CITY OF CARMEL BY THE SEA
By PETER MAWDSLEY, City Clerk

Note: The Carmel Sanitary District (mentioned in your letter) is not coterminous with the city but includes all of the city.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CARMEL SANITARY DISTRICT

The reply of the Carmel Sanitary District, through the City of Carmel by the Sea, by the city clerk thereof, is completely unsatisfactory. The reply is evasive in its answer to Question One of the committee's questionnaire, that "none (tidelands and submerged lands) have been granted to this city." The reply further states that "the Carmel Sanitary District * * * is not coterminous with the city but includes all of the city." The fact remains that the city government is charged with the administration of the Carmel Sanitary District.

Conclusion. Probable noncompliance with the statute of grant or unauthorized use and administration of the granted lands are indicated by the reply of the Carmel Sanitary District. To protect the interest of the State of California and of the general public in the granted lands, the committee immediately should procure a survey of the granted lands and conduct an investigation into the use and administration thereof. Such survey and investigation probably will indicate the necessity of reacquisition of the granted lands by the State of California.

DATA FURNISHED TO THE COMMITTEE BY THE CITY OF CORONADO

CITY OF CORONADO
CALIFORNIA

OFFICE OF
CITY MANAGER

March 17, 1951.

MR. G. DELBERT MORRIS, Chairman
Interim Committee on Petroleum Products
Sacramento State Capitol Building
Sacramento 14, California

DEAR MR. MORRIS: Your letter of February 15, 1951, addressed to G. F. Neal, has been referred to me for reply A search of our files fails to disclose the questionnaire mentioned therein. I am answering your questions regarding tidelands and submerged lands, in the order presented:

2. Lands are leased to private concerns for purposes of navigation, commerce and fisheries, etc.
3. No.
4. Approximately $300,000 in improvements due to leases.
5. One lease and franchise to San Diego & Coronado Ferry Company; the rest in 20-year leases to private concerns for various uses.
6. Annual income of $9,800 applied as provided herein, and replacement, improvement, etc.
7. Approximately 55 percent.
8. No.
9. No.

NOTE: Answer to Question 7 does not include 40 acres of tidelands leased to F. P. H. A.—Housing Project—and 130 acres leased to U. S. Navy for amphibious training base.

Very truly yours,

GLENN WADE
Acting City Manager

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF CORONADO

The reply of the City of Coronado is indefinite with respect to the development and improvement of granted lands, and no reasonable inference as to compliance with the statute of grant may be drawn from the vague answer to Question 2 of the questionnaire. The answer to Question 5, relating to leases and franchises of granted lands currently in effect, is indefinite and requires investigation into both the aggregate number of existing leases and franchises and the uses to which the granted lands are put by lease and franchise holders. The purposes for which revenues from granted lands are used is not clear. If such revenues are expended in improving or for the benefit of the leased land, such purposes constitute a violation of the express conditions of the statute of grant of 1929, Chapter 681. Particular examination should be made of the lease and franchise to the San Diego and Coronado Ferry Company, with emphasis on the terms and provisions thereof. Investigation of the two leases to the Federal Government, mentioned in the note at the conclusion of the reply, also should be made.

Conclusion. The reply of the City of Coronado is unsatisfactory, and further investigation is required, in the following particulars: Additional and more explicit information is needed regarding the development and improvement of the granted lands and regarding leases thereof and franchises thereon, so that the data relating thereto available to the committee will be more definite and certain. Further investigation and examination may well indicate unauthorized use and administration of the granted lands, and the committee can thereupon determine the advisability of reacquisition of the granted lands by the State of California.

CITY OF EUREKA

SENATE BILL No. 1219

An act granting to the City of Eureka tide and submerged lands of the State of California, including the right to wharf out therefrom to the City of Eureka, and regulating the management, use and control thereof.

DATA FURNISHED TO THE COMMITTEE BY THE CITY OF EUREKA

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR
CITY OF EUREKA, CALIFORNIA
JOHN F. LANGER, JR., MAYOR

MR. G. DELBERT MORRIS, Member of Assembly
California Legislature, Sacramento 14, California

HONORABLE SIR: I am submitting answers to the questions enclosed in your communication of February 19, 1951.

Trusting this information will be of help to you for the facts that are necessary for the desired legislative action.

Yours truly,

J. F. LANGER, JR.
Mayor

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONNAIRE

1. The mayor and superintendent of public works.
2. Whenever a prospective renter appears desiring to lease or rent tideland property, according to our charter, we have to advertise said piece of property for lease or rent and prospective tenant bids on the property.
3. We have floated a bond issue for the sum of $200,000 for the development of a small boat harbor for recreation and fishing boats.
4. Part of the property under lease have buildings on it and the tenants, according to lease agreement, maintain them and make any alteration at their expense with the city council approval. One company has a 50-year lease and their plans call for approximately a $250,000 expenditure. Another company expects to spend $75,000 for needed improvements.
5. We have five leases in effect at the present time.
6. Our approximate yearly revenues are around $6,000. This is used to retire the $200,000 bonded indebtedness.
7. The leased lands are used by a shipping corporation, two oil corporations and three fish companies.
8. No.
9. No.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF EUREKA

The reply of the City of Eureka is indefinite with respect to the development and improvement of the granted lands, in that the answer by the city to Question 2 of the questionnaire appears to have no relationship to the question. The answer to Question 3 discloses that action has been taken leading to certain developments and improvements which will in the future constitute substantial compliance with the statutes of grant, but the present use and administration of the granted lands is not shown. The uses to which such lands are put by the five lessees thereof should be examined by the committee. Admitted use of the granted lands by a shipping corporation, two oil corporations, and three fishing companies may or may not constitute violation of the conditions of the statutes of grant or of the public trust under which such lands are held by the city.

Conclusion. The reply of the City of Eureka is unsatisfactory, and further investigation is required, in the following particulars: Additional and more explicit information is necessary regarding the development and improvement of the granted lands and regarding leases thereof and franchises thereon, so that the data relating thereto available to the committee will be more definite and certain. Further investigation and examination will enable the committee to determine any unauthorized use and administration of the granted lands and the advisability of reacquisition of the granted lands by the State of California.

(b) That such lands devoted to the conduct of a harbor shall be improved by the City of Laguna Beach without expense to the State and such harbor shall always remain a public harbor for all purposes of commerce and navigation, and the State of California shall have, at all times, the right to use, without charge, all wharves, docks, piers, slips, quays and other improvements constructed on said lands, or any part thereof, for any vessel or other water craft, or railroad, owned or operated by the State of California.

(c) That in the management, conduct or operation of said harbor, or any of the utilities, structures or appliances mentioned in paragraph (a) no discrimination in rates, tolls or charges, or in facilities for any use or service in connection therewith shall ever be made, authorized or permitted by the City of Laguna Beach or by its successors.

(d) The absolute right to fish in the waters of the Pacific Ocean over said tidelands and submerged lands, with the right of convenient access to said waters over said lands for such purpose is hereby expressly reserved to the people of the State of California.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF LAGUNA BEACH

The reply of the City of Laguna Beach to the questionnaire is self-explanatory. It is evident that there has been a complete lack of compliance by the city with the intents, purposes, and conditions of the statute of grant, in that there has been no action taken toward development and improvement of the granted lands.

Conclusion. The recommendation of the committee with respect to the lands granted to the City of Laguna Beach is set forth in the recommendations by the committee set forth at the conclusion of this report.

HONORABLE RALPH C. DILLS, Assemblyman
69th District, California Legislature
State Capitol, Sacramento 14, California

DEAR SIR: On August 11, you forwarded to Mayor Chace, City of Long Beach, a questionnaire requesting information regarding tidelands and submerged lands granted by the State. This questionnaire has been answered in full and is attached herewith.

You will note that a portion of the questionnaire has been answered by including certain material identified as Exhibits A, B, C, and D, these being a statement, under oath, made by Irving M. Smith, City Attorney, and certain letters received in this office in regard to revenues since January 1, 1948.

We have made every effort to give complete answers to your questions, and hope that this information will meet with your satisfaction.

Yours very truly,

CARL B. WIRSCHING
City Manager

QUESTIONNAIRE REGARDING TIDELANDS AND SUBMERGED LANDS GRANTED BY THE STATE

Question: Which office or agency is charged with the duty of administering tidelands and submerged lands that have been granted by the State?

Answer: The tidelands and submerged lands within the harbor district are administered by the Board of Harbor Commissioners and the port manager of the city. The tidelands and submerged lands within the city limits outside the harbor district are administered by the city manager subject to policy determined by the city council.

Question: What action has been or is being taken for the development and improvement of the granted lands?

Question: Have public funds been expended for such purposes, and, if so, approximately in what amount?

Answer: Attached herewith marked "Exhibit A" is a statement entitled, "Statement of Irving M. Smith, City Attorney, on Behalf of the City of Long Beach, California, to the Committee on the Judiciary of the United States Senate in Support of S. 1988," which fully answers Questions 2 and 3, for the period prior to January 1, 1948. Also attached herewith marked "Exhibits B, C, and D," are copies of letters addressed to the city manager submitting statements for the period January 1, 1948, to the present time.

Question: What improvements have been made pursuant to franchises or leases and what is the approximate value thereof?

Answer: The only lease is that held by Neptune Pier Company which was granted May 29, 1914, expiring December 1, 1948, pursuant to which said pier company constructed the Neptune Pier and improvements thereon.

Question: What franchises or leases of such lands are currently in effect?

Answer: Under an agreement entered into with said company April 2, 1942, the city receives $1,000 a year.

Question: What are the present annual revenues received by the local agency from such lands, the sources thereof, and the purposes for which said revenues are used?

Answer: See Exhibits A, B, C, and D.

Question: To what extent, if at all, are any of the granted lands occupied or used by individuals or corporations?

Answer: The City of Long Beach occupies, maintains, and controls all the subject lands. Under contractual agreements, portions of said lands are used by Long Beach Oil Development Company, a corporation; and Richfield Oil Company, a corporation, for oil development. Except for the franchise-lease to Neptune Pier Company, above referred to, and two minor leases on short term bases to catering companies, there are no other leaseholds. As to port facilities, a number of steamship companies maintain offices under revocable permits.

Question: Has your local agency been divested of title or right to possession of any of the granted lands by reason of conveyance thereof by the local agency, eminent domain proceedings, agreements to determine boundaries, or otherwise?

Answer: The answer is "no."

Question: Have any judicial proceedings been commenced against your local agency affecting title or right to possession of any such granted lands? If so, list the names of the cases and state the effect of each judgment.

Answer: Although the city is not a party to the case of United States of America v California, No. 12 Original, that litigation affects all the tidelands and submerged lands within the city limits and three miles from shore, granted to the city by the State of California by the grant of May 1, 1911 (1911 Statutes, p. 1304), as amended by the 1925 and 1935 grants (1925 Statutes, p. 235, and 1935 Statutes, p. 794). There are 13,027 acres of tidelands and submerged lands, including reclaimed tide and submerged lands within the corporate limits of the city, which have been conveyed to the city by said state grants. The city's interest in said litigation is set forth in the accompanying statement above referred to at pages 14 and 15.

A suit is pending, i.e., Long Beach Bath House and Amusement Company, a corporation, and Continental Southern Corporation, Plaintiffs, v. City of Long Beach, No. 530211, in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles. In this suit the plaintiffs claim title to the accretions between Rainbow Pier and Silver Spray Pier. The city has filed an answer therein claiming ownership of said accretions. This case has not yet been set for trial.

Another suit is pending, i.e., Albert V. Abrams, Leona E. Abrams, Vaughn M. Abrams and Gwenvyne Abrams, Plaintiffs, v. City of Long Beach et al., No. 546583, in the Superior Court of the State of California, in and for the County of Los Angeles. In this suit plaintiffs claim some rights in the tidelands and submerged lands within the Harbor District and those outside of and east of the Harbor District up to a line running north and south approximating the line of Pine Avenue projected seaward. Plaintiffs claim that said tide and submerged lands are owned by the Federal Government and their rights therein are based upon certain applications filed with the Federal Government for oil and gas leases covering said lands Plaintiffs seek to enjoin the city and its oil drilling contractors from drilling oil wells and operating the same and for an accounting of all moneys received by the city from its tideland oil development. The city has filed its answer denying that said tidelands and submerged lands are owned by the Federal Government and asserting that title thereto is vested in the City of Long Beach. This case has not yet been set for trial.

There are no other suits or judicial proceedings now pending affecting the city's title or right to possession of the tidelands and submerged lands conveyed to it by state grants.

Exhibit A

Statement of Irving M. Smith, City Attorney, on Behalf of the City of Long Beach, California, to the Committee on the Judiciary of the United States Senate in Support of S. 1988

Mr. Chairman and Members of the Committee:

My name is Irving M. Smith, City Attorney of the City of Long Beach, California. I appear on behalf of the City of Long Beach to urge favorable action on and adoption by the Congress of Bill No. S. 1988, now being considered by your committee, whereby the Federal Government shall recognize, confirm, establish and vest in the respective states and their respective grantees and all persons lawfully entitled thereto title to and ownership of all lands beneath navigable waters within the boundaries of the respective states, and the natural resources within such lands and waters, and the right and power to control, develop and use said natural resources in accordance with applicable state law, to the end that by said legislation the City of Long Beach shall not be disturbed in its rights, title and possession in and to lands beneath navigable waters within its corporate limits conveyed to it by the State of California, and the right and power to control, develop and use the natural resources within such lands.

INTEREST OF CITY OF LONG BEACH IN PENDING LEGISLATION

The City of Long Beach is a municipal corporation, organized and existing under and by virtue of Sections 6 and 8 of Article XI of the Constitution of the State of California, and operating under a freeholders' charter (California Statutes 1921, page 2054). The southerly boundary of the City of Long Beach since prior to 1911, as established by its city charter, is fixed as extending three miles from the line of ordinary high tide into San Pedro Bay, bordering upon the Pacific Ocean, between the easterly and westerly boundaries of the city. The waterfront of the city consists of 8 11 miles and thereon is located one of the major municipally owned harbors and ports of the Pacific Coast.

On May 1, 1911, the State of California granted to the City of Long Beach "all of the right, title and interest of the State of California, held by said State by virtue of its sovereignty, in and to all of the tidelands and submerged lands, whether filled or unfilled, bordering upon, under and situated below the mean high tide line of the Pacific Ocean, or of any harbor, estuary, bay or inlet, which are within the corporate limits of said city," (1911 Statutes, page 1304) in trust, to be used by the city solely for the establishment, improvement and conduct of a harbor and for the construction of wharves, docks, piers and structures necessary or convenient for the promotion and accommodation of commerce and navigation This legislative grant was amended by the 1925 and 1935 Legislatures (1925 Statutes, page 235, and 1935 Statutes, page 794). These amendments authorized the use of said tide and submerged lands, in addition to the purposes previously noted, for public parks, parkways, highways and playgrounds. Since May 1, 1911, the City of Long Beach has exercised proprietary control and jurisdiction over said tide and submerged lands by appropriate procedure for the uses authorized and in the public interest.

There are 13,027 acres of tide and submerged lands, including reclaimed tide and submerged lands, within the corporate limits of the city which have been conveyed to the city by state grants. The city has filled and reclaimed 580 acres of said submerged lands, at considerable public expense to the taxpayers of the city, and plans for future harbor development by the city call for the filling and reclaiming of an additional 570 acres. The city has made vast and costly improvements upon these lands underlying navigable waters I will summarize briefly the nature and extent of these improvements.

HARBOR FACILITIES

Harbor facilities of the City of Long Beach have been constructed entirely upon reclaimed submerged lands granted to the city by the State of California, at a cost to the city in an amount in excess of $15,500,000, with additional new port facilities in process of construction under existing contracts at an additional cost of $7,575,641. Projected harbor improvements planned by the city call for an additional expenditure of $97,498,000, a great portion of which will be expended for development of harbor facilities upon reclaimed tide and submerged lands.

In excess of 12,000 lineal feet of wharves and docks, accommodating approximately 25 berths, have been constructed or are under construction by the city upon reclaimed tide and submerged lands. Over 17 miles of railroad trackage has been installed by the city on reclaimed tide and submerged lands. Three hundred thirty-two acres have been filled and reclaimed on said lands, 127 acres of which have been improved for open storage of cargo, and in excess of seven acres improved with transit sheds on piers and docks. An additional area consisting of 40 acres is in the course of being reclaimed and filled, together with in excess of five acres of additional covered storage area in the form of transit sheds on piers and docks.

Projected harbor development plans call for the filling of 570 acres of submerged lands upon which will be constructed approximately 50,000 lineal feet of wharves, which will accommodate 75 additional berths; 445 acres thereof will be improved for open storage of cargo and 120 acres thereof improved with transit sheds on piers and docks. In excess of 58 miles of railroad trackage will be installed thereon.

One million one hundred forty-four thousand thirty-five tons of cargo, including both imports and exports, were handled over city's municipal docks during the 12-month period ending December 31, 1947. For said period the city received $697,500.45 as revenue for dockage, wharfage, fees and rentals, exclusive of oil income, incidental to the use of port facilities heretofore mentioned constructed by the municipality on reclaimed tide and submerged lands.

In addition to these harbor installations made by the city, the Federal Government expended in excess of $5,000,000 for the construction of pier facilities upon approximately 30 acres of submerged lands granted to the city by the State of California, under the terms of a lease entered into by the United States with the city on October 8, 1943. Said pier extends out into San Pedro Bay, bordering the Pacific Ocean, a distance of approximately 4,690 feet Under the terms of paragraph 15 of said lease the city agreed, upon termination thereof, to purchase from the government all permanent improvements constructed by the government, at a price and upon terms to be negotiated. A supplemental agreement was entered into between the city and the Federal Government on April 18, 1947, whereby said lease was terminated and the Federal Government transferred to the city title to said improvements in consideration of the payment of $1,000,000 by the city to the Federal Government. Concurrently with the execution of said supplemental agreement the city paid to the Federal Government the sum of $1,000,000 for said improvements.

RAINBOW PIER—PARK—MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM

During the years 1928, 1929, and 1930 the city, out of revenues provided by bonds voted by the electorate and at a cost of $1,067,343.37, constructed a pier known as Rainbow Pier, semicircular in design, 3,802 feet in length and extending into the submerged lands granted to the city by the State of California approximately 1,400 feet from mean high tide line, thereby enclosing approximately 47 acres, within which an eight-acre fill was made and developed into a park and upon which was constructed a municipal auditorium, at a total cost to the city of an additional sum of $1,664,371.49.

BEACHES—RECREATION AREAS

In addition to the installations heretofore mentioned, more than five miles of public beaches, parks and recreational areas have been constructed and improved upon approximately 200 acres of reclaimed submerged lands, at cost to the city in the sum of $1,115,946. In furtherance of this program of municipal beach recreation development, the city has acquired in excess of 70 percent of all the upland parcels of land bordering the ocean along the entire beach frontage within the city, in order to guarantee the use of said reclaimed submerged areas for recreational use of the public and at additional cost to the city in the sum of $666,493.

OIL DEVELOPMENT

Oil was discovered in privately owned uplands adjacent to the tide and submerged lands conveyed to the city by the State in the Harbor District of the city in 1936, and, in order to protect the municipality's property rights in said tide and submerged lands from drainage by petroleum development on adjacent upland areas by private interests, on March 15, 1939, the city entered into four drilling and operating contracts with the Long Beach Oil Development Company, covering parcels containing approximately 1,143 acres of submerged and reclaimed tide and submerged lands in the Long Beach Harbor. Except as to description of parcels, these contracts are identical as to terms and provisions For convenience, these parcels were described as "W," "X," "Y" and "Z." A certified copy of said contract covering Parcel "W" will be filed with your honorable committee. A similar contract was entered into between the city and said company on January 2, 1942, covering an additional parcel containing approximately 95 acres of submerged and reclaimed tide and submerged lands, described as "Z-1," and a sixth contract was entered into between the same parties on August 3, 1944, covering an additional parcel containing approximately 231 acres of submerged and reclaimed tide and submerged lands, described as Parcel "J."

All of the area covered by said contracts consists entirely of submerged and reclaimed tide and submerged lands and extends southerly into San Pedro Bay, bordering the Pacific Ocean, approximately one-half mile from the line of ordinary high tide prior to reclamation. Under the terms of each of said drilling and operating contracts the development company becomes an independent contractor and agrees to supervise and manage development work for and on behalf of the city, and as compensation therefor receives 14.45 percent of the proceeds derived from the sale of oil and gas produced under said contracts. The city receives 85.55 percent of the proceeds from the sale of oil and gas produced, out of which all drilling and maintenance and operation costs are paid, subject to certain limitations constituting ceilings upon maximum drilling and operating costs under the terms of said contracts. The city receives a net minimum of 30 percent revenue from the sale of oil and gas, whether or not 55 55 percent of the revenue derived from the sale of oil and gas is sufficient to pay the costs of development and operations. Furthermore, the city receives all the dry gas (excepting the amount necessary for development operations), delivered to its gas department for distribution by the city to consumers in and adjacent to the city. Under these contracts, from March 15, 1939, to November 30, 1947, 348 wells have been drilled and placed on production and have produced 53,056,037 barrels of oil. 85.55 percent of the gross revenue received from the sale of oil was paid to the city in the sum of $59,142,-390.36. The net revenue received by the city after payment of all costs for drilling, maintenance and operation of said wells was in the sum of $31,509,589.87, plus tangible oil field equipment of the estimated value of $11,500,000. In addition to said revenue received by the city from the sale of oil, dry gas has been delivered to the city's gas department in the total amount of 29,715,684 MCF, which in turn has been delivered to consumers within and adjacent to the city, at considerable profit to the city. A summary of these operations and returns by years to November 30, 1947, will be filed with this honorable committee.

On March 12, 1947, the city entered into a drilling and operating contract, pursuant to public bidding procedure, with Richfield Oil Corporation, covering approximately 234 acres of submerged and reclaimed tide and submerged lands within the City of Long Beach and adjacent to Parcel "J" heretofore referred to. The terms and provisions of said drilling and operating contract are similar to those entered into with Long Beach Oil Development Company previously referred to, except under the drilling and operating contract with Richfield, said contractor receives 5 9 percent of the proceeds derived from the sale of oil and gas produced thereunder and the city receives 94.1 percent of the proceeds of the sale of said oil and gas produced, out of which drilling and maintenance and operations costs are paid. Under this latter contract the city receives a net minimum of 60.1 percent of the revenue derived from the sale of all oil and gas, whether or not 34 percent of the revenue from the sale of oil and gas is sufficient to pay the costs of development and operations. Under this latter contract, from March 12, 1947, to November 30, 1947, 13 wells have been drilled and placed on production, which have produced 116,927 barrels of oil. Ninety-four and one-tenth percent of the gross revenue received from the sale of oil was paid to the city in the sum of $201,312 86 The net revenue paid to the city over and above all costs of drilling, maintenance and operation was in the sum of $128,-575.58, plus tangible oil field equipment of a very substantial value. In addition to said revenue received by the city from the sale of oil, dry gas has been delivered to the gas department of the city in the total amount of 52,175 MCF. A summary of these operations will be filed with this honorable committee.

Under the provisions of Section 229x of the city charter, as amended, all revenues derived by the city from the proceeds of oil produced from the tide and submerged lands are required to be deposited in the Harbor Revenue Fund and the Harbor Bond Redemption and Interest Fund and used exclusively for harbor development and maintenance and other harbor purposes consistent with the uses specified in the grants made by the State of California to the city and for the payment of principal and interest on the 1924 and 1926 harbor bonds issued by the city for harbor improvements. All of the funds thus derived have been devoted exclusively for such uses and purposes return of 30 percent of all revenues derived from the sale of oil produced from said lands. To November 30, 1947, the actual net cash received by the city under one of said contracts exceeded 54 percent, and the smallest amount under any of said contracts exceeded 41 percent of all revenue derived from the sale of oil produced thereunder, plus millions of dollars worth of oil field equipment, in addition to 100 percent of the resulting dry gas (excepting the amount required in the development operations), sold at additional profit to the city. The average net cash received by the city to November 30, 1947, under said six contracts was 46 percent of all revenue derived from the sale of oil produced thereunder. Under the drilling and operating contract entered into with Richfield Oil Corporation the actual net cash received by the city amounted to 61.1 percent of all revenue derived from the sale of oil and gas produced thereunder.

It has been reported and it is believed that in no other instance anywhere in these United States have oil development contracts or leases been made returning to the landowner such a large percentage of the revenue received from the oil produced. It is customary for such contracts and leases to provide for the return to the landowner ranging from 12½ percent to 16⅔ percent, whereas the City of Long Beach receives 85.55 percent to 94.1 percent, less the cost of drilling and maintenance, and guaranteed minimum net cash of 30 percent to 60.1 percent, with actual net cash received as of November 30, 1947, averaging 46 percent under six contracts and 60.1 percent under another, plus millions of dollars worth of dry gas and capital inventory of oil field equipment. All revenues received by the city under the provisions of law are expended for the development of a great public harbor, in addition to other valuable benefits and services to the general public.

CITY'S TITLE SETTLED BY SUPREME COURT

The expenditure of many millions of dollars of public funds by the City of Long Beach in the development of the tide and submerged lands heretofore mentioned has been made in good faith and in reliance on the rule of property that the title to such lands is vested in the states and their grantees, as confirmed throughout the past 100 years by more than 50 decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States, 244 decisions of federal and state courts, 31 rulings by Secretaries of the Interior, and 49 opinions of Attorneys General of the United States. Our own State Supreme Court in 1937, in the case of City of Long Beach v. Marshall, 11 Cal. (2d), page 609, held that the City of Long Beach received the fee title to all the tide and submerged lands within its city boundaries from the State of California under the grant from the State Legislature of May 1, 1911. The California Supreme Court in that decision cited and relied upon decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States upon the subject matter, and at page 614 therein stated:

> "It is established law that the State became the owner of tidelands in fee simple upon its admission to the Union, holding them subject to the public trusts for navigation, commerce and fishing (Shively v. Bowlby, 152 U. S. 1 * * *; Borax Consolidated v. Los Angeles, 296 U. S. 10 * * *); that it likewise became owner of the minerals therein (Boone v. Kingsbury, 206 Cal. 148, 170 * * *); and it should reasonably follow that it has the power to grant these lands to municipalities, subject to those same trusts."

In this case the Supreme Court had before it all the tide and submerged lands lying seaward from the mean high tide line three miles within the city limits—that is, all that had been granted to the city by the State. When the court said it was established law that the tidelands belonged in the first instance to the State, the meaning of the word "tidelands" was not limited to the narrow strip between high and low tide which is subject to the daily ebb and flow of the tide. On the contrary, the word "tidelands" was deliberately used to describe all the lands conveyed to the city which, as heretofore stated, extend three miles seaward from the mean high tide line.

FEDERAL RECOGNITION OF CITY'S TITLE

Although oil has been produced from tide and submerged lands of the Pacific Ocean off the coast of California for more than 50 years (Summerland—1896; Bulletin No. 118, California Department Natural Resources), the title of the State of California (and the City of Long Beach, as grantee of the State) to the tide and submerged lands within three miles from shore of the Pacific Ocean was not questioned by any federal official or private citizen until oil was discovered in the Harbor District of the City of Long Beach in the year 1936. In fact, public records are replete with instances wherein the Federal Government and its officials recognized that the City of Long Beach held the title to its tide and submerged lands. As an example of one such instance of recognition of title, the Secretary of the Interior, Harold L. Ickes, under date of December 22, 1933, wrote a letter to a Long Beach citizen by the name of Olin S. Proctor rejecting an application for an oil and gas lease or permit covering a parcel of submerged land lying within the city limits of the City of Long Beach, and a part of the tide and submerged lands conveyed to the city by the State of California in 1911. Said letter reads as follows:

"THE SECRETARY OF THE INTERIOR
WASHINGTON

December 22, 1933

"MR. OLIN S. PROCTOR,
521 East Ocean Boulevard,
Long Beach, California.

"MY DEAR MR. PROCTOR: I have received, by reference from the Department of State, copies of your letters of October 15 and November 22.

"As to the jurisdiction of the Federal Government over lands bordering on tide water, the Supreme Court of the United States has held in the case of Hardin v. Jordan (140 U. S. 371), as follows:

" 'With regard to grants of the government for lands bordering on tide water, it has been distinctly settled that they only extend to high-water mark, and that the title to the shore and lands under water in front of lands so granted enures to the state within which they are situated, if a state has been organized and established there. Such title to the shore and lands under water is regarded as incidental to the sovereignty of the state—a portion of the royalties belonging thereto and held in trust for the public purposes of navigation and fishery—and cannot be retained or granted out to individuals by the United States.'

"The foregoing is a statement of the settled law, and therefore no rights can be granted to you either under the leasing act of February 25, 1920 (41 Stat. 437), or under any other public land law to the bed of the Pacific Ocean either within or without the three-mile limit. Title to the soil under the ocean within the three-mile limit is in the State of California, and the land may not be appropriated except by authority of the State. A permit would be necessary to be obtained from the War Department as a prerequisite to the maintenance of structures in the navigable waters of the United States, but such a permit would not confer any rights to the ocean bed.

"I find no authority of law under which any right can be granted to you to establish your proposed structures in the ocean outside the three-mile limit of the jurisdiction of the State of California, nor am I advised that any other branch of the Federal Government has such authority.

"Sincerely yours,

HAROLD L. ICKES, Secretary of the Interior."

A photostatic copy of the letter referred to will be filed with this honorable committee.

SPECULATORS AND PROMOTERS FILE ON TIDE AND SUBMERGED LANDS WITH DEPARTMENT OF INTERIOR

Following the discovery of oil in the submerged lands granted to the city by the State of California in the Harbor District of the city in 1936, as of July 7, 1947, 90 oil and gas lease applications under the Federal Mining Leasing Act of 1920, as amended, have been filed by speculators and promoters in the General Land Office of the Department of Interior, covering the greater portion of the 13,027 acres of said tide and submerged lands conveyed to the city, and 25 certificates of location under an Act of Congress of April 5, 1872, commonly known as the Valentine Scrip Act, and two certificates of location under an Act of Congress of February 10, 1855, commonly known as the Gerard Scrip Act, have likewise been filed with the General Land Office and Department of Interior covering portions of said lands. Said filings are made upon the theory that said tide and submerged lands are public lands of the Federal Government These applications are made by private citizens and corporations and cover parcels of tide and submerged lands and reclaimed tide and submerged lands title to which the city contends was conveyed to it by the State of California. These filings are located upon the entire 8.11 miles of waterfront of the City of Long Beach and extend seaward several miles, and likewise cover all of the municipality's harbor facilities, recreation and park improvements heretofore referred to, constructed by the city at a cost exceeding $25,000,000. Many of these applications have been held pending in the Department of the Interior for years. However, it is believed that approximately 58 of said 90 oil and gas lease applications were denied by a decision of the Department of the Interior dated September 8, 1947. A list of these applications will be filed with this honorable committee.

An outstanding example of the locations selected by one of the speculator-promoters making application for oil and gas leases as aforesaid are two such filings made by Robert E. Lee Jordan, Applications No. 052975 and No. 052976, both filed April 6, 1937. The first mentioned covers a large submerged area including within its boundaries portions of the federal breakwater, and the latter covers a large area including therein extensive harbor improvements constructed by the city at the cost of millions of dollars. To the best of our knowledge these two applications have not been denied by action of the Department of the Interior and the applicant has been and is now vigorously prosecuting said applications in an effort to obtain rights through the Federal Government to the lands covered therein, and thereby evict the City of Long Beach from the port improvements constructed by it and from possession of all the lands covered by said applications conveyed to the city by grant from the State. A U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey map of Los Angeles and Long Beach Harbors upon which has been portrayed the areas covered by said two filings will be filed with this honorable committee.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA V. STATE OF CALIFORNIA

The United States Supreme Court, in the case of United States of America v. California, No 12 Original, on June 23, 1947, rendered a decision holding that the Federal Government has certain paramount powers with respect to the "three-mile marginal belt" lying seaward of the ordinary line of the low-water mark on the coast of California and outside inland waters of the State of California and that the State of California has no title thereto or any property interest therein. The entire 13,027 acres of tide and submerged lands within the city limits of the City of Long Beach conveyed to it by grants from the State of California lie within San Pedro Bay, an inland water of the State of California. In the case of United States v. Carrillo, 13 Fed. Supp. 121, the Federal District Court held that San Pedro Bay was demarked from the open sea by a line drawn from Point Fermin to Point Lasuen; all of said tide and submerged lands conveyed to the city are located landward of said line. However, in said pending suit against the State of California the Department of Justice does not concede such to be the case, and said matter has not been determined by the Supreme Court in said litigation. The Attorney General for the Federal Government has filed with the Supreme Court a Petition for Entry of a Supplemental Decree, together with a form of proposed Supplemental Decree, in which it is sought to have the court establish a line demarking San Pedro Bay from the "three-mile marginal belt." Said proposed Supplemental Decree, if adopted by the court, will place all but a very small portion of San Pedro Bay in the "three-mile marginal belt" and thereby the City of Long Beach will lose its title, ownership, possession and control of all but a small portion of the 13,027 acres of tide and submerged lands within its city limits, conveyed to it by grants from the State of California.

The executive departments of the Federal Government are unwilling to recognize San Pedro Bay as inland waters of the State of California as determined by judicial precedent, and as established by geographical, physical and historical evidence. The city cannot be secure in its title and ownership of such of said lands which may be finally determined to be within inland waters. In the Government's brief in said case the theory of ownership of inland navigable waters and tidewaters is attacked as "erroneous," "unsound," "wrong," "fallacy," and a "legal fiction." The theory announced by the majority opinion of the Supreme Court as the basis for its decision can be equally applied to the title and ownership of all lands underlying inland navigable waters. A map of San Pedro Bay, published by the Long Beach Harbor Department, entitled, "California Coast Line—Point Fermin to Newport Beach," on which has been portrayed the Justice Department's proposed line demarking San Pedro Bay from the "three-mile marginal belt," the headland to headland line of San Pedro Bay as fixed by the Federal District Court in United States v. Carrillo, and the line demarking San Pedro Bay from the open sea as referred to by the Board of Rivers and Harbors, Deep Water Harbor Report, Senate Doc. 18-551, will be filed with this honorable committee.

CONCLUSION

In conclusion, may I repeat that the City of Long Beach has expended many millions of dollars of public funds in the improvement and development of the tide and submerged lands conveyed to it by grant from the State of California in good faith and in reliance upon what has long been recognized to be the settled rule of property law that title to such lands is vested in the states and their grantees. A great public harbor has been created by the city consisting of most modern port facilities for accommodation of the waterborne commerce of the Nation, and large submerged areas have been converted into park and recreational facilities for the pleasure and enjoyment of millions of people throughout each year. The city's harbor facilities were entirely devoted during World War II to uses by the Federal Government in its activities in successfully prosecuting the war. These port facilities are most efficiently and economically managed by the municipality in peace times and will be of inestimable value to the Federal Government in the event of any future emergency challenging the security of our Nation.

The city now stands to lose its title, ownership, possession and control of these tide and submerged lands, save and except possibly a very small portion thereof, unless the Congress of the United States adopts appropriate legislation that will safeguard to the city its just and equitable rights in said lands.

The Supreme Court, in its decision rendered June 23, 1947, recognizes that the question of ownership and control of said lands and natural resources in the "three-mile marginal belt" is within the "congressional area of national power" and that the Congress will not execute its powers "in such way as to bring about injustices to states, their subdivisions, or persons acting pursuant to their permission."

It is submitted that facts contained in this statement pertaining to the City of Long Beach are but an example of that pertaining in all states and municipalities throughout the Nation wherein navigable waters are included within their borders, and each is now faced with a disaster of tremendous proportions unless the Congress of the United States adopts appropriate legislation to prevent confiscation by the Federal Government of these long established property rights in the states and their grantees and quiet the title, possession and control of all lands beneath navigable waters.

On behalf of the City of Long Beach, California, I urge favorable action on and adoption by the Congress of Bill S. 1988, or similar legislation, whereby the Federal Government shall recognize, confirm, establish and vest in the respective states and their respective grantees and all persons lawfully entitled thereto title to and ownership of all lands beneath navigable waters within the boundaries of the respective states and their natural resources within such lands and waters, and the right and power to control, develop and use such natural resources in accordance with applicable state law. A certified copy of Resolution No C-11117, adopted by the City Council of the City of Long Beach at its meeting held on February 10, 1948, together with a certified copy of Resolution No. HD-333, adopted by the Board of Harbor Commissioners of the City of Long Beach at its meeting held on February 9, 1948, petitioning the Congress of the United States to act favorably upon and adopt S. 1988 pending before this committee, will be filed with the committee.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF LONG BEACH

The reply of the City of Long Beach indicates in large part substantial compliance with the conditions of the statutes of grant and the trust under which the granted lands are held. The record of leases to oil companies and leases or conveyances to manufacturing, industrial, and commercial corporations and other organizations, however, indicates a probable unauthorized use and administration of granted lands of major proportions. No value is given for the pier reported to be the only development on the granted lands pursuant to franchises or leases Revenues from the granted lands were stated to exceed $22,500.000 per year. The purposes to which these revenues are applied, including a reserve fund and development of parks and recreational facilities, quite probably constitute in themselves an unauthorized use and administration of the granted lands. Occupation or use of the granted lands by corporations or individuals includes that by two oil companies operating under contracts with the City of Long Beach and two leases to catering companies—both quite probably unauthorized uses and administration of such granted lands There has been a declaration by city officials that the title in fee to the granted lands have been settled in the City of Long Beach by numerous state and federal Supreme Court decisions. It must be understood that these decisions in no wise can affect the paramount interests of the State of California in the granted lands, as against the local political subdivision, the title and interest of which in such granted lands is subject to the paramount sovereignty, the State of California, as its wishes may be expressed through the Legislature.

Conclusion. The reply of the City of Long Beach is unsatisfactory, and further investigation by the committee is required, in the following particulars: There is evidence of substantial unauthorized use and administration of at least a large portion of the granted lands. Immediate surveys, research, examinations, and comprehensive and extensive investigations will determine the extent of such unauthorized use and administration and enable the committee to report to the Assembly on the advisability of reacquisition of all or a portion of the granted lands.

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. There is hereby granted to the City of Los Angeles, a municipal corporation of the State of California, and to its successors, all the right, title and interest of the State of California, held by said State by virtue of its sovereignty, in and to all tidelands and submerged lands, whether filled or unfilled, situated below the line of mean high tide of the Pacific Ocean, within the present boundaries of said city, or of any harbor, estuary, bay or inlet within said boundaries, except as hereinafter provided, to be forever held by said city, and by its successors, in trust for the uses and purposes, and upon the express conditions, following, to wit:

(a) That said lands shall be used by said city, and by its successors, for purposes in connection with, or for the promotion and accommodation of commerce, navigation and fishery, and said city, or its successors, shall not, at any time, grant, convey, give or alien said lands, or any part thereof, to any individual, firm or corporation for any purpose whatsoever; provided, that said city, or its successors, may grant franchises and permits thereon for limited periods, in any event not to exceed 30 years, for purposes in connection with, or for the promotion and accommodation of commerce, navigation and fishery, and may lease said lands, or any part thereof, for limited periods, in any event not to exceed 30 years, for any and all purposes which shall not interfere with the trusts upon which said lands are held by the State of California;

(b) That said tide and submerged lands shall be improved by said city without expense to the State, and any harbor constructed thereon shall always remain a public harbor for all purposes of commerce and navigation, and the State of California shall have, at all times, the right to use, without charge, all wharves, docks, piers, slips, quays and other improvements constructed by said city on said lands, or any part thereof, for any vessel or other water craft, or railroad, owned or operated by the State of California;

(c) That in the management, conduct or operation of any such harbor, or of any of the utilities, structures or appliances constructed in connection therewith no discrimination in rates, tolls, or charges, or in facilities, for any use or service in connection therewith shall ever be made, authorized or permitted by said city, or by its successors;

Reserving, however, in the people of the State of California, the absolute right to fish in said waters, with the right of convenient access to said waters over said lands for said purposes. The grant herein made shall not include those tidelands or submerged lands within those certain areas known as the Westgate addition acquired by the City of Los Angeles by annexation on June 14, 1916, or the Santa Monica Canyon addition acquired by the City of Los Angeles by annexation on April 28, 1925, or the Venice Addition acquired by the City of Los Angeles by consolidation on November 25, 1925.

An act to amend Section 1 of an act entitled "An act granting to the City of Venice the tidelands and submerged lands of the State of California within the boundaries of the said city," approved April 10, 1917, relative to grant of tide and submerged lands to the City of Venice.

[Approved by Governor July 18, 1945. Filed with Secretary of State July 18, 1945]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. Section 1 of the act cited in the title hereof is amended to read:

Section 1. There is hereby granted to the City of Los Angeles, the successor to the City of Venice, a municipal corporation of the State of California, and to its successors, all the right, title and interest of the State of California, held by said State by virtue of its sovereignty, in and to all the tidelands and submerged lands, whether filled or unfilled, and situated below the line of mean high tide of the Pacific Ocean, or of any harbor, estuary, bay or inlet within said boundaries, to be forever held by said city, and by its successors, the tide and submerged lands herein granted, being those situated in the former City of Venice, a municipal corporation, prior to its annexation to and consolidation with the City of Los Angeles, excepting any property held under, through or from a Mexican grant or patent therefor within the boundaries and jurisdiction of said former City of Venice, in trust for the uses and purposes and upon the express conditions following, to wit:

(a) That said lands shall be used by said city and by its successors, solely for the establishment, improvement and conduct of a harbor, and for the construction, maintenance and operation thereon of wharves, docks, piers, slips, quays, and other utilities, structures and appliances necessary or convenient for the promotion and accommodation of commerce and navigation; for the improvement, construction and use of, and for parks, playgrounds, streets, boulevards, bathing, bathhouses, and beaches, and for any purpose herein permitted, to reclaim and fill the same; and said City of Los Angeles, or its successors, shall not, at any time, grant, convey, give or alien said lands, or any part thereof, to any individual, firm or corporation for any purpose whatsoever; provided, that said city, or its successors, may grant franchises thereon, for limited periods, in any event not to exceed thirty (30) years, for wharves and other public uses and purposes, and may lease said lands, or any part thereof, for limited periods, in any event not to exceed thirty (30) years, for any and all purposes which shall not interfere with commerce or navigation, and are not inconsistent with the trusts upon which said lands are held by the State of California;

(b) That said harbor shall be improved by said city without expense to the State, and shall always remain a public harbor for all purposes of commerce and navigation, and the State of California shall have, at all times the right to use, without charge, all wharves, docks, piers, slips, quays and other improvements constructed on said lands, or any part thereof, for any vessel or other water craft, or railroad, owned or operated by the State of California;

(c) That in the management, conduct or operation of said harbor, or of any of the utilities, structures or appliances mentioned in paragraph (a), no discrimination in rates, tolls, or charges, or in facilities, for any use or service in connection therewith shall ever be made, authorized or permitted by said city or by its successors;

Reserving, however, in the people of the State of California the absolute right to fish in the waters of said harbor, with the right of convenient access to said waters over said lands for said purpose

MR ORVILLE R. CALDWELL
Executive Deputy, Office of the Mayor
Room 105, City Hall
Los Angeles 12, California

DEAR ORVILLE: In response to your communication of May 4, 1949, transmitting copy of communication addressed by Assemblyman Ralph C. Dills to his honor, the mayor, accompanied by a questionnaire regarding tidelands and submerged lands granted by the State, I submit the following with regard to the tidelands under the jurisdiction of this department:

In May of 1911, the State of California granted to the City of Los Angeles all of its right, title and interest held by virtue of its sovereignty in and to all tidelands and submerged lands, whether filled or unfilled, within the present boundaries of said city and situated below the line of mean high tide of the Pacific Ocean, or any harbor, estuary, bay or inlet within said boundaries, to be forever held by said city, and by its successors in trust, for purposes of commerce, navigation and fishery.

Article XI of the charter of the City of Los Angeles provides that the Board of Harbor Commissioners shall have possession and control, under the provisions of the charter, of the entire waterfront of the City of Los Angeles, of all navigable waters and all tidelands and submerged lands, whether filled or unfilled, situated below the line of mean high tide, within the limits of the City of Los Angeles, northerly and easterly of the government breakwater at Los Angeles Harbor, and the provisions of the article shall be deemed to, and shall, apply and appertain to such navigable waters and such tide and submerged lands.

The first bond issue voted by the citizens of Los Angeles for the development of the harbor was for the sum of $3,000,000, issued in June, 1911. During the next 12 years additional issues were approved, so that in all the total of $29,900,000 has been invested from general obligation bond funds in creating the present Los Angeles Harbor. These sums have been expended in the development of terminals to serve commerce in this area, including 23 transit sheds, with a combined length of 16,151 feet and a total square foot area of 1,702,812, providing adequate space and equipment for working 35 ocean liners simultaneously. Of the water frontage, 23,771 lineal feet are devoted to freight and passenger terminals, 10,166 lineal feet to the lumber industry, 12,874 lineal feet to the petroleum industry, 10,028 lineal feet to the fishing industry, and 17,054 lineal feet to shipyards.

Land has been leased to numerous industries which have, at their own cost and expense to the extent of many millions of dollars, developed the property adjacent to assigned wharves of the city to meet the requirements of their particular enterprises. In round figures, the areas assigned to the fish canning industry for cannery sites and purposes incidental thereto aggregate 1,600,000 square feet; 3,263,000 square feet have been leased for lumber receiving stations and storage; 4,000,000 square feet for the development of storage tanks and facilities incidental to the operation of marine oil terminals through which millions of barrels of oil are handled each year; 4,700,000 square feet to major shipyards; 556,000 square feet for small boat building yards; and some 7,000,000 square feet for miscellaneous businesses, practically all of which are devoted directly or indirectly to the promotion of commerce and fishery.

The department's estimated receipts for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1948, and ending June 30, 1949, are $3,600,000, of which $1,099,000 will be from land rentals to private individuals and corporations, $1,568,000 from dockage, wharfage, pilotage, storage, assignment charges, and warehouse rentals made under tariff provisions for the use of the publicly owned commerce facilities; in addition thereto, the department will receive some $50,000 from the operation of its municipal railway belt line facilities, $170,000 from the operation of the municipal ferries, and $700,000 from oil royalties on oil produced on harbor lands. These revenues can only be expended for the purpose of the development of the harbor, including its operation, the payment of interest on outstanding bonded obligations, and the payment of maturing bonds voted for the construction of the harbor. Because of the need of many new improvements, the Harbor Department has required all of its surplus receipts over and above operation expenses, maintenance and interest charges for new construction, and a tax has annually been levied to retire maturing bonds.

By an overwhelming favorable vote, the City of Los Angeles years ago granted to the United States of America title to an area of land at our main entrance approach, 2,800 feet in length by 1,000 feet in width, which land had been created by the Federal Government from depositing the dredging material developed from the widening of our main entrance channel from 500 feet to 1,000 feet. This was a voluntary grant on the part of the city in order to afford the government areas for the construction of facilities, most of which would be required at a port of this magnitude, such as the U. S. Public Health Service, Immigration Station, Lighthouse Service, etc.

During the war years many actions in condemnation proceedings were instituted, involving condemnation in some instances of fee simple title and in others short term leasehold interests. The City of Los Angeles, through friendly negotiations with the governmental agency concerned, was successful in each instance in having the condemnation for fee title set aside and the substitution therefor of a leasehold interest under terms and conditions which were satisfactory to the city. The Federal Government during the war years, either directly or through its facility contractors using Harbor Department water frontage, paid without question to the City of Los Angeles several million dollars for the use of our lands and terminal facilities, and our title to ownership or right to make reasonable charges therefor was not questioned, except in one instance, which was finally compromised to the satisfaction of both parties

Cordially yours,

ARTHUR ELDRIDGE
General Manager

Questionnaire Regarding Tidelands and Submerged Lands Granted by the State, as Submitted by the State Assembly Committee on State-Federal Cooperation in the Discovery, Production, Transportation, Refining, and Use of Petroleum

CITY OF LOS ANGELES
BUREAU OF ENGINEERING
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS

May 16, 1949

The answers given below apply only to the tide and submerged lands within that portion of the City of Los Angeles lying northwesterly of the United States Government breakwater at San Pedro.

The tidelands and submerged lands in the portion of the city lying northeast of said breakwater are under the jurisdiction of the Harbor Department and answers to the questionnaire covering those lands will be furnished by that department.

1. What officer or agency is charged with the duty of administering tidelands and submerged lands that have been granted by the State? The Board of Recreation and Park Commissioners.
2. What action has been or is being taken for the development and improvement of the granted lands? For the answer to this question reference is made to the attached statement entitled "Data on Santa Monica Bay, California" dated April, 1949. This covers tidelands and submerged lands on Santa Monica Bay, including those granted to Los Angeles.

On the tidelands and submerged lands in the portion of Los Angeles adjacent to and northwesterly of the breakwater the following developments have been made, all at Cabrillo Beach, which is located between the breakwater and Point Fermin.

1927—Sand fill of 500,000 cubic yards	$75,000
1932—Improvements consisting of a groin, picnic shelters, sewers, access road, and a bathhouse building also containing a marine museum and lunch room	74,000
1944—Stone sea wall	20,000
1948—Beach fill extension of 2,886,000 cubic yards	160,000
Total	$309,000

In the master plan of shoreline development it is proposed to spend approximately $1,000,000 in the improvement and protection of Cabrillo Beach.

3. Have public funds been expended for such purposes, and approximately in what amount?

On Santa Monica Bay
Beach extension and protection	$3,893 000
Improvement	132,000
Total	$4,025,000
At Cabrillo Beach
Beach extension and protection	$235,000
Beach improvement	74,000
Total	$309,000

4. What improvements have been made pursuant to franchises or leases and what is the approximate value thereof? A private amusement pier adjoining the southeasterly boundary line of the City of Santa Monica. Estimated value, $415,000.

There have been two other leases of tidelands and submerged lands at Venice, both of which have expired and the improvements thereon removed. One of these was opposite Washington Street and covered an area 700 feet by 1,200 feet The other extended from Horizon Avenue to Eighteenth Avenue and covered an area 950 feet by 2,000 feet The latter lease was improved by a large private amusement pier and breakwater, the value of which probably totaled close to $1,000,000. All the improvements have been removed except the breakwater, which is now public property.

5. What franchises or leases of such lands are currently in effect? A lease to Charles J. Lick covering the private amusement pier adjacent to the Santa Monica boundary line. The lease, which was made originally in 1924, has been extended to 1963 However, it contains a revocable clause permitting the lessor to cancel the lease in case the lands are needed for public development.

6. What are the present annual revenues received by the local agency from such lands, the sources thereof, and the purposes for which such revenues are used? Eight thousand dollars, of which $2,400 is from the lease described under Question 5, and $5,600 is from a lunchroom concession in the bathhouse at Cabrillo Beach.

These revenues are used for operation and maintenance of the city's public beaches.

7. To what extent, if at all, are any of the granted lands occupied or used by individuals or corporations? Privately only to the extent described in the answers to Questions 5 and 6.

Publicly for recreation purposes by the general public, including large numbers of people from outside the City of Los Angeles, from other counties and cities of California and from other states. A survey showed that 13 5 percent of the people visiting the public beaches came from outside Los Angeles County.

8. Has the local agency been divested of title or right to possession of any of the granted lands by reason of conveyance thereof by the local agency, eminent domain proceedings, agreements to determine boundaries, or otherwise?

Under the beach acquisition program instituted by the State from the 1945 appropriation of $10,000,000 made by the Legislature the State Park Commission required the City of Los Angeles to quitclaim to the State the tidelands and submerged lands adjoining private frontage acquired by said commission and the tidelands and submerged lands adjoining public beach frontage owned by the city and used to match the private frontage acquired by the commission.

This involved the tidelands and submerged lands between Forty-ninth Avenue in Venice and the north boundary line of the City of El Segundo, a distance of approximately 21,600 feet.

9. Have any judicial proceedings been commenced against the local agency affecting title or right to possession of any such granted lands? If so, list the names of the cases and state the effect of each judgment.

Although the City of Los Angeles is not a party to the case of United States of America v. California, No. 12 Original, that litigation affects all the submerged lands along the coast of California and therefore the submerged lands within the city limits of Los Angeles may be affected.

Geological and Geographical

In Recent geologic time the upper part of the San Pedro Hills, which form a headland between the south end of Santa Monica Bay and the east end of San Pedro Bay, was an island, as shown by a succession of wave-cut terraces on its slopes. The area between the hills and the mainland was raised to its present elevation by deposition of the products of erosion from the adjoining land mass, or by uplifts, or by a combination of both.

The Palisades at Santa Monica formerly were several miles seaward of their present location and were cut back by wave and current erosion.

Santa Monica Bay is located between 33° 46′ and 34° north latitude. The distance between Point Dume, its northwesterly headland, and Rocky Point, the southeasterly headland, is 26.7 miles The landward penetration of the bay is 11.3 miles, or 43 percent of its length The direction of the long axis is northwest-southeast.

The bay is fully exposed to the ocean on the southwest, from S. 27° W. to S. 85° W. It is protected by the Santa Monica Mountains to the north and northeast and by high bluffs and sand dunes and the San Pedro Hills to the east and south, except between Playa del Rey and Santa Monica, where the adjoining land is low (U. S. Coast Chart 5202)

Historical

Santa Monica Bay has been recognized as a bay since the earliest recorded voyage of discovery along the California coast

On the voyage of Cabrillo in 1542 Santa Monica Bay is described as follows:

"The following Sunday, on the eighth of said month, (October) they came near the mainland in a great bay which they named Bahia de los Fumos, on account of the numerous smokes which they saw around it * * * This bay is in 35°, and is a good harbor, and the country is good, with many valleys and plains and trees."

Reference to the smokes ties in to two known facts. Within comparatively recent times, underground fires have been known to exist there which could cause smoke. Also fires in the mountains, which occur now from time to time, could have been in progress during the visit of Cabrillo. The shoreline of Santa Monica Bay was well populated with Indians before the white men came.

Vizcaino (December, 1602) did not mention this bay, but it is plainly indicated on his chart, as well as the cape formed by San Pedro Hill, 1 475 feet elevation (Davidson, 1886).

Captain George Vancouver, a British naval captain, visited this coast in November, 1793, with two naval vessels. In the account of Vancouver's voyages, printed in 1798, Santa Monica Bay is described as follows: "here the coast took a direction S. 67° E. 16 miles to the north point of a deep bay, off which lie two or three small rocks; this point, which I called Point Dume, bore N 59° W.; the south point of the same bay, being the eastern-most point of the mainland in sight; this, being a very conspicuous promontory, I named after Father Vicente; * * * The northwest side of this bay was observed to be composed chiefly of steep barren cliffs; the north and eastern shores terminated in low sandy beaches, rising with a gradual ascent until they reached the base of a mountainous country, which had the appearance of being rugged and barren, not only at some distance behind the center of the bay, but extending towards the seacoast, and forming its extreme points, viz., Point Vicente, and Point Dume, which lie from each other S. 51° E and N. 51° W, 26 miles asunder"

The U. S. Coast Survey Topographic Sheet of 1871 (Register No. 1231), covering the south end of Santa Monica Bay, refers to it as part of the Bahia Ona. The name "Ona" apparently is an obsolete Spanish word meaning salty and is mentioned as having that meaning in the diary of the Bosque-Larios expedition of 1675 (See Bolton's "Spanish Exploration in the Southwest 1542-1706, page 299, published in 1925"). Naming the bay Bahia Ona must have been due to the salt pond and salt works which existed at Redondo Beach in the early days.

The first pier on Santa Monica Bay was constructed in 1872 in what is now Santa Monica, close to the location of the present municipal pier It was used to load tar, from the tar pits in Rancho La Brea, on boats which took it to San Francisco (Ranchos Become Cities, by W. W. Robinson 1939).

The next pier was constructed at approximately the same location in 1875 by the Southern Pacific Railroad Co. This was a railroad pier 1700 feet long It is shown on U S. Coast Survey Topographic Sheet (Register No. 1427), dated 1876.

In 1887 private interests dredged a channel entrance at Playa del Rey and attempted to dredge a harbor in the Ballona Lagoon. The project was known as Port Ballona. This is shown on the U. S. Coast Survey Topographic Sheet of 1887 (Register No. 1791).

A report was made in 1887 to the Redondo Beach Land Co. by Col. G H. Mendell, U S. Corps of Engineers and William H Hall, State Engineer of California, on the possibilities of a commercial port at Redondo Beach. The report was favorable and recommended the project.

The U. S. Topographic Sheet of 1893 (Register No. 2127) shows a railroad wharf 900 feet long at Redondo Beach, with six mooring buoys near its outer end. The U. S. Coast Chart of 1910 (Register No 3086) shows four piers at Redondo Beach, three of them being railroad piers. This place had considerable commerce for many years, particularly in lumber.

In 1890 the Southern Pacific Railroad Co. extended its railroad along the beach from Colorado Avenue in Santa Monica to a point about one-half mile west of Santa Monica Canyon. At that point a railroad pier was constructed a mile into the ocean. This pier was in use until San Pedro Harbor was improved by construction of the breakwater.

In 1892 a report was made by a board of five engineer officers of the U. S. Army on location of a deep-water harbor for Southern California at San Pedro Bay or at Santa Monica Bay. This report discussed the area just west of Santa Monica as well as Redondo Beach as a deep-water port. The report was authorized by Congress and was printed as Ex. Document No. 41, House of Representatives—52d Congress—2d Session, 1892.

In 1896 Congress authorized another board to report on the same matter. The report by this board is known as the Walker Report, after Rear-Admiral Walker, chairman. The report was printed as Document No. 18—Senate—55th Congress—1st Session, 1897.

Both boards recommended San Pedro as the location for the deep-water harbor.

In these two reports and the 1887 report on the Redondo Beach location, Santa Monica Bay was described as being very favorable in regard to weather and ocean conditions and freedom from severe storms. It was usually referred to as a roadstead, which is defined in the 1948 edition of Webster's unabridged dictionary as "a protected place where ships may ride at anchor."

The following quotation is taken from the Walker Report of 1896.

"The region where these two roadsteads (San Pedro Bay and Santa Monica Bay) are located is remarkable for general equability of weather and absence of storms. During a stay of 50 days in this vicinity, in what is known as the stormy season of the year, the board having these roadsteads under constant observation, there was not a day nor a night when an able vessel, well-found in ground tackle, could not lie in entire security at either place. All evidence shows the general absence of storm winds and that dangerous gales are rare.

"The heaviest seas come from the south or southwest. Notable storms are rare; they come, if at all, during the rainy season from November to March. The wind from April to October is generally from the northwest; it is sometimes boisterous, but not a storm wind. The greatest danger comes from a combination of distant ocean and local storms, producing the cumulative effects of local wind waves superimposed upon the long undulations of a great ocean swell."

A chart in the Manual of Procedure of the Federal Beach Erosion Board shows wind roses for various areas of the ocean off the Pacific Coast of the United States. The data from which the wind roses were prepared are from the long-term records of the Hydrographic Office of the Navy Department, as reported from ships at sea. For the area off the Southern California Coast the wind rose shows the prevailing wind direction at sea to be northwest. The percentage of time the wind blows from each direction is given below.

North	22%	South	1%
West	11%	Southeast	1%
Southwest	4%	Calm, light, variable	13%

Since October, 1938, this office has maintained an automatic wind recorder at Sunset Pier, Venice, which is near the center of the bay. The machine gives a continuous record of wind velocity and direction. Monthly tabulations of these records have been made for the period from November, 1938, to May, 1943, inclusive. During this 55-month period there were only 38 days on which the wind velocity reached 25 miles per hour or higher, only seven days when it reached 32 miles or higher, with a maximum velocity of 38 miles, which occurred on only one day. On the Beaufort wind scale, No. 6, with velocities from 25 to 31 miles, is listed as a strong breeze. No 7, with velocities from 32 to 38 miles, is listed as a moderate gale. On 29 of the 38 days when the wind velocity reached 25 miles per hour or higher the wind direction was from the west or southwest, on five days from the south, on three days from the southeast, and on one day from the northeast.

NOTE. The quotation from the Walker Report and the data on wind records, except the last paragraph, were included in "A Report on Erosion of the Beaches in the Venice District," prepared by this office in 1940.

The foregoing data indicates that Santa Monica Bay is a favorable location for shipping and has been used for that purpose for a period of at least 75 years.

In the latter part of the decade from 1890 to 1900 and in the first half of the following decade, intensive subdivisions of the shore of Santa Monica Bay took place, from Santa Monica Canyon to Redondo Beach. The value of the shoreline for recreation and residential purposes for the rapidly growing population was recognized. Amusement piers were constructed at Redondo Beach, Venice, and Ocean Park. Municipal pleasure piers were constructed in Santa Monica, Manhattan Beach, and Hermosa Beach.

In 1910 the Pacific Light and Power Co. constructed a steam generating plant at Redondo Beach, with a large saltwater intake conduit extending 800 feet offshore.

The Standard Oil Co. of California in 1911 developed a refinery at El Segundo and secured a 20-year franchise to construct a pier. This franchise was renewed in 1931 for an additional 20 years. The pier is 2,100 feet long and has a 36-inch and a 48-inch saltwater intake pipe for the refinery. The smaller tankers tie up at the end of the pier. The company also maintains a submarine oil loading station about one half mile seaward at the end of the pier, which serves the larger tankers. On the beach just north of the pier a pump house for a butadiene plant was constructed during the war. Its 42-inch saltwater intake pipe extends 1,200 feet offshore.

At Hyperion, a short distance north of the Standard Oil pier, the City of Los Angeles has maintained an outfall sewer of some sort for about 50 years. In 1924 a screening plant was constructed, and a submarine outfall seven feet in diameter was laid on the ocean bottom to a mile offshore. Due to the rapid increase in population and pollution of the waters of the bay adjoining the most heavily used bathing beaches of the metropolitan area, a large sewage treatment plant became necessary. This is now under construction and will be completed late in 1950 at a total cost of $41,000,000. A new submarine outfall sewer has been completed at a cost of $3,518,000. The tube is 12 feet in internal diameter and extends a mile offshore. The normal sewage flow through the new plant will be 350,000,000 gallons per day.

To clear the site of the treatment plant, excavation of 14,000,000 cubic yards of sand was required The sand was disposed of by spreading it along the shoreline for six miles upcoast, which created a beach with an average width of 600 feet. Extension of the twin jetties at the outlet of the Ballona Creek flood control channel 600 feet seaward was necessary because of this fill.

In 1933 the City of Santa Monica constructed an offshore breakwater to create a small craft anchorage. The breakwater is 2,000 feet long and 2,000 feet offshore, extending northerly from the municipal pier.

In 1939 the City of Redondo Beach constructed a breakwater near its north city limits to create a small craft anchorage.

The Southern California Edison Company recently completed a large saltwater intake conduit and pumping plant in connection with its new steam generating plant at Redondo Beach. This is located just north of the breakwater.

In 1945 the City of Los Angeles and the County of Los Angeles adopted a master plan of shoreline development. This plan provides for an extensive beach development along 13 miles of the shoreline, extending from Topanga Canyon to El Segundo, and a yacht harbor, or marina, at Playa del Rey, with a capacity of 8,000 pleasure craft of all sizes. The beach development will be constructed upon a huge ocean fill of 56,000,000 cubic yards, extending along the 13 miles of shoreline with an average width of 900 feet. The 14,000,000 cubic yards already placed is part of the total fill. The seaward 250 to 300 feet of the fill will be used as bathing beach. The remainder will be improved with a boardwalk, park, picnic and recreation areas, bath houses, swimming pools, parking fields, and scenic drives, much like the famous Jones Beach near New York City.

The 1945 State Legislature appropriate $10,000,000 for beach acquisition. About $4,000,000 of this was allocated for Los Angeles County. All of this is being used for beach acquisition along Santa Monica Bay. Much of the beach front in Los Angeles, Santa Monica, Manhattan Beach, Hermosa Beach, Redondo Beach and Palos Verdes Estates was already publicly-owned. The beach frontage purchased from the $4,000,000 allocation will nearly complete the public ownership of the shoreline within those cities. El Segundo and Torrance are the only cities along the bay with no publicly-owned shore frontage.

In June, 1948, the City Council of Los Angeles appropriated $35,000 to retain Madigan-Hyland, consulting engineers of New York City, to make an engineering and economic survey and report on the adopted master plan of shoreline development. The survey and report have been completed and $4,500 has been appropriated to print 1,000 copies.

Elimination of the salt-water intakes would cripple the plant, as in the case of the steam generating plant at Redondo Beach, since the domestic water supply is inadequate for this demand on it.

Hyperion Sewage Treatment Plant including a 12-foot outfall extending a mile into the bay	$41,000,000

The plant is now under construction and is designed for a population of 3,000,000 on the basis of an average dry weather flow of 245,000,000 gallons of sewage per day, with the peak dry weather flow of 350,000,000 gallons and the storm weather flow of 420,000,000 gallons. At the present rate of population growth, capacity of the plant now being constructed will be reached in 1953 The present population served by the plant is 2,488,000. Of this total about 1,925,000 is within the City of Los Angeles, 160,000 in unincorporated areas, and 317,000 in adjoining municipalities of Beverly Hills, Burbank, Culver City, El Segundo, Glendale, Santa Monica, and Vernon. It is estimated that the plant will have to be expanded to serve an eventual population of over 4,000,000 These data indicate how serious any interference with the submarine outfall would be.

The above listings of waterfront ownership comprise the actual beach frontage and the improvements thereon which would be directly affected by industrial developments on the adjoining lands below the mean low tide line.

Two natural offshore oil seepages on Santa Monica Bay plus illegal dumping of bilges from passing ships now cause a nuisance by the tar drifting onto the beaches. Operations of the Standard Oil Co. at El Segundo may also be a contributing cause.

Extensive leasing of the submerged lands for oil development would probably result in far greater pollution of the beaches by tar and oil, rendering them unfit for any recreational use; especially so, if control of the oil development is not in the hands of local agencies which are familiar with the problem from long experience and have the greatest interest in preserving the great recreational value of the shoreline.

In addition to the waterfront land and improvements listed above, there is a strip immediately adjacent, approximately a block in width, which would be indirectly affected because its value depends largely on the recreational use of the beaches.

The location, length, and value of this strip of land and improvements thereon are given below. These are all privately-owned.

Santa Monica	2.0 miles	$13,260,000
Los Angeles City (S. E. of Santa Monica)	3.5 miles	7,620,000
Hermosa Beach-Redondo Beach	3.0 miles	7,460,000

Local Population

The figures given under this heading are considered to be the population of the political subdivisions with frontage on Santa Monica Bay.

Incorporated Cities

Palos Verdes Estates	1,954
Torrance	18,572
Redondo Beach	23,650
Hermosa Beach	12,096
Manhattan Beach	14,892
*Los Angeles	2,021,236
Santa Monica	76,857
Subtotal	2,169,257
Unincorporated territory	16,000
Total	2,185,257

The above population figures are based on the regular quarterly estimate of the Los Angeles County Regional Commission for January, 1949.

*Los Angeles City extends landward from the shoreline of Santa Monica Bay a maximum distance of 20 miles and therefore its population comprises a large part of the population of the tributary area, for which figures are given in the next section

The other municipalities listed extend only from two to five miles from the shoreline.

Population of Tributary Area

A survey and report made by Madigan-Hyland, consulting engineers of New York City, mentioned above under the Historical Section, shows that 13.4 percent of the people visiting the beaches of Santa Monica Bay were from outside of Los Angeles County and 7.3 percent were from outside the State.

The estimated 1948 attendance at Santa Monica Bay beaches was 11,400,000 Using the above percentages gives 9,872,000 beach visitors from Los Angeles County, which has a population of approximately 4,000,000; another 696,000 visitors from other California counties, which have a population of about 6,000,000; and 832,000 from other states and foreign countries.

Estimated increase in beach attendance at Santa Monica Bay beaches is expected to reach 29,600,000 by 1970 due to the greatly increased facilities proposed in the planned development and the increase in population, which is expected to reach 6,000,000 in Los Angeles County by 1970.

Applying the same percentages to 29,600,000 gives 25,634,000, 1,805,000, and 2,161,000, respectively, as the annual number of beach visitors to Santa Monica Bay from the County of Los Angeles, the other counties of California, and other states and foreign countries.

Annual Value of Business From Beach Recreation

1. Under Present Conditions
2. After Planned Development Is Completed

1. In 1947 the New Jersey Council, Department of Economic Development made a survey of tourists visiting New Jersey Among other facts developed, it was shown that 70 percent stayed at seashore resorts, that 77.6 percent came by automobile and that the average expenditure per person was $77.

Statistics of the All-Year Club of Southern California show that in 1948 a total of 3,373,000 tourists visited the 10 counties of Southern California and that 89 percent of them were routed through Los Angeles Their total expenditure in Southern California was $457,838,000, an average of $136 per person

Taking the average of the New Jersey figure of $77 and the Southern California figure of $136 gives $107. Applying this figure to 1,528,000, the number of beach visitors from outside Los Angeles County gives $163,496,000 as the value of annual business from tourists to Southern California who also visited the beaches of Santa Monica Bay The New Jersey survey showed that 70 percent of their tourists preferred the seashore Applying the figure to the $163,496,000 gives $114,447,000 as the value of the tourist business attracted by the beaches and scenic beauty of the Santa Monica Bay shoreline

Taking the 1948 attendance figure of 11,400,000 and applying to it the percentage of those who drive to the beaches, 86 percent, gives 9,800,000. The survey shows that 3.3 is the average number of occupants per car. From this it can be computed that $2,050,000 is spent for gas annually in driving to the Santa Monica Bay beaches

The average beach visitor will spend at least $1.00 on each visit to the beach This adds another $11,400,000 to the annual value of business.

There are other less direct ways by which business values are created by the recreational use of the shoreline of Santa Monica Bay, but the above figures show that those beaches contribute very substantially to the economy of the Los Angeles region.

2 Using the same factors and applying them to the estimated annual attendance of 29,600,000 after the planned development is completed shows that the annual tourist business attracted by the shoreline of Santa Monica Bay will be $297,000,000 the annual gas cost in driving to those beaches $5,830,000, and beach visitors will spend $30,000,000.

It has previously been mentioned that the planned development of Santa Monica Bay includes a yacht harbor with a capacity of 8,000 craft.

The cost of gas and oil, maintenance and overhaul, equipment and supplies is estimated at $2,946,000 annually. This is only one item of new business value which will be added by this proposed harbor.

The above figure represents the value of only one source of new business which would result from construction of the yacht harbor. There are others, such as the increase in manufacture of boats and marine engines.

If oil development is permitted on the submerged lands of the bay, it will be unattractive to pleasure craft as well as hazardous.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF LOS ANGELES

The City of Los Angeles submitted a comprehensive and extremely detailed report to the committee, which reply, however, indicates probable unauthorized use and administration of granted lands of major proportions. It is important in this regard that the statute of grant of 1945, Chapter 1513, granting to the City of Los Angeles all those tidelands and submerged lands previously granted to the City of Venice in 1917, Chapter 77, after acquisition of the latter into the former, is much more broad in its scope and delineation of permitted uses than the previous statutes of grant to the City of Los Angeles proper. Therefore, granted lands within the boundaries of the former City of Venice are subject to considerably more authorized uses, particularly relating to recreational facilities, than are the balance of tide and submerged lands within the city limits of the City of Los Angeles. Approximately $5,000,000 is stated by the reply to have been expended from public funds for improvement and development of granted lands. This figure, however, appears to represent beach extensions and improvements only. The value of existing improvements on granted lands is stated to approximately $30,000,000, of which $5,000,000 represents improvements on what is called "private" lands, i e., tide and submerged lands owned by individuals and corporations. Particular reference is made to the Hyperion Sewage Treatment Plant of the City of Los Angeles, the value of which is estimated at $41,000,000. Planned improvements on tide and submerged lands, of the value of $60,537,000, may, upon investigation, be found in many instances to constitute unauthorized use and administration of the granted lands in question. Only $415,000 was stated to represent the value of improvements on granted lands pursuant to franchises or leases. It is noteworthy that this sum represents the estimated value of a privately owned amusement pier. The report that only that one lease, of the amusement pier, is existent on the granted lands, will merit further study. The statement that $5,600 is derived from a lunchroom concession in a beach bathhouse strongly infers unauthorized use and administration of the granted lands, at least in this particular instance. Use of revenue from the granted lands for operation and maintenance of the city's public beaches does not appear authorized under the statute of grant of 1929, Chapter 651, or any preceding statute of grant. The extent to which the granted lands are occupied or used by corporations or individuals, as reported in the reply to the committee's questionnaire, requires further examination. The fact that a large number of people using the city's public beaches reside outside the County of Los Angeles is not relevant. It is of urgent importance to raise the question at this point, respecting the reply to Question 8 of the questionnaire, whether granted lands acquired by duly authorized agencies of the State of California pursuant to legislative directive and authorization, are not subject to the same conditions and restrictions as to use and administration as are set forth in the statutes of grant of such lands to the local political subdivisions. Since every such statute by its terms applies to the grantee political subdivision's "successors," it would appear that granted lands alienated to agencies of the State of California should be examined regarding the use and administration thereof.

Conclusion. The reply of the City of Los Angeles was unsatisfactory, and further investigation is required, in the following particulars: In view of the present estimated value of the granted lands and developments thereof and improvements thereon, it is of the utmost necessity that the committee conduct extensive and comprehensive research, surveys, examinations, and investigations, so as carefully and accurately to determine whether the City of Los Angeles has substantially complied with the intents, purposes, conditions, and trusts of the statutes of grant; further, more complete, and more accurate information is essential before the committee adequately can report to the Assembly on the advisability of reacquisition of any or all of the granted lands and on whatever other procedures and actions may appear warranted by the use and administration thereof.

CHAPTER 669

An act granting to the City of Monterey the title to the water front of said city in the Bay of Monterey.

[Approved May 27, 1919]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. The State of California does hereby cede, grant and relinquish forever, unto the City of Monterey, a municipal corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of California, all the right, title, interest and estate whatsoever of the said State of California, of, in and to, all the real estate, lands and property situate within the corporate limits of said City of Monterey, and bounded and described as follows, to wit: Commencing at a point where the line of the corporation limits of said city strikes the bay of Monterey on the north, and running along the entire water front thereof in a southerly and westerly direction to the point where the southern or western boundary of said city strikes the said bay, comprising the entire water front of said city, out to a depth of 60 feet at low tide water; provided, that the rights of all persons, if any exist, under any title derived from said State of California, in and to any part of said property and premises hereby ceded and granted, be and the same are hereby reserved from the operation of this act.

SEC. 2. The entire water front hereby granted shall be held by the City of Monterey and its lawful successors forever, for the use and benefit of said city, and shall not be subject to execution upon any judgment against said city, but from time to time, may be let or leased for a term not exceeding 50 years, as the said city or its successors may deem to be most advantageous to said city; provided, that not more than 300 feet frontage of said water front shall be leased to one lessee; and provided, further, that at and upon any wharf erected or built upon property so leased any and all vessels shall have a right to dock, land and discharge passengers or merchandise upon payment to such lessee or lessees of reasonable dockage and wharfage. The dockage and wharfage shall be regulated and prescribed in such lease, and as thereafter, from time to time, may be determined by ordinance or resolution of said City of Monterey or by statute of the State of California.

SEC. 3. All acts or parts of acts in conflict herewith are hereby repealed.

DATA FURNISHED TO THE COMMITTEE BY THE CITY OF MONTEREY

CITY OF MONTEREY

CITY MANAGER

QUESTIONNAIRE REGARDING TIDELANDS AND SUBMERGED LANDS GRANTED BY THE STATE

September 11, 1948

1. The city manager has, under the charter, "general supervision over all city property, including public buildings, parks and playgrounds."
2. In 1868 the State of California granted to the City of Monterey the tidelands and submerged lands to a depth of 20 feet. Subsequently the City of Monterey was granted the submerged lands to a depth of 60 feet. For many years the city has owned and operated Fisherman's Wharf at the foot of Alvarado Street. The original cost of this wharf to the city was about $18,000. It was built by a steamship company, and sold to the city. Since its acquisition, the area has been extended. This has been done a little at a time, and there are no records of the cost of construction. It would cost approximately $150,000 to replace this structure.

   Municipal Wharf No. 2 was built in 1926-27 at a total cost of $298,000. The money was raised by a bond issue. This issue will be fully paid in 1964.

   The breakwater was built by the Federal Government at no cost to the city except the cost of the approaches to said breakwater. The city did participate in the capping of said breakwater to the extent of $10,000. This was done as a joint project by the Federal Government and the City of Monterey.

   Extensive improvements in the bay and on shore are contemplated if and when the proposed breakwater project (now being studied by Army Engineers) is completed. The improvements in mind are recreational and commercial.
3. Public funds have been expended for development and improvement of granted lands as indicated above. In addition to the amounts shown, many thousands of dollars have been spent in the maintenance of the structures described.
4. Almost the entire perimeter of Fisherman's Wharf is occupied by buildings of lessees. These buildings front on the wharf and extend into the water at right angles thereto for a distance of from 30 to 135 feet. In addition, two of the oil companies, Standard and Shell, have built finger wharves for the servicing of boats. The total value of the improvements of said lessees is estimated to be in excess of $250,000.

The warehouse on Wharf No 2 has been converted to the use of wholesale fish concessionnaires. The total value of the improvements and equipment of said concessionnaires is estimated to be in excess of $100,000.

There are currently 32 fish canneries and reduction plants in Monterey. In almost every instance the main plant is so constructed that a portion of the building extends into the submerged land area on piling. In many instances from 50 to 90 percent of the building is over tidelands or submerged lands. The total value of said improvements is estimated to be in excess of $1,600,000.

5. Franchises and leases covered in No. 4.
6. Local agency receives approximately $40.000 annually from the canneries and concessionnaires. This money and more is used to maintain the facilities for the lessees.
7. Less than 1 percent of the granted lands are occupied or used by private individuals or corporations.
8. Local agency has not been divested of title or right to possession of granted lands.
9. The only judicial proceedings affecting title of local agency is the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF MONTEREY

The reply of the City of Monterey, while it indicates substantial compliance with the conditions of the statutes of grant and the trust under which the granted lands are held, nevertheless raises a strong possibility of unauthorized use and administration of such lands in specific particulars. An important condition contained in the statute of grant of 1919, Chapter 669, stipulates that not more than 300 feet of frontage shall be leased to any one person, individual, association, or corporation. Compliance with this express condition in the statute of grant should be investigated, as should the planned commercial use of the granted lands. It is noteworthy that the purpose to which revenues from the granted lands are expended is stated to be to maintain facilities for the lessees. Application of such funds in this manner should be examined by the committee, with a view toward amendatory legislation to protect the revenues from the granted lands.

Conclusion. The committee should investigate the leasing of the granted lands, as mentioned above, and also examine the purposes for which revenues from the granted lands are expended.

CITY OF NATIONAL CITY

SENATE BILL No. 451

CHAPTER 28

An act conveying certain tidelands and lands lying under inland navigable waters, situate in the Bay of San Diego to the City of National City, in furtherance of navigation and commerce and the fisheries, and providing for the government, management and control thereof.

[Approved March 21, 1917]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

WHEREAS, Since the admission of California into the Union, all tidelands along the navigable waters of this State and all lands lying beneath the navigable waters of the State have been and now are held in trust by the State for the benefit of all the inhabitants thereof for the purpose of navigation, commerce and fishing; and

WHEREAS, It is the duty of the State to govern, administer and control such lands and to improve and develop navigation, commerce and fishing thereon and thereover; and

WHEREAS, The State has not the general power of alienation of such lands, but may, when the interests of commerce, navigation and fishing require it, convey to municipalities limited and defined areas of such lands with the power to govern, control, improve and develop the same in the interests of all the inhabitants of the State; and

WHEREAS, The conveyance to the City of National City of the lands hereinafter described, together with the right to govern, control, improve and develop the same will result in great advantage and benefit to all the inhabitants of the State, it is provided:

SECTION 1. There is hereby granted and conveyed to the City of National City, in the County of San Diego, State of California, all of the lands situate on the City of National City side of said bay, lying and being between the line of mean high tide and the pier head line in said bay, as the same has been or may hereafter be established by the Federal Government, and between the prolongation into the Bay of San Diego to the pier head line of the boundary line between the City of National City and the City of San Diego, and the prolongation into the Bay of San Diego to the pier head line of the boundary line between the City of National City and the City of Chula Vista.

SEC. 2. The City of National City shall have and there is hereby granted to it the right to make upon said premises all improvements, betterments and structures of every kind and character, proper, needful and useful for the development of commerce, navigation and fishing, including the construction of all wharves, docks, piers, slips, and the construction and operation of a municipal belt line railroad in connection with said dock system.

SEC. 3. No grant, conveyance or transfer of any character shall ever be made by the City of National City of the lands described in Section 1, or of any part thereof, but the said city shall continue to hold said lands and the whole thereof unless the same revert or be receded to the State of California. The Harbor of National City shall remain always a public harbor and the said city shall never charge or permit to be charged on

DATA FURNISHED TO THE COMMITTEE BY THE CITY OF NATIONAL CITY

NATIONAL CITY, CALIFORNIA

OFFICE OF THE ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICER

ASSEMBLYMAN RALPH C. DILLS
Chairman, Interim Committee on Petroleum Problems
California State Legislature
Sacramento 14, California

DEAR ASSEMBLYMAN DILLS: Your letter to Mayor Gilbert E. Fritz, of this city, has been referred to my office for reply. In answering the questionnaire which you enclosed in your letter, I shall not repeat the questions but shall answer them in the same numerical order as you have them listed.

1. The city council, City of National City, is charged with the duty of administering tidelands, and submerged lands that have been granted by the State.
2. The city council has made application to the Federal Government for assistance in a flood control and small boat harbor development, which has received preliminary approval. A complete study has been authorized by the Federal Government. The city council has, also, made tentative plans for a progressive development of the tidelands which would include dredging, quay wall construction, road development, and possibly some pier construction.
3. To date the amount of public funds that have been spent in making these plans would probably not exceed a thousand dollars.
4. The only lease now in effect is with the Santa Fe Railroad for a wye track. The value of which is approximately $25,000.
5. I believe Question No. 5 is answered in Question No. 4.
6. The annual revenue received is somewhat variable due to several beach right leases for salvaging purposes this year. The amount of the revenue was approximately $1,500. It came from leases, and is deposited in a Harbor Improvement Fund to be used for harbor development.
7. About 1 percent of the grant lands are being used at this time.
8. In answering Question No. 8, it might be well to explain, the Federal Government through Eminent Domain Proceedings, took 135 acres of our tidelands during the war period. Prior to that time in 1938, the City of National City, voted 96 acres to the Federal Government for the enlargment of the United States Naval Station, formerly known as the Destroyer Base. The agreement made between the government and National City at the time this land was obtained, was that the Federal Government would fill the remainder of our tidelands. Approximately 135 acres were filled, and several substantial leases were made by the city on this property. During the war the Navy found it necessary to expand and condemn the 135 acres. However, in the development of this land, they filled the balance of National City tidelands. The final settlement in this case was affected last year, so the tidelands which National City had developed, was taken by the government, and we now have undeveloped tidelands in our possession.

9. I believe Question No. 9 is answered in the foregoing Question No. 8.

If you desire further information concerning these tidelands, I will be glad to cooperate in any way that I can. I trust the foregoing answers will adequately serve your purpose.

Sincerely yours,

DELAVAN J. DICKSON
Administrative Officer

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF NATIONAL CITY

The reply of the City of National City discloses that tentative plans for compliance with the statutes of grant have been undertaken, in the application for federal flood control funds. Expenditures of public funds to date total less than $1,000, and contemplated expenditures are affirmed but unspecified. The lease to the Santa Fe Railroad and the so-called "beach right lease for salvaging purposes" both may, upon examination, be determined to constitute an unauthorized use and administration of the granted lands, in violation of the express conditions of the statutes of grant. The divestment of title and right to possession of 231 acres of the granted lands by the Federal Government should be subjected to close scrutiny.

Conclusion. The committee should conduct immediate and comprehensive surveys, research, examinations, and investigations to obtain sufficiently complete and detailed information relating to possible failure to develop and improve the granted lands, the leasing thereof, and the agreement of conveyance with the Federal Government, to which the State of California was not a party, in order to enable the committee adequately to report to the Assembly on the advisability of reacquisition of the granted lands.

RALPH C. DILLS, Chairman,
Assembly Interim Committee on Petroleum Problems
123 N. Tamarind Street, Compton, California

DEAR MR. DILLS: This is in reply to the questionnaire you sent the Mayor of the City of Oakland.

The waterfront of the City of Oakland has had a peculiar history and, consequently, would not be typical of the lands fronting on the harbors of the State. In 1852, when the Town of Oakland was organized, the legislative charter granted to the town all the lands within its borders between high tide and ship channel. Immediately upon its organization the town granted all of these lands to one Horace W. Carpentier. The phrase "ship channel" was defined to mean the line of low tide. Consequently, all tidelands proper, that is, lands lying between high and low tide within the original limits of Oakland, have been in private ownership, and no estimate of the improvements thereon or their value can be made; regardless to say, it runs into many millions of dollars.

It is therefore to be understood that the following replies to your questions relate only to lands that have been reclaimed below the original line of low tide.

(1) The Board of Port Commissioners of the City of Oakland is the agency having jurisdiction and control over the reclaimed and submerged lands along Oakland's waterfront

(2) Commencing in 1910 a desultory development took place with the erection of minor structures on these lands, but the real development did not begin until the formation of the Board of Port Commissioners in 1927. Since that time approximately 19,900 linear feet of berthing space has been provided along modern wharves and piers.

(3) A bond issue of $9,960,000 has been used in the development of these facilities together with, perhaps, a like sum derived from earnings which have been plowed back in the provision of new facilities

(4) Approximately 7,400 linear feet of bething space has been provided by private capital operating under franchises. The Southern Pacific Mole, together with part of its extensive freight yard, is located on such a franchise It is impossible to obtain information as to the value of these improvements.

(5) Approximately 118 leases and franchises are currently in effect on lands of this character.

(6) From these leases and franchises the Board of Port Commissioners derives an annual revenue of approximately $750,000 These revenues are used for the maintenance of existing harbor facilities and the construction of additional ones.

(7) See Nos. (4) and (5) and explanatory introductory paragraph.

(8) Approximately 400 acres of these lands situate in the Middle Harbor were granted by the city to the Federal Government for the development of the Oakland Naval Supply Depot. Approximately 322 acres of these lands were granted to the Federal Government for the development of Oakland Army Base. The lands were conveyed under compulsion because of the filing of eminent domain proceedings as to part of such lands and to part of the facilities already established by the city and which were deemed necessary for the maintenance of the commercial harbor. The conveyance was made reluctantly and by way of compromise to secure the return of part of such facilities.

(9) In United States of America v. Certain Parcels of Land in the County of Alameda, etc et al., No 21930-L, in the District Court of the United States, in and for the Northern District of California, Southern Division, and in United States of America v. Certain Land in the County of Alameda, etc. et al , No 22084-S, in the same court, the Federal Government asserted the right to take such lands granted by the State to the City of Oakland without compensation, including improvements thereon, for the use of the Army on the theory that such taking was within the right of the government to provide aids to navigation under the commerce power. It was argued that the Army and Navy existed to protect and foster commerce and that, consequently, any facility provided for the use of either was an aid to navigation within the meaning of the admitted right of the government to provide aids to navigation such as lighthouses, jetties, etc. The District Court rejected this contention in 53 Fed. Supp. 150. See also United States v 112.715 Acres of Land, Contra Costa County, Cal , 53 Fed. Supp. 143, which was a companion case and consolidated with the Oakland case for the determination of this point.

As a general observation under this point, it is the belief of the writer that the case of United States v. California, purportedly involving only those lands outside of harbors and lying below the line of low tide out to the three-mile limit, definitely presents a threat to the lands under the control of the Board of Port Commissioners of the City of Oakland. The writer can validate no line of reasoning based on any precedent which differentiates between the ownership of the lands along the coast and lands within bays or harbors. The theory of sovereign ownership commenced with lands under the seas and it has advanced into harbors and up navigable waters to the point where the tides cease to ebb and flow. This was the result of the conclusion that the latter waters partook of the nature of the sea because of the presence of the tides. The writer is fearful that the doctrine of the United States v. California may in some future case be extended to cover all lands under navigable waters.

In conclusion, may I compliment the committee for making this study. In preparation for hearings before committees of Congress, those of us who have been directing it have had difficulty in compiling data such as you are now doing. It will be invaluable when the tideland legislation comes up in the next Congress.

Very truly yours,

W. REGINALD JONES

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF OAKLAND

The reply of the City of Oakland, through the Board of Port Commissioners of the Port of Oakland, shows a substantial compliance with the conditions of the 17 statutes of grant of tide, submerged, and reclaimed lands and with the trust under which the granted lands are held. No value is given for improvements pursuant to franchises and leases. Apparently the use and administration of the granted lands has been in conformance with the intents and purposes of the statutes of grant. However, the reported 118 leases on the granted lands, and the alienation of a portion of the granted lands to the Federal Government should be scrutinized.

Conclusion. The committee should investigate the leases of the tide, submerged, and reclaimed land granted to the City of Oakland and the conveyance of a portion thereof to the Federal Government.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE COUNTY OF ORANGE

The reply of the County of Orange discloses a substantial compliance with the conditions of the statutes of grant and the trust under which the granted lands are held. The reply is not clear, however, with regard to leases and franchises relating to the granted lands, in that no leases or franchises are said to be currently in effect, and no improvements resulting from leases or franchises are reported, but the county reports a revenue of $2,500 a year from the granted lands in the form of rentals, although it is stated that none of the granted lands is used or occupied by individuals or corporations.

Conclusion. The committee should investigate the matter of leases and franchises of or relating to the granted lands, and the questions of improvements thereon, revenues therefrom, and the use and occupancy thereof.

DEAR MR. DILLS: In response to your questionnaire of July 26th and in the same order are the answers to your questions.

1. The city manager is charged with the duty of administering tidelands and submerged lands that have been granted by the State.
2. We are contemplating the development of a yacht harbor.
3. About $300.
4. A pier has been constructed at about a cost of $20,000.

5. A concessionaire has a lease for renting boats and taking glass bottom boat trips.
6. Seven hundred fifty-nine dollars were paid the city during last fiscal year. The source was from the above-mentioned boat concession. The revenues were expended for maintenance of the beach and waterfront.
7. None of the lands are occupied or used by individuals or corporations.
8. No.
9. No.

Sincerely yours,

A. D. COONS
City Manager

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF PACIFIC GROVE

The reply of the City of Pacific Grove indicates formulation of plans for compliance with the conditions of the statutes of grant and with the trust under which the granted lands are held, although a satisfactory degree of compliance has not yet been achieved The single lease reported a boat concession, and the matter of the revenues derived therefrom and the purposes for which those revenues are expended should be examined by the committee. Despite the lease to a commercial boat concession, the report states that none of the granted lands is used or occupied by individuals or corporations.

Conclusion. The committee should investigate the leasing of the granted lands, the amount of revenues derived from such leasing and the purposes for which such revenues are expended, and the matter of the use and occupancy of the granted lands.

An act granting to the City of Pittsburg and its successors certain salt, marsh, tide and submerged land of the State of California, including the right to wharf out therefrom and grant franchises and leases thereon, and regulating the management, use and control thereof, also including the right of said city to collect the rents, issues and profits in any manner hereafter arising from the lands for wharf out privileges hereby granted.

The City of Pittsburg may lease upon such terms as it shall deem advisable, for a term not exceeding 25 years, any of such land or any wharves, docks or piers constructed thereon, and all such leases so executed shall reserve to the council of the City of Pittsburg the right and privilege, by ordinance, to annul, change or modify such leases as in its judgment may seem proper subject to the terms and conditions therefor contained in such leases, respectively.

QUESTIONNAIRE REGARDING TIDELANDS AND SUBMERGED LANDS GRANTED BY THE STATE

1. Which officer or agency is charged with the duty of administering tidelands and submerged lands that have been granted by the State? City Council.

2. What action has been or is being taken for the development and improvement of the granted lands? No action (no money).

3. Have public funds been expended for such purposes, and, if so, approximately in what amount? Fifty thousand dollars.

4. What improvements have been made pursuant to franchises or leases and what is the approximate value thereof? Buildings and wharfs, $75,000.

5. What franchises or leases of such lands are currently in effect? Twenty-two leases.

6. What are the present annual revenues received by the local agency from such lands, the sources thereof, and the purposes for which such revenues are used? Approximately $3.138.

7. To what extent, if at all, are any of the granted lands occupied or used by individuals or corporations? Ninety percent.

8. Has your local agency been divested of title or right to possession of any of the granted lands by reason of conveyance thereof by the local agency, eminent domain proceedings, agreements to determine boundaries, or otherwise? No.

9. Have any judicial proceedings been commenced against your local agency affecting title or right to possession of any such granted lands? If so, list the names of the cases and state the effect of each judgment. No.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF PITTSBURG

The reply of the City of Pittsburg is interesting, in that it states that while no action has been taken for the development and improvement of the granted land, $50,000 in public funds have nevertheless been expended for that purpose. Improvements made pursuant to 22 leases are reported to be of the approximate value of $75,000, from which the city derives an annual income slightly in excess of $3,100. No statement is made of the purposes for which those revenues are expended. The astounding total of 90 percent of the granted land was reported to be used or occupied by individuals or corporations.

Conclusion. The committee should conduct an immediate and extensive investigation into the matter of the development and improvement of the granted land, both by public expenditures and by lessees, and the purposes for which revenues from the granted lands are applied. By obtaining complete and detailed information and data in these particulars, the committee will be able adequately to report to the Assembly on the advisability of reacquisition of the granted lands by the State of California.

CITY OF REDONDO BEACH

CHAPTER 57

An act granting certain tidelands and submerged lands of the State of California to the City of Redondo Beach upon certain trusts and conditions.

[Approved April 12, 1915]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. There is hereby granted to the City of Redondo Beach, a municipal corporation of the State of California, and to its successors, all the right, title and interest of the State of California, held by said State by virtue of its sovereignty, in and to all the tidelands and submerged lands, within the present boundaries of said city, and situated below the line of mean high tide of the Pacific Ocean, to be forever held by said city, and by its successors, in trust for the uses and purposes, and upon the express conditions following, to wit:

HONORABLE G. DELBERT MORRIS, Chairman,
Interim Committee on Petroleum Problems,
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR SIR: Your communication of February 19, 1951, has been forwarded to me for reply. May I express my regrets in that your original communication has not been answered. However, it is not surprising considering several changes that have been made in the administration during the last year in the City of Redondo Beach.

I am assuming that the questions are directed towards the utilization of tideland and submerged lands for the purpose of petroleum development and the answers thereto are in that light.

In reply to question No. 1, the city manager is charged with the duties of administering all city business and such other affairs as may be related thereto. The answers to the succeeding eight questions are all in the negative To the best of my knowledge, no attempt has been made to develop the tidelands off Redondo Beach nor is there existing any options or court actions relative to the probable development of such submerged areas.

Trusting this reply will meet with the requirements of your communication, I remain,

Very truly yours,

G. W. COFFEY
City Manager

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF REDONDO BEACH

The reply of the City of Redondo Beach to the questionnaire of the committee is self-explanatory. In view of the admission that no action has been taken or is contemplated to develop or improve the granted lands, there is a complete lack of compliance with the intents, purposes, and conditions of the statute of grant of 1915, Chapter 57.

Conclusion The recommendation of the committee with respect to the tidelands and submerged lands granted to the City of Redondo Beach is contained in the recommendations of the committee set forth at the conclusion of this report.

CITY OF SAN BUENAVENTURA

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1. There is hereby granted to the City of San Buenaventura, a municipal corporation in the County of Ventura, State of California, all the right, title and interest of the State of California, held by said State by virtue of its sovereignty, in and to all the tidelands and submerged lands (whether filled or unfilled) situated below the line of mean high tide of the Pacific Ocean and lying between the prolongation of the west boundary line of the City of San Buenaventura into the said Pacific Ocean and the prolongation of the east boundary line of the said City of San Buenaventura into the Pacific Ocean, to be forever held by said city, and by its successors, in trust for the uses and purposes and upon the express conditions following, to wit:

(a) That said lands may be used by said city for the establishment, improvement and conduct of its harbor and for the construction, maintenance and operation thereon of wharves, docks, piers, slips, quays, and other utilities, structures and appliances necessary or convenient for the promotion of commerce and navigation and fisheries and for the establishment and maintenance of bath houses and bathing facilities, and for such other recreational facilities necessary or convenient for the inhabitants of said city; but said uses shall not be deemed to deprive the City of San Buenaventura of the rights granted to it by Article XVIII of its charter, to appoint harbor commissioners, to create or be a part of a harbor district, and to take any and all other steps that it may from time to time deem advisable for the improvement and maintenance of its waterfront and harbor and for the development and conduct of port facilities and commerce; and said city may, in pursuance of the provisions of said Article XVIII of the said charter, lease any portion of the waterfront for public recreational purposes for a term of not exceeding 10 years, and a lease may be made for such other purposes or for a longer period if such lease be submitted to the electors and approved by a vote of two-thirds of those voting thereon, if the purposes of the lease are consistent with the trust upon which said lands are held by the State of California and with the requirements of commerce and navigation of said harbor;

(b) That said harbor shall be improved by said city without expense to the State of California, and it shall always remain a public harbor for all purposes of commerce and navigation, and the State of California shall have at all times the right to use without charge all wharves, docks, piers, slips, quays and other improvements constructed on said land or any part thereof for any vessel or other water craft, or any railroad, owned and operated by the State of California;

(c) That in the management, conduct or operation of said harbor or any of the utilities, structures or appliances mentioned in paragraph (a) no discrimination in rates, tolls or charges in facilities for any use or service in connection therewith shall ever be made, authorized or permitted by said city;

(d) That there is reserved for the people of the State of California the absolute right to fish in the waters of said harbor, with the right of convenient access to said waters over said lands for said purpose;

(e) That the said city shall not, upon said land, prospect for, nor remove therefrom, any oil, gas or other hydrocarbon substances, nor shall it suffer or permit the removal of same.

(f) That in the event drilling for oil, gas, or other hydrocarbon substances, shall take place upon land other than that herein granted, and so located that like drilling shall be reasonably requisite for the proper protection of the land hereby granted from drainage by such wells, then the State of California, for itself and for all persons authorized by it, expressly reserves the right to enter upon the said land for the purpose of drilling thereon such well or wells as shall be reasonably requisite for the proper protection of said land from drainage, and may produce and save oil, gas, or other hydrocarbon substances, from such well or wells, free from any claim of the said city.

QUESTIONNAIRE REGARDING TIDELANDS AND SUBMERGED LANDS GRANTED BY THE STATE

1 What officer or agency is charged with the duty of administering tidelands and submerged lands that have been granted by the State?
Answer: No improvements belonging to city, and no one charged with any duty.

2 What action has been or is being taken for the development and improvement of the granted lands?
Answer: Have granted waterfront to State under control of Park Commission, State Division of Beaches and Parks, Department of Natural Resources

3 Have public funds been expended for such purposes, and if so, approximately in what amount?
Answer: Wharf valued at $75,000 granted to State by city.

4 What improvements have been made pursuant to franchises or leases and what is the approximate value thereof?
Answer: None.

5. What franchises or leases of such lands are currently in effect?
Answer: None

6 What are the present annual revenues received by the local agency from such lands, the sources thereof, and the purposes for which such revenues are used?
Answer: None.

7. To what extent, if at all, are any of the granted lands occupied or used by individuals or corporations?
Answer: Wharf operated by State Park Commission, two submerged pipe lines used by oil companies

8. Has the local agency been divested of title or right to possession of any of the granted lands by reason of conveyance thereof by the local agency, eminent domain proceedings, agreements to determine boundaries, or otherwise?
Answer: Yes—granted to State.

9 Have any judicial proceedings been commenced against the local agency affecting title or right to possession of any such granted lands? If so, list the names of the cases and state the effect of each judgment.
Answer: None.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF SAN BUENAVENTURA

The reply of the City of San Buenaventura is largely self-explanatory. The answers, however, are insufficient in describing the nature of the conveyance to the State of California and the operation of certain facilities on granted lands by the State Park Commission. In this regard the observation in the analysis to the reply of the City of Los Angeles, relating to continuing effect of conditions contained in grants to political subdivisions where such subdivisions subsequently convey such granted lands to an authorized agency of the State of California, is pertinent here.

Conclusion. The reply of the City of San Buenaventura is unsatisfactory, and further investigation by the committee is required, in the following particulars: Nature of the conveyance of granted lands to the State of California, and operation on such lands of certain facilities by the State Park Commission.

2. Q What action has been or is being taken for the development and improvement of the granted lands? All lands have been and are being improved and developed in accordance with a 20-year plan prepared by the harbor engineer and consulting engineer. Approximately 1,200 acres have been reclaimed by dredging fill of which 700 acres are presently included in the Municipal Airport (Lindbergh Field) and the remaining 500 acres leased to various tenants or used for streets.

3. Q Have public funds been expended for such purposes, and, if so, approximately in what amount? Harbor Development Bonds have been issued in the amount of $3,270,500, and grants from the General Fund of the City of San Diego have totaled $1,200,000, a combined total of $4,470,500.

4. Q What improvements have been made pursuant to franchises or leases and what is the approximate value thereof? The San Diego County Assessor's appraisal of tidelands and tideland improvements for 1951 is $9,204,503. These improvements include dredging, filling, pier construction, buildings and railways.

5. Q What franchises or leases of such lands are currently in effect? Approximately 250 leases are in effect covering operations of aircraft plants, shipyards, canneries, restaurants, garages, parking lots, lumber yards and other business and recreational activities.

6. Q What are the present annual revenues received by the local agency from such lands, the sources thereof, and the purposes for which such revenues are used? Present annual revenues are approximately $700,000, received from land and building rentals, concession returns on retail business, wharfage, dockage and parking meters. (See enclosed annual report.) All revenues are used for the operation and development of the port.

7. Q To what extent, if at all, are any of the granted lands occupied or used by individuals or corporations? Approximately 80 percent of the tidelands are presently occupied by private individuals, corporations and governmental agencies—all covered by leases or permits.

8. Q Has the local agency been divested of title or right to possession of any of the granted lands by reason of conveyance thereof by the local agency, eminent domain proceedings, agreements to determine boundaries, or otherwise? About 630 acres of undeveloped tideland and submerged land were deeded to the Federal Government by the citizens of the city, starting in 1916. The purposes for which these lands have been used include the 11th Naval District Headquarters, Naval Training Center, Naval Station, Navy Pier, Naval Supply Depot, Marine Corps Recruit Depot and the Coast Guard Air Station.

Approximately 16½ acres have been deeded to the City and County of San Diego for the location of the Civic Center Administration Building.

9. Q Have any judicial proceedings been commenced against the local agency affecting title or right to possession of any such granted lands? If so, list the names of the cases and state the cases and state the effect of each judgment. No.

ANNUAL REPORT OF THE HARBOR DEPARTMENT
July 1, 1949-June 30, 1950

The Fiscal Year 1949-50 was marked by an increasing tempo in the activities of the various divisions of the Harbor Department. Traffic through the port continued to show an increase. A number of continuing negotiations resulted in the acceptance and execution of long term leases. Plans relating to the future development of Lindbergh Field and the establishment of policies relating to its operation were further crystallized. The reclamation of additional tidelands, the dredging of large areas in the bay, and the construction of port facilities were carried out under private contract and by Harbor Department forces.

Following the trend established within the past few years, revenue traffic through the Port of San Diego continued to increase. Commercial ship arrivals and departures were up 25 percent from the previous year, and in several categories of trade routes, inter-coastal cargoes were up 70 percent, coast-wise cargoes 300 percent, and imports were up 12 percent. A total of 1,282,385 tons, valued at $77,090,980 entered and departed the port during the Fiscal Year 1949-50. This total is actually less than that shown on reports for the last year due to the fact that Navy petroleum products delivered in naval vessels to naval facilities are no longer included in the tonnage total. Petroleum products delivered in privately owned vessels to private storage facilities showed considerable decrease from the previous year.

Efforts leading towards the development of additional cargo are being constantly exerted; and in addition, closer liaison is being maintained with consuls, commercial attaches and foreign trade missions of various foreign countries in an effort to promote and develop export and import trade through the port. During the past year a foreign trade mission sponsored by the Government of Sweden representing the glass and woodworking industries of that country paid San Diego a visit of several days duration. Facilities were made available through the Harbor Department for the display of their products and interviews with importers were arranged to determine the acceptability of their products for use in the United States.

The Institute of Aeronautical Sciences on the night of May 9, 1950, was the scene of the premiere of the 16 mm. sound-color motion picture, "The Harbor of the Sun." Government officials, representatives of the armed forces and the Coast Guard, civic leaders and their guests were in attendance to see the motion picture which had been conceived and produced by the Harbor Department working in conjunction with a Hollywood producer. Since that date nearly 1,000,000 people have seen the motion picture in color and through the aid of television. Color prints have been scheduled for showings in such cities as San Francisco, Los Angeles, Kent, Ohio, St. Paul, Buffalo and New York City. Schedules have also been arranged for the televising of prints over stations in such key cities as San Francisco, Phoenix, Salt Lake City, Omaha, San Antonio and Fort Worth. Further arrangements are being made to show the picture in practically every major city in the United States, and it is estimated that before the film is retired from service an estimated audience of over 10,000,000 will have seen the beauties of the Bay of San Diego, its port traffic, commercial and sport fishing activities, the varied operations on Lindbergh Field and the recreational aspects of the bay. The cost of bringing this story to the public has averaged approximately one-half cent per individual, and it is estimated that this will be reduced to almost one-tenth of a cent before the film is retired.

Departmental revenues for the Fiscal Year 1949-50 totaled $665,145, an increase of 17 percent over the revenues of 1948-49. This increase was especially gratifying in view of the fact that it marked an increase of over 38 percent over the Fiscal Year 1947-48, and permitted the Harbor Commission to begin appropriating large sums of money for the development for the Bay of San Diego, the construction of the 10th Street Pier, the extension of the 28th Street Pier to deep water, the dredging of the embarcadero basin and the dredging of the yacht and commercial basins with the resulting extension of the Byron Street Mole to connect with Shelter Island were the major projects approved by the commission. These projects required a total appropriation of $1,396,000. The work required to be done by the Engineering, and Maintenance and Construction Divisions in connection with outside contracts resulted in a reduction of the departmental operating cost to $258,300, a reduction of nearly 25 percent under the budget of the previous year. It can be anticipated that upon the completion of these projects which will occur shortly after the start of the 1950-51 Fiscal Year, sufficient Harbor Department personnel will be released to begin a major program of maintenance on the facilities of the Bay of San Diego. This will result in an increase in the operating budget of the department.

The past year has also seen the advent of daily air cargo flights on Lindbergh Field by a nationally known air cargo carrier and the establishment of intra-state operations. The statistics for operations on the field are broken down as follows:

Air Traffic:	In	Out
Passengers	75,753	82,728
Air freight	713,654 lbs.	1,024,655 lbs.
Air express	337,462 lbs.	116,777 lbs.
Air mail	603,816 lbs.	589,846 lbs.
Aircraft Activity (landings and take-offs):
Air carrier	16,377
Military	7,397
Civilian	56,444
Total	80,178

One of the major improvements completed on Lindbergh Field during the fiscal year was the construction of new quarters for the Departments of Customs, Immigration and Public Health. By establishing these departments in a separate building immediately adjacent to the field, the handling of aircraft to and from foreign countries was tremendously facilitated. A contract was also entered into during the year with an outstanding architect to prepare plans for the remodeling and modernization of the Airport Terminal Building, which has been a long awaited development on the Municipal Airport.

Major engineering and construction projects undertaken during the Fiscal Year 1949-50 are summarized below

Dredging. Approximately 537,000 cubic yards of material was removed by dredging in the 10th Street area which provided the necessary channels and slips to a depth of 31 feet to serve the new 10th Street Pier structure approximately 226,500 cubic yards were removed to deepen the Embarcadero Boat Basin to a depth of 18 feet which, with future pier and bulkhead construction in this locality, will give the tuna fishing fleet an adequate anchorage basin and fulfill a long-felt need in harbor development

The dredging of some 20,000 cubic yards of material in the 28th Street Pier project has been completed, and a part of the material has been stockpiled, awaiting the construction of the exterior masonry pier walls which will contain the fill

Waterfront recreation facilities have received their share of improvements during the year in the dredging of approximately 1,000,000 cubic yards of material in the Municipal Yacht Harbor at Roseville. This dredging has provided a new 400-foot entrance channel south of the recreation basin with a 20-foot depth, an anchorage area 20 feet in depth, and created a connecting channel 15 feet deep from the basin's entrance to the foot of Canon Street. Several additional acres have been dredged to a 15-foot depth, and all other shallow depths in the recreation basin have been deepened to a minimum of 10 feet

A total of $285,045 in harbor funds has been expended in the dredging and reclamation of municipal tidelands during the year

Reclaimed Lands Bay dredging not only provides deeper waters, but the dredged material serves to reclaim many acres of valuable property. Dredging in the 10th Street area has made possible the reclamation of approximately 30 acres of tidelands, and makes 18 additional acres available for industrial development The dredging at 28th Street produced some 20,000 cubic yards of material needed to make the fill for the Mole Pier in extending the 28th Street Pier to deep water at the U S Pierhead Line Material from the Embarcadero Boat Basin was used to fill to grade some 70 acres of undeveloped ground lying westerly and adjacent to the airport, and the dredged material from the yacht harbor has created a new causeway 6,000 feet in length and 300 feet wide, along the main bay channel with its connection to the mainland at the foot of Byron Street Mole This connection, which adds approximately 1,000 feet to the extension of Byron Street across tidelands, now forms two separate boat basins, a north basin used exclusively for commercial purposes, and a south basin for recreational use A conservative estimate of the value of all land reclaimed during the year will exceed $1,000,000.

Pier Construction Work on 28th Street Pier, a mole structure 210 feet in width, has been in continual progress throughout the year. Dredging to a depth of 30 feet at mean lower low water has been completed along the off-shore end of the structure which will permit the economical unloading of vessels used in the lumber trade and bulk commodities The 28th Street Pier extension, along with 672 lineal feet of the 10th Street Industrial Pier structure, is scheduled for completion in the early part of December. The design of both piers is new for this coastal vicinity; consisting of a solid tremie rip-rap gravity section to an elevation of plus 3 and solid mass concrete above this elevation. The low bid for the combined work on both piers, based on engineer's estimated quantities, was $617,000. Actual expenditures for the two unified projects during the year amounted to $486,659.

Increased interest and patronage for the sport and commercial fishing industry necessitated further investment of harbor funds in the area bounded by Harbor Drive, Dickens Street, Scott Street, and the waterfront. Anchorage Piers Nos 1, 2, and 3 have been completed, and all available anchorage space is in use Piers 1 and 2 are assigned to commercial fishing craft, and Pier No 3 is used exclusively by sport fishing vessels Pier No 1, 434 feet long and 10 feet in width, constructed of rail piles with wood deck, was built by harbor department personnel and equipment during the fiscal year at a cost of $10,433 92 It provides 45 17-foot slips for commercial fishing boats and along with Piers No. 2 and No 3 produces a revenue of approximately $11,804 each year Final improvements for the shore line from Pier No 2 to Dickens Street were completed This project included the laying of approximately 3,500 square feet of hand-laid cemented rip-rap slope protection, 5,000 square feet of asphalt paved promenade walkway, 1,000 lineal feet of concrete curb separating the walkway from the newly improved parking area. Numerous full-grown, transplanted, date palms now line the walkway, giving an air of scenic beauty which is enjoyed by thousands of visitors throughout the year

Harbor forces and equipment, in addition to completing the above mentioned work, worked in conjunction with a private contractor to complete the improvement of Scott Street, from Dickens Street to Harbor Drive, a distance of four blocks Work involved in this project included the finish grading and paving of Scott Street by a private contractor with four inches of asphalt pavement The construction of approximately 866 lineal feet of standard concrete curb, approximately 2 500 square feet of concrete sidewalk, along with three concrete catch basins and connection to existing drainage structures and the necessary sewer and water extensions were completed with harbor forces and equipment.

A long awaited improvement was completed at the foot of Addison Street The two unloading piers, serving the cannery prior to the commencement of the project, and located in the recreational area, were removed. One of these, the old Hovden Pier, a landmark in this vicinity for over 35 years, was demolished and the material discarded. The other pier, built some five years ago, was taken down and reconstructed in the commercial basin adjacent to a newly constructed pier 225 feet in length and 18 feet wide The cost of removing flumes, conveyors, tanks, and other structures above the decks on the old piers, and their installation on the new piers, was borne by the cannery; all other costs of demolition and new pier construction was accomplished by contract with harbor funds in the amount of $22,790. The inlet in which the piers were formerly operated has been filled with dredging material creating some 60,000 square feet of additional tidelands.

Airport. Two projects of major importance were completed during the year on Lindbergh Field. The removal of the old cab on the control tower and its replacement with a larger, modern, no-glare-glass cab at a contract price of $5,418 has filled a long-time need. New equipment installed by the C. A. A. now insures maximum service and protection to incoming and outgoing air traffic. Continued progress in development of the commercial area for Lindbergh Field has been maintained, and extensive grading and filling operations with harbor forces and equipment are being carried on periodically. Contract work during the year in this area consisted of the installation of 1,718 lineal feet of eight-inch vitrified clay sewer pipe with manholes and appurtenances, and the installation of two three-inch sewage pumps at a total contract price of $7,407 80. Completed minor projects at the airport include painting and roof renewal for the C. A. A. quarters in the control tower, alterations to Biloxi School building to provide facilities for foreign plane inspection, and the repainting of runway and taxi strip markings on the field.

Wake Boulevard, an airport roadway used by Convair planes to reach the waterfront, was widened 25 feet by the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corporation. The intersection of Wake Boulevard with Harbor Drive was widened and paved, and extensive chain link wire gates and fence installations were made under two separate contracts by the Harbor Department, one for $6,395 for the gate and fence construction, and $4,277 for paving the intersection.

Tideland Street Improvement Work For the protection and guidance of heavy traffic and the efficient and safe parking of autos and trucks along Harbor Street between Market and Ash Streets, a contract was let to install 4,870 lineal feet of reinforced concrete curb, which now divides the street into traffic and parking lanes. The contract price and extra work amounted to $10,458.16

Minor improvements to Emerson Street extension across tideland include the construction of 150 lineal feet of concrete curb, the installation of 240 lineal feet of six-inch vitrified clay pipe for sanitary sewer extension and the installation of 233 lineal feet of six-inch transite water main with fire hydrant This work was accomplished with Public Works Department labor and equipment cooperating with Harbor Department forces, and paid for with harbor funds.

Municipal Tideland Buildings. For the first time in the history of the Harbor Department, a serious fire damaging municipally owned property on the tidelands was experienced Fire of unknown origin broke out on November 3, 1949, in the northwest corner of the Fish Market Building, located at the foot of Pacific Highway, and caused damage which required a contract for $45,168.41 to restore the building to its former condition. Insurance fully covered the cost of repair Painting of the exterior surfaces of the Fish Market Building after restoration, along with the waterfront offices located at 410 to 422 Harbor Lane, the Fire Station Building located at the foot of Harbor Lane, the Shore Boats Building located at 1050 to 1060 Harbor Street, and the Municipal Warehouse Building located at 1265 Harbor Drive, was completed during the year under one contract amounting to $4,829.94 Periodic painting of municipally owned buildings along the waterfront, not only provides protection against rapid deterioration by sea air, but also adds considerably to the beautification of the waterfront

"G" Street Pier. Periodic work continued on "G" Street Pier with two contracts being completed during the year, one being the construction of a landing pier, 75 feet long and 24 feet in width, for the Pan American Fisheries Company, which was completed at a cost of $6,752 22. The other contract called for the installation of a sanitary sewer consisting of 376 lineal feet of eight-inch vitrified clay pipe, two manholes and appurtenant work which was completed at a cost of $1,495. Relocation of the six-inch transite water line on the pier necessitated the removal and installation of approximately 500 lineal feet of six-inch transite pipe with appurtenant valves and fittings The work was accomplished with labor force and equipment from the City Water Department.

Many other minor improvements requiring skilled labor and knowledge in practically every type of construction work was undertaken and completed with harbor personnel and equipment.

Maintenance and repair work was carried on throughout the year efficiently and economically. The diversified work of maintenance included the repair and maintenance of railway tracks, piers, floats, boats, pontoons, bulkheads of all types, street repairs, parking areas, sewer, water and drainage lines, buildings and other diversified types of work

Engineering and Drafting Engineering and drafting work, under the direction of the harbor engineer working with George F. Nicholson, Consulting Engineer, has kept pace throughout the year with the accelerated speed maintained in the accomplishment of port development and tideland improvements With the exception of contractural architect's services required for the Airport Administration Building and Sport Fishing Building, all plans and specifications for the various projects have been completed by the Harbor Department. Continual studies to relieve the ever-increasing traffic problem along the 10 miles of waterfront has resulted in new plans for parking and roadways soon to be submitted for approval Promotional maps, profiles and sketches to aid in securing government funds for surveys in connection with the 34-mile Laguna Tunnel were completed The value of the finished tunnel project to the City of San Diego, and particularly to the Port of San Diego, cannot be overestimated.

Contemplated New Work

Airport. Continued progress will be made for the development of the area set apart for nonscheduled flight and aviation school activities. Plans for paved roadways, drainage, domestic water and fire protection have already been made.

Plans and specifications are ready, and bids will soon be received to pave a concrete apron covering 218,000 square feet in an area west of the present administration building.

Architectural plans for the modernization of the airport administration building are being prepared by contract.

Plans have been made and approved for the installation of air conditioning equipment to be installed in the airport traffic control tower.

New Buildings The old Coast Guard Building, 27 feet by 72 feet located at the foot of Canon Street and acquired by the city at the end of World War II is scheduled for removal to the Byron Street Mole and will be remodeled to suit a new tenant engaged in the building of small boats. Moving and remodeling costs are estimated at $2,500

Plans and specifications for a new Customs Building, located on the waterfront near the foot of Date Street, are ready for bids and completion of the building is scheduled early in the coming year.

Piers. Overcrowding anchorage for sport and commercial fishing vessels, necessitated the appropriation of additional funds for the construction of Piers 4, 5, 6, 7 and 8 in the commercial basin at Roseville. The influx of vessels from points north along the coast has been phenomenal Contracts for the construction of these piers will be executed in the immediate future. Work on Pier No 4 is already under way with harbor personnel and equipment and is approximately 50 percent complete.

Studies are under way preparatory to the drawing of plans for a Tuna Boat Anchorage Pier, 560 feet in length and 20 feet in width, to be located in the Embarcadero Boat Basin Early estimates indicate a cost of approximately $70,000.

Studies and plans are being prepared for the demolition and replacement of 6,300 lineal feet of fender system for the protection of "B" Street Pier, Broadway Pier, and the Embarcadero apron wharf. Continued work on 10th Street Pier, and the development of the adjacent 48 acres of tidelands along with paving, water and sewer lines, and lighting facilities for 28th Street Pier has produced a backlog of engineering studies and plan preparation.

Bulkheads. Many thousands of tons of rip-rap to protect the new dredged fills, now being completed, will be required during the coming year.

Sewers. Over-all studies of the waterfront tending to eliminate the flow of sewage and cannery wastes has long been under way. Plans and specifications for one major project, which will adequately solve the sewage problem in the area northwest of Crosby Street, are ready for bids and require the installation of approximately 2,000 lineal feet of pipe of 15-inch to 27-inch diameters and a pumping plant equipped with three 4-inch sewage pumps and powered by three 15 h.p. electric motors.

Continued progress will be maintained in the development along Byron Street Mole to its connection with Shelter Island. This work will consist of preparation of areas for new leases and construction of needed street improvements, sewer and water line extension, and drainage facilities to accommodate new lessees.

Streets and Paving. Plans are being prepared for streets to service the reclaimed land in the 10th Street Pier area and to improve streets in the vicinity of the 28th Street Pier. It is anticipated that contracts for this work will be let during the coming year. Negotiations with the Santa Fe Railroad have been initiated to acquire property which will permit a straightening of Belt Street in the vicinity of the San Diego Marine Construction Company. The existing roadway paralleling the bulkhead at the foot of Crosby Street is also scheduled for realignment and servicing.

Very truly yours,

JOHN BATE,
Port Director

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF SAN DIEGO

The reply of the City of San Diego is indefinite with respect to whether the development and improvement of the granted lands constitute substantial compliance with the terms and conditions of the statutes of grant, of which there are twelve, or constitute unauthorized use and administration of such lands. The general inference of the reply, however, leaves little doubt that there has been in numerous instances such unauthorized use and administration Particular reference in this regard is made to the answers to Questions Nos. 5, 7, and 8

Conclusion. The reply of the City of San Diego is unsatisfactory, and further investigation by the committee is required, in the following particulars: there is evidently unauthorized use and administration of granted lands of major proportions, with respect to which immediate surveys should be made and extensive and comprehensive research, examinations, and investigations conducted, to enable the committee to gain sufficiently complete and detailed information and data regarding the same, so that the committee can adequately report to the Assembly on the advisability of re-acquisition of such granted lands by the State of California.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE COUNTY OF SAN LUIS OBISPO

The reply of the County of San Luis Obispo discloses a substantial compliance with the conditions of the statute of grant and with the trust under which the granted lands are held. However, the statement that 1,600 feet of frontage, plus upland areas, are controlled by ten leases now in effect, read with the report that all of the leased land is occupied by individuals, marks the possibility of an unauthorized use and administration of the granted lands.

Conclusion. The committee should investigate the leases of the granted lands, the use and administration of such lands, and the purposes to which the revenues therefrom are applied. By obtaining sufficiently complete and detailed data and information, the committee will be able adequately to report to the Assembly on the advisability of reacquisition of the granted lands.

CITY OF SAN MATEO
CALIFORNIA

August 30, 1948

RALPH C. DILLS, Chairman
Sacramento, California

DEAR MR DILLS: Mayor Creed Haberlin has asked this office to reply to your questionnaire, dated July 26, 1948, relative to tidelands and submerged and reclaimed lands, lying within the city, which have been deeded to the city by the State of California. We will answer the questions in numerical order as they are listed on the questionnaire:

1. The City Manager, City of San Mateo, is the officer charged with the duty of administering tidelands and submerged lands that have been granted by the State. The city has deed to approximately 1,300 acres which were deeded to the city in 1930. Over 1,200 acres are located in the San Francisco Bay, and are under water at the present time.
2. A portion of this acreage is being utilized at the present time as a municipal dump and approximately 4½ acres have been reclaimed to this date by "dump refuse" fill.
3. Approximately $1,000 has been expended for the improvement of this area, the major portion of the expenditure being for fencing.
4. No additional improvements have been made pursuant to franchises or leases.
5. No leases or franchises are in effect at the present time.
6. The total annual revenue received is $600 from the City of Hillsborough, which has been authorized to use the dumping facilities.
7. No individual or corporation occupies these lands at the present time.
8. The City of San Mateo has not been divested of title or right of possession for any reason.
9. No judicial proceedings have been commenced affecting title, nor have any judgments been rendered.

We trust this information will be of help to your committee.

Very truly yours,

ARTHUR B. SULLIVAN
City Manager

Assistant Manager

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF SAN MATEO

The reply of the City of San Mateo indicates a substantial compliance with the conditions of the statutes of grant and with the trust under which the granted lands are held. While no extensive use has been made of the granted lands, the reply is satisfactory in all particulars except that concerning the revenues from such lands. The purposes for which the revenues from the granted lands are expended are not stated

Conclusion The committee should examine the purposes for which revenues from the granted lands are expended, in order to determine whether such purposes constitute an unauthorized use and administration of such lands.

CITY OF SAN RAFAEL

CHAPTER 83

An act granting to the City of San Rafael the salt marsh, tide and submerged lands of the State of California, within the present boundaries of said city, including the right to wharf out therefrom, and regulating the management, use and control thereof.

[Approved May 2, 1923]

The people of the State of California do enact as follows:

SECTION 1 There is hereby granted to the City of San Rafael, a municipal corporation of the State of California, and to its successors, all the right, title and interest of the State of California, held by said State by virtue of its sovereignty, in and to all the salt marsh, tide and submerged lands, whether filled or unfilled, within the present boundaries of said city, and situated below the line of mean high tide of the Pacific Ocean, or of any harbor, estuary, bay or inlet within said boundaries, to be forever held by said city, and by its successors in trust for the uses and purposes, and upon the express conditions following, to wit:

The State of California shall have, at all times, the right to use, without charge, all wharves, docks, piers, slips, quays and other improvements constructed on said lands, or any part thereof, for any vessel or other water craft or railroad, owned or operated by the State of California

That in the operation, management or conduct of said harbor, or of any wharves, docks, piers, slips, quays or property or any improvements constructed or operated on said lands, no discrimination in rates, tolls, or charges or in facilities for any use or service in connection therewith shall ever be made, authorized or permitted by said city or its successors.

DEAR SIR: Your letter of July 26, 1948, addressed to the ex-Mayor William S. Nook has been referred to this office for reply.

The following are the answers to your questionnaire regarding tidelands and submerged lands granted by the State:

1. The City Council is charged with the duty of administering tidelands and submerged lands that have been granted by the State.
2. No action has been or is being taken for the development and improvement of the granted lands.
3. No public funds have been expended for such purposes.
4. No improvements have been made pursuant to franchises or leases.
5. The "goose neck" canal lease is the only lease of such lands currently in effect.
6. No annual revenues are received from this lease.
7. The "goose neck" lease includes a very small portion of the total area of granted lands.
8. The City of San Rafael has not been divested of title or right to possession of any of the granted lands by reason of conveyance thereof by the local agency, eminent domain proceedings, agreements to determine boundaries, or otherwise.

9. No judicial proceedings have been commenced against our local agency affecting title or right to possession of any such granted lands.

Respectfully submitted,

R. A. BOEGE
City Manager

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF SAN RAFAEL

The reply of the City of San Rafael is largely self-explanatory. There has been no compliance with the intents, purposes, and conditions of the statute of grant. The report is not clear regarding the so-called "goose neck" canal lease. No reason is given for the statement that no revenues are derived from that lease.

Conclusion. The committee should investigate the matter of the so-called "goose neck" canal lease and the reasonable rental value of the granted land subject thereto. The committee's recommendation in situations of this type, involving lack of compilance with the intents, purposes, and conditions of the statute of grant, is contained in the recommendations of the committee set forth at the conclusion of this report.

CITY OF RICHMOND

MR. G. DELBERT MORRIS, Assemblyman
Chairman, Interim Committee on Petroleum Problems
State Capitol, Sacramento 14, California

DEAR SIR: Your letter dated February 19th, 1951, addressed to Mayor Bradley of the City of Richmond requesting response to a questionnaire prepared by the Assembly Interim Committee on Petroleum Problems has been referred to this office for reply.

Since incorporation of the City of Richmond (1905), the city has received only two grants of tidelands or submerged land from the State of California. The first of these grants approved by the Legislature under date of June 11, 1913, is of no significance to the city: first, because it conveys only those lands which lie between the line of mean high tide and the line of mean low tide; and second, practically 100 percent of the tideland involved had previously been conveyed by the State to private owners. Reference is made to Tideland Commissioner's Map No. 1 of the Salt Marsh and Tidelands in Contra Costa County, on file with the Division of State Lands at Sacramento.

The second grant, obtained in 1947 (Senate Bill No. 424), covers navigable submerged land adjacent to Point San Pablo at the northwest extremity of the city. The latter is of value to the city only in that it provides undisputed access to dock facilities known as Pier 4 and to certain fish reduction plants, etc.

With particular reference to the questionnaire prepared by your Interim Committee, please be advised as follows:

1. The city manager is charged with responsibility to administer tideland negotiations.
2. The above-mentioned grant of June 11, 1913, actually gave the city title to little or nothing because the State had already sold tidelands to provate individuals Submerged land at Pier 4, covered by grant of 1947, has not ben improved other than the repair, maintenance and altertaion of dock facilities adjacent to the submerged lands which are navigable and accommodate deep water berthing alongside docks.
3 Public funds expended for improvement of deep water submerged lands has been negligible. Maintenance dredging has from time to time been carried on alongside docks.
4. Existing docks adjacent to Pier 4 have been repaired from time to time.
5. Pier 4 has been leased to Parr-Richmond Terminal Corporation since 1926 for terminal transfer operations.

6. Annual revenue from Pier 4 averages less than $6,000, a portion of which may be ascribed to revenue from submerged lands by virtue of the fact that a portion of dock facilities encroaches beyond U. S. Bulkhead Line. A nominal revenue is also received from Pier 1, a portion of which extends beyond original "Tidelots Line."
7. At Pier 1 of the Inner Harbor of the City of Richmond, the Parr-Richmond Corporation occupies and utilizes transit shed and dock families , a small portion of which occupies tideland. The city is presently negotiating with the State for a grant to cover the latter occupancy.
8. The City of Richmond has not been divested of any right of possession or title to granted lands.
9. No judicial proceedings have been initiated against the City of Richmond affecting title or right of possession of granted lands. There have never been any oil drilling operations carried on in the City of Richmond.

Very truly yours,

EDWARD A HOFFMAN
Director of Public Works
City of Richmond

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF RICHMOND

The reply of the City of Richmond indicates substantial compliance with the terms of the statutes of grant, although the answers to Questions 3, 4, and 5 infer that such compliance is not to the full extent that the best interests of the city should require The purposes to which revenue from the granted lands are applied are not disclosed.

Conclusion. The reply of the City of Richmond is unsatisfactory, and further investigation by the committee is required, only in the following particulars: There is a possibility of failure substantially to comply with the intents and purposes of the statutes of grant, and more adequate and complete information is needful regarding leasing of the granted lands and the purposes to which revenues therefrom are applied. Such further investigation will enable the committee to report to the Assembly on the advisability of reacquisition of the granted lands to protect the paramount interests of the State of California and the general public in such granted lands and the trusts under which they are held.

HON. RALPH C. DILLS, Chairman
123 N. Tamarind Street, Compton, California

DEAR MR. DILLS: Your letter of July 26, 1948, addressed to former Mayor R. E. Schafer has been referred to me for reply.

I shall attempt to answer your questionnaire regarding tideland and submerged lands granted by the State of California to the City of Santa Monica in the order in which your questions were put.

1. Which officer or agency is charged with the duty of administering tidelands and submerged lands that have been granted by the State?

   Answer: Recreation Department.

2. What action has been or is being taken for the development and improvement of the granted lands?

   Answer: There have been built two pleasure piers, an auditorium, breakwater, and other improvements made by the Recreation Department for the benefit of the people using the beaches.

3. Have public funds been expended for such purposes, and, if so, approximately in what amount?

   Answer:

Municipal Wharf	1919 Bond Issue	$75,000	$1,155,000
Breakwater	1931 Bond Issue	690,000
Auditorium	1920 Bond Issue	325,000
Dredging		65,000

4. What improvements have been made pursuant to franchises or leases and what is the approximate value thereof?

   Answer:

S. M. Pleasure Pier (I. D. Loof)	$75,000	$2,275,000 Approx.
Ocean Park Pier	1,500,000
Lick Pier	25,000

5. What franchises or leases of such lands are currently in effect?
Answer:
1. S. M. Pier—Walter D. Newcomb ..... Expires 6/7/57
2. O. P. Amusement Pier ..... Expires 6/30/66
3. Charles Lick ..... Expires 6/28/66

6. What are the present annual revenues received by the local agency from such lands, the sources thereof, and the purposes for which such revenues are used?

Answer:
1. 2% of Gross—Approx. $1,500 per year
2. $5,300 per year
3. $600 per year

In addition thereto, the Municipal Pier, Harbor and Auditorium produce gross revenues of approximately $45,000 per year. Revenues from the three franchises listed in (6) are taken into the General Fund, as is also the revenue from the Municipal Pier and Harbor, less operating costs. Revenue derived from rental of the Auditorium is taken into the Park Fund. Total gross revenues received by the city from its own and leased or franchised operations are approximately $52,400 annually.

7. To what extent, if at all, are any of the granted lands occupied or used by individuals or corporations?

Answer: Only to the extent indicated by the answers to (5) above.

8. Has your local agency been divested of title or right to possession of any of the granted lands by reason of conveyance thereof by the local agency, eminent domain proceedings, agreements to determine boundaries, or otherwise?
Answer: No.

9. Have any judicial proceedings been commenced against your local agency affecting title or right to possession of any such granted lands? If so, list the names of the cases and state the effect of each judgment.

Answer:

Carpenter v. City of Santa Monica (1944), 63 Cal Ap. 2d, 772, wherein it was determined that the State or its successor in interest, which in this instance would be the city, is the owner of artificial accretions formed below the mean high tide line. Such accreted land does not belong to the upland owner. This is true whether such artificial accretions were added rapidly and perceptible or gradually and imperceptibly. The artificial accretions in this instance were caused by the erection of the breakwater.

Los Angeles Athletic Club v. City of Santa Monica (1944), 63 Cal Ap 2d 795, wherein it was determined also that artificial accretions caused by the breakwater as in the Carpenter case, belong to the State or its successor in interest. It further pointed out that the littoral rights of an upland owner who owns no title to tidelands adjoining his property are subject to termination by whatever disposition of the tidelands the State or its grantees, in the exercise of their trust, choose to make.

Muchenberger v. City of Santa Monica (1929), 206 Cal 635, wherein it was determined that a municipality may, by agreement, determine the boundary line of its property even when such boundary line is to determine the line of ownership between uplands and tidelands held by the city in trust.

It should be noted that in the first two cases hearings were denied by the State Supreme Court.

In addition to the foregoing cases, of course, the Santa Monica tidelands are involved in the case of United States v. State of California, better known as the Tideland Case.

We trust the above information is complete and satisfactory, and if there are any further questions, please feel free to submit them to this office.

Yours very truly,

R. M. DORTON
City Manager

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF SANTA MONICA

The reply of the City of Santa Monica indicates probable unauthorized use and administration of state-granted tide, submerged, and reclaimed lands, particularly with regard to the privately owned and privately operated amusement centers maintained on such lands It is important in this respect that the revenues from these three amusement center leases or franchises are diverted to the city's general fund, rather than being earmarked for harbor development and improvement or the other purposes authorized by the statute of grant.

Conclusion. The committee should conduct examinations, research, and investigations into the leasing of the granted lands, in order to ascertain if the use and administration thereof is unauthorized by the statute of grant, and also into the purposes for which the revenues from the granted lands are applied. Information and data thus obtained will enable the committee to report to the Assembly on the advisability of reacquiring the granted lands by the State of California.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE COUNTY OF SONOMA

The reply of the County of Sonoma reports an unauthorized use and administration of lands granted by the State of California to that political subdivision in 1943, Chapter 218. The granted lands were authorized by the Legislature to be used only for the purpose of a public park, whereas an aircraft landing field has been constructed thereon and individuals and corporations apparently have proprietary interests therein

Conclusion. The committee should investigate the unauthorized use and administration of the lands of the State of California granted to the County of Sonoma, in order to report to the Legislature on the advisability of reacquisition of such lands by the State.

QUESTIONNAIRE REGARDING TIDELANDS AND SUBMERGED LANDS GRANTED BY THE STATE, AND ANSWERS THERETO BY THE CITY OF VALLEJO

1. Which officer or agency is charged with the duty of administering tidelands and submerged lands that have been granted by the State?

   The administering of tideland matters is a function of the Vallejo City Council and City Manager's Office. The city manager is the chief administrator of the city. All leases or contracts require the approval of the legislative body.

2. What action has been or is being taken for the development and improvement of the granted lands?

   In 1914, the city began the reclamation of the major part of such lands by the construction of timber and rock bulkheads and earthen retaining levees located along or closely paralleling the bulkhead lines established in the harbor by the War Department, followed by the filling of the areas between such retaining structures and the shore line with earth dredged from the harbor and hauled from the upland.

   The improvement of such reclaimed areas has proceeded intermittently by construction of the following:

   (1) Streets and highways.
   (2) Railroad.
   (3) Sanitary sewers.
   (4) Storm sewers.
   (5) Water distribution pipes.
   (6) Fuel gas mains.
   (7) Electric power pole lines.
   (8) Telephone pole lines.
   (9) Wharves.
   (10) Piers
   (11) Concrete seawall.
   (12) Pier sheds.
   (13) Commercial and industrial buildings.
   (14) Automobile parking lots.
   (15) Parks.
   (16) Veterans' memorial park.
   (17) Recreation fields, buildings and piers.
   (18) Federal housing.
   (19) Municipal bus terminal
   (20) Ferry terminals.
   (21) War balloon anchorages.
   (22) Lumber yard.
   (23) Petroleum products tankage and storage.
   (24) Concrete aggregate bunkers.
   (25) Heavy construction storage yard.
   (26) Automobile service stations.
   (27) Ice house.
   (28) U. S. Naval Barracks.
   (29) U. S. Naval Shipyard office building.
   (30) Dwellings.

(31) U. S. rail and highway causeway to Mare Island.
(32) Pacific Gas & Electric gas house and yard.

3. Have public funds been expended for such purposes, and, if so, approximately in what amount?

Public funds of the Federal Government, the State Government, and the municipal government have been expended for the improvement of such lands in the following approximate amounts:

Federal Government	$4,000,000
State Government	150,000
Municipal Government	850,000

4. What improvements have been made pursuant to franchises or leases and what is the approximate value thereof?

Railroad.	Bus terminals.
Electric power pole lines.	Wharves
Telephone pole lines.	Piers.
Fuel gas mains.	Recreation fields.
U. S. Naval Barracks.

The approximate value of all the improvements under this heading is $1,250,000.

5. What franchises or leases of such lands are currently in effect?

(1) Electric railroad franchise and lease.
(2) Electric power pole lines.
(3) Telephone pole lines.
(4) U. S. Naval Reserve barracks.

6. What are the present annual revenues received by the local agency from such lands, the sources thereof, and the purposes for which such revenues are used?

The city has purchased from the Federal Government approximately 10 wartime barracks and associated structures situated on the tidelands. This area is used for the location of small industries which do not have plants of their own. Presently, nine industries have been located in this area, the monthly rental from same totaling $721. The California National Guard has leased one building from the city, for which rental is paid in the amount of $150 per month.

7. To what extent, if at all, are any of the granted lands occupied or used by individuals or corporations?

The public service corporations, as listed above, all have lines on the granted lands. Three large corporate petroleum product distributors have holdings of relatively small areas. About one-half dozen individuals and commercial corporations have small holdings on the lands.

8. Has your local agency been divested of title or right to possession of any of the granted land by reason of conveyance thereof by the local agency, eminent domain proceedings, agreements to determine boundaries, or otherwise?

Yes. Approximately one-half of such lands have been, or are about to be partitioned by agreement. Private individuals and corporations obtained part of the tideland areas by patents or state grants, prior to the city's obtaining from the State its remaining interest in the tidelands.

9. Have any judicial proceedings been commenced against your local agency affecting title or right to possession of any such granted lands? If so, list the names of the cases and state the effect of each judgment.

U. S. Federal Government has taken certain portions of the tidelands for purposes of constructing facilities needed during wartime. Proceedings are as follows:

(1) United States v. Certain parcels of land in the City of Vallejo, County of Solano, State of California, T. M. Ormont, et al., Civil No. 4608. Amendment to Complaint later filed.

(2) United States v. Certain parcels of land in the City of Vallejo, County of Solano, State of California, Lange and Daniels, et al., Civil No. 22277-G.

For further data, consult city attorney.

ANALYSIS OF THE REPLY OF THE CITY OF VALLEJO

The reply of the City of Vallejo discloses unauthorized use and administration of state-granted lands to a considerable degree. The report by this municipality serves to illustrate the problems confronting the committee in its research and the importance of the considerations involved. Franchises and leases currently in effect are admitted to benefit corporations and individuals, industrial and manufacturing concerns, and commercial enterprises, none of which uses or administrations of such granted lands is within the comprehension of the statutes of grant. In addition, apparently a large portion of the granted lands are devoted to residence purposes, again an unauthorized use and administration. Of urgent importance is the information that approximately one-half of the granted lands have been or are about to be partitioned by agreement, to which the State of California should be, but is not, a party, with individuals and corporations.

Conclusion. The committee should undertake immediate surveys, research, examinations, and investigations relating to all phases of the use, development, improvement, and administration of the granted lands by the City of Vallejo and the municipality's intentions regarding the same. By obtaining more complete and detailed information, the committee will be enabled authoritatively to recommend to the Assembly the reacquisition of the granted lands by the State of California

CONCLUSIONS

Since the committee undertook the conduct of this investigation there have been three chairmen and considerable change in the personnel of the committee. It therefore follows that a continuous and searching inquiry has not resulted.

Even a casual examination of the extent of the state lands granted to local political subdivisions by the 123 acts passed by previous Legislatures will disclose the immense area of valuable real property over which the State has lost effective control. In good faith these lands were granted to be used and developed for certain specific purposes. It is incumbent upon this Legislature to re-examine these grants in order that the paramount rights of the State of California may be protected or reasserted.

This committee should be given adequate funds to employ trained and experienced personnel to thoroughly investigate the problems presented by the past grants of lands which today may be valued in terms of hundreds of millions of dollars.

An opportunity in public hearings should be given the officer or agency administering tide, submerged and reclaimed lands to demonstrate the manner and extent of conformance to the terms of the grants.

The committee in disputed areas would be obliged to employ a licensed surveyor to assist in determining the boundaries of the lands granted. This is particularly necessary where there is proof that the political subdivision has transferred or otherwise lost title to some person, corporation or public agency in violation of the grant.

In order to make certain that the local agency has not been divested of title or right to possession of the tide, submerged or reclaimed lands other than by Federal Supreme Court action it may be necessary to employ one skilled in the search of titles in each of the counties wherein the lands are located.

The personnel of this committee changes from year to year and in order that a full and complete record of proceedings in the future be acquired and maintained it is advisable that all public hearings be reported and the transcripts made the property of the Legislature. These records would be available for the Attorney General or other legal authorities in connection with quiet title or other legal proceedings in behalf of the State of California

Furthermore, in view of the recommendations above made calling for legislation returning title or control to the State over granted lands, the records of the public proceedings would be invaluable to future legislatures.

It is apparent from the foregoing account that the duties imposed upon the committee are of great importance affecting as they do the title to property valued in millions of dollars. These duties should be undertaken as soon as possible after the 1951 Legislature adjourns.

It will require months of time to properly investigate the 44 political subdivisions from Crescent City in the north to San Diego in the south. Needless to say, an inadequate grant of funds to the committee would prevent the full, complete, and thorough study which this important subject requires.

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. The Legislature by resolution or act should instruct the Legislative Counsel Bureau to include in every bill granting state lands to political subdivisions a provision that:

(a) Unless certain specified acts are performed by the grantee therein within a stated period the grant shall be canceled, with title reverting to the State of California, such specified acts to be set forth in detail and to be related to the beneficial use and development of the lands granted.

(b) Revenues derived from the granted lands or structures placed thereon shall be devoted to the purposes for which the lands were granted with periodic audits by the State Controller of moneys accruing from such development and use.

(c) The State of California be made a party defendant in any action involving title to the granted lands.

2. The Legislature should direct that appropriate legal proceedings be instituted in the nature of quiet title actions in those instances where the committee has found that grantees have transferred granted lands in apparent violation of the statutes.

3. The Legislature should direct that appropriate legal proceedings be instituted to oblige grantees to comply with the provisions of the grants in trust respecting the development, use and administration of granted lands where the committee finds apparent violations in these respects.

4 The Legislature should consider the passage of appropriate legislation to effect a reversion to the State of those lands where there has been absolutely no development, improvement or use of the lands.

5. This committee be continued with sufficient funds and personnel to complete an intensive, thorough investigation of land grants to the end that the paramount rights of the State of California in these lands be protected and preserved.

We Look Unto Thee Our Father with the words of the Psalmist;

"The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want.

He maketh me to lie down in green pastures: He leadeth me beside the still water

He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake

Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for Thou art with me; Thy rod and Thy staff they comfort me

Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies: Thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.

Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life: and I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

We ask it in the name of Him whom we worship in Spirit and in Truth.—AMEN.

19602.3. Children regularly enrolled in a child care center who are absent on account of illness or quarantine shall be considered to be in regular attendance for the number of hours per day for which they are enrolled for the purpose of reporting attendance for state apportionments, whenever the school district certifies that such absence was on account of illness or quarantine and is verified by the district in such manner as the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall require. All attendance shall be recorded and reported in accordance with the requirements of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

SEC. 15. Section 19614.5 of said code is repealed.

SEC. 16. Section 19607 of said code is amended to read:

19607. Said governing board shall charge and collect, in advance from the person having custody of any child admitted to a child care center a weekly fee [which, together with all funds received under Section 19613, shall be in such amount as will reimburse the district for the cost of maintaining such child care centers including supervision and care and the cost of all food furnished such child. The weekly fees charged need not be uniform] equal to that specified in the fee schedule prescribed by the Superintendent of Public Instruction

It is hereby declared to be the policy of the Legislature that child care centers shall be made available first to those who have the greatest financial need [and to that end no money appropriated therefor shall be expended for the care or education of any child in a child care center unless a sliding scale of weekly fees shall have been adopted by the board of school district in which such child care center is maintained under which], and the sliding scale of fees prepared by the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall provide for a nominal fee [shall be charged] for children of families having a monthly income of less than one hundred fifty dollars ($150) or of less than forty dollars ($40) per member of the child's immediate family, and increasingly larger fees shall be charged for children of families having larger incomes. It is further declared to be the policy of the Legislature that so far as possible [where an increase in fees is made necessary because of insufficient funds] when it becomes necessary for the Superintendent of Public Instruction to adjust the fee schedule that any [such] increase shall be made first in fees charged to those in the higher income brackets, and the rate of increase in fees charged for children of families of different income levels need not be uniform as between the different income levels. It is further declared to be the policy of the Legislature that the fee [scales] schedule shall, so far as reasonably possible, [be uniform for all child care centers, and that they shall] be established on such basis and in accordance with such principles as the [State Department of Education may recommend] Superintendent of Public Instruction may determine to insure proper administration of the child care center program and to establish uniform budgetary and accounting procedures

SEC. 17 Section 19607.1 is added to said code, to read:

19607.1. It is hereby declared to be the policy of the Legislature that, on a state-wide average, of the total amount of the cost for the maintenance and operation of child care centers attributable to children less than five years and nine months of age and paid for by state funds apportioned to the districts and fees collected from parents on account of such children, two-thirds of such total cost shall be paid from such state funds and one-third from such fees. Funds derived from district taxes levied under this chapter may be expended in addition to parent fees and state funds, and shall not operate to affect the operation of either the fee schedule or the formula for apportioning state funds provided for in this chapter.

SEC 18 Section 19607.2 is added to said code, to read.

19607.2. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall prepare a schedule of fees which shall be used by each school district for the charging of fees to parents. The schedule shall be on a sliding scale, ranging from a lesser amount for parents within low income levels to a higher amount for higher income levels for parents who come within the provisions of Section 19601.6. The schedule shall, together with the estimated income to be derived from fees collected from parents pursuant to Section 19601.7, provide as nearly as possible an amount equal to one-half of the State-wide average state support per hour for children less than five years nine months of age as provided in this code. The fee schedule shall be on an hourly basis, and shall be the same for all children.

SEC. 19 Section 19607.3 is added to said code, to read

19607.3 The Superintendent of Public Instruction may revise the fee schedule as necessary in order to conform with the provisions of this code. SEC. 20. Section 19607.4 is added to said code, to read:

19607.4 The state-wide average state support per hour shall be twenty-five cents ($0.25) for children less than five years nine months of age and sixteen cents ($0.16) for other children. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall apportion state funds to the districts using said state-wide average state support as a maximum, except that if the fees collected by any district shall for any month be more or less than one-half of the state-wide average state support per hour for children less than five years nine months of age, the average state-wide state support amount shall be increased or decreased in an amount equal to the amount the fees deviate from one-half of the average state-wide state support, provided in no event shall the state amount exceed thirty cents ($0.30) for children less than five years nine months of age or twenty cents ($0.20) for other children."

Amendment No. 18

On page 4 of said bill, as amended, strike out line 50, and insert

"SEC. 21 The sum of five million four hundred fifty-six thousand eight hundred fifty-six dollars ($5,456,856) is hereby appropriated out of the General Fund in the State Treasury to the Department of Education to be used for support of child care centers until June 30, 1952, and for the cost of the department in administering this act. The department may expend not to exceed forty-four thousand dollars ($44,000) to pay its expenses in determining the need and in apportioning the sums to the school districts and state institutions.

The department shall make apportionments to such school districts and state institutions from the money hereby appropriated on or before July 1, 1951, and on September 1, 1951, December 1, 1951, and March 1, 1952. The amount of any apportionment shall be based on estimates made by the department of the total number of children in attendance at the child care centers maintained by the school district or state institution, and the total number of hours of such attendance, for the period commencing on the date such apportionment is made until the date for the next apportionment, or, in the case of the apportionment for March 1, 1952, until June 30, 1952. The amount of each apportionment for each school district or state institution maintaining child care centers shall be not more than the estimated amount of state aid per hour based on the computation provided for in Section 19607.3 of the Education Code, and in accordance with the estimated fees to be collected in accordance with the fee schedule as provided in Section 19607.2, provided that the estimated apportionment shall not exceed thirty cents ($0.30) per hour for children less than five years nine months of age or twenty cents ($0.20) per hour for other children. The apportionment, except the first apportionment, for any school district or state institution shall be reduced or increased by the amount which the preceding apportionment would have been reduced or increased had such preceding apportionment been based on actual rather than estimated attendance. If the amount of the apportionment made to a school district or state institution for March 1, 1952, exceeds the amount which would have been apportioned had such apportionment been based on actual rather than estimated attendance, the school district or state institution shall repay to the department the amount of such excess from any available funds of the district or institution and such amount is a charge against such funds. Such repayment shall be made on or before July 10, 1952, and the department may use such repayments to make payments to a school district and state institution in an amount not to exceed the amount by which the apportionment to such district or institution for March 1, 1952, was less than the amount which would have been apportioned to such district or institution had such apportionment been based on actual rather than estimated attendance. Such payments shall be made on or before July 20, 1952.

SEC. 22. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health or safety within the meaning of Section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution and shall therefore go into immediate effect. A statement of the facts constituting such necessity is as follows:

To prevent the closing of established child care centers and the consequent disruption of the economic life of the State by the withdrawal from industry, essential during this troubled and unsettled time, of parents and others responsible for the care of minor children, it is necessary that public funds be made available for financial assistance to child care centers where a demonstrated need for such centers can be shown and for proper supervision of child care centers so that parents who are engaged or hereafter engage in work may have assurance of proper care for their minor children during the hours of their employment or for the proper care of children whose parents may be incapacitated by illness or other disability. It is, therefore, necessary that this act take effect immediately."

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT THAT STATEMENT BE PRINTED IN JOURNAL

Mr. Smith asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent that a statement relative to Assembly Bill No. 1541, pertaining to licensed clinical laboratories, be ordered printed in the Journal, in 10 point type, as follows:

STATEMENT

Subject: Assembly Bill No. 1541—Licensed Clinical Laboratories

Assembly Bill No. 1541 was heard by the Committee on Public Health on March 29, 1951. At that time witnesses appeared before the committee both in opposition to, and in support of, Section 1242 on page 3 of the bill. This section, as then written, provided that a duly licensed clinical laboratory technician may perform skin punctures for test purposes when authorized by "any person licensed under any provisions of law relating to the healing arts".

The particular question argued before the committee was whether or not this language permitted or prohibited referral of patients for tests requiring skin puncture by chiropractors. It became apparent to the committee that the answer to this question turned on whether or not Section 7 of the initiative known as the Chiropractic Act permits or prohibits chiropractors themselves to puncture the skin of patients. To the committee it seemed clear it is not the function of the Legislature to interpret an initiative measure, but such is properly the function of the courts.

In order to avoid decision by the Legislature on a question of law, and for the purpose of leaving the interpretation of Section 7 of the Chiropractic Act to the Judicial Branch of Government, the committee proposed and adopted an amendment to Section 1242 substituting the following language in lieu of the clause above quoted: "from any person in accordance with the authority granted under any provision of law relating to the healing arts or granted under the Chiropractic Act". It was the intent of the Committee on Public Health that Section 1242, as amended by it, would leave the present law with respect to the practice of chiropractic unchanged, and that if the Chiropractic Act does permit chiropractors to make skin punctures for test purposes, then they may refer such work to licensed laboratories, but if the Chiropractic Act does not permit chiropractors to puncture the skin, then that legislation, by enacting Assembly Bill No. 1541, would not change or alter such limitation of the Chiropractic Act. Specifically, it is the legislative intent not to modify an initiative measure or to interfere with judicial interpretation of the Chiropractic Act.

The foregoing statement is submitted by us in order that it may be clearly understood that in enacting Assembly Bill No. 1541 the Legislature expressly intends neither to enlarge nor diminish the scope of the practice of chiropractic as such is defined in Section 7 of the Chiropractic Act.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, June 22, 1951

To the Honorable Members of the Assembly
State of California
Sacramento, California

GREETINGS: I am returning herewith, without my signature,

Assembly Bill No. 908, entitled: "An act to amend Section 3 of, and to add Sections 3 5 and 30.02 to, the Public Utility District Act, relating to public utility districts."

My objections to the bill are as follows:

This bill amends the Public Utility District Act to provide that existing public utility districts may not engage in any activity authorized by law other than those in which they are engaged on the effective date of the bill, unless authorized by a vote of the electors or by an ordinance of the board of directors. Such an ordinance could not go into effect for 30 days, during which period it would be subject to a referendum if 15 percent of the electors of the district petition for a referendum vote on the measure. As to utility districts hereafter formed, this act provides that the petition for formation shall recite the services which it is sought to render to the public by such districts and it is provided that the scope of such services may not thereafter be enlarged except by vote of the people.

This bill was introduced as one of a series of bills sponsored by the public utilities districts. After the February recess it was amended to accomplish the purposes above stated which are entirely different from and unrelated to the purposes for which it was originally introduced.

I have not been requested to sign the bill by any public utility district, nor by any resident of a public utility district. On the contrary, I have been asked to disapprove the bill by the Public Utilities Districts Association, by the California Municipal Utilities Association and by several public utility districts. It has been pointed out to me that several of the districts are now engaged in the process of planning or constructing works to provide services to their residents that they are not now providing. One district has partially completed a sewage disposal plant, which is not in operation and will not be in operation on the effective date of this law. Should this law be approved, all construction towards this plant would have to be suspended until the adoption of an ordinance and a wait of 30 days to ascertain whether or not a referendum petition is to be filed against it. Several districts are in a similar situation. No useful purpose would be served by thrusting such restrictions on utility districts, or the residents of utility districts, when not requested by them. Public utility districts have been authorized since 1913 and more than sixty have been established. They have served a useful purpose in the State. They have had an orderly development and have presented no problems that should call for such an abridgement of their well settled powers.

For these reasons, I am returning the bill without my approval.

Respectfully submitted.

EARL WARREN, Governor

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, June 21, 1951

To the Honorable Members of the Assembly
State of California
Sacramento, California

GREETINGS: I am returning herewith, without my signature,

Assembly Bill No. 2453, entitled: "An act to amend Section 1295 of the Penal Code, relating to bail and deposits instead of bail"

My objections to the bill are as follows:

This bill would add to the present authorization for a jailer to accept cash in lieu of bail when the amount is $250 or less This bill would authorize such jailer to accept surety bonds. This would include authority to approve the bond in accordance with the instructions of the presiding magistrate of the court having jurisdiction in the area in which the jail is situated. The approval of bail is essentially a judicial act involving discretion and it is not desirable to delegate it to jailers. The legislative committees of the District Attorneys' and the Peace Officers' Associations have called my attention to the inadvisability of this bill. They recommend that the question of the sufficiency of a surety bond, its validity, and form should be personally passed upon by a judge after examination and due consideration I agree with this view in the ordinary case and, for this reason, I am returning the bill without my signature

Respectfully submitted.

ARTHUR A. OHNIMUS

Assembly Bill No. 2453 ordered to unfinished business file

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, June 22, 1951

To the Honorable Members of the Assembly
State of California
Sacramento, California

GREETINGS: I am returning herewith, without my signature,

Assembly Bill No. 2665, entitled: "An act to amend Section 5699 of the Elections Code, relating to casting of ballots."

My objections to the bill are as follows:

This bill amends Section 5699 of the Elections Code which provides that employees may on certain election days have two hours off from work during the time when the polls are open. This bill would greatly restrict this provision by making it inapplicable if the employee has two consecutive hours, either before or after his scheduled hours of employment, during the period when the polls are open Provision is made for an extra one-half hour in the event transportation time makes such provision necessary.

I believe that it is in the interest of sound government for our working people to be encouraged to vote and that it is not too much to ask of an employer to encourage widespread voting by releasing his employees for a period of time on election day. The exercise of the right of franchise should be encouraged rather than discouraged Since this provision has been on our statute books for 60 years, I do not believe that it should now be seriously impaired. I believe that employers and employees should cooperate in the exercise of this right. If the bill merely required notice on the part of the employee of the time he required for voting, and within reasonable limits provided for the time to be taken so that it would least interfere with the employee's work, I would be willing to sign it. However, this bill goes much further.

It provides that the employer may not only specify the time of absence but also provides that he shall grant such additional time as is necessary not to exceed one-half hour in those cases where two hours is inadequate for travel between the voter's polling place and his place of employment This provision would itself be provocative of disputes. It appears to me that it is not desirable to tinker in this manner with a law that has been in existence for 60 years and which, with the exception of two minor cases presented to me, has worked satisfactorily and in furtherance of sound public policy for such a period of time. The two instances used as an argument for this bill involved not more than one hundred employees altogether.

This bill was a highly controversial one in the Legislature and passed in the Assembly by a vote of 41 to 36. The Assembly concurred in Senate amendments by a vote of 43 to 22. The Senate adopted the bill by a vote of 22 to 11. In view of the long existence of this right and the few instances of abuse that have been claimed, I am returning the bill, which restricts this right, without my approval.

Respectfully submitted.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT TO TAKE UP HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 195

Mr. Geddes asked for, and was granted unanimous consent to take up House Resolution No. 195, temporarily passed on file.

CONSIDERATION OF HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 195

By Mr. Geddes:

House Resolution No. 195

Relative to directing the Assembly Interim Committee on Finance and Insurance to undertake an investigation

WHEREAS, It appears from information submitted to committees of the Assembly by the Department of Insurance, and from complaints received by various Members of the Assembly from their constituents, that there is a considerable and growing number of unlicensed, unregulated and nonprofessional persons and organizations who, to the detriment of great numbers of the citizens of this State, are for a consideration promising or purporting to promise such citizens that they will furnish or procure medical, surgical, hospital and other related services or treatments upon the illness or accidental injury of such citizens but who, when the time for performance arrives, almost invariably furnish or procure no service or treatment or wholly inadequate service or treatment, or service or treatment grossly below the quantity or quality represented; and,

WHEREAS, There are also operating in this same field a number of reputable persons and organizations who offer such services and who, when the time for performance arrives fulfill all commitments, but who would discontinue operations if required to comply with onerous regulatory provisions of law which might be enacted by the Legislature; and

WHEREAS, Efforts by the Legislature to enact appropriate legislation to protect citizens from the persons and organizations first mentioned above have been unsuccessful because of the probability that such regulations might drive from the field persons and organizations of the type last mentioned above, and

WHEREAS, In order to enact such legislation, which is vitally needed, it is necessary that the Legislature be fully informed as to all facts concerning or relating to the detailed methods of operation of all persons and organizations mentioned above, in order that it may determine (a) whether regulations might be drafted which would be sufficient to protect the public from the first named class of persons and organizations without causing the second named class of persons and organizations to discontinue their services or (b) whether facts exist sufficient to establish a natural, intrinsic and constitutional distinction between said first and second classes of persons and organizations so as to justify legislation regulating the former and exempting the latter from its operation; and

WHEREAS, It appears that such study is within the scope of the functions of the Assembly Interim Committee on Finance and Insurance; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Assembly Interim Committee on Finance and Insurance be and it hereby is authorized and directed to ascertain, study and analyze all facts relating to the subjects expressed in the recitals of this resolution including but not limited to the methods of operation and need for regulation of the persons and organizations mentioned in said recitals and to the adequacy or inadequacy of the existing laws which might be used to regulate such persons and organizations, and to report thereon to the Legislature not later than the fifteenth legislative day of the 1953 General Session, including in its reports its recommendation for appropriate legislation

Mr. Lyon asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent to take up House Resolution No. 229, temporarily passed on file.

CONSIDERATION OF HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 229

By Mr. Lyon:

House Resolution No. 229

Relative to the study of the administration and financing of highways, streets, and bridges by the Assembly Interim Committee on Revenue and Taxation

WHEREAS, The public highways, streets, and bridges of the State are useful, necessary, and indispensable arteries of travel and commerce and have been constructed and improved at great public expense; and

WHEREAS, The State, in providing highway, road, and street facilities, is in effect managing and financing a full-scale transportation system, costing the highway users and taxpayers of the State in excess of $200,000,000 annually; and

WHEREAS, Pavements and other highway improvements are not permanent but must be rebuilt, resurfaced, expanded, and modernized both to maintain and improve the existing facilities and to meet changing economic and industrial conditions; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature is responsible to the people as a whole for the imposition of taxes levied to support state highway, county road, and city street programs and in discharging this responsibility cannot be indifferent to the inefficient use of tax resources, but it appears possible that less diligence is presently exercised over expenditures of state-collected highway-user taxes by the State, the counties, and the cities than is exercised over the expenditure of other tax moneys because such expenditures do not directly affect the General Fund of the State or the tax rates of local governments; and

WHEREAS, The Department of Public Works has reported to the Legislature that the cost of improving the state highways alone to standards adequate for 1950 traffic conditons is estimated in excess of three billion dollars, but only 1 4 billion dollars will be available for construction in the next 10 years; and

WHEREAS, The cost of acquiring rights of way and the limitation of access has risen to alarming proportions and appears to be continuing to rise, and the reasons for the increasing costs should be ascertained and the wisdom of limited access construction under certain conditions, should be reviewed by the Legislature, and

WHEREAS, Serious criticisms have arisen from time to time with respect to the advisability of constructing freeways in metropolitan areas where parking problems are not being solved and mass transit is not being improved; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature in its 1951 Regular Session considered alternative plans of financing an accelerated state highway construction and right-of-way acquisition program but it appeared that further study should be given to all aspects of California's highway problems, including an appraisal of the efficiency and effectiveness with which state-collected highway-users tax funds are now being expended by all agencies of government to which such funds are entrusted; and

WHEREAS, The Senate Interim Committee on Highways, Streets, and Bridges, created by Senate Resolution 129 in the 1949 Regular Session of the Legislature, during the course of its inquiries found that several counties were apparently failing to comply with the spirit, if not the letter, of the Highway Act of 1947 with respect to county road administration, and, it, therefore, appears that the Legislature should have additional information on this subject in view of the fact that almost $50,000,000 is apportioned annually by the State to counties for road purposes, and

WHEREAS, The State Controller is annually collecting data on county road and city street finance as required by the Highway Act of 1947 and such information should be carefully digested and evaluated for the use of the Legislature in considering legislation dealing with county road and city street affairs; and

WHEREAS, Expenditures by the Department of Motor Vehicles and the Department of the Highway Patrol are directly supported by taxes collected from highway users and such expenditures directly reduce the amount of funds available for highways and, therefore, should be investigated by the Legislature in view of the apparent need for additional revenue; and

WHEREAS, The Legislature is faced with difficult problems of cost allocation in devising just and reasonable taxes for highway support, which problems have not been fully solved particularly with respect to the equitable taxation of heavy commercial vehicles although alternative solutions have been considered, and, therefore, further study is necessary in this connection; and

WHEREAS, Additional and more comprehensive data regarding the operating characteristics of various classes of motor vehicles, including such factors as annual vehicle mileages, average fuel consumption, loaded and empty vehicle weights, and the like, are indispensable to the formation of a reasonable and equitable system of highway-user taxation and, therefore, should be collected, analyzed, and made available to the Legislature; and

WHEREAS, No one of the administrative agencies of the State Government is so constituted that it can consider and advise the Legislature on all aspects of highway, road, and street management and finance, and, therefore, the Legislature finds a lack of complete and coordinated information on over-all highway problems; and

WHEREAS, The entire problem of proper maintenance, development, and financing of the highways, streets, and bridges requires continued study, investigation, vigilance, and exercise of foresight on the part of the Legislature to insure that the money of the people of California is wisely expended, that modern and efficient methods are employed, that existing facilities are maintained, and that reasonable measures consistent with efficiency and economy are being taken to maintain, improve, and make safe the arteries of vehicular travel of the State; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, As follows:

1 The Assembly Interim Committee on Revenue and Taxation is hereby authorized and directed to ascertain, study, and analyze all facts relating to and in any way connected with the maintenance and development of safe, efficient, economical, and adequate highways, streets, and bridges and the administration and financing thereof, including but not limited to the operation, effect, administration, enforcement, and needed revision of any and all laws in any way bearing upon or relating to the subject of this resolution and to report thereon to the Assembly, including in the reports its recommendations for appropriate legislation.

2. The committee is further specifically authorized and directed to collect by questionnaires, direct investigation, or otherwise, all such information from the owners and operators of motor vehicles on the highways, roads, and streets of this State as it deems necessary in order to formulate a reasonable and equitable system of highway-user taxation for all classes of motor vehicle operation and to carry out the other purposes for which it is created.

3. The committee is further and specifically directed, without any limitation on its other powers, to ascertain, study and analyze all facts relating to the following:

(g) Alternative methods of financing the highway modernization program of California;

(h) Alternative methods of taxing heavy commercial vehicles equitably in relation to taxes on other highway users;

(i) The need for continuing collection of data regarding highway use, vehicle operating characteristics, and the effects of heavy vehicles on highways and vehicle traffic from which can be devised more equitable tax policies;

(j) The advisability of establishing a permanent committee or other agency in order: (1) to provide a continuous check on expenditures of state-collected highway-user taxes by the State, counties, and cities; (2) to study and recommend legislation to guarantee and insure the most effective highway, road, and street management and the most efficient expenditure of highway, road, and street funds; (3) to accumulate and coordinate data which will provide a rational basis for the allocation of state-collected highway-user taxes among the various levels of government and among geographical areas of the State; (4) to accumulate and coordinate data which will provide a basis for the improvement of the highway-user tax structure and for such modifications of the structure as conditions may justify from time to time; (5) to study, analyze, and appraise on a continuing basis all aspects of highway, road, and street management, expenditure, and finance to the end that the Legislature will at all times be fully advised on the existing facts, new developments, and emerging issues in the transportation field; (6) to make studies of the economics of transportation in general, including taxation and regulatory policies, to the end that the State's role in providing the road plant will be properly integrated with the over-all development of an efficient transportation system for California; (7) to cooperate with other agencies, public and private, to accomplish the objectives of the committee or agency.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

June 21, 1951

Honorable Sam L. Collins
Speaker of the Assembly

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: On behalf of your Interim Committee on Finance and Insurance, created by House Resolution No. 239 of the 1949 Regular Session, we herewith tender the committee's final report.

Rather than recite matters now history, as evidenced by the long list of bills sponsored by the members of the committee, we point with justifiable pride to the fact that literally hundreds of man hours of debate and controversy have been avoided by bringing in legislation the subject matter of which was heard during the interim. Also the legislation originating with various state agencies has been enacted earlier than in previous sessions because of the services afforded by your committee.

* 1949-1950 Session

There is, however, one matter of unfinished business to which we call attention. We refer to legislation designed to put a stop to the shameful exploitation of the public by some unprincipled "racketeers" in the field of voluntary health and medical plans. There are a number of such plans which operate under definitely stated provisions of the law and which are serving an ever increasing number of the people of this state. These are in addition to the commercial plans which operate under supervision of the Insurance Commissioner of California.

There are two other plans, the Permanente Foundation and the Complete Service Bureau of San Diego, which operate by their own testimony under no stated provisions of the law. No criticism or complaint has been brought to our attention respecting the above named. When your committee conducted a hearing at which the Insurance Commissioner and representatives of the Better Business Bureaus of Long Beach, Los Angeles and San Diego testified it was stated that these organizations together with the Blue Cross, Blue Shield and California Physicians Service operate in a manner beneficial to the public.

During the current session of the Legislature it has been found impossible to spell out in legislation any description of the plans operating under specific and particular provisions of the law which is acceptable to the other organizations purporting to operate under Section 9200 of the Corporations Code.

Unfortunately the amendments to Assembly Bill No. 2693 which were put into the bill in the Senate Committee on Judiciary by the advocates for the Permanente Foundation, and acceptable to the Complete Service Bureau, nullified the purpose of the proposed legislation. This purpose was to provide penalties for operation by any person of plans not expressly provided for by law. Still insisting that it would be better for the interested parties to have sponsored their own legislation as the other legitimate voluntary plans have done, the amendments to Assembly Bill No. 2693 referred to above might have been satisfactory to the authors of the legislation except for the fact that a number of the plans and operators complained of, and sought to be put out of business, would escape by the same language inserted in the bill by the sponsors of the amendments.

Accordingly the bill was recalled from the Senate and the action of the Assembly rescinded and the bill referred to the Assembly Standing Committee on Finance and Insurance.

By House Resolution No. 194 of this session, an interim committee to succeed the present one will, we trust, be created and empowered to continue investigation of these matters, and House Resolution No. 195 is introduced to specifically grant the necessary powers to the successor committee.

We recommend that the resolutions be adopted.

In order to provide the Legislature with some background material we submit herewith a recital of the legal history and present status of so-called "Prepaid Medical Plans and Health Services in California."

LEGAL HISTORY AND PRESENT STATUS OF SO-CALLED "PREPAID MEDICAL PLANS AND HEALTH SERVICES" IN CALIFORNIA

In the early 1930's individual promoters understood to sell to the public prepaid "medical, surgical and hospital" contracts; in substance, taking money in advance for services to be rendered in the future by third parties, that is physicians and hospitals.

Several such promoters were tried and convicted on charges of conspiring to commit a misdemeanor, to wit: obtaining money under false pretenses.

Since then, particularly in the past few years so-called "prepaid medical plans" that are personal promotion plans of individual laymen and not indemnity insurance by a licensed insurer or service plans legally underwritten by physicians, have caused complaints to be brought before the Insurance Commissioner and Better Business Bureaus. In Southern California particularly in the Los Angeles, San Diego and Long Beach areas have the operations been most extensive and consequently the complaints more numerous.

While many interested persons have demanded that some fly-by-night promotions be prosecuted and driven out of business there has been little evidence on the part of local law enforcement agencies to engage in any attack on the promoters. Whether this is the result of indifference on the part of the local law enforcement agencies or because of a feeling that it is a hopeless task to try to obtain convictions on a state-wide basis we are not prepared to state here. However, at a hearing on these matters held in Los Angeles on October 19, 1950, the District Attorneys of Los Angeles, San Bernardino and San Diego Counties were not represented although the District Attorney of San Diego County did telephone the chairman that his impending action against a San Diego operation precluded his taking part in the proceedings he did promise his cooperation.

In his testimony before the committee the Insurance Commissioner stated that he needed additional legislation in order to take action. The Board of Medical Examiners apparently lacks the necessary investigating staff and funds to accomplish much.

To evaluate the need for new legislation it is necessary to state briefly the present laws apparently violated by these unlicensed, unregulated plans. In doing this we touch upon the legal history of prepaid health plans in this State.

Briefly stated the basic laws governing prepayment of medical and surgical services or hospital care in California are as follows:

A. A physician or group of physicians may accept prepayment for their services from individual patients, on the same basis that a lawyer accepts a retainer.

B. An individual, corporation or other artificial entity that is not licensed to practice medicine may not sell, on a prepayment basis or otherwise, the services of licensed physicians. Such constitutes the corporate or lay practice of medicine, which is forbidden whether done directly or indirectly, both by case law (Pacific Employers Ins. Co. v. Carpenter, 10 Cal. App. (2d) 592) and Business & Professions Code, Section 2008.

C. A promise to indemnify or reimburse for medical, surgical or hospital services rendered in the future is an insurance contract, and may not be undertaken except by insurance carriers licensed under the Insurance Code. The Insurance Commissioner can enjoin the carrying on of an unlicensed insurance business (Insurance Code Sec. 12928.6).

D. An individual hospital may charge in advance for its services, but if a group of hospitals form a prepayment plan for hospital care, such plan must be licensed by the Insurance Commissioner, under Sections 11491-11517 of the Insurance Code. There are two such plans in California, known as Blue Cross plans.

E. Under Section 9201 of the Corporations Code and by virtue of Supreme Court decision (California Physicians' Service v. Garrison, 28 Cal. (2d) 790), a group of licensed physicians numbering at least one-fourth of all the licensed physicians in the State may form a nonprofit corporation for the purpose of selling prepaid medical care to the public, and, as an incident thereto, such auxiliary services as drugs and hospitalization. Corporations Code Section 9201 is the only statutory permission for prepaid medical service, as distinguished from medical indemnity, which is a phase of disability insurance. So far California Physicians' Service (hereafter designated as C.P.S.) is the only corporation formed under Section 9201 of the Corporations Code.

F. Obtaining money under false pretenses, and fraud and deceit, are of course crimes under the Penal Code, Sections 484 and 182.

LEGAL HISTORY OF "PREPAID MEDICAL PLANS" IN RELATION TO CORPORATE PRACTICE OF MEDICINE AND INSURANCE LAWS

(a) Corporate practice of medicine: In 1935 Pacific Employers Insurance Company submitted to the Insurance Commissioner for approval (as required by the Insurance Code) a form of contract under which medical and surgical services would be available to the policyholders, provided that the policyholders obtain such services from physicians selected or designated by the insurance company; in other words, a policy covering future medical costs limiting the policyholder to a "closed panel" of physicians. The Insurance Commissioner refused to approve the policy form on the ground that it called for an illegal act, to wit: the corporate practice of medicine. The insurance company sued the commissioner, and the district court of appeal held in favor of the commissioner, stating that > "* * * it is clearly declared unlawful for a corporation to indirectly practice any of the learned professions for profit by engaging professional men to perform professional services for those with whom the corporation contracts to furnish such services. * * * The professions are not open to commercial exploitation * * *."

The court also said:

> "* * * the policy is more than a mere contract of indemnity. We believe petitioner's (insurance company) own designation of the policy as a 'medical service policy' more nearly describes the true nature of the agreement. It is essentially an agreement by the petitioner to furnish medical services and other professional services through its own appointed staff of professional men, rather than an agreement to indemnify against indebtedness by the insured for such services with professional men of his own choosing."
> (Pacific Employers Ins. Co. v. Carpenter, 10 Cal. App.)

Another insurance company at about the same time also endeavored to secure Insurance Commissioner approval of a contract form under which the insurance company agreed to pay for medical services, but only if rendered by physicians designated by the company's "Policyholders' Committee". This, likewise, was held to be corporate practice of medicine, and the insurance company was forbidden to issue the policy form in question. (Benjamin Frankin Life Assurance Co. v. Mitchell, 14 Cal. App. (2d) 654.)

In 1937 the Medical Practice Act was codified into the Business and Professions Code, at which time a new section was added (Business and Professions Code, 2008) to the Medical Practice Act reading as follows:

> "Corporations and other artificial legal entities have no professional rights, powers or privileges."

At about the same time a corporation known as Pacific Health Corporation undertook to sell contracts to the public on a monthly premium basis, under which the corporation agreed to furnish the services of physicians and hospitals in the event of illness or injury to the contract-holder. The contracts provided that the medical services would be furnished through a panel of physicians selected by the corporation; except in the case of an extreme emergency, if the contract-holder secured care from a physician not on the panel the corporation was under no duty to pay. Essentially the contract was the same as the insurance policies involved in the Pacific Employers and Benjamin Franklin cases, the only difference being that the Pacific Health Corporation by-passed the insurance laws and went into business without bothering to qualify as an insurance company.

The Attorney General at the request of the Board of Medical Examiners commenced a quo warranto action against Pacific Health Corporation, to revoke its corporate charter on the ground that it was illegally practicing medicine. In September, 1938, the California Supreme Court held that the Pacific Health Corporation was illegally practicing medicine through its selected medical panel, and affirmed the judgment of the trial court terminating the corporation's charter. (People v. Pacific Health Corporation, 12 Cal. (2d) 156.)

One of the defenses raised by Pacific Health Corporation was that if the Supreme Court held it to be illegal, then the court was necessarily questioning the legality of such old established plans as the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe hospital associations, the French Benevolent Society, etc. With respect to this argument, the Supreme Court properly held that the only corporation before the court was Pacific Health Corporation, and that it could not decide and was not deciding the legality of any third party. The court said:

> "It should be pointed out that the fear of applying the holding of this case to such philanthropic associations as those mentioned does not exist in the minds of the directors thereof, nor has it been suggested that the public authorities contemplate any attack on them. This illusory apprehension is expressed by defendant alone, in an attempt to bolster up its case * * *".

Unfortunately, the court then proceeded to discuss the very organizations that it had said were not before it, and observed that fraternal or other nonprofit associations do not commercially exploit the medical profession. The court said:

> "The public is not solicited to purchase the medical services of a panel of doctors; and the doctors are not employed or used to make profits for stockholders."

If one reads the Supreme Court's opinion in full, it is obvious that the court intended to draw a distinction between nonprofit group medical care plans, operating on a charitable or semicharitable basis and not soliciting the public, and other plans that are commercial, directly or indirectly, and do solicit the public. As to the latter, the court condemned their activities as corporate practice of medicine and illegal. However, isolated sentences from the opinion are frequently quoted to support the contention that any corporation organized on a nonprofit basis may sell medical services to the public. This simply is not so, and is a distortion of the court's ruling.

(b) Transacting insurance without a license:

In 1939, when C.P.S. was formed, the then Insurance Commissioner threatened to commence injunction proceedings, but before the Commissioner acted C.P.S. itself commenced suit for declaratory relief. In 1941, the Legislature enacted Civil Code Section 593(a), now Corporation Code Section 9201, described above. The case between C.P.S. and the Insurance Commissioner was finally decided by the Supreme Court in 1946, and the court held:

(1) That the Legislature intended, by enacting Civil Code Section 593(a), to provide for regulation of C.P.S. through the Board of Medical Examiners and the Attorney General, rather than through the Insurance Commissioner, and

(2) That in any event, C.P.S. constituted a medical corporation, selling services of its member physicians, and that such sale of services was not the conduct of an insurance business (C.P.S. v. Garrison, 28 Cal.

(2d) 790). In this case, the Supreme Court distinguished between a contract of indemnity or reimbursement, which is an insurance contract, and a contract for the performance of personal services.

It is to be noted that the court was considering a corporation that was operating under a specific statute and that had complied with all of the requirements of that statute. It is also to be noted that the court was considering a corporation that could fulfill the service promises made by it, because thousands of physicians had contracted with the corporation to do so. Finally, it is to be emphasized that the statutory basis for C.P.S. (Civil Code Sec. 593(a), now Corporations Code Sec. 9201) specifies that a nonprofit health service corporation must have contracts for performing services with at least one-fourth of all the licensed physicians in the State, and that membership in the corporation and an opportunity to render professional services must be available to all licensed physicians; in other words, the panel must be an open panel, with complete free choice, and not a closed panel. A person who buys a C.P.S. contract must by law be free to choose his own physician; C.P.S. cannot do the choosing or selecting, directly or indirectly.

PRESENT STATUS

The present status of so-called prepaid medical plans and health services and the present situation which caused this committee to begin investigations in this field arise from attempts by laymen to operate unregulated plans.

It appears that the articles of incorporation of the C.P.S. have in instances been copied and nonprofit corporations formed to exploit the public by means of the sale of contracts or membership rights calling for prepayment of medical services. It should be pointed out that while the operation of some of these plans may bear a superficial resemblance to the legally authorized plan the provisions of the law as to the number of physicians required to form the nonprofit corporation (at least one-fourth of all licensed physicians in the State) is ignored.

When questioned the operators of such plans claim (1) that they are just doing the same thing that C.P.S. is doing, and (2) that the Supreme Court in the Pacific Health case said that nonprofit corporations could practice medicine.

Overlooked, apparently, is the fact that in the Pacific Health case the Supreme Court limited its observations to charitable corporations that do not solicit the public.

The solicitation of the public, the expense of doing so and the advertising and other means employed are among the most important testimony and materials collected in its investigations by this committee.

In all of the plans which have come to light the great majority have been characterized as practically worthless by the Insurance Commissioner and other witnesses before this committee. But the Insurance Commissioner has characterized as performing a satisfactory service insofar as lack of complaints and apparent financial stability such plans as Complete Service Bureau of San Diego and Permanente Health Plan operating in several California cities. The legal operation of California Physicians Service and the Blue Cross services is unquestioned under the statute cited.

Not so however with the American Independent Medical and Health Association, also of San Diego. The greater number of complaints recited by the Insurance Commissioner and the Better Business Bureaus were against this operator which was finally seized by the Insurance Commissioner for illegally conducting an insurance business without a license. It is unfortunate that the Complete Service Bureau and the American Independent Medical and Health Association must be compared. But a law applying to one would, in our opinion, apply to the other and likewise the violation of present statutes is indicated in both cases.

It appears that the points overlooked or ignored by these organizations are these:

(1) In the Pacific Health case the Supreme Court limited its observations to charitable corporations that do not solicit the public.

(2) They do not and cannot operate under the statute provision under which C.P.S. operates (at least one-fourth of licenciates of the profession to be members).

(3) If such organizations have a panel of physicians whose services they sell then they are engaging in the corporate practice of medicine.

(4) If they do not have a panel of physicians and indemnify or reimburse the member, i.e. contract holder. for medical expense, regardless of where the contract holder receives the service they are then engaged in the insurance business.

It appears that on this basis the Insurance Commissioner finally moved in the matter of the American Independent Medical and Health Association.

A study of some of the documents in the case serves a threefold purpose; (1) to show the brazen manner in which the operators flaunted their operations in the face of the committee. (2) to show the conditions found by the examiner for the Insurance Commissioner and the grounds on which the commissioner acted and, (3) to give pause before suggesting legislation which by licensing under special provisions would allow such operators to continue under "regulation".

A recital in detail of all of the other organizations complained of would take a great deal of space but provide no better illustration than the one case presented here.

As stated previously, during hearings held by this committee in Los Angeles on October 19, 1950, one of the organizations most often mentioned in testimony or exhibits reciting complaints was the American Independent Medical and Health Association. Within a few weeks after the hearing which had been reported in the press officers of the above association went into action.

Addressed to each member of this committee was an individually typed letter on an elegantly printed letterhead. These were enclosed in separate envelopes which had been mailed "registered mail" to the member at the State Capitol in anticipation of the scheduled hearing held in Sacramento, November 16 and 17, 1950.

The letter addressed to the chairman and the two enclosures mailed with it are quoted below.

First the letter:

The Honorable Ernest R. Geddes, Chairman
Assembly Interim Committee on Finance and Insurance
California State Legislature
Sacramento 14, California

MY DEAR MR. GEDDES: We take this occasion to bring to your attention some of the basic facts pertaining to this organization and its operation; facts we feel you should know and will agree should be given fair appraisal in connection with any approach to appropriate legislation affecting or regulating those operating in the field of voluntary prepaid medicine.

This is indeed today a field in which, as never before, every man, woman and child has a stake. It is one which has been made a paramount issue of the day and by like token should be accorded a full review of all the facts because, directly or indirectly, all the people are ultimately affected.

In our own case, for example, we have in excess of 15,000 active members . . . individuals and members of families for whom membership has represented and continues to represent protection, i.e. ways and means of meeting the expense of hospital and medical care and treatment. This expense is usually unexpected and even though gainfully employed most families are unable to meet it, at least without borrowing, seriously depleting family savings, or even resorting to public assistance. These are people who in good faith value their membership in our organization. These are people for whom claims have been paid in good faith by this organization, as the records will reveal. Further, these are people whose interest and welfare are, we feel assured, of prime concern to you who represent them in the State legislative body and thus must necessarily enter into your consideration of this entire question and the setting up of any manner of legislation remedial thereto.

In presenting the following facts we respectfully call attention to an important point of which we realize you are well aware but which has been seriously clouded by the various factors which have been responsible for the bringing about of this "picture", to wit:

California is a wide open field for all types of health and medical rackets; especially since people come here from all over the United States, are new to the locality in which they settle, and can thus more readily be made victims of many and varied types of rackets and schemes. Those in the field of health protection are even more unscrupulous because they attack at a vulnerable point . . . one at which human need is commonly existent and where the "take" becomes even more vicious. Here too, people are more "health conscious" than probably in any other state and thus constitute a more fertile field than elsewhere. However, and what we would urge not be lost sight of or overlooked in any review or analysis of this situation is that there are a number of organizations doing a worth-while job in this field and in aiding residents of our State to achieve and maintain better health. We make no apology nor do we hold any reservation in including this organization in this group.

All are not rackets and all are by no means out to swindle our citizens, "humble" or otherwise. These organizations are concerned, and rightly so, not only in operating legitimately and for the combined interest of all members but also in protecting the benefits of these members when confronted with any situation which could jeopardize or threaten these benefits and the manner in which it becomes possible to offer them. These are not "fly-by-nights" but rather live here and live "with" those whom they number as members. They are more vitally concerned in eliminating the evils found existent in this field and in controlling the operations of those who would prostitute it than anyone because to keep this field clean is to maintain the life-line of their business and the job they are endeavoring to do.

Our organization, for one, is in its fourth year in the medical and health field and has reason to feel a good job has been done despite many obstacles and the fact that to start with we had no yardstick to go by in making decisions, etc., despite the fact that not only have we been included in "blanket indictments" of the industry itself but have on more than one occasion borne the brunt of being singled out for particular scrutiny, possibly by virtue of the fact that we have survived and that we have continued slowly but surely to grow and increase our membership as well as the benefits available thereunder.

Therefore, you should have the facts, we want you to have the facts . . . all the facts about us. We stand on them and shall welcome the opportunity to furnish any additional data which may be pertinent or desired. The following are significant:

1. We commenced business in July of 1947. Originally, the organization was run by one person, until such time as the corporation papers could be prepared and accepted by the State. The corporation was accepted by the State in June of 1948. We are now operating as a nonprofit corporation with Home Office in San Diego. We also operate in Los Angeles, San Francisco and San Bernardino.
2. We are a membership organization in which the interests of all members are interwoven. We make available to the members bonafide benefits, covering hospital, surgical and medical care and treatment.
3. The Association represents, in effect, a pool or reservoir of funds (these are the dues which members pay) available to members who have health emergencies. Naturally, in order to protect the members' interests it is necessary that there be established regulations to govern the eligibility of members for benefits. These are all paid in specific accordance with the membership certificate (contract). Membership is now sold on a money-back guarantee, under which misrepresentation in any way, shape or form is rendered virtually impossible.

4. As of January 1, 1950, we converted from the original plan, whereby members were offered certain specified savings on hospitalization and health care to a complete plan of voluntary prepaid medical care including maternity care, effecting savings as set forth in the membership contract.
5. During the period January through September, 1950, we have paid approximately $20,000 in claims for hospital and medical care and treatment . . . this too is confirmed by the record.
6. Our membership now totals in excess of 15,000, as herein beforestated.
7. The Board of Trustees consists of five seats, of which the following comprise the present officers: A. G. Barnes, President; Genevieve Howard, Executive Secretary, and J. C. Fortune, Executive Vice President. The Board of Governors, which is actually the governing body of the organization, consists of 11 seats.

During March and April 1948, this organization underwent an investigation by the City Attorney's office in Los Angeles, the claim being that we were operating illegally. In attendance at these hearings were representatives of the Better Business Bureau and of the Insurance Department of the State of California. The Better Business Bureau had eight complainants and further stated that that was all they had, although at that time we maintained a membership of well over 2,000. The complainants withdrew their charges during the hearings, as they were all disproved. During the course of the investigation, we invited the Insurance Department and the Better Business Bureau to come down to our offices and examine our records. The Insurance Department sent two representatives who checked our records against our statements and representations, confirming that we had paid all eligible claims. The charges were dropped, as it was proved to all concerned that we were operating within the law, both legally and legitimately. At the last day of the hearing, during which the charges referred to were formally dropped, we requested all interested parties at the hearing to arrange a meeting with medical and health representatives, in order that a code of ethics might be established by which all such organizations could be judged. There has never been any action taken on this request.

We are not objecting to the setting up by law of some code of operations by which organizations such as ours might be governed; in fact, would welcome the supplying of data which might be utilized in its codification. However, we do feel there should be a proper and equitable way to do it, predicated upon facts and figures derived from and consistent with the actual field of voluntary pre-paid health protection, incorporating and reconciling the idiosyncrasies found peculiar to this field rather than some other, presenting still different problems, limitations and possibilities to do the job.

We are more than just "aware" that there are numerous health and medical rackets operating in California but certainly any honest approach to the correction of such practice must differentiate between what is good and what is bad, between the sheep and the goats. We feel that you will agree the only logical method of doing this is actually looking into just how each one actually does operate rather than grouping, and either blessing or condemning all, or what is even less logical, blessing one or two on the basis of presumed righteousness, validity of purpose, or stability of operation.

It has been and continues to be our conviction that much of the pressure brought to bear on this particular organization has been and likewise continues to be sponsored in major degree by those interests who would parade rumor, distorted fact and inaccurate statistic across the stage, all under the guise of seeking protection for the uninformed, where in reality it has been resentment toward if not actual fear of what we as a small organization have been able to offer and continue to offer and, what is more, have proved can be "worked" in the way of a pre-paid medical plan. It just does not stand to reason that the motivating factor here has been an urge to "enlighten" for the simple reason that enlightenment requires facts on both sides of any question and in this case the facts have either not been secured or, where secured, apparently discarded as not serving the point to be gained.

For example . . . it has come to our attention on more than one occasion lately that we are being "knocked down" in no uncertain terms from certain quarters. To cite one case, a statement was made to one of our members to the effect that checks we had tendered in payment of claims had, to use the slang vernacular, "bounced". To refute this particular accusation, we would merely have to refer anyone to the main office of the Bank of America here in San Diego where our Home Office account for the payment of claims is carried. Mr. Graydon Hoffman, Vice-President of the Bank of America, is familiar with our operations and the handling of this account and has indicated his willingness to readily testify as to the falsity of any such statement. However, we do not have the opportunity of refuting such statements but rather they merely find their way to the public and those we serve and redound to our undeserved detriment and loss in terms of public relations. This sort of thing is typical of what has been occurring and still prevails.

We have in the past made a policy, perhaps at the cost of a greater public knowledge and thus recognition of our product, of not employing expensive and extensive advertising programs. This has been done in order that all possible strength could be maintained behind each membership, to the end of stabilizing the plan itself. Figures submitted to top management at the San Bernardino Air Base at the time (August 1949—Ref: Roy C. Mesker, Chief, Civilian Personnel Section) when this plan was accepted at the base over all others then being considered showed the extent to which the amount we can show behind each member does create a stable "picture", even as compared both to other types of plan and other plans of this type.

Another feature which has characterized our particular modus operandi has been the maintaining of a low operating cost. Numerous and varied functions have been assigned to and assumed by a few key personnel to the end of keeping down the administrative overhead.

In other words, every cent received in the form of membership dues, other than that required for nominal administrative cost, is set aside and made available for the avowed purpose of the organization, i.e. the providing of specified hospital, surgical and medical benefits to its members. Plans are at this time under way to set up and establish, in the form of United States Government Bonds a contingency or reserve fund, aside from and in addition to that from which payment of members' claims for benefits are now paid. From a purely practical point of view, it is really immaterial into how many parts our general funds are segregated. However, we feel that the setting up of the contingency in this manner will more clearly manifest our intentions and policy.

In essence, we merely constitute a group operating on a cooperative basis to effect savings on hospital and medical care and treatment by means of a common fund set up to meet the exigencies of illness or injury to its members on the basis and at the time of actual need rather than on any fixed or predetermined figure presumed to meet such need. The insurance industry, for example, has endeavored to meet this need on a purely indemnifying basis and this has not been the answer, for the reason just stated.

On the other hand, any approach to this field which by its nature tends to burden or dictate to the medical profession itself is certainly not the answer, for this is impeding the very arm through which the plan must be activated and administered We have reason to believe that the medical profession realizes the disadvantages that such a plan can impose.

It was for the purpose of simplicity of operation and to voluntarily place ourselves under the jurisdiction of a state agency that this organization was incorporated In this manner we became subject to the scrutiny and jurisdiction of the State Attorney General's Office. We have in the past submitted our complete records for inspection and are very willing to continue to do so. They have likewise been open to the Los Angeles City Attorney, the Better Business Bureau, and the Insurance Division. In spite of the fact that we are not obligated to expose our records to the Better Business Bureau and the Insurance Division we have been pleased to do so. In fact, on numerous occasions we have taken the initiative and requested that these and/or any other authorized agencies inspect our records. We still welcome such inspection Furthermore, we have repeatedly requested that any city, county or state agency, as well as the Better Business Bureau, take up with us any complaint which might be registered with them in order that we might submit our files on the case for examination and if it were found we were in the wrong that appropriate remedial action might be taken to effect correction or adjustment.

Naturally, as long as there exists a human element in business there will exist some who are dissatisfied with what they have received or with the company from which they have received it. This is exemplified by the thousands of unjustified complaints received by Better Business Bureaus throughout the country each month. By this we do not mean that we feel no complaint received against this organization could be warranted, for no business actually "doing business" could make such claim. What we do mean, however, is that no complaint filed with any agency anywhere can rightfully be considered to constitute derogatory information regarding the firm, person or business policies involved until or unless both sides are heard and the full facts secured. Furthermore, even if the object of the complaint be found to be in the wrong but voluntarily and readily makes proper adjustment, then there is surely no just cause for subsequent castigation or derogatory report.

This is the course we have long since endeavored to pursue and, in fact, guarantee such procedure contractually to members in each membership certificate.

Again and finally, the same interests to which reference has been previously made herein have done much to "sell" to the agencies mentioned the idea that any organization such as ours, i.e. not coming within their self designated or exclusive domain cannot be bonafide, cannot be other than out to cheat the public. Of course, it might be said that such a travesty requires no rebuttal. However, to brush it off in this fashion could still readily leave a doubt, so again we say let's see if we have been doing what we have undertaken to do, but let's above all make this determination on the record of what we have been able to do rather than what someone else has not chosen to do.

Please understand . . . our reference to interests which have chosen to bring pressure to bear is not vindictive but only factual. However, we feel the situation here is too important . . . too vital to too many people to be dealt with other than in the light of the full and undisguised facts. There is more than caveat emptor involved here . . . there is and should also be, "let the seller take care."

In closing let us once more reiterate that we are not proposing that all so-called hospital and medical plans are cloaked with integrity but we do feel it is long past the time when some differentiation should and must be made. It has been for this very reason that we have long urged formulation of a code of ethics or some stipulated control be set up to govern the industry, possibly designated by the Attorney General's Office. Such a code would necessarily reconcile and accommodate itself to the particular needs and requirements peculiar to this industry. Furthermore, any member not strictly and faithfully adhering thereto in good faith would certainly have no excuse for its continued existence. To be sure, this particular approach may not be the answer . . . there may be a still better way . . . but whatever it may be, we urge that it be equitable to those legitimately operating in this field . . . not only in differentiating between the manner in which they operate and serve the public but also that the industry itself not be subjegated to or placed at the whim or prejudiced discretion of those who would render ineffectual any effort to fulfill a need which they have chosen to ignore because of a more lucrative, if less realistic appraisal thereof . . . or on the monopolistic creed of "one for all and that is all."

We have nothing to conceal. We feel there is a great deal which could stand revealing. Also, we feel assured that any consideration of this matter on your part, as well as any decisions you may reach will include a concern for and recognition of the welfare of those members we represent and whom you likewise represent, as well as regard for the American prerogative of free enterprise and the healthy competition it engenders.

Respectfully,

(Signed) GENEVIEVE HOWARD, Executive Secretary

Los Angeles, California

DEAR MR. HOTCHKISS: An article appeared in the Los Angeles Times under date of October 20, 1950, Volume LXIX-C, Page 7, Part II, Column 6, quoting Mr. Wallace K. Downey, California Insurance Commissioner, and Mr. Robert J. Bauer, Manager of the Los Angeles Better Business Bureau, regarding the need to control medical benefit societies operating in California by enactment of State legislation.

We are in full accord with this position and recognize the existence of such "racketeering" practices within the field of voluntary pre-paid medicine, as well as the need for some method of control. In fact, we have on more than one occasion urged that some code of ethics be established to do just this . . . i.e., at once, restrain the unscrupulous and protect the legitimate.

However, we do not feel that all organizations, other than the one or two to which actual recommendation is given and blessing extended, in the article in question should be penalized through such "blanket indictment" which castigates through inference "all" other organizations operating in this field.

Fortunately, as is the case in most spheres of business, "the exception proves the rule", rather than the reverse, and "all" are not devoid of scruple.

Therefore, we are enclosing for your information and use an "open letter" pertaining to this matter and would request, in line with what we feel is your paper's policy of giving fair coverage to both sides of any question, that same be published as a public service in a forthcoming edition.

Copies of this letter together with additional facts and figures pertaining to our particular business are being sent to the California Division of Insurance, the Better Business Bureau, and members of the Assembly Interim Committee, in order that the entire "picture" and just where we stand may be brought into clearer focus. As stated in the enclosed letter, our records are always available and we'll stand on the facts.

Your cooperation in this matter is respectfully sought. May we hear from you regarding it?

Sincerely,

A. G. BARNES, President American Independent Medical

Open Letter to the Los Angeles Evening Herald & Express

It was indeed a great source of satisfaction to read the recent article in the Los Angeles Evening Herald & Express, wherein Mr. Wallace K. Downey, California Insurance Commissioner, and Mr. Robert J. Bauer, Manager of the Los Angeles Better Business Bureau, took occasion to point out the need for state laws regulating the so-called fly-by-night medical societies operating in California.

Both Mr. Downey and Mr. Bauer stated, and with justification, that these irresponsible groups cast a shadow in many people's minds on legitimate organizations in this field.

However, the regrettable feature of this entire article was that it failed to go far enough. In other words, only a partial picture was given and, pursuant to the old and proven axiom, "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing."

In this case it is particularly dangerous because it not only works to the detriment of other than the one or two reputable organizations singled out for particular recommendation but also jeopardizes the security and peace of mind of thousands of people who happen to be members of certain other group health plans which do happen to be operated legitimately and in accord with the approved concept of voluntary pre-paid medical protection, the very freedom of choice principle of which is now so strongly urged in our daily newspapers and on the radio by the medical profession The "Voluntary Way is the American Way", we are told, and it is on this principle that this organization, for one, is operated.

We are not the largest, to be sure, but we do have some 15,000 active members and are rapidly growing, now being in our fourth year of operation. In our case, membership does not consist of "putting members in touch with a doctor or hospital", as referred to in the article in question, but offers a complete and definite schedule of hospital, surgical and medical benefits, on which comparison with any plan available is welcomed.

Payment of membership benefits is based on facts, findings, laboratory pathology and history submitted by the member's own doctor and hospital. These people have paid membership dues in good faith and their claims for membership benefits have been paid in good faith, as our records will reveal. These records have been and are open to the Insurance Division, the Better Business Bureau or any authorized agency to examine.

"What we are getting at is just this: We do not feel that organizations operating as we are should be included in any implied

"blanket indictment" of the unscrupulous in the field of voluntary health protection, nor for that matter, can we believe it to be actual intention of either the Insurance Division or the Better Business Bureau to brand the innocent with the guilty. This is definitely not the "American Way."

We, as an organization, are well aware of the so-called medical rackets doing business in California; in fact, we have on more than one occasion urged that some practical code of ethics be set up to regulate this industry, for the protection of those legitimate organizations operating in the State and for the thousands of members represented thereby and for whom adequate medical care and treatment is thus made possible. Such a code would not only safeguard our "humble citizens" who fall gullible prey to "gyp" deals but would also serve as a means of identifying rather than concealing in the mass those who are trying to do an honest job.

This Association is in no way, shape or form either directly or indirectly connected with any other similar or dissimilar organization, group or individual; nor does any other group or individual in any manner designate or control its policies nor its operation which is at all times in the interest of its total and complete membership. This is just good common sense of survival and can be checked for the record. It stands on its own feet and asks no favor from anyone. We feel that our product is good . . . that it needs no apology. Our members feel the same way about it. We want to do our part in making California free from the swindler and the racketeer who would prostitute this or any other field in which he could find a footing. In fact, the keeping of this field clean is more vitally important to us than anyone for this is our business and we want to retain the trust and confidence of those who have made it possible . . . of those who have and shall continue to benefit through their membership, to this they have and will attest.

On our own score, whenever we may be wrong, we want to know about it . . . but now. However, we want to be judged on those facts which apply to us and not on those pertaining to any "condition" which may exist in the field in which we happen to operate.

What is more, we do not feel that ours or any legitimate organization should be penalized because of the wrong doing of "others" in the same activity, nor yet that certain "others" should actually benefit from the same situation.

Let each stand on and face the facts on its own merits. This surely must be the "American Way."

AMERICAN INDEPENDENT MEDICAL AND HEALTH ASSOCIATION

Surely one who reads the above must feel that here is a maligned and persecuted institution trying to do good, lost in the maze of red tape and patiently and with exemplarly forebearance putting up with misunderstanding and suspicion.

For emphasis we quote the following underligned phrases and then shall compare them with the facts revealed by the Examiner for the Insurance Commissioner of the State of California when the American Independent Medical and Health Association was seized by him.

(Mrs.) Genevieve Howard who signed the letter to the chairman, quoted above, is also the A. G. Barnes, president of the respondent association.

In her communication we read these phrases underlined and immediately thereafter quote the facts disclosed by the examiner.

From the letter:

> For example * * * it has come to our attention on more than one occasion lately that we are being "knocked down" in no uncertain terms from certain quarters.
> To cite one case, a statement was made to one of our members to the effect that checks we had tendered in payment of claims had, to use the slange vernacular, "bounced." To refute this particular accusation, we would merely have to refer anyone to the main office of the Bank of America here in San Diego where our Home Office account for the payment of claims is carried."

Comment

From the Report of Examination:

Bank Balance at Various Dates, (O.D., indicating a debit balance or Overdrawn)

July 1, 1949	$46.60
August 31, 1949, O.D.	109.89

October 31, 1950, O.D.	1,157.97
November 1-November 21, 1950, O.D.	170.21

Note that in seven of the sixteen months there was a bank overdraft and probably at the very time Genevieve Howard wrote the letter sent to the committee chairman. Had this been made in sworn testimony before the committee said Genevieve Howard would be in danger of being cited for contempt or perjury.

Again a paragraph of the letter states:

> "We have in the past made a policy, perhaps at the cost of a greater public knowledge and through recognition of our product, of not employing expensive and extensive advertising programs. This has been done in order that all possible strength could be maintained behind each membership."

Comment

The Report of Examination does not bear out the above statement.

In the period June 6, 1947 to June 30, 1949 out of $78,850.37, gross receipts from members there was expended for Advertising, Printing and Postage the sum of $14,405.13. For the period from July 1, 1949 to June 30, 1950 received as gross receipts from members, less refunds $42,786.72 and expended for the same items as above $6,354.57. From July 1, 1950 until November 21, 1950, when so "rudely" interrupted by the Insurance Commissioner, net receipts were $41,145.87 and the amounts charged to the same items totaled $4,654.64 or a modest 11.2 percent of net receipts. We have included postage with the advertising and printing charges because of the extensive use of the mails in the promotional plan of American Independent Medical and Health Association.

There are other comparisons which the reader of this report can make for himself but we cannot pass on to other matters without drawing particular attention to this statement in the Genevieve Howard letter. It reads as follows:

> "Another feature which has characterized our particular modus operandi has been the maintenence of a low operating cost. Numerous and varied functions have been assigned to and assumed by a few key personnel to the end of keeping down the administrative overhead. In other words, every cent received in the form of membership dues, other than that required for nominal administrative cost, is set aside and made available for the avowed purpose of the organization i.e., the providing of specified hospital, surgical and medical benefits to its members."

Comment

If the writer of the letter consciously or unconsciously toyed with the truth in the other statements made, in this one she shoots so wide of the mark that we have no other conclusion to draw than that here she is deliberately seeking to mislead the recipient of the letter. We are forced to this conclusion when we realize the import of the Report of the Examination by the Insurance Commissioner's office where it is stated:

> "Only twelve cents of each dollar of dues collected has been expended for hospital, medical services and indemnities to members."
> "The remaining eighty-eight cents of each dollar collected has been utilized for administrative expenses."

We are forced to disagree with Genevieve Howard as to her statement—"every cent received in the form of membership dues, other than that required for nominal administrative cost is set aside and made available for the avowed purpose of the organization * * *" when we examine the salary arrangement she, and Jesse C. Fortune, President of the Association, have made by and with themselves.

In the "accounts payable, officers" section of the Report of Examination we find these illuminating disclosures.

O God, Who Hast Set the Solitary in Families, Who dost join man to man in friendship, and who dost kindle hearts of nations to draw near to one another, we seek Thine approval upon the accomplishments of this Assembly.

For the opportunities of serving Thee and our Country in the sessions of this Legislature, we give sincere thanks. May the words of our mouths and the meditations of our hearts this very day be acceptable in Thy sight, our Lord and our Redeemer. And e'er we be separated one from the other, even for a time, may the worthy friendships we have made draw us closer one to another and unto Thee.

"Blest be the tie that binds
Our hearts in Christian love;
The fellowship of kindred minds
Is like to that above.
We share our mutual woes,
Our mutual burdens bear,
And often for each other flows
The sympathizing tear.
When we asunder part,
It gives us inward pain;
But we shall still be joined in heart
And hope to meet again."

In Jesus' name.—AMEN.

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE, STATE CAPITOL
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, June 22, 1951

Hon. Sam L. Collins
Speaker of the Assembly
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR MR. SPEAKER: The Assembly Interim Committee on Public Education, created by House Resolution No. 242, 1949 Regular Session, herewith submits its final report.

The committee has in its files much information in addition to that previously reported which would be of assistance to a future interim committee if such is created.

This report is merely a resume of the activities of the committee. Most of these activities have resulted in legislation presented at the First Extraordinary Session in 1949 and the First and Third Extraordinary Sessions in 1950 and at the 1951 Regular Session. No recommendations are included in this report.

The committee was allocated the sum of $16,000 to finance its activities of which $6,443.19 was unused and will revert to the Assembly Contingent Fund.

Respectfully submitted.

(b) "Pupils" as used in this article does not include pupils for whom the Superintendent of Public Instruction is computing the excess cost of educating physically handicapped pupils under Chapter 9 of Division 4 includes in such excess costs the cost of transportation of such pupils.

He shall determine the total current expenses of the district for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year. He shall then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation of the district as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than two cents ($0.02) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than eight cents ($0.08) of the computed tax rate less two cents ($0.02) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of eight cents ($0.08).

(b) He shall allow to each high school district maintaining a junior college, except as to any to which Section 7016 is applicable, which during the preceding fiscal year provided for the transportation of pupils, an amount which shall be computed as follows:

He shall determine the total current expenses of the districts for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year. He shall then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation of the district as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than three cents ($0.03) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than twelve cents ($0.12) of the computed tax rate less three cents ($0.03) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of twelve cents ($0.12).

7015. (a) He shall allow to each unified school district formed under the provisions of Chapter 16 of Division 2 of this code, the formation of which became effective on July 1, 1948, or thereafter, an amount equal to the total current expenses of the district during the preceding fiscal year for the transportation of pupils, determined by the Superintendent of Public Instruction to have been required because of a change of the location of schoolhouses or the reorganization of attendance centers within the district during such preceding fiscal year. No allowance shall be made under this paragraph subsequent to the close of the fifth fiscal year following that in which the district was formed and thereafter the provisions of the next paragraph shall control as to such district.

He shall allow to each unified school district not maintaining a junior college which during the preceding fiscal year provided for the transportation of pupils, an amount which shall be computed as follows:

(b) He shall determine the total current expenses of the district for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year. He shall then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation of the district as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than three cents ($0.03) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than twelve cents ($0.12) of the computed tax rate less three cents ($0.03) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of twelve cents ($0.12).

(c) He shall allow to each unified school district maintaining a junior college which during the preceding fiscal year provided for the transportation of pupils, an amount which shall be computed as follows:

He shall determine the total current expenses of the district for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year. He shall then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation of the district as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than four cents ($0.04) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than sixteen cents ($0.16) of the computed tax rate less four cents ($0.04) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of sixteen cents ($0.16).

7016. He shall compute for each group of two or more school districts which have been continuously from a time prior to July 1, 1949, governed by boards of identical personnel during the preceding fiscal year and have maintained a single transportation system for all of such districts which provided for the transportation of pupils, an amount which shall be computed as follows:

He shall determine the total current expenses of the districts for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year.

(a) He shall, if such group comprises an elementary school district and a high school district not maintaining a junior college and each district provided for the transportation of pupils, or comprises an elementary school district, a high school district, and a junior college district and each district except the junior college district provided for the transportation of pupils, or comprises a high school district and a junior college district and each district provided for the transportation of pupils, then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation of that one of such districts providing for the transportation of pupils which has the largest assessed valuation as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than three cents ($0.03) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than twelve cents ($0.12) of the computed tax rate less three cents ($0.03) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of twelve cents ($0.12).

(b) He shall, if such group comprises an elementary school district, and a high school district maintaining a junior college, each of which provided for the transportation of pupils, including those attending the junior college, or comprises an elementary school district, a high school district, and a junior college district, each of which provided for the transportation of pupils, then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation of that one of such districts providing for the transportation of pupils which had the largest assessed valuation as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than four cents ($0.04) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than sixteen cents ($0.16) of the computed tax rate less four cents ($0.04) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of sixteen cents ($0.16)

He shall then allow to each district in the group the same ratio of the total amount computed for the group as the governing boards of the districts in the groups certify to him is the ratio the amount expended for such transportation in such district during the preceding fiscal year was of the total expenditures of all districts in the group for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year.

7017. In the case of a unified school district formed under Chapter 16 of Division 2 of this code, the formation of which became effective for all purposes on July 1, 1948, or thereafter, there shall be included in addition to the current costs of the district the cost of school busses for the first five fiscal years in which it purchases school busses determined by the Superintendent of Public Instruction to have been required because of changes in the location of schools or the reorganization of attendance centers within the district, the entire cost of such busses. This paragraph shall not be effective as to any unified school district after the end of the fifth fiscal year succeeding the formation of the district.

7018. The Superintendent of Public Instruction in approving, under this article, current expenditures of school districts for the transportation of pupils shall apply the same standards and bases for such approval to expenditures for such transportation provided by a school district in school busses owned and operated by the school district and expenditures for such transportation provided by contract with a private party except that with respect to expenditures for transportation by contract with a private party, he shall make due allowance for all expenditures by the private party required of it by law and not required of a school district in connection with the operation of busses owned by the district.

7019. In the event the total amount which may be allowed under Section 7011 for allowance under this article during any fiscal year is less than the total allowances computed under this article for such fiscal year without regard to Section 7011, the amounts allowed shall be reduced in the ratio that the amount of such deficit bears to the amounts allowed.

SEC. 10. Section 7031.1 is added to said code, to read:

7031.1. With respect to any unified school district which became effective for all purposes after July 1, 1950, the foundation program for such district as computed under this article shall be increased five dollars ($5) for each unit of average daily attendance in each of the first five fiscal years of its existence for all purposes.

SEC. 11. Section 7037 of said code is repealed

SEC. 12. Section 7037 is added to said code, to read:

7037. For each high school district which had an average daily attendance during the preceding fiscal year of less than 301, he shall compute, except as otherwise provided, ten thousand eighty dollars ($10,080) for the first five units; five hundred four dollars ($504) for each of the sixth to sixty-second units, inclusive; three hundred thirty dollars ($330) for the sixty-third unit; one hundred sixty-six dollars ($166) for each of the sixty-fourth to one hundred thirtieth units, inclusive; and seventy-five dollars ($75) for each of the one hundred thirty-first to the three hundredth units, inclusive.

SEC. 13. Section 7037.1 is added to said code, to read:

7037.1. For each high school district which maintained two or more high schools, he shall compute for the district an amount which shall be determined by allowing for each day high school having an average daily attendance of less than 301 the amount of which would otherwise be computed for the district under Section 7037 except that with respect to any such high school maintaining less than four years the amount computed for such high school shall be an amount determined by multiplying the number of units of average daily attendance of such high school by two hundred ten dollars

($210) or the following percentage of the amount computed under Section 7037.2, whichever amount is the larger:

(a) Fifty-five percent if the high school maintains but one year,

(b) Sixty-five percent if the high school maintains but two years, or

(c) Eighty percent if the high school maintains but three years.

No computation shall be made under this section for any high school established after July 1, 1952, without the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

SEC. 14. Section 7037.2 is added to said code, to read:

7037.2. For each high school district he shall multiply the number of units of average daily attendance, exclusive of the average daily attendance of a day high school having an average daily attendance of 301 or more by two hundred ten dollars ($210).

SEC. 15. Section 7037.3 is added to said code, to read:

7037.3. The amount by which the foundation program computed under Section 7037 or Section 7037.1 for a high school district exceeds the foundation program which would have been computed for such district by multiplying the number of units of average daily attendance of such district by two hundred ten dollars ($210) shall, beginning with the Fiscal Year 1954-1955, be reduced by an amount equal to 20 percent of the amount of such excess and for each of the four succeeding fiscal years by an additional 20 percent except as to any high school district in which any one or more of the following conditions obtain:

(a) If as many as five pupils residing in the district and attending grades 9 to 12, inclusive, would be required to travel more than 30 miles one way from a point on a well-traveled road nearest their home to the nearest other public high school, or

(b) If as many as 10 pupils residing in the district and attending grades 9 to 12, inclusive, would be required to travel more than 20 miles one way from a point on a well-traveled road nearest their home to the nearest other public high school, or

(c) If as many as 40 pupils residing in the district and attending grades 9 to 12, inclusive, would be required to travel more than 15 miles one way from a point on a well-traveled road nearest their home to the nearest other public high school.

If topographical or other conditions exist in a district which would impose unusual hardships if the number of miles specified was required to be traveled or if during the fiscal year the roads which would be traveled have been impassable for more than an average of two weeks per year for the preceding five years, the governing board of the district may, on or before April 1st, request the Superintendent of Public Instruction, in writing, for an exemption from such requirements or for a reduction in the miles required. The request shall be accompanied by a statement of the conditions upon which such request is based, giving such information in such form as the Superintendent of Public Instruction may require. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall cause an investigation to be made, and he shall either grant such request to the extent deemed necessary by him or deny the request.

SEC. 16. Section 7038 of said code is amended to read:

7038. For each junior college district he shall multiply the number of units of average daily attendance in grades 13 and 14 computed for the district under Sections [6951, 6953, and 6961] 6961, 6963, and 6971, subject to the provisions of Section 7149, by two hundred ten dollars ($210).

SEC. 17. Section 7041 of said code is amended to read:

7041. For the purposes of this article, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall allow, in addition to all other allowances, to the county school service fund:

[(a) Two thousand four hundred dollars ($2,400), for supervision of instruction, to the county school service fund of each county for the first three hundred or major fraction of three hundred units of average daily attendance in the aggregate in all the elementary districts of the county, including union and joint union elementary school districts, having less than three hundred units of average daily attendance during the preceding fiscal year and in the emergency schools maintained within the elementary school districts of the county by the county superintendent of schools during the preceding fiscal year. Two thousand four hundred dollars ($2,400) for supervision of instruction shall be allowed to the fund for the next three hundred or any fraction of three hundred units of average daily attendance, and two thousand four hundred dollars ($2,400) shall be allowed to the fund for each succeeding three hundred or major fraction of three hundred units of average daily attendance.

(b) Two thousand four hundred dollars ($2,400), for supervision of instruction, to the county school service fund of the county for each five hundred or major fraction of five hundred units of average daily attendance in the aggregate in all the elementary school districts of the county, including union and joint union elementary school districts having an average daily attendance of three hundred or more but less than nine hundreds units of average daily attendance during the preceding fiscal year.

(c)] (a) For all emergency schools maintained in each elementary school district of the county by the county superintendent of schools during the preceding fiscal year, the same amount as he would compute as the foundation program of an elementary school district under Article 4 of this chapter.

[(d)] (b) Two hundred ten dollars ($210) [one hundred eighty-five dollars ($185)] for each unit of average daily attendance of physically handicapped pupils of secondary grade educated by the county superintendent of schools during the preceding fiscal year.

SEC. 18. Article 5.5 is added to Chapter 15 of Division 3 of said code to read:

Article 5.5. Computation of Aid to County School Tuition Funds

7046 The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall allow to each county school tuition fund ninety dollars ($90) for each unit of average daily attendance of pupils residing in the county and attending school in an adjoining state during the preceding fiscal year.

SEC. 19. Section 7067 of said code is amended to read.

7067 He shall allow to each high school district ninety dollars ($90) for each unit of average daily attendance in the district during the preceding fiscal year as computed under Sections 6943, [6952, and 6961] 6962, and 6971, subject to the provisions of Section 7148.

SEC. 20. Section 7075 of said code is amended to read

7075 He shall allow to each junior college district ninety dollars ($90) for each unit of average daily attendance in grades 13 and 14 subject to the provisions of Section 7149 during the preceding fiscal year, to the district as computed for the district under Sections [6954 and 6961] 6963 and 6971

SEC. 20.1. Section 7081 of said code is amended to read:

7081 The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall then compute for each district described herein the amount which a tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation in such district as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding year would produce if levied, if such tax was:

(a) Forty-five cents ($0.45) in an elementary school district.

(b) [Thirty-two cents ($0.32)] Forty cents ($0.40) in a high school district.

(c) Twenty-two cents ($0.22) in a junior college district.

SEC. 21. Section 7112 of said code is amended to read

7112. If the total amount allowed from the State School Fund to all high school districts and to all county school service funds under Articles 5, 7 and 10 of this chapter on account of the average daily attendance of pupils in high school districts and in schools or classes of high school grade maintained by county superintendents of schools is less than the total amount provided in the State School Fund on account of such average daily attendance plus seven hundred thousand dollars ($700,000), minus an amount equal to the amounts allowed under Sections 7001 and 7011 on account of such average daily attendance plus one-fourth of the amount allowed under Section 7003, the balance shall be allowed by the Superintendent of Public Instruction to high school districts receiving State Equalization Aid during the then current fiscal year. The amount allowed each such district shall be in the ratio that the amount of the balance bears to the total amount computed as equalization aid for all high school districts, multiplied by the amount of equalization aid computed for the district

SEC. 21.1. Section 7115 of said code is amended to read

7115 If the total amount allowed from the State School Fund to all high school districts and to all county school service funds under Articles 5, 7 and 10 of this chapter on account of the average daily attendance of pupils in high school districts and in schools or classes of high school grade maintained by county superintendents of schools is larger than the total amount provided in the State School Fund on account of such average daily attendance plus seven hundred thousand dollars ($700,000), minus an amount equal to the amounts allowed under Sections 7001 and 7011, on account of such average daily attendance plus one-fourth of the amount allowed under Section 7003, the amount allowed each such district as State Equalization Aid from the State School Fund shall be reduced in the ratio that the amount of the deficit bears to the total amount of equalization aid computed for all high school districts multiplied by the amount of equalization aid computed for the district.

SEC. 22. Section 7092 of said code is amended to read

7092 The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall then compare the total of the amounts allowed to, and computed for, each high school district pursuant to Articles 7 and 9 of this chapter with the amount of the foundation program of school support computed for each such district pursuant to Article 4 of this chapter

If the total amount allowed to, and computed for, any high school district pursuant to Articles 7 and 9 of this chapter is less than the amount of the foundation program of school support computed for such district pursuant to Article 4 of this chapter, he shall add to the amount allowed to, and computed for, such district pursuant to Articles 7 and 9 of this chapter such additional amount, to be known as state equalization aid, as may be necessary to equal that computed for such district pursuant to Article 4 of this chapter.

Notwithstanding anything in this article to the contrary, the amount computed for any high school district under this article shall be not less than it would have been had the foundation program of school support for such district under Article 4 of this chapter been computed by multiplying the number of units of average daily attendance in the district during the preceding fiscal year as computed under Sections 6943, [6952, and 6961] 6962, and 6971 by two hundred [ten dollars ($210)] sixty dollars ($.260) and had the tax used in making the computation for the district under Article 9 of this chapter been [fifty cents ($0.50)] seventy-five cents ($0.75).

SEC. 23. Section 7094 is added to said code, to read.

7094. No state equalization aid shall be allowed to any high school district under this article during the Fiscal Year 1951-1952 unless, during the preceding fiscal year, there shall have been levied a tax for such district in an amount equal to thirty-two cents ($0.32) or more on 90 percent of each one hundred dollars ($100) of the assessed valuation in such district as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the next preceding year and no high school district which has met the requirements of this section and is otherwise entitled to state equalization aid shall be denied such aid.

SEC. 24. Section 7096 is added to said code, to read:

7096. Notwithstanding anything in this chapter to the contrary, if under Section 6907 average daily attendance of an original district is credited to an acquiring district, the amounts allowed by the Superintendent of Public Instruction as state equalization aid to the original school district and to the acquiring school district during the first fiscal year in which an apportionment is made to the acquiring school district on account of such average daily attendance, shall be the amounts computed under this section. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall divide the total amount of state equalization aid which would have been apportioned to the original school district during said fiscal year had this section not been in effect by the units of average daily attendance of the original school district for the preceding fiscal year prior to the crediting of any of such average daily attendance to the acquiring school district. He shall allow to the original school district as state equalization aid the amount computed by multiplying the resulting quotient by the units of average daily attendance of the district for the preceding fiscal year less the units credited to the acquiring school district. He shall allow the acquiring school district as state equalization aid the amount computed by multiplying the same quotient by the units of average daily attendance credited to the district under this section.

SEC. 25. Article 11.6 is added to Chapter 15 of Division 3 of said code, to read:

Article 11.6. Apportionment for Growth

7109. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall apportion to each school district, in addition to all other apportionments made under this division, the sums allowed as herein provided.

7109.1. The governing board of each school district shall report to the Superintendent of Public Instruction during each fiscal year, as herein provided, the average daily attendance in the regular day schools of the district for all full school months in the fiscal year during (1) the period between July 1st and December 31st, inclusive, hereinafter referred to as the "first period," (2) the period between the end of the last full school month of the first period and May 31st, inclusive, hereinafter referred to as the "second period," and (3) for each of the same periods during the preceding fiscal year. Such report with respect to the first period shall be filed with the Superintendent of Public Instruction on or before the next succeeding January 15th and with respect to the second period shall be filed with the Superintendent of Public Instruction not later than the next succeeding June 10th. Each report shall be made in such form as shall be prescribed and furnished by the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

7109.2. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall allow for each period referred to above, to each school district which was in existence for all purposes during the preceding fiscal year an amount which shall be computed as follows:

The average daily attendance in the regular day schools of the district during the period in the then current fiscal year and for the same period in the preceding fiscal year shall be computed in the manner prescribed in Chapter 14 of this division, except that in each case the divisor used shall bear the same ratio to the divisor required to be used under said Chapter 14 to determine the average daily attendance of the regular day schools of the district for the whole of the preceding fiscal year as the number of days the regular day schools of the district were maintained during the period bears to 175 and except that the computation of a day of attendance shall be determined according to the law in effect during said preceding fiscal year.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall apportion to each school district for each unit by which the average daily attendance for a period of the then current fiscal year exceeds that of the average daily attendance for the same period during the preceding fiscal year, an amount determined by dividing the total of the amounts allowed the district during the preceding fiscal year as basic state aid and state equalization aid, exclusive of amounts allowed under Section 7117, by the total average daily attendance of the district during the preceding fiscal year multiplied by the ratio of days the regular day schools of the district were maintained during said period of the then current fiscal year to 175.

7109.3. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall allow, for each period referred to above, to each school district which was not in existence for all purposes during the preceding fiscal year an amount which shall be computed as follows:

The average daily attendance in the regular day schools of the district during the period in the then current fiscal year shall be computed in the manner prescribed in Chapter 14 of this division, except that the divisor used shall bear the same ratio which would have been required to be used under said Chapter 14 to determine the average daily attendance of the regular day schools of the district for the whole of the preceding fiscal year had such district been in existence for all purposes during the preceding fiscal year, as the number of days the regular day schools of the district were maintained during the period bears to 175 and except that the computation of a day of attendance shall be determined according to the law in effect during the preceding fiscal year.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall allow to each such district for each unit of average daily attendance so computed an amount determined by dividing the total of the amounts of basic state aid and state equalization aid which would have been apportioned to such district during the current fiscal year on account of such average daily attendance had such district been in existence for all purposes during the preceding fiscal year, multiplied by the ratio of days the regular day schools of the district were maintained to said period of the then current fiscal year to 175

In making any computation under Section 7081 for the purposes of this section, the assessed valuation of the district for the current year shall be used. Section 7095 is not applicable to districts coming within this section.

7109.4. For the purposes of this article all of the elementary school districts included in any union elementary school district, joint union elementary school district, or unified school district shall constitute a single elementary school district regardless of Section 7184, all of the high school districts included in any unified school district shall constitute a single high school district, and all of the junior college districts included in any unified school district shall constitute a single junior college district.

7109.5. The apportionment made on account of the first period shall be made not later than the next succeeding February 15th; the apportionment made on account of the second period shall be made not later than the next succeeding June 30th.

7109.6. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall furnish an abstract of the apportionments made under this article to the State Controller, the Department of Finance, and to the county and city and county auditors, county and city and county treasurers, and county superintendents of schools of the several counties of the State having jurisdiction over the districts to which such apportionments are made.

7109.7. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall certify each apportionment made by him under this article to the State Controller who shall draw his warrant during the fiscal year on the State School Fund in favor of the treasurer of the county having jurisdiction over the district for the amount of such apportionment.

7109.8. All money received by the treasurer of any county from an apportionment made under this article shall be immediately credited by the treasurer to the general fund of the district exactly as apportioned by the Superintendent of Public Instruction

SEC. 26. The heading of Article 12 of Chapter 15 of Division 3 of said code is amended to read:

Article 12. [Computation and Apportionment of State Equalization Balance]
Re-computation of Allowances

SEC. 27. Section 7117 is added to said code, to read:

7117. In addition to any and all other amounts allowed under this chapter, the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall allow to

(a) Each elementary and high school district an amount equal to 10 percent of the state equalization aid computed for the district

(b) For each unit of average daily attendance in the district during the preceding fiscal year an amount equal to the quotient derived by dividing one million eight hundred thousand dollars ($1,800,000) by the total average daily attendance in all school districts during the preceding fiscal year, or one dollar ($1), whichever is the lesser.

SEC. 27. Section 7125 of said code is amended to read:

7125. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall apportion to the county high school tuition fund of each county the amount required to be allowed thereto by Section [7011] 7046.

SEC. 28. Article 1 is added to Chapter 16 of Division 3 of said code, to read:

Article 1. County School Service Fund

7201. There is hereby established in the treasury of each county the "county school service fund."

7202. Whenever any of the terms "unapportioned county elementary school fund," "county elementary school supervision fund," or "unapportioned county high school funds" are used in this code or in any other law, said term shall be deemed to refer to and mean the "county school service fund" established by this chapter.

7203. During July or August of each year the county superintendent of schools shall transfer to the county school service fund 80 percent of any excessive balance or unnecessary surplus in any school fund of any elementary school district. Funds raised by school district taxes shall not be transferred 7204. The county auditor of any county, receiving money from the Government of the United States pursuant to any act of Congress providing for the distribution and payment to states and territories of a fixed and definite percentage of the money received by the Government of the United States from the forest reserves established therein, shall apportion 50 percent of the money received to the credit of the county school service fund of the county.

The money thus added to the county school service fund shall be apportioned by the county superintendent of schools in the same manner as other county school service fund money, except that all or any portion of the money thus apportioned to the credit of the county school service fund shall upon the request of the county superintendent of schools be transferred to the forest reserve school fund, which shall be used by the county superintendent of schools for the benefit of school districts of the county lying within or adjacent to the United States Forest Reserve. The fund is available for any purpose for which county funds may be spent.

7205 The county school service fund shall be employed by the county superintendent of schools to pay such charges against the fund as are provided in this code; and to provide with the approval of the county board of education (a) additional apportionments to any school district under his jurisdiction for current expenses which (1) has levied the maximum district tax specified in Section 6357 and in which the annual average current cost per pupil does not exceed the annual average current cost per pupil for all districts of the same type within the county or under the jurisdiction of the county superintendent of schools, or (2) which needs additional apportionments for current expenses because of temporary emergency conditions, and (b) additional apportionments to any school district under his jurisdiction for the transportation of pupils to and from school to meet temporary emergency conditions.

7206. The county superintendent of schools may:

(a) With the approval of the county board of education provide advisory services in school business administration, in maintenance of school buildings and grounds, and in the processing of special problems concerning credentials as designated by the State Department of Education.

(b) Pay actual and necessary travel expenses incurred, in connection with curricular and special services, by the county superintendent of schools, or by his designated staff members in accordance with regulations established by the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The costs incurred under this section shall be paid out of the county school service fund.

7207. The county superintendent of schools shall, except as otherwise provided by this code, expend from the county school service fund all amounts apportioned to said fund for supervision of instruction, exclusively for the payment of the salaries and necessary expenses of supervisors to supervise instruction in the elementary school districts of the county having less than 900 units of average daily attendance during the next preceding fiscal year, and in any other elementary school districts of the county the governing board of which requests him to supervise instruction in the schools of such district, and for the furnishing of such clerical help, supplies, and equipment to the supervisors as the county superintendent of schools deems necessary. In the event of the inability of the county superintendent of schools to use such amounts advantageously during any fiscal year, the unexpended portion of such amounts may be used for other purposes of the county school service fund

7208 No moneys shall be expended from the county school service fund for any purpose in excess of the total proposed expenditures for such purpose as approved by the Superintendent of Public Instruction under Section 7001, without the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

SEC 30 It is the intent of the Legislature in enacting this act to continue in effect Chapters 2, 12, 13, 14, 15, and 16 of Division 3, and Sections 8761, 8704, and 9645, of the Education Code as the same are now in effect except as said chapters or any article or articles, section or sections included therein, or the sections named herein, may be amended, added, repealed, added to, or otherwise affected by this act or any other act enacted by the 1951 Regular Session of the Legislature

SEC. 32. This act is hereby declared to be an urgency measure necessary for the immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety within the meaning of Section 1 of Article IV of the Constitution and shall therefore go into immediate effect, to become operative July 1, 1951 A statement of the facts constituting such necessity is as follows:

The existing law providing for the apportionment of the State School Fund for the support of the public kindergarten schools, elementary schools, and secondary schools will, because of Section 10 of Chapter 74, Statutes 1950 First Extraordinary Session, remain in effect only until July 1, 1951 It is essential that provision be made for the support of such schools beginning July 1, 1951, and it is therefore necessary that this act take effect immediately".

Membership and Duties of Committee

The State School Building Finance Committee determines the amount and terms of State bonds to be issued for financing state aided school construction under the State School Building Aid Act (Chapter 1.6 of Division 3 of the Education Code). The committee is empowered by Chapter 1.7 of Division 3, Education Code, to issue up to 250 million dollars in bonds authorized by Section 15 of Article XVI of the Constitution. Bond proceeds are apportioned to eligible school districts by the State Allocation Board.

The committee, created by the Legislature in 1949, consists of the Governor, Director of Finance, Director of Education, State Treasurer, and State Controller. Meeting with the committee in an advisory capacity are two Members of the Senate and two Members of the Assembly who constitute an Interim Investigating Committee on State School Building Bonds.

Need for State School Building Bonds

By May 31, 1951, the State Allocation Board had received applications for State School Building aid from 349 school districts for assistance totaling 246 million dollars The board has approved applications for 214 million dollars in state aid and has so far apportioned 81 million dollars towards the amount requested in approved applications The balance of the 214 million dollars is expected to be apportioned as needed by school districts to complete projects approved by the board Additional amounts will be needed for applications on hand and awaiting board approval.

Bonds Issued

The State Allocation Board has so far requested the State School Building Finance Committee to approve the issuance of bonds totaling 150 million dollars to provide funds for apportionments to school districts, stating that additional requests would be submitted as needs arose.

The average daily attendance of pupils in the regular day junior colleges of a high school district during the fiscal year immediately preceding the effective date of the inclusion of such high school district in a junior college district shall, for all the purposes of this division, be deemed to be average daily attendance in regular day junior colleges of the junior college district during said preceding fiscal year and not average daily attendance in the regular day junior colleges of the high school district during said preceding fiscal year.

For the purposes of this section all elementary school districts are districts of the same type, all high school districts are districts of the same type, and all junior college districts are districts of the same type

The inclusion of the whole or a portion of an elementary school district, high school district, or junior college district in a unified school district shall be deemed to be the inclusion of such elementary school district, high school district, or junior college district or portion thereof in the elementary school district, high school district, or junior college district, as the case may be, within the unified school district.

SEC. 9. Article 2 is added to Chapter 15 of Division 3 of said code, to read:

Article 2. Computation of Additional Allowances to School Districts and County School Service Funds for Transportation

7011. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall not allow under this article during any fiscal year a total amount in excess of an amount computed by multiplying the total average daily attendance in the schools and classes maintained by county superintendents of schools and in the elementary school districts, high school districts, and junior college districts of the State during the preceding school year by three dollars ($3).

7011.1. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall allow to each school district and county school service fund such amount as is required by this article.

7012. (a) "Transportation" as used in this article means, unless the context otherwise requires:

(1) The transportation of pupils between their homes and the schools attended by them as provided by a school district.

(2) The payment of moneys by a school district to parents or guardians of pupils in lieu of providing for the transportation of such pupils between their homes and the schools attended by them.

(3) The providing of board and lodging to pupils by a school district in lieu of providing for the transportation of such pupils between their homes and the schools attended by them.

(b) "Pupils" as used in this article does not include pupils for whom the Superintendent of Public Instruction in computing the excess cost of educating physically handicapped pupils under Chapter 9 of Division 4 includes in such excess costs the cost of transportation of such pupils.

7013. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall make all allowances under this article during a fiscal year in accordance with regulations, not in conflict with this article, adopted by him, and he is hereby authorized and directed to adopt such regulations. None of such regulations shall be binding upon any school district, but no allowance shall be made under this article to a school district for any item of current expense or capital outlay with respect to which the school district has failed to comply with the regulations of the Superintendent of Public Instruction applicable to such item.

The regulations adopted by the Superintendent of Public Instruction hereunder shall, among other matters:

(a) Prescribe the records to be kept by, and reports to be made by, school districts.

(b) Fix the minimum distances for the sole purpose of determining the total current expenses of a district for transportation.

(c) Determine what expenditures constitute "current expenses."

(d) Establish and prescribe formulae for the sole purpose of computing financial allowances under which school busses may be acquired in accordance with the provisions of Section 7017.

(e) Provide for the review and approval of all expenditures upon which allowances are computed.

(f) Establish and prescribe formulae for the sole purpose of computing financial allowances for reimbursement of replacement expenses incurred by a school district in replacing school busses.

7014. (a) He shall allow to each elementary school district, high school district, and junior college district, except as to any to which Section 7016 is applicable, which during the preceding fiscal year provided for the transportation of pupils, an amount which shall be computed as follows:

He shall determine the total current expenses of the district for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year. He shall then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation of the district as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than two cents ($0.02) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than eight cents ($0.08) of the computed tax rate less two cents ($0.02) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of eight cents ($0.08).

(b) He shall allow to each high school district maintaining a junior college, except as to any to which Section 7016 is applicable, which during the preceding fiscal year provided for the transportation of pupils, an amount which shall be computed as follows:

He shall determine the total current expenses of the districts for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year. He shall then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation of the district as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than three cents ($0.03) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than twelve cents ($0.12) of the computed tax rate less three cents ($0.03) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of twelve cents ($0.12).

7015. (a) He shall allow to each unified school district formed under the provisions of Chapter 16 of Division 2 of this code, the formation of which became effective on July 1, 1948, or thereafter, an amount equal to the total current expenses of the district during the preceding fiscal year for the transportation of pupils, determined by the Superintendent of Public Instruction to have been required because of a change of the location of schoolhouses or the reorganization of attendance centers within the district during such preceding fiscal year. No allowance shall be made under this paragraph subsequent to the close of the fifth fiscal year following that in which the district was formed and thereafter the provisions of the next paragraph shall control as to such district.

He shall allow to each unified school district not maintaining a junior college which during the preceding fiscal year provided for the transportation of pupils, an amount which shall be computed as follows:

(b) He shall determine the total current expenses of the district for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year. He shall then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation of the district as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than three cents ($0.03) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than twelve cents ($0.12) of the computed tax rate less three cents ($0.03) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of twelve cents ($0.12).

(c) He shall allow to each unified school district maintaining a junior college which during the preceding fiscal year provided for the transportation of pupils, an amount which shall be computed as follows

He shall determine the total current expenses of the district for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year. He shall then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation of the district as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than four cents ($0.04) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than sixteen cents ($0.16) of the computed tax rate less four cents ($0.04) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of sixteen cents ($0.16)

7016 He shall compute for each group of two or more school districts which have been continuously from a time prior to July 1, 1949, governed by boards of identical personnel during the preceding fiscal year and have maintained a single transportation system for all of such districts which provided for the transportation of pupils, an amount which shall be computed as follows:

He shall determine the total current expenses of the district for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year.

(a) He shall, if such group comprises an elementary school district and a high school district not maintaining a junior college and each district provided for the transportation of pupils, or comprises an elementary school district, a high school district, and a junior college district and each district except the junior college district provided for the transportation of pupils, or comprises a high school district and a junior college district and each district provided for the transportation of pupils, then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuation of that one of such districts providing for the transportation of pupils which has the largest assessed valuation as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than three cents ($0.03) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than twelve cents ($0.12) of the computed tax rate less three cents ($0.03) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of twelve cents ($0.12).

(b) He shall, if such group comprises an elementary school district, and a high school district maintaining a junior college, each of which provided for the transportation of pupils, including those attending the junior college, or comprises an elementary school district, a high school district, and a junior college district, each of which provided for the transportation of pupils, then determine what rate of tax levied on each one hundred dollars ($100) of 90 percent of the assessed valuatoin of that one of such districts providing for the transportation of pupils which had the largest assessed valuation as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the preceding fiscal year, hereinafter referred to in this section as computed tax rate, would, if levied, produce such amount. If the computed rate of tax is more than four cents ($0.04) he shall allow to the district (a) 50 percent of the amount which would be produced by not more than sixteen cents ($0.16) of the computed tax rate less four cents ($0.04) and (b) 100 percent of the amount which would be produced by the computed tax rate in excess of sixteen cents ($0.16).

He shall then allow to each district in the group the same ratio of the total amount computed for the group as the governing boards of the districts in the groups certify to him is the ratio the amount expended for such transportation in such district during the preceding fiscal year was of the total expenditures of all districts in the group for such transportation during the preceding fiscal year.

7017. In the case of a unified school district formed under Chapter 16 of Division 2 of this code, the formation of which became effective for all purposes on July 1, 1948, or thereafter, there shall be included in addition to the current costs of the district the cost of school busses for the first five fiscal years in which it purchases school busses determined by the Superintendent of Public Instruction to have been required because of changes in the location of schools or the reorganization of attendance centers within the district, the entire cost of such busses This paragraph shall not be effective as to any unified school district after the end of the fifth fiscal year succeeding the formation of the district.

7018. The Superintendent of Public Instruction in approving, under this article, current expenditures of school districts for the transportation of pupils shall apply the same standards and bases for such approval to expenditures for such transportation provided by a school district in school busses owned and operated by the school district and expenditures for such transportation provided by contract with a private party except that with respect to expenditures for transportation by contract with a private party, he shall make due allowance for all expenditures by the private party required of it by law and not required of a school district in connection with the operation of busses owned by the district.

7019 In the event the total amount which may be allowed under Section 7011 for allowance under this article during any fiscal year is less than the total allowances computed under this article for such fiscal year without regard to Section 7011, the amounts allowed shall be reduced in the ratio that the amount of such deficit bears to the amounts allowed.

SEC. 10 Section 7031 1 is added to said code, to read:

7031 1. With respect to any unified school district which became effective for all purposes after July 1, 1950, the foundation program for such district as computed under this article shall be increased five dollars ($5) for each unit of average daily attendance in each of the first five fiscal years of its existence for all purposes.

SEC. 11. Section 7037 of said code is repealed.

SEC. 12 Section 7037 is added to said code to read

7037 For each high school district which had an average daily attendance during the preceding fiscal year of less than 301, he shall compute, except as otherwise provided, ten thousand eighty dollars ($10,080) for the first five units; five hundred four dollars ($504) for each of the sixth to sixty-second units, inclusive; three hundred thirty dollars ($330) for the sixty-third unit; one hundred sixty-six dollars ($166) for each of the sixty-fourth to one hundred thirtieth units, inclusive; and seventy-five dollars ($75) for each of the one hundred thirty-first to the three hundredth units, inclusive.

(a) Fifty-five percent if the high school maintains but one year,

(b) Sixty-five percent if the high school maintains but two years, or

(c) Eighty percent if the high school maintains but three years

No computation shall be made under this section for any high school established after July 1, 1952, without the approval of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

SEC. 14. Section 7037 2 is added to said code, to read:

7037 3 The amount by which the foundation program computed under Section 7037 or Section 7037 1 for a high school district exceeds the foundation program which would have been computed for such district by multiplying the number of units of average daily attendance of such district by two hundred ten dollars ($210) shall, beginning with the Fiscal Year 1954-1955, be reduced by an amount equal to 20 percent of the amount of such excess and for each of the four succeeding fiscal years by an additional 20 percent except as to any high school district in which any one or more of the following conditions obtain:

(a) If as many as five pupils residing in the district and attending grades 9 to 12, inclusive, would be required to travel more than 30 miles one way from a point on a well-traveled road nearest their home to the nearest other public high school, or

(c) If as many as 40 pupils residing in the district and attending grades 9 to 12, inclusive, would be required to travel more than 15 miles one way from a point on a well-traveled road nearest their home to the nearest other public high school.

If topographical or other conditions exist in a district which would impose unusual hardships if the number of miles specified was required to be traveled or if during the fiscal year the roads which would be traveled have been impassable for more than an average of two weeks per year for the preceding five years, the governing board of the district may, on or before April 1st, request the Superintendent of Public Instruction, in writing, for an exemption from such requirements or for a reduction in the miles required. The request shall be accompanied by a statement of the conditions upon which such request is based, giving such information in such form as the Superintendent of Public Instruction may require. 7092. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall then compare the total of the amounts allowed to, and computed for, each high school district pursuant to Articles 7 and 9 of this chapter with the amount of the foundation program of school support computed for each such district pursuant to Article 4 of this chapter.

Notwithstanding anything in this article to the contrary, the amount computed for any high school district under this article shall be not less than it would have been had the foundation program of school support for such district under Article 4 of this chapter been computed by multiplying the number of units of average daily attendance in the district during the preceding fiscal year as computed under Sections 6943, [6952, and 6961] 6962, and 6971 by two hundred [ten dollars ($210)] sixty dollars ($260) and had the tax used in making the computation for the district under Article 9 of this chapter been [fifty cents ($0.50)] seventy-five cents ($0.75).

SEC. 23. Section 7094 is added to said code, to read:

7094. No state equalization aid shall be allowed to any high school district under this article during the Fiscal Year 1951-1952 unless, during the preceding fiscal year, there shall have been levied a tax for such district in an amount equal to thirty-two cents ($0.32) or more on 90 percent of each one hundred dollars ($100) of the assessed valuation in such district as shown by the equalized assessment roll of the district for the next preceding year and no high school district which has met the requirements of this section and is otherwise entitled to state equalization aid shall be denied such aid.

SEC. 24. Section 7096 is added to said code, to read:

7096. Notwithstanding anything in this chapter to the contrary, if under Section 6907 average daily attendance of an original district is credited to an acquiring district, the amounts allowed by the Superintendent of Public Instruction as state equalization aid to the original school district and to the acquiring school district during the first fiscal year in which an apportionment is made to the acquiring school district on account of such average daily attendance, shall be the amounts computed under this section. The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall divide the total amount of state equalization aid which would have been apportioned to the original school district during said fiscal year had this section not been in effect by the units of average daily attendance of the original school district for the preceding fiscal year prior to the crediting of any of such average daily attendance to the acquiring school district He shall allow to the original school district as state equalization aid the amount computed by multiplying the resulting quotient by the units of average daily attendance of the district for the preceding fiscal year less the units credited to the acquiring school district. He shall allow the acquiring school district as state equalization aid the amount computed by multiplying the same quotient by the units of average daily attendance credited to the district under this section.

Such report with respect to the first period shall be filed with the Superintendent of Public Instruction on or before the next succeeding January 15th and with respect to the second period shall be filed with the Superintendent of Public Instruction not later than the next succeeding June 10th. Each report shall be made in such form as shall be prescribed and furnished by the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

The average daily attendance in the regular day schools of the district during the period in the then current fiscal year shall be computed in the manner prescribed in Chapter 14 of this division, except that the divisor used shall bear the same ratio which would have been required to be used under said Chapter 14 to determine the average daily attendance of the regular day schools of the district for the whole of the preceding fiscal year had such district been in existence for all purposes during the preceding fiscal year, as the number of days the regular day schools of the district were maintained during the period bears to 175 and except that the computation of a day of attendance shall be determined according to the law in effect during the preceding fiscal year.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction shall allow to each such district for each unit of average daily attendance so computed an amount determined by dividing the total of the amounts of basic state aid and state equalization aid which would have been apportioned to such district during the current fiscal year on account of such average daily attendance had such district been in existence for all purposes during the preceding fiscal year, multiplied by the ratio of days the regular day schools of the district were maintained to said period of the then current fiscal year to 175.

In making any computation under Section 7081 for the purposes of this section, the assessed valuation of the district for the current year shall be used Section 7095 is not applicable to districts coming within this section.

Opinion of Legislative Counsel

COPY

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

Honorable John F. McCarthy
Senate Chamber

VOTES REQUIRED TO PASS BILL—No. 9813

DEAR SENATOR MCCARTHY: You have asked us if a majority vote will be required to pass Senate Bill No. 416 in the Assembly, if the urgency clause therein is removed.

In our opinion a majority vote will be sufficient to pass the bill, if the urgency clause is stricken out.

It is required that bills in general be passed by majority vote (California Constitution, Art. IV, Sec. 15). The provisions of the California Constitution (Art. IV, Sec. 34a) requiring a two-thirds vote on bills appropriating from the General Fund do not apply to Senate Bill No. 416 because the bill appropriates from a special fund, the State Highway Fund, rather than from the General Fund.

Very truly yours,

RALPH N. KLEPS
Legislative Counsel
By GLOYD T. CLOWDUS, Deputy

Two copies to Honorable George Miller, Jr., pursuant to Joint Rule 34.

TEXT OF PROPOSED CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS WHICH HAVE BEEN APPROVED BY BOTH HOUSES OF THE LEGISLATURE, TOGETHER WITH THE YEAS AND NAYS TAKEN THEREON

Pursuant to the provisions of Article XVIII, Section 1, of the Constitution of the State of California, the following proposed constitutional amendments, two-thirds of all the members elected to each of the two houses of the Legislature having voted in favor thereof, are hereby entered on the Journal, together with the yeas and nays taken thereon:

Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 1

A resolution to propose to the people of the State of California an amendment to the Constitution of the State, by amending Section 8 of Article XI thereof, relating to the charters of cities and cities and counties

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That the Legislature of the State of California at its 1951 Regular Session commencing on the eighth day of January, 1951, two-thirds of the members elected to each of the two houses of the Legislature voting therefor, hereby proposes to the people of the State of California that the Constitution of the State be amended by amending Section 8 of Article XI of the Constitution to read as follows:

SEC. 8. (a) Any city or city and county containing a population of more than 3,500 inhabitants, as ascertained by the last preceding Census taken under the authority of the Congress of the United States or of the Legislature of California, may frame a charter for its own government, consistent with and subject to this Constitution; and any city or city and county having adopted a charter may adopt a new one. Any such charter may be framed by a board of 15 freeholders chosen by the electors of such city or city and county, at any general or special election, but no person shall be eligible as a candidate for such board unless he shall have been, for the five years next preceding, an elector of said city or city and county. An election for choosing freeholders may be called by a two-thirds vote of the legislative body of such city or city and county, and on presentation of a petition signed by not less than 15 percent of the registered electors of such city or city and county, the legislative body shall call such election at any time not less than 30 nor more than 60 days from date of the filing of the petition. Any such petition shall be verified by the authority having charge of the registration records of such city or city and county and the expenses of such verification shall be provided by the legislative body thereof.

(b) Candidates for the office of freeholders shall be nominated either in such manner as may be provided for the nomination of officers of the municipal or city and county government or by petition, substantially in the same manner as may be provided by general laws for the nomination by petition of electors of candidates for public offices to be voted for at general elections.

(c) At such election the electors shall vote first on the question "Shall a board of freeholders be elected to frame a proposed new charter?" and secondly for the candidates of the office of freeholder. If the first question receives a majority of votes of the qualified voters voting thereon at such election, the 15 candidates for the office of freeholder receiving the highest number of votes shall forthwith organize as a board of freeholders, but if the first question receives less than a majority of the votes of the qualified voters voting thereon at such election no board of freeholders shall be deemed to have been elected.

(d) The board of freeholders shall, within one year after the result of the election is declared, prepare and propose a charter for the government of such city or city and county. The charter so prepared shall be signed by a majority of the board of freeholders and filed in the office of the clerk of the legislative body of said city or city and county The legislative body of said city or city and county shall, within 15 days after such filing, cause such charter to be published once in the official newspaper of said city or city and county and each edition thereof, during the day of publication (or in case there be no such official newspaper, in a newspaper of general circulation within such city or city and county and all the editions thereof issued during the day of publication) and in any city or city and county with over 50,000 population shall cause copies of such charter to be printed in convenient pamphlet form and in type of not less than 10-point and shall cause copies thereof to be mailed to each of the qualified electors of such city or city and county, and shall, until the day fixed for the election upon such charter, advertise in one or more newspapers of general circulation in said city or city and county a notice that copies thereof may be had upon application therefor.

(e) Such charter shall be submitted to the electors of such city or city and county at a date to be fixed by the board of freeholders, before such filing and designated on such charter, either at a special election held not less than 60 days from the completion of the publication of such charter as above provided, or at the general election next following the expiration of said 60 days.

(f) As an alternative, the legislative body of any such city or city and county, on its own motion may frame or cause to be framed, a proposed charter and submit the proposal for the adoption thereof to the electors at either a special election called for that purpose or at any general or special election. Any charter so submitted shall be advertised in the same manner as herein provided for the advertisement of a charter proposed by a board of freeholders, and the election thereon held at a date to be fixed by the legislative body of such city or city and county, not less than 40 nor more than 60 days after the completion of the advertising in the official paper.

(g) If a majority of the qualified voters voting thereon at such general or special election shall vote in favor of such proposed charter, it shall be deemed to be ratified, and shall be submitted to the Legislature, if then in session, or at the next regular or special session of the Legislature. The Legislature shall by concurrent resolution approve or reject such charter as a whole, without power of alteration or amendment; and if approved by a majority of the members elected to each house it shall become the organic law of such city or city and county and supersede any existing charter and all laws inconsistent therewith. One copy of the charter so ratified and approved shall be filed with the Secretary of State, one with the recorder in the county in which such city is located, and one in the archives of the city, and in the case of a city and county one copy shall be filed with the recorder thereof, and one in the archives of such city and county; and thereafter the courts shall take judicial notice of the provisions of such charter.

(h) The charter of any city or city and county may be amended by proposals therefor submitted by the legislative body thereof on its own motion or on petition signed by 15 percent of the registered electors, or both. Such proposals shall be submitted to the electors at either a special election called for that purpose or at any general or special election. Petitions for the submission of any amendment shall be filed with the legislative body of the city or city and county not less than 60 days prior to the general election next preceding a regular session of the Legislature. The signatures on such petitions shall be verified by the authority having charge of the registration records of such city or city and county, and the expenses of such verification shall be provided by the legislative body thereof. If such petitions have a sufficient number of signatures the legislative body of the city or city and county shall so submit the amendment or amendments so proposed to the electors. Amendments proposed by the legislative body and amendments proposed by petition of the electors may be submitted at the same election. The amendments so submitted shall be advertised in the same manner as herein provided for the advertisement of a proposed charter, and the election thereon, held at a date to be fixed by the legislative body of such city or city and county, not less than 40, and not more than 60, days after the completion of the advertising in the official paper.

(i) If a majority of the qualified voters voting on any such amendment vote in favor thereof, it shall be deemed ratified, and shall be submitted to the Legislature if then in session, or at the regular or special session next following such election; and approved or rejected without power of alteration in the same manner as herein provided for the approval or rejection of a charter.

If the felony charged is not punishable with death, the magistrate shall immediately upon the appearance of counsel for the defendant read the complaint to the defendant and ask him whether he pleads guilty or not guilty to the offense charged therein; thereupon, or at any time thereafter while the charge remains pending before the magistrate and when his counsel is present, the defendant may, with the consent of the magistrate and the district attorney or other counsel for the people, plead guilty to the offense charged or to any other offense the commission of which is necessarily included in that with which he is charged, or to an attempt to commit the offense charged; and upon such plea of guilty, the magistrate shall immediately commit the defendant to the sheriff and certify the case, including a copy of all proceedings therein and such testimony as in his discretion he may require to be taken, to the superior court, and thereupon such proceedings shall be had as if such defendant had pleaded guilty in such court.

The foregoing provisions of this section shall be self-executing. The Legislature may prescribe such procedure in cases herein provided for as is not inconsistent herewith. In cases not hereinabove provided for, such proceedings shall be had as are now or may be hereafter prescribed by law, not inconsistent herewith

A grand jury consisting of 19 jurors shall be drawn and summoned in each county for the year following the adoption of this amendment and for each year thereafter which shall consist of not less than three nor more than nine members of the immediately preceding grand jury who shall serve for that year only and such additional members as are required to provide the total membership No grand juror shall serve for more than two consecutive years, nor serve as foreman of a grand jury for more than one year. The provisions of this paragraph are self-executing but legislation not in conflict herewith may be enacted to facilitate its operation.

Assembly Constitutional Amendment No. 55

A resolution to propose to the people of the State of California an amendment to the Constitution of the State by adding to Article XIII thereof a new section to be numbered 19, relating to the proceeds of taxes levied on property in a redevelopment project under the Community Redevelopment Act

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate concurring, That the Legislature of the State of California, at its Regular Session commencing at 12 o'clock noon on the eighth day of January, 1951, two-thirds of all the members elected to each of the two houses of the Legislature voting therefor, hereby proposes to the people of the State of California that the Constitution of the State be amended by adding to Article XIII thereof a new section to be numbered 19 and to read as follows:

SEC. 19. All property in a redevelopment project established under the Community Redevelopment Law Act as now existing or hereafter amended, except publicly owned property not subject to taxation by reason of such ownership, shall be taxed in proportion to its value as provided in Section 1 of this article, and such taxes (the word "taxes" as used herein shall include, but shall not be limited to, all levies on an ad valorem basis upon land or real property) shall be levied and collected as other taxes are levied and collected by the respective taxing agencies.

The Legislature may provide that any redevelopment plan may contain a provision that the taxes, if any, so levied upon such taxable property in a redevelopment project each year by or for the benefit of the State of California, any city, county, city and county, district, or other public corporation (hereinafter sometimes called "taxing agencies") after the effective date of the ordinance approving the redevelopment plan, shall be divided as follows:

(a) That portion of the taxes which would be produced by the rate upon which the tax is levied each year by or for each of said taxing agencies upon the total sum of the assessed value of the taxable property in the redevelopment project as shown upon the assessment roll used in connection with the taxation of such property by such taxing agency, last equalized prior to the effective date of such ordinance, shall be allocated to, and when collected shall be paid into, the funds of the respective taxing agencies as taxes by or for said taxing agencies on all other property are paid (for the purpose of allocating taxes levied by or for any taxing agency or agencies which did not include the territory in a redevelopment project on the effective date of such ordinance but to which such territory has been annexed or otherwise included after such effective date, the assessment roll of the county last equalized on the effective date of said ordinance shall be used in determining the assessed valuation of the taxable property in the project on said effective date); and

(b) That portion of said levied taxes each year in excess of such amount shall be allocated to and when collected shall be paid into a special fund of the redevelopment agency to pay the principal of and interest on loans, moneys advanced to, or indebtedness (whether funded, refunded, assumed or otherwise) incurred by such redevelopment agency to finance or refinance, in whole or in part, such redevelopment project Unless and until the total assessed valuation of the taxable property in a redevelopment project exceeds the total assessed value of the taxable property in such project as shown by the last equalized assessment roll referred to in paragraph designated (a) hereof, all of the taxes levied and collected upon the taxable property in such redevelopment project shall be paid into the funds of the respective taxing agencies. When said loans, advances, and indebtedness, if any, and interest thereon, have been paid, then all moneys thereafter received from taxes upon the taxable property in such redevelopment project shall be paid into the funds of the respective taxing agencies as taxes on all other property are paid

The Legislature may also provide that in any redevelopment plan or in the proceedings for the advance of moneys, or making of loans, or the incurring of any indebtedness (whether funded, refunded, assumed or otherwise) by the redevelopment agency to finance or refinance, in whole or in part the redevelopment project, the portion of taxes mentioned in paragraph designated (b) hereof may be irrevocably pledged for the payment of the principal of and interest on said loans, advances, or indebtedness.

It is intended by this section to empower any redevelopment agency, city, county, or city and county under any law authorized by this section to exercise the provisions hereof separately or in combination with powers granted by the same or any other law relative to redevelopment agencies. This section shall not affect any other law or laws relating to the same or a similar subject but is intended to authorize an alternative method of procedure governing the subject to which it refers

All of the provisions of the Community Redevelopment Law, as amended in 1951, which relate to the use or pledge of taxes or portions thereof as herein provided, or which, if effective, would carry out the provisions of this section or any part thereof, are hereby approved, legalized, ratified and validated and made fully and completely effective and operative upon the effective date of this amendment.

The Legislature shall enact such laws as may be necessary to enforce the provisions of this section.

Senate Constitutional Amendment No. 5

A resolution to propose to the people of the State of California an amendment to the Constitution of the State, by amending Sections 14¼ and 16 of Article XIII thereof, relating to the taxation of insurance companies and banks

Resolved by the Senate, the Assembly concurring, That the Legislature of the State of California at its 1951 Regular Session commencing on the eighth day of January, 1951, two-thirds of the members elected to each of the two houses of the Legislature voting therefor, hereby proposes to the people of the State of California that the Constitution of the State be amended by amending Article XIII thereof:

First, by amending Section 14¼ to read:

SEC 14¼ (a) "Insurer," as used in this section, includes insurance companies or associations and reciprocal or interinsurance exchanges and the State Compensation Insurance Fund. As used in this paragraph, "companies" includes persons, partnerships, joint stock associations, companies and corporations.

(b) An annual tax is hereby imposed on each insurer doing business in this State on the base, at the rates, and subject to the deductions from the tax hereinafter specified

(c) In the case of an insurer not transacting title insurance in this State, the "basis of the annual tax" is, in respect to each year, the amount of gross premiums, less return premiums, received in such year by such insurer upon its business done in this State, other than premiums received for reinsurance and for ocean marine insurance

In the case of an insurer transacting title insurance in this State, the "basis of the annual tax" is, in respect to each year, all income upon business done in this State, except

(1) Interest and dividends.

(2) Rents from real property

(3) Profits from the sale or other disposition of investments.

(4) Income from investments.

"Investments" as used in this subdivision (d) includes property acquired by such insurer in the settlement or adjustment of claims against it but excludes investments in title plants and title records Income derived directly or indirectly from the use of title plants and title records is included in the basis of the annual tax

In the case of an insurer transacting title insurance in this State which has a trust department and does a trust business under the banking laws of this State, there shall be excluded from the basis of the annual tax imposed by this section, the income of, and from the assets of, such trust department and such trust business, if such income is taxed by this State or included in the measure of any tax imposed by this State.

(d) The rate of the tax to be applied to the basis of the annual tax in respect to each year is 2 35 percent.

(e) Each insurer shall have the right to deduct from the annual tax imposed by this section upon such insurer in respect to a particular year the amount of real estate taxes paid by it, in that year, before, or within 30 days after, becoming delinquent, on real property owned by it at the time of payment, and in which was located, in that year, its home office or principal office in this State Such real property may consist of one building or of two or more adjacent buildings in which such an office is located, the land on which they stand, and so much of the adjacent land as may be required for the convenient use and occupation thereof.

Where as a result of merger, consolidation, or other method of acquisition of substantially all of the assets of one or more insurers by another insurer, effected prior to January 1, 1939, an insurer owns more than one parcel of real property in this State in which was located a home office or principal office of an insurer immediately prior to such acquisition, the owner shall designate one of such properties as its home or principal office. Real estate taxes paid by it in any of the years 1943 to 1952, inclusive, before, or within 30 days after, becoming delinquent, on such property owned by it at the time of payment and not so designated may also be deducted from the annual tax imposed by this section in respect to such year and are included within the deduction provided for in this subdivision.

(f) The tax imposed on insurers by this section is in lieu of all other taxes and licenses, state, county, and municipal, upon such insurers and their property, except:

(1) Taxes upon their real estate.

(2) That an insurer transacting title insurance in this State which has a trust department or does a trust business under the banking laws of this State is subject to taxation with respect to such trust department or trust business to the same extent and in the same manner as trust companies and the trust departments of banks doing business in this State.

(3) When by the laws of any other state or country any taxes, fines, penalties, licenses, fees, deposits of money or securities or other obligations or prohibitions are imposed on insurers of this State doing business in such other state or country, or upon their agents therein, in excess of those imposed upon insurers of such other state or country or upon their agents therein, so long as such laws continue in force, the same obligations and prohibitions of whatsoever kind may be imposed by the Legislature upon insurers of such other state or country doing business in this State, or upon their agents herein.

(4) The tax on ocean marine insurance.

(5) Motor vehicle and other vehicle registration license fees and any other tax or license fee imposed by the State upon vehicles, motor vehicles or the operation thereof.

(g) Every insurer transacting the business of ocean marine insurance in this State shall annually pay to the State a tax measured by that proportion of the underwriting profit of such insurer from such insurance written in the United States, which the gross premiums of the insurer from such insurance written in this State bear to the gross premiums of the insurer from such insurance written within the United States, at the rate of 5 percentum, which tax shall be in lieu of all other taxes and licenses, state, county and municipal, upon such insurer, except taxes upon real estate, and such other taxes as may be assessed or levied against such insurer on account of any other class of insurance written by it. Deductions from the annual tax pursuant to subdivision (e) cannot be made from the ocean marine tax. The Legislature shall define the terms "ocean marine insurance" and "underwriting profit," and shall provide for the assessment, levy, collection and enforcement of the ocean marine tax.

(h) The taxes provided for by this section shall be assessed by the State Board of Equalization.

(i) The Legislature, two-thirds of all the members elected to each of the two houses voting in favor thereof, may by law change the rate or rates of taxes herein imposed upon insurers.

(j) This section is not intended to and does not change the law as it has previously existed with respect to the meaning of the words "gross premiums, less return premiums, received" as used in this section or as used in Section 14 or 14¾ of this article.

Second, by amending Section 16 to read:

SEC. 16. 1. (a) Banks, including national banking associations, located within the limits of this State, shall annually pay to the State a tax, at the rate to be provided by law according to or measured by their net income, which shall be in lieu of all other taxes and licenses, state, county and municipal, upon such banks, or the shares thereof, except taxes upon their real property and, when permitted by the Congress of the United States with respect to national banking associations, motor vehicle and other vehicle registration license fees and any other tax or license fee imposed by the State upon vehicles, motor vehicles or the operation thereof.

(b) The Legislature may provide by law for any other form of taxation now or hereafter permitted by the Congress of the United States respecting national banking associations; provided, that such form of taxation shall apply to all banks located within the limits of this State.

2. The Legislature may provide by law for the taxation of corporations, their franchises, or any other franchises, by any method not prohibited by this Constitution or the Constitution or laws of the United States.

3. Any tax imposed pursuant to this section must be under an act passed by not less than two-thirds vote of all the members elected to each of the two houses of the Legislature.

SEC. 5. Section 10 5 is added to said act, to read:

SEC. 10 5. The employing directly or indirectly of any suspended or unlicensed practitioner in the practice of any system or mode of treating the sick or afflicted, or the aiding or abetting of any unlicensed person to practice any system or mode of treating the sick or afflicted, constitutes unprofessional conduct within the meaning of this chapter.

Unprofessional conduct as used in this act is defined as follows:

(a) The procuring, aiding or abetting in the procuring of criminal abortion; the paying for steering patients into one's office; obtaining a fee on the assurance that a manifestly incurable disease can be made entirely well; the wilful betrayal of professional secrets of a patient to the detriment of such patient; chiropractic advertising which is untrue or misleading; conviction of any offense involving moral turpitude; wilful neglect of a patient in a critical condition.

SEC. 6 Section 12 of said act is amended to read:

SEC. 12 Each person practicing chiropractic within this State shall, on or before the first day of January of each year, after a license is issued to him as herein provided, pay to said Board of Chiropractic Examiners a renewal fee of not less than two dollars ($2) nor more than ten dollars ($10) as may be set by the board. The secretary shall, on or before November 1st of each year, mail to all licensed chiropractors in this State a notice that the renewal fee will be due on or before the first day of January next following. Nothing in this act shall be construed to require the receipts to be recorded in like manner as original licenses. The failure, neglect or refusal of any person holding a license or certificate to practice under this act in the State of California to pay said annual fee during the time his or her license remains in force shall, after a period of 60 days from the first day of January of each year, ipso facto, work a forfeiture of his or her license or certificate, and it shall not be restored except upon the written application therefor and the payment to the said board of a fee of twenty-five dollars ($25), except that such licentiate who fails, refuses or neglects to pay such annual tax within a period of 60 days after the first day of January of each year shall not be required to submit to an examination for the reissuance of such certificate.

Any licentiate serving in the armed forces of the United States shall be exempt from payment of the renewal fee during such period of service and for one year thereafter.

SEC. 7. Section 15 of said act is amended to read:

SEC. 15. Any person who shall practice or attempt to practice chiropractic, or any person who shall buy, sell or fraudulently obtain a license to practice chiropractic, whether recorded or not, or who shall use the title "chiropractor" or "D.C." or any word or title to induce, or tending to induce belief that he is engaged in the practice of chiropractic, without first complying with the provisions of this act; or any licensee under this act who uses the word "doctor" or the prefix "Dr." without the word "chiropractor," or "D.C." immediately following his name, or the use of the letters "M.D." or the words "doctor of medicine," or the term "surgeon," or the term "physician," or the word "osteopath," or the letters "D.O." or any other letters, prefixes or suffixes, the use of which would indicate that he or she was practicing a profession for which he held no license from the State of California, or any person who shall violate any of the provisions of this act, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not less than two hundred dollars ($200) and not more than six hundred dollars ($600), or by imprisonment in the county jail for not less than 30 days nor more than 90 days, or both.

SEC. 8. Sections 1 to 7, inclusive, of this act shall become effective only when submitted to and approved by the electors, pursuant to Section 1b of Article IV of the Constitution of the State.

SEC. 9. Sections 1 to 7, inclusive, of this act shall be submitted to the electors for their approval or rejection at the next succeeding general election occurring at any time subsequent to 130 days after this section takes effect, or at any state-wide special election which may be called by the Governor, in his discretion, prior to such general election, in the same manner that a constitutional amendment proposed by the Legislature would be submitted, and all of the provisions of law relative to submission of such constitutional amendments to the electors and to matters incidental thereto shall apply to the submission of Sections 1 to 7, inclusive, of this act, except as otherwise provided in this section or as such provisions may be clearly inapplicable for the submission of an amendment to an initiative measure pursuant to Section 1b of Article IV of the State Constitution.

REPORT OF THE ASSEMBLY INTERIM COMMITTEE ON ELECTIONS AND REAPPORTIONMENT

ASSEMBLY, CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE, June 21, 1951

HONORABLE SAM L. COLLINS
State Capitol, Sacramento 14, California

DEAR SPEAKER COLLINS: During the past year and one-half the Assembly Interim Committee on Elections and Reapportionment undertook a study of the problem of reapportionment of the assembly, state senate and congressional districts. The committee was ably assisted by many interested citizens who devoted much time and effort to produce a satisfactory solution. To them we are deeply indebted.

The committee would also like to mention the efforts of those who participated as members of the staff of the committee, and for whose services we are deeply appreciative. Dr. Ivan Hinderaker, Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of California at Los Angeles, was most generous, and in a large degree this report is the result of his good work. Working with Dr. Hinderaker and under his direction were Mr. Leroy Hardy, Miss Jeniellen Ferguson, Miss Eva Zimbler, Mrs Evelyn Hinderaker, Mrs. Betty Lien and Mrs. Janet Minott. Their efforts in the fields of statistical and historical research were of great value to the committee.

Mr. Robert G. Hinshaw of the office of the Legislative Counsel acted as counsel for the committee. His timely legal advice enabled us to avoid many problems thereby greatly facilitating the work of the committee.

Mr. Joseph Donovan served as executive secretary to the committee. His services were of marked and positive value, and we are indebted to him.

We also wish to express our appreciation to Mrs. Irene Anderson, secretary to the committee, for her loyal, efficient, and courteous assistance to us in our work.

The Honorable George D. Collins of San Francisco is preparing a supplementary report which will be filed at a later date.

Respectfully submitted

INTRODUCTION

The Assembly Interim Committee on Elections and Reapportionment was created pursuant to the provisions of House Resolution 197 of the 1949 Regular Session, adopted June 29, 1949, Assembly Journal, pp. 5215-5216. The committee was authorized to study and analyze all facts relating to elections and reapportionment, the salient language being:

"1. The Assembly Interim Committee on Elections and Reapportionment is hereby created and authorized and directed to ascertain, study and analyze all facts relating to elections and reapportionment, including but not limited to the operations, effect, administration, enforcement and needed revision of any and all laws in any way bearing upon or relating to the subject of this resolution, and to report thereon to the Assembly, including in the reports its recommendations for appropriate legislation." (See H.R. 197, 1949 Regular Session, in appendix.)

The Interim Committee was continued by House Resolution 28, adopted January 10, 1951, Assembly Journal, pp. 174-175, and authorized to act until adjournment sine die of the 1951 Regular Session. (See H.R. 28, 1951 Regular Session, in appendix.)

The following Members of the Assembly were appointed to and served as members of the committee:

During the interim period the Honorable William Clifton Berry, 23d District, resigned because of illness and was replaced by the Honorable Robert I. McCarthy, 25th District, and the Honorable Augustus F. Hawkins, 62d District, served in the place of Honorable Glenn M. Anderson, 46th District, who resigned.

At the organizational meeting of the committee, held in Los Angeles on September 16, 1949, the committee determined that its work should be divided into two major categories:

A. Needed revision of election laws; and

B. Reapportionment of Assembly, State Senate and Congressional Districts.

A. REVISION OF ELECTION LAWS

While discussion established that the Elections Code was in need of extensive revision, it was determined by the committee that such work should not be undertaken at this time but that its efforts in this field should be limited to the processing of the necessary changes as recommended by the County Clerk's Association and that any major program should be postponed to a later session. It was further determined that, insofar as possible, all proposed revisions of the election laws be considered by the committee during the interim period so that more time during the 1951 Regular Session would be available for work on reapportionment problems. To that end the County Clerk's Association was requested to submit to the interim committee all suggested changes in the election laws, and a meeting was held on December 8, 1950, in Los Angeles to consider the recommendations. Mr. Benjamin Hite, Registrar of Voters of Los Angeles County, representing the Elections Committee of the County Clerk's Association, was the principal witness.

Following is a summary of action taken on proposed legislation submitted to the interim committee at its December 8th meeting. The summary was prepared by Benjamin Hite.

Those measures above-listed which were recommended by the Interim Committee were subsequently introduced at the commencement of the 1951 Regular Session by various members of the committee and were presented to the Legislature as the work of the interim committee. Additionally, other measures were introduced which had been discussed during committee sessions held throughout the interim period.

This method of proceeding, i.e., consideration of proposed legislation during the interim period proved most advantageous in that it facilitated the presentation of testimony of witnesses through the holding of meetings in localities convenient to the witnesses and it measurably reduced the amount of time required for consideration of the legislation in committee during the Regular Session of 1951. Much of the legislation so considered was enacted into law during the present session. It is the recommendation of the committee that a similar method of proceeding be adopted by any continuing interim committee and that a thorough revision of the entire Elections Code be undertaken.

B. REAPPORTIONMENT OF ASSEMBLY, STATE SENATE AND CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS

With the completion of the Federal Decennial Census of 1950, California was again confronted with the problem of redesigning the boundaries of the state assembly districts and of the districts of the Members of the House of Representatives of the United States Congress. This task, while mandatory in the above instances, also included minor revisions of the districts of the State Senate although it is neither contemplated nor provided for in the law that this will be a recurring problem each decade.

California, during the preceding 10-year period, has been the scene of the greatest mass shift of population known to recorded history, and while this transition has brought new honor and glory to California, it has also been productive of great problems. Not only has this population shift come from without the confines of the State, but within the State there have been significant readjustments of population concentrations from county to county. These problems were directly reflected in the study of reapportionment. Since it is required by law that the "* * * assembly districts shall be as nearly equal in population as may be," (Article IV, Section 6, State Constitution) it was necessary to follow these population shifts within the State by eliminating districts in those areas which had not kept pace with the over-all state growth and reconstituting them in areas where the growth had been greatest.

In somewhat similar manner congressional districts are redesigned. While the congressional entitlement of a state is determined by its total population, there is no requirement in either federal or state law that the districts be equal in population. Traditionally, however, it has been felt to be desirable to constitute the congressional districts on an equal population basis consistent with the provisions of the state law applicable. California, with its 53.3 percent increase in population since the census of 1940 was entitled by the census of 1950 to seven new seats raising its congressional entitlement from 23 to 30, thereby complicating the problem.

The plan of representation of the California Senate is based primarily on counties and not on population. The Senatorial districts shall be composed of not less than one nor more than three counties. (Article IV, Section 6, State Constitution. While minor changes were made in several senatorial districts, such were not required under existing law, and the changes as finally reflected in the legislation presented to the Legislature were the result of recommendations of citizens in the counties affected.

Upon the failure of the Legislature to effect the necessary redistricting of the assembly districts, the task falls to a Reapportionment Commission composed of the Lieutenant Governor, Attorney General, Controller, Secretary of State, and Superintendent of Public Instruction. (Article IV, Section 6, State Constitution). This commission, however, has no jurisdiction over the congressional districts, but Federal law wisely provides for those instances wherein the various states have failed to act, such provisions thus insuring that each state will continue to have its proper representation in the House of Representatives.

The job of redrawing legislative district lines has been a recurring one in California and the other 47 states. Yet, there are almost no written accounts giving a step by step description of the process to be followed. The interim committee could find little to use as a basis for its researches. The section of this report dealing with reapportionment, therefore, is designed to partially correct that situation by supplying a record of the manner in which the committee attempted to work. Because this report may be read not only by legislators, but also by students of government, some materials and examples are included in an attempt to produce a better understanding of the nature of the reapportionment process.

LEGAL BACKGROUND

CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTS

FEDERAL CONSTITUTIONAL AND STATUTORY BACKGROUND

When the framers of the U. S. Constitution established the plan of representation of the U. S. House of Representatives on a population basis, they recognized the need for periodic readjustments in order that the allocation of Congressional seats to the states might be kept abreast of population shifts. Article I, Section 2, paragraph 3, as amended by the Fourteenth Amendment, provides in part:

> "Representatives shall be apportioned among the several states according to their respective numbers, counting the whole number of persons in each state, excluding Indians not taxed. The actual enumeration shall be made within three years after the first meeting of the Congress of the United States, and within every subsequent term of 10 years, in such manner as they shall by law direct."

The Federal Government has conducted a census of population in the United States every 10 years since 1890. Seats in the United States House of Representatives were reapportioned after each census until 1920 During this period, with only one exception, reapportionment was achieved by increasing the size of the House. The states gaining in relative population would get increased representation, but the states losing would retain the representation they already had.

After the 1920 census, the Congress balked. The size of the House had jumped from 65 in the first Congress to the 435 members set after the census of 1910. Many were of the opinion the House would become too unwieldy as a parliamentary body, and it should not be allowed to grow beyond the 435 figure.

The alternative to a flexible membership was fixed membership. If the size was to stay at 435, the process of reallocating House seats would become more politically painful because some states which had not gained enough in relative population would be forced to give up representation to states which had. Both factors—the desire to hold membership at 435, and the painfulness of the process of taking representation from the smaller rural states—tended to produce a standoff and the result was no action at all.

Congress waited another eight years before it passed the Automatic Reapportionment Act of 1929. Membership of the House was fixed at 435. The political difficulty of depriving states of representation was recognized in the so-called "automatic" provision which, though Congress retained a final check, placed primary responsibility for reapportionment of representatives to the states in the hands of the President of the United States.

Under the act, as amended in 1941 (55 Stat. 761; U. S. C. 2:2a), the President is directed to submit on the first day, or within a week thereafter, of the first regular session of Congress after each decennial census, a statement showing the population of each state and the number of representatives to which each state is entitled on the basis of its population. The actual preparation of this plan is the responsibility of the Director of the Bureau of the Census. He is bound by law to use the "equal proportions" mathematical formula for arriving at his allocations.

If the Congress takes no action on the proposal within a period of 15 days, the Clerk of the House of Representatives is directed to notify the governor of each state of the number of representatives assigned to his state.

This was the procedure followed in 1931, 1941, and is the one being followed in 1951. Congress may, however, rescind its action if it so desires.

President Truman's reapportionment message was submitted to the Congress on January 9, 1951 The message read as follows:

"MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES

"Transmitting

"A message relating to the decennial censuses and the apportionment of Representatives in Congress, pursuant to the provisions of Section 22 of the Act of June 18, 1929, as amended (2 U. S. C. 2A)

"January 9, 1951.—Referred to the Committee on the Judiciary and ordered to be printed

"To the Congress of the United States:

"In compliance with the provisions of section 22 of the act of June 18, 1929, as amended (2 U. S. C. 2a), relating to the decennial censuses and the apportionment of Representatives in Congress, I transmit herewith a statement prepared by the Director of the Census, Department of Commerce, giving the whole number of persons in each State as ascertained under the Seventeenth Decennial Census of Population, and the number of Representatives to which each State is entitled under an apportionment of the existing number of Representatives. All Indians are included in the tabulation of total population, since all Indians are now subject to Federal taxation.

"Under the law, each State will be entitled, commencing in the Eighty-third Congress to the number of Representatives shown in the statement. In a House of 435 Members, the number fixed by law, the population changes reflected by the census will require a change in the number of Representatives for 16 States. Seven States will gain, and nine States will lose seats.

"In accordance with the statute, it will be the duty of the Clerk of the House of Representatives, within 15 calendar days after the receipt of the statement I am now transmitting, to certify to the executive of each State the number of Representatives to which such State is entitled. The statute then prescribes the ways in which any changes in the number of Representatives shall be handled until the States shall have redistricted in accordance with the changes in population.

"These procedures of existing law are of great value to the operation of our Government. They provide an established method of carrying out, almost automatically, the constitutional plan for apportioning Representatives among the States on the basis of population.

"However, certain problems have arisen with respect to the creation of appropriate districts within the States, which merit the consideration of the Congress.

"Over the years, widespread discrepancies have grown up between the populations of the various congressional districts. While some variation is inevitable, the extreme differences that now exist can and should be corrected. For example, there is one State in which, according to the 1950 census, the smallest district has a population of under 175,000 and the largest district has a population exceeding 900,000. In many States there are differences of two or three hundred thousand people between the smallest and largest existing districts in the State. While about half of the congressional districts throughout the country are between 300,000 and 400.000 in population, there are some 50 districts with a population of 250,000 or less, and, at the other extreme, some 50 districts with a population of 450,000 or over. Furthermore, as population has increased, several States have added Congressmen-at-large instead of redistricting as they should.

"Such defects in our system of congressional districts obstruct the effective operation of the democratic principles on which our whole Government rests. It is fundamental to the whole structure of the Constitution that all citizens have equal representation, so far as practicable, in the House of Representatives. This basic principle is not carried out unless congressional districts are drawn up to reflect population changes.

"The present statute clearly contemplates that the states will redistrict after an apportionment. Redistricting is the task of the state legislatures and must, of course, continue to be so. However, it is also a matter of national concern and the Congress has a constitutional obligation in this field which cannot be overlooked. Article I, Section 4, of the Constitution provides that the times, places, and manner of holding elections for Representatives shall be prescribed in each state by the legislature thereof, but Congress may by law make or alter such regulation.

"For many years the Congress exercised this power. From 1842 through 1911 the apportionment statutes enacted by the Congress as the result of each succeeding census required each state having more than one Representative to divide itself into single-member districts, thus holding down the number of Congressmen-at-Large. This requirement is not included in the legislation which now governs the subject. Furthermore, prior to 1929, many of the apportionment statutes enacted by the Congress called upon the states to follow certain standards in establishing congressional districts. They usually provided, as for example in the 1911 act (37 Stat. 13), that in each state entitled under the apportionment to more than one Representative, the Representatives should be elected by—> districts composed of contiguous and compact territory, and containing as nearly as practicable an equal number of inhabitants.

These standards provided a guide for the states which was, in most cases, followed.

"It seems to me desirable that the Congress at this time should give its attention to this important problem and enact legislation, supplemental to the permanent legislation on this subject, which would provide the states with standards for establishing congressional districts and indicate the congressional interest in compliance with such standards.

"Such legislation might reaffirm the basic policy of our government to have single-member districts It might also repeat the old and accepted standard that congressional districts be composed of contiguous and compact territory and contain as nearly as practicable the same number of individuals. To give more definitiveness to such standards, it might be advisable for the Congress to consider establishing limits for the permitted deviations in population between districts. It would be possible, for example, for the statute to specify that no district in any state should deviate upward or downward from the average population of all congressional districts within that state by more than a specified percentage. In terms of the present census, assuming an average district of about 350,000 persons, a percentage permitting a range of about 50,000 above and below that figure would probably allow for the practical difficulties which state legislatures face in drawing up district boundaries.

"The Congress should not be satisfied merely with enacting such standards. It should assume responsibility for seeing that the standards are in fact complied with. This might be done by providing for adequate reports from the states on the action they have taken in redistricting and by providing for continued congressional attention to the results. I believe that the enactment of the standards by itself will have a tremendous influence and that most states will seek earnestly to comply. If there are occasions in which flagrant refusal to comply is made manifest, the Congress has the power under the Constitution to take the matter in its own hands.

"In any case, it is important that the proper redistricting be done promptly. Redistricting should be completed not later than the spring of 1952 so that the congressional elections of that year may give fair representation to all citizens of our country.

Legislative Counsel's Opinion, June 11, 1951.

Congress took no action on the President's message. At the expiration of the 15-day period, the Clerk of the U. S. House of Representatives notified Earl Warren, Governor of the State of California, that California would be entitled to elect seven new representatives in addition to the 23 which the State already has. The clerk's communication to the Governor was as follows:

"HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
"OFFICE OF THE CLERK
"WASHINGTON, D. C.

"I, Ralph R. Roberts, Clerk of the House of Representatives of the United States, hereby certify, pursuant to Section 22, Subdivision (B), of the Act of the Congress of the United States of America entitled 'An Act to Provide for the Fifteenth and Subsequent Decennial Censuses and to Provide for Apportionment of Representatives in Congress,' approved June 18, 1929, as amended, that the State of shall be entitled, in the Eighty-third Congress and in each Congress thereafter until the taking effect of a reapportionment under said Act, as amended, or subsequent statute, to in the House of Representatives of the Congress of the United States.

"CALIFORNIA

"THIRTY REPRESENTATIVES

"IN WITNESS WHEREOF I hereto affix my name and the seal of the House of Representatives of the United States of America this seventeenth day of January, Anno Domini 1951, in the City of Washington, District of Columbia.

RALPH R. ROBERTS
(Signed) Clerk of the House of Representatives of the United States"

FEDERAL RESTRICTIONS ON CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTING WITHIN THE STATES

The only federal restrictions on state legislatures in the congressional redistricting process apply when a state does not establish new congressional districts after a federal reapportionment. In the 1941 amendment to the Automatic Reapportionment Act of 1929 (Public Law No. 291, 77th Cong., 1st sess., approved November 15, 1941), Congress provided, if there is no change in a state's representation, then the districts may remain unchanged. If a state's representation has been increased, then the added representatives will be elected at large. If a state's representation has been decreased, one of the following three provisions would apply:

"* * * (3) If there is a decrease in the number of Representatives but the number of districts in such State is equal to such decreased number of Representatives, they shall be elected from the districts then prescribed by the law of such State; (4) If there is a decrease in the number of Representatives but the number of districts in such State is less than such number of Representatives, the number of Representatives by which such number of districts is exceeded shall be elected from the State at large and the other Representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such State; or (5) if there is a decrease in the number of Representatives and the number of districts in such State exceeds such decreased number of Representatives, they shall be elected from the State at large."

There is little question concerning the right of Congress to regulate the drawing of congressional district lines in the several states. Such authority has been determined to stem from Article I, Section 4, paragraph 1, of the Constitution of the United States which therein provides:

> "The times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each State by the legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing Senators."

In the past, Congress has seen fit to impose restrictions, other than those adopted in 1941. From 1842 to 1911 states having more than one congressman were required to elect their congressmen from districts. Such other provisions as "districts composed of contiguous and compact territory, and containing as nearly as practicable an equal number of inhabitants" were also on federal statute books from 1842 to 1929. The Automatic Reapportionment Act of 1929, however, neglected to mention any of the requirements previously used. No limitations on the states existed from 1929 to 1941.

Even when the restrictions against the states were a part of the law, Congress did nothing to enforce them. On a few occasions when efforts were made to prevent the seating of members from districts which in some manner violated federal requirements, the House refused to take note of the violation and seated the member in question. Those who have looked to the courts have fared little better. Courts have repeatedly washed their hands of such "political questions" as many aspects of the reapportionment process pose.

Thus, Congress has, as a matter of tradition, permitted the states to act insofar as redistricting of congressional boundaries is concerned and has, as a practical matter, restricted itself to the passage of standby legislation which was to take effect only in the event that the states failed to act.

Wide disparities may be seen in the manner in which the states have reapportioned congressional districts. The following table (prepared by Margaret Greenfield, Legislative Reapportionment, p. 10) summarizes some of the differences:

* The 1941 population data was taken from U S Bureau of Census, Sixteenth Census of the United States 1940, "Population of the United States by Congressional Districts" 1940 and 1930 (Series P-3, No 9, final figures, February 5, 1941)

Note that Ohio and Oklahoma have not redistricted since 1913, though the number of congressmen was changed for both in 1931 and 1941.[1] Connecticut's congressional districts date back to 1911; Maryland's, to 1902. Note also that all of the states listed above have a maximum variation in any district from the state average of over 15 percent. Four states, having more than one congressman, elect one or two congressmen at large.

Many have felt Congress should attempt to force the states to meet certain standards of uniformity in their congressional districts. In order to consider the question, and in response to requests for information on congressional reapportionment, James K. Pollock, President of the American Political Science Association, appointed a special committee to prepare recommendations on this subject. The committee met in Washington on December 2, 1950, to discuss the problem, and prepared a report which incorporated the following suggestions:

1. The size of the House of Representatives should not be changed;
2. There is no reason to change from the equal proportions mathematical formula presently in use to compute allocations of representative to the states;
3. All congressmen should be elected from districts, and not at large;

[1] Ohio is presently in the process of considering a congressional reapportionment.

4. Federal law should again include the "compact and contiguous" requirements for congressional districts, and also include population restrictions "to keep the deviation of any district from the average of all districts for the state within a limit of 10 percent; but in any event such deviation should not be permitted to exceed 15 percent;" and
5. The Congress should attempt to enforce such standards.

The committee felt that the incorporation of standards in federal law would generally result in their observance by state legislatures. To cope with the exceptions, the committee considered several alternative enforcement provisions. Following is the section of the report dealing with this matter:

[1] "* * * We rejected as undesirable several kinds of sanctions which have been proposed: (a) Any citizen might be given the right to question the districting inside his State, by a suit in a United States court. But the courts have shown great unwillingness to undertake the task of supervising Congressional districts, and might deny any constitutional power to do so. Even if they consented to do the job, we do not think that judges are well suited to weigh the political factors which inevitably affect districting. Finally, litigation might easily drag out for some years, whereas the new districts ought to be settled before the spring primaries in 1952. (b) A State which violated the standards of approximate equality laid down by Congress might be penalized by a refusal to seat its Representatives until this State made its districting conform to those standards and help new Congressional elections on that basis. This would probably make that State totally unrepresented in the House during one or more sessions of the Eighty-third Congress. Such a drastic punishment might be unconstitutional, and it was disapproved by the Committee. (c) The State might be required to elect all its Congressmen at large until it redistricted itself in accordance with the statutory standards. But the very same people who were responsible for the unequal districting might rejoice in having their Congressman elected at large, because their party would thus choose the entire representation from this State in the House. And in any event, the Committee considered this sanction to be wholly inconsistent with our condemnation of Congressmen at large (in the Third Conclusion).

"The only proper remedy for bad single-member districts is good single-member districts. The determination of approximately equal single-member districts is a political task, which ought to be performed by a legislative body. If the legislature of the State refuses to do the job, the only suitable alternative is for Congress to do it. Therefore, the Committee agreed that the task of supervising and correcting districting inside the State should be in the hands of Congress.

"This led to the formation of a detailed plan for the imposition of sanctions. Its main features are: First, the States should be required to do their own redistricting soon after Congress passes the Apportionment Act; this will give Congress ample time to consider whether this action by the States complies with the statutory standards of approximate equality. Second, the President should transmit the results of State redistricting to Congress and to all the States, with information showing how any particular State has violated the statutory standards of approximate equality. Since the President's statement will appear in the press, unequal districting will be subjected to the powerful sanction of publicity. Third, Congress may then take such action as it deems proper. Congress may order the State to do the job over again. Or Congress may redistrict the State itself.

"In order to accomplish this plan, the Committee recommends a schedule of steps to be included in federal law as follows:

"(1) January 3, 1951 to January 10 (one week)—The President reports to Congress factual data furnished by the Bureau of the Census indicating the apportionment of Representatives among the several states under the 1950 census and according to the formula of "equal proportions."

"(2) January 10 to late January (15 calendar days)—Congress considers the President's report, and unless it enacts a different apportionment within fifteen calendar days, each state shall automatically be entitled to the number of Representatives indicated in the President's report to Congress. The Clerk of the House shall so apprise the executive of each State; and the President will transmit to the States the data concerning poulations supplied by the Bureau of the Census. The members of the Committee hope that, during the same period or very soon thereafter, Congress will enact legislation regulating districting inside the several States, substantially in accordance with the recommendations of this report.

"(3) Late January to late April (90 days)—A period of ninety days will then be allowed for the necessary redistricting in State legislatures In most states the legislatures will be regularly in session, and experience indicates that ninety days are a sufficient time for the enactment of the necessary redistricting laws.

"(4) Late April to late May (30 days)—The President, on the basis of objective data furnished by the Bureau of the Census about the populations of the Congressional districts newly established by the state legislatures, will report to Congress and to the States as to conformity to or violation of the standards regulating the size of a district.

"(5) After late May—Congress will take such action as it deems proper to correct unequal districting wherever it is shown by the President's report to exist.

The committee anticipates that it will seldom be necessary for Congress to redistrict a State. The possibility of such redistricting by Congress and the publicity given to grossly unequal State action will, we hope, be powerful incentives to make the States comply with the statutory standards.

"(6) The Committee discussed the problem of gerrymandering. It recognized that some gerrymandering is a serious evil, but decided against the recommendation of further sanctions at this time.

The members of the Committee share the hope that the re-establishment of the statutory standards of compactness and contiguity, and the publicity of the report to Congress on the action taken by state legislatures, will restrain those legislatures from seriously abusing the power to redistrict for purely partisan purposes.—Committee on Reapportionment of Congress of the American Political Science Association, "The Reapportionment of Congress," "American Political Science Review," March 1951, pp. 153-7."

President Truman's January 9, 1951, reapportionment message to Congress contained the principal recommendations of the American Political Science Association Committee. The President asked for single-member districts, composed of contiguous and compact territory and having as nearly as practicable the same population. He suggested that no congressional districts "should deviate upward or downward from the average population of all congressional districts within that state by more than a specified percentage." He further suggested that Congress should not merely be satisfied with enacting standards, but should also enforce them.

The President's recommendations were introduced in the House of Representatives by Congressman Emanuel Celler (D—N.Y.), Chairman of the Judiciary Committee. The Celler Bill [1] would set 15 percent as the "specified percentage" within which congressional districts could deviate from the average population of all congressional districts within a state. The Celler Bill was referred to the House Judiciary Committee. It is presently being studied by that committee.

As the interim committee has conducted its research projects and prepared and introduced its reapportionment bills, persons have suggested that research and action should wait until Congress had made up its mind about the Celler Bill. The interim committee could not agree, however. There was no assurance the Celler Bill would be passed or even seriously considered, and certainly no sure indication of when. The only federal restriction in force at the time the interim committee did its work, and the only restriction in force at the present time, is the provision cited in the first paragraph of this section.

CALIFORNIA RESTRICTIONS ON CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICTING WITHIN CALIFORNIA

The Constitution of California at Article IV, Section 27, places the following limitations on the Legislature when its redraws congressional district lines:

> "When a congressional district shall be composed of two or more counties, it shall not be separated by any county belonging to another district. No county, or city and county, shall be divided in forming a congressional district so as to attach one portion of a county, or city and county, to another county, or city and county, except in cases where one county, or city and county, has more population than the ratio required for one or more Congressmen; but the Legislature may divide any county, or city and county, into as many congressional districts as it may be entitled to by law. Any county, or city and county containing a population greater than the number required for one congressional district, shall be formed into one or more congressional districts, according to the population thereof, and any residue, after forming such district or districts, shall be attached, by compact adjoining assembly districts, to a contiguous county or counties, and form a congressional district. In dividing a county, or city and county, into congressional districts no assembly district shall be divided so as to form a part of more than one congressional district, and every such congressional district shall be composed of compact contiguous assembly districts."

The principal points of the above section may be summarized as follows:

1. Counties in a congressional district must be contiguous;
2. No county may be divided to make a congressional district unless it has more than the ratio of population required for one or more congressional districts; if it does have, then a residue assembly district may be attached to compact adjoining assembly districts in another county; and
3. Within a county, no assembly district may be divided to form a congressional district, and each congressional district must be composed of compact contiguous whole assembly districts.

Point number one needs no elaboration. The problem created by the first clause of the second point of the summary is well-illustrated in a statement on the Kings County Congressional District made by State Senator R. R. Cunningham, 27th Senatorial District of Kings County, at the Fresno hearing before the interim committee's subcommittee on February 23, 1951:

> "* * * there are four situations in which we could be involved. There is quite a spread. Some of them would be 206,000, one of them 246,000, one 422,000, and one 357,000. There is quite a spread. In the only logical place that we can be—that would be Kings, Tulare and Inyo [206,000], which we certainly don't like; there would be Kings, Tulare and San Luis Obispo [246,000] which we don't like very well; Tulare, Kings and Kern [422,000], which we do like pretty well; and Fresno, Madera or Kern [357,000] which would be satisfactory from a congressional standpoint. Now just what that would be to us from an assembly district [standpoint], I don't know. But we are very hopeful that we can remain just as we are [Kings, Tulare and Kern]."

The third point of the summary tends to make it impossible to secure approximately equal in population congressional districts in counties with several congressmen. The Constitution of California requires the 80 assembly districts to be "as nearly equal in population as may be." (Article IV, Section 6.) Within counties, point three says assembly districts may not be divided in forming congressional districts. There are 80 assembly districts. There will be 30 congressional districts. When 80 is divided by 30 it becomes obvious that some congressional districts will have to be made up of two assembly districts and others of three. If each assembly district contained approximately 130,000 (population of California divided by 80), then the two-assembly-district congressional districts would contain 260,000, and the three-assembly-district congressional districts 390,000. The ideal congressional district (population of California divided by 30) should average about 350,000.

If no changes are made in the Constitution of California, point three will continue to create reapportionment difficulties. California received nine new congressional seats in 1931, three more in 1941, and seven in 1951. If California continues to grow at this pace, it is conceivable that sometime in the not too distant future, California may have 40 congressmen. Then each congressional district could be made up of two assembly districts. However, any number other than 40 presents some degree of the problem experienced in 1951 when 30 congressional seats had to be divided into 80 assembly districts. If California is allocated over 40 congressmen, the problem under point three would be to set up some one-assembly-district congressional districts and other two-assembly-district congressional districts. Whenever a one-assembly-district congressional district was set alongside a two-assembly-district congressional district, assuming the population of assembly districts to be about equal, there would be a surety of 100 percent difference in population between the two types of districts.

LEGAL BACKGROUND—STATE SENATORIAL AND ASSEMBLY DISTRICTS

Article IV, Section 6 of the Constitution of California relating to the formation of state senate and assembly districts reads as follows:

"For the purpose of choosing Members of the Legislature, the State shall be divided into 40 senatorial and 80 assembly districts to be called senatorial and assembly districts. Such districts shall be composed of contiguous territory, and assembly districts shall be as nearly equal in population as may be. Each senatorial district shall choose one Senator and each assembly district shall choose one Member of Assembly. The senatorial districts shall be numbered from 1 to 40, inclusive, in numerical order, and the assembly districts shall be numbered from 1 to 80 in the same order, commencing at the northern boundary of the State and ending at the southern boundary thereof. In the formation of assembly districts no county, or city and county, shall be divided, unless it contains sufficient population within itself to form two or more districts, and in the formation of senatorial districts no county, or city and county, shall be divided, nor shall a part of any county, or of any city and county, be united with any other county, or city and county, in forming any assembly or senatorial district The census taken under the direction of the Congress of the United States in the year 1920, and every 10 years thereafter, shall be the basis of fixing and adjusting the legislative districts, and the Legislature shall, at its first regular session following the adoption of this section and thereafter at the first regular session following each decennial federal census, adjust such districts, and reapportion the representation so as to preserve the assembly districts as nearly equal in population as may be; but in the formation of senatorial districts no county or city and county shall contain more than one senatorial district, and the counties of small population shall be grouped in districts of not to exceed three counties in any one senatorial district; provided, however, that should the Legislature at the first regular session following the adoption of this section or at the first regular session following any decennial federal census fail to reapportion the assembly and senatorial districts, a Reapportionment Commission, which is hereby created, consisting of the Lieutenant Governor, who shall be chairman, and the Attorney General, State Controller, Secretary of State and State Superintendent of Public Instruction, shall forthwith apportion such districts in accordance with the provisions of this section and such apportionment of said districts shall be immediately effective the same as if the act of said Reapportionment Commission were an act of the Legislature, subject, however, to the same provisions of referendum as apply to the acts of the Legislature.

"Each subsequent reapportionment shall carry out these provisions and shall be based upon the last preceding federal census. But in making such adjustments no persons who are not eligible to become citizens of the United States, under the naturalization laws, shall be counted as forming a part of the population of any district.

Until such districting as herein provided for shall be made, Senators and Assemblymen shall be elected by the districts according to the apportionment now provided for by law." (Amendment adopted November 3, 1942)

This section of the Constitution of California, from 1879 when it was adopted until 1926, stipulated that both Assembly and Senate be set up on the basis of population. Use of the county as the principal basis of representation in the Senate did not come until 1926 and the passage of the so-called "federal plan" amendment of that year.

The principal points of Article IV, Section 6 may be summarized as follows:

1. Both senate and assembly districts must be composed of contiguous territory;
2. No part of a county may be united with another county to form either senate or assembly districts;
3. No county may be divided to form assembly districts unless it contains enough population to form two or more districts within itself;
4. Assembly districts must be "as nearly equal in population as may be";
5. No county may be divided to form senate districts;
6. No county may contain more than one senate district;
7. Not more than three counties may be grouped in any one senate district; and
8. If the Legislature at the first regular session following a federal decennial census fails to reapportion assembly and senate districts, a Reapportionment Commission shall forthwith apportion such districts.

Point four instructs the Legislature to create assembly districts as nearly equal in population as possible. Points two and three provide no county may be divided unless it has enough population to warrant two or more assembly districts, and no part of a county may be joined with any other to form an assembly district. To a degree, points two and three tend to contradict point four.

The problem of what to do with Imperial County in the assembly district pattern is an example of the operation of points two and three. Imperial County, according to the final figures of the 1950 census, has a population of 62,975. That population entitles it to only 0.48 of an Assemblyman. San Diego County, to the west, is entitled to 4.21 Assemblymen, yet the 0.21 residue cannot be joined with Imperial. Riverside County, to the north, is entitled to 1.29 Assemblymen, yet neither can the 0.29 residue be applied to Imperial County's 0.48 plus San Diego's 0.21 residue. Arizona bounds Imperial on the east, and Mexico on the south. The only alternatives for an assembly district for Imperial County would be either to join it to Riverside County to create a single assembly district of both counties, or to give it its own Assemblyman. Riverside County can point to its 1.29 entitlement and suggest how grossly unfair it would be to combine it with Imperial's 0.48. Imperial County has had and will continue to have, at least for the next 10 years, one whole Assemblyman to itself.

In no county does the assembly district entitlement, based on population, coincide exactly with the number of assemblymen assigned to the county. Monterey County with its 0.99 entitlement is the closest. Imperial County with its 0.48 entitlement (0.52 under) and San Joaquin County with its 1.52 entitlement (0.52 over) are two counties, both with one assemblyman, farthest away from the ideal. Pending a revision of the Constitution of California, such inequalities must of necessity exist.

While the county is a secondary consideration in assembly district reapportionment, it is the primary factor in state senate districts reapportionment. No senatorial district changes in 1951 were required by the constitution, however, minor adjustments affecting four districts were made.

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND OF REAPPORTIONMENT IN CALIFORNIA

A better appreciation of the reapportionment problem may be gained from viewing the historical development of the process in California. This phase of California political history may be divided into two distinct periods: first, Pre-1910; and second, Post-1910. The event of 1910 which officially signified a turning point was the publication of the results of the 1910 census by the U. S. Bureau of the Census.

Reapportionment of congressional and state legislative seats during this period was not a particularly controversial matter. The balance of power between sections of the State was not significantly different from one set of district patterns to another each successive ten years because the increase in population was relatively uniform throughout the State. Neither was conflict between Democratic and Republican parties very sharp.

Northern California had been the first section of the State to be developed. It had the population and the economic balance of power. It exercised political control. Population and economic developments in Southern California were not significant enough to threaten the control of the North—prior to 1910.

The challenge of Southern California may be spelled out in such terms as railroads, irrigation, water, Chambers of Commerce, and the desire of more and more people to live in this section. Population growth was accompanied by economic growth. Los Angeles gradually grew up from "Queen of the Cow Counties" to become "Queen of the Urban Counties"—the biggest of them all.

The San Francisco area in the 1880's had 27 percent of the State's population; Los Angeles, only 4 percent. By 1910 the picture had changed. Los Angeles had 21 percent of the population; San Francisco, 17 percent. Los Angeles went to the 1911 session of the Legislature asking for assemblymen and state senators commensurate with its population.

The San Francisco-Los Angeles population balance was not the only new reapportionment factor in the 1911 Session. By this time, the flow of population to urban areas had become evident. By 1910 the counties of San Francisco, Los Angeles and Alameda accounted for 49 percent of the State's population. The trend would go further. The rural counties found themselves faced with the question of whether they should or should not release their balance of political power in the Legislature to the cities.

The issue involved even more. Inland cities were contesting with coastal cities for first rank as commercial and wholesale distribution centers. Also active in the dispute were the rural lumbering, farming and mining interests. There was the controversy of "county versus city" over moral and social issues. To these attitudes could be added personal and political party interests. These were some of the factors that tended to make the post-1910 period considerably more controversial than had been its predecessor.

The Reapportionment of 1911

Hiram Johnson and his Progressive Republicans were elected to office in 1910. The 1911 Regular Session of the Legislature was so busy passing reform legislation it did not get to the job of reapportionment. That was one of the reasons why a special session was called for later in the year. That did not mean, however, that reapportionment was not an issue in the 1911 Regular Session. It was. As long as new congressional, assembly and senate district boundary lines were unsettled, the location of these boundaries could be and was used as a trading device on other legislation.

It appears that the Los Angeles delegation, in order to secure passage of the Tideland Bill, made a trade with San Francisco. The conditions of the agreement had San Francisco supporting Los Angeles on the Tideland Bill. Los Angeles, in turn, was to support San Francisco's claim that the latter should not lose legislative seats in the reapportionment. The Tideland Bill was passed, and with the help of San Francisco.

Rural legislators resented the "big-city agreement." Positions on such issues as race track gambling and local liquor control tended to further widen the country-city split. Determined to stop the big city agreement on reapportionment, rural legislators met in Fresno before the special session and drafted a reapportionment plan of their own. The country plan would deprive the metropolitan areas of two senators and four assemblymen to which they were entitled on the basis of population. Assemblyman Randall, Los Angeles, introduced the rural plan in the Assembly.

The Randall Bill passed the Assembly despite the fact that the delegations from metropolitan areas, with the exception of Randall, held firm in their opposition. In the Senate, the big city plan was successful. Deadlock resulted, and might have continued indefinitely if parts of the Los Angeles delegation hadn't deflected from the metropolitan bloc. Los Angeles stood to gain some representation regardless of which plan became law, and it appeared that San Francisco would be the only section to gain by prolonged stalemate. The Randall Bill finally passed the Assembly 47 to 27, and the Senate 22 to 17.

Although the major controversy centered on the question of small county versus big county representation, some medium sized counties found themselves either on the long or short end of population entitlements. Sacramento and San Diego found themselves underrepresented in the arrangements of the Randall Bill; such counties as Santa Clara and Fresno, overrepresented.

Congressional reapportionment was not as important an issue in 1911. The principal dispute on congressional representation revolved around the question of whether population alone or a combination of population and regional factors would be used as the yardstick in outlining the districts. The latter was followed. The 11 districts created conformed to the following regions: first, North Coast and Sacramento Valley; second, Mountain; third, Bay and Deep Water Tributaries; fourth, and fifth, San Francisco; sixth, Alameda; seventh, San Joaquin Valley; eighth, South Coast; ninth and tenth, Los Angeles County; and eleventh, Southern California.

Failure to Reapportion in 1921, 1923 and 1925

The pressures that made the 1911 reapportionment highly controversial—the shift of people and wealth from North to South, and from county to city—continued with greater force from 1911 to 1921. Not only did the influence of Los Angeles and San Francisco reach out through such facilities as transport, marketing systems, etc., to place the big city at the center in influence of an area, but the trend appeared in counties not previously thought of as urban—counties like San Diego, Sacramento, San Joaquin, Fresno and Santa Clara. Rural legislators found themselves concerned, not only with the biggest cities, but also with the in-between cities. The job of keeping political control out of the hands of the "city bosses" was becoming increasingly difficult.

The Legislature failed to take reapportionment action in the 1921, 1923 and 1925 Sessions. Proposals that both houses should be apportioned on a population basis, as called for in the Constitution, failed of passage. So also did numerous proposals to limit the number of senators to be allocated to each of the urban counties. The cities favored the former; the country, the latter.

Rural proposals may be summarized as follows: first, bills to limit Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Alameda counties to such limits as 10 assemblymen each; second, bills to divide representation in the Senate on a "$\frac{3}{8}$-$\frac{5}{8}$ plan" which would give the metropolitan counties 15 senators and the remaining counties 25 senators; third, bills to divide senate representation on other formulas such as 11 urban-29 rural or 13 urban-27 rural; fourth, a "federal plan" with the representation of the Assembly based on population and the respresentation of the Senate on counties; fifth, classification of counties into several categories and establishment of a quota of senators per county from each of the classifications (this would have restricted not only the large metropolitan counties, but also some of the medium sized counties); and sixth, bills which, in addition to limiting the number of senators from the large metropolitan counties, also provided that of the number of senators assigned to such a county a certain portion had to come from districts in the rural sections of those counties.

The sectional conflict seemed to reach a peak in the 1925 Session when the Legislature failed to approve two measures regarded as vital to further development of Southern California: first, a bill dealing with the organization of a metropolitan water district; and second, a favorable allocation of moneys for highway purposes to the South. At this point, feeling became so bitter many seriously speculated on the desirability of a division of the State into a Northern California and a Southern California.

The Federal Plan of 1926

Only two alternatives seemed to be available after the 1925 Session: first, to wait for unlikely legislative action in the face of further hardening of battle lines between rural and urban groups; and second, to attempt to force action by direct popular participation through the use of the initiative provisions of the Constitution of California.

After the 1925 Session, an All-Parties Reapportionment Committee was organized in Los Angeles. Its proposal, which secured enough signatures to be placed on the ballot for the November, 1926, election, set population as the sole basis for redistricting both houses of the California Legislature. In opposition, a California Farm Bureau Federation group was organized. Its "federal plan" based representation in the Assembly on population, and in the Senate, limited each county to no more than one senator. It also secured the necessary signatures, and was placed on the November, 1926, ballot.

The principal arguments against the "federal plan" were based on the idea that representation had to be based on population or it would not be democratic representation. Those in favor of the "federal plan" argued it would achieve a proper balance between agrarian, mining and forestry interests in the Senate, and industrial, urban and related interests in the Assembly. They also argued that metropolitan control of the Legislature would mean control of the State by city political bosses.

The voters indorsed the "federal plan" by a substantial margin, and decisively defeated the "population" measure. Los Angeles County was the only county in which the Farm Bureau measure did not receive a majority.

The Reapportionment of 1927

Although many were dissatisfied with the "federal plan," the Legislature reapportioned assembly and senate districts during the 1927 Session—the first reapportionment since 1911. Population was the rule in the Assembly; counties, in the Senate.

The 1927 Session passed items of legislation specially desired by Southern California, namely bills on state highway finance and allocation of expenditures, a bill for the organization of the metropolitan water district and for construction of additional water facilities, and a bill for the submission of a million dollar bond issue to support the Olympic Games to be held in Los Angeles in 1932.

Alameda and San Francisco groups sought to prevent the reapportionment of 1927 from going into effect. They organized a movement for referendum, obtained enough signatures, and began a campaign. The arguments of the 1926 campaign were repeated. Yet, in the general election of November, 1928, the proponents of the "federal plan" received an even wider margin than they got in 1926.

A determined group from the All-Parties Reapportionment Committee began a new fight to nullify the "federal plan" with a system of representation under which all cities of 250,000 or more would be limited to a combined representation in both houses of the Legislature of not to exceed two-fifths of the total membership. The plans of this group did not meet with a generally favorable response, and it got no further. The Legislature of 1931 was the first elected under the "federal plan."

The Reapportionment of 1931

With the Senate largely removed as a reapportionment issue and only minor adjustments required in assembly representation, the congressional problem was the most important in 1931. Congress had failed to reapportion congressional seats in 1921. By 1931 when Congress did reapportion, California was entitled to, and received nine new seats.

The issue of the speakership of the Assembly became involved in the 1931 reapportionment fight. The two contenders for the Speakership, Assemblyman Walter J. Little of Los Angeles and Assemblyman Levey of San Francisco, were both thought to be pledged to support an apportionment based on population. Levey won on a 41 to 39 vote, and it soon appeared he favored a plan which modified a strict population test to somewhat favor San Francisco at the expense of Los Angeles and the San Joaquin Valley.

The program of the Levey forces was presented in the Assembly in the Craig Bill. It gave Los Angeles County seven congressional districts instead of the eight to which population entitled it, and 31 assembly districts instead of the 30 to which it was entitled. San Joaquin Valley, under the Craig Bill, would receive 1½ of a congressional district, including San Joaquin County. Senator J. W. McKinley of Los Angeles was the author of a proposal representing a more strictly population standard. His bill gave Southern California eight congressmen, and the San Joaquin Valley 1½, excluding San Joaquin County. Northern California got one. Nine assembly seats held by the North were transferred to the South, Los Angeles gained eight; San Francisco lost three.

The McKinley Bill passed the Senate; the Craig Bill, the Assembly. When the Senate got the Craig Bill, it amended it by substituting the provisions of the McKinley Bill. When the Assembly got the McKinley Bill, it amended it by substituting the provisions of the Craig Bill. In an attempt to break the ensuing stalemate, the Levey group introduced a substitute (the Israel Bill) through which they hoped to obtain San Joaquin Valley support for the northern groups. Southern Legislators, however, working closely with the San Joaquin Valley delegation held their lines. After many parliamentary battles, endless negotiations, intrigue and counter-intrigue, the Southern forces demonstrated their strength in the Assembly by passing the McKinley congressional and assembly bills by a vote of 46 to 31 With 42 assembly votes south of the Tehachapi, Southern California for the first time held the assembly balance of power.

Northern groups, especially San Francisco, indicated they would launch a referendum campaign. This movement, however, did not gain the necessary support and it never found its way to the ballot.

The Reapportionment of 1941

Reapportionment in 1941 was much less controversial. The issue of whether to allow an assembly balance of power to shift to counties south of the Tehachapis had largely been settled in 1931. For the first time the Assembly Elections and Reapportionment Committee was controlled by Democrats. Both San Francisco versus Southern California and partisan differences played a part in the process.

The reapportionment bill as originally reported out by the Elections and Reapportionment Committee took two assembly seats from San Francisco and one from Alameda County, and gave two to Los Angeles County and one to Kern County. In the Senate, the bill was changed to cut San Francisco only one seat, and to deprive Kern County of what would have been its second seat. The three new congressional seats were distributed as follows: one to the Central Valley area, and two to Southern California. Of the latter, one went to make up the present 21st Congressional District consisting of the Forty-first Assembly District in Los Angeles County and the two San Bernardino assembly districts, and the other went wholly to Los Angeles County.

FACTORS IN REAPPORTIONMENT IN CALIFORNIA IN 1951, AND METHODS IN ANALYZING THOSE FACTORS

As constituted, the Interim Committee on Elections and Reapportionment did not have any members who had participated in former reapportionment hearings. The advice and assistance of former members of the Legislature who had taken part in earlier reapportionments was solicited and the conversations with these individuals were of positive value. No documentary materials or records from previous sessions, however, were to be found.

Several books and articles on the general subject of reapportionment in California were available. Population and Politics—a study of the effect of the 1951 reapportionment on the United States and California, prepared by San Jule & Stofle and Hal Dunleavy & Associates (San Francisco: February, 1950) was of help with its broad information on the federal and state legal backgrounds, its stating of the problems involved, and its excellent statistical tables based on estimates of 1950 population. Margaret Greenfield's Legislative Reapportionment (Berkeley, Bureau of Public Administration of the University of California, March, 1951) was similarly useful with its background and statistical data, and its comparative studies of the question of reapportionment in other states.

George W. Bemis, Sectionalism and Representation in the California State Legislature, 1911-1931 (unpublished Ph.D. thesis, University of California, Berkeley, 1934) is the most comprehensive study of sectional influences on the reapportionment process. Franklin Hichborn's Story of the California Legislature of 1911 (San Francisco, James H. Barry Company, 1911), and his Story of the California Legislature of 1921 (same publisher, 1921) are useful for history of reapportionment in those years.

Winston W. Crouch and Dean E. McHenry, California Government (Los Angeles, University of California Press, 1949) and articles by Thomas Barclay of Stanford University and McHenry of UCLA were also of use in showing political implications of the reapportionments and the major issues involved. This report acknowledges its indebtedness to all of these sources.

Nowhere in the California literature was the interim committee able to find statements or documentary material which dealt with the actual techniques or the step by step process of research which should be followed in order that members of the interim committee and Legislature should have at their disposal information on which to base reapportionment decisions. Studies were made of the reapportionment literature of other states. The situation was mostly the same. General information was available; specific technique statements of how to go about the job were not. It was necessary, therefore, to follow a qualified empirical approach—experimenting as the project went along.

To the end that the full value of this work from the point of view of the political scientist might be exploited and preserved and to assist the committee in doing the best possible work, Dr. Ivan Hinderaker, Associate Professor of Political Science at the University of California at Los Angeles, kindly consented to work as consultant for the committee without remuneration. The committee is greatly indebted to him for his advice and efforts.

The office of the Legislative Counsel furnished the services of Mr. Robert Hinshaw, who worked with the committee throughout the interim period and during the 1951 Regular Session. Extensive use was made of his most valuable services, and the various Legislative Counsel Opinions wherein he advised the committee as to the law involved are incorporated in the appendix of this report in their entirety. They constitute an essential and most valuable source of information on the subject.

POPULATION FACTORS

The basic purpose of reapportionment of legislative districts is to redraw districts so they conform to the population trends of the period since the last reapportionment. Congressional seats are reapportioned to the states on the basis of population. There is no population requirement, however, in federal law relating to congressional districts in the states. Article IV, Section 6 of the California Constitution provides that assembly districts (except for the limitations of county lines) be "as nearly equal in population as may be;" and Article IV, Section 27 provides that congressional districts (except for county line and assembly district limitations) have population as their base consideration.[1] The first concern of the committee, therefore, was to secure as quickly and accurately as possible the population for California, its counties, and the smallest units possible within counties having or being entitled to more than one assemblyman.

Although the federal census is taken every 10 years and is theoretically supposed to be available to legislatures for reapportioning by January of the following year, it takes about one full year after the enumeration (April in 1950) before final detailed figures are released The Constitution of California asks the Legislature to use the federal census data, and at the same time to complete reapportionment of assembly and senatorial districts during the first regular session after the federal census has been taken.[2] Regular sessions are now limited to 120 days.

It had been felt that census figures for 1940 arrived so late in 1941 that the Legislature did not have enough time to plan for the reapportionment job. To prevent, if possible, a repetition of that situation, the chairman of the interim committee first wrote the U. S. Bureau of the Census on September 28, 1949, requesting information as to when and in what form preliminary and final census figures for the 1950 census would be available. In its reply of October 7, 1949, the Bureau of the Census stated it could make no definite prediction, but hoped the results would be available soon after January 1, 1951. In a letter of November 27, 1950, the Bureau of the Census found it necessary to revise the earlier estimate to late in the spring of 1951, but suggested that the anticipated change between preliminary and final figures would be very slight.[3] Preliminary counts of the population of California counties were made available in a Census Bureau press release of September 28, 1950 (Series PC-2, No 48). In a letter to Congressman Cecil R. King on February 12, 1951, Roy V.

[3] Legislative Counsel Opinion, March 12, 1951.

Peel, Director of the Bureau of the Census, made the following certification of validity of these preliminary figures:

> "I HEREBY CERTIFY, That the final count of the returns of the Seventeenth Census of the United States, taken as of April 1, 1950, will show the population of each of the counties in the State of California, with the exception of the Counties of Alpine, Inyo, Mariposa, Mono, Nevada, San Diego, San Francisco, Sierra, and Solano, to be within two percent of the preliminary population figures shown in the attached press release, Series PC-2, No. 48 entitled '1950 Census of Population, Preliminary Counts, Population of California, by Counties. April 1, 1950.' The final population of the nine counties named above will be within two percent of the following revised preliminary figures: Alpine, 241; Inyo, 11,658; Mariposa, 5,145; Mono, 2,115; Nevada, 19,888; San Diego, 556,808; San Francisco, 775,357; Sierra, 2,410; Solano, 104,833."

Because of the 120-day limit on the time which the Legislature had for assembly reapportionment action, and because of Bureau of the Census assurances that final figures would be very close to the preliminary figures, the 1950 preliminary figures for counties were used as the basis for computing assembly and congressional district entitlements of each of the counties of California [4] These county entitlement computations, classified by such categories as metropolitan-rural, north-central-south, north coast-central mountain-Sacramento Valley-etc, went through several editions. The final one, using final population figures by counties as published in a Bureau of the Census press release dated March 30, 1951 (Series PC-8, No 4A), is reprinted in appendix.

Preliminary population figures were also available for some political subdivisions other than counties. The September 28, 1950, press release of the Bureau of the Census, in addition to county totals, contained the population of each incorporated place of 1,000 or more persons. Another release, dated November 5, 1950 (Series PC-3, No. 2) gave Population of Congressional Districts; April 1, 1950. Still another, dated November 21, 1950, (Series PC-3, No. 5) gave population of cities of 100,000 or more by wards, April 1, 1950. The only data of use in the latter was the population, by Assembly District, for San Francisco.

It was necessary to obtain population data on much smaller units to redraw assembly district lines in the large metropolitan areas. This was especially true of Los Angeles County where there had been a marked shift of population from the center of Los Angeles City out into suburban areas.

In an attempt to develop population estimates by precinct for Los Angeles County to be used in preliminary planning, conferences were held with C. E. Arnold, County Engineer, and members of his staff; John R. Commons, Regional Planning Commissioner; and Benjamin Hite, Registrar of Voters. Using total voter registration data published by the Registrar of Voters and population estimates published by the Los Angeles Regional Planning Commission, the county engineer's office prepared a map showing statistical areas for Los Angeles County and the ratio factor by which voter registration should be multiplied to arrive at an estimated population for each precinct in that statistical area Factors might vary for each statistical area of the county. The factors were determined by totaling the registered voters, as of November 1, 1950, in each statistical area, and dividing each of the totals into the corresponding population estimate for the area, as of October, 1950. Staff members were then assigned to multiply the voter registration for each precinct by the ratio for the area in which the precinct was located to arrive at a population estimate for each precinct.

Attempts were being made to obtain similar estimates from the other metropolitan areas of the State when the Bureau of the Census announced on December 20, 1950, that "Unpublished Preliminary Counts of the Population by Census Tracts: 1950" would be available at the cost of having them prepared. Local planning commissions, reapportionment committees, etc., obtained population data by census tract for their area, and used the information as the basis of planning their recommendations. The Interim Committee proceeded to obtain the preliminary figures by census tract for Los Angeles (city and environs), Oakland (city and environs), San Diego (city and environs), and San Francisco (city only); and the figures for townships and incorporated places of less than 1,000 were also obtained.

With census tract data available, population calculation procedure is relatively simple. Copies of census tract maps were obtained. The population figures for each tract can be written inside the boundaries of each census tract. The tentative new representative district lines can be placed on the population map with masking tape. To obtain the population of each district, then, it is only necessary to add up the total population for all complete census tracts in the proposed district and make estimates of the percentage of population included for those tracts on the edge that are split into one or more districts. As the tentative boundaries are changed, masking tape lines may be moved, and the new estimated population total calculated.

GENERAL STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS OTHER THAN POPULATION THAT OPERATE IN THE REAPPORTIONMENT PROCESS

Although population is the most important factor in reapportionment, it is not the only one. The Chairman of the Interim Committee received the following piece of advice in a letter from a citizen of the City of Los Angeles:

> "Put the political Science Professor which you have appointed, into an office, put a 'Do Not Disturb' sign on the door and disconnect the phone. Equip him with the 1950 Census results, a map and a pencil. Have him start by dividing the State's population by 30. Then let him figure out Congressional Districts which are as nearly equal in population as it is humanly possible. Then fight for this fair plan and to Hell with local politicians!"

The reapportionment process is not quite that simple.

Population cannot be the only consideration. Assume, for example, that one started at the top of the State with the intention of setting up a pattern of districts based solely on the population factor. Would he count all the population down the whole width of the State until he had enough for one district? To do so would disregard the geographic facts of coastal, valley and mountain counties. To do so would disregard such socio-economic factors as the difference between the interests of coastal versus inland valley communities, farm versus metropolitan communities, north versus south, desert versus non-desert agriculture, etc. To do so would disregard the desires of the people living in the different communities as to what kind of a district they would prefer to be a part of. To do so would disregard the desires of the elected Congressmen from those areas, and the elected State Senators and Assemblymen who have to agree on and pass out a reapportionment bill before it can become law. To do so would disregard political party desires, a factor that is always present in some degree in drawing of representative district lines. To do so would disregard the legal restrictions of the Constitution of California as they apply to counties in making up assembly districts, and to counties and assembly districts in making up congressional districts.

The geographic—the socio-economic—the desires of the people—the desires of the elected officeholders—the desires of political parties—all these can and do legitimately operate not only within the framework of the "relatively equal in population districts" factor, but also within the factors of contiguity and compactness. The county and Assembly line legal restrictions operate outside the framework of theoretically "equal in population districts." All the factors might conceivably have the same weight in one situation; in another, some factors might be considerably more important than others in making the final determination.

The interim committee made an attempt to consider all these factors, to analyze them within the limits of budget and staff, and to hear from as many persons and organizations as possible in the process of evaluating them.

GEOGRAPHIC FACTORS

In speaking of the First Congressional District as it existed from 1941 to the present, Leonard A Thomas, Chairman of the Marin County Democratic Central Committee made the following observation in a letter to the interim committee: "The present First District would appear to be a group of counties, with heterogeneous interests, combined only for the purpose of the necessary population for a congressional district" The district of which Mr Thomas spoke included the five North Coast counties of Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino, Sonoma, Marin and Lake, and the five "floor of the valley" counties of Glenn, Colusa, Butte, Yuba and Sutter.

How could geographically homogeneous districts be created? Part of the answer and an appreciation of the problem may be obtained from the following study of the geography of the State of California by Ruth E Baugh. Although geographic factors can no more stand alone than population factors, the geographic view of the State is an essential supplement to the population and other data which go into reapportionment decisions. The article which follows is reprinted with the permission of Miss Baugh and Education magazine:

CALIFORNIA: A TYPE STUDY OF A STATE

By RUTH E. BAUGH
University of California, Los Angeles, California

In a popular sense, California represents different things to different people: Some visualize mountains like the High Sierra, others plains, as typified by the Sacramento Valley; some a vast forested area such as the Redwood Coast, others the California desert exemplified by Death Valley or the Colorado Desert. Such divergencies of concept are not unexpected, for there are, in truth, many Californias, and each has a marked individuality imparted by its distinctive geographical conditions.

The State of California lends itself admirably to the regional approach. Its landscape forms are prominent and greatly varied, and its culture runs the gamut from primitive to complex urban development. It is a large state (158,000 square miles), second only to Texas in area. The latitude (32 to 42 degrees north) encompasses a wide range, and in combination with great altitude differences, produces many climatic types.

Certain major land forms create six distinctive regions of California. The Great Valley occupies one-half the length of the State. To the east rises the Sierra Nevada, and to the west lie the California Coast Ranges. The southern extension of the coast ranges together with coastal zones are known as Southern California. Northern California consists of the Klamath Mountains on the west and the Volcanic Plateau in the east. Eastern and southeastern California is the Desert Region.[1]

The Coast Ranges

When permanent settlements were established, beginning in 1769, favorable sites along the shore and in coastal valleys became centers of the earliest European-derived culture. The architecture of mission, home, and public building, constructed before the American occupation, reflects Spanish origins. Even in twentieth century California the Spanish flavor, particularly in the coastal region, is apparent. Two other features distinguish this province: the localization in its ports of far-reaching commercial activities, and the development in close proximity to the coast of the State's largest centers of population.

The coast ranges are characterized by long parallel ranges and intervening valleys, aligned in a north west-southeast direction. The mountains are not high, averaging only 2,000 to 4,000 feet, although at the northern end a few peaks rise to 8,000 feet. The valleys are long and narrow and terminate at the coast in bays or alluvial plains.

The Santa Clara Valley is located south of San Francisco Bay and is a veritable garden spot, famous for apricots, prunes, wine grapes, and vegetables which are sold fresh, dried, bottled, and canned in the markets of the United States. The Salinas Valley also produces a variety of products in the long valley stretching from Santa Margarita in the dry southern half where stock raising takes the lead, to dairy products and summer lettuce localized in the cool foggy plain near Monterey Bay.

North of San Francisco Bay, the Russian River valley opens southward, while the Eel River widens northwestward. Together they form a long groove utilized by highway and railroad from San Francisco Bay to Humboldt Bay. The Redwood Highway cuts through magnificent stands of redwood trees along the Eel River, and the northward stretch between Eureka and Crescent City. Heavy winter rains and summer fogs favor forests. This resource supports the lumber industry which here attains more than local importance.

Moreover, the great natural beauty of forest and coast and the mild pleasant climate are contributing to a substantial tourist industry. The fish caught in and near Humboldt Bay, dairy products, flowers, and bulbs find a ready market in San Francisco and Oakland. Other than the processing of forest products, manufacturing is small.

The population of the coast ranges is sparse and is noticeably concentrated in the valleys near highways. The bordering ranges are steep-sloped and often rugged. Inaccessibility produces isolation, and they are shunned except where mineral wealth occurs, which consists chiefly of quicksilver and petroleum.

[1] The reader will add to his understanding of this geographical description if he will provide himself with a map of California or western United States, preferably one showing land forms (relief).

The coast proper where mountains meet the sea, is generally steep and inhospitable. There are few plains immediately adjacent to the sea large enough to support more than fishing villages or lumber ports Three bays—Humboldt, San Francisco, and Monterey—and their narrow plains are the only considerable centers of population in the northern and central coast ranges Monterey was the most important city in California from 1770 until 1849. Today it lies off the beaten track of the major transit lines. It is, however, a charming city. The attractiveness of nearby Carmel and Santa Cruz mountains give the whole area a large tourist trade Otherwise the economy is based on a considerable fishing industry, and on farming and dairying.

The metropolitan area on San Francisco Bay is second in population of Pacific Coast cities Geographic and historical factors have played a part in its growth. One of the earliest settlements established on the California Coast, San Francisco experienceed a great impetus during Gold Rush days. Its geographical location at the outlet of the Great Valley and on one of the world's finest natural harbors have given it a dominant position, particularly in Pacific Basin trade. Its picturesque situation and the many points of interest in the vicinity of the bay make it one of America's most colorful cities.

The Sierra Nevada

The Sierra Nevada is essentially a primitive region It contains scarcely 3 percent of the State's population and no real cities The great elevation of its crest creates a barrier which limits travel across the range. And yet this region was the magnet that drew people from the four courners of the world in the rush to California in 1849, a movement which ushered in the Americanization of the State.

The Sierra Nevada is a great mountain 400 miles long, extending from the Volcanic Plateau in the vicinity of Feather River southward to Tehachapi Pass The uplift and tilting to the west of a huge block of the earth's crust produced a long gradual slope to westward and an almost vertical drop facing the Desert Region on the east. From Lake Tahoe (6,242 feet) southward the altitude steadily increases to Mount Whitney (14,495 feet), then lowers as it approaches the south end of the range.

Although a single mountain block, the Sierra is intricately dissected by powerful rivers Awe-inspiring canyons have been carved into the granite block by the American, Tuolumne, Merced, Kings, and Kern Rivers, to name only a few Mountain glaciation has produced bold, impressive landscapes: deep U-shaped canyons and leaping waterfalls, ampitheater-like cirques near the mountain crest, the work of ice also contributed to the formation of lakes and meadows.

An extensive forest about halfway up the west slope is an added feature to the attractiveness of the Sierra The massiveness of the range and great difference in elevation from the dry foothill zone to exposed alpine heights creates a belted arrangement of vegetation types ranging from scattered shrubs near the Great Valley floor, through forests to a zone of stunted windblown trees near the upper tree line, beyond which plant life cannot survive.

The main timber belt of sugar and ponderosa pine, fir and incense cedar has a well-developed lumber industry, increasing in output from Yosemite to the latitude of Lassen Peak and Mount Shasta in Northern California In isolated groves at altitudes of 4,000 to 7,000 feet grows the Sequoia gigantea, the big tree, monarch of the earth's flora. In the sublime natural setting of the western Sierra, three national parks, Yosemite, Sequoia, and Kings Canyon, are centers of recreation And beyond the confines of federally operated parks both slopes of the Sierra Nevada have hundreds of summer camps along good fishing streams, around the countless lakes and meadows. Recently the popularity of winter skiing has brought into prominence such accessible mountain areas as Donner Summit and Badger Pass. Recreation, unquestionably, is the most widespread of the Sierra's organized activities.

Water is its greatest resource. Copious precipitation as rain and heavy snow in the central and northern Sierra feed countless streams. West-slope rivers supply the thirsty farmlands of the Great Valley. The largest cities of the state draw Sierran water through long aqueducts to metropolitan centers. Water from the Tuolumne River supplies San Francisco; the Mokelumne serves the East Bay area, while Owens River, an east-slope stream, fills the Los Angeles aqueduct. The generation of hydroelectric power for use on farms and by municipalities in California is of the greatest significance economically.

Although gold mining was the industry which first brought the Sierra Nevada into prominence and attracted a large population, it is today a minor industry. The placer mining of "the days of '49" has been superseded by large scale deep or shaft mining centered in towns like Jackson and Grass Valley. Gold production has declined, but the glamour of the old days lingers in the foothill belt of the Mother Lode country where picturesque hamlets, some thriving, others decadent or in ruins, recall the lively days of California's Gold Rush.

The Great Valley

No greater regional contrasts can be found in California than those existing between Sierra Nevada and Great Valley. Striking as are contrasts in elevation, slope and surface expression, climate and natural vegetation, the cultural differences are even more pronounced. The economic development of the Great Valley is the story of agriculture, crops, farm labor, and water problems, of the rise and growth of market towns and cities.

The Great Valley is a level plain 400 miles long occupying the depression between uplifted Sierra Nevada and coast ranges. It is one of the world's notable plains and contains 12,000,000 acres. A pair of rivers, the Sacramento and San Joaquin, drain the lowland from north and south, respectively. They join in the common delta and flow to San Francisco Bay through the only sea-level break in the coast ranges, Carquinez Strait A third division, Tulare Basin, lies in the extreme south end of this vast lowland.

Geographical conditions favor agriculture. Soils are deep and highly varied, ranging from coarse sandy types near the mountains to dark rich peat in the delta. Winters are cool with occasional subfreezing temperatures; summers are very hot with frequent temperatures above 100 to 110 degrees. Rainfall is too light in many areas for crop production, and as it occurs only in winter, the long, hot, rainless summer demands that diversions of water from the Sacramento-San Joaquin system be utilized for irrigation. Practically all irrigation water comes from the Sierra Nevada, for only a few weak streams reach the valley from the coast ranges The sources of the Sacramento tap high mountain areas of the Northern California region, and strong tributaries enter from the northern Sierra. Tulare Basin in the south receives the Kings, Kaweah, and Kern Rivers.

The fortuitous combination of level land, good soils, high summer temperatures and normally adequate irrigation water, to say nothing of human initiative and energy, have helped to create in the Great Valley the largest continuous block of farmland in the State, in area one-half the cultivated land in California. Crops, in the main, are produced on a commercial scale. They tend to be localized in areas favoring profitable production.

Oranges are planted in the eastern foothills for air drainage on cold winter nights; rice culture is centered along the Sacramento River near Colusa; apricots, figs, and raisin grapes find late summer drying conditions excellent around Fresno; truck crops, as potatoes and asparagus, flourish in the black soils of the delta Alfalfa, wheat, barley, cotton, olives, nuts, melons, wine grapes, to name only a few of the major crops, find their way to local markets to be sacked, baled, boxed, and packaged for nation-wide distribution.

Market towns serve to collect, process, and ship the produce of the tributary area and supply growers with their needs. Redding, Red Bluff, Chico, Woodland, and the great center, Sacramento, are major market centers in the north; Stockton, Modesto, Merced, and Fresno in the San Joaquin area; Visalia, Tulare, Delano, and Bakersfield in the south. Sacramento, state capital, has superior advantages as a major market center because of excellent position on the navigable Sacramento River. Stockton's situation on Stockton Channel of the deepened San Joaquin gives it direct connection with foreign ports. Inland Fresno is well connected by rail and highway with the great markets around San Francisco Bay and Southern California. Bakersfield, southernmost of valley cities, is a center for the extensive petroleum fields of Tulare Basin and for vast farming enterprises. Its situation commands four passes through the enclosing mountains.

A continuing agricultural production in the Great Valley hinges on a guaranteed water supply. The building of dams and extension of canals, shifting of Sacramento River water to the lower San Joaquin Valley, and of San Joaquin River water to water-poor Tulare Basin are now carried out in the Central Valley Water Project

Northern California

North of Great Valley and Sierra Nevada lies high country with rugged, lofty ranges in the west and lava flows in the east The Southern Cascades, a volcanic ridge, trends northwest through the center, continuing the direction, if not the features, of the northern Sierra. Many volcanoes crown its summit; most spectacular is Mount Shasta (14,350 feet), whose snow-capped cone is a prominent landmark throughout northeastern California. Lassen Peak, with Lassen Volcanic National Park, still exhibits phenomena of receding activity, for this volcano was active as recently as 1915.

West of the Cascades is the rugged Klamath region where range beyond range extends to the coast. High wooded mountains and deep canyons isolate this area; it seems a world apart, truly another California when set beside the well-tilled Great Valley. Heavy rains drench the forested ridges of Salmon, Scott, and Klamath Mountains and maintain the volume of Trinity and Klamath Rivers. East of the Cascades the lava plateau is interrupted by basaltic ridges, segregating flatish areas. The forests of ponderosa pine are replaced in the extreme northeastern corner of the State by sparser tree growth and a cover of sage.

Culturally, Northern California is similar to the Sierra Nevada. The population is small in numbers and scattered with few large communities. Unquestionably the forest is the greatest resource and lumbering the greatest industry. Gold mining continues to contribute an appreciable income, but stock raising and general farming employ far more people. Like the Sierra this area is another of the unspoiled, primitive regions of California. The recreation business is increasing yearly and has possibilities of development.

Desert California

The desert region of Eastern California encompasses a vast area extending from the Oregon line to the Mexican border. It experiences the highest temperatures, lowest humidity, and smallest annual rainfall found in the United States. A high mountain barrier on the west and southwest shuts out the moisture that might make this interior region more even-tempered, better-watered land. Five to 10 inches of rain fall annually in favored areas, while scarcely more than two to five inches are recorded over much of the southern desert.

Dry air, meager and undependable rainfall, sizzling summer temperatures, and cold, desiccating winter winds are not conducive to plant growth. One misses here the broad-leaved trees of humid lands. Instead, a sparse and stunted growth, thick-leaved and thorny, gives a monotonous tone to the landscape. Sagebrush in the north, creosote bush in the south are dominant, but mesquite and smoke tree, yucca, and cacti add interesting forms in the southern desert.

Lacking a verdant arboreal cover, the barren land forms are bold and sharply outlined against the horizon. General elevation is high, and the surface is broken by prominent ranges, often parallel, and isolated craggy buttes. Mountain blocks enclose trough-like basins onto whose sandy floors temporary streams drain from the surrounding highlands. Sharp, near-vertical slopes enclose the basins, such as the 11,000 foot scarp from Mount Whitney to Owens Valley, or the even more precipitious drop from Telescope Peak (11,045 feet) in the Panamints to the sink at Bad Water (minus 280 feet) on the floor of Death Valley.

The California desert is only the western part of the large region known to early pathfinders and fortune hunters as the "Great American Desert." Few were the travelers who chose to remain in this forbidding land. Not until the considerable mineral wealth was discovered did mining draw a small and transitory population. Gold and silver are still mined while copper, lead, zinc, tungsten, and vanadium total an appreciable percentage of the State's metal production. The recovery and refining of salines—borax, potash, soda, and salt—is an industry which supports several communities: Trona on Searles Lake flat, and Boron in the western Mojave Desert.

One might least expect to find intensive agriculture in such a natural environment as has been pictured. Yet crop production is the great industry of the southern valleys. Where water can be procured, the desert blossoms, for the unleached soils are generally fertile. Pumped water, from underground accumulations, is utilized in the alfalfa fields of Antelope Valley and the date groves and vegetable gardens in the Coachella Valley.

In areas where it is feasible to secure water from streams whose sources tap high mountains, agriculture is favored. Such an areas is Imperial Valley, southernmost of desert California's crop producing districts. Its winter lettuce and early summer melons are marketed in Atlantic seaboard cities, while hay, grain, dairy produce, flax, grapes, and vegetables find ready market in nearby Los Angeles. The recently completed All-American Canal functions, as did the predecessor ditch, as the life line of Imperial Valley in carrying water from the Colorado River. Future extensions will increase the irrigable area in the Imperial Valley, America's largest irrigation district, and will also carry water to Coachella Valley, northwest of the Imperial. The Coachella and Imperial Valleys, centering on the Salton sea, contain the largest concentration of population found in the California desert area, and support large market towns such as Indio, Brawley, El Centro, and Calexico.

Capitalizing on the natural features that impart individuality, the desert is rapidly becoming a winter recreation area. The grandeur of its stark landscape under changing lights and colors, warm sunny winter days, absence of severe storms are features that attract pleasure seekers to Death Valley, Twentynine Palms, and Palm Springs. Desert tourism is related also to the close proximity of the southern resert to metropolitan Los Angeles and to the fine system of highways connecting the two regions.

Southern California

Southern California exhibits features of all the other regions of the State. It is probably best known, least understood, and certainly the most complex geographically. Its area is smallest, its population largest, and it contains the West's biggest city. Essentially the region is a coastal plain backed by high mountains. Its coast line is long. Climate is Mediterranean in type—mild sunny winters with occasional rainy periods of short duration, and warm, rainless summers

Differentiated from the northern and central Coast Ranges by direction of mountain trend and arrangement of valleys, the mountains are so arranged as to create a semicircular rampart on the north and east, separating Southern California from the desert in the rear. The mountain barrier lies north of the region in the vicinity of Santa Barbara eastward to Los Angeles, and east of the Riverside-San Diego Area. Mountains thus enclose the lowland and fend off, somewhat, the low winter temperatures of the interior More important is the heavier precipitation their elevation produces (5,000 to 11,000 feet). They are significant sources of water which accumulates in underground basins, and also of small streams that cross the plain

The lowland stretching from mountain base to the sea is discontinuous, divided and subdivided into many valleys by low mountains and unfolded hills. These were the valleys—San Fernando, San Gabriel, San Bernardino and many more—that became early centers of agriculture, and are now becoming suburban appendages of growing metropolitan centers such as Los Angeles and San Diego.

Agriculture in California dates from the plant introduction and crop production begun in 1769 by the mission fathers, in fertile coastal valleys After the disestablishment of the missions, agriculture languished Cattle and sheep raising became the almost exclusive activity on the vast ranchos, supplying hides and wool to traders who carried on a desultory commerce during the thirities and forties. But severe and long-continued drought eventually wiped out the industry. The American conquest, the break up of large land holdings, expanding population and, particularly, the building of railroads brought about an economic revolution in Southern California Increased local demand for farm produce, extension of irrigation, introduction of new crops such as citrus fruits and their export to eastern markets transformed agriculture By the turn of the century, farm production was the leading source of income, and it still maintains a high place in spite of the expansion of industry. Looking down upon the coastal plain from vantage points in the mountains, a vast irregular checker board of irrigated green—orchards, vineyards, gardens—covers the lowland. Tawny gashes reveal the channels of dry washes and sandy stream beds winding toward the sea. We must bear in mind that the vast agricultural production of Southern California is supported, except for a few dry-farmed crops, by artificial applications of water, irrigation.

The decade 1910-20 saw great changes Industry and trade expanded enormously in tempo and output The opening of the Panama Canal in 1915 stimulated West Coast commerce Improvements in the harbors of San Diego and Los Angeles increased their ability to handle the expanding trade. Petroleum production in the Los Angeles and Ventura Fields was accelerated, contributing eventually to the major tonnage export from Los Angeles. Continuing population increase enlarged local demands for manufacturers and furnished a labor supply for industries. Today the production of airplanes, motion pictures, automobiles, tires, furniture, and clothing ranks high in a long list of manufactured items. From stock raising to intensive agriculture, to industry and trade, economic development spans barely a century

Tourism is a long-established business in Southern California Following the completion of the two transcontinental railroads in 1885, winter visitors began to arrive. Large hotels were built and recreation was organized Climate and the natural beauty of the area are still potent attractions, and in recent years Hollywood has provided additional lure.

Conclusion

The writer has taken advantage of the geographical diversity of California to demonstrate a method of approach in considering the geography of a state Obviously the regions do not function independently any more than California functions apart from the states comprising the larger Pacific Coast region or the western United States. Synthesis must follow the analysis. Each region must be considered in its relation to all the others, as well as to the whole area involved. When the whole is viewed in relation to its parts, unity emerges from diversity, the resultant of mutual interactions.

In addition to the above geographical breakdown of the State, the committee endeavored to ascertain where the nebulous north-south dividing line should be placed, if indeed such a line could be validly drawn. For that purpose the committee resorted to a study of the administrative breakdowns of the various departments of the State of California. Reference was made to the administrative arrangements of business organizations, and assistance was received from the U. S. Government as to the manner in which they allocated the counties north and south. With the single exception of the gas tax law, there was no provision in the state statutes indicating which counties should be considered north as against south.

The following table incorporates the population data as released to us by the Bureau of Census, and this population data has been apportioned pursuant to the above cited studies as indicated therein.

SOCIO-ECONOMIC FACTORS

In addition to geographical differences between areas of the State, such other factors as cultural and economic differences are significant to the reapportionment process In one section the influence of Spanish origins might be high; in another, negligible. In one section the population might be sparse and located in scattered and relatively small communities; in another, dense and concentrated in huge cities. In one section agriculture might be the principal economic activity; in another, manufacturing, recreation, lumbering, fishing, mining, etc. These socio-economic factors are a part of the pattern of population and geography. They need to be viewed as a part of that pattern. They are just examples of the many tangible and intangible things that hold a community together and make it identifiable.

Perhaps one of the best illustrations given to the interim committee of the place of a socio-economic approach was the prepared keynote statement of the Redwood Empire Association delegation arguing in behalf of a First Congressional District composed of Marin, Sonoma, Napa,

Lake, Mendocino, Humboldt and Del Norte Counties. The statement was made at the subcommittee hearing in San Francisco on February 26, 1951. It reads in part as follows:

"The following 7 Northbay Counties, by resolution of respective Boards of Supervisors, and supporting organizations and groups therein, respectfully request that said counties be established as a new Congressional District: Marin—Sonoma—Napa—Lake—Mendocino—Humboldt—Del Norte.

"Population total for these 7 Counties qualifies the area for a Congressional District, namely: Marin—84,739; Sonoma—102,685; Napa—46,373; Lake—11,380; Mendocino—39,996; Humboldt—67,848; Del Norte—8,027. Grand Total—361,048.

"These 7 Counties comprise a natural geographic area—agriculturally, industrially, touristwise; in terms of water and timber and other natural resources; in terms of integrated highway and transportation systems in every other way.

"People of these counties are united; their interests are mutual; their internal solidarity is complete—as testified by resolutions and other documents to be submitted by witnesses representing these counties (and organizations therein), today.

"People in these counties have been working together, for mutual benefit, in the public interest, for over 30 years— as participants in their non-profit Redwood Empire Association. They will continue to do so for many years to come."

It was in support of these arguments for a First Congressional District—population, geographic and socio-economic—that State Senator Nathan F. Coombs wrote the interim committee: "This district is a natural, if there ever was one."

Socio-economic factors are important in drawing district lines for whole regions or counties. They also may apply within counties. Application of some of these factors in an argument on a county problem is illustrated by a resolution filed with the interim committee by the San Joaquin County Citizens Reapportionment Committee:

"WHEREAS, The people of San Joaquin County are vitally interested in being fairly and adequately represented in the Assembly of the State of California, and whereas the population of the County of San Joaquin is about equally divided between rural and agricultural and urban and industrial groups, each with conflicting legislative interests; and

"WHEREAS, The diversified population with its attendant conflict of interest has been fairly represented by two Assemblymen comprising the 11th and 12th districts; and since it is not possible for one Assemblyman properly to represent all of the people of San Joaquin County; now therefore

"Be it resolved by the San Joaquin County Citizens Reapportionment Committee * * * that it is necessary to have two Assemblymen for San Joaquin County, one representing the metropolitan Stockton area, and the other the balance of San Joaquin County."

The socio-economic patterns of heavily populated urban counties are the most difficult to measure. Los Angeles is the most heavily populated county. It is the most complicated. Some 185 named places go to make up what is called Los Angeles. Many of these are cohesive enough to be designated as communities and to be described as having some peculiar community interests and needs.

One of the best works on socio-economic patterns in Los Angeles County is Eshref Shevky and Marilyn Williams, The Social Areas of Los Angeles (Berkeley: University of California Press, 1949). A condensed and nontechnical version of this book was published by the Haynes Foundation of Los Angeles in the same year.

As a part of his work Shevky prepared a map showing population distribution in Los Angeles in the following categories: first, industrial; second, residential occupied; and third, unoccupied areas. The study was based on 1940 census figures. Committee staff attempted to make estimates to up-to-date the developments of the 10-year period from 1940 to 1950. Also available in the study was a map of the 185 named places in Los Angeles County. Keyed into it was data which analyzed the population of the named places in terms of its level of social rank, level of urbanization, and degree of segregation. In view of the fact that this data was also based on 1940 population, committee staff attempted to roughly estimate major changes since 1940.

To say that such information as provided by the sociologist and economist should be the only factor in reapportionment would be ridiculous. However, to say that socio-economic factors should have no influence would be equally ridiculous. They need be made a part of the population-geography pattern.

In the early days of the development of the representative system, before the industrial revolution's impact shattered the very close unity of the community, it was relatively easy for one man to represent and be a part of the same set of interests as almost all of the people in his community. It is still desirable to strive for homogeneous representative districts—the kind of district of which a representative can be a part, and of which he can have a real understanding. Presumably, however, there is a point beyond which this theory should not be carried. If a representative doesn't have to worry about satisfying some degree of differences within his district, he may tend to become so dogmatic and uncompromising that he would clog up the legislative process of give-and-take. An entire legislative body composed of such members would hardly be desirable. At the other extreme is a district that literally rips—by violent and opposite pulls—its representative apart, then defeats him after one term, repeats the process on the next incumbent, and the next, etc. Both extremes are equally undesirable. Some point in middle ground is desirable.

DESIRES OF THE PEOPLE

Geographic features might appear to have one effect as they are observed on a map. The important thing, however, is to check with the persons who live on, in or around a geographic feature to determine what its actual effect is on the people concerned. Socio-economic factors might appear to exist and appear to have certain effects on communities. Here again, only by checking with the persons who are a part of a socio-economic complex can one determine whether factors actually exist and what might be their effects. The persons who know a community, county or region best are the persons who live there. The interim committee, therefore, attempted to stimulate interest in reapportionment, and to learn the desires of people and their organizations.

The initial step on the part of the committee in the performance of its work was to request that the state chairman of each political party appoint a representative group to work with the committee. At each subsequent meeting of the committee dealing with reapportionment the chairman was again notified and invited to sit with the committee and participate in the discussions.

During the early fall of 1950, the chairman of the interim committee sent letters to the mayor of every city in California, all the county boards of supervisors, the county chairmen of the political parties, all the elected representatives in the Legislature and the California delegation to the Congress, labor organizations, chambers of commerce—a total mailing list of about 800 persons and organizations. The letters advised them that the decennial reapportionment problem would be considered in the 1951 Regular Session of the Legislature, and suggested that if they were interested in the subject and in making recommendations thereon, they might well begin studying the problem.

In response to these notices, numerous communities, counties and regional associations set up committees and put them to work. One of the best examples of a city-wide reapportionment committee was the subcommittee on reapportionment of the San Diego City Chamber of Commerce. Five of the 24 members were attorneys, six had some connection with newspapers, one was the chairman of the San Diego County Democratic Central Committee, one was a member of the State Democratic Central Committee, one was the chairman of the San Diego County Republican Central Committee, three were incumbent Assemblymen, one was an incumbent State Senator, three were ex-Assemblymen, one was an ex-Senator, one was the city assessor, and other occupations listed were bank manager, rancher, and resort manager. This committee met and studied over a period of several months, and after completing its work made a recommendation for the San Diego assembly and congressional district patterns.

Some counties set up county-wide reapportionment committees such as Imperial County's Reapportionment Committee, composed of representatives of the Associated Chamber of Commerce, Board of Supervisors, Imperial Irrigation District, Farm Bureau, and other interested groups or individuals.

The next example may be drawn from the opposite section of the State—the coastal counties of the Northbay area. The drive to make the new First Congressional District up of Del Norte, Humboldt, Mendocino, Sonoma, Marin, Napa and Lake Counties was spearheaded by a regional organization, the Redwood Empire Association, working in cooperation with county, city and civic organizations in the area.

The letters sent to the above listed officials and interested parties were similar in content to the copies included hereafter on page 6784.

In addition, there was included in each letter Sections 6 and 27 of Article IV of the California State Constitution, which sections relate to reapportionment.

Prior to the series of five subcommittee meetings running from February 19th through February 27th in San Diego, Los Angeles, Fresno, San Francisco and Sacramento, the chairman of the interim committee again wrote to all mayors, boards of supervisors, city clerks, Members of the Assembly, State Senate and congressional delegation from California announcing the meetings. A press release stating the background of the reapportionment problem and the purpose of the hearings was attached to each letter.

December 2, 1950

DEAR SIR: During the next regular session of the California Legislature we will be required by law to reapportion all of the assembly and congressional districts in the State of California. The problem, this time, has added significance in that California stands to gain seven additional congressional seats.

It is the earnest desire of the Committee on Elections and Reapportionment that the final redistricting reflect the studied opinion of as many interested parties as possible so that the best possible results may be achieved for the State of California. In view of your position, it is felt that you may care to express an opinion on this subject.

May I, therefore, suggest that you discuss the various aspects of this problem with your congressman, state senator and assemblyman, who are already familiar with the fundamental law involved and the basic population figures with which we are concerned, and forward your conclusions to:

Interim Committee on Elections and Reapportionment
Suite 621, Roosevelt Building
727 West Seventh Street
Los Angeles 17, California.

It will be of material assistance to the committee if you will submit your recommendations on a map of the area having attached thereto your reasons in support We ask that you return your recommendations at the earliest possible moment so that the committee may consider them prior to the commencement of the regular session of the Legislature.

Should you have any questions please call upon us.

Very truly yours,
(Signed)

LAUGHLIN E. WATERS

February 9, 1951

GENTLEMEN You will note from the enclosed release that a series of meetings will be held throughout the State on the subject of reapportionment

Of greatest value to the committee will be the following information: 1 A large map of your area showing assembly and congressional districts (the map to be large enough to be used for demonstration purposes at the hearing); 2 A map, accompanied by supporting data, which will show population distribution within the county down to the smallest units for which such data is available; 3. A brief supporting explanation of the population map by the county planning commissioner or such other person as may be designated.

Should you desire to participate in the hearings in your area, advance notice to the office of the committee, attention Mr Joseph R. Donovan, Executive Secretary, Room 430, Roosevelt Building, 727 West Seventh Street, Los Angeles 17, California, would be of material assistance in the preparation of an agenda.

Sincerely yours,
(Signed)

LAUGHLIN E. WATERS

(Release)

February 7, 1951

Chairman Laughlin E Waters of the Assembly Interim Committee on Elections and Reapportionment today announced a series of five meetings to be held throughout the State concerning the redistricting of assembly and congressional districts as required by the California Constitution following each federal decennial census. The purpose of these meetings is to provide an opportunity for interested citizens and groups to present their recommendations for subsequent study by the committee and consideration by the Legislature. It was pointed out that final determination of the new district lines cannot be settled until the Legislature reconvenes March 12, 1951. The committee is particularly desirous of receiving accurate data on population distribution within counties. Studied and informed opinion concerning recommendations for the redistricting and the arguments in support thereof, preferably in documentary form, for inclusion in the committee files will be welcomed by the committee. Of particular value to the committee will be the preparation of maps which graphically illustrate these recommendations.

The meetings will be held on the following dates in the following places:

February 19 ---------- San Diego
February 21 ---------- Los Angeles
February 23 ---------- Fresno
February 26 ---------- San Francisco
February 27 ---------- Sacramento

Please consult your local newspaper for exact hour and place at which the meeting is to be held.

In addition to these mass mailings, there were numerous individual letters to organizations and persons who might desire to participate.

The five hearings were held—San Diego, February 19, 1950; Los Angeles, February 21st; Fresno, February 23d; San Francisco, February 26th; and Sacramento, February 27th. Many assemblymen and senators from the areas in which the hearings were held attended each session. The hearings were public. Anyone who desired to testify, either for an organization or for himself as a citizen, was given an opportunity to be heard. A digest of the proceedings at each hearing is in a following section of this report.

Newspapers can be of particular value in reapportionment Not only do they report news of local reapportionment committee meetings and developments, but through their editorial columns they may often express significant community attitudes on the reapportionment problems of the papers' circulation area. In order to tap this source of information about the desires of the people, the interim committee engaged Allen's Press Clipping Bureau for coverage of reapportionment news and editorials throughout the press of the State.

DESIRES OF THE ELECTED REPRESENTATIVES

One school of thought would hold that the incumbent officeholders have no right to take an interest in what happens to their assembly, state senate, or congressional district. This is the "to hell with local politicians school." It may assume the reapportionment process operates in a vacuum with no pulling and hauling pressures affecting it, or that it stands still long enough for the artist drawing the districts to first whisk his paint brush over one part of a map, then another, and finally settle on a third spot to which some fancy leads him. Neither situation occurs in real life.

The pulling and hauling is constant, and to expect to set up a static situation is to invite an explosion.

The "anti-politician" school of thought may assume that the collective opinion of the Legislature is basely motivated because of the personal interests of members, and, therefore, should not be allowed to contaminate a reapportionment bill. Yet, the United States has a representative plan of government. Political representatives are elected by the people. Incumbent representatives have been interested enough to run for office in the first place to overcome the inertia forces that continue to hold down the rest of the citizenry. Is it not, therefore, reasonable to assume that a legislator should be concerned about his district—its location, its composition, and his possibilities of being returned to office from it?

The strictly "idealistic" interpretation of American government and of the framing of the Constitution of the United States—the idea that the framers of the Constitution at Philadelphia in 1787 were motivated only by an intangible idealism—fell before the competent researches of the late Charles Beard (The Economic Interpretation of the Constitution, 1913) and many others. Generally accepted is the idea that the framers were men motivated by a combination of idealism and interest in their state, community, group or self. That is a premise upon which representative government has to operate.

The interim committee took the position that it was concerned about the desires of Assemblymen, State Senators and Congressmen. It took steps to attempt to learn those desires. These elected representatives were included on the mailing list for the notification letters, and also on the mailing list for the announcements for the hearings. A high percentage of Assemblymen and State Senators either participated in or sat as observers at the hearings. A high percentage of Assemblymen, State Senators and Congressmen indicated their desires about district boundary lines in letters or telegrams to the interim committee. A high percentage of these and other representatives communicated directly with the chairman of the interim committee in conversations with him. The chairman traveled to Washington, D. C., to discuss reapportionment problems with members of the California congressional delegation representative of both major political parties.

For working on the most complicated part of the reapportionment bill, the assembly districts for Los Angeles County, both Democrats and Republicans alike had an opportunity, in session with the other Assemblymen bordering on their districts, to attempt to work out agreements, within the general principles or standards guiding reapportionment, satisfactory to all concerned. Similar procedures were followed in some of the other sections of the State; they varied in others.

Reapportionment bills would be passed only if approved by a minimum of 41 yes votes in the 80 member Assembly, 21 yes votes in the 40 member State Senate, and the Governor.[5] No reapportionment bill could or should be drafted without reference to this fact.

POLITICAL FACTORS

Political data will be used in any reapportionment process. It may be the rule-of-the-thumb type of data known or guessed by individuals, or a more "scientifically" developed set of data attempting to show the significant political patterns of a state. Committee staff attempted to develop techniques for accomplishing the latter objective.

Generally, the campaign and election of Thomas Jefferson in 1800 is the historic point set as marking the rise of the influence of political parties in United States politics. By 1812, the United States already had a word for the influence of its political parties in the reapportionment process—"gerrymandering." Governor Elbridge Gerry's Jeffersonian Republican majority in the Massachusetts Legislature districted the state in a manner that worked to the advantage of the majority political party and to the disadvantage of the Federalists. The South Essex District looked like a lizard in shape. An artist is credited with adding a head, claws and a tail. It now looked like a salamander. A Federalist editor referred to the result as a "Gerrymander rather." The "gerrymander" has stuck, and has become an accepted part of American vocabulary.

The idea of the gerrymander is to spread the majority of the dominant party as broadly as possible, and to create districts that secure an advantage to one political party. In common usage, the term gerrymander has almost come to mean any political influence that comes to bear on the results of the reapportionment process.

It is standard procedure for the party out of office to apply the term gerrymander to a reapportionment performed by the party which has a majority when the reapportionment is accomplished. That is not strange, because the reapportionment process is, by its very nature, political. Political factors enter into every reapportionment, whether in California or any of the 47 other states. They entered the process before Gerry's time, and they are a part of it today. Politics is there when a legislature redistricts its own districts or the congressional districts of a state. It would be there if the California Reapportionment Commission acted instead of the Legislature. It would be there if the job were done by the Governor, or by the people voting on the subject in a popular election. There will be politics in reapportionment as long as a representative form of government exists and regardless of which political party is in power; the only question is the question of degree—how much politics? A corollary question must follow—to what extent have the political influences operated within the standards set down in the United States Constitution, Federal Statutes, and the California Constitution?

It is impossible to draw a district boundary line without that line's having some political significance. In order that members of the Legislature could have political data available at the time reapportionment decisions were being made, committee staff prepared voter registration and 1950 election data. Total registered voters, Democratic registrations and Republican registrations were obtained for each metropolitan precinct in the State. Also, by precinct, committee staff analyzed the results of the 1950 general election races for the offices of Governor, U. S. Senator and Attorney General. Summaries of the data were colored in on precinct maps of the metropolitan areas of the State.

LEGAL RESTRICTIONS

The legal restrictions [6] applying to reapportionment in California in 1951 may be summarized from the "Legal Background" sections of this report as follows:

1. There are no provisions in the United States Constitution to tell the Legislature of California how it must reapportion congressional or legislative districts;
2. There are no standards in federal law to tell the Legislature of California how it must reapportion congressional or legislative districts; and
3. The limitations imposed on the Legislature in the Constitution of California have already been summarized on pp. 29 (congressional districts) and 31 (assembly and state senate districts) of this report. Congressional districts are most affected by the requirement that within counties, no assembly district may be divided in forming a congressional district; assembly and senate districts, by the emphasis placed on observing county lines.

DIGEST OF FIVE PUBLIC HEARINGS HELD BY SUBCOMMITTEE OF THE ASSEMBLY INTERIM COMMITTEE ON ELECTIONS AND REAPPORTIONMENT

Five public hearings were held in five of the key cities of different geographical areas of California All of the members of the sub-committee—Waters, Chairman, Coats, Conrad, Hawkins and Stanley were present at all of the hearings. State Senator Fred Weybret represented the Senate. The chairman of the subcommittee opened each meeting with a preliminary statement outlining the reapportionment problem and requesting the views of everyone interested in or concerned about the reapportionment process.

THE SAN DIEGO HEARING

February 19, 1951—Chamber of Commerce Building

For San Diego County

James Archer, Chairman of the Special Committee to Study Reapportionment of the San Diego Chamber of Commerce, outlined the position of his committee. On the basis of population, San Diego County is entitled to a fourth assembly seat. The method of allocation of an additional assembly seat, however, had not yet been finally determined. There was general agreement that the two San Diego City Assembly Districts—the 78th and 79th—should remain substantially as presently constituted. Two major proposals were being considered for dividing the Eightieth Assembly District—the remainder of San Diego County—into two assembly districts. One would divide the Eightieth District in such a manner as to have one assembly district adjacent to Orange County on the northwest, and another adjacent to Riverside County on the northeast and Imperial County on the east. If the Seventy-eighth and Seventy-ninth Assembly Districts were made into a congressional district, this plan might enable San Diego County to also share in two other congressional districts—one San Diego assembly district with Orange County, and another San Diego assembly district with Riverside and Imperial Counties. The second proposal would create one assembly district in a sort of half-moon suburban shape around the City of San Diego on the south, east and north; the other district, then, to cover the remainder of the county. Under the second proposal, known as the Cloyed plan, only one assembly district in San Diego County would be adjacent to Orange, Riverside or Imperial Counties and therefore joinable to them to form a congressional district.

Archer stated that his committee, though opinion had not been unanimous, hoped to achieve the following congressional seat distribution: first, one congressional district for the two assembly districts within the City of San Diego; second, the joining of a northern San Diego County assembly district with the two assembly districts in Orange County to form a second congressional district; and third, the joining of a south and east San Diego County assembly district with Riverside and Imperial Counties to form a third. He knew there was some opposition in north San Diego County to this proposal by those who feared Orange County would dominate such a congressional district; and, very little opposition in east San Diego County to a Riverside-Imperial link.

Freeman J. Durgin, President of the Northern San Diego County Associated Chambers of Commerce, suggested the Eightieth Assembly District be divided by a line drawn from east to west across the county. He also stated a preference for being joined in a congressional district with Riverside and Imperial Counties rather than Orange County. Assemblyman Ralph Cloyed argued against an east to west line on the ground that it would split too many cities and communities, especially if the line were run down the middle of U. S. Highway 80. The Cattlemen's Association of California had passed a resolution urging the Legislature to set up agricultural districts which would not run into metropolitan areas, in order that agricultural areas might better have agricultural representation. Cloyed suggested his suburban plan would accomplish this objective. It would, he also thought, result in a better balance between the two major political parties. Max McComas, member of the Oceanside City Council, testified his organization had voted to support the Cloyed plan.

Assemblyman Frank Luckel endorsed the Archer committee report as far as his Seventy-eighth Assembly District was concerned, as did Assemblywoman Kathryn Nichouse for the 79th. Others who made brief statements or answered questions, but not directly on the subject of assembly or congressional districts, were: O. P. Heald, Fallbrook Chamber of Commerce; Estelle Henderson, Chairman of the San Diego Rural Property League; Robert Garland, Carlsbad Chamber of Commerce; James Sutton, Vista Chamber of Commerce; and Vincent Whelan, Chairman of the San Diego County Democratic Central Committee and also a member of the Archer committee.

For Orange County

State Senator Clyde Watson, Orange County, Thirty-fifth Senatorial District, backed the proposal to attach a north San Diego County assembly district to the two assembly districts in Orange County to form a congressional district. He denied the charge that Orange County would seek to dominate such a district. Orange County certainly had not dominated the Orange-Riverside-Imperial District as it presently exists. He felt the north San Diego County coastal area and coastal Orange County had much in common in their agricultural and tourist industries. Glenn McCloud, Chairman of the Republican Central Committee of Orange County, took the same position as Senator Watson. Fred Earl, Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange County, approved the plan, and stated he knew the Orange County Farm Bureau also approved.

For Imperial County

Harry C. James, Chairman of the Reapportionment Committee of the Imperial County Farm Bureau and a member of the County Reapportionment Committee composed of representatives of the Associated Chambers of Commerce, Board of Supervisors, Imperial Irrigation District, and the Farm Bureau, was the spokesman for a group from Imperial County. He favored a congressional district pattern of Riverside and Imperial Counties in one district, Orange County and one San Diego County County assembly districts in the third congressional district. Although a assembly district in another congressional district, and three San Diego

Riverside-Imperial congressional district might be low in population, he was of the opinion it was a more difficult type of area to represent. He saw great similarities between San Diego and Orange Counties and contrasted them with Riverside and Imperial Counties with the latter's special "interior" water and agriculture problems. Imperial County wanted to stay away from affiliation with any assembly district that included coastal areas such as the San Diego plan contemplated. A letter from Congressman John Phillips, Orange-Riverside-Imperial, Twenty-second District, was referred to, and the congressman's position was stated to be in favor of a Riverside-Imperial District, chiefly on the ground that it was too difficult for him to cover a larger area.

General Statements

Herbert Kline, LaJolla, and speaking as a citizen, said he had talked to many in Riverside and Imperial Counties, and that many had no objection to tying in with San Diego on a congressional district. He reiterated the idea that San Diego was not trying to dominate other counties, but was only interested in equitable representation. He stated further, San Diego was more interested in being tied to Riverside and Imperial Counties than Orange County because of mutual interests in water sources, many instances of persons in the two counties owning property in the other, road interests, and San Diego harbor use by the inland counties. He felt a Riverside-Imperial-San Diego combination would result in the fairest population balance.

Carlyle Reed, editor of the El Cajon Valley News and a member of the Archer committee, had noticed two of the maps submitted at the hearing had cut El Cajon into two different districts. He didn't mind El Cajon's being placed in either a northern or southern assembly district, but he did say the community would object violently to being split. Franklin Barnes, member of the Archer committee, made a general statement.

THE LOS ANGELES HEARING
February 21, 1951—State Building

For San Bernardino County

Joseph J. Kelly, Chairman of the Republican Central Committee of San Bernardino County, stated that after study of the problem by a special reapportionment committee, his organization endorsed the following recommendations: first, no change in the present Seventy-second Assembly District; and second, drop the Los Angeles County Forty-first Assembly District from the Twenty-first Congressional District so as to give San Bernardino County its own congressional district. He argued such action on congressional districts was warranted because San Bernardino County had adequate population, and it was primarily interested in citrus and mining industries while the Forty-first Assembly District is mostly agricultural.

Hobart Alter, citizen of San Bernardino County, supported Kelly's position.

For Los Angeles County

Fred L. Boone, citizen of the Forty-fifth Assembly District, asked to have the 45th moved to the west rather than the south in the event it had to be enlarged. He wanted the 45th to remain in the Thirteenth Congressional District. Mrs. Lee Beaude, a citizen of Westchester area, argued for a new congressional district with Inglewood at the hub and including Westchester and Culver City. Franklin Lowney, Manager of the Burbank Chamber of Commerce, asked that any revision of congressional districts keep in mind the geographical limitations of the San Fernando Valley with such communities as Glendale, North Hollywood, etc., having almost identical interests. Mrs. Rhea Stockwell, member of the Los Angeles County Republican Central Committee from the Forty-second Assembly District, asked removal of La Crescenta from the Forty-second Assembly District to the 48th. Her principal reason was that unincorporated areas such as La Crescenta would have a better chance for representation in the Forty-eighth District because it is composed largely of unincorporated territories.

Horace B. Alexander, representing the Independent Progressive Party, presented a plan for redrawing the Fourteenth Congressional District to make it more possible for the representative from that district to be representative of the lower economic bracket and large numbers of minority groups. A. S. Takei, also of the I.P.P., elaborated on Alexander's statements suggesting that their plan met all the requirements for a new congressional district. Mrs. Ethel Bryant, member of the Los Angeles County Democratic Central Committee from the Sixty-second District, stated Negroes were not interested in the racial angle, but rather in good laws and good men, whatever their color.

William R. Walker, representing the City Council of Long Beach, requested a Long Beach congressional district composed of Long Beach, Signal Hill, and Lakewood. Robert Wilkinson, President of the San Fernando Young Republicans, suggested the San Fernando Valley was really three communities—Burbank, North Hollywood and Van Nuys—and he wanted Van Nuys to be included in any district set up in the west end of the San Fernando Valley.

The following Los Angeles County Assemblymen were called upon for statements: Montivel A. Burke, 53d Assembly District; Ernest R. Geddes, 49th; William S. Grant, 70th; Patrick D. McGee, 64th; Carley V. Porter, 69th; and Albert I. Stewart, 47th. Except for a few brief comments, none of them made statements or recommendations. Assemblyman Everett G. Burkhalter, Los Angeles, Forty-second Assembly District, pointed to his large 450,000-person Forty-second District and discussed possible allocations of his territory to other districts. He noted the Glendale-Burbank problem, the alternative that Burbank might have to be split, and the feeling in Burbank against any such split. He suggested that factions in the valley had not yet been able to agree. Speaking of the Forty-first Assembly District, Burkhalter suggested many in the district had expressed a desire to be separated from the San Bernardino County Twenty-first Congressional District.

Assemblyman Frank Lanterman, Los Angeles, Forty-eighth District, introduced Russell Stapleton, a citizen of the Forty-eighth Assembly District. Stapleton read a telegram from Congressman Carl Hinshaw, Los Angeles, Twentieth Congressional District, which read as follows: "Would like to retain in my congressional district, territory bounded by the present Forty-third, Forty-seventh and Forty-eighth Assembly Districts at least. Carl Hinshaw." Stapleton asked the Forty-eighth District to be continued as a part of the Twentieth Congressional District. Assemblyman Lanterman concurred in Congressman Hinshaw's request, and asked that the Forty-eighth stay in the Twentieth. If that was not possible, he suggested the Forty-eighth's relationships with the San Gabriel Valley would make it best to have it included in the Twelfth Congressional District.

For Ventura County

Lester A. Price, chairman of the Board of Supervisors of Ventura County, recommended for inclusion in the Eleventh Congressional District the Counties of Ventura, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and Monterey—just as they are at the present time. Ventura County did not want, he said, to be taken out of the Eleventh Congressional District and thrown in with a San Fernando Valley Assembly District in Los Angeles County. If that happened, he felt Ventura County would lose its identity.

For Santa Barbara County

Mr. Steward, speaking for the Santa Barbara County Board of Supervisors, agreed with Mr. Price's statement on keeping the Eleventh Congressional District as it is, especially keeping Ventura, Santa Barbara and San Luis Obispo Counties together. He pointed to similarities of interests of the three counties and resultant simplicity of the problem of representing them. Assemblyman Stanley T. Tomlinson, Santa Barbara County, Thirty-seventh District, strongly supported Mr Price. He felt it would be most disastrous to trample any part of the district in response to pressure from any direction.

THE FRESNO HEARING

February 23, 1951—Courtroom, District Court of Appeals

For Fresno County

Mr. Lohse, of the Fresno County Chamber of Commerce, presented a population map of Fresno County prepared by his organization, working in cooperation with the Fresno County Planning Commission.

Both Fresno County Assemblymen, William Hansen (Thirty-fifth District) and Wallace Henderson (Thirty-fourth District) favored the retention of the present assembly district lines of the two Fresno County Assembly Districts. Henderson said both Democrats and Republicans agreed, also, it would be necessary to lose Stanislaus County from the Ninth Congressional District. Hansen suggested a new Congressional District containing Fresno, Madera and Merced Counties.

Roy Harnish, representing the Fresno County Republican Central Committee, also felt the congressional district should include Fresno, Madera and Merced Counties. If Stanislaus County wanted to remain in the 9th District, however, in spite of its similarity of interests with San Joaquin County, he would be glad to have it continue to be a part of the district. Lucius Powers, Secretary of the Fresno County Republican Central Committee and a former member of the Legislature, preferred to see the congressional district remain as it is. If that were not possible, then it should be replaced with Fresno, Madera and Merced Counties. He recalled how in the 1931 Session there had been deadlock over four months on reapportionment bills, and he hoped that wouldn't happen again.

Although State Senator Hugh Burns, Fresno, Thirtieth District, preferred a Fresno, Madera and Merced Congressional District, he suggested it would not be impossible to include Kings County instead of Merced if the people of those counties favored such an arrangement. Mrs. Iva Blank, vice-chairman of the Fresno County Democratic Central Committee, said he organization felt a Fresno, Madera and Kings County District would be more satisfactory. That combination would better meet the population requirements. It would be based around the large City of Fresno at the geographic center with smaller population centers scattered around it rather than the arrangement of the old Ninth or proposed Fresno-Madera-Merced District, which would string the population centers out in a line up the center of the valley. She saw Kings County as better meeting the similarity of interest qualifications with its cotton and grape production in common with Fresno and Madera Counties, its oil fields in common with Fresno, and Fresno and Madera's joint interests in large areas of the Sierra-Nevada Mountains. In the event a district with Kings County was impossible, Mrs Blank's second choice was to include Merced. Merrill J. Kikkel, citizen of Fresno, discussed the general socio-economic problems involved in representation for a Fresno Congressional District. His statement was in agreement with Mrs. Blank in the way counties should be included in such district.

Ross Thomson, citizen of Fresno, made a statement against any attempt to join Fresno with any of the mountain counties to the east on the ground that geographically and economically such an arrangement would not be logical.

For Kern County

Philip Wagy, representing the Kern County Chamber of Commerce and a member of the Kern County Republican Central Committee special committee for study of reapportionment, suggested Kern County should be entitled to two assembly seats because it has the necessary population, because it is the second largest county in area in the State, and because it is divided into two parts by the Sierra Nevada Mountains. East of the Sierra Nevadas the interests are stock raising, mining, and military installations; west, agriculture and oil. He felt it was becoming increasingly difficult for one assemblyman to represent the entire county. Although he felt Kern County should have two assemblymen, he did not suggest how or where the line between the two assembly districts should be drawn.

Wagy also suggested Kern County should be entitled to a congressional district of its own. If that is not possible, he suggested continuing the present Tenth Congressional District or some combination of Kern, Kings and Tulare Counties as a reasonably homogeneous unit in which geographic and industrial features did not vary too greatly from one county to another. As a third choice, Kern County might be joined to Ventura County because the two would have much in common with agriculture and oil industries in spite of the mountain range separating them. Wagy definitely opposed joining Kern County to northern Los Angeles County to form a congressional district.

Norbert Baumgarten, also representing the Kern County Chamber of Commerce, agreed with Wagy's statement. He added, however, one more reason why Kern County should gain an assemblyman—Kern County had gone underrepresented for 10 years since the 1941 reapportionment. At that time, Kern County ranked ninth in population, San Joaquin County 10th and Orange County 11th. Both San Joaquin and Orange Counties got two assemblymen; Kern County, only one.

State Senator Jess Dorsey, Kern County, Thirty-fourth District, was introduced but made no statement. Assemblyman H. W. Kelly, Kern County, Thirty-ninth District, asked for an extra assembly district, suggested Kern County would like to have its own congressional district, and if that were not possible, Kern County should continue to be joined with Kings and Tulare Counties in a congressional district. He too preferred not to be joined to any assembly districts south of Kern County in a congressional district.

For Merced County

Dean S. Lesher, publisher of the Sun-Star of Merced County and the News-Tribune of Madera County and representing only himself, made an argument for looking at the great central valley as a unit. With its population of over 1,500,000, it should be entitled to four congressional districts arranged as follows: Kern and Tulare Counties; Fresno, Kings and Madera; Merced, Stanislaus and half of San Joaquin; northern half of San Joaquin and Sacramento. Discussion followed over such a division of San Joaquin County. Chairman Waters stated that an assembly district in a county may be joined to another county to form a congressional district only when the first county has enough population for one full congressional district and then still has another assembly district left over. Mr. Hutchins, Chairman of the Merced County Democratic Central Committee, also said there had not been enough time to study reapportionment. He endorsed Lesher's remarks.

For Kings County

Vernon Timmons, representing the Hanford Chamber of Commerce, Kings County Board of Supervisors, City Council of Hanford, and several other civic organizations, said Kings County did not want to be joined with any coast counties in any district. It would be too hard, he felt, because of distance, geographic and other differences for one man to adequately represent such a district. Kings County would prefer the existing arrangements. If that is not possible, it would want to be in districts with other valley counties where interests are common and problems are similar.

State Senator R. R. Cunningham, Kings County, Twenty-seventh District, also preferred the present arrangement for Kings County. If changes were contemplated, Kings County would want to be with counties in the central valley, particularly Fresno, Kern or Tulare. Assemblyman Harlan Hagen, Kings and Tulare Counties, Thirty-sixth District, announced both Democratic and Republican Central Committees of Kings County had gone on record as favoring the retention of the present Thirty-sixth Assembly District and Tenth Congressional District. The Republican Committee had listed its second choice as a Fresno-Madera-Kings Congressional District combination. In behalf of the Tulare-Kings Assembly District, he said:

> " * * * there is a great deal of continuity of interest between the two counties of Tulare and Kings Tulare County encompasses on an easternmost border an ideal vacation land, there are several, or at least two national parks, and hunting and fishing areas—down the valley there is some lumbering and timbering—down the valley they begin with citrus and olives, and as they progress west, they get into a dairy and cotton and vineyard economy, much the same as exists in the eastern portion of Kings County, where we have a very high cotton production—also raise a great number of fruit and grapes. The only remarkably different factor is the fact that in the western portion of Kings County we have a sizable oil field."

If Kings County doesn't go with Tulare, Assemblyman Hagen suggested the only other possibilities would be to join with San Luis Obispo, or "the very happy solution" of giving it an assembly district of its own.

For Tulare County

State Senator J. Howard Williams, Tulare County, Thirty-second District, told of opinion in his county which thought it should get an assembly district of its own because it had enough population. Several had suggested that Monterey get one assemblyman, San Luis Obispo and Kings Counties be placed in another assembly district even though population would be short, and Tulare then be placed in a district alone. The senator expressed satisfaction with the present Tenth Congressional District.

General Statements

The meeting was concluded with a brief general discussion between some subcommittee members and some witnesses about possible assembly and congressional district combinations in order that the valley might get four congressmen.

Assemblyman Tomlinson sat with the subcommittee for this meeting.

SAN FRANCISCO HEARING

February 26, 1951—State Building

For the Counties of the Redwood Empire

Lee McLeod, representing the Supervisor's Unit of the Redwood Empire Association, gave a general introduction in behalf of a Marin, Sonoma, Napa, Lake, Mendocino, Humboldt, and Del Norte congressional district. The 361,000 population would be adequate. The counties comprise a natural geographic area. Interests are similar. The people have worked together 30 years in the Redwood Empire Association. (See page 6788 of this report for complete statement.)

For Sonoma County

James Lyttle, Chairman of the Sonoma County Board of Supervisors, presented a resolution from his organization in behalf of the Redwood Empire Congressional District. He also introduced other supporters of the plan: Hiram Hopkins, Chairman of the Republican Central Committee of Sonoma County; Robert Bishop and Ward von Tillow, mayor and councilman, respectively, of Santa Rosa; and State Senator F. Presley Abshire, Sonoma County, Twelfth District. Senator Abshire reiterated the reasons for such a congressional district, and stated he knew of no objections to the plan. Both Mr. Bishop and von Tillow also spoke in behalf of the advantages of the district they proposed.

For Mendocino County

A. E. Safford, member of the Mendocino County Board of Supervisors, presented his organization's resolution in behalf of the congressional district.

For Del Norte County

Vic Meedham, member of the Del Norte County Board of Supervisors, presented his organization's resolution in behalf of the congressional district.

For Humboldt County

Assemblyman Frank Belotti, Del Norte-Humboldt-Mendocino, First District, testified in behalf of Humboldt County and presented a resolution passed by the Humboldt County Board of Supervisors in behalf of the congressional district.

For Napa County

Howard Dickenson, member of the Napa County Board of Supervisors, presented his organization's resolution and a letter from State Senator Nathan F. Coombs, Napa-Yolo, Eleventh District, in behalf of the congressional district.

For Lake County

Lee McLeod presented a resolution from the Lake County Board of Supervisors in behalf of the congressional district.

For Marin County

Lee McLeod presented a resolution from the Marin County Board of Supervisors in behalf of the congressional district.

General Statements in Behalf of a Redwood Empire Congressional District

Lee McLeod announced a letter endorsing the congressional district from John M. Harland for the Redwood Empire Newspaper Publishers' Unit. Dewey Mead, member of the Board of Supervisors of the City and County of San Francisco, but speaking as an individual, thought the requested congressional district to be in the best interest of the counties represented. Al M. Lewis, Manager of the Santa Rosa Chamber of Commerce, presented endorsing resolutions from the following organizations: Chambers of Commerce of Sebastopol, San Rafael, Sonoma Valley, Sonoma, Arcadia, Willows, Lolita, Ukiah, Santa Rosa, Del Norte, Petaluma, Eureka, Humboldt County and Glennville, and the Taxpayers Association of Sonoma County.

In the concluding remarks, James Lyttle asked that Marin County be considered one assembly district, and that Sonoma County be joined to Lake County to form another.

For San Francisco City and County

Thomas Toomey, Registrar of Voters, described the precinct maps, maps of assembly districts and population data his office had provided for the interim committee. Ernest J. Torrogano, of the City Planning Commission, was introduced and then yielded to that organization's director, Paul Oppermann. Mr. Oppermann said it was difficult to arrive at an over-all or sectionated set of population figures that would be final until Bureau of the Census figures were in. He described San Francisco as a sea port, a salesman's city and a military reservation with many persons out of town during the month of April, 1950, when the Bureau of the Census made its count. He argued it was not reasonable to use a 1950 preliminary population figure for San Francisco that did not take these groups into account. Where the preliminary census showed 760,000, he estimated the final total might go to 800,000.

Cameron King, member of a Citizens Committee on Reapportionment and secretary of the Union Labor Party of San Francisco composed of American Federation of Labor unions, said he would not accept the Bureau of the Census preliminary population figures. They were 66,000 less than a 1945 census of San Francisco. If estimated on the basis of ratio of telephones, he estimated 934,000; if on water users, 862,000. King suggested that the figure might be 923,000, and that the Bureau of the Census was not right. He asked the Legislature to leave San Francisco alone with its eight Assemblymen and two Congressmen. If that gave San Francisco more than its fair share in the Assembly, he felt that would be more than counterbalanced by its under-representation in the State Senate and the fact that it had only two Congressmen. At a population of 800,000, San Francisco would be entitled to seven Assemblymen. King asked eight with no increase in congressional representation. In reference to rumors about rearrangement of congressional districts, King said he had heard that the Twentieth Assembly District might be shifted to the Fifth Congressional District and the 25th to the 4th. This would cripple Congressman Franck Havenner of the Fourth Congressional District. King suggested he wouldn't want to hurt Republican Assemblymen Thomas Maloney (Twentieth District) or Arthur Connolly (21st) and that Congressman Havenner's relationship with his district shouldn't be disturbed either. The Fourth Congressional District is a logical compact of the waterfront, the finance, the military and naval institutions. Havenner has done well, has seniority and should be allowed to continue to function.

William M. Malone, chairman of the San Francisco County Democratic Central Committee, also thought the Bureau of the Census in error, and estimated population over 900,000, although admitting he had no facts to support this figure. In regard to the rumors about changes in the Fourth Congressional District, Malone suggested if they were true and successful it would leave a permanent scar. He suggested the Democrats hadn't tried to remove the late Republican Congressman Richard Welch by gerrymandering. The Twentieth Assembly District, he said, wanted to stay in Havenner's Fourth Congressional District. He praised Havenner's many qualifications for office and services performed for the City of San Francisco. In concluding his testimony, Malone read a letter from Congressman Havenner to Assemblyman Waters pointing to the Celler Bill, the possibility of all state congressional reapportionments being invalid if the billl passed and the state laws did not conform, the Bureau of the Census statement that final figures would not be available until summer of 1951, the possibility that the courts would declare acts based on preliminary census figures "arbitrary and capricious," and the undesirability of taking premature action.

Jack Werchick, representing the United Democrats Organization in San Francisco, concurred in the previous testimony on the subject of San Francisco's population, in the tribute to Congressman Franck Havenner, and in Havenner's request to delay reapportionment until final action on the Cellar Bill had been taken. He argued against reducing San Francisco's Assembly delegation purely on the grounds of population when the city was a focal point in the national emergency. Werchick showed the sub-committee two different assembly district plans—one based on seven and the other six. He favored the seven district plan in the event representation would be reduced from eight members. He felt that under it, it would be possible to more adequately represent the different segments of the San Francisco community, and in that connection discussed some socio-economic problems that might be considerations in redistricting.

S. A. Buckley, state legislative representative for the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks and speaking for four other railway brotherhoods, said his opinions were in line with those stated by Cameron King. Mrs. Charles B. Porter, of the San Francisco Citizen's Committee on Reapportionment, concurred in the criticisms of the population statistics, was disturbed by the rumors of possible change in the Fourth Congressional District, and suggested that the different ethnic groups of the city were more and more becoming assimilated into the whole body of the citizenry. As a former member of the San Francisco Planning Commission, she suggested Golden Gate Park had always been a dividing line between north and south, that the line of the Fourth Congressional District was based on it, and that it should not be changed.

Charles T. Augustus, representing the California State Barber and Beauty Culture League, Incorporated, said the negro population of San Francisco wanted to be in Congressman Havenner's district. Gus C. Ringole, a member of the San Francisco Citizens Committee on Reapportionment and a Republican, concurred in the previous observations on population and Congressman Havenner. He didn't believe, he said, the Republicans would attempt to gerrymander the Fourth Congressional District. Alvin F. Derre, chairman of the San Francisco County Republican Central Committee, was also of the opinion 760,000 population was too low. He asked that San Francisco be fairly and equitably divided so all of San Francisco is represented in the Legislature. Albert K. Chow, representing the Chinese Six Companies and Chinese Chamber of Commerce, wanted Havenner's district as it is. Irvin S. Rosenblatt, Jr., appearing as a Democratic member of the Citizens Committee on Reapportionment, argued for keeping Havenner's district as it is. He pointed to the number of military installations in the 4th district and Havenner's high seniority on the Armed Services Committee of the U. S. House. He objected to what he termed "ghettoization."

Assemblyman Thomas Maloney, Twentieth District, concurred in William Malone's observations about the Bureau of the Census San Francisco 40 years ago had 18 Assemblymen, and its decline in assemblymen had been so rapid Maloney suggested the Constitution should perhaps be changed. He pointed to San Francisco as paying the second largest per capita tax load in the State. Assemblyman Edward Gaffney, Twenty-sixth District, concurred with Maloney's observations on the Bureau of the Census. He felt San Francisco had 100,000 more persons than she was being given credit for. State Senator Gerald J. O'Gara, Fourteenth District, thought 900,000 population would not be out of line when absentees, maritime workers and military personnel were counted. He asked that the assembly districts be kept at the figure of eight, even though San Francisco had to sacrifice some congressional entitlement, and suggested San Francisco deserved as much consideration as Imperial County. All the San Francisco Assemblymen, he felt, represented groups that needed a voice in the Legislature. O'Gara asked for the status quo on congressional districts, and complimented both Congressmen Havenner and John F. Shelley, the latter of the Fifth District. He thought the present pattern of districts in San Francisco was evenly enough balanced between the two major parties so either party stood a chance to win; he warned against attempting to create safe districts for either party through the reapportionment process

Assemblyman Arthur H. Connolly, Jr., Twenty-first District, and Charles Meyers, Twenty-fourth District, were also in attendance. Assemblyman George D. Collins, Jr., Twenty-second District, sat as a regular member of the subcommittee. They made no statements.

For Alameda County

Leonard Seeley, a member of the San Leandro City Council and chairman of the Southern Alameda County Committee for Reapportionment, served as the spokesman for the following organizations in the reapportionment committee: The City Councils of Hayward, San Leandro, Livermore and Pleasanton, and the Chambers of Commerce of Washington Township, Livermore, Pleasanton, Chester Valley, Eden Township, Hayward and San Leandro Resolutions from all the cities and Chambers of Commerce were filed with the committee Seeley said post office officials had estimated that there were some 175,000 persons in southern Alameda County, south of the northern line of the City of San Leandro. Presently the Fourteenth Assembly District includes Alameda City and part of San Leandro, and the Thirteenth District includes East Oakland and the remainder of southern Alameda County The Southern Alameda County Committee for Reapportionment asked for an assembly district wholly within their area and not including either the City of Alameda or East Oakland. Seeley pointed to special problems of the area: industrial development, drainage, flood control, planning, transportation, highways, schools, civil defense, water, etc. The socio-economic facts of the area argued for such a southern district, he said.

Assemblyman Randal F. Dickey, Fourteenth District, and Assemblyman Marvin Sherwin, Sixteenth District, were both in attendance at the hearing. Neither made statements.

For San Mateo County

Louis DeMatteis, District Attorney of San Mateo County, served as the spokesman for the County Board of Supervisors, the Citizens Committee of San Mateo consisting of 13 municipalities and other groups, and a committee of Chambers of Commerce The committee was presented with a map showing population density and areas of estimated future growth, and another showing incorporated and unincorporated places with the 1950 preliminary returns for the area and a higher estimated population for February 1, 1951. DeMatteis felt preliminary census counts too low, and based his estimates on upswings in election registration, average school attendance, residential building permits, and new residence water and electric connections.

DeMatteis recommended two assembly districts for San Mateo, though he did not suggest how the two should divide the county. He analyzed several possible congressional district combinations: to join with an assembly district in Alameda County, not a serious suggestion because few ties exist that far across the bay; second, to join with Santa Clara County, not a serious suggestion because Santa Clara already is entitled to 85/100 of a Congressman; third, to join with Santa Cruz, a serious suggestion because the two counties are quite similar and their population about right; fourth, to join with an assembly district in San Francisco, though there is basic difference between the metropolitan and the rural; and fifth, to have one congressional district for San Mateo County.

Marion H. Kent, Chairman of the San Mateo County Democratic Central Committee, said his organization would prefer a congressional district with Santa Cruz or Santa Clara rather than San Francisco. Enoch L. Richardson, Chairman of the San Mateo County Republican Central Committee, supported the DeMatteis presentation, as did Alvin Hatch, chairman of the county board of supervisors, and Ed MacDonald, a member of the board of supervisors.

For Contra Costa County

Iona M. Booth, General Manager of the Contra Costa County Development Association and representing also the County Board of Supervisors, argued for one congressional district for the county. With the rapid growth of the county, she felt that was deserved. If not, Contra Costa County would want to be attached to an assembly district in the east end of Alameda County. It did not want to attach to Solano County with which it had nothing in common. She quoted State Senator Luther E. Gibson, Solano County, Fifteenth District, as also opposing such a union. For division of assembly districts, Miss Booth suggested the boundary line of the first supervisorial district.

Louis L. Bernheim, representing the Contra Costa Republican Central Committee and also a member of the legislative committee of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, repeated the request for two assemblymen and suggested the first supervisorial district as a boundary line between the two. He opposed making one district out of the first supervisorial district minus Rodeo and Pinole, and placing the rest of the county in another. He also thought Contra Costa County should get its own congressional district.

Assemblyman Robert Condon, Contra Costa County, Tenth District, stated Contra Costa County was united in its request for two assembly districts and one congressional district. It is the fifth largest county in California. Except for San Mateo, which is tenth, all of the first 12 ranking counties except Contra Costa have two assemblymen. As for the division line between the two assembly districts, Condon suggested that population balance would be better served if the first supervisorial district minus the eleventh judicial township (Rodeo, Pinole, Hercules, Selby) be one assembly district, and the remainder of the county the other. In support of a single congressional district for the county, he cited the 198 percentage growth since 1940—the highest rate in the Nation, and a rate which gives no appearance of slowing down. If Contra Costa were joined to an assembly district of a neighboring county, the district's population would be as much over as Contra Costa alone would be under a 350,000 ideal. If joined with Solano, the total would be 400,000. Solano is second in rate of growth only to Contra Costa County. Condon predicted if such a union were made that it would be the biggest congressional district in California and perhaps the United States before the next 10-year period is up. He cited support for a separate congressional district for Contra Costa County from every organization within the county and also from Congressman George P. Miller, Sixth District incumbent.

State Senator George Miller, Jr., Contra Costa County, Seventeenth District, thought the location of the line between the two assembly districts didn't make a great deal of difference because good Democratic candidates would win. He read a letter from the Richmond Chamber of Commerce proposing a western assembly district of Kensington Park, El Cerrito, Richmond, San Pablo, El Sobrante and perhaps Pinole, and an eastern district of the remainder of the county. He concurred in Assemblyman Condon's suggestion that the western district be made up of the first supervisorial district minus the 11th judicial township, and that the eastern district be made up of the rest of the county.

General Statement

State Senator Ed. C. Johnson, Sutter and Yuba Counties—Seventh District, sat with the subcommittee, as did Assemblyman Richard J. Dolwig, San Mateo, Twenty-seventh District.

THE SACRAMENTO HEARING

February 27, 1951—State Capitol

For Butte County

Raymond A. Leonard, District Attorney of Butte County, represented the following organizations: Butte County Board of Supervisors, Associated Chambers of Commerce of Butte County, the Chico and Oroville Chambers of Commerce, and the Democratic and Republican Central Committees of Butte County. Leonard proposed a "valley county" congressional district consisting of Glenn, Butte, Colusa, Sutter, Yuba, Yolo and Solano Counties. The population of this district would come to 82 percent of the ideal of 350,000. If Lake and Napa Counties were included, its population would be 97 percent of desired. Geographically, the boundary to the west would be the line of coastal counties, and the boundary to the north and east, the line of mountain counties. All the counties in the valley are primarily agricultural and have no community of interest with coastal or mountain counties. If Yolo County were joined to Sacramento County in a congressional district, and Lake and Napa Counties were included, Leonard felt it would still make a good congressional district. Jack Madigan, of the Chico Chamber of Commerce, endorsed Leonard's statement of position.

For San Joaquin County

State Senator Verne W. Hoffman, Twentieth District, introduced a delegation of 10 persons from San Joaquin County: Ben Goodwin, Raymond Mottler and Charles Cooper, officers of the County Farm Bureau; E. R. Williams, commander of the third largest American Legion Post in California; George Ohm, chairman of the County Board of Supervisors; Robert Monagan, secretary of the Tracy Chamber of Commerce; Herb Milford, chairman of the County Democratic Central Committee; Henry Meyers, chairman of the County Republican Central Committee; Jim Estes, political editor of the Stockton Record; and Assemblyman Howard Parker, Eleventh District.

Robert Monagan told of the organization of a county-wide Citizen's Reapportionment Committee with the chairmen of the Democratic and Republican County Central Committees as cochairmen. Monagan suggested that although San Joaquin was a great agricultural area, it also had experienced a great industrial growth tending to make it the most diversified county in California. One person, therefore, can't fairly and adequately represent the county. He felt San Joaquin County had the qualifications to keep pace with the State in its rich farm lands, Port of Stockton, the industrial area that goes with three transcontinental railroads, highways bisecting the state both east-west and north-south, and a group of intelligent citizens willing to vote If Congressional Districts 3 and 9 were to be changed, he favored the combination of San Joaquin and Stanislaus Counties to make a new congressional district. George Ohm affirmed and elaborated on Monogan's statement. Assemblyman Parker took the same position.

For Sacramento County

Alf R. Stavig, spokesman for the reapportionment subcommittee of the Governmental Affairs Committee of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, said his committee had been studying reapportionment since September, 1950. If Sacramento County was too small for a single congressional district, his committee recommended the addition of Yolo County. That would make a district of about 315,000, consisting of contiguous counties, and with very close economic ties.

Assemblyman Gordon A. Fleury, Eighth District, speaking for himself and Assemblyman John E. Moss, Ninth District, stated they would present the committee with a revision of assembly lines for the Eighth and Ninth Assembly Districts in Sacramento County. Fleury also stated it was the unanimous thought of all civic groups in Sacramento County and almost all in Yolo County that the two counties be formed into a congressional district.

For Napa County

George A. Solomon, representing the Napa County Central Labor Council and appearing also as Chairman of the Third Congressional District Democratic Committee, supported Raymond Leonard's recommendation for a "valley county" congressional district with Lake and Napa Counties included. He felt Napa County's interests were more closely in line with the valley counties than with the coastal counties of the Redwood Empire. Many in Napa and Lake Counties, he said, feel they are a sort of appendix on the Redwood Highway, and are not too well satisfied with their status. He referred to a recent meeting in Sacramento of representatives from the First, Second, and Third Congressional Districts, and said the representative from Lake County did not want to be a part of the Redwood Empire District. Solomon knew of no meeting on the subject of reapportionment held in Napa County.

Samuel R. Geddes, representing the Napa County Democratic Central Committee, said Napa County in relation to the Redwood Empire counties had been a tail-of-the-kite with its 46,000 population politically not meaning very much. Napa had never gotten much out of the Redwood Association. He thought Napa County, while not related to the lumber interests of the coast counties, was directly interested in Solano County—people living in one, work in the other; the water problem is a mutual one; agricultural interests are in common. If Napa County joined with smaller counties in a congressional district, her 46,000 population would swing more weight. He suggested those in Napa County who had passed resolutions favoring the Redwood Empire congressional district had been hurried and were not fully informed of what they were doing. In general, he felt there had not been enough public discussion. In regard to other counties, there were many in Lake County, he said, who wanted to get away from the Redwood Empire Association and many in Yolo County who did not want to be joined to Sacramento in a congressional district.

State Senator Nathan F. Coombs, Eleventh District, said reapportionment meetings had been held in Napa County; Geddes had been invited, but Geddes had not come. For a congressional district, he thought Solano County might be considered as a sort of orphan county that might be placed with Contra Costa County. He would oppose Napa County's being placed in a congressional district with Solano County. The only thing they have in common is that Solano County wants Napa County's water, and Napa County needs it for herself. Napa is a coast county. It has nothing in common with Solano County and doesn't want to be a part of it politically. Napa County, he felt, wanted to go along with the Redwood Empire. Senator Coombs also argued for a Sacramento-Yolo congressional district. Both are agricultural, and climatically their interests are common. Both share some 60 miles of common river front. On the other hand, he felt Yolo County had nothing in common with Solano County, except that Solano County wanted to get water from Yolo County. Returning to Napa County, only as a last resort, he felt, would Napa County consent to becoming a part of a Marin, Sonoma, Napa, Lake, and Solano County district.

On the matter of assembly districts, Senator Coombs thought it immaterial whether Lake County was either left in or taken out of the Fifth Assembly District (Lake, Napa, Solano) which is some 30,000 over in population. He felt quite sure Napa County would be willing to go along with Solano County in an assembly district. He had no suggestions for the Third Assembly District (Glenn, Colusa, Tehama, Yolo) which is low in population.

For Solano County

Robert L. Kindig, chairman of the Solano County Democratic Central Committee, endorsed Raymond Leonard's plan for a valley congressional district. Even if Lake County should go with the Redwood Empire, he wanted Napa County to join the valley counties. Sacramento and Solano Counties have much in common and might make a good congressional district. Solano and Yolo Counties might make a good district in the event the latter was not joined with Sacramento. Kindig thought the northern part of the State should have 15 congressional districts as well as the southern part with the north entitled to 14.6 congressmen and the south to 15.4. Paul O. Beeman, representing the Solano Central Labor Council, submitted a resolution from his organization asking a Glenn, Butte, Sutter, Yuba, Colusa, Lake, Napa and Solano congressional district. Solano County had had difficulty getting water for military and shipyard installations, and one of the reasons, he said, is misrepresentation in Congress. He thought Solano County would be in a much stronger political position in a new district.

For Stanislaus County

Assemblyman Ralph M. Brown, Thirtieth District, noted that Stanislaus County is the northernmost county in the Ninth Congressional District; that Fresno, Madera and Merced Counties might be withdrawn from the Ninth and made into a new district; and that San Joaquin County appeared to be the same kind of an orphan at the bottom of the Third Congressional District. Assemblyman Brown said many in Stanislaus County favored a congressional union with San Joaquin County, and that there could be no logical objection to such an arrangement.

For Yolo County

H. G. Copkie, representing the Yolo County Farm Bureau, favored Raymond Leonard's plan for a congressional district with Yolo County attached to the "floor of the valley" counties other than Sacramento County. Sacramento County in a Sacramento-Yolo congressional district would, he thought, throw all the weight in an election. He felt the Yolo County Chamber of Commerce and the board of supervisors had been stampeded into resolving in favor of a Sacramento-Yolo district. Copkie argued for four congressional districts for the north.

For Alpine, Amador, Calaveras, El Dorado, Inyo, Mariposa, Mono, Placer, Nevada, and Tuolumne Counties

Assemblyman Francis C. Lindsay, Sixth District, announced he had met with the boards of supervisors and civic groups in the 10 counties of the Sixth Assembly District, and that opinion is for keeping both the Sixth Assembly District and the Second Congressional District as they are. In regard to the Congressional District, although it is 75 percent of the desired population, it covers 47 percent of the land area of the State.

For Tehama County

T. B. Keyes, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors, favored keeping the Second Congressional District as it is. He also supported the "floor of the valley" counties in their request for a congressional district as Raymond Leonard of Butte County proposed.

For Colusa County

George E. Lodi, Chairman of the Reapportionment Committee of the Colusa County Farm Bureau, announced himself in favor of the Leonard plan. Such a congressional district would be composed of agricultural counties with the same type of water and flood control problems. He would also support Sacramento County in its efforts to get a congressional district of its own, and the Second District's desire to stay as it is. If Southern California is to get six new congressmen, he thought Northern California should get one because of its large area. He recommended no assembly district changes, and thought it all right for Napa and Lake Counties to go either way in a congressional district.

For Sutter County

D. W. Davidson, representing the Sutter County Chamber of Commerce and Farm Bureau, endorsed the Leonard plan. He asked for at least one more congressman for the north.

For Yuba County

State Senator Ed. C. Johnson, Tenth District, spoke in behalf of the County Board of Supervisors, Yuba City Council and civic bodies. He concurred in the Leonard congressional district recommendation.

For Glenn County

John Fieck, Chairman of the County Board of Supervisors, approved the Leonard congressional district recommendation and leaving the Third Assembly District without changes.

THE THREE REAPPORTIONMENT BILLS OF 1951

STATE SENATE—ASSEMBLY—CONGRESSIONAL

Assembly Bill No. 141,[7] introduced by Messrs. Waters and Conrad. An act to amend Section 480 of the Government Code, relating to the division of the State into Senatorial districts.

Assembly Bill No. 141 made two simple changes in State Senate districts. Alpine County was removed from the Ninth District and placed in the 28th; San Benito County was removed from the Twenty-fifth District and placed in the 23d. The other counties involved in the change are shown in the following table:

Ninth District	old —El Dorado, Amador and Alpine Counties new—El Dorado and Amador Counties
Twenty-eighth District	old —Mono and Inyo Counties new—Alpine, Mono and Inyo Counties
Twenty-fifth District	old —Monterey and San Benito Counties new—Monterey County
Twenty-third District	old —Santa Cruz County new—Santa Cruz and San Benito Counties

Assembly Bill No. 41,[8] introduced by Messrs. Waters and Conrad. An act to repeal existing Section 491 of, and to add new Section 491 to, the Government Code, relating to the division of the State into Assembly districts.

Assembly Bill No. 41 made the following changes between counties:

1. Los Angeles County, with a population entitlement of 31.37) lost one of its 32 assembly seats to San Diego County (population entitlement 4.21) to increase the total of the San Diego County delegation from three to four;
2. San Joaquin County (with a population entitlement of 1.52) lost one of its two assembly seats to Kern County (population entitlement, 1.73) to increase the total of the Kern County delegation from one to two; and
3. San Francisco City and County (with a population entitlement of 5.86) lost two of its eight assembly seats, one going to Contra Costa County (population entitlement, 2 26) and the other to San Mateo County (population entitlement, 1.78) to increase the total of each of the Contra Costa and San Mateo delegations from one to two.

In addition to these major losses or gains, two shifts of counties from one district to another took place:

1. Lake County was taken out of the 5th District (Lake-Napa-Solano) and placed in the 3d (Tehama-Glenn-Lake-Colusa-Yolo), and Napa and Solano Counties stay in the 5th; and
2. San Luis Obispo County was taken out of the old 33d District (Monterey-San Luis Obispo) and placed in the new 36th (San Luis Obispo-Santa Barbara), and Monterey County gets an assembly district of its own, the new 34th.

Allocation of assembly seats to counties receiving one or more assemblymen was strictly on the basis of population entitlement, with the exception of Imperial County. The allocation and shift in representation is shown in the following table:

Assembly Bill No. 42,[9] introduced by Messrs. Waters and Conrad. An act to repeal existing Section 470 of, and to add new Section 470 to, the Government Code, relating to the division of the State into congressional districts.

Assembly Bill No. 42 made the following changes in congressional districts:

1. The First Congressional District, composed of 11 counties (Del Norte-Humboldt-Mendocino-Sonoma-Marin-Lake-Glenn-Colusa, Butte-Sutter-Yuba) was changed by excluding Glenn, Colusa, Butte, Sutter and Yuba Counties, and by adding Napa County to the six remaining counties. Napa County was taken out of the old Third Congressional District. The four "floor of the valley" counties of Glenn, Colusa, Sutter and Yuba Counties were placed in the new Third Congressional District; Butte, in the new Second Congressional District.
2. The Second Congressional District, composed of 18 counties (Siskiyou-Modoc-Trinity-Shasta-Lassen-Tehama-Plumas-Sierra-Nevada-Placer-El Dorado-Amador-Calaveras-Alpine-Tuolumne-Mariposa-Mono-Inyo), was changed only by taking Butte County out of the old First Congressional District and including it in the Second Congressional District.
3. The Third Congressional District, composed of five counties (Napa-Yolo-Solano-Sacramento-San Joaquin) was changed by excluding Napa County and placing it in the new First Congressional District, excluding Solano and placing it in the new Sixth Congressional District, and excluding San Joaquin County and placing it in the new Eleventh Congressional District. To Yolo and Sacramento Counties were added Glenn, Colusa, Sutter and Yuba Counties from the old First District to make the new six-county Third Congressional District.
4. The Fourth Congressional District, composed of four assembly districts in the City and County of San Francisco (19th, 20th, 21st and 22d), was changed to consist of the following three assembly districts: 19, 21 and 22.
5. The Fifth Congressional District, composed of four assembly districts in the City and County of San Francisco (23d, 24th, 25th and 26th), was changed to consist of the following three assembly districts: 20, 23 and 24.
6. The Sixth Congressional District, composed of Contra Costa County and the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth Assembly

[9] Legislative Counsel's Analysis.

Districts in Alameda County was changed to include only Contra Costa and Solano Counties in making up the new Sixth Congressional District. Solano County was taken out of the old Third Congressional District, and Assembly Districts 13, 14 and 15 in Alameda County went into the new Eighth Congressional District.

7. The Seventh Congressional District, composed of 16, 17 and 18 Alameda County Assembly Districts, was not changed in the reapportionment.
8. The Eighth Congressional District, composed of four counties San Mateo-Santa Cruz-Santa Clara-San Benito), was changed by moving the number to a new congressional district in Alameda County and placing San Mateo in the new Ninth Congressional District, and Santa Cruz, Santa Clara and San Benito in the new Tenth Congressional District.
9. The Ninth Congressional District, composed of four counties (Stanislaus-Merced-Madera-Fresno), was changed by giving the number to the new San Mateo Congressional District, and Stanislaus County in the new Eleventh Congressional District, and Merced, Madera and Fresno Counties in the new Twelfth Congressional District.

12. The Twelfth Congressional District, composed of three Los Angeles County assembly districts (49th, 50th and 53d), was moved away from Los Angeles County and set up to include Merced, Madera and Fresno Counties. All three counties were in the old Ninth Congressional District along with Stanislaus County.
13. The Thirteenth Congressional District, composed of three Los Angeles County assembly districts (45th, 54th and 56th), was moved away from Los Angeles County and set up to include the four counties of the old Eleventh Congressional District (Monterey-San Luis Obispo-Santa Barbara-Ventura).
14. The Fourteenth Congressional District, composed of four Los Angeles County assembly districts (44th, 55th, 62d and 64th) was moved away from Los Angeles County and set up to include the three counties of the old Tenth Congressional District (Kings-Tulare-Kern).

[10] Legislative Counsel Opinion, March 26, 1951.

CONCLUSION

The history of reapportionment and the reapportionment bills as finally passed and signed into law dramatically illustrate the tides of our shifting population within the State. To more fully appreciate the gradual shift from north to south since 1891 to the present we have included a series of maps of the assembly, congressional and state senatorial districts outlining the districts as they appeared from time to time.

These shifts have given rise to some problems which have not been met at this time, the question as to whether we should amend the Constitution of the State of California in order to give greater flexibility in reaching the equalized population factors within assembly and congressional districts should be seriously considered. Balanced against such an amendment is the feasibility of leaving the county intact as basic units of government which have a community of interests that most closely affect the citizens of the area.

Further consideration must be given to the impact of reapportionment upon the existing legal party structures. Extensive revision of current provisions of the law may be necessary to conform these organizations to the pattern of the new districts.

The file of opinions from the Office of the Legislative Counsel contained in the appendix of this report points up this problem in addition to some others that are still with us.

With wider publicity of the material available, fuller use could be made of the facilities of the Bureau of the Census. A continuing study of the releases of the bureau during the interim period could be used as background preliminarily anticipating the problems of the next succeeding reapportionment.

In many counties precinct maps were not available to the committee. Consideration should be given legislation that would require county clerks to prepare up-to-date precinct maps and particularly should those be available during the year when the reapportionment problem must be approached. Jointly, with this proposal should be the requirement that county planning commissions make available to the committee undertaking the task of reapportionment a study of population distribution showing significant trends during the preceding decade.

Insofar as the committee is informed this is the first attempt to spell out the processes that were employed in an effort to meet the many questions that were raised by the study of the reapportionment problem. This does not purport to be a complete and exhaustive consideration of all of the factors involved, but it is, we trust, a constructive initial step in what should be a continuing study in this field.

Reapportionment—No. 569

DEAR MR. WATERS: You have asked us for a summary of Federal and State laws relating to reapportionment.

Congressional Districts

Representatives in Congress are apportioned among the several states according to their respective numbers (U. S. Constitution, Article 1, Section 2. Clause 3, and 14th Amendment, Section 2).

The House of Representatives consists of 435 members (Sections 2 and 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code).

Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code provides for the time and manner of reapportionment of Representatives

Under that section, the President will deliver to the Eighty-second Congress a statement of the number of Representatives to which each state will be entitled under an apportionment based on the 1950 Census. This statement will be delivered to Congress within a week after it convenes in 1951. This date will probably be within one week after January 3, 1951, as Congress customarily convenes on January 3d in accordance with the provisions of the Twentieth Amendment to the Federal Constitution. The governor of each state will then be notified within 15 days of the number of Representatives to which that state will be entitled in the Eighty-third Congress which will convene in 1953.

We have been unable to find any express direction in either the Constitution or laws of this State as to when the re-formation of congressional districts shall be made. Section 27 of Article IV of our Constitution prescribes how congressional districts shall be formed but it does not specify when. Presumably, however, the re-formation of congressional districts will be made by the Legislature during the 1951 General Session at the same time that the re-formation of senatorial and assembly districts takes place, since Section 10500 of the Elections Code provides that one Representative shall be elected for each congressional district at each general election and makes no provision for the election of Representatives at large.

Section 27 of Article IV of our Constitution which governs the formation of congressional districts provides:

1. When a congressional district is composed of two or more counties, it shall not be separated by a county belonging to another district.

2. No county, or city and county, shall be divided in forming a congressional district so as to attach one portion of a county, or city and county, to another county, or city and county, except in cases where one county, or city and county, has more population than the ratio required for one or more Congressmen.

3. The Legislature may divide any county, or city and county, into as many congressional districts as it may be entitled to by law.

4. Any county, or city and county, with a population greater than the number required for one congressional district shall be formed into one or more districts according to its population. Any residue left after the formation of such congressional district or districts, shall be attached by compact adjoining assembly districts, to a contiguous county or counties, to form another congressional district.

5. In dividing a county, or city and county, into congressional districts, no assembly district shall be divided so as to form a part of more than one congressional district.

6. Every congressional district shall be composed of compact contiguous assembly districts.

Until the congressional districts are re-formed after the reapportionment, the election of Representatives will be governed by subsection (c) of Section 2a, of Title 2 of the United States Code, which provides in part:

"(1) If there is no change in the number of Representatives, they shall be elected from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state, and if any of them are elected from the state at large they shall continue to be so elected;

(2) if there is an increase in the number of Representatives, such additional Representative or Representatives shall be elected from the state at large and the other Representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state;

(3) if there is a decrease in the number of Representatives but the number of districts in such state is equal to such decreased number of Representatives, they shall be elected from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state;

(4) if there is a decrease in the number of Representatives but the number of districts in such state is less than such number of Representatives, the number of Representatives by which such number of districts is exceeded shall be elected from the state at large and the other Representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state; or

(5) if there is a decrease in the number of Representatives and the number of districts in such state exceeds such decreased number of Representatives, they shall be elected from the state at large."

The present division of the State into congressional districts is made by Section 470 of the Government Code.

Senatorial and Assembly Districts

Section 6 of Article IV of our State Constitution governs the formation of senatorial and assembly districts.

Under that section, the Legislature will adjust the districts and reapportion the representation at the 1951 Regular Session of the Legislature. The 1950 Federal Census will serve as the basis for such adjustment. In making such adjustments no persons who are not eligible to become citizens of the United States under the Naturalization Laws, shall be counted as forming a part of the population of any district.

In the event that the Legislature fails to adjust the districts at the 1951 Regular Session, a Reapportionment Commission, consisting of the Lieutenant Governor (Chairman), the Attorney General, the State Controller, the Secretary of State, and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will forthwith make the adjustment, subject, however, to the same provisions of referendum as apply to acts of the Legislature.

A. Senatorial Districts. With particular reference to senatorial districts, Section 6 of Article IV provides:

1. The State shall be divided into 40 senatorial districts.
2. The senatorial districts shall be composed of contiguous territory.
3. Each senatorial district shall choose one senator.
4. The senatorial districts shall be numbered from 1 to 40, inclusive, in numerical order, commencing at the northern and ending at the southern boundary of the State.
5. In the formation of senatorial districts no county, or city and county, shall be divided, nor shall a part of any county, or city and county, be united with any other county, or city and county.
6. No county, or city and county, shall contain more than one senatorial district.
7. The counties of small population shall be grouped in senatorial districts of not to exceed three counties in any one district.

The present division of the State into senatorial districts is made by Section 480 of the Government Code.

B. Assembly Districts. With particular reference to assembly districts, Section 6 of Article IV provides:

1. The State shall be divided into 80 assembly districts.
2. The assembly districts shall be composed of contiguous territory.
3. Each assembly district shall choose one Member of Assembly.

4. The assembly districts shall be numbered from 1 to 80, inclusive, in numerical order, commencing at the northern and ending at the southern boundary of the State.

5. Assembly districts shall be as nearly equal in population as may be.

6. In the formation of assembly districts no county, or city and county, shall be divided unless it contains sufficient population within itself to form two or more districts.

7. No part of any county, or city and county, shall be united with any other county, or city and county, in forming any assembly district.

The present division of the State into assembly districts is made by Section 491 of the Government Code.

We enclose copies of Sections 6 and 27 of Article IV of our Constitution and Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code.

Very truly yours,

FRED B. WOOD

Article IV, Section 6, State Constitution

Senatorial and Assembly Districts

SEC. 6. For the purpose of choosing Members of the Legislature, the State shall be divided into 40 senatorial and 80 assembly districts to be called senatorial and assembly districts. Such districts shall be composed of contiguous territory, and assembly districts shall be as nearly equal in population as may be. Each senatorial district shall choose one Senator and each assembly district shall choose one Member of Assembly. The senatorial districts shall be numbered from 1 to 40, inclusive, in numerical order, and the assembly districts shall be numbered from 1 to 80 in the same order, commencing at the northern boundary of the State and ending at the southern boundary thereof. In the formation of assembly districts no county, or city and county, shall be divided, unless it contains sufficient population within itself to form two or more districts, and in the formation of senatorial districts no county, or city and county, shall be divided, nor shall a part of any county, or of any city and county, be united with any other county, or city and county, in forming any assembly or senatorial district. The census taken under the direction of the Congress of the United States in the year 1920, and every 10 years thereafter, shall be the basis of fixing and adjusting the legislative districts; and the Legislature shall, at its first regular session following the adoption of this section and thereafter at the first regular session following each Decennial Federal Census, adjust such districts, and reapportion the representation so as to preserve the assembly districts as nearly equal in population as may be; but in the formation of senatorial districts no county or city and county shall contain more than one senatorial district, and the counties of small population shall be grouped in districts of not to exceed three counties in any one senatorial district; provided, however, that should the Legislature at the first regular session following the adoption of this section or at the first regular session following any Decennial Federal Census fail to reapportion the assembly and senatorial districts, a Reapportionment Commission, which is hereby created, consisting of the Lieutenant Governor, who shall be chairman, and the Attorney General, State Controller, Secretary of State and State Superintendent of Public Instruction, shall forthwith apportion such districts in accordance with the provisions of this section and such apportionment of said districts shall be immediately effective the same as if the act of said Reapportionment Commission were an act of the Legislature, subject, however, to the same provisions of referendum as apply to the acts of the Legislature.

Each subsequent reapportionment shall carry out these provisions and shall be based upon the last preceding Federal Census. But in making such adjustments no persons who are not eligible to become citizens of the United States, under the naturalization laws, shall be counted as forming a part of the population of any district. Until such districting as herein provided for shall be made, Senators and Assemblymen shall be elected by the districts according to the apportionment now provided for by law.

Article IV, Section 27, State Constitution

Formation of Congressional Districts

SEC. 27. When a congressional district shall be composed of two or more counties, it shall not be separated by any county belonging to another district. No county, or city and county, shall be divided in forming a congressional district so as to attach one portion of a county, or city and county, to another county, or city and county, except in cases where one county, or city and county, has more population than the ratio required for one or more congressmen; but the Legislature may divide any county, or city and county, into as many congressional districts as it may be entitled to by law. Any county, or city and county, containing a population greater than the number required for one congressional district shall be formed into one or more congressional districts, according to the population thereof, and any residue, after forming such district or districts, shall be attached by compact adjoining assembly districts, to a contiguous county or counties, and form a congressional district In dividing a county, or city and county, into congressional districts no assembly district shall be divided so as to form a part of more than one congressional district, and every such congressional district shall be composed of compact contiguous assembly districts.

Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code

(a) On the first day, or within one week thereafter, of the first regular session of the Eighty-second Congress and of each fifth Congress thereafter, the President shall transmit to the Congress a statement showing the whole number of persons in each state, excluding Indians not taxed, as ascertained under the Seventeenth and each subsequent Decennial Census of the population, and the number of Representatives to which each state would be entitled under an apportionment of the then existing number of Representatives by the method known as the method of equal proportions, no state to receive less than one member.

(b) Each state shall be entitled, in the Eighty-third Congress and in each Congress thereafter until the taking effect of a reapportionment under this section or subsequent statute, to the number of Representatives shown in the statement required by subsection (a) of this section, no state to receive less than one member. It shall be the duty of the Clerk of the House of Representatives, within 15 calendar days after the receipt of such statement, to send to the executive of each state a certificate of the number of Representatives to which such state in entitled under this section. In case of a vacancy in the office of clerk, or of his absence or inability to discharge this duty, then such duty shall devolve upon the Sergeant-at-Arms of the House of Representatives; and in case of vacancies in the offices of both the clerk and the sergeant-at-arms, or the absence or inability of both to act, such duty shall devolve upon the Doorkeeper of the House of Representatives.

(c) Until a state is redistricted in the manner provided by the law thereof after any apportionment, the representatives to which such state is entitled under such apportionment shall be elected in the following manner: (1) If there is no change in the number of representatives, they shall be elected from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state, and if any of them are elected from the state at large they shall continue to be so elected; (2) if there is an increase in the number of representatives, such additional representative or representatives shall be elected from the state at large and the other representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state; (3) if there is a decrease in the number of representatives but the number of districts in such state is equal to such decreased number of representatives, they shall be elected from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state; (4) if there is a decrease in the number of representatives but the number of districts in such state is less than such number of representatives, the number of representatives by which such number of districts is exceeded shall be elected from the state at large and the other representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state; or (5) if there is a decrease in the number of representatives and the number of districts in such state exceeds such decreased number of representatives, they shall be elected from the state at large.

OPINION No. 1703

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, April 3, 1950

Honorable Laughlin E. Waters
Assembly Chamber

Reapportionment—No. 1703

DEAR MR. WATERS: You have asked us several questions relating to the reapportionment of congressional, senatorial, and assembly districts.

Question No. 1

When does reapportionment take effect: i.e. can it operate to deprive any officer of his office prior to the expiration of the term for which he was elected?

Opinion

It is our opinion that reapportionment will not operate to deprive any officer of his office prior to the expiration of the term for which he was elected and that reapportionment will begin to operate with the election in 1952 of officers who will take office in 1953.

Analysis

Representatives in Congress. Representatives in Congress are elected for a term of two years (U. S Const., Art. I, Sec. 2, Cl. 1). They are chosen in even-numbered years (Title 2, U. S. C., Sec. 7) and take office on January 3d in odd-numbered years (U. S. Const., Amend. XX).

The reapportionment of representatives is governed by Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code which provides in part that:

> "§ 2a. Reapportionment of representatives; time and manner; existing decennial census figures as basis; statement by President; duty of clerk
> "(a) On the first day, or within one week thereafter, of the first regular session of the Eighty-second Congress and of each fifth Congress thereafter, the President shall transmit to the Congress a statement showing the whole number of persons in each state, excluding Indians not taxed, as ascertained under the Seventeenth and each subsequent Decennial Census of the population, and the number of representatives to which each state would be entitled under an apportionment of the then existing number of representatives by the method known as the method of equal proportions, no state to receive less than one member.
> "(b) Each state shall be entitled, in the Eighty-third Congress and in each Congress thereafter until the taking effect of a reapportionment under this section or subsequent statute, to the number of representatives shown in the statement required by subsection (a) of this section, no state to receive less than one member. It shall be the duty of the Clerk of the House of Representatives, within 15 calendar days after the receipt of such statement, to send to the executive of each state a certificate of the number of representatives to which such state is entitled under this section. In case of a vacancy in the office of clerk, or of his absence or inability to discharge this duty, then such duty shall devolve upon the Sergeant-at-arms of the House of Representatives; and in case of vacancies in the offices of both Clerk and Sergeant-at-arms, or the absence or inability of both to act, such duty shall devolve upon the Doorkeeper of the House of Representatives."

Under this section, the President's statement of the number of representatives to which each state would be entitled under an apportionment based on the Seventeenth Decennial Census will be delivered to the Eighty-second Congress within a week after it convenes in 1951. This date will probably be within one week after January 3, 1951, as Congress customarily convenes on that date in accordance with the provisions of the Twentieth Amendment to the Constitution. Each state will then be notified within 15 days of the number of Representatives to which it will be entitled in the Eighty-third Congress which will convene in 1953.

We have been unable to find any express direction in either the Constitution or laws of this State as to when the re-formation of congressional districts shall be made. Section 27 of Article IV of our State Constitution prescribes how congressional districts shall be formed but it does not specify when. Presumably, however, the re-formation of congressional districts will be made by the Legislature during the 1951 General Session at the same time that the re-formation of senatorial and assembly districts is made.

In the event that congressional districts are not reformed in 1951, the election of Representatives will be governed by subsection (c) of Section 2a, United States Code, which provides

> "(c) Until a state is redistricted in the manner provided by the law thereof after any apportionment, the Representatives to which such state is entitled under such apportionment shall be elected in the following manner: (1) If there is no change in the number of Representatives, they shall be elected from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state, and if any of them are elected from the state at large they shall continue to be so elected; (2) if there is an increase in the number of Representatives, such additional Representative or Representatives shall be elected from the state at large and the other Representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state; (3) if there is a decrease in the number of Representatives but the number of districts in such state is equal to such decreased number of Representatives, they shall be elected from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state; (4) if there is a decrease in the number of Representatives but the number of districts in such state is less than such number of Representatives, the number of Representatives by which such number of districts is exceeded shall be elected from the state at large and the other Representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state; or (5) if there is a decrease in the number of Representatives and the number of districts in such state exceeds such decreased number of Representatives, they shall be elected from the state at large."

We therefore conclude that reapportionment will not operate to deprive any Representative of his office prior to the expiration of his term and that it will become effective in 1952 with the election of Representatives who will take office in 1953.

Members of the Legislature. Terms of office of Members of the Legislature are prescribed in Article IV of our State Constitution which provides that the term of office is four years for Senators (Sec. 4) and two years for Assemblymen (Sec. 3). These terms are not shortened by a re-formation of the districts (People v. Markham (1892), 96 Cal. 262 and People v. Pendegast (1892), 96 Cal 289).

As far as the re-formation of senatorial and assembly districts is concerned, Section 6 of Article IV of our State Constitution provides in part:

"* * * The Census taken under the direction of the Congress of the United States in the year 1920, and every 10 years thereafter, shall be the basis of fixing and adjusting the legislative districts; and the Legislature shall, at its first regular session following the adoption of this section and thereafter at the first regular session following each Decennial Federal Census, adjust such districts, and reapportion the representation * * *."

Since the Decennial Census will be completed in 1950 the legislative districts will be re-formed by the Legislature during the 1951 General Session The re-formed districts will thus serve as the basis for the election of Senators and Assemblymen at the 1952 Primary and General Elections. Since the terms of only half of the Senators expire in 1952, the remaining half will be elected on the basis of the re-formed districts in 1954 and will take office in 1955.

Question No. 2

What happens when a district bearing a certain number is re-formed in an entirely new area? Does the legislator or representative from that district continue to represent the people in the old area or does he now represent the people in the district as re-formed?

Opinion and Analysis

We have already concluded that reapportionment will become effective with the election in 1952 of officers who will take office in 1953 Since all of the Congressmen and Assemblymen and one-half of the Senators will be elected in 1952 the problem will only exist with respect to those Senators who are elected in 1950, for a four-year term which expires in 1954. We believe that such Senators will continue to represent the people from the district in which they were elected. In People v. Pendegast, 96 Cal. 289, which involved the reapportionment following the 1890 Census, the court referred to this problem on page 294 where it stated:

"* * * In counties formerly in even but now in odd numbered districts, the voters will participate in the choice of Senators at this election, notwithstanding the Senators for whom they voted two years ago in their old districts hold over for two years longer. In other words, they will have double their fair and equal representatation in the Senate; while the voters in counties, like Yolo, which have been transferred from odd to even numbered districts will have no opportunity of participating in the choice of Senators at this election, notwithstanding the terms of the Senators chosen by them four years ago will have expired In other words, such counties will be deprived of their fair and equal share of representation in the Senate.

"Undoubtedly these are inconvenient and deplorable results, but it must be assumed that they were foreseen and deliberately accepted by the framers of the Constitution * * *"

Question No. 3

Will Congressmen and Members of the Legislature be eligible to run as incumbents at the first election following the re-formation of the districts?

Opinion

It is our opinion that an incumbent Congressman or Member of the Legislature cannot run as an incumbent unless the district in which he is running bears the same number as the district from which he was last elected.

Analysis

Section 6 of Article IV of our State Constitution provides in part that "each senatorial district shall choose one Senator and each assembly district shall choose one Member of Assembly." Therefore the office which each Senator and Assemblyman holds is that of Senator or Assemblyman from the district which elected him. The same principle applies to Congressmen (Cal. Const., Art. IV, Sec. 27 and Elec. C., Sec. 10500).

Section 3819 of the Elections Code, which governs the designation which appears under a candidate's name on the ballot provides that the word "incumbent" may be used only if the candidate is a candidate for the same office which he then holds. We therefore conclude that an incumbent Congressman or Member of the Legislature may use the word "incumbent" on the ballot only if he is running for re-election in a district which bears the same number as the district from which he was last elected.

This does not mean that a Congressman or Member of the Legislature who is running in a district, which because of the re-formation of districts now bears a different number, cannot have printed on the ballot the name of the office which he then holds since Section 3819 gives such a candidate the option of having one of the following designations printed on the ballot following his name:

* * * * * * *

"(a) Words designating the city, county, district or state office which the candidate then holds.

"In addition to the foregoing, Members of the Senate of the State of California may use either of the following designations: 'State Senator, _____ District, California Legislature' or 'Member of California Senate, _____ District,' or any other appropriate designation, the blanks to be filled with the appropriate district number.

"Members of the Assembly may use either of the following designations: 'Assemblyman, _____ District, California Legislature' or 'Member of the Assembly, _____ District, California Legislature,' or any other appropriate designation, the blanks to be filled with the appropriate district number.

"(c) Words designating the profession, vocation or occupation of the candidate which shall not exceed three in number. The profession, vocation or occupation so designated shall be the same as appears in the affidavit of registration of the candidate. No candidate shall assume a designation which would mislead the voters."

Assembly District No. 2681

Question

DEAR MR. WATERS: You have asked whether Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution, relating to reapportionment of legislative districts, requires that each assembly district after the first must be geographically located southward of the district preceding it in numerical order. That is to say, for example, if a bill was introduced which would locate Assembly District No. 10 20 miles south of Assembly District No. 20, would such a bill be invalid?

Opinion

We answer your question in the negative.

With respect to the numbering of assembly districts, it is our opinion that Section 6 of Article IV requires only that such districts be numbered from 1 to 80 in numerical order, commencing at the northern boundary of the State and ending at the southern boundary. We do not believe the Constitution requires that the north to south numbering pattern must be arranged between the first and eightieth district so that every district must be southward of its numerical predecessor.

Analysis

Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution provides that the State shall be divided into 40 senatorial and 80 assembly districts each 10 years on the basis of population for the purpose of choosing Members of the Legislature. Various requirements are imposed upon the Legislature in making the decennial reapportionment. The portion of Section 6 with which we are here concerned reads as follows:

> "The senatorial districts shall be numbered from 1 to 40, inclusive, in numerical order, and the assembly districts shall be numbered from 1 to 80 in the same order, commencing at the northern boundary of the State and ending at the southern boundary thereof." (Emphasis added)

To our knowledge, the above quoted part of Section 6 has never been construed by the courts.

The provisions of the Constitution are mandatory and prohibitory, unless by express words they are declared to be otherwise (Art. I, Sec 22). It is therefore clear that Assembly District No. 1 must be in the north and No. 80 in the south It does not follow, however, that a rigid geographical numbering pattern must be followed southerly from 1 to 80.

In redistricting the State in the past, the Legislature has established the policy of numbering assembly and senatorial districts in a general southerly direction Both Senatorial and Assembly Districts No. 1 have always been along the northern boundary of the State and Senatorial District No 40 and Assembly District No 80 have been located along the southern boundary. However, the Legislature has not in the past interpreted Section 6 of Article IV as requiring that every legislative district must be geographically south of its numerical predecessor. There have been many instances wherein a district located wholly or partly to the north of other districts has been given a higher number than one or more of its southerly neighbors. The present senatorial and assembly districts furnish convenient examples. Senatorial District No. 19 is wholly to the north of Senatorial Districts Nos. 16, 17, and 18, and is partly to the north of Senatorial District No. 15. The distance between No. 19 and No. 18 is well in excess of 20 miles. While no such separation occurs in the assembly districts, District 39 (Kern County) is northerly of District 38 (Ventura County). The same general situation existed under the 1931 Reapportionment.

This legislative construction is entirely reasonable, since the Constitution specifies only that the numbering must commence in the north and end in the south. No geographical numbering pattern is prescribed for achieving this result, but it naturally follows that the numbering will proceed generally southward.

We have referred to these precedents since in construing provisions of the Constitution legislative enactments have great significance. Although the Legislature cannot fix the meaning of the Constitution, and its interpretation is not controlling upon the court, where the meaning of a provision is doubtful, the contemporaneous and long standing construction thereof by the Legislature will be given great weight by the courts (Pacific Indemnity Co. vs. Industrial Accident Commission, 215 Cal. 461, 464; Delaney vs. Lowery, 25 Cal. 2d 561, 569).

Moreover, it is established that the presumption of constitutionality attaches to reapportionment acts in the same manner that it does to any other act of the Legislature, and any doubt as to the power of the Legislature to pass the particular act must result in a finding that the act is within the legislative power (People ex rel Heffernan vs Carlock (Ill.), 65 N.E. 109; Fletcher vs. Ruhe (Nev.), 52 Pac. 274; Warson vs. Howell (Wash.), 159 Pac. 777).

From all the foregoing, we conclude that the portion of Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution relating to the numbering of assembly districts would not be violated by a reapportionment act which located Assembly District No. 10 20 miles south of Assembly District No. 20. We believe that legal compliance with the Constitution can be achieved if the assembly districts are numbered in a pattern which in general proceeds southerly from No. 1 in the north to No. 80 in the south.

Reapportionment—No. 3229

DEAR MR WATERS: In reference to reapportionment of the representation of the State in Congress and the Legislature, you have asked certain questions which are set forth and considered separately below.

Question 1

Are Reapportionment Bills to be handled regularly as other bills, needing only a majority vote for passage, or are there special requirements concerning the procedure to be followed in the Legislature in processing such bills–

Opinion and Analysis

We are aware of no law or rule requiring a Reapportionment Bill to be processed in a manner different from other bills and are, therefore, of the opinion that it should be handled in each house of the Legislature in all respects just as any other bill and may be passed by a majority vote in each house.

Question 2

In forming assembly districts, may a city or town be divided?

Opinion

In our opinion this question should be answered in the affirmative, with the single exception of a city which is also a county and does not contain sufficient population within itself to form two or more assembly districts.

Analysis

With respect to assembly districts, Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution provides in part that no county, or city and county, shall be divided unless it contains sufficient population within itself to form two or more districts. There is no such prohibition relating to cities or towns. The only area comprising a city and county in California at the present time is San Francisco, and since it contains sufficient population within itself to form two or more assembly districts, it may be divided.

Question 3

Are there any circumstances under which an assembly district may include portions of two counties?

Opinion

We are of the opinion that this question should be answered in the negative.

Analysis

Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution provides in part that no portion of any county, or city and county, shall be united with any other county, or city and county, in forming any assembly district. The result of this prohibition is that while an assembly district may include several contiguous whole counties, it may not include parts of different counties under any circumstances.

Question 4

Can a congressional district be formed consisting of two and one-half counties?

Opinion

In our opinion such a district may validly be formed.

Analysis

Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution provides that any county, or city and county, with a population greater than the number required for one congressional district shall be formed into one or more districts, according to its population. The section further provides that any residue left after the formation of such congressional district or districts shall be attached by compact adjoining assembly districts to a contiguous county or counties to form another congressional district.

From the foregoing constitutional requirement, it is clear that a congressional district may consist of two and one-half counties. The situation would occur when it is found that a county has too many people for one congressional district, but not enough for two or more. The area remaining after forming one or more districts contained wholly within the county could then be attached to a contiguous county or counties to form another district. The area so attached might be half, or more or less than half, of the divided county, depending upon the circumstances.

An example of the operation of the above constitutional provision is found at present in the Twenty-first Congressional District. Approximately one-half of Los Angeles County is united with San Bernardino County to form the district. The lower approximate one-half of Los Angeles County comprises the Twelfth through the Twentieth Congressional Districts. If the upper half of Los Angeles County were united with Kern County as well as San Bernardino, an exact example of the situation in question would be afforded. Kern County is now, however, a part of the Tenth Congressional District.

ANALYSIS OF LAWS RELATING TO REAPPORTIONMENT—No. 2241

(COPY)

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, August 22, 1950

Congressional Districts

The provisions of law relating to reapportionment of congressional districts are Sections 2 and 4 of Article I of the United States Constitution, Section 2 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, the Federal Apportionment Act (2 U.S.C. Sec. 2a), and Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution.

Sections 2 and 4 of Article I of the United States Constitution and Section 2 of the Fourteenth Amendment provide that Representatives shall be apportioned among the several states according to their respective numbers, excluding Indians not taxed

The enumeration of population must be made once each 10 years. The number of Representatives can not exceed one for every 30,000 people, but each state is entitled to at least one Representative. The times, places, and manner of holding elections for Representatives is to be prescribed by each state legislature, but Congress may also make regulations relating thereto.

The House of Representatives consists of 435 members (Sections 2 and 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code). This number may be increased or decreased by act of Congress.

Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code provides for the time and manner of reapportionment of Representatives.

Under that section, the President will deliver to the Eighty-second Congress a statement of the number of Representatives to which each state will be entitled under an apportionment bsaed on the 1950 Census. This statement will be delivered to Congress within a week after it convenes in 1951. This date will probably be within one week after January 3, 1951, as Congress customarily convenes on January 3rd in accordance with the provisions of the Twentieth Amendment to the Federal Constitution. The governor of each state will then be notified within 15 days of the number of Representatives to which that state will be entitled in the 83rd Congress which will convene in 1953.

We have been unable to find any express direction in either the Constitution or laws of this State as to when the re-formation of congressional districts shall be made. Section 27 of Article IV of our Constitution prescribes how congressional districts shall be formed but it does not specify when. Presumably, however, the re-formation of congressional districts will be made by the Legislature during the 1951 General Session at the same time that the re-formation of senatorial and assembly districts takes place, since Section 10500 of the Elections Code provides that one Representative shall be elected for each congressional district at each general election and makes no provision for the election of Representatives at large.

Section 27 of Article IV of our Constitution which governs the formation of congressional districts provides:

1. When a congressional district is composed of two or more counties, it shall not be separated by a county belonging to another district.

2. No county, or city and county, shall be devided in forming a congressional district so as to attach one portion of a county, or city and county, to another county, or city and county, except in cases where one county, or city and county, has more population than the ratio required for one or more Congressmen.

3. The Legislature may divide any county, or city and county, into as many congressional districts as it may be entitled to by law.

4. Any county, or city and county, with a population greater than the number required for one congressional district shall be formed into one or more districts according to its population. Any residue left after the formation of such congressional district or districts, shall be attached by compact adjoining assembly districts, to a contiguous county or counties, to form another congressional district.

5. In dividing a county, or city and county, into congressional districts, no assembly district shall be divided so as to form a part of more than one congressional district.

6. Every congressional district shall be composed of compact contiguous assembly districts.

Until the congressional districts are re-formed after the reapportionment, the election of Representatives will be governed by subsection (c) of Section 2a, of Title 2 of the United States Code, which provides in part:

"(1) If there is no change in the number of Representatives, they shall be elected from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state, and if any of them are elected from the state at large they shall continue to be so elected;

(2) if there is an increase in the number of Representatives, such additional Representative or Representatives shall be elected from the state at large and the other Representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state;

(3) if there is a decrease in the number of Representatives but the number of districts in such state is equal to such decreased number of Representatives, they shall be elected from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state;

(4) if there is a decrease in the number of Representatives but the number of districts in such state is less than such number of Representatives, the number of Representatives by which such number of districts is exceeded shall be elected from the state at large and the other Representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state; or

(5) if there is a decrease in the number of Representatives and the number of districts in such state exceeds such decreased number of Representatives, they shall be elected from the state at large."

The present division of the state into congressional districts is made by Section 470 of the Government Code.

Senatorial and Assembly Districts

Section 6 of Article IV of our State Constitution governs the formation of senatorial and assembly districts.

Under that section, the Legislature will adjust the districts and reapportion the representation at the 1951 Regular Session of the Legislature. The 1950 Federal Census will serve as the basis for such adjustment. In making such adjustments no persons who are not eligible to become citizens of the United States under the naturalization laws, shall be counted as forming a part of the population of any district.

In the event that the Legislature fails to adjust the districts at the 1951 Regular Session, a Reapportionment Commission, consisting of the Lieutenant Governor (Chairman), the Attorney General, the State Controller, the Secretary of State, and the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, will forthwith make the adjustment, subject, however, to the same provisions of referendum as apply to acts of the Legislature.

A. Senatorial Districts. With particular reference to senatorial districts, Section 6 of Article IV provides:

1. The State shall be divided into 40 senatorial districts.
2. The senatorial districts shall be composed of contiguous territory.
3. Each senatorial district shall choose one senator.
4. The senatorial districts shall be numbered from 1 to 40, inclusive, in numerical order, commencing at the northern and ending at the southern boundary of the State.
5. In the formation of senatorial districts no county, or city and county, shall be divided, nor shall a part of any county, or city and county, be united with any other county, or city and county.
6. No county, or city and county, shall contain more than one senatorial district.
7. The counties of small population shall be grouped in senatorial districts of not to exceed three counties in any one district.

The present division of the State into senatorial districts is made by Section 480 of the Government Code.

B. Assembly Districts. With particular reference to assembly districts, Section 6 of Article IV provides:

1. The State shall be divided into 80 assembly districts.
2. The assembly districts shall be composed of contiguous territory.
3. Each assembly district shall choose one member of assembly.
4. The assembly districts shall be numbered from 1 to 80, inclusive, in numerical order, commencing at the northern and ending at the southern boundary of the State.
5. Assembly districts shall be as nearly equal in population as may be.
6. In the formation of assembly districts no county, or city and county, shall be divided unless it contains sufficient population within itself to form two or more districts.
7. No part of any county, or city and county, shall be united with any other county, or city and county, in forming any assembly district.

The present division of the State into assembly districts is made by Section 491 of the Government Code.

Reapportionment—No. 3412

DEAR MR. WATERS: You ask whether a reapportionment bill would be subject to the referendum

In our opinion it would.

Section 1 of Article IV of the California Constitution provides, with certain exceptions not here applicable, that no act passed by the Legislature shall go into effect until 90 days after the final adjournment of the session of the Legislature which passed it. The section also sets out the method by which the people may act on such a measure in an election if a petition is filed within the 90-day period We see no reason why these provisions are not applicable to a reapportionment act as well as to other acts.

The constitution preserves the referendum right of the people even in the event that the Legislature should fail to reapportion and the reapportionment is made by the Reapportionment Commission provided for in Section 6 of Article IV. The section specifically provides that in such an event the reapportionment shall be effective the same as if made by act of the Legislature and subject to the same provisions of referendum as apply to acts of the Legislature.

Reapportionment—No. 3370

DEAR MR. WATERS:

Question

You have asked the following question concerning the formation of congressional districts by the Legislature:

"In the formation of congressional districts, under what circumstances may the Legislature divide counties and assembly districts in order to secure the proper congressional district?

"For example, the Twenty-first Congressional District presently consists of one county and one assembly district in another county. Could the Legislature take only a portion of the county and a portion of the assembly district in an effort to carve out a proper congressional district? In another example, the Second Congressional District consists of a number of counties in one assembly district and then includes the County of Tehama from another assembly district. Could the Legislature in the formation of a congressional district take only half of Tehama County, for example, and include it with the other counties, Tehama not being a complete assembly district?"

In our opinion, the Legislature may divide any county which has a population greater than that necessary for one or more Congressmen. Any residue of population left after the formation of one or more congressional districts within a county must be attached by compact adjoining assembly districts to a contiguous county or counties to form another congressional district.

In dividing a county into two or more congressional districts, the Legislature may not also divide an assembly district so that it will form a part of more than one congressional district. We are of the opinion, however, that an assembly district may be divided so as to form a part of more than one congressional district if the division is made at county boundary lines, so that there will not also be a dividing of any county in the formation of that particular district.

With respect to the two specific questions posed by way of illustration, we answer each in the negative.

Analysis

Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution governs the formation of congressional districts. It reads as follows:

> "When a congressional district shall be composed of two or more counties, it shall not be separated by any county belonging to another district. No county, or city and county, shall be divided in forming a congressional district so as to attach one portion of a county, or city and county, to another county, or city and county, except in cases where one county, or city and county, has more population than the ratio required for one or more Congressmen; but the Legislature may divide any county, or city and county, into as many congressional districts as it may be entitled to by law. Any county, or city and county, containing a population greater than the number required for one congressional district shall be formed into one or more congressional districts, according to the population thereof, and any residue, after forming such district or districts, shall be attached by compact adjoining assembly districts, to a contiguous county or counties, and form a congressional district. In dividing a county, or city and county, into congressional districts no assembly district shall be divided so as to form a part of more than one congressional district, and every such congressional district shall be composed of compact contiguous assembly districts."

From the above-quoted provision of the Constitution it is clear that any county may be divided which contains enough people to form more than one congressional district, and that any residue of population left over after forming one or more districts within the county must be formed into another district with population from one or more contiguous counties. It is equally clear (from the last sentence of the above-quoted section) that in the process of dividing a county into congressional districts, no assembly district may be divided so as to form a part of more than one congressional district.

It does not follow, however, that the Legislature is prohibited from dividing assembly districts in the formation of a congressional district composed of one or more entire counties. The Constitution contains no express prohibition against such a procedure and we can see no reason for implying a prohibition in such a case. The present Second Congressional District furnishes an example of the situation in question. In the formation of this district, the Legislature grouped together 17 entire counties comprising the Second and Sixth Assembly Districts and one county (Tehama) from the Third Assembly District. The remaining three counties comprising the Third Assembly District serve as further examples, since two of them (Glen and Colusa) were placed in the First Congressional District and the other (Yolo) was placed in the Third Congressional District.

We turn now to your specific question with respect to the present Twenty-first Congressional District. This district consists of all of San Bernardino County and one entire assembly district in Los Angeles County. You ask whether a new congressional district could be formed by combining only a portion of San Bernardino County with a portion of the assembly district. We do not believe so. To do this would require dividing an assembly district and a county, and the Constitution, as pointed out above, prohibits the formation of a congressional district which divides both a county and an assembly district.

This problem would not arise, however, if the Legislature should first redistrict the portion of the present assembly district in Los Angeles County with which you are concerned into a separate assembly district which could then be attached in its entirety to a portion of San Bernardino County to form a valid congressional district.

Your second specific question concerns the present Second Congressional District. In this district as it is now constituted, Tehama County is combined with 17 other counties which comprise all of the Second and Sixth Assembly Districts. Tehama County is a part of the Third Assembly District. You ask whether this congressional district could be reformed by putting half of Tehama County in another congressional district. We do not believe so. This would require dividing Tehama County so as to attach one portion of it to one county or counties and another portion of it to another county or counties. Such a division is specifically prohibited by the second sentence of Section 27 of Article IV of the Constitution, quoted above, unless a county has more population than required for one or more Congressmen. Neither Tehama County nor any county contiguous to it apparently has sufficient population to cause it to fall within the exception.

Here, also, the objection would arise that in dividing Tehama County into two congressional districts, an assembly district would be divided.

Reapportionment—No. 5610

DEAR MR. WATERS:

Facts

The eastern boundary of County A is the western boundary of County B. Assembly District A-1 in County A is contiguous to Assembly District B-1 in County B. Assembly District A-2 in County A is contiguous to Assembly District B-2 in County B.

The diagram following illustrates the situation in question as described above.

COUNTY A COUNTY B

A-1	B-1
A-2	B-2

Question

Can two valid congressional districts be formed, one to consist of Assembly Districts A-1 and B-1, and the other of A-2 and B-2?

Opinion

In our opinion, the answer is negative.

Analysis

With respect to the formation of congressional districts, Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution provides in part as follows:

> "No county, or city and county, shall be divided in forming a congressional district so as to attach one portion of a county, or city and county, to another county, or city and county, except in cases where one county, or city and county, has more population than the ratio required for one or more congressmen; * * *."

The section also provides that if after formation of one or more congressional districts within a county, a residue of population remains, such residue may be attached by compact adjoining assembly districts to a contiguous county or counties to form another congressional district.

From the foregoing it appears clear that the formation of two congressional districts as contemplated by the fact situation presented would be unconstitutional as violative of the above-quoted portion of Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution, since no portion of either County A or County B is formed into an entire congressional district within either county, but rather each county is divided in the formation of both such congressional districts.

It should be noted, however, that if, for example, Assembly District A-1 contained sufficient population to form a congressional district, then the residue of population in A-2 could be attached to B-2 to form another congressional district.

Honorable Laughlin E. Waters

Reapportionment—No. 5774

DEAR MR. WATERS: You have asked the following four questions relating to reapportionment of congressional districts.

Questions

1. What is the authority for the Legislature to reapportion congressional districts?

2 Is there any provision in the California or United States Constitutions which would require the California Legislature to reapportion congressional districts at this session?

3. How would the new Congressmen to which California will be entitled under the 1950 Census figures be elected if the Legislature does not reapportion the congressional districts at this session or before the next congressional elections?

4. In the event the Legislature fails to reapportion the congressional districts at this session, would the Reapportionment Commission be authorized to do so?

Opinion

In our opinion:

1. The California Legislature is authorized to reapportion congressional districts at this session by the provisions of Sections 2 and 4 of Article I of the United States Constitution, Section 2 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, the Federal Apportionment Act (2 U. S. C., Sec. 2a), and Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution.

2. Although authorized, the Legislature is not required to reapportion congressional districts at this session Reapportionment of congressional districts may be made at any subsequent session of the Legislature prior to the next Decennial Federal Census, or not at all, as the Legislature chooses

3. The new Congressmen would be elected by the State at large.

4. The Reapportionment Commission would have no authority with respect to congressional districts.

Analysis

Sections 2 and 4 of Article I of the United States Constitution and Section 2 of the Fourteenth amendment thereto provide that Representatives shall be apportioned among the several states according to their respective numbers excluding Indians not taxed. The number of Representatives cannot exceed one for every 30,000 people but each state is entitled to at least one representative The times, places, and manner of holding elections for Representatives is to be prescribed by each State Legislature, but Congress may also make regulations relating thereto.

Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code provides for the time and manner for the reapportionment of Representatives in Congress This section provides the means by which Congress determines the number of Representatives to which each state is entitled based upon the population as established by the 1950 Federal Census It has been estimated that California will be entitled to approximately seven additional seats in Congress. There is nothing in this section, or in any other provision of federal law of which we are aware, which prescribes the times, places, or manner of holding elections of Congressmen within the several states Consequently, the task of providing places within this State from which additional Congressmen will be elected is left to the Legislature.

We have been unable to find any express prescription in either the Constitution or laws of this State as to when the re-formation of congressional districts shall be made. Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution prescribes how congressional districts shall be formed but it does not specify when. Presumably, however, the re-formation of congressional districts will be made by the Legislature during this session at the same time as the re-formation of senatorial and assembly districts takes place.

Should the Legislature not reapportion the congressional districts and provide new districts from which the new Congressmen may be elected, the provisions of subsection (c) of Section 2a, of Title 2 of the United States code, will come into operation to provide a method of electing the new Congressmen until such time as the California Legislature acts to establish new districts Subdivision (2) of subsection (c) of Section 2a, of Title 2 of the United States Code, provides as follows:

"(2) If there is an increase in the number of Representatives, such additional Representative or Representatives shall be elected from the State at large and the other Representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state;"

If the reapportionment of congressional districts is made by the Legislature at this session this provision of federal law will not become operative in so far as California is concerned. Should the Legislature not reapportion such districts at this session, the new Congressmen will be elected at large at each election until such time as redistricting by the Legislature take splace. No provision is made for any other agency to reapportion the congressional districts of California should the Legislature fail to do so. The Reapportionment Commission which is provided for in Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution will reapportion the senatorial and assembly districts should the Legislature fail so to do at this session. This commission has no authority over congressional districts.

OPINION No. 5177

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, March 9, 1951

Honorable Laughlin E. Waters
Assembly Chamber

Reapportionment—No. 5177

DEAR MR. WATERS. You have asked three questions relating to reapportionment of assembly and congressional districts which are set forth and considered separately below.

Question

Is the Legislature prohibited from reapportioning assembly and congressional districts more than once following each Decennial Federal Census?

Opinion

It is established case law in California that the Legislature may reapportion assembly districts but once following each Decennial Federal Census.

Whether or not this rule applies to congressional districts has never been established by the California courts. We are of the opinion, however, that the rule would probably also be applied to congressional districts, resulting in a holding that the legislative power to reform congressional districts can be exercised but once after each Census.

Analysis

In fixing and readjusting the boundaries of assembly districts, the Legislature acts pursuant to the provisions of Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution. The section provides in part as follows:

"The Census taken under the direction of the Congress of the United States in the year 1920 and every 10 years thereafter, shall be the basis of fixing and adjusting the legislative districts; and the Legislature shall, at its first regular session following the adoption of this section and thereafter at the first regular session following each Decennial Federal Census, adjust such districts, and reapportion the representation * * *."

In the cases of Wheeler vs. Herbert (152 Cal. 224) and Dowell vs. McLees (199 Cal 144) the California Supreme Court held that the provisions of Section 6 of Article IV, being mandatory and prohibitory, prohibit the Legislature from forming assembly districts more than once during the period between one United States Census and the succeeding one.

We have found only one case which has considered the same problem with respect to congressional districts. This was a case in the State of New York in 1918, which is discussed below, holding that more than one reapportionment of congressional districts each 10 years is valid

The provisions of law relating to reapportionment of congressional districts are Sections 2 and 4 of Article I of the United States Constitution, Section 2 of the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, the Federal Apportionment Act (2 U. S. C. Sec 2a), and Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution

The federal laws referred to above require the President to inform Congress after each Census of the number of Representatives in Congress to which each state is entitled based upon the populations of each as determined by the Census. The Clerk of the House of Representatives then notifies the governor of each state of the number of Representatives to which it is entitled. This procedure has occurred.

The places within each state from which the various Representatives to which it may be entitled are elected are determined by the state legislatures (Art. I, Sec. 4, U. S. Constitution).

Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution is the only California law which relates to the reapportionment of congressional districts. That section specifies the geographical limitations on the formation of congressional districts, but it contains nothing specifying when or how often a re-formation of such districts shall take place.

Therefore, we are aware of nothing in the federal or California law which specifies when the reapportionment of congressional districts must be made. Presumably, it will be made by the Legislature during the present session, although there appears to be no requirement that it be made at this session.

The specific language of Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution (quoted above) which specifies when the reapportionment of assembly and senatorial districts shall be made, plus the provisions in the section establishing a Reapportionment Commission to act in the event the Legislature fails to do so in the first session following the Census, are absent from, and have no application to, the provisions of Section 27 of Article IV, which specifies the manner in which congressional districts shall be formed.

It was the restrictive language of Section 6 of Article IV upon which the Supreme Court based its holdings in the Wheeler and Dowell cases. Although this express language is absent from the provisions relating to congressional districts, it is our opinion that the federal laws relating to reapportionment impliedly prohibit the state legislatures form re-defining the boundaries of the congressional districts therein more often than once each 10 years.

The fundamental basis of the readjustment of the representation in the United States House of Representatives is the population of the states as determined each 10 years in the Census. All reapportionment is based upon these population figures, and these figures remain the basis for legislative and congressional representation for the next 10 years.

Pursuant to its powers under Section 4 of Article I of the United States Constitution, by which it is given the power to make laws relating to the time, places, and manner of election of Representatives, the Congress has enacted from time to time various statutes relating to reapportionment of congressional districts within the states. Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code (known as the Permanent Reapportionment Act) presently provides the method of election of Congressmen in each state after a Federal Decennial Census and until the state has redefined the boundaries of the congressional districts therein. The fact that the Census is the basis of all reapportionment, that it occurs only once in each 10 years, and that the Peramnent Reapportionment Act provides for the manner of electing Congressmen after each Census and until the states are redistricted after each Census, raises a strong implication in our opinion that redistricting is to occur only once, if at all, in each state following each Census. It is difficult to perceive upon what valid premise a state legislature could base a second redistricting, since the official population figures upon which the first would be based would remain the same until the next Decennial Federal Census.

Consequently, we believe it to be probable that the California Supreme Court would reach the same result with respect to congressional districts as it did with regard to assembly and senatorial districts in the Wheeler and Dowell cases, but upon the grounds of the implied restriction in the federal law rather than upon any specific provision of the California Constitution.

An opposite holding is of course possible, since no specific prohibition exists.

The Court of Appeals of New York, in the case of People vs Voorhis (119 N E. 106), decided in 1918, found nothing express or implied in the law to prohibit the New York Legislature from partially redistricting the congressional districts of the state by statute in 1917 when an entire reapportionment of congressional districts had been made by statute in 1911, based upon the 1910 Census. The court held that the power of the New York Legislature under federal law was not exhausted when it reapportioned in 1911 and that it had a continuing duty to maintain the congressional districts in such a from that they contain as nearly as practicable an equal population. This was at that time a requirement of federal law. There is no longer such a federal requirement.

Concerning the federal law at that time, the New York court stated (at p. 108):

> "The language used in the congressional act indicates as clearly as anything can that Congress in its enactment took into consideration the fact that after a state had once been divided into congressional districts, by reason of shifting population, it might, from time to time, become necessary to redistrict it in order fully to comply with the intent and purpose of the act"

There were two dissenting opinions in the case which pointed out that the theory of reapportionment with every shift in population from year to year did not appear to be contained in either the Federal Constitution or Laws, but that to the contrary the Constitution and federal law appeared to contemplate but one reapportionment based upon the population as ascertained by the Census each 10 years, and that there was no machinery provided for determining population for the purpose of reapportionment more than each 10 years.

We are inclined to believe that the California Supreme Court would reason along the lines of the dissenting opinions of the New York case. Furthermore, there is no longer a requirement in the federal law that congressional districts be as nearly equal in population as possible. We, therefore, conclude that the court would probably hold that congressional districts, like assembly districts, may be reformed but once each 10 years.

We do not believe, however, that such a ruling would prevent the Legislature from amending a reapportionment law at a later date to correct technical defects to errors which might appear in the legal description of boundaries.

Question 2

If a congressional or assembly district is abolished and reconstituted in another area, the new district being given the same number as the abolished district, can the incumbent of the old district (assuming he meets all the residential qualifications of the new district) run on the ballot as the "incumbent" of the new district?

Opinion and Analysis

In our opinion this question should be answered in the affirmative.

Section 6 of Article IV of our State Constitution provides in part that "each assembly district shall choose one Member of Assembly." Therefore, the office which each Assemblyman holds is that of Assemblyman from the district which elected him. The same principle applies to Congressmen (Calif. Const., Art. IV, Sec. 27 and Elec. C. Sec. 10500).

Section 3819 of the Elections Code, which governs the designation which appears under a candidate's name on any ballot provides that the word "incumbent" may be used only if the candidate is a candidate for the same office which he then holds. We, therefore, conclude that an incumbent Congressman or Member of the Legislature may use the word "incumbent" on the ballot only if he is running for re-election in a district which bears the same number as the district from which he was last elected.

Question 3

Where two assembly or congressional districts are consolidated into one, may both of the incumbents of the old districts run in the new district on the ballot as "incumbents"?

Opinion and Analysis

We believe this question should be answered in the negative.

As pointed out above in the analysis of Question No. 2, we believe that an incumbent Congressman or Member of the Legislature may use the word "incumbent" on the ballot only if he is running for re-election in a district which bears the same number as the district from which he was last elected. Under the facts presented by this question, it would be impossible for one or the other of the incumbents to comply with this requirement, since the new district could not have the same number as both the old districts which it replaced.

This does not mean, however, that a Congressman or Assemblyman who is running in a district, which because of the reformation bears a different number, cannot have printed on the ballot the name of the office which he then holds, since Section 3819 of the Elections Code gives candidates the option of having one of the following designations printed on the ballot following his name:

"* * *

"Members of the Assembly may use either of the following designations: 'Assemblyman, _____ District, California Legislature' or 'Member of the Assembly, _____ District, California Legislature,' or any other appropriate designation, the blanks to be filled with the appropriate district number.

"Words designating the profession, vocation or occupation of the candidate which shall not exceed three in number * * *"

Pursuant to the above-quoted provisions, an incumbent Assemblyman who is running in a district with a different number than the district of which he is an incumbent may have the fact that he is an Assemblyman from a given numbered district printed on the ballot. An incumbent Congressman could state his occupation as "Member of Congress," "Representative in Congress," or with other appropriate language, not exceeding three words.

OPINION No. 5553

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, March 12, 1951

Honorable Laughlin E. Waters
Assembly Chamber

Reapportionment—No. 5553

DEAR MR. WATERS: You have asked three questions relating to the effects of reapportionment which are set forth and discussed separately below:

Question No. 1

In the elections of 1952 which districts will be used? That is, will the elections be held in the new districts adopted at this session or not?

Opinion

In our opinion the elections held in 1952 will be held in the new districts adopted at this session of the Legislature.

Analysis

Reapportionment statutes enacted at this session will become effective 90 days after final adjournment of the Legislature. The new districts will come into existence at that time.

Representatives in Congress are elected for a term of two years (U. S. Const., Art. I, Sec. 2, Cl. 1). They are chosen in even-numbered years (Title 2, U.S.C., Sec. 7) and take office on January 3 in odd-numbered years (U. S. Const., Amend XX).

Accordingly, the new congressional districts will begin to operate with the election in 1952 of representatives who will take office in 1953.

Terms of office of members of the Legislature are prescribed in Article IV of the California Constitution which provides that the term of office is four years for Senators (Sec. 4) and two years for Assemblymen (Sec. 3). The re-formed districts will thus serve as the basis for the election of Senators and Assemblymen at the 1952 primary and general elections. Since the terms of only half of the Senators expire in 1952, the remaining half will be elected on the basis of the re-formed districts in 1954 and will take office in 1955.

Question No. 2

What districts should be used for the purpose of special elections to fill vacancies occurring prior to the 1952 elections for Congressmen, Assemblymen, and State Senators?

Opinion and Analysis

In our opinion a special election to fill a vacant congressional or State legislative seat should be held in the district as it existed at the time of election of the person who has vacated the office. It was so decided by the California Supreme Court with respect to a congressional vacancy in the case of Sloan v. Donoghue, 20 Cal. 2d 607.

We see no reason why this same rule should not be applied in the case of Assembly and senatorial seats.

Question No. 3

How are the number of delegates to the party national conventions determined?

Opinion

The number of delegates to the party national conventions are determined by the national rules of each political party.

Analysis

Section 2050 of the Elections Code provides that the chairman of the state central committee of each political party qualified to participate in the presidential primary shall notify the Secretary of State on or before the first day in March immediately preceding the presidential primary as to the number of delegates to represent the State in the next national convention of the party.

Section 2052 provides that if a chairman of a state central committee fails to file a notice of the number of delegates, the Secretary of State shall ascertain the number from the call for the national convention issued by the national committee of the party. Section 2053 requires the Secretary of State in turn to notify the county clerks of the number of delegates to be elected by each political party.

The method by which the national committee of each party determines the number of delegates to its national convention to which each state is entitled is a matter of rule of the particular party, rather than a matter of law.

The national rules of the Democratic Party provide that in the Democratic convention each state is entitled to twice as many delegates as it has presidential electors, plus two delegates at large if it went democratic at the last presidential election

The rules of the Republican Party provide that each state is entitled to four delegates at large; two for each Congressman at large; one for each congressional district having cast at least 1,000 Republican votes, and an additional one if it cast 10,000 Republican votes; and a bonus of three delegates at large if it went Republican at the last presidential election or if it later elected a Republican United States Senator California is entitled to seven new Congressmen under the reapportionment based upon the 1950 federal census. Accordingly, the State is also entitled to seven additional presidential electors (U. S Const., Art. II, Sec 1).

It would appear, therefore, that the State is entitled to seven new delegates at the next Democratic national convention, pursuant to the present rules of that party

Under the rules of the Republican Party, however, it would appear that California will have no additional delegates to the national convention based upon the number of additional Congressmen to which the State is entitled, since it will be impossible to determine how many new delegates should be authorized until the number of votes in the new congressional districts (which we assume will be formed at this session for the purpose of the 1952 elections) is established. This cannot be ascertained until after the 1952 elections, which will occur subsequent to the national convention. Accordingly, as we interpret the rules of the Republican Party, the number of delegates to the national convention from California will be determined on the basis of the congressional districts of California as they existed before the reapportionment, unless such rules are amended to provide otherwise.

Hon. George J. Hatfield
Senate Chamber

Reapportionment—No. 5810

DEAR SENATOR HATFIELD: You have asked whether Congress has the authority to place restrictions on the manner in which a state is divided into congressional districts

In our opinion it has.

Section 4 of Article I of the United States Constitution provides in part as follows:

> "The times, places, and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives, shall be prescribed in each state by the Legislature thereof; but the Congress may at any time by law make or alter such regulations, except as to the places of choosing Senators."

It is well established by decisions of the United States Supreme Court that the above-quoted constitutional provision gives Congress general supervisory power over the subject of elections of Representatives in Congress, including the manner in which a state is divided into congressional districts (Smiley v. Holm, 285 U. S. 355; Ex parte Siebold, 100 U. S 371; Ex parte Yarbrough, 110 U. S. 651).

From time to time there have existed requirements in the federal law that congressional districts be as nearly equal as possible in population. There is no such federal law at the present time (Wood v. Broom, 287 U. S. 1; Colegrove v. Green, 328 U. S. 549).

OPINION No. 5772

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, March 12, 1951

Honorable Laughlin E Waters
Assembly Chamber

Reapportionment—No. 5772

DEAR MR WATERS.

Question

• You have asked whether reapportionment of Congressional and Assembly districts in California must be based upon the federal census figures, and if so, may the Legislature use the preliminary enumeration figures issued by the Federal Census Bureau, or must reapportionment await the final revised totals?

Opinion

In our opinion the population figures used by the Legislature in redefining the Congressional and Assembly districts must be the official census figures issued by the United States Bureau of the Census. We believe the reapportionment may be based upon the official preliminary census figures now available to the Legislature

Analysis

With respect to Assembly districts, the California Constitution provides in Section 6 of Article IV that the census taken under the direction of Congress each 10 years shall be the basis of fixing and adjusting such districts, and that the Legislature shall adjust such districts "at the first regular session following each decennial federal census."

It is clear, therefore, that the federal census figures must be the basis for adjusting Assembly districts.

It is equally clear from the provisions of the Federal Constitution relating to reapportionment (Art. I, Secs. 2 and 4; 14th Amend., Sec. 2), the federal permanent reapportionment act (U. S. C., Tit 2. Sec. 2a), and Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution, that the decennial federal census is the basis for establishment of Congressional districts.

The decennial federal census is, of course, a count and enumeration of the number of people residing in the United States, and within the states and counties thereof. This count was last made in 1950, and the official enumeration by the census bureau has been made, showing the population of the various states, Congressional districts, counties and other political subdivisions The final official population count has been published by the census bureau with respect to the total United States population and the totals for the various states. Preliminary official totals for counties and various other political subdivisions have been published These figures represent the actual number of persons enumerated in each such area, but the census bureau reports that the final population totals may differ from the actual enumeration made therein by a small number because of the allocation to the place of usual residence of persons who were enumerated elsewhere, the inclusion of crews of vessels docked within an area but not included in the preliminary count, and because of other minor revisions These revisions are not expected to cause the actual enumeration totals heretofore published to vary by more than 2 percent in any area These final revised figures may not be available, it is reported, until after July 1 of this year.

We are of the opinion, therefore, that for the purposes of redefining the boundaries of Assembly and Congressional districts pursuant to federal and state law, the official figures of the census bureau heretofore published giving population totals for California counties as actually enumerated by the census bureau may be used by the Legislature, and that reapportionment bills based upon such figures would be constitutional.

OPINION No. 5852

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, March 21, 1951

Honorable Laughlin E. Waters
Assembly Chamber

Reapportionment—No. 5852

DEAR MR WATERS:

Question

You have requested our opinion as to the legally permissible variation in population among Congressional Districts and among Assembly Districts.

Opinion

It is our opinion that, there being no express federal or state limitations on the size of Congressional Districts, such districts may vary by many tens of thousands, and possibly by several hundreds of thousands in population.

With regard to Assembly Districts, we are of the opinion that considerable variation in population is permissible and that only a disparity so great in a given instance as to be patently in violation of the requirement of the California Constitution that Assembly Districts be "as nearly equal as may be," within the geographical limitations imposed by the Constitution in the formation of such districts, would be held violative of the California Constitution and invalid

Congressional Districts

There are at present no federal constitutional or statutory restrictions on the Legislature in the formation of Congressional Districts. Furthermore, the United States Supreme Court held in 1946 that apportionment disputes are political questions and not within the jurisdiction of federal courts (Colegrove v. Green, 328 U. S 549). This decision will, of course, not deprive the California courts of jurisdiction to construe provisions of the California Constitution.

The limitations imposed upon the Legislature by the California Constitution in the formation of Congressional Districts are contained in Section 27 of Article IV. Although such districts are based upon population, the Constitution prescribes no minimum or maximum limitations upon the size However, the fact that the districts must be based upon population would tend to indicate that some average optimum figure is to be adopted as the ideal to be reached where possible within the geographical limitations imposed by the Constitution in the drawing of district boundaries.

Although we have no California decisions as guides, the courts of other states have considered the validity of Congressional reapportionment acts on several occasions.

The case of Richardson v. McChesney ([Ky.] 108 S. W. 322) held that the validity of an act apportioning Congressional seats was a political question. However, the Kentucky Constitution contained no restrictions of any sort upon the legislative power.

In Brown v. Saunders ([Va.] 166 S E. 105) the court construed provisions in the Virginia Constitution requiring Congressional Districts to be contiguous, compact, and as nearly as possible equal in population .The districts established by the Legislature ranged in population from 336,654 to 183,934. The court held that whether such express Constitutional limitations had been exceeded is a question for judicial determination. The act was held void on the grounds that there had been no bona fide attempt to make districts even approximately equal in population.

The above two cases are representative of the approach to apportionment litigation which is taken by the courts where there is either no restriction of any sort upon the Legislature or where there is an express restriction in the Constitution.

California has neither a complete absence of Constitutional restrictions of the Legislature in apportioning Congressional situations (as was the situation in the Richardson case) nor an express requirement that Congressional districts be as nearly equal in population as practicable (as was the situation in the Brown case).

There being no express restriction on the California Legislature with respect to population variations among congressional districts, there remains the question whether the California courts would find any restriction of this type implied in the Constitution.

Section 27 of Article IV of our Constitution provides in part:

> "No county, or city and county, shall be divided in forming a congressional district so as to attach one portion of a county, or city and county, to another county, or city and county, except in cases where one county, or city and county, has more population than the ratio required for one or more congressmen; * * *"

The words "ratio required for one or more congressmen" would seem to indicate that the Constitution contemplates some ideal average figure which will be used by the Legislature as the norm in realigning congressional districts.

In the case of Moran v. Bowley ([Ill.] 179 N.E. 526) the Illinois court said in a dictum that the 1911 congressional apportionment would be invalid because of a state constitutional requirement that elections be "free and equal" The court stated that no election could be "equal" when the districts varied in population from 541,000 to 158,000.

However, later decisions in Illinois indicate that the dictum of the Moran case is not followed in that state. The court noted in Daly v. County of Madison ([Ill.] 38 N. E. 2d, 160), when construing the 1940 reapportionment, that it found no limitations in the Illinois Constitution. It did not refer to the "free and equal election" provisions. The reapportionment act of 1940 was upheld on the grounds that absolute equality in population cannot be attained. The districts varied from 112,116 to 914,053 in population.

From the foregoing it will be seen that it cannot be stated with any degree of certainty that the California courts would or would not imply from the language of Section 27 of Article IV of our Constitution a requirement that congressional districts must be as nearly equal as practicable in population within the other restrictions placed upon the Legislature in drawing the lines.

It can be stated with little room for doubt, however, that even should such a restriction be implied, the permissible variation in population would run well into the tens, if not the hundreds, of thousands.

Assembly Districts

Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution expressly requires Assembly Districts to be "as nearly equal in population as may be"

Similar restrictions are imposed upon the legislatures of many of the other states by their constitutions.

Although we have no judicial consideration of the above provision in our own Constitution, there have been many decisions in other states construing such limitations.

The majority view is that the validity of an apportionment act so controlled by the Constitution does not involve a political question, and is therefore subject to the jurisdiction of the courts A reapportionment act carries with it a presumption of constitutionality, as does any other act of the Legislature, and it therefore will be stricken down by the courts only when it clearly appears that in the formation of any district the requirement of compactness of territory and equality of population has been wholly ignored or has not been considered or applied at all to any extent. (People ex rel Woodyatt v. Thompson, 40 N.E. 307; Meighen v. Weathcrill, 147 N.W. 105; 2 A.L.R. 1337, 1340).

OPINION No. 5959

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, March 21, 1951

Honorable Laughlin E. Waters
Assembly Chamber

Reapportionment—No. 5959

DEAR MR WATERS:

Question

You have asked the following two questions relating to the order in which the names of candidates for Assemblyman and Congressman will be printed upon the ballot in elections held in the new assembly and congressional districts which will be established by the Legislature at this session.

1. In a new assembly district with different boundaries than the old district of the name number, in what order will the names of the candidates be printed on the ballot?

2. In a new congressional district which does not have the same number as any previous district, in what order will the names be printed?

Opinion

1. With respect to a new assembly district, the name of the incumbent will be printed first on the ballot. The incumbent will be that Member of the Assembly who is running for re-election in a district which bears the same number as the district from which he was last elected. Following the incumbent will appear the names of all other candidates in alphabetical order.

2. In a new congressional district which has a number different from that of any previous district, the names of candidates will be arranged in alphabetical order for that assembly district which is lowest in numerical order of any assembly district in which the candidates are to be voted on. Thereafter, for each succeeding assembly district in which the candidates are to be voted on, the name appearing first for that office in the last preceding district will be placed last, the order of the other names remaining unchanged.

Analysis

Section 3802 of the Elections Code provides that the name of the incumbent shall appear first upon the ballot in a list of all candidates for any office.

Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution provides in part that "each assembly district shall choose one Member of Assembly." Therefore, for the purpose of election, the office which each assemblyman holds is that of assemblyman from the district which elected him. The same principle applies to congressmen (Calif. Const. Art. IV, Sec. 27 and Elec. C. Sec. 10500).

Section 3819 of the Elections Code which governs the designation which appears under a candidates' name on the ballot provides that the word "incumbent" may be used only if the candidate is a candidate for the same office which he then holds. We, therefore, conclude that an incumbent congressman or Member of the Legislature may use the word "incumbent" on the ballot only if he is running for re-election in a district which bears the same number as the district from which he was last elected.

Section 3809 of the Elections Code provides that for the offices of State Senator and Assemblyman the names of all candidates other than the incumbents shall be placed on the ballot in alphabetical order.

Of course, in the seven new congressional districts to which California is entitled, there can be no incumbent. Therefore, Section 3806 of the Elections Code will control the position of the names on the ballot of all candidates in each of the new congressional districts. This section provides as follows:

"If the office is that of Representative in Congress, or is an office the candidates for nomination to which are to be voted on in more than one county, but not throughout the entire State, except the office of State Senator or Assemblyman, the Secretary of State shall arrange the names of all candidates other than incumbents for that office in alphabetical order for that assembly district which is lowest in numerical order of any Assembly district in which the candidates are to be voted on. Thereafter for each succeeding assembly district in which the candidates are to be voted on, the name appearing first for that office in the last preceding district shall be placed last, the order of the other names remaining unchanged."

OPINION No. 5773

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, March 22, 1951

Honorable Laughlin E. Waters
Assembly Chamber

Reapportionment—No. 5773

DEAR MR. WATERS: You have asked us to define the legal nature of a State Assemblyman; that is, whether he is a state officer, constitutional officer, or otherwise, and does he represent the entire State while in the Legislature, or only a given area.

In the case of Rich v Industrial Accident Commission (Jan. 1940), 36 Cal. App. 2d 628, the question was whether a State Senator could receive an award from the Industrial Accident Commission for injuries received in an automobile accident while en route from the funeral of a deceased fellow Senator. The injured Senator had been appointed by the Lieutenant Governor to be a member of a special committee to attend the funeral on behalf of the Senate.

In setting aside the award which granted nothing to the injured Senator, the court stated:

"That members of the Legislature are considered officers of the State during their entire term of office is evidenced by certain constitutional limitations such as accepting other office, (Article IV, Section 19) and their manner of payment of salary (Article IV, Section 23)."

The California District Court of Appeal case of Wilson v. Waters (June 1941), 112 Pac. 2d 965, established that a judge of the municipal court of the City of Los Angeles was a constitutional officer of the State of California and therefore could not have his salary subject to garnishment. In that case it is stated:

"* * * Constitutional officers are persons who duly occupy by appointment or election constitutional offices * * * In addition to the foregoing authorities it is interesting to note that as early as 1897 our Supreme Court stated in Church v. Colgan, 117 Cal. 685, 687, 50 p. 12, 'There is no such office as a constitutional judge as contradistinguished from a legislative judge. Both are provided for by the constitution, and in that sense are constitutional officers.'"

American Jurisprudence, in defining constitutional offices, states as follows:

"A constitutional office is one created by the United States Constitution or by a state Constitution, as distinguished from an office created by statute, or from an office which, like that of notary public, has existed in nearly all countries for centuries. In a certain sense, an office may be considered a constitutional office when the appointment or election thereto is provided for in the Constitution." (Emphasis added.)

It states the following in defining State offices:

"We are concerned here with the question as to what constitutes a particular office a state office and its incumbent a state officer. A state officer has been defined as one whose field for the exercise of his jurisdiction, duties, and powers is coextensive with the limits of the State, and extends to every part of it. But in a more enlarged legal sense, he is one who receives his authority under the laws of the State, and whose duties concern the State at large or the general public, even though they may be exercised in a territory not coextensive with the State. The powers reposed in a state officer have, of necessity, some connection with the legislative, judicial, or executive departments of the State Government. The following officers, among others, have been adjudged to be state officers: a representative in the State Legislature; a county commissioner; a member of a state board of legal examiners; a state veterinarian; a tax commissioner; a notary public; and other officers." (42 Am. Jur., Secs. 18, 20, pp. 894, 895, 896.) (Emphasis added.)

It appears, therefore, that an Assemblyman qualifies as a constitutional officer inasmuch as his office is created and limited by the Constitution; however, he also acts as a state officer since his jurisdiction, duties, and powers are coextensive with the limits of the State and extend to every part of it.

In our search to determine whether a State Assemblyman represents his district or the entire State, we can find no California cases that have adjudicated this point. However, in the Delaware case of State v. Corley, 172 A. 415, when the court was deciding whether a citizen and taxpayer was qualified to institute proceedings to compel the Lieutenant Governor to issue writs of election for the purpose of filling three vacancies alleged to exist in the State Senate, the court stated:

"While a senaor must be elected from a particular district, yet, upon his election and qualification he becomes a senator of the State of Delaware, and his acts, as such, affect the entire state."

That a State Assemblyman represents the entire State, is based on the fact that a State Constitution is an all-inclusive state document; though an Assemblyman represents his district, that is based on the practical logic of having to represent an area from which he is elected As has been established in our federal cases McPherson v. Blacker, 13 Sup. Ct. 3, 36 L. Ed. 869), the district rather than the state-at-large method of electing a congressman is merely a method of convenience for the electorate.

Question

DEAR MR. CLOYED: You have directed our attention to the composition of the Thirtieth Congressional District as proposed in Assembly Bill No 42 as amended in Assembly March 22, 1951. The Thirtieth Congressional District as proposed in the bill would consist of all that portion of the County of San Diego comprising the Seventy-eighth, Seventy-ninth and Eightieth Assembly Districts as said assembly districts are proposed in Assembly Bill No. 41 as amended in Assembly March 22, 1951. You state that it does not appear to you from the descriptions of the proposed Seventy-eighth, Seventy-ninth and Eightieth Assembly Districts contained in Assembly Bill No 41 that either the Seventy-eighth or Seventy-ninth Assembly Districts would be in geographical contact at any point with the Eightieth Assembly District.

You ask whether, if this be true, the Thirtieth Congressional District as proposed in Assembly Bill No. 42 would be invalid as violative of the California Constitution.

Opinion

If neither the Seventy-eighth nor the Seventy-ninth Assembly Districts as proposed in Assembly Bill No. 41 are in geographical contact with the Eightieth Assembly District as proposed in that bill, we are of the opinion that the Thirtieth Congressional District as proposed in Assembly Bill No. 42, as amended in Assembly March 22, 1951, would be unconstitutional.

Analysis

Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution provides in part as follows: "In dividing a county, or city and county, into congressional districts no assembly district shall be divided so as to form a part of more than one congressional district, and every such congressional district shall be composed of compact contiguous assembly districts."

The word "contiguous" has been construed by the courts in many instances and in many contexts. With respect to its use in constitutional provisions relating to the apportionment of legislative districts, the weight of judicial authority is to the effect that the word means an actual contact or touching. (See cases collected in 9 Words and Phrases at page 90.)

Assembly Bill No. 42 as amended in Assembly March 22, 1951, would divide the County of San Diego into two congressional districts. One such district would be created by attaching the Seventy-seventh Assembly District as proposed in Assembly Bill No. 41 as amended, to the County of Orange, to which the Seventy-seventh Assembly District would be contiguous. The other congressional district would be formed of the Seventy-eighth, Seventy-ninth and Eightieth Assembly Districts. This would be the Thirtieth Congressional District.

From our study of the wording of Assembly Bill No. 41, it appears clear that the Seventy-eighth and Seventy-ninth Assembly Districts as proposed therein are contiguous. The Seventy-eighth Assembly District is clearly not contiguous with the Eightieth Assembly District. Therefore, unless the Seventy-ninth Assembly District is contiguous with the Eightieth Assembly District, the Thirtieth Congressional District as proposed in Assembly Bill No. 42 as amended in Assembly March 22, 1951, would appear to violate the above quoted constitutional restriction.

We are unable to ascertain from a reading of the descriptions of the Seventy-seventh, Seventy-ninth and Eightieth Assembly Districts contained in Assembly Bill No. 41 and from a perusal of the maps available to us of the San Diego-National City area whether or not the Seventy-ninth Assembly District is contiguous to the Eightieth Assembly District. More specifically, in the absence of a detailed knowledge of the area concerned, we are unable to ascertain whether or not the southernmost portion of the Seventy-ninth Assembly District as described in Assembly Bill No. 41 is in physical contact with the northernmost boundary of the Eightieth Assembly District as that district is described in the bill. The area of doubt is that territory lying south of National City in the Sweetwater Precincts.

However, if, as you state, neither the Seventy-eighth nor the Seventy-ninth Assembly Districts are at any point in physical contact with the Eightieth Assembly District as said districts are defined in Assembly Bill No. 41, the conclusion follows that the Thirtieth Congressional District as proposed in Assembly Bill No. 42, would be in violation of Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution and consequently invalid.

Reapportionment—No. 6272

DEAR MR. CLOYED: In our opinion to you of March 25, 1950 (Reapportionment No. 6272), we stated that if the 78th, 79th, and 80th Assembly Districts as proposed in Assembly Bill No. 41 were not contiguous (i.e., did not actually touch each other), the 30th Congressional District as proposed in Assembly Bill No. 42 would be unconstitutional, since it is composed of the aforementioned assembly districts, and since the Constitution requires such a congressional district to be composed of contiguous Assembly districts.

We stated in our opinion that we were unable to ascertain from the legal description of the districts and the maps available to us whether or not the three assembly districts were contiguous.

Further investigation into the problem has disclosed that the three assembly districts in question are in geographic contact and are therefore contiguous. This is due to the fact that San Diego Bay is included within the 80th Assembly District as that district is defined in Assembly Bill No. 41. The bill describes the 80th Assembly District as "all that portion of the County of San Diego not included within the Seventy seventh, Seventy-eighth, and Seventy-ninth Assembly Districts."

Since writing the opinion referred to above, it has come to our attention that San Diego Bay is a part of the County of San Diego (Gov. C. 23137). Therefore, San Diego Bay is a part of the 80th Assembly District as proposed and described in Assembly Bill No. 41. This, in turn, would cause both the 78th and 79th Assembly Districts to be contiguous to the 80th Assembly District, since actual physical joinder is present.

Accordingly, it now appears that the 30th Congressional District as proposed in Assembly Bill No. 42 would be composed of contiguous assembly districts as required by Section 27 of Article IV of the California Constitution and would therefore be valid.

Reapportionment—No. 6989

DEAR MR. WATERS:

Question

You have asked two questions relating to reapportionment of congressional districts

1. If a proper referendum petition is filed with the Secretary of State within 90 days after final adjournment of the Legislature asking that an act of the Legislature reapportioning the congressional districts of the State be submitted to the electors for their approval or rejection, would the referendum appear on the ballot at the November, 1952, general election, or would it be on the ballot at an intervening special election?

2. If at the referendum election the electors reject the act of the Legislature reapportioning the congressional districts of the State, how will congressmen be elected?

Opinion

1. The referendum would be submitted to the electors at the November, 1952, general election unless the Governor should call a special election for this purpose prior thereto.

2. It is our opinion that if an act of the Legislature reapportioning the congressional districts of the State should be presented to the people for approval or rejection at the November, 1952, general election, congressmen from this State would be elected at that election from the presently existing congressional districts, with seven additional congressmen elected from the State at large. If the question should be presented to the people at a prior special election called for that purpose by the Governor, and the act is rejected by the people, congressmen would be elected from the presently existing districts, with seven additional congressmen elected from the State at large, unless prior to the November, 1952, general election a reapportionment act establishing new congressional districts, either initiated by the people or enacted by the Legislature at a special session, should become effective prior to that general election.

Analysis

In Section 1 of Article IV of the California Constitution it is provided that upon presentation to the Secretary of State within 90 days after final adjournment of the Legislature of a petition certified to have been signed by qualified electors equal in number to 5 percent of all the votes cast for all candidates for Governor at the last preceding general election at which a Governor was elected, asking that any act or section or part of any act of the Legislature be submitted to the electors for approval or rejection, the Secretary of State shall submit such act or part of such act to the electors for approval or rejection at the next succeeding general election occurring at any time subsequent to 30 days after the filing of the petition or at any special election which may be called by the Governor, in his discretion, prior to such regular election, and that no such act or part thereof shall go into effect until and unless approved by a majority of the qualified electors voting thereon. It is further provided that if a referendum petition is filed against any section or any part of any act, the remainder of that act shall not be delayed from going into effect.

From the above constitutional provisions, it is clear that if a proper petition is filed requesting presentation to the people for approval or rejection of an act of the present session of the Legislature reapportioning the congressional districts of the State, the question must be presented to the people on the ballot at the November, 1952, general election, unless the Governor should call a special election prior thereto for the submission of the question to the electors.

It is also clear from the above constitutional provisions that the filing of a proper referendum petition prevents the act from taking effect until it is approved by the electors at the election. Section 1 of Article IV also provides that if an act so submitted to the people is approved by a majority of the votes cast thereon, it shall take effect five days after the date of the official declaration of the vote by the Secretary of State. Therefore, if it be assumed that the question is presented to the people on the November, 1952, general election ballot, it follows that the congressmen who would be elected on the same ballot would of necessity be elected from the presently existing congressional districts, since the reapportionment act of the Legislature relating to congressional districts would have no force or effect at that time. From this it would follow that Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code would become operative. This section provides that until a state is redistricted in the manner provided by the law thereof after the federal census, and if there is an increase in the number of representatives in Congress to which the state is entitled, the additional representatives shall be elected from the state at large and the other representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state. Pursuant to this provisions of federal law, the congressmen to be elected on the November, 1952, ballot would be elected from the presently existing districts, with the seven new congressmen to which the State is entitled being elected from the State at large.

If it be assumed that a special referendum election should be called by the Governor prior to the November, 1952, general election, and that the act is rejected by the people, then, of course, it would never take effect and Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code would apply at the November, 1952, general election in the same manner as described above. It is conceivable, however, that a new act reapportioning the congressional representation of the State would be initiated by the people or enacted by the Legislature to become effective within a sufficient time prior to the 1952 general election so that at that election representatives to Congress would be elected from the new districts established by such an act.

Reapportionment Referendum—No. 7348

Question

DEAR MR. WATERS: You have asked the following two questions relating to reapportionment:

1. If acts of this Legislature creating assembly and congressional districts based upon the 1950 Federal Census are rejected by the electors at a referendum election, could the Legislature at its next session enact new statutes creating such districts?

2. If the act of this session of the Legislature establishing new congressional districts is rejected by the electors in a referendum, will the seven new Congressmen to which the State is entitled under the 1950 census be elected at large at each congressional election for the next 10 years?

Opinion

1. In our opinion it could.

2. In our opinion the seven new Congressmen would be elected at large at each congressional election until such time as districts are formed from which to elect such Congressmen.

Analysis

The Constitution of California and the United States Constitution clearly contemplate that the Legislature shall redistrict the State for the purpose of election of legislative representatives following each decennial Federal Census (Art. IV, Secs. 6 and 27, Cal. Const.; Art. I, Secs. 2 and 4, and 14th Amendment Sec. 2, U S. Const).

The courts of this State have said that the Legislature may create assembly districts but once following each Federal Census, and that once the districts are created they may not be altered until after the next Federal Census. (Dowell v. McLees, 199 Cal. 144; and Wheeler v. Herbert, 152 Cal. 224.) The theory of the cited cases is that the legislative power to form legislative districts can be exercised but once during the period between one United States Census and the succeeding one. We believe the same reasoning would apply to the creation of congressional districts.

An attempt by the Legislature to modify the boundaries of legislative districts which have become effective through acts of the Legislature following a Federal Census is, in our opinion, an entirely different matter from an attempt by the Legislature to create legislative districts following the failure of the previous attempt to create such districts due to the rejection of the acts by the electors at a referendum election. In this latter situation no legislative districts have been formed by the Legislature based upon the latest Federal Census, since the acts adopted by the Legislature would be a complete nullity due to the operation of the referendum procedure.

Therefore, we do not believe that the Dowell or Wheeler cases would prohibit the Legislature from creating new assembly or congressional districts based upon the 1950 Federal Census at a session occurring subsequent to a referendum election at which was rejected the previous attempt of the Legislature to create such districts

Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution provides that "should the Legislature at the first regular session * * * following any decennial Federal Census fail to reapportion the assembly and senatorial districts, a Reapportionment Commission * * * shall forthwith apportion such districts * * *."

It is clear that the above-quoted portion of the Constitution has no bearing upon the creation of congressional districts. However, some question might arise as to whether this provision was intended to apply to a situation in which the Legislature has enacted a statute reapportioning the assembly districts of the State and which would have become law but for its rejection by the electors at a referendum election.

We do not believe the quoted provision applies in such a situation. The apparent purpose of the provision is to prevent the Legislature from failing to act to redistrict the State as soon as possible after each Federal Census. It is clear that if the Legislature had failed to enact a statute establishing new assembly districts at this session, the Reapportionment Commission would be required to act. The Legislature having acted, however, it is our opinion that the Reapportionment Commission is neither required nor authorized to take any action in the event that the act of the Legislature of this session creating new assembly districts is rejected by the electors at a referendum election.

With respect to your second question, Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code provides that until a state is redistricted in the manner provided by the law thereof after a Federal Census, and if there is an increase in the number of representatives in Congress to which the state is entitled under the census, the additional representatives "shall be elected from the state at large and the other representatives from the districts then prescribed by the law of such state."

The effect of the filing of a referendum petition with the Secretary of the State directed against the act of the Legislature creating congressional districts would be to prevent that act from having any effect until and unless it should be approved by the electors. From this it would follow that Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code would become operative and apply at the next congressional elections, and at all succeeding congressional elections until such time as seven new congressional districts would be created by the Legislature or by the people through the initiative process. Therefore, until such time, 23 Congressmen would be elected at each congressional election from the congressional districts presently defined in Section 470 of the Government Code and the seven additional Congressmen would be elected from the State at large.

Reapportionment—State and County Central Committeemen—No. 6685

DEAR MR. WATERS: You have asked us what effect the reapportionment acts of this session of the Legislature will have upon state and county central committeemen of the various political parties.

Section 2802 of the Elections Code provides that the state central committee of each party shall consist of:

(a) All delegates to the state convention.
(b) The chairman of each county central committee of the party.
(c) Three members appointed by each delegate to the state convention.

Section 2791 of the Elections Code provides that the state convention of each political party shall consist of one delegate for each of the following elective officials: Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Treasurer, Controller, Attorney General, Secretary of State, all members of the State Board of Equalization, all Senators and Representatives in Congress from California, and all members of the State Legislature.

In Section 2792 of the Elections Code it is provided that each of the above listed officers who was nominated and elected as a candidate of the party and whose term of office extends beyond the eighth day of January next following the primary election, or the appointee or successor to fill a vacancy in such office, is known as a "hold-over delegate." It is also provided that each candidate of the party in whose behalf nomination papers were filed and who was nominated at the primary election by that party is known as a "nominee delegate." The remaining delegates consist of one delegate appointed for each of the above listed officers not represented by a "hold-over delegate" or a "nominee delegate." These latter delegates are chosen in the manner provided for filling vacancies in the state convention and are known as "appointive delegates."

Referring back to Section 2802 of the Elections Code, it will be noted that all delegates to the state convention are members of the state central committee. Referring again to Section 2792 of the Elections Code, it is apparent that the only delegates to the state convention who will be affected by the reapportionment acts of this session of the Legislature will be those delegates known as "nominee delegates," since these are delegates who have been nominated in the primary election immediately preceding the holding of the state convention (which is held on the first Saturday in August, between the primary and general elections). This is due to the fact that the next primary elections are the first elections at which the reapportionment acts will be operative. Officers elected from legislative districts whose terms of office extend beyond the eighth day of January next following the primary election will continue to represent the districts from which they were last elected.

Again referring to Section 2802 of the Elections Code, it will be noted that the chairman of each county central committee of the party is a member of the state central committee. In counties in which county central committee members are elected from assembly districts, and are elected at the primary elections, the reapportionment acts of this session of the Legislature will determine the districts from which such county central committee members are elected. The chairmen of some county central committees may thus be county committee members elected from the new districts established by the reapportionment acts of this session of the Legislature. Therefore, the reapportionment acts would have an indirect effect upon the membership of the state central committees insofar as such membership is composed of chairmen of the various county central committees.

Section 2802 of the Elections Code also provides, as noted above, that three persons appointed by each delegate to the state convention are members of the state central committee. Since delegates to the state convention who are elected from legislative districts will presumably appoint persons from their districts as members of the state central committee, it would appear that the reapportionment acts of this session of the Legislature will also have an indirect effect upon the appointment of such persons, at least insofar as the appointment of such persons by "nominee delegates" is concerned.

The reapportionment acts of this session of the Legislature will also have an effect on the election of members of county central committees in those counties in which such members are elected from assembly districts. At the next primary elections at which members of such county central committees are elected, candidates for such offices will, of course, be required to run in the new assembly districts created by this session of the Legislature.

Thus, county central committeemen who are running for reelection will, in our opinion, be entitled to use the word "incumbent" after their names on the ballot only if the candidate is a candidate for the same office which he then holds (Elec C, Sec. 3819). A candidate who is running for "the same office which he then holds," as required by Section 3819 of the Elections Code, would, we believe, only be a candidate who is running for reelection in a district which bears the same number as the district from which he was last elected.

Honorable Laughlin E. Waters

Reapportionment—No. 8541

DEAR MR. WATERS: You have asked us whether a Congressman represents his entire State in Congress, and not merely his district, the district being only a device for purposes of election

In the case of McPherson v. Blacker, 146 U. S. 1, the issue was whether a Michigan statute providing for the election of presidential electors by districts was valid.

In sustaining the validity of the Michigan statute, the court supported its argument by describing the method by which the various states elected Members of Congress under Article I, Section 4, of the Federal Constitution whereunder "the times, places and manner of holding elections for Senators and Representatives shall be prescribed in each state by the Legislature thereof; * * * " The court stated as follows:

> " * * * the state legislatures, prior to 1842, in prescribing the times, places and manner of holding elections for Representatives, had usually apportioned the state into districts and assigned to each a Representative; and by Act of Congress of June 25, 1842 (carried forward as Sec 23 of the Revised Statutes), it was provided that where a state was entitled to more than one Representative the election should be by districts. It has never been doubted that Representatives in Congress thus chosen represented the entire people of the state acting their sovereign capacity" (Emphasis added)

Moreover, the case points out that a Congressman, though elected from a district of the state, represents his entire state, in the choosing of the President by the House of Representatives in case of a failure in the election of a President by the people. The following language was used:

> "By original clause three of section one of article II and by the 12th Amendment which superseded that clause, in case of a failure in the election of President by the people, the House of Representatives is to choose the President; and 'the vote shall be taken by states, the representation from each state having one vote.' The state acts as a unit, and its vote is given as a unit, but that vote is arrived at through the votes of its representatives in Congress elected by districts" (Emphasis added.)

OPINION No. 9588

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO 2, CALIFORNIA, JUNE 11, 1951

Honorable Laughlin E. Waters
Assembly Chamber

Reapportionment—H.R. 2648—(Celler)—No. 9588

DEAR MR. WATERS: You have asked us to analyze H.R. 2648, as introduced in the United States House of Representatives by Representative Celler, relating to congressional districts, to determine what effect that bill, if enacted, would have upon the act of this session of the California Legislature dividing the State into congressional districts.

H.R. 2648 would amend Section 2a of Title 2 of the United States Code (46 Stat. 26, as amended), relating to reapportionment of congressional representatives. The bill would delete from the section those present provisions which permit the election of representatives at large, and would substitute a provision which would read as follows:

"(c) Each state entitled in the Eighty-third Congress and each Congress thereafter to more than one Representative under the apportionment provided in subsection (a) of this section shall establish for each Representative a district composed of contiguous and compact territory, and no district so established shall vary more than 15 per centum of the number obtained by dividing the total population of such state, as established in the last decennial census, by the number of Representatives apportioned under subsection (a) of this section.

"(d) Any Representative elected from a district which does not conform to the requirements set forth in subsection (c) of this section shall be denied his seat in the House of Representatives and the Clerk of the House shall refuse his credentials."

The present Congress is the eighty-second, therefore the provisions of the bill, if enacted, would be effective commencing with the next, or eighty-third, session of the Congress, which will convene in 1953.

The bill would require that congressional districts be composed of "contiguous and compact territory". There is no such requirement presently in the federal law. The bill would further require that no congressional district shall vary more than 15 percent of the number obtained by dividing the total population of the state, as established in the last federal census, by the number of representatives to which the state is entitled. California is now entitled to 30 representatives in Congress. The total population of California as established by the 1950 federal census is 10,586,223. The number obtained by dividing this figure by 30 gives a base figure of 352,887. Allowing a 15 percent variation from this base figure, the result is that the minimum for each congressional district would be 299,954 and the maximum would be 405,820. Approximately one-half of the congressional districts established by statute at this session of the Legislature would be either below the minimum or above the maximum permissible population variations.

It will be noted that the bill further provides that any representative elected from a district which does not conform to the requirements set forth above would be denied his seat in the House of Representatives and refused his credentials. However, Section 5 of Article I of the United States Constitution provides that each house shall be the judge of the elections, returns and qualifications of its own members. Under this constitutional provision, the House of Representatives may determine in each individual case whether a given individual who has been certified by the proper authorities of his state as having been elected to represent that state in the Congress has been validly elected and is qualified as a member of Congress. It follows from this, in our opinion, that should the House of Representatives of the eighty-third Congress determine in a given instance that an individual elected from a congressional district in any state which did not comply with the population requirements set forth by the bill in question was duly elected and qualified as a member of Congress, that person could be seated as a member irrespective of the provisions of the bill.

Therefore, we believe that the actual effect of the enactment of the bill in question would be to declare the policy of the House of Representatives in so far as the question of the proper election and qualifications of a candidate for the office of Representative in Congress is concerned. In so far as the provisions of such a statute would be followed by the House in determining the qualifications of its members, the result would be that approximately one-half of the candidates elected from the congressional districts established at this session of the Legislature would not be seated as Members of the House of Representatives and would be refused credentials of office.

The bill in question is based upon the provisions of Section 4 of Article I of the United States Constitution which authorizes Congress to make laws relating to the times, places, and manner of holding elections for Representatives. If enacted, it would therefore be constitutional, in our opinion. Moreover, it would supersede any conflicting provisions of the Constitution or laws of California, pursuant to Section 2 of Article VI of the United States Constitution, which provides that the Constitution of the United States and the federal laws made in pursuance thereof are the supreme law of the land, anything in the state laws or constitutions to the contrary notwithstanding.

A BILL

To require the establishment of congressional districts composed of contiguous and compact territories in the election of Representatives, and for other purposes.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled. That section 22 of the Act of June 18, 1929, entitled, "An Act to provide for the fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses and to provide for apportionment of Representatives", as amended, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"SEC. 22. (a) On the first day, or within one week thereafter, of the first regular session of the Eighty-second Congress and of each fifth Congress thereafter the President shall transmit to the Congress a statement showing the whole number of persons in each State, excluding Indians not taxed, as ascertained under the seventeenth and each subsequent decennial census of the population, and the number of Representatives to which each State would be entitled under an apportionment of the then existing number of Representatives by the method known as the method of equal proportions, no State to receive less than one Member.

"(b) Each State shall be entitled, in the Eighty-third Congress and in each Congress thereafter until the taking effect of a reapportionment under this section or subsequent statute, to the number of Representatives shown in the statement required by subsection (a) of this section, no State to receive less than one Member. It shall be the duty of the Clerk of the House of Representatives, within fifteen calendar days after the receipt of such statement, to send to the executive of each State a certificate of the number of Representatives to which such State is entitled under this section. In case of a vacancy in the office of Clerk, or of his absence or inability to discharge this duty, then such duty shall devolve upon the Sergeant at Arms of the House of Representatives; and in case of vacancies in the offices of both the Clerk and the Sergeant at Arms, or the absence or inability of both to act, such duty shall devolve upon the Doorkeeper of the House of Representatives.

"(c) Each State entitled in the Eighty-third Congress and each Congress thereafter to more than one Representative under the apportionment provided in subsection (a) of this section shall establish for each Representative a district composed of contiguous and compact territory, and no district so established shall vary more than 15 per centum of the number obtained by dividing the total population of such State, as established in the last decennial census, by the number of Representatives apportioned under subsection (a) of this section.

"(d) Any Representative elected from a district which does not conform to the requirements set forth in subsection (c) of this section shall be denied his seat in the House of Representatives and the Clerk of the House shall refuse his credentials."

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
May 5, 1951

Summary: Repeals and adds Sec. 491, Gov. C., re division of the State into assembly districts.

Form: Approved. Title: Approved.
Constitutionality: Approved.

Analysis

This bill repeals the existing section (491) of the Government Code which defines the 80 assembly districts of the State.

The bill adds a new section (491) to the Government Code which, pursuant to Section 6 of Article IV of the California Constitution, divides the State into 80 assembly districts, based upon the population of the State as declared by the 1950 federal census.

Comment

The Eleventh Assembly District is defined on page 4 of the bill as follows:

"11. All that portion of the County of Contra Costa included in and comprising the first supervisorial district as the same existed on January 1, 1951, with the exception of South Berkeley Park Precinct and Kensington Precincts 1 to 8, inclusive, shall constitute the Eleventh Assembly District."

We are informed by the County Clerk of Contra Costa County that the area designated on his official master precinct map for the County of Contra Costa as "South Berkeley Park Precinct" is in actuality the area designated by ordinance of the county board of supervisors as "Berkeley Park Precinct No. 1" and "Berkeley Park Precinct No. 2."

This error in the precinct map is reflected in the bill. However, since the area designated on the County Clerk's official map as South Berkeley Park Precinct is, and always has been, the same area as defined by metes and bounds by county ordinance as Berkeley Park Precincts Nos. 1 and 2, we are of the opinion that the area intended by the words "South Berkeley Park Precinct" contained in the bill can be readily ascertained.

We therefore believe that the description of the Eleventh Assembly District is legally valid.

1950 CENSUS OF POPULATION

Preliminary Counts

For release November 5, 1950 Washington 25, D. C. Series PC-3, No. 2

Population of Congressional Districts—April 1, 1950

(The figures in this report are preliminary counts of population compiled in field offices. Final population totals for the United States and each state will be given in a forthcoming report; final figures for all congressional districts will be available by July 1, 1951.)

Preliminary population figures from the 1950 Census for the 425 congressional districts in the United States were reported today by Roy V. Peel, Director, Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. Although the House of Representatives has 435 members, 10 are presently elected at large and do not represent specific congressional districts.

Four out of every five congressional districts increased in population between 1940 and 1950, with the greatest gain occurring in the Sixth District of California which increased by 352,255, or 98.8 percent. There were 19 states in which not a single congressional district lost population, and there were no states which did not have at least one congressional district which gained population.

Congressional districts in 1950 range in size from the Twenty-second District of Ohio with a population of 908,403, to the Second District of South Dakota which had a population of 158,147. However, more than three-quarters of all congressional districts fell within the much narrower range from 200,000 to 400,000. Only 2.8 percent of all districts had fewer than 200,000 population, and 6.4 percent more than a half-million inhabitants.

The preliminary population counts given in this report represent the number of persons enumerated in each congressional district, but not the final verified population totals. The final population totals may differ from the preliminary counts because of the allocation to the place of usual residence of persons who were enumerated elsewhere, the inclusion of crews of vessels docked within an area but not included in the preliminary count, and because of other revisions.

1950 CENSUS OF POPULATION

Preliminary Counts

September 28, 1950 Washington 25, D. C. Series PC-2, No. 48

Population of California, By Counties—April 1, 1950

(The figures in this report are preliminary counts of population as compiled in field offices and supersede those for the same areas which have been published in Series PC-1. Figures for some areas are not published in Series PC-1 are also included in this report.)

The population of California as of April 1, 1950. was 10,490.070, according to a preliminary count of the returns of the 1950 Decennial Census of Population, reported today by Roy V. Peel, Director, Bureau of the Census, Department of Commerce. This figure represents a gain of 3,582,683, or 51.9 percent, over the 6,907,387 inhabitants of the State enumerated in the 1940 Census.

The preliminary population counts shown below represent the number of persons enumerated in the State, each county, and each incorporated place of 1,000 or more, but not the final verified population totals. The final population totals may differ from the preliminary counts because of the allocation to the place of usual residence of persons who were enumerated elsewhere, the inclusion of crews of vessels docked within an area but not included in the preliminary count, and because of other revisions.
