Briefly, the program provides for a full schedule of activities occupying the entire day. There are therapeutic group meetings and administrative group meetings, art, drama, and special projects groups, and occupational therapy workshops. There are recreational activities, such as group athletics (baseball, basketball, boxing, volley ball, ping pong), movies, television, library, and music practice. The patient's newspaper, the Howard Hall Journal, has received much favorable comment.

Within a few months after admission each patient is brought to a conference where his case is fully discussed and evaluated, and patients who appear to be reasonable risks are transferred from maximum to minimum security (thus far, six cases). In this latter ward they continue with group therapy and individual therapy in selected cases. The patients admitted under this law are also assigned to a small "special group" because of their expressed feeling that they can discuss their sexual difficulties more freely with those whose problems are similar. In minimum security they have many opportunities to attend the hospital amusements, including dances and parties, and are given some kind of occupational assignment upon the grounds from which they come and go without supervision. This permits them to attend the psycho-drama sessions held in another building and also offers them an opportunity to test developing awareness of their problems through contact with others. Throughout the program the over-all therapeutic atmosphere continually exerts a uniform, nonspecific pressure in the direction of health.

The structuring of a therapeutic milieu deserves considerably more discussion than would be possible in this limited account. An important fact of the milieu therapy is the frequent meeting of all members of the staff to discuss and work through any reaction-formations they may have and to assist in the selection of specific doctor-patient pairs for therapy. In this connection, the discomforts of attendants in dealing with this group of patients is a source of continuing investigation and occasion for some discussion between physicians and attendants. Preliminary projects include a kind of group therapy seminar for the attendants.

Our emphasis on a purely psychological approach to therapy is based in part upon a review of the literature that has thus far disclosed no rationale for any specific physical therapy such as castration, hormonal injections, shock, insulin, or lobotomy.

GENERAL CHARACTERISTICS OF THE GROUP

Although the group is small and variegated and our period of observation brief, certain characteristics seem apparent in these people in their group functioning.

They are passively dependent, covertly and passively hostile characters. There is frequently exhibited an attitude of "injured innocence." Many of them are manipulative, rigid, and have a paradoxical pride in their status as sex deviants. This latter aspect may derive in part from their distortion of the hospital's interest.

By far the greater number are not currently amenable to a type of dynamic and insightful intensive psychotherapy. They are superficial and telegraphic in their communications, show little capacity for introspective or psychological thinking, and give only lip service to the attempts of the therapist to mobilize interest in surmounting their difficulties in living. The most frequent presentation is, "Well, if you say there is something wrong with me, suppose you do something about it." The idea of a collaborative effort is quite difficult to establish, although inexperienced therapists might be led astray by the ingratiating and agreeable manner of the manipulative members of the group. There is an unusually high degree of recourse to minimizing and defensive processes such as rationalization and projection. These individuals show a rather poor prognosis for psychotherapy because they almost invariably are unable to assume responsibility for their own treatment and continue indefinitely in a state of either strong latent negative resistance or of passive hostile dependence. There tends to be a marked absence of any "neurotic suffering" as a stimulus toward work in psychotherapy. Those who deny their dependency draw heavily on repressive mechanisms, which further defeats the attempts of the psychotherapist. Notwithstanding, a small proportion (about six) in our group have indicated some amenability to psychotherapy and are making slight progress.

THE PROBLEMS

The problem of how to deal with the sexual psychopath has some into considerable prominence in recent years. Tappan reports that habitual sex offenders have been the object of special laws in at least 13 jurisdictions in recent legislative sessions.

A number of clinical and administrative problems are created by this group. The law defines a sexual psychopath, requires commitment to Saint Elizabeths Hospital upon judicial determination, and provides that he is not to be released until certified as "sufficiently recovered so as not to be dangerous." Clinical questions as to the precise psychiatric definition of the term "sexual psychopath" are not within the scope of this paper. The type of therapy most appropriate to achieve the goal set by the law must be determined for the actual patients committed by the law. The decision of the court for commitment as a sexual psychopath is actually a "diagnosis" which is not reviewable by the psychiatrist responsible to the subsequent treatment.

The courts are understandably concerned with the preservation of public peace and the segregation of individuals who are considered dangerous to others. The psychiatrist as a physician is primarily interested in the treatment and amelioration of individual human distress. While these two objectives are not necessarily incompatible, it is our experience that they frequently are divergent and occasionally at cross purposes. If the consideration as to civic responsibility are rather heavily weighted in favor of detention and segregation, then the penologist or correction officer is a more efficient custodian than the psychiatrist.

Given the group of people described, what constitutes the most appropriate therapeutic approach? We believe that insufficient information is available to establish solely the efficacy of any particular psychotherapeutic procedure. It is our general opinion, however, that only a dynamic and insightful type of intensive psychotherapy offers any prospect of modification of personality structure with some insurance against repetition of offense upon discharge of the patient. We recognize, however, that this is impossible in a general application because of (a) the prohibitive cost, (b) the lack of fully qualified personnel for the number of patients who are in need of such treatment, and (c) the type of patients being sent to us thus far. Lacking this, then, an alternate type of program expressing dynamically oriented attitudes toward the problem of psychotherapy seems essential.

We have described thus far an institutional program utilizing an already well-established program of group and individual psychotherapy. We have modified this program in some aspects to fit the special needs of this group but find that there are certain limitations to such modifications when operating within the facilities of an institution primarily designed for the care of psychotic individuals.

"SUFFICIENTLY RECOVERED"

The question of what constitutes cure again brings up the problem of whether cure is to be established only on the basis of a dynamic and insightful awareness plus actual personality change or whether cure can occur without "insight." It is recognized that a great many symptomatic improvements occur in such conditions as schizophrenia without the application of anything other than hospital atmosphere. Such cures are always fragile and not necessarily a protection against further difficulties.

Thus far we have not established any dependable set of criteria to use in predicting the future course of conduct or misconduct in our patients. It appears likely that a problem will eventually be occasioned by the collection of a residual group of individuals who we believe do not form particularly promising therapeutic risks and for whom little more than a high type of custodial care can be offered. In this connection there is a seeming disparity in that individuals who make "good hospital patients" are not infrequently those who form rather poor therapeutic risks. They may fit well into the standard hospital program and quickly assume a fixed, passive dependence. Although such individuals may adjust well in the hospital, this adjustment is no promonitor as to whether they could refrain from reestablishing their socially unwanted activities upon release. In other psychiatric conditions the psychiatrist finds himself, through long experience, with a much better defined set of criteria for predicting such things as suicide, combative behavior, and symptomatic exacerbation, and for evaluating recovery.

CONCLUSIONS

1. The group of patients reported is not statistically representative of the varieties of sexual offenders in the community.

2. It appears unlikely that very many of our group are sufficiently amenable to therapy so as to be "recovered" as required by law. In this connection, while we believe that their illnesses are psychodynamically determined, it is doubtful whether present techniques are equal to the task of cure.

3. Under the present law, the majority of the cases received have been exhibitionists Certain characteristics of this group have been described. It is questionable whether the exhibitionist is a sexual criminal of sufficient menace to justify indefinite commitment and whether the incidence of heinous sexual crimes will be reduced by his confinement. In our experience thus far, the exhibitionist is in general a relatively poor risk for intensive therapy and he is likely to remain indefinitely since he cannot be certified as "recovered" as required by law.

4. Considerably more research is needed into all phases of this problem, particularly with respect to the elaboration of criteria for prediction of behavior in these individuals before and after various therapies.

N. Wisconsin

The Wisconsin Sex Psychopathic Law, although of recent passage (1947 in regular session), is actually inoperative in that the institutions for the sex psychopath as provided by the statute have not been established. The 1950-51 legislature plans a review of proposals which have been offered by several committees and other groups as solutions to the present dilemma.

O. Current Terminology

The committee found terminology used in the field of its study inexact and often confusing. In Chapter II of the preliminary report it pointed out the variations in terms used in the statutory description of sex crimes. The preliminary report also discussed the problem of nomenclature, with respect to the person who has participated in a sex crime.

The committee finds that "sex offender" is the best term and the one most widely used for the person who has participated in sexual conduct which is contrary to the Penal Code It finds that such terms as "queer," "deviate," "pervert," etc , have not as much scientific value and accuracy in discussion of this subject as "sex offender."

The committee finds a widespread impression among authorities in the field that many sex offenders are suffering from some sort of mental illness which causes their conduct. When experts in mental diseases are pinned down, they state that this "mental illness" is often not of any type now categorized as a "neurosis," "psychosis," or "mental deficiency." It was to fill this vacancy in psychological terminology that the term "psychopathy" was designed. At the present time there is such widespread criticism of the term "sexual psychopath" that the duration of its usefulness may be limited.

"Psycho-sex offender" is an over-all term which the committee has found of value. It appears to be similar to, but more handy than a term used by the Group for the Advancement of Psychiatry: "psychiatrically deviated sexual offender."

"Psycho-sex offender" is a term that is relatively definable. An offender is one who has committed some act which, whether or not prosecuted or reported, is an offense against the criminal statutes. "Sex" is used as an adjective which limits the term to a person who has committed a sexual offense of some type. The prefix of "psycho" infers that the person who has offended against the sex crime statutes is suffering from some form of mental illness. This seems to be as far in definition as present knowledge will allow one to go. More specific terms must await further research. In the meantime the term is meaningful and short enough to be usable.

The term "psycho-sex offender," it should be noted, excludes a person who has not yet participated in acts which constitute a sex offense. It thus differs from the term "potential sex offender" which could include a person from the day he is born. Both terms have this in common: As generally used, they are aimed at persons who, if not placed under supervision, are most likely to offend against the sex crime statutes. What is needed is a method of pointing out a person who is a "probable future sex offender" and then a term to describe such a person.

RECOMMENDATIONS

I

The California Legislative Sex Crime Research Project should be continued and extended

The present purpose of this research project is to plan and conduct scientific research into the causes and cures of sexual deviation and homosexuality and into methods of identifying potential sex offenders.

The committee recommends research into the deterrent and correctional effect of present methods of imprisonment and parole upon different types of sex offenders. This research is to be carried on with the cooperation of the Department of Correction of the Bureau of Parole.

II

Accent should be placed upon prevention in any planned attacks upon the problem of sex crimes in order best to protect the public

Frank acknowledgment should be made that the prevention of sex crimes is ultimately the responsibility of the individual citizens of the State of California.

Leaders of special interested groups should be encouraged to continue their preventive endeavors. These include education of children in our schools, special adult education, community activities for the improvement of family and home life, and the moralists' and religionists' approaches to the betterment of human souls Police departments should re-examine the quantity and qualification of personnel assigned to their sex crime detail. Furthermore, police should make use of all known modern techniques and facilities, whether local or state, in the investigation of reported sex crimes.

Dangerous sex offenders should be kept under custody or surveillance or constructive custody until they are considered by intelligent observers of behavior safe risks for free movement in society.

III

Greater adaptability or flexibility should be written into the sex crime statutory scheme by the Legislature

Sex crimes such as sodomy, fellatio, or cunnilingus should be differentiated into first or second degree crimes according to whether force or the threat of force is present in the act. Nonsexual crimes such as larceny, burglary or arson, where sexual conduct is significantly present, should be differentiated from the common law variety of larceny, burglary or arson.

IV

An alternative sentence for an indeterminate period of one day to life should be provided for certain convicted sex offenders

This indeterminate period should be an alternative to the regular sentence upon conviction and it should be optional with the judge. This committee recommends that such an alternative sentence be enacted for the following crimes: lewd and lascivious conduct upon a child, a felony involving sexual significance, and any of the following crimes where force or the threat of force is involved: rape, sodomy, fellatio, or cunnilingus.

The committee recommends that after experience with this alternative sentence has been developed and sufficient personnel trained to handle its machinery, the Legislature consider extending this alternative sentence to convictions for certain misdemeanors such as exhibitionism, molesting children, etc.

V

It should be mandatory that before sentencing a convicted sex offender to the indeterminate sentence of from one day to life the judge should receive the advice and report of competent psychiatrists and sociological investigators who have examined the convicted defendant

VI

Measures should be adopted to protect the rights of a person who is sentenced for an indeterminate period of from one day to life. At least a two year periodic check should be made by the parole board of each case so sentenced

A person sentenced for an indeterminate period of from one day to life should receive whatever psychiatric or other treatment which is available, which he needs, and which he will accept.

Parole or constructive custody should be used wherever feasible in cases involving persons sentenced for an indeterminate period of from one day to life.

VII

Present legal institutions should be used wherever possible and when new techniques are developed they should be fitted into this framework of the past

VIII

A questionnaire poll of all California superior court and municipal court judges, parole and probation officers, should be made in 1952 concerning their experiences with legislation enacted to solve the sex crime problem

This information should be gained in order to provide suggestions for changes in the statutory scheme at that time. A report on this information is also needed so that the valuable experiences and techniques developed by a few of these judges, parole, and probation officials may be available for others.

OPERATION OF THE SEXUAL PSYCHOPATH LAW OF CALIFORNIA *

The Sexual Psychopath Act as set forth in Section 5500 itself of the Welfare and Institutions Code of California has been in effect since October 1, 1939. During the 10-year period from its effective date to October 1, 1949, a total of 522 sexual psychopaths were committed to California State mental hospitals. No provision was made for separate facilities for the care and treatment of sexual psychopaths; they were admitted to the regular state mental hospitals. During the first eight years, the commitments averaged between 40 and 50 per year; however, in 1948 and 1949, the commitments increased to an average of 77 a year, and in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1950, commitments of sexual psychopaths increased to 116.

In 1945, there were several amendments to the act consisting of a change in the definition of the term "sexual psychopath" by eliminating the requirement that it be a sex offense against children, and a change in the liability for payment for hospital care and treatment by removing it from the county of residence and placing it upon the patient or his responsible relatives.

Significant amendments to the act were made in 1949 effective October 1, 1949, and in 1950, effective July 15, 1950; they can be briefly summarized as follows:

Conviction of Criminal Charge Required

The former law (Section 5501) stated that the court could hear a petition of sexual psychopathy either before or after adjudication of a criminal charge; the practice frequently was to suspend the charges and proceed with the sexual psychopathy hearing. The 1950 amendment provides that the person shall first be convicted of the criminal offense before steps can be taken in the proceedings before the court to determine whether or not the person is a sexual psychopath.

Misdemeanor and Felony Sex Offenses

The 1950 amendments further amended Section 5501 by adding provisions dealing specifically with sex offenses against children. It now provides that when a person is convicted of a misdemeanor sex offense involving a child under 14 years of age and the person has been previously convicted of a sex offense in this or any other state, the trial court (whether an inferior or superior court) is required to certify the person to the superior court for hearing and determination whether the person is a sexual psychopath within the meaning of the chapter. Provision is also made for the mandatory certification of all persons to the superior court for similar hearing and determination when a person is convicted of a first or subsequent felony sex offense involving a child under 14 years of age.

The wording of the section was further recast to make it clear that in other convictions the trial judge, on his own motion or on motion of the prosecuting attorney or on application by the defendant, may certify the person to the superior court for similar hearing and determination.

* Explanation prepared by A. Edward Nichols, Administrative Adviser, Department of Mental Hygiene.

Observation Placement Requirement

An important amendment was enacted in 1950 as set forth in Section 5512. It now provides that upon the hearing of sexual psychopathy in the superior court and after testimony of the court-appointed psychiatrists and other witnesses, if the judge of the superior court finds the person to be a sexual psychopath within the meaning of this chapter, he is required to order the person placed temporarily in a suitable psychiatric facility maintained by the county or by the state for observation and diagnosis for a period not to exceed 90 days. The section provides for a report, diagnosis, and recommendation to be made to the court by the institution within the 90-day period. The law further states that there shall be no indeterminate commitment of a sexual psychopath unless an observation placement has been made as required in this section.

Release From State Hospital

The former law in Section 5502.5 permitted the superintendent of a state hospital to parole a sexual psychopath if the person was considered to be no longer a menace to the health and safety of others, after having notified the court of the proposal to place the patient on parole, and if the court did not order the person to be returned to the court for further action. The superintendent could also return the sexual psychopath to the court for the further disposition of the case if the person had not recovered from his sexual psychopathy and would not benefit from further care and treatment in the hospital. The 1949 amendments removed the power of the hospital superintendent to parole sexual psychopaths and placed it solely in the courts.

By Way of Recapitulation

The following procedures are involved under the present law in the commitment and release of a sexual psychopath:

1. Upon conviction of a criminal offense, the trial court may adjourn the proceedings or suspend the sentence if there is probable cause for believing the defendant to be a sexual psychopath.
   (a) The trial judge may do so on his own motion, on motion of the prosecuting attorney, or on application by affidavit on behalf of the defendant.
   (b) If the trial court, whether it be an inferior or superior court, is satisfied of the probable cause he may then certify the person to the superior court for hearing and examination to determine whether the person is a sexual psychopath.
2. If the person is convicted of a sex offense involving a child under 14 years of age, there are two mandatory provisions imposed upon the trial court.
   (a) If it is a misdemeanor sex offense and the person has been previously convicted of a sex offense, then the trial court, whether it be an inferior or superior court, must adjourn the proceedings or suspend the sentence and must certify the person for hearing and examination by the superior court of the county to determine whether the person is a sexual psychopath.

(b) If the person is convicted of a felony sex offense, the mandatory requirement set forth above must be followed upon a first or subsequent conviction.

3. When the person is certified from the trial court to the superior court as indicated above, he is to be taken before a judge of the superior court and informed of the nature of the proceedings and his right to produce witnesses at the hearing to be held at such time and place as fixed by the court.
4. The court is required to appoint at least two qualified psychiatrists to make a personal examination of the alleged sexual psychopath. The psychiatrists are required to file a written report with the court and to testify at the hearing. The court may hear such other witnesses as are produced by either side.
5. The alleged sexual psychopath shall be present at the hearing and if he has no attorney, the judge may appoint an attorney to represent him.
6. After examination and hearing, if the judge finds the person not to be a sexual psychopath, the superior court shall return the person to the trial court in which the case originated for such disposition as that court may deem necessary and proper.
   After examination and hearing, if the judge finds the person to be a sexual psychopath within the meaning of the chapter, the court is required to order the person to be placed temporarily in a suitable psychiatric facility maintained by the county or by the State for observation and diagnosis for a period not to exceed 90 days.
7. The person in charge of the county or state facility is required to forward to the court within the 90-day period a report, diagnosis and recommendation concerning the alleged sexual psychopath's care, supervision and treatment.
8. The person is to be returned to the superior court for consideration of the report and further hearing. The sheriff of the county of commitment or any other peace officer designated by the court shall transport the person to or from the court.
9. At this further hearing, if the person is found not to be a sexual psychopath, he is to be returned to the trial court for disposition of the criminal charges. If the person, however, is found to be a sexual psychopath, the court may then commit him to the Department of Mental Hygiene for placement in a state hospital for an indeterminate period. No person shall be committed for an indeterminate period as a sexual psychopath unless an observation placement has been made and reported upon as required in Section 5512.
10. When the person is committed for an indeterminate period as a sexual psychopath, the sheriff or a peace officer is to deliver the person to the state hospital designated by the court. The superintendent and staff of the hospital are thereby empowered to undertake care and treatment of the sexual psychopath. At any time thereafter, if it is deemed advisable to release the patient from the state hospital, the superintendent of the institution and the Director of Mental Hygiene are required to certify the case to the committing court.

11. The certification is to include a report, diagnosis, and recommendation concerning the person's future care, supervision, or treatment, and is to contain an opinion (a) whether the patient has recovered from his sexual psychopathy and is considered to be no longer a menace to the health and safety of others; or (b) whether the person has been sufficiently treated in the hospital and is considered to be no longer a menace to the health and safety of others; or (c) whether the person has not recovered from his sexual psychopathy and is considered to still be a menace to the health and safety of others.
12. If the person is certified to the court under (a) or (b) as indicated above, he is to be returned to the court and the proceedings are to be resumed. The court, after considering the report and all other evidence, may place the person on probation for a period of not less than five years.

    If the person is certified to the court under (c) as not recovered and still a menace to the health and safety of others, the court is required to hold a further hearing, at which time the person is entitled to be represented by counsel and to present witnesses on his own behalf. If the court is satisfied after this further hearing that the person is not recovered from his sexual psychopathy and is still a menace, the court is required to recommit the person to an institutional unit for care and treatment of sexual psychopaths, which can be established on the grounds of a state institution under the jurisdiction of the Department of Corrections or the Department of Mental Hygiene. The person is then required to remain in such institution until he can be certified as no longer a menace to the health and safety of others.

Mentally Abnormal Sex Offenders

A measure enacted in 1949 (Chapter 1457, Statutes of 1949) provides for the civil commitment of mentally abnormal sex offenders on a voluntary basis as distinguished from the Sexual Psychopath Act which involves criminal charges against such persons. It is the consensus of advanced psychiatric thinking that the protection of society hinges just as much on provision for early treatment of such conditions as it does on strict custodial measures. This measure (Chapter 1457, Statutes of 1949) contains the following essential provisions:

1. A petition can be filed only by the person himself or by his parent, spouse or child. It must be accompanied by the written consent of the person himself, voluntarily requesting examination and hearing by the court.
2. The court will then proceed with the case, including the appointment of psychiatrists and the hearing of their testimony and of other witnesses.
3. If the court believes the person to be a mentally abnormal sex offender, he may order the person committed to a state hospital for a period not to exceed two years.
4. After the person is committed to a state hospital, the superintendent is given full power to treat the person medically, and to discharge him or place him on leave of absence under such conditions as the superintendent deems proper.

5. The court records of the case, as well as the hospital records, are to be kept confidential.
6. Proceedings cannot be brought under this chapter while a criminal charge is pending against the person.

Research

An important measure in this field was enacted at the 1950 Special Session of the Legislature. It appropriates the sum of $100,000 for a scientific study and research of the causes and cures of sexual deviation. The measure (Chapter 35, Statutes of 1950) designates the Department of Mental Hygiene to conduct the research project through the Langley Porter Clinic and authorizes contracts to be entered into with the Regents of the University of California for the conduct of all or any portion of the research projects.

Current Statistics

The following statistical data should also be of value concerning the number of cases received in our state hospitals under the sexual psychopath laws:

SEXUAL PSYCHOPATHS ADMITTED FROM 1939 TO 1950

Year ending June 30	Admitted	Year ending June 30	Admitted
1940	40	1946	37
1941	50	1947	44
1942	40	1948	78
1943	47	1949	77
1944	34	1950	116
1945	38

The foregoing tabulation covers only those sexual psychopaths that were committed by the courts for an indeterminate period. After the amendment to Section 5512, providing for observation placements, which amendment became effective October 1, 1949, there were 14 observation commitments to our state hospitals up to October 1, 1950.

Under the provisions of the Mentally Abnormal Sex Offenders Act, Chapter 1437, Statutes of 1949, which also became effective October 1, 1949, there were 12 cases admitted to our state hospitals during the year ending October 1, 1950.

REPORT OF KARL M. BOWMAN, MEDICAL SUPERINTENDENT OF THE LANGLEY PORTER CLINIC

A. INTRODUCTION

The following is a report of the progress to date of the research into the problems of sex crimes. The law authorizing this study was passed in the 1950 Session of the State Legislature and approved by the Governor. One hundred thousand dollars was appropriated with the stipulation that not more than $50,000 should be spent during the Fiscal Year 1950-51; however, these funds were not available until August 15, 1950, so that it was impossible to start any work prior to that time. Accordingly only six months have passed since work has begun. However, as soon as the law was passed, in consultation with Dr. Frank Tallman, Director of the Department of Mental Hygiene, I started looking for persons to assist in the carrying out of this project. As far back as May, 1950, I started interviewing persons for positions in this research.

It was felt that one of the first things to be done was to make a survey of the literature and to prepare a report of what was known about this whole subject, what was unknown or controversial, and from that, what appeared to be suitable and profitable fields for future investigation. With this in mind I was able to secure a person well-qualified in this type of work who has now been working steadily for about five months on this project. Unfortunately this is too short a time to render any adequate report of the literature. Such a report is being delayed until a year from now and it is my feeling that it will be possible to present a suitable report by that time.

A great deal of time has been spent in looking for someone who could carry the general administration of the research and who was a scientist of the highest ability, able to spend most of his time on this research. I have finally secured Professor A. R. Mangus, Professor of Rural Sociology at Ohio State University. Professor Mangus is an extremely well-qualified sociologist and has done a great deal of work in the field of mental hygiene. He has agreed to secure leave of absence from Ohio State University and start work on this research as of July 1, 1951.

A number of other well-qualified persons were interviewed, but the war situation has made the securing of qualified personnel extremely difficult. In order to start some work immediately, two contracts were set up with the University of California. As one approach to this whole problem, a contract was signed under which the University of California School of Medicine at Los Angeles has undertaken a comprehensive research to investigate the urinary excretion pattern of sex and related steroids as well as proteolytic and other enzyme inhibitors in the blood serum of sexual psychopaths. These studies are being carried out on sexual psychopaths committed to the Norwalk State Hospital as well as some other patients at the Camarillo State Hospital. This research is discussed later on, together with the request for the budget for 1951-52. In addition, a second contract was set up with the University of California under which the Regents of the University of California through the Division of Psychiatry at the University of California School of Medicine in San Francisco agreed to make certain appointments and furnish certain professional personnel of academic status and furnish funds for their official travel and expenses.

Because of the interest in the problem of sex crimes against small children, arrangements have been made and a study of this problem initiated at the San Francisco Juvenile Court and Youth Guidance Center. Under contract with the University of California, two half-time psychiatrists, a full-time psychologist, a full-time psychiatric social worker and a secretary have been employed and work has already started. This work is likewise discussed in further detail later on, together with budget request for next year.

In order to find quarters in which to house the sex research, it has been necessary to erect a steel building in the back of the Langley Porter Clinic, containing six offices plus a small library room. In order to carry out the abstracting of the literature, a suitable library on this subject is being accumulated and housed in the library room. This will make library facilities immediately available to all those persons who are working on the sex research.

The six months under which funds have been available for this research have been spent in initiating a review of the literature, financing a special research under the University of California School of Medicine at Los Angeles and setting up a research team at the San Francisco Juvenile Court and Youth Guidance Center. Additional plans for research have been worked out and are described in detail as specific items in the budget requested for 1951-52.

This report contains a paper entitled "The Problem of the Sex Offender," which was the Menas S Gregory lecture given at New York University College of Medicine, Bellevue Medical Center, on January 24, 1951. This paper is an extremely brief summary of the present-day thinking about the sex problems and suggestions as to the best methods of studying this problem. This is followed by a more detailed description of the projects already under way or contemplated to start July 1, 1951, together with a budget for each one of these projects. Following this are excerpts from the California state penal and other laws regarding sex offenders. After this, there is a discussion of the problem of the sexual psychopath by Mr. A. Edward Nichols of the State Department of Mental Hygiene, together with the excerpts from the laws on sexual psychopaths.

THE PROBLEM OF THE SEX OFFENDER [1]

KARL M. BOWMAN, M.D.[2] San Francisco, California

A sex offender is anyone who breaks a law relating to sex behavior. Various cultures have differed in regard to sex laws and customs. The ancient Egyptians favored incest in the royal families as did the Incas. The Greeks made a cult of homosexuality

Our own sex laws have been greatly influenced by the ancient Jewish and early Christian codes Today the statutes within our states vary widely. No states permit parent-child or brother-sister incest, but there is no agreement about legal sex relations between other close relatives. In homosexual relations, the maximum penalty for sodomy, defined as male intercourse per annum, varies from 60 years in North Carolina to three years in Delaware and Virginia. (1) New York and California are two of the 16 states (including District of Columbia) having special sex laws. Several others are considering such legislation. We find that, throughout history, all cultures have enforced some sex laws and taboos. It is a mistake to think that primitive cultures have the fewest restrictions; often they have the most.

People vary in their opinion as to what constitutes normal or abnormal sexual behavior; hence we find various definitions of normal sex behavior By some, normal sex behavior is thought of as ideal sex behavior; by others it is thought of as the average behavior of the entire population. Still others might approach it from the standpoint of health, defining normal sex behavior as behavior which is healthy. And finally, there is the legal definition that any sex behavior forbidden by law is abnormal sex behavior.

Much confusion in thinking results from a lack of understanding about these fundamental concepts. For example, ideal sex behavior may mean to one religious group heterosexual relations within marriage; to another religious group it may mean only heterosexual relations for procreation within marriage. It is doubtful if physicians, including psychiatrists and biologists, would all agree as to what is healthy sex behavior. Finally, the variations in laws among the different states indicate that the legal approach is subject to the same confusion of thinking.

Despite this complexity and confusion in sexual mores, there has been some progress in our approach and understanding of this most difficult problem Thirteen years ago I discussed this problem in a symposium held by the National Committee for Mental Hygiene at their annual luncheon in New York. (2) At that time I pointed out that there was no institute in the United States for the study of sex; that there was great resistance to scientific study of the subject; and that there was apparently only one institute of this sort in the entire world Today we find one of our state universities supporting the Institute of Sex Research, and the work of Kinsey and his associates has already added enormously to our knowledge about sex. A few other institutions have supported animal experimentation such as that of Beach at Yale. It is heartening to detect a change in the general attitude regarding this matter.

We find that state legislatures are beginning to realize the necessity for scientific study of the problem of sex behavior, and that some of them are prepared to spend money and obtain the services of trained persons to work on this whole problem and to report to the legislature better methods for dealing with sex offenses. A year ago the California State Legislature appropriated $100.000 as the beginning of a long-time research on this subject. If we are to make progress in the understanding of this subject and devise better ways of dealing with the problem of sex offenses, it is important to encourage scientific study of this problem and to review carefully what is known and what are likely fields for further study and investigation

The California Legislature passed "an act to provide for scientific research into the problem of sex crimes, including the causes and cure of sex deviates, and making an appropriation." The ideas of the California Legislature are fairly clear from a reading of Section 1 of this law, which is as follows:

> "The Department of Mental Hygiene, acting through the Superintendent of the Langley Porter Clinic, shall plan, conduct, and cause to be conducted scientific research into the causes and cures of sexual deviation, including deviations conducive to sex crimes against children, and the causes and cures of homosexuality, and into methods of identifying potential sex offenders."

It is apparent that general concern about sex crimes is focused primarily on sex crimes against small children and sex crimes of violence, with homosexuality causing a variable amount of concern.

Some legislative groups have assumed that the solution to the problem is simply to pass more sex laws and make the penalties more severe. A Subcommittee of the United States Senate has made such recommendations. Most students of sex behavior do not feel that this method of dealing with the question is likely to be of any real value.

It is important to keep in mind that sex is only one aspect of the personality and that sex cannot be completely isolated and studied apart from the rest of the personality. The methods of psychiatry have much to offer in studying the total personality. It is perhaps wise to discuss briefly some of the more common types of sex offenses.

Exhibitionism

From the standpoint of arrests and convictions exhibitionism is number one in frequency. The vast majority of exhibitionists are relatively harmless offenders; mostly they are public nuisances and sources of embarrasssments, but there is a frequent and repetitious character which is worth noting. Exhibitionists are usually men, although now and then a rare case of female exhibitionism is reported.

The biologic basis for exhibitionism appears to be the tendency of male animals to strut and show off before the females, although in the higher apes there has been reported some exhibitionism of the genitals on the part of the female as an invitation to the male to carry out sexual intercourse. In human beings exhibitionism can be regarded as a normal part of sexual foreplay. In exhibitionism, in some way or other, the emphasis is displaced, and sexual exposure becomes of maximum or sole importance to the individual. It is an obsessive compulsive type of neurotic behavior for which psychoanalysis has offered specific interpretations. The urge to expose is closely associated with voyeurism—the wish to look as well as to be looked at—and tends to appear repeatedly in the same individual. The risk and danger of arrest seem to add spice to the desire to see and to be seen.

Exhibitionism and voyeurism are not dangerous unless they occur along with more serious types of sex behaviour. It should be stated explicitly that persons convicted of serious sex crimes do not commonly begin with voyeurism and exhibitionism and work up to crimes of violence and murder. Sex offenders have the same tendency as do other criminals to stick to similar types of offense It is well known that burglars seldom become forgers, and vice versa. Such criminals stick to a particualr type of criminal behaviour; the same is largely true of sex offenders.

Homosexuality

The problem of homosexuality is extremely complex, and opinions vary as to its importance in antisocial sex behaviour. American culture has given little attention to female homosexuality and has been overconcerned with male homosexual relations. There are many variations in homosexual behaviour. One group are normally heterosexual but resort to homosexual behaviour when a partner of the opposite sex is not available. Another group of individuals are ambisexual and regularly indulge in both hetero- and homo-sexual relations and do not seek one form of sex behaviour to the exclusion of the other. A third group desire only partners of their own sex. They can be divided into two groups. One group, the smaller, regard themselves as females and often ask for castrative operations. I have records of two males, both of whom have asked for complete castration, including amputation of the penis, construction of an artificial vagina and the administration of female sex hormones. I also have two cases of females who have requested a panhysterectomy and the amputation of their breasts, together with the giving of male sex hormones, in the hope that in some way the clitoris may finally develop into a penis. Male homosexuals of this type are called "queens" and seem to differ markedly from the main group of homosexuals who are more nearly like the average man. Here we have an extremely interesting field for further investigation.

We are therefore setting up a careful plan to study a group of these so-called "queens" carrying out the studies of body build as outlined by Kretschmer and Sheldon (3), making a thorough endocrine study, carrying out a thorough psychiatric history and a mental examination, including the use of the various psychologic tests such as Rorschach, Thematic Apperception Test, Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory and several others. A physical or anatomic difference in this particular group still remains possible and study either to prove or disprove this point should be made.

Viewpoints as to the causes of homosexuality vary, with resulting differences in opinion as to the chances for successful treatment.

Freud felt that homosexuality is a disorder in psychosexual development In each case of homosexuality, at any point, the development could have taken a different turn if the situation had been different. However, because of many conditioning experiences, the condition of homosexuality became fixed and the chances for cure small. During a recent visit I made at the University of Indiana, Professor Kinsey gave me a letter which Freud had written to an American mother, with permission to use it as I saw fit. This letter has been reproduced, in Freud's own handwriting, in a recent issue of the American Journal of Psychiatry. It appears to me worthwhile to present it at this time as I think it gives an excellent summary of Freud's ideas and is a most human and interesting document.

Freud Letter

"DEAR MRS._____: I gather from your letter that your son is a homosexual I am most impressed by the fact that you do not mention this term yourself in your information about him. May I question you, why you avoid it? Homosexuality is assuredly no advantage but it is nothing to be ashamed of, no vice, no degradation, it cannot be classified as an illness; we consider it to be a variation of the sexual function produced by a certain arrest of sexual development. Many highly respectable individuals of ancient and modern times have been homosexuals, several of the greatest men among them. (Plato, Michelangelo, Leonardo da Vinci, etc.) It is a great injustice to persecute homosexuality as a crime, and a cruelty, too. If you do not believe me, read the books of Havelock Ellis.

"By asking me if I can help you, you mean, I suppose, if I can abolish homosexuality and make normal heterosexuality take its place. The answer is, in a general way, we cannot promise to achieve it. In a certain number of cases we succeed in developing the blighted germs of heterosexual tendencies which are present in every homosexual, in the majority of cases it is no more possible. It is a question of the quality and the age of the individual. The result of treatment cannot be predicted.

"What analysis can do for your son runs in a different line. If he is unhappy, neurotic, torn by conflicts, inhibited in his social life, analysis may bring him harmony, peace of mind, full efficiency, whether he remains a homosexual or gets changed. If you make up your mind he should have analysis with me—I don't expect you will—he has to come over to Vienna. I have no intention of leaving here. However, don't neglect to give me your answer.

"Sincerely yours with kind wishes

FREUD

"P. S. I did not find it difficult to read your handwriting. Hope you will not find my writing and my English a harder task."

The other viewpoint is that homosexuality is a deeply fixed pattern, either inherited or determined very early in life by physiologic factors. Midway is the opinion that homosexuality is caused by combined psychologic and physiologic factors.

Ford and Beach (5) believe that sexual inversion reflects the essentially bisexual character of men's mammalian inheritance. In their book, "Patterns of Sexual Behaviour" (4), published by Harper on February 28, 1951, they report many observations on homosexual behaviour in animals. It is the only sexual expression in a few members of each species. It is common in male and very uncommon in female animals—facts that suggest a basic inherited potentiality for homosexual behaviour. Kallmann's (5) careful study of homosexuality in identical twins, reported recently at the New York Academy of Medicine, also favors the genetic determination of homosexuality. Beach disagrees with the idea that early conditioning and social pressures largely account for homosexual expressions. He finds that the large majority of subhuman mammals, regardless of conditioning, usually prefer heterosexual to homosexual relations, if given their choice.

Anatomic studies by Sheldon have shown no primary physical feminine characteristics in known male homosexuals, but these men do have feminine mannerisms and expressions in facial and body movements.

Some workers have observed an imbalance in the androgen-estrogen ratio in homosexuals, and on this premise have assumed an endocrine basis for homosexuality. (6) All sorts of anatomic and physiologic changes have been reported and considered as causal by various observers. These reports include such different findings as abnormalities of the central nervous system, disordered basal metabolism, hypoglycemic states, etc. (7) So far all of these ideas are still unproven theories. It seems important to determine whether or not some of these ideas are correct.

Accordingly I have arranged with the Steroid Laboratory of the University of California School of Medicine at Los Angeles, to carry out a study of certain steroids and anti-enzymes in the urine and blood of sexual deviates in two of the state hospitals near Los Angeles. These studies should yield us specific information concerning the possible relationship of these steroids and anti-enzymes to homosexuality. This research has been under way for less than six months and no material is yet available for publication.

It is of interest that some of our officials in Washington have the naive idea that excluding homosexuals from government service will do away with the problem of foreign spies securing secret information. Homosexuals are no more open to seduction than are heterosexuals, and history is full of accounts of beautiful female spies who have secured important secrets from other governments by their heterosexual seductions We find that some rulers in the past have tried to make their positions safe by surrounding themselves with eunuchs, but even this device did not prevent the rulers from betrayal at times. In view of the high incidence of some type of homosexual indulgence in American males as reported by Kinsey, there would seem to be little or no chance of keeping our government offices free of overt homosexuals. If one wishes to add the group of latent homosexuals, it is obvious that we are witnessing some of the wish fulfillment thinking, disassociated from reality, which we see in our schizophrenic patients.

An amusing article in Science News Letter for July 1, 1950, points out that, if we apply Kinsey's figures upon the incidence of homosexuality to Members of Congress and male civil service employees, we would assume that 192 white male Members of Congress and 525,279 male civil service employees are poor security risks for this reason. The facts are that the majority of homosexuals are no particular menace to society. A small number of them, like those who are heterosexual, will attempt to seduce or sexually assault others or try to initiate sex relations with small children They are undesirable persons in the community.

Society is entitled to protect itself against such individuals whether they are homosexual or heterosexual. Homosexual seduction of children is just as important as heterosexual seduction and perhaps even more serious in its effects. Society must and should guard against it rigidly. Certain dangerous acts do occur. Some overt homosexuals, in their hunt for partners, may be attracted to latent ones who greatly fear any homosexual expression. (8) Relations of this kind often end in atrocities which may be against children and youths.

Fetishism

Ordinarily the perversion of fetishism is harmless. There are occasions, however, where it appears to be the beginning of a more serious type of sex abnormality, in which murder and mutilation may occur.

It is not well understood in what situations fantasy passes over into action In the well known Chicago case, Heirens at age nine used female underclothing as a fetish. (9) Later, the act of breaking through a window to obtain feminine garments excited him greatly and often resulted in orgasm. By the age of 17 he had committed 25 burglaries, one robbery, one assault to murder and three murders, including a kidnaping. During these crimes the least noise might set him off; and he might kill. To Eissler (10) it is incredible that parents, teachers and priests did not suspect the many rich gifts, clearly beyond the youth's means, and that they ignored other signs. Heirens' wall daubing, "For heaven's sake, catch me before I kill more, I cannot control myself," Eissler considers a genuine plea for help.

Sex Offenses Against Young Children

Sex offenders against young children are a very serious social problem. In a very few cases the sexual attack on the child may be based on some superstition, as, for example, the idea that intercourse with a virgin, preferably a child under seven, cures venereal disease. (11) In the majority of cases, however, the men are over 40 years of age A large percentage of them are impotent, either relatively or absolutely. In many of these cases it appears that the individual feels inadequate to approach a full grown woman, but is able to get more or less vicarious sex pleasure through some kind of sex play with the small child. In homosexual acts with small children this may not be the case. In many of the older men involved in sex offenses toward little girls, it appears that the behavior is the evidence of an early senile or organic brain change, in which the ordinary controls and inhibitions are becoming lost. A great many of these men have had unblemished reputations so that these offenses could not have been anticipated

The harmful effects of such sexual relations to the child victim have been at times exaggerated. Bender and Blau's (12) excellent study at Bellevue Hospital of 16 children, aged 5 to 12, who had sex relations with adults showed less fear and guilt in the children than expected. The immediate harmful effect was mainly interference with the child's education and other juvenile interests The child's greater than usual preoccupation with sex hindered school advancement For later effects these writers cite Rasmussen's Danish study of 54 women who had been child victims of convicted sex offenders Only eight had serious emotional abnormalities in adult life and in these the early sexual trauma was not judged an important factor.

Incest, more common than generally thought, is most frequent between father and daughter and between brother and sister. It is extremely rare between mother and son Many reports stress such socioeconomic factors as very large families and bad living quarters as important causes.

The Victim

A study of sex crimes against children can achieve no adequate, complete understanding without a thorough psychiatric study of the child and the child's family, as well as a full study of the offender My own experience with these cases at Boston Psychopathic Hospital and at Bellevue Hospital, together with Doctor Bender's work, leads me to emphasize two ideas· first, that often the most harmful effect of sex offenses to the child is the attitude of the family and associates; second, the question whether the crime is 100 percent the fault of the offender or whether in a considerable number of cases the child may have contributed more or less to the situation and have some degree of responsibility for what occurs Bender noted that several of the 16 children in her study did not resist, but even invited or initiated sex relations In two studies (13) of statutory rape, the sexually delinquent minor girl was a more important psychiatric problem than the nonpsychotic male offender.

It is important that a number of cases from which to draw statistical conclusions about the effect of the sex experience on the child, and also the degree to which the child contributed to the act, be considered in a study.

In order to answer these questions, we are setting up the usual team of psychiatrist, psychologist, and psychiatric social worker in San Francisco's new Youth Guidance Center, which also houses the Juvenile Court.

The officials of this Juvenile Court, the Probation Department, and all those connected with this Youth Guidance Center have been most friendly and cooperative, and have indicated their desire to work with us and help solve these problems. We hope eventually to have some worthwhile statistics on this subject.

Murder

Observers estimate that genuine sex murder is rare, perhaps 25 to 100 cases a year in the whole Country. (14) In a few cases, as noted, homosexual panic may lead to a sudden homicidal assault, or assaults on children by adults may end in murder. Psychiatrists have noted that some passive, effeminate boys may try to assert themselves by criminally aggressive behavior. MacDonald (15) warns that superficial investigation often intensifies these impulses and may lead to murder This trigger-quick aggressiveness was found in a study of 14 male murderers of girls or women. (16) Cushing (17) points out that a sex case involving forceful rape or death after sexual relations is not, per se, a sexual offense, but primarily a crime of forceful assault or of murder.

Miscellany

Other sex offenses include sex relations with a corpse and bestiality Kinsey's figures (18) show that 8 percent of all males and more than half of the boys raised on farms have some type of sexual contact with animals. Frequencies vary from once or twice in a lifetime to several times a week for some years. The incidence is very high in some western areas. Legal codes usually rate these acts as sodomy; the penalties vary In California the maximum penalty is 20 years. This over-valuation of animals may have some connection with the fanaticism of antivivisection. It is possible that the same forces which cause antivivisectionists to attempt to stop medical progress and allow diseased children to die, rather than subject a few animals to laboratory investigation, likewise motivate the high penalties for bestiality.

Lack of time prevents a discussion of the types of heterosexual relations forbidden in many states, even if the couple is married and both are willing partners in the act. Such behavior is without effect on the rest of society and is even recommended as a part of the foreplay in most of the standard books regarding sex relations in marriage.

Diagnostic Tests

A small literature is accumulating on diagnostic tests helpful in differentiating sexual deviation. Several studies (19) have indicated that content analysis of Rorschach tests has value In male homosexuality, derealization and dehumanization, with confusion as to sex identification, appear; also human movement and a high percent of sexual content responses, along with responses concerning feminine apparel, behavior and attributes. A selective vocabulary test is claimed to score homosexuals significantly. (20)

Guttmacher (21) reports Rorschach studies, as yet unpublished, that delineate a passive approach in exhibitionists; color predominates over movement; and there are signs of a vague, uncreative personality, with some depersonalization. In the rapist there is more control, surface restraint, with many movement responses and inner compulsiveness. The man is unsocial and allows tension to accumulate to the point of explosiveness. Fantasies of violent penetration and forced intercourse recur the test battery.

Some workers advocate the electroencephalograph as a diagnostic aid Significant correlation appeared between unspecific abnormal EEG's and the capacity to commit violent, apparently motiveless acts, although EEG's were normal in three cases of sex murder. (22) An epileptic equivalent is suspected in crimes of extreme cruelty committed late in life. (23) In a series of thefts of compulsive nature committed by homosexuals the EEG was thought to locate toxic-organic factors. (24) However, Giggs (25) and coworkers found that subclinical forms of epilepsy and organic brain disorder did not significantly contribute to crime in sane patients No correlation appeared between abnormal EEG's and sexual behavior disorders in a series of children's cases. (26)

Gioscia (27) claims that the absence of the gag reflex "in the absence of an organic lesion, hysteria, or paralysis, is a definite indication that fellatio has been practiced." In his figures, however, he reports a negative gag reflex in 36% of cases of drug addiction and 18% of cases of schizophrenia.

Treatment

All treatment must start with a thorough psychiatric study of the offender, and in many cases, of the victim. Sexual psychopathy is but one aspect of the whole personality and any type of treatment must take into account the total personality. At the present time it must be admitted that the results of treatment are, on the whole, unsatisfactory. There is great need of developing better and simpler techniques. If mere detention is society's main protection against the offender, then imprisonment is more efficient than hospitalization, as some criminologists have noted.

Attempts should be made to determine exactly what cases require institutionalization. Certain cases of fetishism, some of the aggressive, seductive homosexuals and sex offenders against children who show either the extreme compulsive, repetitive type of behavior or early signs of organic brain disease, should be segregated for the protection of society.

If one is interested in trying to help the offender to establish a more normal sex life, it is obvious that the ordinary imprisonment will not serve the purpose; particularly is this true in regard to homosexuality. Segregating a male homosexual for months or years in a prison where he will see only other men and where he will be often isolated with a group of other homosexuals can hardly result in anything but reinforcement of the homosexual tendencies.

In general, one may divide the methods of treatment into psychologic methods and physiologic methods. To those who feel that sex deviations are brought about according to Freud's ideas, an orthodox psychoanalysis may seem the best and, in fact, the only possible way of treating the patient successfully. Granting the most extreme claims of any of the Freudians, even assuming that they could cure every patient and increasing the number of psychoanalysts tenfold, one would find that even if the psychoanalysts devoted themselves exclusively to these problems, the cures would be so few in number that the whole problem would be relatively unchanged.

Various types of short techniques and group psychotherapy have been tried by many with some varying results. Bromberg feels that he has been able to attain certain results with psychodrama where other techniques have failed. One might sum it up by saying that all the standard techniques of psychotherapy have been used in the treatment of sex offenders without a very impressive result. We have a second group who feel that the approach should be primarily physiologic and who have reported results of treatment by hormonal injections, castration, convulsive shock therapy and brain operations such as lobotomy. A variable degree of success is claimed by those reporting these types of treatment. It would seem somewhat easier to check the value or lack of value of these physical methods of therapy and it is suggested that a number of pieces of worthwhile research might be carried out in this field.

Since in California certain courts have agreed to place a sex offender on probation if he submits to castration, it seems to me that we have an excellent opportunity here to carry out a number of basic studies both psychologic and physiologic. If we can obtain a number of these prisoners prior to castration and carry out a most thorough and intensive psychiatric study, including the use of standard tests such as the Rorschach and Thematic Apperception tests, and if we also work with the endocrinologist who can carry out a most thorough endocrine study with hormone assays, we can then repeat all of these studies after castration and acquire a large number of data bearing on this whole subject.

Another point of special interest to the psychiatrist is to try to determine why one individual indulges in sex fantasies but does not carry them out in actual behavior, whereas in another individual the fantasies break through into overt acts. This may be closely linked up with the fact that the normal individual has a rich fantasy life, but never confuses fantasies with reality; whereas in certain mental disorders, particularly in schizophrenia, one often sees the fantasies breaking through with all the forces of reality, and the patient living out his fantasy life as if it were real. Determining what factors cause the difference between fantasy and overt behavior might be of great value in helping to solve this problem.

CONCLUSIONS

From my brief survey it is clear that the whole problem of the sex offender is a most complicated one and involves many fields. All attempts at better diagnosis, treatment and prevention will require many years of cooperative research by scientists from many different fields. There is no one over-all way of attacking the problem. Rather one must attack individual facets. It is possible to pose a series of specific questions to which there is reason to believe we can get specific answers. By setting up more and more of these researches which will attack limited phases of the problem and by securing answers to such phases, we can hope eventually to be able to throw these answers together and by combining them obtain a solution to this problem.

DESCRIPTION OF PROJECTS

1. Sociological Survey—Sex Research

A practical method, it seems to me, of dealing with the whole problem of sex offenses is to make a survey of exactly what is being done in the State of California at the various governmental levels.

As the Subcommittee on Sex Crimes pointed out in its preliminary report, the sexual psychopath laws have been very little used in the past 10 years. It suggested that attitudes of prosecuting officers and judges toward enforcement of the act; the sex offender's refusal to cooperate in medical and psychiatric examinations; the lack of available state institutional facilities for custody and treatment of sex offenders, and awareness of this fact by enforcement officers; and the difficulty of making a practical diagnosis of sexual psychopathy before one or two prior convictions are all reasons why the "sexual psychopath" acts have been little used. Limiting operation of the law to second-conviction offenders has meant missing a large number of sex offenders, and this omission also affects the reported rates of recidivism or repeaters.

The subcommittee also stated that the first of three major areas for research in the sex crime problem was the administration of justice. The subcommittee noted that no information exists as to what is the reaction of the victim to a sex crime, what damage does he suffer, and what causes this damage. Are victims of sex crimes of any particular type of personality? Are crimes liable to occur in certain localities or danger spots in the community? These questions are without answers.

In considering the administration of justice, the subcommittee found also that enforcement officials behaved variously when faced with a sex crime. Some prosecuting officers and judges do not consider sex offenders as "patients needing treatment" and sexual psychopath laws may be used only when evidence is insufficient to support a criminal conviction. The methods of police in making arrests, the prosecution of sex offenders, with gathering of evidence and determination of charges, the handling of the few trials and the disposition of the convicted defendants—all these vary widely in different sections of the State.

It is not known what are the common types of sentences being used under the Indeterminate Sentence Law, nor what use is being made of probation and parole. It is especially important to find out which probation and parole practices are most successful, and what kind of personnel functions best in work with sex offenders

Finally, in the administration of justice, it is highly important to know how the offender reacts to arrest, prosecution, imprisonment or fine, probation, etc. A study might show which processes of law with accompanying treatments do most to deter the offender from further crime.

For these reasons I have arranged for an experienced sociologist to make an extensive survey of typical sections of the State, to see what are the actual situations and practices concerning sex offenses. Professor A. R. Mangus, of the Rural Sociology Department at Ohio State University, will be in charge of this work.

The subcommittee received various recommendations from outside sources during the hearings These recommendations centered on topics of research, education, possible changes in statutory law of sex crimes, better law enforcement and systems for detecting dangerous sex deviates

Numerous recommendations concerned ways in which parents, schools, physicians, judges and police officers might participate. It was felt that special training for teachers and police officers would help in spotting children with such personality disorders as require help of child guidance centers and counseling services Participation on these levels would help to develop in the American public a new attitude toward sexual matters and to educate the public in better cooperation with law enforcement officials.

I believe that no real advances can be made in either public attitudes toward the problem of sex crimes nor in adequate law enforcement until we know from thorough surveys of the subject exactly what the situation in California is.

The subcommittee concluded, as the result of its extensive investigations and hearings, that a number of factors interfere with successful law enforcement. Often the public, especially the victim's family and neighbors as well as the victim, fail to support law enforcement. They are unwilling to report sexual attacks or to give necessary evidence. Many law enforcement agencies lack the trained personnel to conduct proper investigations of sex offenses. The attitudes of judges and juries further affect the present low rate of convictions, it is believed.

It is especially important to know whether the Registration Act (California Penal Code, Section 290) is being utilized to keep track of offenders, and if not, what are the reasons for inadequate use. It would also be useful to know to what degree a resolution passed by Special Session of the Legislature in 1949 is being carried out. This resolution directed the Superintendent of Public Instruction to disseminate to school personnel, pupils, parent-teacher associations and other educational groups specific instructions regarding precautionary safeguards for children, against sex offenses.

The subcommittee concluded that the press can help greatly in cooperation with law enforcement and education agencies. A study might well be made to determine how well newspapers in the State have accepted their responsibility for better education of the public in what are the facts about sex crimes.

Another field for careful investigation is the attitude of judges, district attorneys and other law enforcement officials toward the question of minor sex crimes. As I pointed out in my Gregory lecture at Bellevue Medical Center, sex offenders do not begin with some minor sex offense or nuisance like exposure and work up to murder. Sex offenders, like other criminals, tend to stick to a particular type of offense. It would be wise to establish, by carefully validated follow up studies, this observation, so that such relatively minor offenses would not receive unduly harsh sentences as a prevention against the development into more serious crimes.

Related to this study would be that of the effects of treatment. It is the observation of experienced physicians that various minor sexual offenses committed by adolescents tend to resolve themselves without treatment other than that usually given by probation officers and the courts. A study of a sufficient number of such cases to see what are the after effects would be a valuable guide for courts in the future.

I feel that the different aspects of such a study of the various agencies in the State, to be undertaken by Professor Mangus, would greatly illuminate the problem of sex offenses and would bring to light many points on which we could concentrate in our program of research in diagnosis, treatment and prevention.

2. Investigations in the UCLA Steroid Laboratory

The extremely complex problem of homosexual relations has a variable amount of importance in the class of serious sex crimes.

Some investigators believe that homosexuality may become a fairly normal sexual expression in certain individuals if it is found without other marked mental or physical abnormality. American culture tends to give too little attention to female homosexuality and to overemphasize the dangers of male homosexuality.

A small number of homosexuals do commit serious sex crimes. Some of them attempt to seduce or sexually assault others; or try to induce small children to participate in some kind of sexual relationship. Studies have also shown that passive, effeminate youths in attempting to assert themselves and to overcome strong homosexual drives may engage in criminal aggressive behavior. There is also the danger that overt homosexuals, ordinarily harmless and friendly, may in their hunt for partners be attracted to latent homosexuals who both desire and fear homosexual expressions. Relations of this kind may end in atrocities and homicide, which may be against children or youths. Penologists have also found that in prisoners thrown together for long periods an occasional homosexual panic results from the prisoner's growing awareness of and defenses against his homosexual strivings, and murder may result.

Research has thus far failed to show the causes of homosexuality. Some studies point to inherited constitutional factors. A recent careful and detailed study of homosexuality in both identical and fraternal twins favors a genetic or hereditary determination of homosexuality. Other investigators have noted disorders of metabolism or physical abnormalities and diseases of the central nervous system as bases for homosexual behavior.

A great many studies have indicated some endocrine imbalance in homosexuals. The varying amounts of secretion by the sex glands; the chemical balance between the sex glands and other glands; and other studies in psychosomatic interrelations with homosexuality have led me to believe that disturbed gonadal secretion may be a possible factor in homosexual behavior. Refined methods of investigation offer a chance to bring in new and conclusive evidence in this much discussed somatic approach.

Study of Certain Steroids. I therefore arranged for biochemical and endocrine studies of certain steroids and antienzymes in the urine and blood of sex deviates in two state hospitals near Los Angeles. This work has proceeded for less than six months in the Steroid Laboratory, under the direction of Dr. Stafford Warren, Dean of the University of California Medical School at Los Angeles. Although the time is too short for conclusive results, the work already indicates certain trends.

Progress in these studies on certain steroids and antienzymes in the urine and blood of sex deviates has been reported by Dean Warren.

The object of the one study is to determine whether an imbalance between male and female hormonal substances exists in the urine and blood of sex deviates. This has involved the perfecting of more accurate methods than previously existed, for the extraction and measurement of hormonal substances.

A preliminary study has been carried out on the oxidation in the presence of light of three slightly different crystalline estrogens: estrone, estradiol and estriol—female hormonal substances found in differing quantities in both females and males. It has been demonstrated that crystalline estrogens are rapidly destroyed when they are exposed to light in the presence of such naturally occurring flavins (water-soluble pigments) as riboflavin, a part of the vitamin B complex The estrogenic steroids in the urine and blood are known to be mixed with appreciable quantities of flavins. Studies are now in progress to determine whether these estrogenic substances, when they reach the urine and blood, are destroyed during oxidation in the presence of light.

This highly technical procedure means that unless the process of oxidation is specifically determined it is impossible to measure accurately the amounts of estrogenic substances excreted in urine and found in blood. These new and refined methods are being applied to the extraction and separation of estrogens in urine.

Application of the new extraction methods has so far shown that current methods for extracting and measuring estrogens and possibly other steroid substances in urine and blood are subject to errors. Some published studies have reported the absence of substances because the method used did not permit demonstrating their presence. It is thus impossible to attempt a clinical study of the biochemistry of sexual psychopaths or of homosexuals without perfecting accurate and reliable methods for determination of steroids in urine and blood.

In the last two months the investigators have developed a method for separating and measuring the quantities of the three natural estrogens. It involves passing the substances through a column of an organic resin on which they are selectively absorbed. Preliminary work shows that this selective technique can be used to purify not only the naturally occurring estrogens, but also certain related steroids.

Further application of the above technique for extracting from urine and measuring both estrogens and androgens (the male hormonal substance) is considered a part of the program for the coming year. Development of this method should prove most valuable in studying the excretions of both phenolic and neutral steroids by sexual psychopaths and homosexuals, in order to determine whether their biochemistry differs from that of normal individuals.

It is hoped that a thorough study of the variations in the quantity of these substances excreted over a period of time will show some correlation with the status of the mental and emotional disturbance. Such correlation would permit better understanding of causes and would offer a basis for possible treatment.

Enzyme Inhibitors Program. The second study concerns presence or absence of antienzymes in the blood that may distinguish mental disease.

Several studies are now in progress on sexual psychopathy, schizophrenic psychoses, psychoneurotic states and reactions to stress. They are being made at the University of California at Los Angeles and at two hospitals, Norwalk State Hospital and Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

These studies are not yet complete, and sufficient control studies have not been carried out. Results so far indicate that methods are being obtained by which it will be possible to describe biochemically these specific personality disturbances and reactions. This means that standardization of the tests will enable one to determine the presence or absence of psychosis, psychopathic personality and psychoneurosis All studies have been carefully compared with those of control groups, with the exception of studies on a group of 30 sexual psychopaths at Norwalk State Hospital. In this group preliminary observations indicate a wide variation of mental and biochemical states.

In some 70 psychotic patients of several types, observations indicate a high correlation between the psychiatric and biochemical-enzymatic findings. These findings suggest an intimate relation to the field of stress physiology, especially as related to pituitary-adrenal metabolism.

There is good reason to think that more extensive studies of so important and heterogeneous a group as sexual psychopaths might very well produce information of significant diagnostic value. Such a diagnostic method would permit reliable separation of these individuals into definite groups for treatment.

The work of the two programs has also begun to show important correlations. For this reason, Dean Warren believes that continuation of the research programs for another year would be extremely worthwhile.

3. Projected Plan for Endocrine and Metabolic Investigation of Sex Offenders

Psychiatrists have pointed out possible psychologic causes for homosexuality, as for example an arrest in the individual's psychosexual development. It has long been noted that one group of individuals resort to homosexual behavior only if female partners are lacking and revert to heterosexual behavior as soon as females are available. Another group, apparently ambisexual, find satisfaction in either homosexual or heterosexual relations, without much preference The third group definitely desire partners of the same sex, but fall into two subgroups. The smaller group, if males, consider themslves female, and actively seek plastic surgery to make themselves over into women. A few parallel cases exist in women who try by Amazonian methods to amputate breasts and evolve male sex organs.

The male homosexuals of this subgroup are called "queens" and because of apparent differences from the main group of homosexuals offer an excellent field for further investigation. I am accordingly setting up a careful plan to study a group of these so-called "queens." The studies will include careful measurements of body build as outlined by Kretschmer and modified by Sheldon; thorough endocrine studies; an extensive psychiatric history and mental examination, including such psychometric and personality tests as Bellevue-Wechsler, Rorschach, Thematic Apperception, Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory and several others. It is quite possible that definite anatomic, physiologic and other somatic differences exist in this group, and these studies may well prove to be of great importance not only in distinguishing this small group, but in throwing light on the mechanisms in other homosexual behavior.

Similar methods of endocrine and metabolic investigation should also be applied to castrates. Far too little is known about the immediate and later effects of castration. In addition such knowledge will help in the understanding of various sexual abnormalities.

Investigators in the departments of endocrinology and pharmacology at the University of California School of Medicine at San Francisco have already made a start in demonstrating effects of the sex hormonal substances upon measurable functions of the brain. It is now feasible to measure quantitatively the way in which brains of human subjects react to male and female hormonal substances. Observations are made after these compounds are administered intravenously by a new method.

The plan for endocrine examination of male homosexuals would involve examination of a large enough number of passive and active male homosexuals in penal institutions of the State to permit statistically valid evaluation of the endocrine constitution of this group. The careful physical examination would include data on the type of body build, photographic records and clinical evaluation by an experienced endocrinologist, to determine whether any physical trends diverge from the normal. The clinical examination would be based on measurement of hormonal substances by chemical methods; an ACTH test, to determine adrenal cortical reserve; observation of any qualitative differences in the direction of so-called feminine patterns; measurement of brain metabolism (oxygen, carbon dioxide, glucose, galactose and electrolytes); and responses of this measurable brain metabolism to three pure hormonal substances: male hormones (testosterone), female hormones (sodium estrone sulfate) and corticoid type (desoxycorticosterone glucoside).

Attempts will also be made to determine whether any of these objective facts can be correlated with the type of behavior shown by these subjects. In addition to the organic studies, psychologic and psychiatric evaluations will be made.

In the study of effects of sex hormones upon the metabolism of the human brain, preliminary studies have been carried out by Dr. Gilbert Gordan and coworkers. These investigatory studies progressed from observations on the rat brain in a test tube to those on intact rats and later to those in man. The lack of castrate men has hampered the study, as has the lack of technically suitable hormones, except for adrenal corticoids, which are water-soluble. Recently the use of pure sex hormonal substances has been made practical. A statistically significant group of castrate men has been located.

In the projected plan, the cerebral metabolism of sex offenders will be studied by the Kety technique. This includes studying the body's utilization of oxygen and glucose, the production of carbon dioxide and galactose and any electrolyte changes which may occur before and after castration. It is planned to study how the brain metabolism responds to male, female and corticoid hormones in individuals before castration; after the effects of castration have appeared; and after castrated patients have been maintained on short-term courses of hormones. Psychologic and psychiatric studies will accompany these studies at all stages. It might be desirable to include study of the effects of female hormones upon aggressive male offenders.

The purpose of the study is to correlate all the objective brain metabolic phenomena with the types of behavior and psychologic manifestations in male homosexuals. That is, there is already some indication that a person's behavior is directly related to the amounts of secretions of the several sex hormones and their interrelation with other glandular substances. It is believed that a more exact biochemical description of male homosexuals will go far toward the understanding and later toward the control of abnormal behavior in these persons

4. Psychiatric and Psychologic Study of the Juvenile Victim and His Immediate Environment

In talking with the legislative committee on this subject, I found that the members are concerned primarily with sex crimes of violence and with sex crimes against young children.

A large proportion of offenders against children are men above 40 or 45. In many cases the older man who approaches sexually small girls or boys has been of good reputation. The offense may be the first sign of certain organic senile changes which weaken inhibitions or cause feelings of inadequacy. The elderly man may then hunt out a small child as being less experienced and discriminating in sex relations than a grown woman would be.

From the very few careful studies on this subject and from my own considerable experience, two aspects of the problem strike me forcibly. The child may not always be an unwilling victim, or other factors in the child and his family situation may lead to his being approached. Second, even if the child is largely an accidental victim of sexual advances, the supposed harm to the child may be exaggerated.

Let us look for a moment at each one of these ideas

A few isolated studies have shown that the child victim of sexual approaches may be at times a not unwilling collaborator. At other times the child may play a more active part than is generally supposed Sometimes the family situation may influence the child to seek a type of sex adventure. In Bender's excellent study of 16 children seen at Bellevue Hospital who had had sex relations with adults, several children did not resist but even invited or initiated the sex contacts. In some cases the use of force did not fully account for the frequent repetition of the sexual acts. In one study of 250 nonpsychotic men charged with sex offenses, their psychiatric status seemed less abnormal than was that of the minor girls involved in the sex episode.

As to possible exaggeration of harm to the child victim, observers have noted less fear and guilt in child victims than might be expected. Bender noted in the 16 children of her study that the immediate harmful effect of sexual contacts with adults was interference with the child's training and education The child tended to become preoccupied with sex and to assert too early independence from parental or adult authority.

In a Scandinavian study of 54 adult women who had been child victims of convicted sex offenders, serious emotional disorders were seen in less than a seventh, and these could not be traced to the early sex trauma

With these facts in mind I have discussed this whole problem with the authorities at the San Francisco Juvenile Court and Youth Guidance Center. The authorities there have been most cooperative and as a result, we have set up a team, consisting of two half-time psychiatrists, a full-time psychologist, a full-time psychiatric social worker and a secretary Office space for this group is being furnished at the Youth Guidance Center.

The first study to be made will be an attempt to determine the role of the victim in the crime. To what extent did the child resist sex advances, passively accept them, or even initiate or aid in the sex behavior? Would an increased knowledge of the psychology of such children aid in the over-all prevention of such offenses? Male and female children in age groups of 5 to 13 will be studied. This group will include all children who have been tampered with sexually by older persons, who have been forced to participate in some other way sexually with older persons, or who have been forced to witness sexual exposure or be themselves exposed. Attempts will be made to study the child's family setup, and if necessary, such important persons in the child's environment as teachers, friends, playmates and relatives. The psychologist will give a battery of tests, including both tests of intelligence and of personality. A special room has been set up for play technique studies with the child.

It is hoped to obtain cases to make careful observations and to draw statistical conclusions which should be an important and worthwhile contribution to this whole problem. It is anticipated that as time goes on, this research may extend to a further study of the sex offender and may include treatment for the child and his family and for the sex offender himself.

5. Abstract of the Literature

It seems wise to survey the entire field of a designated problem, in order to make clear just how much is known and how much is unknown. Often it is not clear at the start what the central point is and what are factors of less importance. It is also exceedingly valuable, in allocating workers and moneys, to confine investigations to those areas which have been little explored or in which few or no conclusive results have emerged.

I have therefore consulted with several directors of research in sex offenses in other states. In October I spent some time with Professor Kinsey in the Institute for Sex Research at the University of Indiana, and reviewed with him the many approaches to the problem that are now in progress. Insofar as possible I have avoided all duplication of other well-conducted studies.

One basis for studying the problem of sex offenders is a survey of the literature which has accumulated on this subject. An extensive review of the literature is now under way, and with a few interruptions has gone forward for about five months. The review has covered publications of about the last five or six years It is our intention to review all the pertinent work published in this Country and as much as possible of that abroad, during the past 20 or 25 years.

The material has been found to cover estimates of the incidence of sex offenses in the different states and countries. The type of legislation enacted and the enforcement of such enactments are discussed. A large amount of material has been found to cover the different types of sex offenses, graded as to degree of seriousness or danger to the community, with detailed discussions of all possible causes of such sexual misbehavior. Some valuable information concerns the biologic basis for the varied modes of sexual behavior in animals, particularly in the higher mammals, and the possible application of this knowledge to human expressions.

Perhaps the largest amount of material has to do with treatment. Physical therapy of the various sex offenses is shown to include administration of hormones; castration; brain surgery such as lobotomy, and insulin and electroshock treatments. The psychologic approach to treatment has centered mainly on psychotherapy of more or less extensive degree in intensity and length of treatment Many claims are found for the success of group psychotherapy. Different ways of combining sex offenders for group psychotherapy, psychodrama and other devices in educational and occupational therapy are described. In the field of the different types of sexual behavior and their incidence, the work of Kinsey is of course monumental, and offers many valuable guides for comparisons between so-called normal and abnormal sex conduct

Collection of books for a small library on sex offenses has begun. It is planned to build up a small working library of important and basic books in the field. Subscriptions to several magazines on the subject have been sent in.

It is hoped to incorporate this review of the literature into a comprehensive survey of sex offenses, to be published later in monograph form. This study should cover the list of what comprises the important sex offenses, so far as the protection of society is concerned, what the various states and countries are doing about the problems, and what is so far known about their causes, treatments and prevention. Consideration of the survey, when it is completed, ought to point to neglected fields of exploration and to new and fruitful areas for further research.

6. General Executive and Administrative Setup

All the correspondence of the sex research unit, requisitions and ordering and checking of supplies are handled by a secretary-clerk. The work of ordering books and supplies for the sex research library and of maintaining this library is another duty. Under supervision, the secretary performs such varied clerical work as recording data, preparing reports and keeping extensive accounts. These include accounts of all general expenditures and other financial matters and records of the property of the sex research project.

Under direction, the secretary may write letters independently, meet the public and supervise small groups of clerical employees. Reports of state and university employees (except those in special projects), their working time and employment records, are kept by the secretary.

7. Research in Treatment of Homosexual Males (By the Department of Psychological Medicine, University of California, Berkeley)

The purpose of this research is to investigate such psychologic factors in homosexuality as the personal, familial, social and cultural histories of patients. Preliminary application of this method to a small group of homosexuals has demonstrated the practicality and worth of the study.

The methodology consists in verbatim recordings of all interviews with the patients, in order to avoid any distortion of the basic material. Study of an adequate number of patients would obtain useful facts that apply to large numbers of homosexuals. Previous studies have depended too greatly on intensive research of single cases. The same techniques would also be applied to a control group of nonhomosexuals. Comparisons between the two studies will thus allow compilation of useful data which apply only to male homosexuals Enough lines of approach will be used so as to cover the many different factors and their varying degrees of involvement.

A group of 30 homosexual men will constitute the study. Of these, 20 will be chosen from voluntary applicants at the clinic who wish treatment for homosexuality, and 10 will be selected from known homosexuals in the Bay area. For controls, 20 voluntary applicants to the clinic who present a random group of other personality problems will be chosen.

Data to be collected from all subjects will include a comprehensive personal history, together with a most detailed study of all possible family attitudes and interrelationships, as well as the social, economic and educational status of the subject and his family. Because many hints appear as to the possible role of political and religious systems of value, or the racial or national background and other related social traditions, these topics will be thoroughly investigated, almost for the first time.

Psychologic tests will include the standard projective tests such as the Rorschach Test and Thematic Apperception Test, and also techniques of playing games that allow personality peculiarities to emerge. These permit evaluation of personality trends. The Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory will be used as a standard means of helping to establish psychiatric diagnosis. A newer test which has great promise of distinguishing homosexuals from nonhomosexuals, regardless of the patient's wish to conceal his sexual tendencies, will also be used.

Thorough collection of these data upon a large enough number of cases would necessitate a three-year period of study, and would require a psychiatrist, two clinical psychologists, a half-time research assistant and a full-time transcriptionist.

Results of these studies should greatly add to the more accurate diagnosis of types of homosexuality and its treatment.

"SEC. 2. This act is an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety within the meaning of Article IV of the Constitution and shall go into immediate effect. The facts constituting such necessity are:

Sardines are a much relied upon foodstuff of the people of California, and the taking, processing and packing of sardines provide a considerable industry within this State. In recent years a disastrous decline of this fish has occurred to such an extent that many packing plants have closed down. The controlled taking of sardines from the waters is necessary for the undisturbed continuance of that industry and consumption, while taking for reduction purposes is not as necessary to the public as taking for packing. Any period of lowered restriction upon the extraction of sardines from the waters, no matter how short, could drastically deplete sardine schools and disrupt natural increases. Present legislation protecting sardines is due to expire June 1, 1951, and in order to continue the uninterrupted protection, it is necessary that this act take effect immediately."

1193.1. (a) Every original contractor claiming the benefit of this chapter, within 60 days after the completion of his contract, and every person save the original contractor claiming the benefit of this chapter, at any time after he has ceased to perform labor or furnish material, or both, for any work of improvement mentioned in this chapter, and until 30 days after the completion of such work of improvement, as a whole, may record with the county recorder of the county or city and county in which such property or some part thereof is situated a claim of lien containing a statement of his demand after deducting all just credits and offsets, the name of the owner or reputed owner, if known, a general statement of the kind of work done or materials furnished by him, or both, the name of the person by whom he was employed or to whom he furnished the materials, and a description of the property sought to be charged with the lien sufficient for identification; which claim of lien must be verified by oath of claimant or some other person

(b) In all cases, any of the following shall be deemed equivalent to a completion for all the purposes of this chapter: The occupation or use of a building, improvement, or structure by the owner, or his representative, accompanied by cessation from labor thereon, or the acceptance by the owner, or said agent, of said building, improvement, or structure, or cessation from labor for 30 days upon any contract or upon any building, improvement, or structure, or the alteration, addition to, or repair thereof; the filing of the notice hereinafter provided for.

(c) The owner shall within 10 days after the completion of any contract or work of improvement provided for in this chapter, or within 10 days after there has been a cessation from labor thereon for a period of 30 days, file for record in the office of the county recorder of the county where the property is situated a notice setting forth the date when the same was completed, or on which cessation from labor occurred, together with his name, address, and the nature of his title, and a description of the property sufficient for identification, together with the name of the original contractor, if any, for the work of improvement as a whole, or if the notice is given only of the work under a particular contract, then the name of the contractor under such contract, which notice shall be signed and verified by the owner or by some other person on his behalf

(d) The word "owner" as used in this section is hereby defined to mean the owner who caused the building, improvement, or structure to be constructed, altered, or repaired (or his successor in interest at the date a notice of completion or cessation from labor is filed for record) whether the interest or estate of such owner be in fee, as

(e) In case such notice be not so filed following the completion of all of a work of improvement done or made under one general contract, then all persons claiming the benefit of this chapter shall have 90 days after the completion of such work of improvement within which to record their claims of lien. If the owner has not made one general contract for the execution of the whole work of improvement, but has contracted with one or more persons for the execution of one or more parts or portions only thereof, and a notice of completion is not recorded within 10 days after the completion of any such particular contract, but a notice of completion is recorded for the whole work of improvement within 10 days after the completion of the whole work of improvement, then all persons claiming the benefit of this chapter shall have the same time in which to record their claims of lien as though their labor, materials or appliances had been applied to the work of improvement under one general contract for the whole thereof and not under a particular contract. If, however, in such case, no notice of completion is filed either within 10 days from the completion of the particular contract or within 10 days of the completion of the whole work of improvement, then all persons claiming the benefit of this chapter shall have 90 days after the completion of the whole work of improvement within which to record their claims of lien.

(f) In cases covered by Section 1184.1 where the improvement made or work done is subject to acceptance by any municipal board or officer, the time for filing claims of lien shall not commence to run until after such acceptance has been made.

(g) Any person who shall wilfully include in his claim of lien filed pursuant to this chapter work not performed upon, or materials or equipment not furnished for, the property described in such claim, shall thereby forfeit his lien."

In line 2 of the title of the printed bill, as amended in the Assembly on April 5, 1951, after the comma, insert "and to amend Section 19624 of the Business and Professions Code,".

Amendment No. 2

On page 1 of said bill, after line 24, insert

"SEC. 3. Section 19624 of the Business and Professions Code is amended to read:

19624. The first balance of the fund is hereby annually appropriated as follows: (a) 5 percent for payment to and use of those certain fruit fairs defined in Section 94 of the Agricultural Code, but not to district agricultural associations, district or county fairs, for the purpose of conducting and carrying on annually citrus fruit fairs and expositions to promote and encourage the citrus fruit industry of this State.

Of said 5 percent, one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) thereof is appropriated and allocated annually to those certain citrus fruit fairs and expositions defined in Section 94 of the Agricultural Code held in counties having a population in excess of 160,000 as shown by the last federal census, according to population, and if there be but one of such fairs held in counties having a population in excess of 160,000 then the whole of said one hundred thousand dollars ($100,000) is appropriated and allocated to and for the use of such citrus fruit fair. The balance of said 5 percent is appropriated and allocated to the citrus fruit fairs defined in Section 94 of the Agricultural Code (if any there be), held in counties having a population of less than 160,000 and to those other citrus fruit fairs and expositions in such counties having a population of less than 160,000 which have been conducted and carried on annually for not less than twenty years by nonprofit associations or corporations for the purpose of promoting and encouraging the citrus fruit industry of California; each such citrus fruit fair held in counties having a population of less than 160,000 shall receive fifteen thousand dollars ($15,000) each year. The balance of the 5 percent remaining after the foregoing appropriations and allocations shall revert to and become a part of said first balance of the fund.

(b) Forty percent for the encouragement of county, district, or combined county and district agricultural fairs (exclusive of the State Fair, the Los Angeles County Fair, the Sixth District Agricultural Association and citrus fruit fairs) to be apportioned by and expended under the supervision of the Department of Finance in the manner and for the purpose prescribed by Section 92 of the Agricultural Code and other applicable provisions of law but no such county, district or combined county and district agricultural fair shall receive a sum greater than sixty-five thousand dollars ($65,000) under Section 92 of the Agricultural Code in any one year ; provided, however, in any year in which one or more fairs are not entitled to an apportionment of sixty-five thousand dollars ($65,000) there shall first be tentatively allocated to each fair a sum equivalent to the total amount available for apportionment divided by the number of eligible fairs. If as to any fair or fairs this does not produce the amount to which it is entitled for premiums paid not exceeding the maximum base of allocation for that year there shall be allocated such additional amount as may be necessary to bring the amount allocated to each such fair up to the amount to which it is so entitled and the allocation to the other fairs shall be reduced accordingly.

If in any year the sum appropriated to county, district or combined county and district agricultural fairs under this section is less than two hundred twelve thousand one hundred seventy-two dollars and seventy-nine cents ($212,172.79), then during that year the apportionment to all fairs shall be made in the manner and upon the basis prescribed by Section 13 of Chapter 769 of the Statutes of 1933 and by Section 92 of the Agricultural Code."

PRAYER

The following prayer was offered by the Chaplain, Rev. Clarence A. Kircher:

O God, Light of the Hearts That See Thee. Life of all souls that love Thee, to whom to be turned is to arise and in whom to abide is to stand fast forever, we seek Thy presence for the duties of this day.

May we serve Thee with singleness of purpose that more and more, Thy will may be done in all the earth.

We pray for the President of the United States, the Governor of our Commonwealth, the Speaker of this Assembly, the members of this body, and all who are in places of responsibility in the State and Nation in these important days.

"Thou, too, sail on, O ship of State!
Sail on, O Union, strong and great!
Humanity with all its fears,
With all its hopes of future years,
Is hanging breathless on thy fate!
We know what Master laid thy keel,
What workman wrought thy ribs of steel,
Who made each mast, and sail, and rope,
What anvils rang, what hammers beat,
In what a forge and what a heat
Were shaped the anchors of thy hope!"

We pray in Jesus name—AMEN.

5050.4. Where a school district sells bonds after notice is given it that a portion of such district intends to withdraw pursuant to Section 1601.5, and such portion does withdraw within the time limit specified in such section, the district shall not be required to contribute toward the cost of any project approved under this chapter that amount of the proceeds from such sale that would be in excess of the amount of bonds that could have been legally sold by the district immediately after the withdrawal of such portion.

SEC. 2. This act is an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety within the meaning of Article IV of the Constitution and shall go into immediate effect The facts constituting such necessity are:

Under the existing law it is necessary for a school district applying for state school building aid to issue bonds so that its total outstanding bonds exceed 95 percent of the maximum amount allowed by law for school districts, which is 5 percent of the taxable property of the district. The proceeds of the bonds so issued must be applied to the project for which the district is seeking state aid. However, in some cases, after a district has sold the amount of bonds necessary to make it eligible for state school building aid, a portion of the district withdraws, reducing the amount of taxable property in the district to such an extent that, with the bonds sold by the district for state school building aid, the total amount of district bonds after the withdrawal exceeds the maximum which would have been allowed by law had the withdrawal occurred prior to the approval by the district electors of the amount of bonds so required to be issued and sold. If such a district is required to apply the proceeds of all the bonds sold to the project for which it is seeking state aid, the district will for many years be unable to raise money for district needs, however small, which are bound to arise and which other districts receiving state school building aid are able to meet with the margin of bonding capacity left after selling the bonds necessary for eligibility for the state aid. In order to cure such inequities, it is necessary that this act take effect immediately."

We look affectionately upon our Flag which has spoken so eloquently in peace and war, in liberty, and in justice. So may we ever be reminded of our individual privileges of patriotism.

"God bless our dear United States,
Preserve our land from evil fates,
Litt high her banner, fair and free,
And guard her bounds from sea to sea
Assailed by battle hosts of wrong,
God help our Country to be strong,
Assailed by falsehood's crafty crew,
God help our Country to be true
God hold the Nation's aim sincere,
God save her heart from coward's fear,
God prosper her in true success,
And crown her head with worthiness."

COMMUNICATIONS

By Speaker Sam L. Collins:

The following communication was received, read, and ordered printed in the Journal:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, DEPARTMENT OF NATURAL RESOURCES
DIVISION OF FISH AND GAME
SACRAMENTO 14, CALIFORNIA, April 11, 1951

Honorable Sam L. Collins
Speaker of the Assembly
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR MR. COLLINS: In accordance with the request contained in House Resolution No. 17, adopted by the Assembly on January 10, 1951, the Fish and Game Commission herewith submits its written report and recommendations dealing with the conditions which exist in the vicinity of the Mount Tamalpais Game Refuge.

During the recent decade, this refuge and the laws governing the hunting therein have brought many problems to the residents of the area and to the Fish and Game Commission as a result of an overpopulation of deer in that area. This problem has been made unduly severe by overlapping jurisdiction of law enforcement agencies in towns which are included in or adjoin the refuge.

We have issued a number of deer damage complaint permits to residents within and without the refuge in order to take care of deer causing depredations to truck and flower gardens. Of recent years this situation has become unduly extreme and as a result a request from residents of the area to hold a special season for the expressed purpose of reducing the number of deer in this area was submitted to us. Several sections of the Fish and Game Code, notably Sections 273 and 274, preclude the commission taking any action to allow regulated control of deer numbers in this refuge. After due investigation and consultation with residents of Marin County, we submit to you the following recommendations with respect to the problem:

Strike out all of Section 151 of the Fish and Game Code starting with the word "beginning" on line 3, and insert the following new definition of the area and boundaries of the Mount Tamalpais Game Refuge:

> "Beginning at the intersection of the Bolinas-Fairfax Road and the Marin Municipal Water District's road known as the Pipe Line Road; thence following Bolinas-Fairfax Road in a westerly and southerly direction along northerly boundary line to the intersection with westerly boundary of the lands of the Marin Municipal Water District; thence southwesterly along boundary line of the land of the Marin Municipal Water District to its intersection with Ridgecrest Boulevard; thence following said Ridgecrest Boulevard in a southerly and easterly direction along westerly and southerly boundary line to the intersection of Southside Toll Road; thence continuing on the Ridgecrest Boulevard in an easterly direction along southerly boundary line to the Marin Municipal Water District's road known as the Eldridge Grade, near East Peak; thence following said Eldridge Grade on an easterly, then northerly course of the southerly and easterly boundary line to the intersection of the Marin Municipal Water District's road known as the Shaver Grade Road; thence in a northwesterly direction along northeasterly boundary line to the intersection of the Marin Municipal Water District's aforesaid Pipe Line Road; thence following said road in a northwesterly course along northeasterly boundary line to point of beginning."

It is further recommended that the Legislature repeal Sections 272, 273, and 274 of the Fish and Game Code in order that the commission may meet this problem in accordance with the wishes of local residents of Marin County.

Respectfully submitted,

E. L. MACAULAY, Executive Officer

ANNOUNCEMENT

Speaker Sam L. Collins announced the improvement of Mr. Butters, who has been very ill, and expressed to Members of the Assembly the expectation of Mr. Butters that soon he will be able to return to his work in the Capitol.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT THAT COMMUNICATION BE PRINTED IN JOURNAL

Mr. Waters asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent that a communication from the State Franchise Tax Board be ordered printed in the Journal in 10 point type, as follows:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF FRANCHISE TAX BOARD
SACRAMENTO, March 27, 1951

Honorable Clarence C. Ward
Senate Chamber, State Capitol
Sacramento, California

DEAR SENATOR WARD:

RE: SENATE BILL NO. 176

It is understood some misunderstanding may have arisen concerning your proposal to amend Section 17015 of the Personal Income Tax Law.

Under the present section an individual who spends in the aggregate more than nine months of the taxable year within the State or maintains a permanent place of abode within the State is presumed to be a resident. The presumption may be overcome by satisfactory evidence that the individual is in the State for a temporary or transitory purpose. You propose to amend this section to eliminate the provision creating a presumption of residence because of the maintenance of a permanent place of abode within the State. No other provisions of the section are to be changed, and the presumption of residence in the case of a person who spends more than nine months of a year within the State will remain in effect.

Mere ownership of residential property within a State is not a proper basis for the establishment of a domiciliary or residential status therein, nor has this office ever attempted to tax an individual as a resident merely because he owns property in California. In effect the maintenance of a place of abode in California is merely one factor in a determination of the residence question. In addition it is necessary to show that the person actually lived in California for a substantial portion of the year.

It is understood that many individuals living outside the State and making occasional visits to California have been deterred from acquiring residential property in this State because by doing so they would under the present law be presumed to be residents without further proof of having spent any time in California. While the present law has this effect, it seems clear that such a result was never intended and in order to alleviate any fears such persons may have in acquiring California property it is believed advisable to eliminate this provision from the Act.

Very truly yours

JOHN J. CAMPBELL, Executive Officer

Amendment No. 3

On page 3 of the printed bill, after line 18, insert

"SEC. 8. Section 811 of said code is amended to read:

811. Cantaloupes shall be mature but not over-ripe, not poorly netted, and free from mold, decay, and insect injury which has penetrated or damaged the edible portion of the cantaloupe; and free from serious damage, due to bruises, sunburn, growth cracks, cuts, sponginess, flabbiness, wilting, or other causes. Damage to any one cantaloupe is not serious unless it affects the edible portion of the individual cantaloupe.

Not more than 10 percent, by count, of the cantaloupes in any one container or bulk lot may be below these requirements, but not to exceed one-half of this tolerance shall be allowed for any one cause.

Cantaloupes when packed shall be virtually uniform in size and there shall be the same numerical count of uniformly sized cantaloupes in each layer throughout the container.

"Mature" in the case of cantaloupes means that the appearance of the outside indicates maturity and the arils which surround the seed during the development of maturity have been absorbed and, in addition, that the juice of the edible portion shall contain not less than 8 percent soluble solids as determined by the Balling or Brix scale hydrometer In view of differences in climatic and other natural conditions prevailing south and east of San Gorgonio Pass, which result in the cantaloupes grown in that area having, at maturity, a higher percentage of soluble solids than the mature cantaloupes grown in the area north and west of San Gorgonio Pass, mature in the case of cantaloupes produced in the area south and east of San Gorgonio Pass, means, in addition to the maturity requirements herein specified, that the juice of the edible portion shall contain not less than 10 percent soluble solids, as determined by the Balling or Brix scale hydrometer or that the cantaloupes have been separated from the vine by a "full slip" which indicates full maturity on the vine.

All closed containers of packed cantaloupes shall bear upon them in plain sight and in plain letters on one outside end, the name of the person who first packed or authorized the packing of the cantaloupes, or the name under which such packer is engaged in business, together with a sufficiently explicit address to permit ready location of such packer. All containers of cantaloupes in which the pack does not conform to the standard pack provisions for cantaloupes in Section [829] 829 3 shall be conspicuously marked in letters not less than one-half inch in height "irregular pack."

SEC. 9. Section 828.55 of said code is amended to read:

828 55.	39 Standard cantaloupe crate	12	12	21⅞ or	22⅛
	40 Pony cantaloupe crate	11	11	21⅞ or	22⅛
	41 Jumbo cantaloupe crate	13	13	21⅞ or	22⅛
	42 Standard cantaloupe flat	4	12	21⅞ or	22⅛
	43 Special cantaloupe flat	4½	13½	21⅞ or	22⅛
	44 Special cantaloupe flat	5	14½	21⅞ or	22⅛

SEC. 10. This act is an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety within the meaning of Article IV of the Constitution and shall go into immediate effect The facts constituting such necessity are

Experimental use of cantaloupe containers with a slightly shorter length than now provided by law has shown that such crates can more efficiently be loaded into railroad cars and with less breakage of crates in transit In order to permit the use of crates with the shorter dimension for shipment of the current season's crop of cantaloupes most of which will be marketed prior to the time this act would otherwise become effective it is necessary that it take effect immediately "

Sec. 2. On January 1, 1952, and thereafter upon the establishment of a municipal or justice court, the judges or justices of existing courts inferior to the superior court in any city, township or judicial subdivision situated in whole or in part within the district or city and county for which a municipal or justice court is established shall, if [qualified] eligible, become and be the judges of such municipal or justice court until the election or appointment and qualifications of their successors as hereinafter provided. If, however, the number of incumbent judges or justices who are eligible to become judges of a municipal or justice court and who have not by written statement filed with the county clerk on or before December 30, 1951, disclaimed their desire to succeed to office exceeds the number of judicial offices provided by law for such municipal or justice court, said incumbents shall not automatically succeed to judicial positions in the municipal or justice court, and the existing courts shall continue to function within the district until the first judge or judges of said municipal or justice court shall be elected by the qualified electors of the district at the first general state election held following the expiration of 90 days and qualify.

Whenever the judge or justice of an existing court would be [eligible] entitled under the provisions of this act to become the judge of more than one court, he shall, by written statement filed with the county clerk on or before December 30, 1951, elect the judicial office to which he will assert his claim of eligibility. Failure to file such a statement shall be deemed an election by the judge or justice to assert his claim of eligibility to office in the court of the district wherein the existing court is located.

Sec. 3. On January 1, 1952, notwithstanding anything in this act to the contrary, the judges, officers and attaches of a municipal court heretofore established under the Municipal Court Act of 1925 shall become and be the judges, officers and attaches of the municipal court established for the city and county or district embracing the city wherein they were elected or appointed to serve until the election or appointment and qualification of their successors as hereinafter provided.

If there be annexed to a district or city wherein a municipal court is established and functioning, territory in which another court or courts inferior to the superior court are established, such other court or courts shall, on January 1, 1952, and thereafter upon any such annexation, cease to exist in the territory so annexed; and, if an additional judicial office or offices have been provided by law for the municipal court by reason of annexation of territory or increase in population, the incumbent judges or justices of the court or courts superseded in whole or in part shall, if qualified, automatically succeed to the additional judicial position or positions in said municipal court until the election or appointment and qualification of their successors as hereinafter provided. If, however, the number of qualified incumbent judges or justices of existing courts in the territory so annexed exceeds the number of additional judicial offices provided for said municipal court, said incumbents shall not automatically succeed to such additional offices, and the existing courts shall continue to function within the annexed territory until the first judge or judges shall be elected to the additional judicial position or positions in the municipal court at the first general state election held following the expiration of 90 days and qualify.

and attaches, and all other officers or employees of each court superseded in whole or in part by a municipal or justice court, shall become the clerk, his deputies and attaches, the marshal or constable, his deputies and attaches, and officers or employees of such municipal or justice court upon its organization, so far as such positions are provided by law. The judge or justice of an existing court who does not succeed to judicial office shall be deemed to be a clerk or chief clerical officer within the meaning of this section.

All such persons shall be deemed to be appointed upon the organization of the court and to have met all of the requirements for appointment to permanent positions as hereinafter provided and shall be removed only for the causes and in the manner provided for the removal of officers and attaches; provided, that when a constable who has been elected becomes a marshal, he shall continue in office until his successor is elected and qualifies, and in such cases the marshal shall be elected by the electors of the judicial district at the general state election for a term of six years from and including the first Monday in January after the first day in January next succeeding his election; provided, however, that the first election of marshals under this act shall take place at the general state election held in the year 1954; provided, further, that any police officer appointed and acting as bailiff in any court superseded by a municipal or justice court shall be deemed to be appointed ex officio a deputy marshal or deputy constable subject to the same conditions under which he shall have been first appointed, without prejudice, however, to his rights by virtue of his employment as such police officer; provided, also, that in any city or city and county having a consolidated city and county government, the sheriff of the city and county and his deputies shall be ex officio the marshal and deputy marshals of the municipal court and shall perform all the duties imposed and exercise all the powers conferred upon the marshal and deputy marshals of the municipal court; and provided, further, that persons succeeding hereunder to the office of constable of a justice court shall continue in office until their successors are elected or appointed and qualify as hereafter provided.

Upon the organization of the court, the clerks, deputies and attaches or employees of the superseded court or courts shall be assigned, as far as practical, to positions in the municipal or justice court similar in duties and compensation to the positions held in any such superseded court. Every person who succeeds to any office or position in the municipal or justice court by virtue of any of the provisions of this act shall be entitled to all of the benefits and privileges, not inconsistent herewith, which attached to such person by virtue of his office or position in any superseded court.

Whenever a special assignment or branch of work is indicated for a particular deputy or position in the clerk's or marshal's office, except that of custodian, the assignment so designated is not intended to be exclusive, but merely to designate the principal work incident to such deputy or position. In order to equalize the work of the office of the clerk or marshal and to render prompt and efficient service to the public, it shall be the duty of each deputy clerk, deputy marshal or attache to perform such service as may be directed by the clerk or marshal, whether the work so directed to be done be within the scope of the special designation or not.

SEC. 5. Section 8 of said act is amended to read.

Sec 8 Judges of the municipal court and justice court shall be elected at the general state election; provided, however, that the first election of judges under this act shall take place at the general state election held in the year 1952. There shall be elected at said election in 1952 successors to judges of a municipal or justice court who automatically succeeded to offices under the provisions of this act, except so far as other provision is made herein for judges who were incumbents of a municipal court established under the Municipal Court Act of 1925, and the first judge or judges of a municipal or justice court in which there was no automatic succession to office

The provisions of the Elections Code respecting the nomination and election of judicial officers are applicable to the judges of municipal and justice courts No judge shall be deemed to have qualified before the date fixed for the commencement of his term of office

The term of office of judges of municipal and justice courts shall be six years from and including the first Monday of January after the first day of January next succeeding their election. Judges shall hold office until their successors are elected and qualify, but the office shall be deemed to be vacant upon the expiration of the fixed term for the purpose of selecting a successor.

Nothing in this act shall affect the term of office of any incumbent judge of a municipal court heretofore established pursuant to the provisions of the Municipal Court Act of 1925, and if the time fixed for the election of his successor is at a time when no general state election is held, such judge shall continue to hold office until his successor has been elected and qualifies, said election to be held at the general state election next succeeding the expiration of his term.

Sec. 13. The judges of a municipal court and the judges, officers, and attaches of a justice court shall be electors of the judicial district or city and county in which they are elected or appointed[.] ; provided that this requirement shall not affect the right of any person to automatically succeed to an office or position under Sections 2, 3, and 4 of this act.

No person shall be eligible to the office of judge of a justice court unless he either has been admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of this State or has passed a qualifying examination under regulations prescribed by the Judicial Council, provided, that this requirement shall not apply to the incumbent of a superseded inferior court who succeeds to the office of judge of a justice court or is elected thereto at the first election of judges under this act or who seeks reelection to such office.

The reasons for the discharge shall be filed with the secretary of the court, or if there be no secretary of the court, with the clerk of the court, at least ten days before the discharge shall be effective. Upon the filing of the reasons, the person proposed to be discharged may be suspended from duty either with or without pay, pending his final discharge. The person against whom charges have been filed may within 10 days file his reply thereto. At the end of the 10 days the person shall be either reinstated or discharged unless an additional time for investigation is desired by the appointing officer. The determination of the appointing authority to discharge the person against whom charges have been filed shall be final and conclusive, except that nothing herein contained shall limit the right of any person to the benefits of the civil service provisions of the charter of the county or city and county wherein any such court is situated, or of the rules of the civil service commission having jurisdiction of such person, respecting suspensions and dismissals.

The clerk or marshal of a municipal court shall have the power to lay off and suspend a deputy or employee or deputies and employees because of lack of work requiring the service of existing personnel of the office or department. The clerk or marshal may also require a deputy or employee or deputies or employees to work temporarily in the office of clerk or marshal of another municipal court situated in the same county if a request for assistance has been made by such other court. The temporary assignment of a deputy or employee to the clerk's office or marshal's office of another municipal court shall not affect his compensation, except as provided in Section 32 of this act.

SEC. 8. Section 20 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 20. Marshals and constables shall attend all municipial and justice courts of the district in which they are appointed or elected to act whenever so required, and within their counties shall execute, serve and return all writs, processes and notices directed or delivered to them by municipal and justice courts or by other competent authority. A constable of a justice court, or a marshal of a municipal court who is authorized by law to appoint not more than four deputies shall not be required to travel outside of his district to serve any civil process or notice.

SEC. 9. Sec. 30 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 30. Each municipal court shall have such number of judges, officers and attaches, who shall receive such compensation, as the Legislature may provide.

Whenever provision is made by law for annual increments in the salary of an officer or attache of a municipal court, such annual increments shall be dependent upon the employee maintaining the minimum efficiency rating designated by the appointing authority and at any time the efficiency rating falls below the minimum standard the appointing authority shall have the power to suspend all or any part of the annual increments.

SEC. 10. Section 33 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 33. The marshals, assistants and deputies of municipal courts, except those designated [herein] as custodians, shall be allowed, in addition to their salaries, their actual and necessary incidental expenses incurred in the actual performance of their duties, including traveling expenses. At the option of the county board of supervisors, they may be furnished with automobiles at public expense or allowed traveling expenses at the rate per mile fixed by the board of supervisors for the operation of automobiles actually used in performance of their duty on public business or paid for such other method of transportation as they may adopt.

The deputy marshals serving as custodians shall be paid only for their actual services as keepers of property taken under legal process and shall be paid out of funds deposited by the parties to the action in which such services are rendered.

SEC. 11. Section 35 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 35. If an increase in business of any municipal court, or other emergency, shall require a greater number of employees for the prompt and faithful discharge of the business of such court than the number expressly provided by law, or shall require the performance of duties of positions in the lowest salary bracket where all such positions have been filled, the clerk or the marshal of such court, or both, as the occasion may require, may, with the approval of the judge or judges, appoint as many additional deputies as will enable them to promptly and faithfully discharge the duties of their respective offices.

Such additional deputies shall be selected in the same manner as those for whom express provision is [herein] made, and they shall receive compensation from the same source and in the same amount as the lowest salary provided by law for the position of deputy clerk or deputy marshal of such court, respectively, but may hold office by virtue of such appointment not longer than ninety (90) days after the adjournment of the next regular session of the Legislature. No deputy so temporarily appointed shall be eligible for reappointment under the provisions of this section

SEC. 12. Section 38 of said act is amended to read:

Sec. 38 In addition to the salaries, compensation and allowances provided [in this act], there shall be allowed to the marshal, constable, deputy marshals, and deputy constables the privilege and right to a pension or retirement annuity in the same manner and in the same amount and under the same terms and conditions as may have been or may be provided by law for county and township peace officers; provided, however, that no deputy marshal or constable shall be entitled to such pension or annuity unless he shall be actively employed in the performance of duties as deputy marshal or constable, and other employees, such as clerks, bookkeepers, stenographers or persons who may be appointed deputy marshal or constable but who do not perform the duties of such office, and persons holding honorary appointments as deputies but who receive no compensation therefor and who do not regularly perform official duties, shall not be included. The purpose of this provision is to recognize a public obligation to such marshal, constable, deputy marshals and deputy constables whose duties expose them to more than ordinary risk and this provision is designed to provide an additional element of compensation in consideration for the duties performed by such persons

Where there has been established or may be established a county and township peace officers' retirement or pension system, the marshal, constable, deputy marshals and deputy constables, as above defined, shall be included in such system and shall, for the purpose of carrying out this provision and enabling such municipal and justice court officers to benefit thereby, be deemed to be county employees for this purpose and the pension therein provided and payable to the marshal, constable, deputy marshals and deputy constables as herein provided shall be a legal charge against the county, subject to the provision of such county and township peace officers' retirement or pension system

The retirement annuity or pension provided by this section shall be granted to the persons therein designated only in the event that in the county where such municipal or justice court is located there shall have been established or provided, or shall be established or provided, a retirement annuity or pension for county and township peace officers who perform duties of the same character as those performed by the marshal, constable, deputy marshals and deputy constables"

House Resolution No. 120

Relative to congratulating Albert I. Stewart

WHEREAS, Albert I. Stewart was first elected to the Assembly in 1944 and has served continuously in this body since 1945; and

WHEREAS, He was Chairman of the Interim Committee on Governmental Efficiency and Economy, during which period he made several investigations and introduced and had passed such constructive and progressive legislation which has been of great benefit to the State, including his fight against smog; and

WHEREAS, He is Chairman of the Assembly Committee on Governmental Efficiency and Economy, and as such is continuing in his aid to the people of this State; and

WHEREAS, He was a Director of the League of California Cities for 12 years and is a former president of that organization, and has represented municipal government both in Sacramento and in Washington, appearing before legislative bodies therefor; and

WHEREAS, He coined the word "Safeway" and organized the Safeway Chain of Stores, serving at various times as Director, General Superintendent, and Public Relations Counsel for that organization; and

WHEREAS, He has been Director of the Department of Professional and Vocational Standards and the Public Relations Counsel for the Civil Defense Program; and

WHEREAS, He has served for 20 years as a member of the Board of City Directors of Pasadena, having been chairman of the board with the title of Mayor of Pasadena; and

Explanation of Vote on Assembly Bill No. 1018

We believe that Assembly Bill No 1018 providing that the abbreviations, Dem , Rep., Prog , Prohi, etc , be placed with the name of a candidate on the primary election ballot to indicate the candidate's party affiliation is a step in the direction of honest information to the voter.

We believe the voter would be better informed if the full name of the political party to which the candidate is affiliated were spelled out. We believe that the greatest possible service which could be rendered to the electorate in terms of straightforward honest information, would be passage of the initiative proposed by the people and presented to the 1951 Session of the Legislature repealing the cross filing provisions of the Elections Code.

Our Heavenly Father, We enter into Thy presence through the ever-open gateway of prayer.

We claim Thy blessed promise: "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in Him; and He shall bring it to pass."

"And all is well, tho' faith and form
Be sundered in the night of fear;
Well roars the storm to those that hear
A deeper voice across the storm."

In Jesus name.—AMEN.

FURTHER CONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL NO. 909

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the passage of Senate Bill No. 909:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
GOVERNOR'S OFFICE, SACRAMENTO, April 18, 1951

To the Honorable Members of the Assembly
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN:

Senate Bill No. 909, "An act relating to the Division of Architecture Revolving Fund, ratifying and confirming certain transfers thereto from the Wildlife Restoration Fund, the encumbrance of the money so transferred for projects under the Wildlife Conservation Act of 1947 and for expenses incidental to said projects, and the projects for which such money was encumbered, authorizing the expenditure of the moneys so encumbered, and declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

This measure seeks to clarify the position of contractors doing work for the State on fish and game projects in view of the question as to the status of the Wildlife Conservation Board. It is only technically an appropriation bill. In seeking to ratify existing contracts and to permit existing construction to continue, it should be considered at the earliest possible moment.

I therefore recommend consideration of Senate Bill No. 909 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted.

EARL WARREN, Governor

Senate Bill No. 909—An act to amend Section 14032 of the Government Code, relating to the Division of Architecture Revolving Fund.

PARTIAL REPORT OF INTERIM COMMITTEE ON AIR AND WATER POLLUTION

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

April 20, 1951

Hon. Sam L. Collins
Speaker of the Assembly
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

MR. SPEAKER: It is my pleasure to report to you and to the Members of the Assembly that favorable action has been taken by the Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service upon the request transmitted by Assembly Joint Resolution No. 4, adopted unanimously at the First Extraordinary Session of 1950.

That resolution asked that our State Water Pollution Control Board be designated the state water pollution agency of California for the purposes of the Federal Pollution Control Act. This was a matter of great importance because of the need for practical and effective coordination of our pollution control activities with those of the Federal Government.

Following adoption of this resolution, Mr. Geraghty, Secretary of our Interim Committee on Air and Water Pollution, conferred with officials of the United States Public Health Service in Washington, and at my direction he also presented this matter (along with others) to the President's Water Resources Policy Commission at their public hearings in Berkeley.

Early in this year the State Water Pollution Control Board transmitted to the Governor its own resolution supporting the request, along with an opinion and careful analysis of the matter prepared by Mr. Leonard M. Friedman in the office of the California Attorney General. The Governor added his request in transmitting the file to the Surgeon General.

In the attached letters we are now informed by General Warren T. Hannum, Chairman of the State Water Pollution Control Board, that this board has been officially designated as the single California agency through which the Federal Government will act on in matters relating to water pollution. This is a major forward step, in that it enables us to proceed in full cooperation with the federal officials in preparing the comprehensive plans provided in the federal law without conflict and with full protection of our established state policy. It will likewise assist to a large extent in administration of our research projects in these problems.

Respectfully submitted,

RANDAL F. DICKEY, Chairman
Interim Committee on Air and Water Pollution

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
STATE WATER POLLUTION CONTROL BOARD
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, April 19, 1951

Honorable Randal F. Dickey, Chairman
Assembly Interim Fact-Finding Committee
on Air and Water Pollution
Room 319, State Capitol
Sacramento, California

DEAR MR. DICKEY: General Warren T. Hannum has requested me to advise you, by means of a copy of the enclosed letter, of the designation by the Surgeon General of the United States Public Health Service on March 30, 1951, of the State Water Pollution Control Board as the "State water pollution agency" for California for the purposes of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (Public Law 845, 80th Congress).

Very truly yours,

VINTON W. BACON
Executive Officer

FEDERAL SECURITY AGENCY
PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE
WASHINGTON 25, D. C., March 30, 1951

MY DEAR GOVERNOR WARREN: This is to advise you, in response to your letter of March 15, 1951, that the State Water Pollution Control Board of California is hereby designated the state water pollution agency for California for the purposes of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act (Public Law 845, 80th Congress); the designation of the State Department of Public Health as such agency is hereby revoked.

In your letter of March 15th, requesting this action, you called our attention to Assembly Joint Resolution No. 4, passed by the California Legislature at its First Extraordinary Session of 1950, and the letter of the State Attorney General to the Chairman of the Water Pollution Control Board under date of February 7, 1951.

As you know, Section 10 (a) of the Federal Act states that:

"The term 'State water pollution agency' means the state health authority, except that, in the case of any state in which there is a single state agency, other than the state health authority, charged with responsibility for enforcing state laws relating to the abatement of water pollution, it means such other state agency;"

This definition requires that the state water pollution agency shall be the state health authority, unless the exception clause is applicable. The exception clause refers to that one agency in a State which has comprehensive powers for enforcing state laws relating to the abatement of water pollution. For such powers to be comprehensive, they must be broad and general, must cover the geographical area of the entire state to which the state pollution laws generally apply, and must be greater than those of any other agency in the state.

The California Attorney General, in his opinion of February 7, 1951, referred to above, expressed the view that the California water pollution control legislation of 1949, while in some respects dividing authority for water pollution control among different agencies, has established the State Water Pollution Control Board as a single state agency having an ultimate over-all power and responsibility for enforcing state laws relating to the abatement of water pollution in all parts of the State On this basis, the State Water Pollution Control Board meets the criteria of a state water pollution agency as defined in section 10 (a) of the Federal Act.

Sincerely yours,

/S/ LEONARD A. SCHEELE
Surgeon General

The Honorable
Earl Warren
Governor of California
Sacramento, California

258.1. Chauffeurs' Licenses for School Bus Drivers During Existing National Defense Emergency. Chauffeurs' licenses may be issued to persons 17 years of age or over permitting such persons to drive school buses.

SEC 2. Section 259.1 is added to said code to read:

259.1. Age of School Bus Drivers During Existing National Defense Emergency. It is unlawful for any person under the age of 17 years to drive a school bus transporting pupils to or from school.

SEC. 3. The sections of the Vehicle Code added by this act shall remain in effect until the ninety-first day after the final adjournment of the 1953 Regular Session of the Legislature or until the termination of the existing national defense emergency as evidenced by cessation of compulsory military service in the Armed Forces of the United States by citizens of this State, and as found and declared by proclamation issued by the Governor, whichever first occurs. While these sections are in effect they shall supersede any existing provisions of law which are in conflict with these sections; but such provisions are not repealed by these sections and after these sections are no longer effective shall have the same force as though these sections had not been enacted.

SEC. 4. This act is an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety within the meaning of Article IV of the Constitution and shall go into immediate effect. The facts constituting such necessity are:

It is the custom in many school districts to employ 18 and 19 year old student drivers of school buses. This custom results in the saving of about half the expense of operating such buses by employing as the school bus driver the student otherwise qualified living the farthest from the school on a particular route so that he may pick up other students on his route while he drives to school and discharge them on his return home. Because of the drafting, or imminent drafting, of 18 and 19 year old students in the present national defense emergency, it is becoming difficult to furnish adequate school transportation service, and the situation will be extremely critical in many school districts by the opening of schools this fall unless 17 year old student drivers can be made available by that time."

Opinion of Legislative Counsel

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, April 19, 1951

Honorable Ernest R. Geddes
Assembly Chamber

MOTION TO RE-REFER BILL FROM ONE COMMITTEE TO ANOTHER COMMITTEE—No. 7432

DEAR MR. GEDDES:

Question

You call our attention to Rule 81, which reads:

"A motion to withdraw a bill or resolution from committee, or to re-refer a bill or resolution from one committee to another committee may be made during the regular order of business. A motion to re-refer shall only be debatable as to the propriety of such reference, and shall require a recorded vote of a majority of the elected members.

"No bill or resolution shall be withdrawn from committee and placed upon the file except upon two days' notice thereof and except by a recorded vote of a majority of the elected members."

In this connection you ask:

"1. Does this language mean that the discussion is confined to whether or not the bill which is sought to be re-referred has been referred to the proper committee in the first instance, or may the debate go beyond such question?

"2. In determining whether a bill has been referred to a proper committee, would Rules of the Assembly or Joint Rules of the Assembly and the Senate determine whether a particular bill has been properly or improperly referred to a specific committee?

"3. With respect to the reference of bills to committee, is there any limitation as to the committee to which a particular bill may be referred and with respect to this limitation if it exists, what is its nature and extent?"

Opinion

1. The making of the motion does not authorize debate on the merits of the bill. The subject of debate is limited as to the propriety of the proposed re-reference.

2. The question of the appropriate committee to which a bill should be referred is determined by the Rules of the Assembly and the precedents established by that body.

3. We find no limitations in the Assembly Rules or in parliamentary practice as to the committee to which a bill may be referred or to the number of committees to which it may be successively referred except the requirement for the consideration of certain bills by the Committee on Ways and Means.

Analysis

As to the first question, the subject of debate is the propriety of re-reference of the bill to the second committee. The question is not whether the original reference was improper. It should be noted that except for the provisions of Rule 45, requiring certain bills to be referred to the Committee on Ways and Means, the Assembly Standing Rules do not impose restrictions upon original reference of bills. Rule 35 provides in part that immediately following its first reading the Speaker shall refer each bill to "a committee," unless upon motion the Assembly, by a majority vote of its entire elected membership, shall refer it to some other committee.

The practice of the Assembly of referring particular bills to particular committees is governed by precedent and custom and is not fixed by the Rules. Hence, the motion to re-refer a bill involves essentially the question as to whether the committee to which it is proposed to be re-referred is a proper one to consider the particular bill. Rule 81 specifically limits debate to the propriety of such reference and precludes discussion of the merits of the bill.

As to the second question, the only provision in the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly relating to standing committees of the houses is contained in Joint Rule 1, which provides that each house shall appoint such standing committees as the business of the house may require, the committees, the number of members and the manner of selection to be determined by the Rules of each house.

As stated above, the Standing Rules of the Assembly do not contain specific provisions regarding reference of bills to particular committees except with reference to the Committee on Ways and Means. While custom and precedent indicate that certain bills are normally referred to certain committees, the propriety of consideration of any bill by a particular committee is one reserved for determination by the House itself.

As to the third question, we find no limitations imposed upon reference of bills to particular committees nor any provision that would preclude the House from causing a particular bill to be considered by more than one committee.

Very truly yours,

RALPH N. KLEPS
Legislative Counsel
By LAWRENCE G. ALLYN, Deputy

in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

In making their financial plans for the next fiscal year school districts need to know as soon as practicable what revenue can be counted on. This is particularly true of those districts which have to meet the problems involved in coping with rapidly increasing enrollments Some of such districts are contemplating the calling of special elections to permit an increase in their tax rates because of the costs involved in meeting large increases in attendance The voters are entitled to know the base on which state apportionments will be paid when voting on such proposals, and the districts need the same information in determining whether or not to call such elections.

I therefore recommend consideration of Assembly Bill No. 2061 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted.

EARL WARREN, Governor

SECOND REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY INTERIM COMMITTEE ON PUBLIC EDUCATION

Letter of Transmittal

ASSEMBLY, CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE, April 24, 1951

Hon. Sam L. Collins
Speaker of the Assembly
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR MR SPEAKER: I herewith submit the Second Report of the Assembly Interim Committee on Public Education created by House Resolution No 242, 1949 Regular Session.

This report is confined to a description of the Cooperative Committee on School Finance, how it was organized, its membership, whom they represent, and the main purposes of the committee.

No recommendations are submitted at this time.

Respectfully submitted,

FRANCIS DUNN, JR., Chairman

Second Report of the Assembly Interim Committee on Public Education—HR 242

The meeting of the Assembly Interim Committee on Public Education was held in Room 426, State Capitol, August 4 and 6, 1950. Members present August 4th were:

Kirkwood, Levering, Rumford, and Dunn, Chairman

OPENING STATEMENT

Chairman Dunn opened the meeting stating that he had received a letter from Mr. Geddes, a member of this committee, informing the chairman that he will not be in Sacramento until this evening, and one from Mrs. Niehouse, vice chairman of the committee, stating that she will not be able to attend the meeting.

DUNN: There are now present at the meeting, Mr. Levering, Mr. Kirkwood, Mr. Rumford and myself, chairman. Mr. Kirkwood is in the building and will be here shortly. So, under those circumstances we will function as a subcommittee to take testimony on the matters that are before us Some matters that have been referred to the committee, I think we can dispense with until all members of the committee are present. I refer to the matters referred to the committee by the Legislature in regard to the San Diego and San Jose State Colleges and the question of a state college in Kern County and some letters that we have received from people interested in matters pertaining to public education. We should go right to the 10 items on the agenda with reference to the cooperative committee.

I THINK FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE MEMBERS OF THIS COMMITTEE AND THE MEMBERS OF THE LEGISLATURE WHO WILL, I HOPE, FOLLOW THE REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE, WE SHOULD CALL UPON SOMEONE TO DESCRIBE TO US THE FORMATION OF THE COOPERATIVE COMMITTEE, WHO IT CONSISTS OF AND WHAT ITS MEMBERS ATTEMPT TO DO.

MY OWN INFORMATION ON IT IS THAT I WAS REQUESTED TO ATTEND A MEETING CALLED BY THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION, DR. SIMPSON, IN SEPTEMBER OF 1947. I WAS PRESENT AT THAT MEETING ALONG WITH SENATOR DILWORTH, MR. WM. SCHMELZLE OF THE SENATE REVENUE AND TAXATION COMMITTEE AND OTHERS. WE WERE INFORMED THEN IT WAS THE PURPOSE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION TO FORM A COMMITTEE TO STUDY THE NEEDS OF PUBLIC EDUCATION, TO RETAIN SOME EXPERT PERSONNEL, AND TO PUT THE WHOLE FORCE OF THE EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM OF THE STATE BEHIND THIS EXPERT PERSONNEL FOR THE PURPOSE OF DEVELOPING INFORMATION ON THE NEEDS OF THE PUBLIC SCHOOL SYSTEM OF CALIFORNIA AND THAT WAS THE BEGINNING OF THE FORMATION OF THE COOPERATIVE COMMITTEE.

Several members of this interim committee, Mr. Kirkwood, and Mr. Geddes particularly, as well as myself, have attended many meetings of that committee and have been cognizant of what they were doing prior to the 1949 Session of the Legislature when the committee's efforts resulted in the program presented at that time in Assembly Bill No. 2120 and in the bills for re-organization of school districts; the question of equalization of local assessments; and several other things, so the major educational legislation that was before us in 1949 was in the main the product of that Cooperative Committee. The Cooperative Committee is still in existence, and I would like to call on Mr. Hogan, Deputy Superintendent of Public Instruction who is here in the absence of Doctor Simpson to describe to this committee how the Cooperative Committee was actually formed, and what is being done at the present time. Afterwards, I will call on Mr. Arthur Corey, who is the representative of the California Teachers Association to supplement what Mr. Hogan has to say. Mr. Hogan . . .

THE COOPERATIVE COMMITTEE ON EDUCATION

HOGAN: Mr. Chairman, and members of the committee, my name is George Hogan, State Department of Education. The Cooperative Committee, as Mr. Dunn has stated, was planned for in 1947. In March, 1946, a year prior to that time, there was a meeting called to discuss the various problems which should be considered by school administrators with reference to the equalized distribution of the State Apportionment Fund and to discuss with school superintendents; representatives of all of the professional organizations; the Parent Teachers Associations and others, the problems involved in financing public education. This device was a very effective one in ironing out a lot of controversial problems and issues, involved in preparing recommendations to the Legislature in the form to become legislation which would guide the apportionment of the funds for public education. The Cooperative Committee as such was appointed at its first meeting, February 4, 1948, and it was truly as the committee name indicates, a cooperative one, one which the State Department of Education and the California Teachers Association jointly planned for. Representing the State Department of Education there are six people on the Cooperative Committee. Representing the California

Teachers Association there are six people; representing the State Educational Associations there are 10, and I thought you might be interested in knowing just what associations are represented in this committee They are,

The Association of California County Superintendents.
The California Association of Adult Education Administrators.
The California Association for Childhood Education.
The California Association of Public School Business Officials.
The California Association of Secondary School Administrators.
California Congress of Parents and Teachers.
California Elementary School Principals Association.
California Junior College Association.
California School of Trustees Association.

The members at large are representative of city districts; rural districts; large districts and small districts. There are 14 representatives at large. That totals on the committee itself, 36 members. In addition to the members of the committee there have always been invited those people who have been active in professional organizations that were concerned with financing public education, and also Members of the Assembly Education Committee and Senate committees have been invited to attend the meeting.

Superintendent Simpson serves as chairman of the meeting. Mr. Frank Wright, Associate Superintendent, serves as vice chairman. Meetings of the committee have been called by the Superintendent when the need has arisen. Prior to the convening of the Legislature, when changes were considered necessary in the apportionment bill, there have been meetings at which time this group of people have discussed the various phases of the Apportionment Bill, and it has from the very beginning and up to the present time been a cooperative type of committee, each member trying to understand the other fellow's problems and to come out with some type of recommendation to the Legislature which they all could stand behind.

The last meeting of this committee was held just last month and the most of the business at that particular time was taken up in considering the bill that passed the last Legislature, Assembly Bill No. 65, and the effects it would have when financing public education for this current year. Are there any questions that you gentlemen have? I believe I have stressed on the formation and who are members of the committee. Are there any additional things, Mr. Dunn, you believe I should have brought out?

DUNN: One question I might ask, in addition to the people invited, who were representatives for the professional administrative point of view did you ever invite, for instance, representatives of Taxpayers' Association, Chambers of Commerce, Labor organizations, and so on.

HOGAN: Not to my knowledge, Mr. Dunn. I know the Legislators, Assemblymen and Senators, those particularly on the Education Committee have been invited, but I do not believe there were others representing those other groups invited to sit with the committee.

DUNN: I seem to recall that Mr. Alden Fensel (Director of Research, California State Chamber of Commerce, S. F.) was present at some meetings.

HOGAN: Yes, Mr. Fensel has been present, that's true.

DUNN: In other words if they came they were welcome. Who voted on the decisions that were made?

HOGAN: The people, the 36 members I enumerated; six from the State Department of Education, six from the California Teachers Association; the 10 representing the professional organizations, and the 14 from at large were the voting members of the committee.

DUNN: Any members of the committee have any questions now? (No further questions) Well then, suppose we hear from Mr. Corey to supplement what Mr. Hogan just said and then we can ask questions from both of them. (To Mr. Kirkwood entering the meeting.—Mr. Dunn stated that Mr. Hogan had just given us a brief outline of the formation of the Cooperative Committee)

COREY: My name is Arthur F. Corey, Executive Secretary of the California Teachers Association. In supplementing the answer to the immediately previous question, regarding voting in the Cooperative Committee, I would like to add that in all of the activities of the committee the idea has been prevalent that the purpose of the committee was not just to decide things by majority votes but was rather not to accept the decision until we could find a meeting of the minds that would be pretty unanimously accepted. On any committee involving state-wide participation with 36 members, it is obvious that all 36 are not present at any one meeting. We would have normally in attendance 30-31 people up to 36 and we always have operated on the rule which is a rule of the committee that no motion can be passed without 21 affirmative votes which means it is essentially a two-third's vote.

I would like to go back for a minute to supplement what Mr. Hogan had to say about the formation of the committee. In December, 1947, following the initial application of the constitutional amendment which provided $120 per child on A.D.A. of state funds, the original application of that amendment in the distribution of those funds followed a pattern which was recommended by Doctor Strayer in a study which was set up under funds which were appropriated by the Legislature.

DUNN: We had better clarify that now, Mr. Corey, and say the study was set up under funds appropriated by the Legislature in the Special Session of 1944 and the distribution of state funds on an equalization basis was made effective by legislation, passed in 1945.

COREY: All right . . . .

DUNN: . . . . so that we don't get confused with the other 1947-48 Strayer Report, which is confusing enough in itself.

COREY: The point I wanted to make, I believe, Mr. Chairman, is still essentially true—the work was done under funds provided by the Legislature. By December, 1947, it had become obvious that that plan was not adequate The State Council of Education, which is the representative group composed of representatives of the whole profession in this State and is the legislative group of the California Teachers Association, passed a motion requesting the State Superintendent of Public Instruction to set up a state-wide committee; there were no stipulations with regard to how it should be done,—how big it should be or who should be on it, but that the committee should be set up by the Superintendent to make an adequate study over a long term basis of the financial needs of the public schools and to be prepared at the appropriate time to report.

I met with Dr. Roy Simpson at his request, and we set up the skeleton of the committee as it was described to you by Mr. Hogan. The only direct representatives of the California Teachers Association on that committee through the intervening years have been the six persons representing our Finance Committee, and I should like to emphasize, the character of our personnel. I was named as one of the members. John Alltucker, Superintendent of Schools of Vallejo; Emmett Barry, Superintendent of Schools of Porterville, who by the way, is still a member of the committee representing the California Teachers Association although now he is a member of the State Department of Education staff; Dr. Will Crawford, Superintendent of Schools San Diego; Charles S Morris, District Superintendent of the San Mateo Junior College district; Dr. C. C. Trillingham, County Superintendent of the Schools Los Angeles County.

Those were the people—have been the people who have represented the California Teachers Association on this committee through all of this time.

DUNN: They are all administrators . . . .

COREY: Yes. They are all administrators.

DUNN: They are in effect, employers rather than employees . . . .

COREY: That is right. Although, in the total make-up of the committee there were, I think, four classroom teachers and have been through the years. This committee has been essentially a committee of administrators and there is a reason for that. Because administrators by training and experience are the people working in the Public School System who had been trained—know something about school finance They are the people most capable in our profession of sitting together and working out plans of financing the schools.

That emphasizes too that, the California Teachers Association is a kind of organization which represents the whole profession—represents classroom teachers—represents supervisors—administrators—all those who work in the public school professionally. Then the organization representatives were not chosen by the committee, by Doctor Simpson or by the California Teachers Association. They were chosen by the organizations they represent. And through the intervening years there has been some change in the personnel. In other words, some of those, one of them I recall at the moment, the California Association of School Administrators, has changed at one time its representatives from the committee, and I think one or two others have done so Then we come to the members at large. I believe there were 14 named as was said by the previous Speaker—those were jointly selected by the Board of Directors of the California Teachers Association, but all subject to the approval of Doctor Simpson.

I should also like to emphasize that the principal participation of the California Teachers Association in this committee has been to pay the bill. You don't get 36 people from all areas of this big State together frequently without somebody paying their expenses to come. Many of the members of the committee have had their expenses paid by the organizations they represent. But those members of the committee for whom there was no other way to pay their expenses, the California Teachers Association has always done so.

Then, during the first year and half or two years of the operation of the committee it was felt necessary, as it will in the future if the committee continues, to have the best available assistance in the way of counseling that we could obtain in the United States.

For about fifteen or eighteen months, we had the services on a part-time basis of Dr. John Norton, Teachers College, Columbia University, a native of California, and Dr. Lawler of Northwestern University. I should like to state here that for the record, in order that there be no misunderstanding that during those months of operation of the committee, the California Teachers Association invested something over $13,000. Not only in the expense of holding the meetings, but in the payment of the consulting fees to these two men who did the work.

I want to emphasize at the same time that at no time were the consultants or the committee responsible to the California Teachers Association for what they did. So far as the California Teachers Association is concerned, any pronouncement or recommendation of the Cooperative Committee has not become a recommendation or a policy of the California Teachers Association unless it were subsequently approved after discussion by our Finance and Legislative Committees and by our State Council of Education.

This is a group in which we have participated, which we have helped finance for the good work they could do, and for the advantage of the facts they could work out which could not be worked out in the very nature of things by the type of committees which we are able to have from our council.

Now I think several of you, if not all of you, present have seen the first report, which was issued in January, 1949, of the Cooperative Committee upon which was based recommendations to the Legislature covering the two general areas. First, the school building construction aid, and, second, general state aid for the program of the public elementary and secondary schools, namely, the Apportionment Bill. That study was divided into many, many subdivisions which I will not take time to go through. Rather I think it would be better for me to take a few minutes you perhaps are willing to give to this, to outline some of the areas of study which seemed to appropriate to the committee in their meeting last month which they are undertaking at the moment and which should be available this fall. There has considerable time elapsed, 20 months, since the first report. Therefore, some of the facts in the report, some of the statistics, some of the recommendations, in the opinion of the committee, are no longer good—they are no longer authentic because facts and conditions have changed.

Therefore, at the last meeting a month ago, the committee undertook a new program of study with the assignment of these areas of research to various agencies equipped to do the work. I'll go over the program briefly.

I might say that that's exactly the way the committee has always worked The committee has not, except during the few months when we had available the two experts I mentioned,—has not had a staff—a paid staff to work. The individual studies have been assigned to agencies existing with research staffs, and then have been reported back to the committee and consolidated into those reports which the committee has issued. The first program of study being undertaken, and it is already under way, has been assigned to the California Association of School Administrators. They have appointed some months ago, a special committee to undertake this study, and I might say the personnel of that committee largely duplicates the personnel of the Cooperative Committee. I mean some of the members of the Cooperative Committee are on that committee of the CASA,—they have retained for the purposes of advising them on this study, Doctor Morphet of the University of California, a man who only recently came to the University of California and who has had rather wide experience in the United States in consultation with states and with school districts on the matter of school finance programs.

The character of this first study is this. It is, to undertake not in terms of someone's idea, but in terms of actual cost at the moment—to arrive at a defensible foundation program for the elementary and secondary school. By a foundation program I mean simply this. A program which would be defensible as a minimum program of educational opportunity in any district in the State for the children of California. What that program should be—what is defensible to be in it, and if we had that kind of a program for a child in any school district in this State, what that program would cost at the elementary level and at the secondary level—that means elementary schools, highschools and junior colleges. That's the first area of study which is under way.

DUNN: Mr. Corey. Could you identify this California Association of School Administrators? Who is eligible for membership in that?

COREY: Any person serving in a administrative capacity in the public schools. Elementary school principal, high school principal, superintendent, county superintendent, city superintendent. Does that answer your question, Mr. Dunn?

DUNN: Yes.

COREY: The second area of study being undertaken is an attempt to isolate in the educational program what is going on in the State at the present time. Those elements of service and expense which might be interpreted as not being directly educational. There is a feeling on the part of some of our school people, on the part of many of our parents and taxpayers that there are many things going on in the public schools, although they may be very good in themselves, which are being directly charged against education which primarily, are not educational but some of them are other worth while public functions. We might call them community services.

I might give a few examples of what such services are. We have many school districts where cooperative programs of community recreation have been worked out between the district and the city. Where, under the joint support of the school district and the city there is a recreational program which operates not only during the school year on the school ground, but uses the school facilities for a public recreational program in the summer time. Now that expense is charged against the schools, that portion which the school district are paying. We might call it a recreational expense. Many school people feel that it is not an expenditure which ought to be directly charged against what we are calling a foundation program of minimum educational opportunity for the children. Then we have the Civic Center Act. An act very good in itself which provides that the school buildings are to be made available for all sorts of community uses, not directly connected with the school. An act which within itself being good, still does charge against the school district, considerable expense which shown in any report of educational expenditures is charged back against the expense per pupil for operating the schools and has nothing directly to do with the instruction of the child each day during the school year.

Then we have the child care centers Child care centers are now being supported by the State and to some extent by local school districts. Those expenditures being reported by the school districts, tend to reflect in what appear to be increased costs for the regular educational program; driver education is an example of the new element of the school program at the high school level which has been introduced by law, by action of the Legislature, teaching these children who wish to learn how to drive. Very good!! We have no criticism of it, but is not the kind of thing which we normally have considered to be a part of the foundation program of the high school. So this Number Two item, in the present study, is going to attempt to isolate in the schools of the State those items of expenditure which normally have not been considered to be direct education but rather community services,—see how big they are—see how much they reflect themselves in the apparent increased cost of education We may find that a considerable segment of the apparent increased cost in the operation of the schools is because of those services which are being rendered to the community in general.

KIRKWOOD: Mr. Chairman, may I ask Mr. Corey a question?

DUNN: Mr. Kirkwood.

KIRKWOOD: Mr. Corey, what consideration is being given along that line to the adult education program and the use of that as a means of building up ADA and the outside services that are being performed in that program that may not be strictly educational?

COREY: I couldn't answer that question in terms of this specific study.

KIRKWOOD: Well, will it be included? That's all I wanted to know.

COREY: I believe it was mentioned in that meeting as being a part of the program but it certainly can be included.

KIRKWOOD: You have an offsetting factor there of means that has been discovered of getting more money apparently for some districts, I'm wondering shouldn't come along at the same time perhaps . . . .

COREY: I might say that this particular study,—because the facts and figures in the analyzing of the individual district budgets for this study are in possession of the State Department of Education. They have been asked to have ready for us at our next meeting, some analysis of this particular problem.

Number Three problem has to do with revenues which are available for school districts other than State and district funds. For a long time there has been some money available to some school districts from sources other than their own district taxation and State funds. There are other, newer sources which have developed in recent years. This study has also been undertaken by the State Department of Education. We are going to try to arrive at whether or not these other sources of funds are significant enough that they should be taken into consideration in our overall plan for the distribution of state aid.

The first of these funds I might mention,—and these are merely illustrative, are the funds which for many years have been available from the Federal Government to assist in the education of Indian children in those districts where there are poor Indian children. Then we have others which came up only in recent years. Certain types of property operated by the Federal Government, if those properties are deemed to be in competition with private business,—such as housing projects. The Federal Government makes a payment which would be considered in lieu of a tax payment they would make if they were subject to taxation. And in some school districts where such projects are extensive, there is considerable money available in that field. There are limited funds available in some of our rural areas because of the money which is derived from the Federal Government for grazing of cattle on public lands, that is, on federal lands. Then in recent years, since the war, particularly, in some of the junior colleges there has been made available, considerable money in the form of tuition for students who are being educated under the GI Bill of Rights. Those are some illustrations of these particular types of income from other than state and local taxes, an analysis of which, so far as I know, has never been made in total for the school districts of the State.

DUNN: Now, may I interrupt Mr. Corey?

An offsetting factor there might also be considered, with reference to—let us say, state or federally owned property which houses children going to the public schools. The Ione situation is what I had in mind particularly, where a large number of the children going to the school in that particular district are housed in state-owned buildings, state-owned residences, where the people working at Ione live, and from which no income is derived to the local school district. Is that to be considered also in that study?

COREY: I don't believe that the problem of children residing on state-owned property was mentioned. The problem however, of large numbers of children who are residents in local school districts because of federal activity has been mentioned and contemplated for study,—that is part of this program.

DUNN: There are only a few isolated instances it is true, but they are very definite handicaps to the development of a program in a district where the State operates an institution like Ione.

COREY: It might be of interest to the committee to know too that the so-called Bailey Bill HR 7940, (now Public Law 874 approved September 30, 1950) has passed the House and it is considered probable it will pass the Senate which attempts to do something about this particular problem you brought up in those areas where the federal activity has borne heavily on the local school district. That bill would assist materially in a place like Mariposa County where the federal employees of the Park Service living in Mariposa County compose a very significant segment of the whole school population of the county. And yet although a large area of that county is owned by the Federal Government the Federal Government makes no contribution at all. That bill would provide for a contribution on the part of the Federal Government to assist in the education of those children. There is some hope therefore in the immediate future there will be some relief for this problem as regard to the Federal Government.

KIRKWOOD: Now Mr. Corey, as far as the state contribution is concerned, the Cooperative Committee's study would develop, if you went into it, that, if you have proper program of equalization and an adequate foundation program, that as far as the State is concerned, it pretty much equalizes itself out, to see just how far it does equalize is important.

COREY: As far as the foundation program . . . .

DUNN: I think the point that Mr. Lindsay intended to make in his bill (AB 67 in the 1949 Session) with reference to the Ione situation, and to my mind it would seem quite pertinent, is that there is nothing left beyond the foundation program—the spread between whatever is the local tax and the maximum tax such as is available to other districts is not available in situations like that.

COREY: Of course if we were to assume in the first place, and I assume that Mr. Kirkwood in his question meant that, even if the foundation program were adequate and could be defensible as being adequate, then it would pretty much take care of itself May I go on to the next problem?

DUNN: Yes, proceed.

COREY: The next problem has to do with an analysis of the tax structure of this State as it compares to other states And I might say that this attempt will be the first attempt on the part of a professional group representing education to get into the study of tax purposes. We have felt, and the Cooperative Committee felt in it's last meeting, although the Cooperative Committee previously has not undertaken any study of this kind, that with the best available assistance and facts we can get, we must be prepared to understand what the tax structure in this State is, whether it is distributing the tax load relatively equally and with fairness and how it compares to the tax structure in other States, and that problem was assigned to the Research Department of our organization, the California Teachers Association.

DUNN: Are there questions on that before we go on? (no questions).

COREY: The next problem has to do with population One of the principal studies involved in this original report was a very difficult study and one which our Research Department in the California Teachers Association worked on for months. It had to do with an attempt to project into the future the school population of this State. And it is a different sort of study than just a plain population study. There have been many studies made which attempted to estimate, as of a given time, how much the total population of California would be.

But to break that down and say how many of the 13 million who may be here in 1960 would be in the first grade, for instance, is a different problem entirely and quite difficult. That attempt was made of this study, I think with relative success, the best methods statistically that could be found from study were used. Now, this next project in the immediate future, and it has also been assigned to Dr. Kenneth Brown of our Research Staff because he is the man who has given most study to this problem, is to try and bring those figures up to date. In line of what's actually happened in the State in the last two years,—what corrections must we apply to those original estimates in the report to make the figures accurate for today,—the best estimate we can give.

Problem Six has to do with an attempt to analyze the whole program of service now being rendered by the offices of the county superintendent of schools. That means both the services which we call supervision of instruction in those schools of under 300, or under 900, and also those programs of service which have been financed in recent years out of what we have called the County Service Fund. Those funds being apportioned by the State, and coming from the State, this will be undertaken by a Joint Committee of the School of Administrators Association and the County Superintendents Association.

Number Seven is a further study of the whole problem of trying to arrive at a reasonable and workable method of taking care of the growth in enrollment situation. A study of whether or not the legislation enacted by the 1950 Session is going to,—reasonably meet the need? Whether it is adequate? Whether it isn't—if it isn't, what would be adequate.

And the last problem set up for study is a continuation of the study which has been going on for a number of years on district organization. It is the feeling of the Cooperative Committee that it will be utterly impossible for us ever, so long as we have anything like the present district organization in this State to disregard district organization when we are studying school finance. There are the two problems that are tied together just as surely as can be. The possibility of setting up a separate foundation program for unified districts was discussed by the committee and will be a part of this study as to whether it will be feasible.

Many of our states, a State like New York for instance, where they don't face the problem we face at all, with a given community having two school boards, one for elementary and one for high and with a completely different administration, and a different school finance set-up for elementary schools and for high schools. They have their foundation programs set on the basis of what we would call a unified district. A foundation program to cover the whole program from the first to the twelfth grades. And, as I said a minute ago, the second aspect of that continuing study on district organization is a study of those items where the method of distributing state funds impinges directly on the character of the organization we find at the local district level, it's perpetuation, it's abolition, a study of what is going to happen to the present district organization because of the way we distribute funds.

Now that is a listing You will note two of the problems I have put as sub-problems under two of the major ones, so there are eight major problem areas, two of the original problem areas being included as subareas in these eight. There is the program upon which the Cooperative Committee is embarked at the moment, how long it will take to get these facts we do not know, some of these areas are tremendous areas, but each one has been assigned to a particular agency for work and will have preliminary reports at the meeting of the Cooperative Committee, I believe, it is the thirtieth of August, a meeting to which I am sure the members of this committee will be invited.

KIRKWOOD: Mr. Chairman.

DUNN: Mr. Kirkwood.

KIRKWOOD: Mr. Corey, I would think it would be much more useful for our consideration of the program later, which I think is the end, the purpose of this material—if it could be prepared in such a way that it would be brought before us so that our Legislative Auditor or some representative of this committee as a Legislative Representative would understand it, would know that the facts he wanted to see were there. Would it be possible and helpful at this stage of the game to have someone, I would think from the Legislative Auditor's office, check the material that is being developed, or the manner in which it is being developed, and they have a chance to say what the purposes of the development are, so that we are sure we are collecting all the useful material; I would think it would be very desirable, particularly on your population study for example.

COREY: As far as our organization is concerned and these studies which have been assigned to us, I am sure that that would be perfectly possible between now and September, but there being no meeting of the committee between now and, well it's about three weeks from now, and these reports at this next meeting will be very preliminary, and I am sure that after that there will be plenty of time . . . .

KIRKWOOD: . . . . a preliminary report of that sort is almost necessary to determine what final course of the study is going to take. But, I would think at that time if the Legislative auditor or if the committee felt that someone else should do it, someone else have a part in determining the way in which the material is to be developed and presented.

RUMFORD: My question, Mr. Corey, just how far will the State Department of Education go in formulating these policies and the program after this preliminary study has been made.

COREY: I'm not sure whether I understand just what you mean. But if you mean by the State Department of Education formulating the policy, will there be specific legislation drawn as a result of some of these studies . . . .

RUMFORD: . . . . as a result of this study. Then who compiles it and says, well, this particular group has a certain end point somewhere and from that point it will be given to the Legislature to formulate the bills, etc.

COREY: WELL, OF COURSE I THINK WE SHOULD ADMIT IMMEDIATELY THAT THE ULTIMATE OBJECTIVE OF ALL OF THIS IS NECESSARY AND DESIRABLE LEGISLATION. ANYTHING UPON WHICH WE CAN GET 21 OR MORE VOTES IN THE COOPERATIVE COMMITTEE, WHICH THAT COMMITTEE FEELS SHOULD BE SUBMITTED IN LEGISLATION. I SUSPECT THAT THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION WOULD FEEL BECAUSE THEY HAVE HAD SUCH A LARGE PART IN THE FORMULATION OF IT IN THE COMMITTEE IN THE LEGISLATION TO BE INTRODUCED.

DUNN: Mr Corey. Was that true of the legislation which was presented in 1949, in Assembly Bill 2120 for instance?

COREY: Yes. I think we should say it was. AB 2120 was as exactly as we could make it, the recommendation of the Cooperative Committee as to what should be introduced. After the Cooperative Committee agreed on it, it was drafted by the state department into legislation,— was subsequently approved by our organization (California Teachers Association) so that we pushed it in the Legislature. AB 2120 was the result of the recommendation of this Cooperative Committee Does that answer your question?

And I would suspect that any of these items on which we find sufficient meeting of the minds, and by that I mean not just a majority vote but a real meeting of the minds in that group, as being a feasible answer to any one of these problems, it probably would be drafted into legislation. And I should like to emphasize at this point, that it is not easy to get a meeting of the minds on any one of these problems. If I went over the personnel of the committee, person by person, describing to you the type of school situations represented by that person you would see how difficult it is in a State with the variety of school situations we have, to find methods of financing the schools which will be satisfactory, for instance, to Los Angeles City and which can still be supported by a rural high school district in Inyo County.

DUNN: Now Mr. Corey, that is one of the reasons I wanted Mr. Hogan and you here, because Mr. Kirkwood and myself have seen the disparity of opinion between various types of school organizations, some of us just say educators, and think they are all alike.

I would like to refer back to this question of the county superintendents' program and suggest that under the study of the county superintendents' program of service special attention be given to the money that is now allocated for supervision of instruction in districts of less than 300 ADA and of less than 900 ADA because of the criticism of that particular item of expense because some counties have a large number of districts of that character and consequently receiving what seems to be an inordinate amount of money for supervision of instruction.

I hope the Cooperative Committee is going to study that question. I think it is one of the weak spots at the present time in financing public education. It should be better balanced than it is.

KIRKWOOD: May I ask one more thing Mr. Corey?

DUNN: Mr. Kirkwood.

KIRKWOOD: I don't know whether I read something into Mr. Dunn's question there a minute ago that wasn't intended. The recommendations were those of the Cooperative Committee rather than the Department of Education. Now as I understand it, the Department of Education does have representation on the Cooperative Committee . . .

COREY: Six members.

KIRKWOOD: Six members. I have sensed at times at least on the part of certain members of the Department of Education, that they felt bound by the findings of the Cooperative Committee even though they were actually in the minority there. Now I don't know that that is too healthy a thing for a department of State Government or a too healthy a way for a department of State Government to act.

I think I sensed in Mr. Dunn's question, whether the department also independently recommended this bill as its recommendation, and I am wondering whether it shouldn't be in a position to make an independent representation or recommendation without any feeling of overruling in which it was a minority member.

COREY: Of course I would prefer the department answer that question themselves. However, I would make a comment on it for whatever it is worth. This is just my opinion. My opinion is, so long as we have a Department of Education headed by a man who is politically elected you will always have a situation where the department will be unwilling to come out on any matter as controversial as an apportionment measure,—unless they have already gone through the machinery of assessing pretty well whether or not it will meet the general approval of some large group representative of the whole profession. Therefore, probably under the present set-up a type of thing such as the Cooperative Committee is about the only feasible method of getting a strong recommendation from a group such as the Department of Education so long as it is set up as it is at the present time.

KIRKWOOD: I agree with you. There isn't much difference in the long run, but I am wondering . . . .

COREY: . . . . looks better on paper.

KIRKWOOD: . . . . Might not look better.

RUMFORD: Mr. Chairman, I just wanted to say something about responsibility there in that particular case. Where does the responsibility lie?

COREY: If the Department of Education and the Superintendent of Public Instruction makes a definite recommendation to support a bill the responsibility rests with them no matter who originated the bill or how it was developed, certainly.

LEVERING: Mr. Chairman.

DUNN: Mr. Levering.

LEVERING: Mr. Corey, going back to the make-up of this Cooperative Committee. Mr. Hogan testified a while ago something about these 14 members at large. Can you tell us who these 14 members at large are? I don't mean their name,—what do they represent.

COREY: By telling you the kind of people they are without giving their names?

DUNN: Before you go into that, Mr. Corey, I think for the record we should have this said, that the 1945 Strayer Report did recommend changing the system of choosing the Superintendent of Public Instruction from elective to appointive, with an elective State Board of Education. The constitutional amendment which was proposed to the Legislature to bring that about was defeated in, I think, probably the last action of the 1945 Session of the Legislature.[a]

Even in those days we were cognizant of the problem and attempted to solve it. We couldn't quite do it. I would like you, Mr. Corey, in

[a] Chapter 36, Statutes of 1944 provided the sum of $20,000 appropriated to the State Reconstruction and Reemployment Commission for the purpose of making a study of the administration, organization and financial support of the Public School System of the State.

This work was performed by Dr. George Strayer of Columbia University, under the direction of the Citizens Advisory Committee on Readjustment Education. The report became known as the 1945 "Strayer" Report. Amongst the recommendations in this report we find the following:

(1) The State Superintendent of Public Instruction should rank with the President of the State University.
(2) The State Board of Education should select the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.
(3) The State Board of Education should be appointed by the Governor and should serve all overlapping terms.

Assembly Constitutional Amendment #16 also introduced in the 1945 Session provided for appointment by the Governor the State Board of Education for ten year terms and for ratification by the voters of the appointment at the ensuing general election.

The proposed Constitutional Amendment provided for appointment of the Superintendent of Public Instruction by the State Board of Education This Constitutional amendment passed the Assembly with more than the required 2/3'rds majority and also passed the Senate with only minor amendments.

Next to the last action of the Assembly in the 1945 Session, the Constitutional Amendment was refused passage by its failing to get the required 2/3'rds majority for concurrence in the Senate amendment. (See Page 208, Assembly Journal, June 16, 1945) answering Mr. Levering's question to go into some detail as to these people who are on the Cooperative Committee and the type of district or organization they represent, and the conflicts between these various people on this thing, so that the members of the committee will be able to see not just a group of educators getting together but rather a group of people representing specific problems on education.

COREY: Do you see any objection Mr. Chairman to my mentioning them by name? Also, the kind of people they are and who they represent? If you don't, I would rather do it that way because there is nothing to hide. This is a public matter, and it would be a little easier . . .

LEVERING: . . . a subsequent question that Mr. Dunn had referred to a little bit ago. I just wanted to ask another question after I get this information.

COREY: All right. The first is, Mr. George J. Badura, District Superintendent, Fortuna Union High School District in Humboldt County, way up in the northwest corner of the State. A rural area, a small town, a union high school district extending out into a rural area.

(2) Wm. J. Bauer, District Superintendent of Lone Pine Union High School District, a district which has perhaps the greatest dispersion of population in the State, and I think I should say here that Mr. Bauer on the committee very definitely represented the interests of the small high school districts. I mean in the discussion, we expected him to bring out the needs and the problems of the small high school districts.

(3) Then we have, Mr. C. J. Bentley, a classroom teacher from Salinas Union High School.

(4) Mr. Wm. Burkhard, City Superintendent of Schools, Sacramento.

(5) Herbert C. Clish, Superintendent of Schools, San Francisco.

(6) Herschel R. Griffin, Executive Secretary of the Affiliated Teacher Organizations in Los Angeles City, representing a teacher organization,—a local one.

(7) Dr. H. Fred Heisner, District Superintendent of the Centinella Valley Union High School District, Inglewood. That is the Inglewood Union High School District, one of the large Union High School districts in the State.

(8) Dr. Harry Howell, (Assistant Superintendent of Schools, City of LA) I need not tell you who he is.

(9) Charles Kranz, District Superintendent, the Mt. View District at El Monte. That is a relatively large but very poor elementary district, so he represents a particular type of district there.

(10) Mrs. Illa S. Lawson, a classroom teacher in the El Cajon School District in San Diego County.

(11) Miss Mary Virginia Morris, a classroom teacher in Los Angeles.

(12) Dr D. Lloyd Nelson is Associate Professor of Education now full professor of education in the University of So. California, Professor of School Administration.

(13) Henry E. Newbold, Principal of Gustine Union High School, a relatively small rural high school.

(14) Wm. R. Odell, former member of the committee, City Superintendent of Schools of Oakland, and now has been replaced by Doctor Berg, the new Superintendent in Oakland.

And that is the list.

LEVERING: That gives me some more light on the subject. Now that makes it necessary perhaps for another question. Do you think along with what Mr. Dunn said a minute ago that this committee could be better rounded out, might be able to do a better job and might also be able to have more influence on the passage of legislation if you had such people as Mr. Dunn mentioned on their committee—representatives of labor, representatives of the taxpayers' association. Would that help the program?

COREY: It might. Probably would, and yet I would be very frank with the committee as to the reason why they were not included.

LEVERING: Why not?

COREY: . . . . a practical problem. We surveyed it, we attempted to in making the decision in the formulation of the committee to begin with simply the practical problem that, once you opened it up and invite a few people, and by a few I mean 12 or 15,—where do you stop?

We have 50 or 60 state-wide organizations that once you begin to include them in an organization of this kind somebody calls up and says, why wasn't I included too. And, essentially this committee is a committee to gather information and to study the problems; to make recommendations It is not a selling committee by and large. It is a committee which largely from a professional standpoint is trying to arrive at what the right answer ought to be. And in my judgment, and I say this, knowing that it might be misunderstood by sone, I doubt the ability of the type of representation we would get, even from some of the organizations that were mentioned, to make a real contribution to the answers here. However, I'm frank to say that if we had a way of doing it practically, I would like to have them there.

LEVERING: Well, it would just seem to me that, if you could include some of those groups we might get the same thing we are trying to get in our Legislature, the checks, the balances of the two houses, because I think one of the criticisms about this Cooperative Committee is the fact that, it is practically 100 percent a professional group, and I readily agree, the professional groups are the only ones that can present certain aspects of it, perhaps it might be worth considering, checks and balances on it might make it easier to pass through this legislation. Do you get my point?

COREY: Yes.

LEVERING: Thank you. I only offer it as a suggestion. That's all. I don't know if it is worth anything or not.

COREY: May I say in conclusion in regard to the participation of the California Teachers Association in this whole program of the Cooperative Committee,—somebody, whether it be the California Teachers Association or someone else, has to be in a position to make a continuing study of school finance who is to be made to pay the cost of it? I think the committee should face frankly that one, and perhaps the best alternative, and the alternative which has been used in many other states, to having some private group paying the cost of such studies in education, is to have that cost provided by the State itself.

Now if there is objection, as some have said that there was, to the Cooperative Committee in that it represents certain interests which are private, then if the State were providing periodic studies, and paying the cost of them no such criticism could be made.

DUNN: Thank you, Mr. Corey.

Any more questions? (no comment)

Well, unless you have anything else to offer on the subject, Mr. Corey, we thank you for your contribution. We may feel inclined to call you back later.

COREY: Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

Fulfill in us, a portion of the genius of our Republic, in a service that knows malice toward none and charity for all. Bless our Nation and all that are in places of authority that we may be guided in paths of righteousness and peace. Keep us aware of the sacrifices of blood in Korea and inspire us to such a full measure of devotion that their service shall not be in vain.

"Lord of the nations, thus to Thee

Be Thou her refuge and her trust,
Her everlasting friend."

In Jesus name—AMEN.

CONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL NO. 19

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34, of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the passage of Senate Bill No. 19:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, April 26, 1951.

To the Honorable Members of the Assembly
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN:

Senate Bill No. 19, "An act making an appropriation for flood protection works at the California Vocational Institution, Department of Corrections, declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

It is necessary that flood protection work on this institution be commenced as early as possible in order that it may be completed before the next winter season.

I therefore recommend consideration of Senate Bill No. 19 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted.

EARL WARREN, Governor

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, April 17, 1951

DEAR MR ROSENTHAL: Pursuant to your request, we have prepared and enclose herewith an analysis of the above titled case, and its effect upon the so-called "loyalty oath." A copy of the opinion of the court in that case is also enclosed.

Analysis

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, April 18, 1951

Analysis of Tolman et al. vs. Underhill et al., California District Court of Appeal, Third Appellate District—No. 7180

Petitioners, faculty members with tenure at the University of California, refused to sign a supplemental affirmation required by the Board of Regents as a condition precedent to their reappointment. Upon reconsideration following an initial hearing which resulted in their reappointment, they were denied reappointment for their failure to comply. In this suit, petitioners seek a writ of mandate to compel their reappointment despite failure to execute the new affirmation.

The court decides that petitioners are persons holding an office or public trust within the meaning of the California Constitution, that the supplemental affirmation is invalid, and that the write of mandate should issue.

In deciding that petitioners hold an office or public trust within the meaning of the California Constitution, Section 3, Article XX [1], the court bases its conclusion upon an interrelation between that section and Section 9, Article IX [2], which creates the University as a public trust

[1] This section reads as follows "Members of the Legislature, and all officers, executive and judicial, except such inferior officers as may be by law exempted, shall, before they enter upon the duties of their respective offices, take and subscribe the following oath or affirmation

"'I do solemnly swear (or affirm, as the case may be) that I will support the Constitution of the United States and the Constitution of the State of California, and that I will faithfully discharge the duties of the office of _____, according to the best of my ability'

And no other oath, declaration, or test, shall be required as a qualification for any office or public trust"

[2] The pertinent portion of this section reads as follows. "The University shall be entirely independent of all political or sectarian influence and be kept free therefrom in the appointment of its regents and in the administration of its affairs, and no person shall be debarred admission to any department of the University on account of sex."

and which requires that it be kept free from political and sectarian influences. By construing these sections together, the court concludes that the faculty members, as well as the regents, are charged with executing the latter section; thus, they fall within the classes of persons mentioned in the former section. Therefore, the court concludes, Section 3 of Article XX applies, and no supplemental affirmation may validly be required from petitioners.

The court further decides that the supplemental affirmation is invalid by its terms. This determination is reached by considering the purposes and intent of Section 3, Article XX. By a comparison with clause 3, Article VI, of the Federal Constitution [3], and by a review of certain cases arising thereunder, the court expressly concludes that any oath which makes a requirement additional to the pledge to support the Constitutions of this State and Nation is invalid, quoting with approval the language of Mr Justice Douglas in Girouard vs. United States, 328 U. S. 61 at 69:

"The test oath is abhorrent to our tradition."

Also decided by the court are the following additional points:

1. That no change has been made in the 1920 resolution of the Regents of the University by which tenure was guaranteed to associate and full professors, and whereby they were protected from arbitrary dismissal.

2. That the regents have broad governmental powers with respect to the University, subject only to legislative inquiry with regard to endowments and security of funds; that therefore the court should interfere only when the regents have acted unlawfully.

3. That the regents may adopt reasonable rules of tenure, but where proof of an abuse of discretion on their part is shown, the court may grant relief.

4. That the petitioners must execute the constitutional oath of office as a condition precedent to reappointment.

From the language of the court, the inescapable conclusions are:

1. That the list of public officials set forth in Section 3, Article XX of the State Constitution is not exclusive, but merely illustrative.

2. That any oath which departs from the traditional language of Section 3, Article XX, by making new or additional requirements or setting forth different tests is unconstitutional and invalid as applied to any person falling within the class defined as those holding an office or public trust.

RALPH N. KLEPS, Legislative Counsel
By CHAS. W. JOHNSON, Chief Deputy

[3] "The Senators and Representatives before mentioned, and the members of the several state legislatures, and of executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation, to support this Constitution, but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States." (Section 3, Article VI, Federal Constitution)

ROBERT M. KNIGHT, SAM L. COLLINS, ROY E. SIMPSON, ARTHUR J. McFADDEN, WILLIAM G MERCHANT, ROBERT GORDON SPROUL, EDWARD AUGUSTUS DICKSON, JOHN FRANCIS NEYLAN, SIDNEY M. EHRMAN, FRED MOYER JORDAN, EDWIN W. J HAGGERTY and JOHN E. CANADAY, each and all as members of said corporation, The Regents of the University of California, and each as a Regent of the University of California, Respondents.

3 Civ. No. 7946
Filed: Apr. 6, 1951

This is an original proceeding for a writ of mandate to compel the Board of Regents of the University of California and Robert M. Underhill, as Secretary and Treasurer thereof, to issue to petitioners herein letters of appointment to positions as members of the faculty of the University for the academic year of July 1, 1950 to June 30, 1951.

The petition alleges that petitioners are members of the faculty of the University of California of Academic Senate rank; that respondents are each members of a public corporation known as the Regents of the University of California; that the Regents, in accordance with authority granted to them by the State Constitution, have established an Academic Senate vested with certain powers relating to appointment, tenure and dismissal of faculty members; that the Regents on April 21, 1950, adopted a resolution (more particularly set forth hereinafter) carrying out certain recommendations of the California Alumni Association relative to the signing of a so-called "Loyalty Oath" by the faculty of the University; that each of the petitioners (all of whom are non-signers thereof), pursuant to the resolution, petitioned the President of the University for a review of his case by the Committee on Privilege and Tenure of the Academic Senate; that each petitioner appeared before the said committee which, after full investigation, recommended the appointment of each petitioner to his regular post on the faculty of the University; that on July 21, 1950, upon the recommendation of the President of the University, the Regents by resolution appointed each of the petitioners to his respective post; that notwithstanding their appointments, respondent Underhill refused to transmit letters of appointment to petitioners; that subsequently on August 25, 1950, the Regents refused to recognize the appointment of petitioners; that if respondent Underhill is not ordered by this court to transmit the letters of appointment, irreparable injury to both petitioners and the people of the State of California will result; that petitioners have no plain, speedy or adequate remedy at law.

To this petition respondents filed their general and special demurrer and answer. This court on September 1, 1950, ordered that respondents take no action to enforce any resolution with respect to the non-appointment of petitioners or termination of their posts and that the ten day period granted petitioners by respondents should not expire until ten days following any further order of this court specifying that such period shall commence to run.

Before discussing the facts of the dispute which culminated in the filing of this petition it is important to note by way of background, that the Regents of the University in 1920 by resolution provided "that appointment as associate or full professor carries with it the security of tenure in the full academic sense." At no time prior to the present controversy was that resolution superseded or modified. It further appears that since 1920 the Regents and the faculty of the University have considered professors of the designated rank as not subject to arbitrary dismissal and entitled to all the incidents of tenure as it is commonly understood in American universities.

The record further discloses that for approximately a year and a half prior to April 21, 1950, the Regents, the faculty and the Alumni Association had considered the question of ways and means to implement the stated policy of the Regents of barring members of the Communist Party from employment at the University by means of a "Loyalty Oath". These discussions culminated in a meeting held on April 21, 1950, at which the Regents passed a resolution providing that after July 1, 1950, the beginning date of the new academic year, conditions precedent to employment or renewal of employment at the University would be (1) execution of the constitutional oath required of public officials of the State of California, and (2) acceptance of appointment by a letter which contained the following provision:

> "Having taken the constitutional oath of office required of public officials of the State of California, I hereby formally acknowledge my acceptance of the position and salary named, and also state that I am not a member of the Communist Party or any other organization which advocates the overthrow of the government by force or violence, and that I have no commitments in conflict with my responsibilities with respect to impartial scholarship and free pursuit of truth. I understand that the foregoing statement is a condition of my employment and a consideration of payment of my salary."

The resolution further provided that,

> "In the event that a member of the faculty fails to comply with any foregoing requirement applicable to him he shall have the right to petition the President of the University for a review of his case by the Committee on Privilege and Tenure of the Academic Senate, including an investigation of and full hearing on the reasons for his failure so to do. Final action shall not be taken by the Board of Regents until the Committee on Privilege and Tenure, after such investigation and hearing, shall have had an opportunity to submit to the Board, through the President of the University, its findings and recommendations. It is recognized that final determination in each case is the prerogative of the Regents."

Some thirty-nine professors at the University who refused to sign the affirmation set forth in the Regents' resolution accepted what they apparently believed to be the alternative to the signing of the oath as set forth in the resolution and petitioned the President of the University for a hearing before the Committee on Privilege and Tenure of the Academic Senate. The hearing resulted in favorable findings and recommendations by that committee as to each of the professors. On July 21, 1950, the Regents met and by a vote of 10 to 9 accepted those recommendations and appointed the non-signing professors to the faculty for the coming academic year. Following the passage of the resolution one of the Regents gave notice that he would change his vote from "No" to "Aye" and move to reconsider at the next meeting. At the next meeting of the Regents, on August 25, 1950, a motion to reconsider the matter of the appointments was passed by a vote of twelve to ten (one absent member stated by telegram that he would vote "no" if he were present), and the resolution adopting the recommendations of the Committee on Privilege and Tenure and appointing the professors to the faculty was defeated by a like vote of twelve to ten. Following this a motion was unanimously carried granting the non-signing professors ten days in which to comply by signing the statement prescribed in the resolution of April 21.

Petitioners herein were among those professors who refused to sign the so-called "loyalty" statement. All of the petitioners are scholars of recognized ability and achievement in their respective fields. Additionally it should be noted that it is conceded that none of the petitioners has been charged with being a member of the Communist Party or in any way subversive or disloyal.

Article IX of the Constitution which declares the policy of this state as to education provides at the outset in Section 1 thereof that education is "essential to the preservation of the rights and liberties of the people . . ." Section 9 of that article establishes the University of California as a "public trust, to be administered by the existing corporation known as 'The Regents of the University of California,' with full powers of organization and government, subject only to such legislative control as may be necessary to insure compliance with the terms of the endowments of the University and the security of its funds." Thereafter follow detailed provisions relating to the membership of the Board of Regents and their powers and duties. The section concludes with this provision: "The university shall be entirely independent of all political or sectarian influence and kept free therefrom in the appointment of its regents and in the administration of its affairs. . . ."

It is evident therefrom that the Constitution has conferred upon the Regents broad powers with respect to the government of the University, subject only to such legislative control as may be necessary to insure compliance with the terms of the endowments of the University and the security of its funds. (Hamilton vs. Regents of the University of California, 219 Cal. 663; Wall vs. Board of Regents, 38 Cal. App. 2d 698.) It follows that this court may not inquire lightly into the affairs of the Regents, and should exercise jurisdiction only where the Regents have acted without power in contravention of law.

The validity of the action taken by the Regents on August 25, 1950 is first challenged by petitioners on the ground that the affirmative statement demanded as a condition to their continued employment is a violation of Section 3 of Article XX of the Constitution which prescribes the form of oath for all officers, executive and judicial, and concludes with the prohibition that "no other oath, declaration or test, shall be required as a qualification for any office or public trust."

Respondents' answer to this argument is that the constitutional provision is not here applicable because members of the faculty of the University do not hold office or positions of public trust. In support of their position respondents place great reliance on Leymel vs. Johnson, 105 Cal. App. 694. There it was held that Section 19 of Article IV of the Constitution, which provides that "No Senator or Member of Assembly shall, during the term for which he shall have been elected, hold or accept any office, trust, or employment under this State; provided, that this provision shall not apply to any office filled by election by the people," did not preclude a member of the legislature from also holding a position as a teacher in the public schools of the city of Fresno. The court's holding was that the position of instructor in a public school was not an "office, trust, or employment under this State", as those terms are used in Section 19 of Article IV of the Constitution.

That the decision is limited to the particular provision of the Constitution there in question is indicated by the fact that the court gave serious consideration to the purposes of the people in adopting that section of the Constitution, citing Chenoweth vs. Chambers, 33 Cal. App. 104, where this court held that the intent and purpose of said section was that "those who execute the laws should not be the same individuals as those who make the laws."

There is nothing either in the Leymel case or any other case cited by respondents which is conclusive of the status of petitioners with respect to the constitutional oath of office as set forth in Section 3 of Article XX. Furthermore it is necessary in this case, as it was in the Leymel case, in dealing with another provision of the Constitution, to consider the purposes and intent of the people of California in adopting said Section 3 of Article XX. While the courts of this state have had no occasion in the past to discuss specifically the purposes behind this section, the history of the English and American peoples in their struggle for political and religious freedom offers ample testimony to the aims which motivated the adoption of the provision.

A similar provision is found in Clause 3 of Article 6 of the Federal Constitution where it is stated that all legislative, executive and judicial officers, both of the United States and of the several states, shall be bound by oath or affirmation to support the Constitution; but no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any office or public trust under the United States. Speaking of this provision, Mr. Chief Justice Hughes, in his dissenting opinion in United States vs. Macintosh, 283 U S. 605, 631, 75 Law Ed. 1302, 1313, which views were later upheld in Girouard vs. United States, 328 U S. 61, 90 L. Ed. 1084, said:

> "I think that the requirement of the oath of office should be read in the light of our regard from the beginning for freedom of conscience . . . To conclude that the general oath of office is to be interpreted as disregarding the religious scruples of these citizens and as disqualifying them for office because they could not take the oath with such an interpretation would, I believe, be generally regarded as contrary not only to the specific intent of the Congress but as repugnant to the fundamental principle of representative government."

Again, in the case of United States vs. Schwimmer, 279 U.S. 644, 73 L Ed. 889, Mr. Justice Holmes, whose dissenting views were likewise upheld in the Girouard case, said at page 654, " . . . if there is any principle of the Constitution that more imperatively calls for attachment than any other it is the principle of free thought—not free thought for those who agree with us but freedom for the thought that we hate."

In the Girouard case, which was the last in this line of cases involving aliens who had been barred from naturalization because their then religious beliefs would not permit them to bear arms to defend the country, Mr. Justice Douglas, speaking for the court in approving the views expressed by Hughes and Holmes and holding that such aliens were not barred from citizenship, succinctly stated at page 69: "The test oath is abhorrent to our tradition."

This basic principle was also discussed by Mr. Justice Jackson in West Virginia State Board of Education vs. Barnette, 319 U. S. 624, 87

L. Ed. 1628, the last of the "flag salute" cases where, in speaking for the court he said, at page 642:

> "But freedom to differ is not limited to things that do not matter much. That would be a mere shadow of freedom. The test of its substance is the right to differ as to things that touch the heart of the existing order.
> "If there is any fixed star in our constitutional constellation, it is that no official, high or petty, can prescribe what shall be orthodox in politics, nationalism, religion, or other matters of opinion or force citizens to confess by word or act their faith therein."

At this late date it is hardly open to question but that the people of California in adopting Section 3 of Article XX also meant to include in our state Constitution that fundamental concept of what Mr. Chief Justice Hughes referred to as "freedom of conscience" and Mr. Justice Holmes called the "principle of free thought." Paraphrasing their words we conclude that the people of California intended, at least, that no one could be subjected, as a condition to holding office, to any test of political or religious belief other than his pledge to support the Constitutions of this state and of the United States; that that pledge is the highest loyalty that can be demonstrated by any citizen, and that the exacting of any other test of loyalty would be antithetical to our fundamental concept of freedom. Any other conclusion would be to approve that which from the beginning of our government has been denounced as the most effective means by which one special brand of political or economic philosophy can entrench and perpetuate itself to the eventual exclusion of all others; the imposition of any more inclusive test would be the forerunner of tyranny and oppression.

It is a well established principle of constitutional interpretation that the meaning of any particular provision is to be ascertained by considering the Constitution as a whole and that the duty of the court in interpreting the Constitution is to harmonize all its provisions. (In re Oliverez, 21 Cal. 415; Edler vs. Hollopeter, 214 Cal. 427.) A strikingly analogous application of this principle of construction is found in West Virginia State Board of Education vs. Barnette, supra, where Mr. Justice Jackson said at page 639:

> "In weighing arguments of the parties it is important to distinguish between the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment as an instrument for transmitting the principles of the First Amendment and those cases in which it is applied for its own sake. The test of legislation which collides with the Fourteenth Amendment, because it also collides with principles of the First, is much more definite than the test when only the Fourteenth is involved. Much of the vagueness of the due process clause disappears when the specific prohibitions of the First become its standard." (Emphasis ours.)

In the problem of interpretation with which we are presently confronted, we find in the specific mandate of Section 9 of Article IX of our Constitution, providing that the University shall be entirely independent of all political or sectarian influence, a standard by which to decide the question of whether or not the petitioners herein are to be included within the term "office or public trust" as used in Section 3 of Article XX. It goes without saying that in the practical conduct of the affairs of the University the burden of so preserving it free from sectarian and political influence must be bourne by the faculty as well as by the Regents. Hence, if the faculty of the University can be subjected to any more narrow test of loyalty than the constitutional oath, the constitutional mandate in Section 9 of Article IX would be effectively frustrated, and our great institution now dedicated to learning and the search for truth reduced to an organ for the propagation of the ephemeral political, religious, social and economic philosophies, whatever they may be, of the majority of the Board of Regents of that moment.

It must be concluded that the members of the faculty of the University, in carrying out this most important task, fall within the class of persons to whom the framers of the Constitution intended to extend the protection of Section 3 of Article XX.

While this court is mindful of the fact that the action of the Regents was at the outset undoubtedly motivated by a desire to protect the University from the influences of subversive elements dedicated to the overthrow of our constitutional government and the abolition of our civil liberties, we are also keenly aware that equal to the danger of subversion from without by means of force and violence is the danger of subversion from within by the gradual whittling away and the resulting distintegration of the very pillars of our freedom.

It necessarily follows that the requirement that petitioners sign the form of contract prescribed in the Regents' resolution of April 21, 1950, was and is invalid, being in violation both of Section 3 of Article XX and Section 9 of Article IX of the Constitution of the State of California, and that petitioners cannot be denied reappointment to their posts solely because of their failure to comply with the invalid condition therein set forth.

Subject to such reasonable rules of tenure as the Regents may adopt, the appointment and dismissal of professional personnel of the University is a matter largely within the discretion of the Regents. (Wall vs. Board of Regents, supra.) Nevertheless, in the event of proof of an abuse of discretion the "propriety of the remedy . . . is clear." (Landsborough vs. Kelly, 1 Cal. 2d 739.) Thus in the present case the imposition of the oath in question being violative of the applicable constitutional provisions, the abuse of discretion is clear, and hence this court may compel the reinstatement of petitioners to their respective positions. (See also Inglin vs. Hoppin, 156 Cal. 483.)

In view of the foregoing it is unnecessary to consider the further contentions of petitioners that the resolution of July 21, 1950 constituted an irrevocable appointment of the petitioners, and that the action of the Regents constituted an arbitrary dismissal in violation of petitioners' tenure rights.

Therefore, since the letters of appointment issued to petitioners following the Regents' resolution of April 21, 1950 were subject to the condition that the petitioners sign letters of acceptance of appointment containing the affirmative statement, the requirement of which we have held to be invalid, it is the order of this court that the writ issue directing respondents by their secretary, respondent Underhill, to issue to each of the petitioners a letter of appointment to his regular post on the faculty of the University, which appointment shall not be subject to the aforementioned invalid condition. Provided that, if any of petitioners has not yet executed the constitutional oath of office as provided in the said resolution of April 21, 1950, the respondents may require that such petitioner, as a condition precedent to his appointment, execute said constitutional oath.

Let the writ issue.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT THAT STATEMENT BE PRINTED IN JOURNAL

Mr. Lindsay asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent that the following statement be ordered printed in the Journal, in 10 point type, as follows:

Statement by Mr. Lindsay

SACRAMENTO 14, CALIFORNIA
April 26, 1951

Joint Legislative Budget Committee
State Capitol
Sacramento, California

ATTENTION: Honorable Ben Hulse, Chairman

GENTLEMEN: I have in my possession a copy of a report entitled "Survey of Activities of the Soil Conservation Equipment Pool," prepared by the Legislative Auditor and dated January 1, 1951. This report, while being exceedingly malicious and vicious in its criticism of the equipment pool and the management thereof, presents a completely biased and colored picture of the pool operations. It, I believe, is serious enough to warrant a request for a hearing before the Joint Budget Committee, but a much more serious charge is included in this report which the Legislative Auditor informs me gives me the unqualified privilege of demanding a full dress hearing before the committee.

The report, on page 19, charges the directors of the Placer County District with a felonious action by soliciting a rebate to themselves from the Marysville Tractor Company. Mr. Dan Beatie, the owner of the Marysville Tractor Company, has informed me he made no such statement to the representatives of the Legislative Auditor. The Board of Directors of the District did confer with Mr. Beatie on the possibility of a 5 percent rebate to the district. All of the directors of the district were present at the meeting, as well as Mr. Beatie, his son, Mr. Luppe of the Roseville branch of the Marysville Tractor Company, and Mr. Beatie's partner, Mr. McClung.

The Legislative Auditor's report, while supposedly being of a confidential nature, has been widely quoted in the newspapers of this State as fact, thereby doing the directors of the Placer County Soil Conservation District and myself as an Assemblyman an unrepairable harm. In the absence of time to call a formal meeting of the board of directors, but after conferring with them, I hereby respectfully request an immediate hearing before the committee, and request the committee to subpena the representatives of the Marysville Tractor Company to appear before the committee at the hearing, along with the Legislative Auditor and those of his staff members who prepared the report. I further believe that the Secretary of the State Soil Conservation Commission and the equipment supervisors of the Soil Conservation Commission should be present at the hearing, as the equipment was purchased under their direction.

Sincerely yours,

FRANCIS C. LINDSAY, Member
Assembly, Sixth District

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT THAT ASSEMBLY REQUEST HEARING
