shall be paid into the state treasury monthly and shall be credited to the "produce dealers' license fund," which fund is hereby created, and all moneys so deposited shall be held subject to the uses of the state director of agriculture for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this act.

SEC. 5. Before any license shall be issued, the applicant shall execute and deliver to the state director of agriculture a good and sufficient surety bond in the sum of five thousand ($5,000) dollars executed by the applicant as principal and by a surety company qualified and authorized to do business in this state as surety. Said bond shall be conditioned upon compliance with the provisions of the act and upon the faithful and honest handling of farm products in accordance with the terms of this act. Said bond shall be to the State of California in favor of every consignor of farm products. Any consignor of farm products claiming to be injured by the fraud, deceit or wilful negligence of any produce dealer may bring action upon said bond against both principal and surety in any court of competent jurisdiction to recover the damages caused by such fraud, deceit and wilful negligence, or the failure to comply with the provisions of this act. In case of failure by a produce dealer to pay consignor creditors for farm produce received from said consignors to be sold, the state director of agriculture shall proceed forthwith to ascertain the names and addresses of all consignor creditors of such produce dealer, together with the amounts due and owing to them and each of them by such produce dealer, and shall request all such consignor creditors to file a verified statement of their respective claims with the state director of agriculture. Thereupon the state director of agriculture is hereby authorized to and shall proceed forthwith to bring an action on the bond in behalf of said consignor creditors which has been filed in the department by said produce dealer. Upon any action being commenced on said bond the director of agriculture may in his discretion require the filing of a new bond and immediately upon the recovery in any action on such bond such produce dealer shall file a new bond and upon failure to file the same within ten days in either case, such failure shall constitute sufficient grounds for the suspension or revocation of his license.

SEC. 6. The applicant shall file with the director of agriculture at the time of furnishing said bond a schedule of his maximum and minimum commissions and charges for services in connection with produce handled on account of or as an agent for other parties and such designated commissions and charges shall not be changed or varied for one year thereafter, except by and through a written contract and agreement between the produce dealer or dealers and consignor or consignors of farm products.

SEC. 7. For the purpose of enforcing the provisions of this act, the state director of agriculture is authorized to receive verified complaints against any produce dealer or any person, firm, exchange, association or corporation assuming or attempting to act as such, and upon receipt of such verified complaint shall have full authority to make any and all necessary investigations relative to the said complaint, and he shall have at all times free and unimpeded access to all buildings, yards, warehouses, storage and transportation facilities in which any produce is kept, stored handled or transported. He shall have full authority to administer oaths and take testimony thereunder, to issue subpoenas requiring the attendance of witnesses before him, together with all books, memoranda, papers, and other documents, articles or instruments; to compel the disclosure by such witnesses of all facts known to them relative to the matter under investigation, and all parties disobeying the orders or subpoenas of said state director of agriculture shall be guilty of contempt and shall be certified to the superior court of the state for punishment for such contempt. Copies of records, inspection certificates, certified reports

SEC. 8. When a consignor of farm products fails to obtain settlement satisfactory to him in any transaction after having notified the consignee, a verified complaint may be filed with the state director of agriculture, who shall undertake to effect a settlement, and in the event that he shall fail to effect such settlement, he shall cause a copy of such complaint, together with a notice of time and place of hearing of such complaint, to be served personally or by mail upon such produce dealer. Such service shall be made at least ten days before the hearing, which shall be held in the city or town in which is situated the business location of the licensee, or in which the transaction complained of is said to have occurred. At the time and place appointed for such hearing the state director of agriculture, or his agents, shall hear the parties to such complaint, and shall enter in the office of the state director of agriculture at Sacramento a decision either dismissing such complaint or specifying the facts established on such hearing. A copy of such decision shall be furnished to each, every and all the respective parties thereto.

SEC. 10. Any action of the state director of agriculture with reference to the granting of, or the refusal to grant, or to renew any license, or with reference to the revocation of any license granted under the provisions of this act, may be reviewed by any court of competent jurisdiction, but pending final determination of any such review, in the case of the revocation of or refusal to renew the license of any produce dealer, such license shall be deemed in full force and effect until the final determination of such proceedings; provided, that no license shall be refused during the time of or on account of the pendency of any review proceedings.

SEC. 11. A copy of record and account of sales of farm products together with remittances in full of the amount realized by such sales, less the agreed commission and other charges, shall be delivered to the consignor upon the consummation of the sale together with all moneys received by him in payment for any consignment of farm products, less the agreed commission and other charges, within ten days after receipt of said moneys by said dealers, unless otherwise agreed in writing, and provided however, that the names and addresses of the purchasers need not be given

It shall also be the duty of every produce dealer to retain a copy of all records including sales tags, account sales, and other records covering each transaction, for a period of one year from the date thereof, which copy shall at all times be available for, and open to, the confidential inspection of the state director of agriculture and the interested consignor, or any authorized representative of either. In the event of any dispute or disagreement between a consignor and a produce dealer arising at the time of delivery as to condition, quality, grade, pack, quantity or weight of any lot, shipment or consignment of farm products, it shall be the duty of the state department of agriculture to furnish upon the payment of a reasonable fee therefor to be paid by requesting party a certificate establishing the condition, quality, grade, pack, quantity or weight of such lot, shipment or consignment, such certificate shall be prima facie evidence in all courts of this state as to the recitals thereof at the time such inspection was made. CITY AND COUNTY OF SAN FRANCISCO
BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

CLERK'S OFFICE, March 7, 1927.

To the Members of the Legislature,
State of California,
Sacramento, California.

GENTLEMEN: Your attention is respectfully called to the following resolution adopted by the board of supervisors, this date, relative to Senate Bill No. 650

WHEREAS, Senate Bill No 650, introduced by Senator Lyon, if passed would remove all discretionary powers of this board of supervisors and every board of supervisors in granting franchises for private toll-bridge projects; and

WHEREAS, This would be accomplished by the provision that if a bridge project merely complies with the various State and federal laws and regulations, the supervisors of the county on the left bank "shall grant the application by an order entered in its minutes and particularly describing the bridge", and

WHEREAS, Under this provision, this board would be mandated immediately to grant bay bridge franchises for apparently five surface bridges and two subsurface tube projects which claim to comply with existing federal regulations, thereby creating unbearable financial confusion, engendering litigation, removing all prospect that the existing War Department restrictions would ever be modified, and making it impossible for this board to select a bridge location properly based upon the advice of consulting engineers; therefore, be it

Resolved, That this board hereby shall proceed to do its utmost to bring about the defeat of Senate Bill No. 650; and, be it further

Resolved, That to this end this board's legislative committee is hereby instructed to make this a main object of its work at Sacramento; that the delegates of this board to the State supervisors' convention are hereby instructed to seek similar action on the part of that body; and that copies of this resolution shall be sent to the Governor, the presidents of the Senate and Assembly, the committees of the Senate and Assembly having this matter in hand, and the individual members of the Senate and Assembly.

Yours truly,

J. S. DUNNIGAN, Clerk.
