ASSEMBLY CHAMBER, SACRAMENTO
Monday, January 7, 1957

Pursuant to the requirements of the Constitution of the State of California and the law, at the hour of 12 o'clock meridian, the Assembly of the 1957 Regular Session of the Legislature of California was called to order by Arthur A. Ohnimus, Chief Clerk of the 1955 and 1956 Regular Sessions.

In conformity with the law, the following officers were also present: Geoffrey Cook, Minute Clerk, of the 1955 and 1956 Regular Sessions, and Tony Beard, Sergeant-at-Arms of the 1956 Regular Session.

PRAYER

Upon invitation of the Chief Clerk, the following prayer was offered by the Reverend William C. Pearson, Chaplain of the Assembly for the 1955 and 1956 Regular Sessions:

Our Father, Who Art in Heaven, Hallowed Be Thy Name Give Thy Guidance and blessing to the Assembly at the beginning of this Legislature.

We acknowledge Thy multiplied goodness to our State and people. Endow the Governor of the State, and the presiding officer and each member of this body, with a right understanding, a pure purpose, and a steady determination to seek only Thy will and the good of all the people

As our convened lawmakers depend upon Thee, lead them forward with courage and conviction, but also with due humility and with a full recognition of the privileges and responsibilities of government, to the glory of Thy great name.—AMEN.

ADDRESS BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

Speaker pro Tempore Conrad then addressed the Assembly

Remarks by Speaker pro Tempore Charles J. Conrad

Mr. Speaker, Members of the Assembly:

I'm sure that in the hearts of all of us who served with him there will only be one Speaker pro Tempore of the California Assembly and that one, of course, is Tommy Maloney.

However, I'm grateful for the opportunity of filling in on the job and I'll try not to rattle around too much in the shoes he left behind.

The great American showman, George M. Cohan, used to end his curtain speech with "My mother thanks you, my sister thanks you, my wife thanks you and I thank you" I'm sorry my mother and sisters aren't with me today but my wife, Grace, is here, and until she is able to express her appreciation to each member personally for the honor you have bestowed upon me, let me thank you in behalf of my entire family.

I accept this position with the hope and prayer that, coming from the great metropolitan area of the Southland, I may be able to assist our fine Speaker, Abe Lincoln, in ending all sectional conflict so that we can go forward as a united California to solve the many problems facing this Legislature in the next 120 days, and I give you my further pledge that whenever I may be called upon to preside over this body the gavel will be used, to the best of my ability, fairly and impartially. Once again, my heartfelt thanks.

In each legislative session, on the first day when bills are introduced under "Introduction and Reference of Bills," the roll shall be called from A to Z and then back from Z to A, and as each member's name is called, he may introduce one bill, constitutional amendment, concurrent or joint resolution.

All bills set for hearing by any Assembly committee, except the Assembly Committee on Rules, must be published in the Daily File not less than three days in advance of such hearing; provided, that this rule shall not prevent any Assembly committee from hearing any bill on Tuesday or Wednesday, where the action of the committee or committee's chairman setting such bill for hearing was taken on the preceding Friday or Saturday and a notice thereof is published in the Daily File for the following Monday; provided, further, that no bill shall be set for hearing nor shall any notice thereof be published by any Assembly committee until that bill has been referred to such committee.

b. Whenever a rule of the Board of Control requires approval of the Director of Finance or of the Governor with respect to any claim for expenses, such rule shall be applicable to committee employees but shall be deemed to require the approval of the Assembly Rules Committee rather than the approval of the Governor or Director of Finance.

In all other respects Board of Control rules shall govern as to the time, place and amount of expense allowable, and travel expense claims shall be submitted in form and supported by data and vouchers as required by Board of Control rules.

Mileage is an allowance in lieu of actual expenses of travel by private conveyance, and shall be allowed only to the operator of, and not to passengers in, a private vehicle. Claims for mileage must be accompanied by the license number of the vehicle and the names of state officers and employees riding as passengers.

Assembly bills so amended shall be engrossed after printing.

Amendments From the Floor

71. Any member may move to amend a bill during its second or third reading and such motion to amend may be adopted by a majority vote of the members present.

Before debate four copies of the proposed amendment must be delivered to the Clerk's desk and one copy made available to the author of the bill. Bills so amended on second reading shall be treated the same as committee amendments. Any bill so amended upon second or third reading shall be reprinted and re-engrossed. The Chief Clerk shall order printed as many copies of all amended bills as he may determine to be necessary.

Bills Transmitted to the Senate

74. Upon the final passage of any bill if no notice of motion to reconsider such bill be given, the Speaker shall order the bill transmitted to the Senate under signature of the Chief Clerk. Senate bills refused passage shall forthwith be returned to the Senate under similar signature.

Bills Considered During Period Prior to Final Adjournment

75. See Joint Rule 23 for provisions governing bills considered during this period.

Concurrence in Senate Amendments

76. It shall require the same affirmative recorded vote to concur in any Senate amendment to an Assembly bill as the vote required by the Constitution for the passage of such bill. It shall require an affirmative recorded vote of two-thirds of the entire elected membership of the Assembly to concur in any Senate amendment to an Assembly bill which contains an item or items of appropriation subject to reduction or elimination under the provisions of Section 34a of Article IV of the Constitution. The vote on concurrence shall be deemed the vote upon final passage of such bill. When Senate amendments to an Assembly bill are concurred in, the bill shall be forthwith ordered enrolled, and the Chief Clerk shall notify the Senate of such concurrence.

Nonconcurrence in Senate Amendments

77. If the Assembly refuse to concur in Senate amendments to an Assembly bill, and when notified that the Senate has refused to concur in Assembly amendments to a Senate bill, the Speaker shall appoint a committee of three (3) on conference, and the Chief Clerk shall immediately notify the Senate of the action taken by the Assembly and request the appointment of a like committee.

Committee on Conference

78. The Speaker, in appointing a committee on conference, shall select two members from those voting with the majority on the point about which the difference has arisen, and the other member from the minority, in the event there is a minority vote.

Whether a member has voted with the majority or minority on the point about which the difference has arisen is determined by his vote on the appropriate roll call, as follows:

(a) The roll call on the question of final passage of a Senate bill amended in the Assembly when the Senate has refused to concur with the Assembly amendments;

(b) The roll call on the question of concurrence with Senate amendments to an Assembly bill.

Meetings and Reports of Committees on Conference

79. The Chairman of the Senate committee on conference for the same bill shall arrange the time and place of meeting of such committee. It shall require an affirmative vote of not less than two of the Assembly members and two of the Senate members constituting the committee on conference to agree upon a report, and the report shall be submitted to both the Senate and the Assembly. Such report is not subject to amendment, and if either house refuses to adopt such report, the conferees shall be discharged and other conferees appointed. No member who has served on a committee on conference shall be appointed a member of another committee on conference on the same bill. The presentation and consideration of any report of a committee on conference shall always be in order, except during a roll call or when a member has the floor. It shall require the same affirmative recorded vote to adopt any conference report as required by the Constitution upon the final passage of the bill affected by such report. It shall require an affirmative recorded vote of two-thirds of the entire elected membership of the Assembly to adopt any conference report affecting any Assembly bill which contains an item or items of appropriation which are subject to reduction or elimination under the provisions of Section 34a of Article IV of the Constitution.

SECTION 4
PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE
Motions and Questions

Precedence of Motions During Debate

82. When a question is under debate or before the Assembly, no motions shall be received but the following, which shall take precedence in the order named:

First—To adjourn;
Second—To recess to a time certain;
Third—To lay on the table;
Fourth—For the previous question;
Fifth—To set as a special order;
Sixth—To postpone indefinitely;
Seventh—To refer to or re-refer;
Eighth—To amend.

Questions of Order Decided Without Debate

83. All incidental questions of order, arising after a motion is made for any of the questions named in Rule 82 and pending such motion, shall be decided by the Speaker without debate, whether on appeal or otherwise.

Appeal From Decision of the Speaker

84. Any member may appeal from a decision of the Speaker without waiting for recognition by the Speaker, even though another member has the floor. No appeal is in order when another is pending, or when other business has been transacted by the Assembly prior to the appeal being taken.

Upon the appeal being seconded, the Speaker may give his reasons for the decision, and the member taking the appeal may give his reasons for making his appeal, and the Speaker shall forthwith put this question to the Assembly: "Shall the decision of the Speaker be sustained?"

An appeal cannot be amended and yields only to a motion to recess or adjourn, to lay on the table, or a question of personal privilege. If an appeal be laid on the table, such action shall have no effect on the pending question.

An appeal cannot be debated when relating to indecorum, transgression of Rules, or priority of business. A majority vote of the members present shall decide any appeal.

Speaker Explains Order of Business

85. The Speaker may, on his own motion or upon the motion of any Member of the Assembly, explain the order of business when the motion pending before the Assembly is not debatable. Such explanation is not to consume more than two minutes.

To Adjourn

86. A motion to adjourn is not debatable and cannot be amended, and is always in order, except (a) when another member has the floor; (b) when the Assembly is voting; (c) during a call of the Assembly. The name of any member moving an adjournment and also the hour at which the motion was made and adjournment taken shall be entered in the Journal. A motion to adjourn must be adopted by a majority vote of the members present.

When a motion to adjourn is made and seconded, it shall be in order for the Speaker, before putting the question, to permit any member to state to the Assembly any fact relating to the condition of the business of the Assembly which would seem to render it improper or inadvisable to adjourn. A statement shall not occupy more than two minutes and shall not be debatable.

To Recess to a Time Certain

87 A motion to recess to a time certain shall be treated the same as a motion to adjourn, except that such motion is debatable when no business is before the Assembly, and can be amended as to the time and duration of the recess. It yields only to a motion to adjourn.

To Lay on the Table

88. A motion to lay on the table is not debatable and cannot be amended.

A motion to table a bill, constitutional amendment, concurrent or joint resolution requires a majority vote of the entire elected membership.

Any motion to lay on the table, if carried by a majority vote of the entire elected membership, carries with it the main question and everything that adheres to it; provided, however, that a motion to lay an amendment on the table, if adopted, does not carry with it a bill, constitutional amendment, concurrent, joint, or House resolution.

A motion to lay an amendment on the table may be adopted by a majority vote of the members present.

The Previous Question

89. The previous question shall be put only when demanded by five members, and in this form: "Shall the question be now put?" And its effect, when sustained by a majority of the members present, shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the House to a vote only on the question then pending; except that the proponent of the matter pending shall be allowed not to exceed five minutes to close the debate.

Motion to Set Special Order

90. A motion to set any matter before the Assembly as a special order of business must be adopted by a two-thirds vote of the members elected. It is debatable only as to the propriety of setting the main question as a special order of business, and may be amended only as to the time.

Motion to Postpone to a Time Certain

91. A motion to postpone to a time certain shall be deemed and treated as a motion to set as a special order.

Motion to Postpone Indefinitely

92. When a motion is made to postpone indefinitely any bill, motion, or amendment, it opens the main question to debate. Should the motion to postpone indefinitely prevail by a majority vote of the entire elected membership, the main question shall not be acted upon again during the session.

Motion to Amend

93. A motion to amend may itself be amended, but no "amendment to an amendment" can be amended. A motion to amend is debatable, except where the main question to be amended is not debatable. Any motion to amend may be adopted by a majority vote of the members present.

A motion to amend having been decided in the negative, shall not again be in order on the same day, or at the same stage of proceeding. A motion to amend by striking out certain words having been decided in the negative, shall not preclude a motion to amend by adding words, or a motion to amend by striking out and inserting words; but in no case shall a further amendment be substantially the same as the one rejected.

Subject to the above provisions of this rule, a motion to amend is in order during the second or third reading of any bill.

A motion to lay an amendment on the table may be adopted by a majority vote of the members present, as provided in Rule 88.

Amendment to Be Germane

94. No amendment to any bill, whether reported by a committee or offered by a member, shall be in order when such amendment relates to a different subject, or is intended to accomplish a different purpose, or requires a title essentially different from the original title of any bill.

No amendment shall be in order which adds or deletes the name of a member as an author or co-author, or which changes the original number of any bill.

Substitute Motion

95 A motion to substitute shall be deemed and treated as a motion to amend.

Motions in Writing

96. Upon request of the Speaker all motions shall be reduced to writing and shall be read to the Assembly by the Speaker before the same are acted upon.

Constitution of Motions

97. No motion, whether oral or written, shall be adopted until the same shall be seconded and distinctly stated to the Assembly by the Speaker.

Division of Questions

98. Any member may call for a division of the question, and the Speaker shall order the question divided if it comprehend propositions in substance so distinct that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the Assembly.

Withdrawal of Motions

99. After a motion is stated by the Speaker, or a bill, resolution, or petition read by the Clerk, it shall be deemed to be in the possession of the Assembly.

Motion to Be Germane

100. No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted as an amendment.

Motion to Withdraw and Recall Bills

101. A motion to withdraw a bill or resolution from committee, or to re-refer a bill or resolution from one committee to another committee may be made during the regular order of business. A motion to re-refer shall only be debatable as to the propriety of such reference, and shall require a recorded vote of a majority of the elected members.

No bill or resolution shall be withdrawn from committee and placed upon the file except upon two days' notice thereof and except by a recorded vote of a majority of the elected members.

Bills Stricken From File

102. A motion to strike from the file any bill or House resolution requires a majority vote of the entire elected membership. Such bill shall not be acted upon again during the session.

Motion to Rescind Action and Expunge Record

103. Previous to the approval of the Journal by the Assembly, any action may be rescinded and its record ordered expunged by an affirmative recorded vote sufficient to take such action originally; except that no action shall be rescinded and the record expunged by a vote less than a majority of the entire elected membership. No motion to rescind the action and expunge the record shall be made twice on the same proposition.

Whenever any action of the Assembly is rescinded and its record ordered expunged, the record of the action expunged shall not appear in any form whatsoever, but the record of the proceedings on the motion to rescind and expunge shall appear in the Assembly Journal as and when printed.

Reconsideration of Vote

104. Notice of a motion to reconsider on the next legislative day, the vote whereby any bill, constitutional amendment, concurrent or joint resolution was passed or refused passage, must be given on the same day such vote to be so reconsidered was taken.

A notice of motion to reconsider a vote must be given by a member voting on the bill, constitutional amendment, concurrent or joint resolution, and shall take precedence over all motions, except a motion to adjourn. Upon such notice of motion being given, the bill, constitutional amendment, concurrent or joint resolution shall forthwith be placed upon the unfinished busines file, and no further action shall be taken prior to the next legislative day. When a notice of a motion to reconsider has once been made, the same shall be considered to be the property of the Assembly.

Any member voting on any motion, amendment, concurrence, Assembly resolution or proposition other than a bill, constitutional amendment, concurrent or joint resolution, may give notice of reconsideration of the vote whereby the same was passed or refused passage on the same day such vote to be reconsidered was taken, which notice shall suspend all further consideration until the next legislative day; provided, however, that a motion to reconsider on the same day the notice was given shall take precedence over and above such notice and upon demand of any member must be put to an immediate vote. A motion to reconsider any proposition other than a bill, constitutional amendment, concurrent or joint resolution shall require an affirmative recorded vote of a majority of the entire elected membership.

No notice of motion for reconsideration shall be in order on the day preceding the last day for consideration of Assembly or Senate bills in the Assembly. No motion to reconsider shall be adopted except upon an affirmative recorded vote of a majority of the entire elected membership, except that it shall require a two-thirds vote of the entire elected membership to reconsider the vote on any matter originally requiring a two-thirds vote for its passage or adoption.

When reconsideration is granted, the bill shall resume its exact position before the Assembly previous to its being voted upon.

Call of Assembly

105. After the roll has been called, and prior to the announcement of the vote, any member may move a call of the Assembly. A majority of the members present may order a call of the Assembly, and the Speaker shall immediately order the Sergeant-at-Arms to lock all doors and shall direct the Clerk to prepare a list of absentees as disclosed by the last roll call, which list of absentees shall be furnished to the Sergeant-at-Arms. Thereupon no members shall be permitted to leave the Assembly Chamber except by written permission of the Speaker, and no person shall be permitted to enter except such member as is taken into custody as herein provided, or Senators, officers, attaches, or employees of the Legislature in the official performance of their duties.

Those members who are found to be absent, and for whom no leaves of absence have been granted, shall be forthwith taken into custody wherever found by the Sergeant-at-Arms or his assistants or any person designated by the Sergeant-at-Arms, including members of the California Highway Patrol, the State Police, and sheriffs or their deputies, and brought to the Assembly Chamber. No recess or adjournment shall be taken during a call of the Assembly. During such call, the Assembly may consider and transact any matter of business by unanimous consent. No call of the Assembly shall be ordered on any matter while the Assembly is already under call. A call of the Assembly may be dispensed with at any time upon a majority vote of the members present, such action to become effective upon the completion of the roll call and the announcement of the vote upon the matter for which the call was ordered.

Resolutions

106. The adoption of any resolution authorizing the expenditure of money shall require an affirmative recorded vote of a majority of all members elected to the Assembly. All House resolutions shall be numbered and shall be referred to the appropriate committee by the Speaker.

Motions and Resolutions

107. Any motion or resolution not otherwise provided for under the Rules shall be placed before the Assembly only under this order of business. Unless otherwise provided by law or Assembly rule, any motion or resolution may be adopted by a majority vote of the members present.

Adjournment

108. Adjournment for the constitutional recess or adjournment sine die shall be ordered by concurrent resolution. The resolution for adjournment sine die shall be adopted by the Assembly not less than seven days before the date set therein for such adjournment.

Members' Decorum and Privileges

Order in Speaking to Questions

109. When a member desires to address the Assembly, he shall rise from his seat and respectfully address himself to "Mr. Speaker." Upon being recognized, he may speak, confining himself to the question under consideration When two or more members rise at the same time, the Speaker shall designate the member who is entitled to the floor.

No member shall speak more than once during the consideration of any one question on the same day and at the same stage of proceeding, except that the author of a bill or resolution or the mover of a question shall have the right to open and close the debate thereon. No member shall be allowed to speak more than 10 minutes to open and five minutes to close the debate thereon, and no member other than the author or the mover of the question shall be allowed to speak more than five minutes thereon. No member shall yield to any other member the time for which he is entitled to speak on any matter.

Leave of Absence

110. No member shall absent himself from attendance at any session of the Assembly without leave of the Assembly, and no member shall obtain such leave of absence or be excused for nonattendance, except by a two-thirds vote of all members elected to the Assembly, or by unanimous consent.

Personal Privilege

111. Any member may rise to explain a matter personal to himself and shall forthwith be recognized by the Speaker, but shall not discuss a question in such explanation. Such matters of personal privilege yield only to a motion to recess or adjournment.

Objection to Reading of Any Paper

112. Any member upon recognition by the Speaker may object to the reading of any paper before the Assembly. After such objection, the question of reading shall be determined without debate by a majority vote of the members present, upon a brief statement of its substance by the Speaker.

Members Called to Order for Transgressing Rules

113. a. If any member transgresses the Rules of the Assembly, the Speaker shall, or any member may, call the offending member to order. The member so called to order shall immediately take his seat, until the Speaker without debate, shall have determined whether he is in order or not. Such decision by the Speaker shall be subject to an appeal to the Assembly.

b. If any member be called to order for offensive words spoken in debate, the person calling him to order shall state to the Assembly the words to which exception is taken. No member shall be held to answer, or be subject to censure by the Assembly, for language used in debate, if other business shall have been transacted by the Assembly prior to exception being taken to the words spoken.

Members Voting

114. Every member in the Assembly Chamber when a roll call is required shall record his vote openly and without debate, unless the Assembly shall, by a majority vote of the members present, excuse him.

The name of any member who refuses to vote as required by this rule, after being requested by the Speaker to do so, shall be entered in the Journal of the Assembly, together with a statement that he was present and did so refuse to vote. Any member who refuses so to vote may, if he so desires, and immediately after the announcement of the vote, submit a written explanation of his failure to vote and have such explanation printed in the Journal, provided no such explanation shall exceed 50 words in length.

In addition to the entry of his name in the Journal, any member who refuses so to vote when required, and who has not been excused from doing so, may, immediately after the announcement of the vote, in the discretion of the Speaker or upon demand of any member, be summoned to appear before the bar of the Assembly for public censure by the Speaker or by any member designated by the Speaker. Censure of a member as provided by this rule shall not constitute a bar to proceedings for his expulsion from the Assembly pursuant to Section 9 of Article IV of the Constitution.

A member may submit a written explanation of his vote on any bill or House resolution, and have such explanation printed in the Journal immediately following such vote, provided no such explanation shall exceed 50 words in length.

Compensation and Expenses of Member Convicted of Felony

114.5. If a Member of the Assembly is convicted of a felony by a superior court, his right to further compensation or expenses is thereupon suspended and his membership on any interim committee is suspended. If such conviction becomes final, the right of the member to further compensation or expenses shall terminate and any compensation or expenses withheld shall be forfeited to the State. If the conviction is reversed by an appellate court or a motion for a new trial is granted and the member is thereafter found not guilty or the charges against him are dismissed, the amounts of the withheld compensation or expenses shall be paid to the member and the suspension of his committee membership shall terminate.

Whenever a member is convicted of a felony in the superior court, the Assembly Rules Committee shall give written notice to the State Controller, directing him to discontinue any further payments to the member unless and until the Rules Committee notifies the State Controller that the member has been found not guilty or that the charges against him are dismissed. The State Controller shall not draw any warrant payable to any such member except as provided in this rule.

Ayes and Noes

115. The ayes and noes shall be recorded by the electrical voting system on the final passage of all bills, or by viva voce when demanded by three members or when ordered by the Speaker, and on any other question when called for by three members or ordered by the Speaker, the names of which members shall be entered in the Journal.

Voting Not to Be Interrupted

116. When once begun, voting shall not be interrupted, except that before the vote is announced, any member may have the total pending vote flashed on the visible vote recorder. Prior to the announcement of the vote the Speaker shall inquire if all members have voted. Any member may move a call of the Assembly after the completion of the roll and prior to the final recording, but no member shall be allowed to change his vote, or have his vote recorded after the vote is announced.

Members at Clerk's Desk

117. No member or other person shall be allowed at the Clerk's desk while the ayes and noes are being recorded or the votes counted.

Tie Vote

118. In case of an equal division, or tie vote, the question shall be lost.

"Two-thirds of the Entire Elected Membership" Defined

119. Wherever the words or figures, "two-thirds of the entire elected membership" appear in any rule, it shall mean 54 votes.

Assembly Expenses Between Sessions

120. Pursuant to the powers vested in the Assembly Committee on Rules, and during such times as the Assembly is not in session, the committee is authorized and directed to incur and pay such expenses of the Assembly not otherwise provided for as the committee determines are reasonably necessary, including repair, alteration, improvement and equipping of the Assembly Chamber and the offices provided for the Assembly in the State Capitol.

House Resolution No. 11

Relative to congratulating Sheriff "Gene" Biscailuz on his Silver Anniversary as Sheriff and his Golden Anniversary in the Sheriff's Department in Los Angeles County.

WHEREAS, That great Californian, Sheriff E. W. "Gene" Biscailuz, is celebrating his Golden Jubilee in the Sheriff's Department and his Silver Anniversary as Sheriff of Los Angeles County on this seventh day of January, 1957; and

WHEREAS, This is a milestone few law enforcement men have or will experience. Gene entered the Sheriff's Department as a deputy on January 7, 1907, and has become internationally known as the most loved and popular sheriff in the United States During his span of years in the department, he has seen and helped develop the department to the present pinnacle of modernization which has made it known world wide as second to none; and

WHEREAS, Gene was destined to become a law-man since the days of his birth in the Boyle Heights district of Los Angeles in 1883 His maternal grandfather was William Warren, a Yankee who sailed around the Horn to California and wed the beautiful daughter of a Spanish Don before the days of the Civil War. This grandfather, William Warren, was the first Los Angeles City Marshal in 1870 and was killed in a gun battle where the present City Hall is located. Gene's father, Martin Biscailuz, of Basque ancestry, was a prominent attorney and city councilman; and

WHEREAS, On January 7, 1907, young Biscailuz made application to Sheriff William Hammel for a job as a deputy in the then 27 man department. Little did Sheriff Hammel know this young Gene Biscailuz was destined to someday head the department and to turn it into an ever-growing, professional law enforcement agency of nearly 3,000 employees; and

WHEREAS, Young Biscailuz, starting as a deputy and studying law at night, rose through the ranks to assistant chief deputy and in 1920 he was appointed Undersheriff to Sheriff William Traeger. As undersheriff, Gene soon became known throughout the State as an honest forward thinking law-man; and

WHEREAS, In 1929, C. C. Young, then Governor of California, called Gene to Sacramento and asked him to organize the California Highway Patrol. After two years of organizing and smoothing out this state-wide organization, Biscailuz then returned to his post as Los Angeles County's Undersheriff; and

WHEREAS, In 1932, Sheriff William Traeger was elected to Congress and on December 3rd of that year, the board of supervisors elected Gene Biscailuz to the office of Sheriff. Two years later, the people of Los Angeles County elected him Sheriff and since then he has been re-elected to office five times at the primary election. Each time he was re-elected by a larger, more overwhelming, majority vote; and

WHEREAS, The activities of the Sheriff have been spectacular, it is not the spectacular that he is best known for. His firsts are too many to list here, but a few are: Pioneering the system of rehabilitating prisoners in honor camps and farms, which have become so well known as to be studied and copied throughout the world. The Sheriff was the first sheriff to put uniforms on his men and a project close to his heart was the organizing of the Sheriff's Crime Prevention Bureau. These are but a few of the things he has done with his vision and planning. He and his staff have projected plans as far into the future as 1980, and

WHEREAS, Today's Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department numbers a force of nearly 3,000 trained men and women, ranging from uniformed radio car deputies to plainclothes detectives. With this force, the Sheriff uses diplomacy, vision, and administrative ability to police 3,335 square miles of unincorporated territory, ranging from the bright lights of Hollywood to the desert wastes. The Sheriff is charged with protecting the lives and property of one and-a-quarter million people in America's fastest growing area in addition to other duties of a sheriff that cover the entire sprawling county with 51 incorporated cities and more than 5,000,000 total population. He administers the largest county jail in the world, originally built to care for 1,800 inmates and now holds 3,000, processing some 53,000 yearly. During the last fiscal year a total of 173,550 criminal cases were reported to the department Of these, 26,286 were prosecuted in court, resulting in 96 percent convictions. Of the 42 murders reported in county territory only two remain unsolved; now therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That the Members of the Assembly desire to extend their congratulations to this great Californian, the Sheriff, E. W. "Gene" Biscailuz on this day of his Golden Jubilee in the Sheriffs Department of Los Angeles County and his Silver Anniversary as Sheriff of that county; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly is hereby directed to transmit suitably prepared copies of this resolution to Sheriff E. W. "Gene" Biscailuz.

MESSAGE TO THE CALIFORNIA LEGISLATURE

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT

GOVERNOR

Delivered to the Senate and Assembly in Joint Session, January 7, 1957

Mr. Speaker, Lieutenant Governor Powers, Mr. President pro Tempore, Mr. Speaker pro Tempore, Members of the Legislature, and my fellow Californians:

It is again my pleasure to welcome you to our State's Capitol as the California Legislature opens its 1957 sessions

As we again assume our mutual obligations to the people of California, it is my duty under the State Constitution to report to you on the condition of our State and to invite your attention to matters which I believe should have your consideration during the coming months.

In a departure from the practice of past years, I have divided this message into two parts. First, I will give you a broad summary of conditions and I will seek to emphasize some of the more important questions which will come before you in the weeks ahead. I hope to accomplish this in less than half an hour.

The balance of my message has been committed to writing and, together with the printed text of my oral report, will be available for your more detailed perusal at the close of this day's business.

I trust that this innovation, instituted in the interests of your comfort and convenience, meets with your approval.

Characteristic of the vitality of our State, we have recently come through a very lively political campaign, during which healthy differences of opinion were pursued to the polls.

Symbolically, we have more recently come through the holiday season of peace and good will. In this spirit I extend to you my sincere good wishes for the new year. I also indulge the hope that the spirit of harmony and accord will supersede all but the most beneficial aspects of partisan differences during our deliberations here in Sacramento, with December 25th and January 1st more fresh in our memories than November 6th.

Authoritative estimates indicate California's population has increased by nearly 2,400,000 since the last decennial census in 1950. This places our population at about 13,976,000, with forecasts that, if California keeps growing at its present rate, its population will be nearly 16,000,000 when the next federal census is conducted in 1960—three years hence

In the year just ended we have achieved new heights not only in our population growth but also in our economic expansion. We have gained approximately half-a-million new people during 1956. These have been largely productive citizens and not only has the volume of employment increased accordingly but the percentage ratio of unemployed to the total labor force has shown a marked decrease.

The Director of Employment reports to me that we had a civilian labor force of 5,729,000, as of November, 1956, the last full month on which statistics have been compiled and released. While this was 250,000 more than the corresponding month in 1955, the volume and percentage of unemployment was actually reduced during the intervening 12 months.

The number of new unemployment insurance claims initiated showed a decrease during last November as compared with November, 1955. This favorable employment picture is also reflected in the fact that the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund balance was nearly $84,000,000 greater in November, 1956, than it was 12 months earlier.

Manufacturing employment in the Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area rose to an all-time high in November and in the San Francisco-Oakland metropolitan area it was 3 percent higher than a year before.

The Director of Motor Vehicles reports that official estimates at the end of 1956 indicate there were 7,158,721 motor vehicles registered in our State. Simple arithmetic shows that the ratio of people to motor vehicles in California is slightly less than 2 to 1.

While these and other related economic facts of life are gratifying, they must not be permitted to lead us into complacency. It is imperative that we do everything within our power to enhance the favorable conditions which have attracted new business, new workers, and new families to our State in unprecedented numbers.

If we are to fulfill the promise of the future, we must provide needed services for between 150,000 and 155,000 new households annually. Our economy faces the challenge of providing approximately 2½ million additional jobs in California by 1970 at the present rate of growth.

We are blessed with a magnificent natural climate highly conducive to life and growth. We enjoy an excellent economic climate to sustain the business and industry of California The necessity of maintaining this atmosphere of cooperative mutual respect among capital, labor, and government is a continuing and expanding need. The people of California look to us, ladies and gentlemen, to keep this tradition alive. With such an affirmative philosophy, there is no limit to our future.

There are many specific tasks immediately before us. Our State Government, to meet the needs of our people, must be many things. It must be dynamic, it must be evolutionary, it must be progressive, it must be humane, it must be efficient, and it must be economical

Our approach to the needs of our people must be positive and constructive. We cannot tolerate short-sighted obstruction and negation. This, of course, does not preclude sincere criticism and honest differences The vistas ahead are magnificent; we must be bold and imaginative to match the mood of the people as they hopefully look at the opportunities which daily open and grow almost before our very eyes.

Under the American way of doing things, it is imperative that we find adequate means of rendering to the people the services they have come to expect and to which they manifestly are entitled.

WATER PROGRAM AND PROJECTS

I congratulate the Members of the Legislature for the splendid, progressive steps taken at the last session toward administrative reform in the field of water resources.

As the result of positive action taken by you last year in adopting legislation creating the Department of Water Resources, we have made real progress toward meeting the needs of California for a dependable water supply and for control of floods. We must continue to work together in taking additional constructive steps forward to consummate the plans prepared after many years of study and investigation by actually undertaking proposed projects.

There are many items concerning water development on which legislative action and legislative determination of policy are urgently required.

For example, there is urgent need for acceptance of the California Water Plan as the physical and engineering basis for approaching all of our water problems, and as the guide for the future orderly and coordinated development of our water resources by all agencies to achieve maximum benefit therefrom.

To implement this plan, we must establish a water development program utilizing to the fullest extent cooperative efforts of all agencies—federal, state and local.

We need to establish policies for allocation of costs of multipurpose projects, policies for guidance in pricing water from state projects, and policies from which can be determined the proper role of the State in water project construction.

In order to meet our ever-increasing water needs and to insure stability in water development matters, I urge that a water development fund be established, adequately supported by a long-range financing program This fund would be utilized in both construction of projects by the State and in providing financial assistance, where needed, to local agencies in the construction of their own projects meeting the objectives of the California Water Plan. I recommend that the presently uncommitted tideland oil funds and revenues from that source through Fiscal 1957-58 be used initially to establish this water development fund.

This fund will make possible specific appropriations to further water development projects as needed and as justified in all areas of the State as they are found to be in conformity with the objectives of the California Water Plan, according to policies to be established for an overall state water development program.

There will be several items before you regarding flood control, flood damage insurance, the Klamath River Interstate Compact, watershed damage caused by forest fires and construction of debris basins to prevent damage, operative and fiscal measures concerning the State Water Board, clarification of procedure for releasing state water filings, maintenance of flood control projects in which the State has made an investment, and other water conservation, control and investigation matters.

First in urgency for action, in my considered judgment, is the appropriation of funds to initiate actual construction work in preparation for building the Oroville Dam, reservoir and power plants.

The Feather River Project has been studied, engineered and authorized. The studies and conclusions of the State have been rechecked and verified in essentials by a highly reputed private engineering firm. A year ago, you authorized and appropriated money for the acquisition of sites and rights of way for the Oroville Dam and reservoir and for exploration work and preparation of detailed designs for moving railway, highway and other utility facilities. Relocation of these facilities must be completed before construction of the dam can begin. Exploration at the site is a prerequisite to final design of the dam. That work is now sufficiently advanced that we are ready to let contracts. All that is necessary in order to do this is to make funds available.

I recommend for your immediate consideration a total appropriation of $63,200,000 for the furtherance of this work between now and June 30, 1958. Of this amount, I recommend that you make immediately available an urgency appropriation of $25,200,000. Your concurrence in this recommendation will mean that, before you resume your deliberations after the constitutional recess, bid calls will have been prepared and formal legal advertising for bids will begin within a few weeks thereafter on the first phase of relocating the Feather River Highway and Western Pacific Railroad in Feather River Canyon.

By acting on the urgency appropriation in January, the State will gain from six to nine months in the construction schedule of this greatly needed project. We cannot afford to risk delays of even as much as six months. To do so is to increase unnecessarily the risk of future loss of human life and property damage, such as was experienced during the 1955 floods. Delay is unwise and dangerous in view of the urgent need for water supplies in the western and southern end of San Joaquin Valley, where highly productive farm lands are today on the verge of going out of production because of dropping water levels, and in San Diego County, where the water situation is critical after more than 12 years of drought.

The State recently was granted a license for the Oroville power features by the Federal Power Commission. This license is subject to the condition that building of the structures must be completed and operative within seven years. With that deadline, we simply cannot afford procrastination and delay.

We expect to ask the Congress now in session to approve flood control appropriations for Oroville Dam in the amount of $100,000,000. If we expect to receive congressional approval of such an appropriation, there must be evidence of the determination of the State to move forward immediately and affirmatively in initiating the construction of the project. The appropriation of $25,000,000 in the opening days of this legislative session should be ample evidence of such determination.

Other water projects worthy of your favorable consideration will be presented to you after their feasibility has been established.

AREAS OF ORIGIN

One of the most pressing problems before you is that of formulating adequate constitutional provisions and legislative enactments to provide adequate protection for the areas of origin, reserving water for their future needs, making the water physically available, when and where needed, and, at the same time, providing reasonably firm allocations of water from state projects to the various service areas to be benefited by those projects. Solution of the legal complexities involved in the "county of origin" problem involves not only the State as a construction agency but all water developing agencies, including the Federal Government.

This is a sensitive and difficult, but by no means insurmountable, problem To a large extent, it is a problem of mechanics, because we do have sufficient water in California to meet all of the needs of all areas for all beneficial uses—IF this water is properly controlled, conserved and distributed. I believe that it is difficult for all of us to comprehend the full magnitude of the volume of water which occurs in our State. We look principally at the relatively small quantities of water which we have developed and made available for use, and fear that we may someday have an over-all shortage. Let me tell you briefly something of the size of the body of water which is now being "exported" from the areas or origin, exported without control, with violence and destruction—and into the ocean.

Present consumptive water use in all of California is 23,000,000 acre-feet annually. This water comes from many sources, including wells, and from streams and reservoirs in all parts of the State.

Yet a single Northern California stream, the Sacramento River, has an average natural annual runoff nearly equal to that figure.

Measured at Sacramento, the Sacramento River Basin has an average natural runoff of slightly more than 22,000,000 acre-feet per year. In contrast, the present consumptive use of applied water for all purposes, including agriculture, urban and domestic, in the entire Sacramento River Basin is only 2,500,000 acre-feet per year.

Under ultimate development, the Sacramento basin, many years hence, is expected to use 6,400,000 acre-feet per year.

Taking into account natural losses due to transportation and evaporation, consumptive use downstream, and present exports from the Delta, there still is an average loss of about 16,000,000 acre-feet of Sacramento River water into the Pacific Ocean each year—a staggering waste.

An even more dramatic example is seen on the north coast, where in December, 1955, the Eel River poured into the Pacific Ocean nearly 1,000,000 acre-feet of water in one 24-hour period. Eight months later, some of the residents along this river were hauling in drinking water.

Nature has richly endowed California with water resources, but it is up to us to control, conserve and transport them in order to have water when and where our people need it Our engineers have determined methods for accomplishing these goals. These methods are within our grasp. It now becomes a matter of decision. And it is important to realize that these decisions are those of the people—and the authority to make them is held in trust by us as state officials and legislators charged with acting for and in behalf of all of the people of California. And these decisions must be made now, in 1957.

As we approach these legislative decisions, there may be at times strong pressures to introduce both partisan politics and sectionalism into the consideration of these matters. I am convinced that capitulating to these pressures would lead to disaster for the State of California.

There are many areas in which sincere conflicts of interest may occur. The most clear, logical and far seeing approach will be necessary in order to evolve solutions to our problems which will serve not only the State as a whole, but every portion of the State. It is essential that there be no yielding to pressures to use the issue of water development as a vehicle to further the interests of any individual, any group, or any political organization, nor to build one area at the expense of others, nor to hold back one area to suit the convenience of another. If we were to permit ourselves to become entrapped in such a course of action, we would be recognized by California today and recorded by historians of the future as preventing continued development and prosperity of all of the State. No segment of California can prosper while other areas and interests are impeded by the lack of water or plagued by uncontrolled floods.

STATE INSURANCE

In recent weeks, extensive scrutiny has been directed to the insurance coverage of the State of California, the methods which have been used traditionally in placing the policies and steps which might be taken to improve present practices.

Let me emphasize at the outset that the methods used did not originate in my administration. They have developed over a long period of years because of certain internal regulations within the insurance industry itself, together with considerations of administrative efficiency and the present laws of our State.

The State of California has consistently enjoyed excellent and favorable insurance coverage. At all times, we have had a maximum protection in relation to premiums paid The companies dealt with are reliable, long-established and of exceptionally fine reputation. The people of California have received full value for their insurance dollars.

I welcome study and inquiry into the methods used in awarding the State's insurance business. This entire matter should be the object of extensive, objective study If the Legislature can arrive at better, more equitable and practical means for handling these policies, I will welcome your explicit direction for any changes you believe would give us as good or better insurance protection than we now receive.

CONFLICT OF INTEREST

In the beginning of our national history, government was a comparatively limited factor in the daily lives of the people. Its areas of operation were clearly and rigidly defined. Unless a citizen committed a crime or voluntarily enlisted in the armed forces, he was little affected by his government.

Modern concepts and progressive expansion of our social and economic systems have brought government closely, even intimately, into the lives of every one of us. I will not debate the philosophical questions involved as to the desirability of this tendency. The fact remains and must be reckoned with.

In a simple society a few hard and fast rules of prohibition can be set down and all elected representatives of the people could meet such minimum standards of conduct. Bribery, corruption, and wilful misconduct in public office are easy to define and to deal with.

However, ours is not a simple society. It is an extremely complex one. Every citizen has a personal interest in the actions of government.

Try as you will, you cannot avoid contact in large degree with official agencies of the State.

Anyone who has attained position in the community which commands sufficient respect to justify election to the State Legislature surely has some degree of personal interest in one or more phases of our government's operation which can be profoundly affected favorably or adversely by legislative action.

Every legislator is bound to be affected personally by a vote on a tax law, a motor vehicle regulation and other similar legislation. In our State nearly every profession and vocation is licensed or otherwise regulated by legislative action. The question then arises: "Must the State be deprived of the services of all but princes and paupers in order to avoid conflict of interests?"

Under existing policy governing the compensation of legislators, members of necessity must actively pursue outside, private vocations in order to sustain their appropriate economic and social positions as individual members of the community.

For example attorneys in the normal development of practice, are called upon to appear before numerous boards and commissions as well as courts, over which, as legislators, they have great power. Accountants, real estate and insurance brokers, doctors, dentists and pharmacists, publishers, labor union members and nearly every business or occupation are touched by legislative action. To exclude all such men and women from direct participation in government or, on the other hand, to expect them to sacrifice the legitimate fruits of their life work without adequate compensation is equally unjust and unrealistic.

Since the business of government is the business of all the people, it cannot and should not be separated from day-to-day lives of the individuals who compose the citizenry of the State. It seems to me that what is needed is not accusation and protestations, nor debate over differences of opinion. What is needed is clear appraisal and adequate definition.

The suggestion has been made that Members of the Legislature be precluded from pursuing their professions and business enterprises in direct connection with state agencies. To compensate for any sacrifice, it has been proposed that a constitutional amendment be presented to the people raising the pay of legislators so that they could reasonably be expected to devote the major portion of their time solely to their duties as members of the California Legislature. At the same time, explicit prohibitions should be spelled out so that the entire question of conflict of interest and influence would be clearly defined.

California is a large and complex commonwealth, and each year the legislative process has become more involved and more demanding of the time and energy from each Member of the Legislature. It is not, therefore, outside the realm of probability that the functions of its legislators now justify such a course of action. I commend this to your attention as one possible solution to a most vexing economic and ethical problem in which each of you has a deep personal concern.

EMPLOYEES AND EXECUTIVE SALARIES

In the proposed budget which will be in your hands within a few days, I am recommending for your consideration salary adjustments for the civil service employees of our State Government in order that these salaries may be brought more nearly in line with compensations offered in other governmental agencies and in private enterprise for comparable service.

With record levels of employment consistently being achieved in our State, it is important that your State Government be placed in a favorable position when competing for new trained, skilled workers.

Considering California as an enterprise involving nearly 14,000,000 people and with an annual budget in the neighborhood of $2,000,000,000, it must be recognized that we are engaged in a large, diversified and highly sensitive business. The multiple phases of State Government require the skill, talent and experience of highly trained, specialized executives of this highest calibre.

I am proud of the men and women associated with me in the administration of our State Government. However, the task of recruiting them and persuading them to enter public service is a difficult one. Moreover it is becoming increasingly more difficult to replace these fine people when their personal interests dictate that they leave state service for more lucrative, more attractive employment in other governmental agencies and in private employment.

Studies reveal that local government agencies in many cases are paying their executives far higher salaries than the State offers for corresponding positions which carry much broader and more complex responsibilities.

In addition to those state officials whose salaries are fixed by statute there are state boards and commissions which demand tremendous sacrifice from highly dedicated and extremely able people in order to carry on their duties.

I believe that questions involving both executive salaries fixed by statute and the compensation offered on a per diem basis to the members of the independent boards and commissions properly merit your urgent and earnest consideration

You have consistently supported the sound policy of maintaining pay rates for state employees comparable to those prevailing in private employment. The State has not, however, kept pace with private industry in providing its employees with such fringe benefits as health and welfare benefits, disability insurance and unemployment insurance. The failure of the State to meet prevailing practice in industry is causing increasing difficulty in recruitment, especially of workmen for short term employment.

No employer as important as the State of California can afford to lag behind other employers in this regard. I recommend the adoption of the same benefits for state employees as now prevail in private industry.

GOVERNMENTAL REORGANIZATION

Questions arising from the basic organization and operation of California's State Government have been, for some time past, subjected to the penetrating scrutiny of committees in both houses of the Legislature. The results of their deliberations regularly come before you in various forms and I am confident all phases of this broad subject will continue to receive your earnest attention.

In particular, during the year past, considerable public interest has been dramatically focused upon the functions and conduct of the State Treasurer.

The confidence of the people of California was somewhat shaken when the spotlight of legislative study was recently directed upon the affairs of this office.

I commend the newly-appointed Treasurer of California for the vigorous, forthright manner in which he has undertaken the task of bringing new methods and concepts into the office. He has succeeded in a few brief weeks in restoring a large measure of public confidence and in stimulating widespread public interest in the affairs of that important but little-understood governmental function.

I concur in the conclusion of the present Treasurer of the State of California that his office should be removed from the rigidity of the State Constitution to give the Legislature full authority to determine which of several courses would be in the best interests of our people. From a standpoint of political philosophy, three possible courses suggest themselves:

1. The present method of selecting the State Treasurer by vote of the people could be maintained;

2. The State Treasurer could be made a member of the Governor's Council, subject to selection by the Governor with the advice and consent of the State Senate; or,

3. The office and title could be abolished at the discretion of the Legislature, the functions being transferred to such other officer or officers as are deemed appropriate.

To open the way for full and proper consideration of these and other alternatives, I suggest that you consider submitting a constitutional amendment to the people at the earliest opportunity.

In the course of continuing studies into the conduct of the State Treasurer's Office, the question arose as to the propriety of that officer—having substantial and direct dealings with any bank or banks in California while such banks are depositories of state funds—becoming indebted or otherwise obligated to such banks. The state law lacks adequate provision covering this subject.

It has been pointed out the personnel of the State Banking Department have their obligation in this regard very definitely set forth by law. I refer you to Section 234, Article 3, Chapter 2, Division 1 of the Financial Code, which sets forth restrictions on employees of the Banking Department in their individual dealings with banks. I suggest this may form a practical basis for legislation in this field with reference to the State Treasurer's Office in dealing with banks which are depositories of state funds.

LABOR-MANAGEMENT RELATIONS

It has been a guiding principle of my administration that stable, fairly balanced labor-management relations are essential to the well-being of our State's dynamic industrial economy. I have consistently held that California has long since passed from that primitive time when differences between labor and management, which frequently worked to the grave detriment of the people of our State, could be viewed with indifference or apathetic tolerance.

In the sensitive sphere of industrial relations, I believe that State Government has an obligation to encourage harmony and to minimize controversy. The very existence of our Department of Industrial Relations emphasizes official cognizance of the prime necessity for labor-management cooperation.

Accepting our duty as public servants to foster industrial peace, we must at the same time recognize that essentially labor and management must determine their own functional destiny.

It will never be the policy of my administration to impose rigid controls on the processes of collective bargaining. Thus, I shall continue to discourage any form of punitive legislation which would cripple or punish either labor or management and which would serve only to aggravate the natural, normal areas of difference between them, the inevitable result being conflict, irreparable division and bitterness. Ours must always be the positive role—the constructive role of building a framework within which the various segments of society may meet and together serve the common good.

That such an enlightened policy is in the public interest is testified to by the fact that the year 1956 was a very peaceful one in terms of industrial relations. The Department of Industrial Relations reports that in 1956 we had a lower proportion of employed workers involved in work stoppages than in any other postwar year, and probably the lowest proportion for any peacetime year for decades.

MENTAL HYGIENE

Mental illness is America's number one health problem today. Reliable authorities on the subject report that there are 9,000,000 men, women, and children in the United States today suffering from some form of mental illness severe enough to warrant treatment. Only a fraction of these receive such treatment. The reasons for this are complex and manifold.

In recent weeks, public attention has been dramatically focused on California's mental health program and its attendant problems. I sincerely believe this will result in lasting benefit to our mental health programs.

It has been my continuing policy to relieve and effect cures of mental ailments as effectively, and rapidly, as possible; and to encourage sympathetic public interest in the problems of the mentally ill. I am keenly interested in advocating modern, adequate facilities and procedures for treating this all-too-prevalent malady.

Any violation of or deviation from these fundamentals is repugnant to me and any such conditions have been and will continue to be promptly corrected.

In my proposed budget, which you will soon receive, provision is made for an expanded mental hygiene program substantially beyond provision for actual case load increases. This will be dealt with in greater detail in my budget message.

At this time, however, I take occasion to commend your legislative committees which have been inquiring into various phases of our mental hygiene program. Because this is such an extensive and complex subject, differences of opinion will occasionally arise but there can be no differences as to the goal we all seek—humane, effective treatment of mental illness.

TRAFFIC SAFETY

The greatest single domestic tragedy of our day is the alarming incidence of traffic casualties attributable to motor vehicle operation on our streets, roads and highways.

There is no consolation to be found in citing statistics proving that California is proportionately no worse than any other part of the Nation. We have more miles of good roads, more vehicles per capita and better climate for driving, thus creating a greater exposure to potential accidents.

The stark, bleak facts are these: Each unit in the statistics on traffic accidents represents a vibrant, once-happy man or woman, boy or girl, adult or infant. By the time that unit is added to the dreadful total, that person is either dead, forever crippled or—at least—subjected to unnecessary pain and suffering.

We must, with profound regret, conclude that prevalent conditions call for vigorous, immediate and positive action We have passed the time for palliatives and well-intentioned persuasion. The vast majority of our drivers and pedestrians are law-abiding and sensible people. They merit our serious consideration, and their protection from the careless, unresponsive minority is a primary obligation we cannot avoid.

Slogans and appeals to reason and fair play have their place and are effective with most people. However, there are evidently too many people who cannot be reached by such means. Here is an area where rigid surety of punishment and fear of apprehension must be employed to curb the needless, senseless slaughter of innocents.

Judges in certain communities have made it generally known that conviction of charges of drunken driving will result in the certainty of a jail term for the offender, in addition to whatever other punishment is provided by law. Study reveals that, coincidentally, accident rates involving injuries in those areas are much less than in other comparable areas.

I believe the course of action indicated is that the practice be made uniform throughout the State and I suggest that you enact legislation to provide mandatory jail sentences for drunken driving convictions.

I also suggest that you consider the possibility of increasing penalties to be assessed in cases of reckless driving.

The present vague and variously interpreted speed laws of California create a growing enforcement problem. After consultation with many outstanding authorities in this field, I am convinced it would be in the interest of public safety if California adopted a fixed and explicit maximum speed limit with heavy penalties for violations. The figure most generally suggested as a fair and enforceable maximum speed limit is 65 miles per hour.

Study also indicates that the present penalties for speeding violations do not serve the end of justice. I therefore suggest that you provide more stringent penalties, much more drastic punishment for the very high speeds.

It is also self-evident that surety of apprehension and punishment is a far greater deterrent than relative severity of punishment. With this in mind, I am asking for an urgency expansion of our California Highway Patrol immediately.

After consulting my official advisors on our capacity to absorb additional officers into the Patrol, I am requesting you to authorize 100 additional officers before the recess. This will be in addition to the 270 new positions being requested in the 1957-58 State Budget which will be in your hands within a few days.

To summarize, I request that you approve and authorize the necessary expenditure of funds to provide for 370 more California Highway Patrolmen before adjournment of this session.

Equally important with enforcement on the highways is the elimination of incompetent drivers by stricter licensing procedures. Higher qualifications must be established for persons operating motor vehicles under our increasingly complex and difficult driving conditions. Drivers who fail to comply with our traffic safety laws and those who are involved in an excessive number of accidents must have their driving privileges restricted or revoked.

CONSERVATION OF OIL AND GAS

Next to water, California's greatest natural resource is its underground reserves of oil and natural gas, both known and yet-to-be-discovered. These commodities are vital to our economy.

At the last general election there was presented to the electorate Proposition No. 4, an initiative measure which proposed to establish a California Oil and Gas Conservation Commission and to enact certain provisions designed to regulate the production of these two commodities in the interests of achieving greater recovery over a long period of time.

The measure became highly controversial with two important segments of the oil industry taking violently opposite stands, one side contending that the proposal was in the interests of bona fide conservation and the other contending that it was monopolistic and contrary to the best interests of a majority of oil producers.

Whether the measure was good or bad is now a moot question, since it was rejected by vote of the people. On the other hand, the conservation issue has not yet been resolved either one way or another. The average citizen cannot be sure whether our present conservation laws are adequate or inadequate.

Accordingly, I propose that the Legislature create a special commission to study California's oil and gas regulatory laws with the view of ascertaining whether our present laws provide sufficient protection against the wasteful production of this great natural resource. If our present laws are adequate, we should be assured of that fact; if they are inadequate, we should have guidance with respect to how best they may be improved.

It may well be that in your wisdom you will desire that there be one or more members of each house of the California Legislature serving with this commission.

It is my further recommendation that this commission be authorized to retain the best available experts in the field of oil and gas conservation to be found in this Country, and that it be authorized to seek the advice of all elements of our own California oil industry, of administrative agencies in other oil producing states and the advice of the United States Department of the Interior, which has jurisdiction over oil producing lands owned by the Federal Government.

With the advice of the best counsel we can obtain, the people of California may then know what is best in the interests of protecting our existing oil and gas reserves against wasteful production practices and what will best serve our needs with regard to the discovery and orderly development of new oil and gas resources not now known to exist.

STATE WATER BOARD

The new State Department of Water Resources has been working around the clock in meeting its responsibilities to the people of our State. The various elements of its organization are still in the midst of establishing fundamental procedures simultaneously with a continuing concern for development of our State's manifold water problems. It is perhaps too early to fully evaluate these basic functions.

I particularly commend the members and employees of the State Water Board for their untiring and unselfish efforts I have great confidence in the broad experience and deep dedication of the present members of the board. It has been my policy since becoming Governor to maintain a geographic balance on this board as on its predecessor.

In the interests of justice to all sections of the State in this very sensitive area, it is my suggestion that this concept be spelled out by the Legislature as official policy governing all future appointments to this agency.

During discussions concerning the formation of the new Department of Water Resources last session, I pledged to members of the Legislature that I would recommend to this session that legislation be adopted specifically requiring that three members of the board be named from Southern California, three from Northern California and one at large from any section of the State, and that such proportionate balance be maintained in the face of any numerical change in membership of the board. With or without such legislation, I intend to maintain such a policy as long as I am Governor.

Believing this to be sound administrative practice, I commend it to your attention and further suggest that—for purposes of this legislation—you clearly define the line of separation between Northern California and Southern California.

THE CALIFORNIA WATER PLAN

Early in the 1957 Session of the Legislature, the Department of Water Resources will place before you the third of a series of bulletins presenting the results of a comprehensive study of the water resources of California, the water uses and requirements of the State and methods to bring about the full control, protection, conservation, distribution and utilization of our available water supplies. This is known as the California Water Plan, preparation of which was first authorized by the Legislature in 1947, and by subsequent additional appropriations.

Preparation of this plan at a cost of more than $8,000,000, represents thorough and expansive investigation and study, not alone by the very capable engineers of the State of California. In addition, some of the most competent consulting engineers have provided their counsel, and the preliminary draft of the plan was submitted to interested individuals and agencies in the field of water development. Their comments and suggestions have added to the vast store of carefully documented information which has gone into preparation of this monumental work.

The California Water Plan includes consideration of both surface and underground water, and has as its purpose meeting the present and future water needs for all beneficial purposes and uses in all parts of the State, to the maximum extent practicable. Basically, the planning is being done in order that urgently needed water projects of today may be designed to fit into a pattern appropriate for the future.

The California Water Plan is a framework within which development of all water resources of the State by all agencies can take place in orderly and coordinated progression as required and as desired by the people of California in order to attain maximum ultimate benefit.

The California Water Plan is not a proposal for construction. Each unit or item of construction will come before the Legislature for consideration at an appropriate time. The Feather River Project, the initial feature of the California Water Plan, has already been authorized for construction. Economic justification and financial feasibility of other component features of the California Water Plan will be considered in connection with specific construction proposals to be made later and based upon then-existing conditions.

Our legal, sectional, and political problems cannot be resolved without acceptance by all concerned that the physical aspects of these problems can be solved to the benefit of all. An uncoordinated and unplanned approach to water development in the future might well deprive some portions of the State of the water which they will need in the future, a situation already facing certain areas.

The Citizens' Conference on Water Problems, which I convened in Sacramento on November 19th, proposed that the Legislature be requested to accept the California Water Plan and to approve it as an expression of the general intent for an orderly development of the State's water resources for the benefit of all the people of California, but without approval of any specific project which should and would be considered and acted upon by the Legislature as the need therefor would arise.

Upon its presentation in final form, I urge that you accept the California Water Plan.

WATER DEVELOPMENT FUND

I further recommend that a Water Development Fund be established, adequately supported by a long-range financing program. This fund should be utilized to implement state participation in water development, both in the construction of projects by the State, and in financial assistance to local agencies.

I recommend that the presently uncommitted tidelands oil funds and income from that source through Fiscal Year 1957-58 be used initially to establish this fund.

I also recommend that annual appropriations consistent with other demands on the General Fund, from general revenues of the State, be put into the fund for water development purposes. It is believed that in order to adequately finance the State's responsibilities in water development, the issuance and sale of some general obligation bonds may be required. Revenues from sale of water and power from state projects should be pledged first to the payment of principal and interest on any such bond issues after allowance has been made for operation and maintenance costs. Any excess of such revenues over and above these requirements should be put into the fund for use in financing other water development projects.

Establishment of this fund will make available money for an immediate start on construction work necessary to the Feather River Project, and for further water development projects as needed and justified in all areas of the State, as such projects are found to be in conformity with the objectives of the California Water Plan and in accordance with policies which you adopt to determine the proper areas of state interest in water development.

AID TO LOCAL PROJECTS

The State should assist local agencies in the development of their own water resources by providing loans on a long-term, low interest rate basis to local agencies which are willing to undertake their own developments but which do not have at present the financial resources to undertake the work.

The State should be in a position to cooperate financially with local agencies to the extent of the state interest in projects to be built by local agencies.

These basic policies should be set forth in general terms in a constitutional amendment having to do with the counties of origin problem, since the firm and effective protection for these areas is to be found in actual construction of projects to conserve our water resources, making them available to serve the needs of the people.

There are two major categories of State interest in local projects which should merit state financial participation.

One concerns functions of general state interest such as I have just described. State financing of such portions of locally-built projects will assure their being planned and built to include these functions to the extent that they are necessary to meet the multipurpose objectives of the California Water Plan. In some instances, meeting such objectives would be beyond the ability or proper responsibility of the local constructing agency.

The second category of state participation in local projects should be to finance costs of meeting quantitative goals which exceed local needs but which are necessary to bring the water and power development by the project into conformity with the objectives of the California Water Plan.

Only through such participation by the State can we reasonably expect to achieve the full development of all of our water resources in some instances. In the absence of such assistance, many local agencies would be unable to build their projects to achieve the goals of the California Water Plan and we would continue developing only that portion of the water which is most easily accessible and most economical to develop. This leaves undeveloped other water resources and power, which will be more expensive, but which will some day be essential if we are to have enough water and energy for the ultimate full needs of all areas and all uses.

The extent of state interest and the amount which the State should properly contribute of necessity must be based upon thorough engineering and economic study of all factors, with recommendations by the Department of Water Resources.

The general idea of state aid to local projects was recommended by the Citizens' Committee on Water Problems.

SAN LUIS UNIT

We are confident that we can reach agreement with the Department of Interior on the terms of a contract between the department and the State for federal financing and construction of the San Luis Unit, which would then be turned over to the State for operation and repayment as an integral part of the State's Feather River Project. and that legislation can be introduced in the Congress to authorize the project and appropriate funds therefor

The State must take all necessary steps to insure that urgently needed supplemental water is delivered to the San Joaquin Valley at the earliest possible date.

UPPER FEATHER RIVER BASIN

Within the next three months, the Department of Water Resources will present a report on the feasibility of five local projects in the Upper Feather River Service Area. To the extent that any or all of these are found necessary and justified now, appropriation of funds for preparation of construction plans and specifications preparatory to construction will be recommended by the Director of Water Resources. Acquisition of lands for the dam and reservoir sites for these five projects is already well advanced from funds appropriated for that purpose in 1956. Additional funds to complete the acquisition of these lands, plus those required for associated public recreational developments will be required. The Legislature will be called upon to formulate a definite policy as to the source of funds for construction of recreational facilities associated with water development.

KLAMATH RIVER INTERSTATE COMPACT

The Klamath River Interstate Compact with the State of Oregon has been signed by the commissioners of both states. It is now to be submitted to you and to the Legislature of Oregon for ratification prior to its submission to the Congress for its consent. The compact will be submitted to the Legislature as early as possible in order that ratification can be obtained at an early date and submitted to the First Session of the Eighty-fifth Congress for its consideration.

FLOOD CONTROL PROJECT MAINTENANCE

In a report of the House Appropriations Committee on the Department of the Army Civil Function appropriations bill for the Eighty-third Congress, Second Session, it was said that while maintenance of flood control facilities by local agencies generally is good, there have been some flagrant instances of deficient standards of maintenance. Such work resulted in higher federal outlays for flood control during times of emergency, according to the report. The Corps of Engineers was instructed to investigate such instances and to take steps necessary to bring about compliance with satisfactory standards.

The state flood control program includes repayment of costs of local cooperation required by Congress for flood control projects, which has resulted in a substantial state investment. Under recent congressional enactments, the number of such projects will greatly increase. Although the local agency concerned is required to maintain and operate the project works after completion, there is no practical way to enforce this obligation and in several instances the state investment has suffered because of lack of proper operation and maintenance. Further, the effectiveness of these projects to fulfill the function has been severely curtailed. Consideration should be given to legislation to enforce and accomplish maintenance of flood control projects in which the State has an investment in the same manner as is now provided by law as pertaining to the Sacramento River flood control project.

BEACH EROSION CONTROL

It is recommended that legislation be enacted to provide for financial participation by the State in beach erosion control projects in cooperation with federal and local interests. Beach erosion control projects, in general, have a state-wide interest and benefit which, it is believed, justifies financial participation by the State in a manner similar to financial participation by the State in flood control projects.

FIRE DAMAGE TO WATERSHEDS

The recent disastrous fires in Ventura, Los Angeles, San Bernardino and San Diego Counties point up the necessity for preparations to prevent damage from mud and debris flows that will result from heavy rains in burned-over areas. An emergency fund should be set up so that immediate action can be taken in the future when and if natural disasters occur again

CONTINUITY OF GOVERNMENT

We view with fervent gratitude the fact that our Nation is at peace and that our immediate prospects are for continuing peace. However, we cannot permit ourselves to be lulled into the fallacious thought that peace is merely the absence of active warfare.

Peace is a condition which must be fostered, nurtured and actively encouraged, not only in areas of national policy but even in the privacy of each American home.

We can expect to preserve the existing state of affairs only if we are prepared for the most unfavorable eventuality. Our civil defense program is designed primarily and necessarily to be preparatory rather than preventive, and it is functioning efficiently and effectively.

Serious concern has frequently been expressed on the question of the orderly continuity of governmental and judicial agencies following an extensive disaster which would reduce our official machinery below an operable minimum.

This subject presents potential problems of sufficient magnitude to merit your diligent study and the pursuit of such action as your collective judgment might conclude is appropriate.

JUDICIAL REFORM

I must take note of varying shades of opinion which have been made public during the past few months with reference to the judicial administration of law and equity in our State.

Having served for over a decade as a trial court judge and having practiced before the Bar 14 years before that, I have had excellent opportunities to observe the conduct of our courts and the philosophy underlying them.

In a republic, any arm of government is properly subject to public scrutiny and criticism. Procedural deficiencies and occasional shortcomings of individuals can be corrected without upsetting the fundamental functions and philosophy upon which our free institutions were founded and have prospered.

However, we must be constantly alert to see that the liberties of the people are not unduly diluted under any guise.

A survey of the judicial systems of the 48 states will reveal that—with a few exceptions—each provides for the popular and periodic election of most or all its judges and justices. In my opinion, it is just as important for the courts to be directly responsible to the people as it is for the legislative or the executive authority.

Since this subject will be placed before you in the weeks ahead, I urge that you ponder carefully and examine minutely each separate proposal in this field. Many of these proposals undoubtedly have great merit and are worthy of your favorable consideration. Others may be entirely ineffectual. Still others may have elements in them, well meaning and innocent of themselves, which would pose serious threats to the rights of our people to self government and direct responsibility.

I would particularly caution against sweeping solutions which ignore details and peculiar local conditions. Where simple procedural changes may suffice in one community to facilitate judicial business, another community may need additional judges or expanded facilities.

Finally, I have stated elsewhere and I here reiterate—I am unalterably opposed to the delegation of authority without a corresponding balance of responsibility.

LOCAL PLANNING ADVISORY COMMITTEE

During the First Extra Session of 1956, the Legislature adopted a measure to provide for a local planning advisory committee to assist the Department of Finance in connection with community planning programs and problems.

There were three important determining factors behind my signature on this bill. First, there was a certain urgency so that California could qualify for federal assistance in this field. Secondly, there were several very valuable and desirable provisions incorporated in the bill. Thirdly, subject to invalidation because of conflict with federal regulation, there was a definite time limit placed on the life of this committee.

However, in this law there is incorporated an undesirable and potentially dangerous precedent which I feel should be brought to your attention.

This law—Chapter 33, Statutes of 1956 (First Extra Session)—provides for appointment of members by the Governor only upon the explicit recommendation of the presidents of certain unofficial, private organizations. This places upon the Governor an important responsibility without giving him the corresponding power to properly carry out that responsibility.

Committee members secured under this method thus far have been good, conscientious people. The issue of personalities in no wise enters into this discussion. The fact remains, an unhealthy precedent has been established.

I have no objection whatever to having broad qualifying restrictions placed upon these appointees to the extent that their position, experience and geography must be considered. I do have serious reservations as to the wisdom of permitting individuals or organizations who have no direct responsibility to the people of California to name members of official state agencies.

Logical extension of this practice could seriously impair the basic freedom of our people and I wish to be clearly on record as opposed to encouraging and expanding any trend in this direction.

LIBRARY SERVICE

Our splendid public libraries constitute what is probably our most valuable single asset for the continuing and expanding educational needs of our people. Both as a substitute for and a supplement to formal education, these institutions are of tremendous lifetime benefit to those Californians who are able to take advantage of their services.

However, their availability is, according to reliable authority, somewhat restricted and many communities of our State suffer from an inadequacy or total absence of such facilities.

I believe that this is an important and frequently overlooked area for public consideration and discussion. I commend the members of the Legislature who have expressed their deep interest in the subject and I feel that their activities in this direction certainly merit your attention.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS

With reference to employees of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Department, the law and legislative intent are reasonably clear in spelling out prohibitions against the solicitation or acceptance of financial contributions of any sort from licensees of that department.

While the law is not explicit in covering the subject, I feel that it should apply with equal force against the solicitation or acceptance of financial contributions by or on behalf of a gubernatorial candidate The recent reformation of liquor law enforcement in our State was based on the premise that the Governor was ultimately and directly responsible for administration of the laws governing the alcoholic beverage industry in our State.

Carrying this philosophy to a consistent conclusion, I urge you to expressly and effectively prohibit the participation, directly or indirectly, of alcoholic beverage licensees in California gubernatorial campaigns.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

In the past, I have presented to the Legislature suggestions designed to make our unemployment compensation program more sound and serviceable. Suggestions of increased benefits geared to present day costs of living have consistently been coupled with insistence that the unemployment fund be protected from depletion through fraudulent claims.

The response of the Legislature to these suggestions has been most gratifying.

Two years ago, the then out-moded base period earnings requirement was adjusted to establish a sound, up-to-date economic base for operation of the law. In response to the need for action on the fraud issue, a number of significant improvements were adopted. These changes, in turn, made it possible to correct some of the deficiencies that have crept into the law over the years and simultaneously helped provide for increases in the maximum benefits.

These revisions were aimed at providing a sounder, more equitable system of unemployment insurance. These steps were well and wisely taken They did not, however, bring us to our goal.

There are at least two deficiencies remaining in the law. These relate to the maximum benefit amount and to the extent of coverage under the law.

The maximum benefit amount has not kept pace with the advance in wages in covered employment. In 1939, the maximum weekly benefit equalled 60 percent of average weekly earnings Today these payments fall short of 40 percent of average weekly earnings.

With regard to coverage, approximately 25 percent of the wage and salary earners in California falling within the scope and purpose of unemployment compensation remain outside the protective provisions of the law. In light of the smooth and effective extension of Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance protection in recent years, I earnestly believe that this is an area which deserves the careful attention of the Legislature.

Other states face similar problems. On more than one occasion, President Eisenhower has called them to the attention of the various state governors, emphasizing that they represent areas for state action rather than federal interference. I am in complete accord with this view and present it to you for your practical and positive action.

COMPENSATION FOR DISABILITY

We have good reason to be proud of California's system of unemployment compensation for disability. It remains one of the four state programs of its kind in existence in the United States.

Previous legislatures have been diligent to keep this program in step with economic developments affecting its operation. Because this is in a dynamic, expanding field, it demands our continuing concern and consideration. Wages and living standards, fortunately, continue to advance, and since our disability compensation program is a wage-loss system, it is essential that its benefit structure be kept reasonably in line with these advancements.

The reasons advanced for increasing maximum unemployment compensation benefits apply with equal force to unemployment compensation for disability. If anything, the argument for increasing disability benefits is even stronger in that the reserves in the disability fund are obviously sufficient, belong to the workers, and with justice could be paid out to them for their legitimate disability needs.

I also suggest that you consider extension of disability protection to certain groups presently excluded. It seems the essence of logic that those groups of workers desiring to contribute to the disability fund for their own protection could effectively be brought within the scope of the law.

WORKMEN'S COMPENSATION AND INDUSTRIAL SAFETY

Insurance against disability incurred from industrial hazards, known as workmen's compensation, is the oldest form of social security in this Country. It was adopted on a compulsory basis in California in 1914, some 40 odd years ago.

The 65 percent wage-loss system that presently governs the rate of compensation for industrial injuries was written into the law at that time.

Under present law, current restrictions on average weekly earnings establish a maximum weekly benefit of $40 in the case of temporary disabilities and $35 in the case of permanent disabilities. The actual earnings of injured workers, however, average close to $85 a week, with the result that approximately 80 percent of injured workers are being denied a 65 percent rate of compensation which the law itself says they should have.

Two years ago you responded to my request for an increase in the maximum benefit amounts by granting a $5 boost for both permanent and temporary disabilities. I urge that we continue along the road of substantial progress at a rapid pace until the 65 percent wage-loss principle in the law is restored to the level of operation contemplated by the fathers of workmen's compensation.

There is also considerable room for progress in the improvement of the death benefit structure. Despite the liberalization accomplished in 1955, the maximum death benefit of $12,500 for the typical 40-year-old widow with dependent children of a deceased injured worker is a far cry from what may be considered adequate compensation in a social tragedy of this nature.

As you know, the death benefit is payable at the same rate as compensation for temporary disability until the death benefit is exhausted. Even at the present low maximum benefit rate of $40 a week, this means that the typical 40-year-old widow with dependent children can expect approximately six years of compensation at this rate. Obviously, this does not begin to make up for the loss of many more years of support which the spouse of a 40-year-old widow would have been able to provide had there been no fatal accident.

My recommendation to the Legislature at this time is that it remove the unrealistic limits on the duration of death benefit payments and give serious consideration to the enactment of a life pension, with additional benefits for dependents, payable in death cases at the temporary disability rate until death or remarriage of the beneficiary.

Another matter which I wish to call to your attention is the lack of adequate provisions in our Workmen's Compensation Law regarding the rehabilitation of injured workers. Except for the requirement for physical restoration through medical, surgical, and hospital care and treatment, our Workmen's Compensation Law makes no provision to assure the worker's return to his former employment, or to some gainful employment wherein he will have income and future opportunities equal to or closely approximating the income and opportunities in the employment for which his injury has disqualified him.

This is an area where legislative action is most essential. The provision for rehabilitation training would constitute a service in keeping with both the original concept of rehabilitating workers to gainful employment and the modern concept of encouraging self-support rather than "welfare support."

Finally, we must never lose sight of the need for accident prevention as a goal far preferable to adequate compensation after the occurrence of an injury.

High employment means that we have to gear our industrial safety program with our working population, because our statistics prove that high employment means more industrial injuries.

As a minimum program for immediate action, additional funds should be granted the Department of Industrial Relations in order that it may hire the safety engineers necessary for a realistic program of education, engineering, and enforcement of State Industrial Safety Orders.

INDUSTRIAL HEALTH

I feel it is most important that you give sympathetic consideration to the services of the State Health Department's Bureau of Adult Health, whose principal function is the protection of the health of California's working men and women.

As has been pointed out, California's labor force is the greatest ever in our history.

The demands have increased markedly upon the staff of this bureau, which has remained virtually static the last 10 years. New chemicals have been introduced into industry and many new industries and industrial processes have developed, including the peacetime uses of radiological materials.

Further, the development of new and potent—and sometimes highly hazardous—pesticides and insecticides to protect California's crops poses an ever-increasing problem to this bureau. These poisons are vital to the growth of California's myriad of agricultural products, but with their use, advances must be made in devising safe methods of using them in order to protect the public health.

FAIR LABOR STANDARDS ACT

There has been dissatisfaction with the operation of various portions of the Labor Code relating to matters falling within the general category of minimum labor standards. These include the hours of work and other protective provisions covering women and minors and the overlapping jurisdiction of the Industrial Welfare Commission in these subjects.

The need is not piecemeal action, but thorough revision. The time has come in our present stage of industrial development to give serious consideration to the need for the enactment of an up-to-date, fair labor standards act for California patterned closely after the federal law.

AIR POLLUTION

Our continued growth in population and industrial development provide us with vast wealth and comfort. But, in achieving this enviable position, we are simultaneously filling the air with contaminants, creating a problem which is reaching into almost every area of our State.

The air pollution problem has undergone considerable change within the past two years, to the point where it is inaccurate to conclude that air pollution is a problem confined solely to the heavily populated, metropolitan regions of California.

The fact that smog has been experienced in a number of scattered locations in the State and the fact that crop damage has been reported from several counties, would indicate that air pollution travels many miles; that it does not simply hover over our larger cities.

Concurrent with these reports of the spread of air pollution and its attack on crops come reports on its effect on the health of our people. Preliminary results of a state-wide household survey indicate that over one-third of the adult persons in California experience some degree of irritation which they attribute to air pollution.

Because of the over-all significance of air pollution upon the health and economy of our citizens, the State Department of Public Health is maintaining careful vigil over the health of the population, keyed to the scientific engineering studies of the spread, intensity and occurrence of smog.

While a number of agencies and private groups are doing research in many fields, additional studies will speed the day when air pollution can be better understood and more effectively controlled. And since the problem is of growing concern it is important that the State assume more responsibility for research and guidance.

Understanding that legislative committees currently are working on this problem, I wish to offer my assistance, and the facilities of my administration, to work with them on any constructive plan which lends itself to the satisfactory solution of the air pollution problem in California.

ATOMIC DEVELOPMENT AND PUBLIC HEALTH

I am advised by our State Director of Public Health that the atomic age, with its unbelievable promises to come from the peaceful uses of atomic energy, creates serious problems of protecting ourselves against any increase in the radiation levels to which we are already exposed

It is my understanding that Members of the Legislature are intensely interested in the possibilities of expanding the peaceful use of atomic energy but, at the same time, are deeply concerned with protecting the public against any possible hazards to health surrounding its use. It is my intention to cooperate in any way I can to facilitate efforts to deal forthrightly and promptly with this problem.

POLIO PREVENTION

I propose mobilization of our resources to make available to all the population of great polio risk the means whereby we may prevent another major outbreak of infantile paralysis in California. Scientific research has given us an effective weapon against this disease. Its mass application is fully justified.

In the Budget I propose that $3,000,000 in state funds be appropriated for the purchase of poliomyelitis vaccine and for the administration of the program. These funds would purchase sufficient vaccine to provide two injections for approximately 2,000,000 Californians.

My request would not provide enough money to afford protection to the 6,000,000 unvaccinated under the age of 40, who represent our highest poliomyelitis risk, but it is hoped the program will generate an incentive in this population to seek protection against this crippling disease.

The vaccine would also be used to provide vaccination for persons who have received only one or two of the recommended three inoculations.

Information compiled thus far shows that the crippling effects of poliomyelitis have been reduced at least 85 percent among those who have had two or more inoculations, evidence enough that it would be $3,000,000 well spent.

AID TO SENIOR CITIZENS

In any consideration of the economic security of our people, extensive thought must be given to the need of our senior citizens. At present, there are 700,000 persons 65 years of age and older principally reliant upon benefits either from the Federal Old Age and Survivors Insurance program or the California Old Age Security program or from a combination of the two.

People are living longer in California It is interesting to observe that the average recipient of Old Age Security benefits in California today is over 76 years of age.

We have a large number of elderly citizens who require considerable care in the course of daily living and many who also require extensive medical attention. Out-of-the-ordinary necessities of our senior citizens are not now being adequately met. Under our Old Age Security program, we permit beneficiaries to retain certain extra income in order to cover vitally necessary medical care.

As far as it goes, this is a humane policy and of itself is just. However, approximately one-third of the people receiving such assistance do not have sufficient additional income to derive the anticipated benefit from this provision.

For individuals who rely entirely upon the assistance grant, such a condition can readily prove disastrous. Such aid provides only basic necessities. These people frequently are left in the tragic dilemma of having to decide whether to do without certain fundamentals required to sustain them or to do without sorely needed medical attention.

Equity, common sense and our American concept of personal dignity impel us to give our attention to finding a way to relieve such an unhappy and unnecessary condition.

Federal funds for a program to alleviate these problems become available to us on next July 1 but they are contingent upon affirmative action by the California Legislature authorizing the program and appropriating matching funds from state revenues.

By your official action, you cannot hope to meet every need of our senior citizens. These obligations devolve proportionately upon the State, upon individuals and upon private groups of people.

However, the fact that we cannot do it all does not relieve us of the responsibility for doing what we can. I, therefore, commend these and other related needs among our people to your careful, sympathetic attention and prompt action.

CHILD CARE CENTERS

It is always agreeable when we can undertake and foster worthwhile programs which are, at the same time, both humanitarian and economical.

Such a governmental enterprise has been found in the state-supported child care centers. The fact that these centers have taken care of over 250,000 children since they were first instituted in 1946 on a temporary, emergency basis is indicative of the vital need for them. In the existing state of our society, we must continue to deal with the problem of single-parent families where that parent must work to support young children.

As constituted, the costs of this program are borne in part by the State and in part by the parents. If these centers did not provide care for these youngsters, it is entirely probable that a major portion of them would have legitimate call on the "Aid to Needy Children" program. This could easily cost the taxpayers of California up to 50 percent more than the cost of maintaining and supporting child care centers.

These considerations, coupled with the fact that the expanding economy of California requires the skills and talents of all available workers, impels me to suggest to you at this time that the California child care center program be extended without reference to a terminal date, and that it be made an integral part of California's great body of practical, progressive, humane legislation.

DELINQUENT FATHERS

At the cornerstone of our way of life is the stability and the security of the American home.

The proportionately small but actually large number of fathers who are wilfully derelict in their obligation to properly provide for their minor children is becoming an increasingly serious social problem. Aside from considerations of morality and human suffering involved in each case, public concern is also directed toward the millions of dollars annually expended by our state, federal, and local governmental agencies to help support the neglected families of these men, and to trace those fathers who have deliberately and physically fled from their responsibilities in this regard.

There are factors far more important than the economics involved. Because of the volume of official assistance extended to the innocent victims of this delinquency, the interests of the genuine hardship cases deserving of our assistance are also adversely affected.

Such cases of irresponsibility and neglect are becoming all too common. Recognizing the many difficult problems and complex questions involved, I hope that the California Legislature will give this matter serious consideration and will also take such action as it deems appropriate to place more effective restraints on potential defaulting fathers whose abdication of responsibility would pose a threat to a major source of basic strength for our Nation.

VETERANS' HOME LOANS

The Legislature and the people of California are to be congratulated on their continuing and expanded support of the veterans' farm and home loan program. Here is a superb example of a program made possible by use of the State's credit, which provides benefits to its participants without cost to the taxpayers. It helps a large segment of our population to become property owners, and it provides substantial benefits to communities throughout the State by increasing local property values with the construction of new homes in previously undeveloped or underdeveloped areas.

During the recent session of the Legislature, a more realistic approach was made on the questions of maximum value and maximum amounts allowable for loans under the Cal-Vet program. This legislation, however, left an apparent inequity which I am sure you will want to correct.

The law now provides that up to $15,000 can be advanced for the purchase of a home by a California veteran whereas no more than $13,500 can be advanced for a home construction loan.

With the various regulations and inspection procedures attendant to such loans, I suggest that the State's interests would be as well protected and greater equity would be achieved if the maximum for both home purchase and home construction loans could be fixed at $15,000.

AVIATION PROBLEMS

Rapid transportation is becoming progressively more important to the economy of California. All forms of transportation—surface, sea and air—are contributing to the generally favorable commercial outlook in our State.

The California Aeronautics Commission informs me that, paradoxically, as the volume of demands upon aviation has increased, available convenient facilities for handling this traffic have been slowly but steadily constricted.

The vigor of our dynamic aeronautics industry is a matter of legitimate concern to all Californians. Problems of zoning, priorities and education are involved and I commend this subject to your serious attention.

OIL REVENUES

The State of California has a tremendous financial interest in the development of oil in tide and submerged lands. As the result of discussions arising out of the administration of the Cunningham-Shell Act of 1955, I believe this question should be fully reviewed by the Legislature so that not only the State's interests will be fully protected but also that the oil industry's efforts will not be unduly impeded in developing this great resource. Royalty rates and bonus payments including the 12½ percent limitation should be carefully reviewed with these objectives in mind.

EDUCATION

Our increasing population presents matters of great concern to all of us with reference to the education of our youth. Today in the United States we have 8,600,000 young men and women in the 18-to-21 college age group. In the grade school group of 7 to 10 years we have 13,200,000 boys and girls. Within another decade we will have not only more young people in all our schools, we will have a far larger percentage of them wanting to go beyond high school.

In their repeated endorsements of state bond issues for expansion of educational facilities, the latest instance being on November 6, the people of California have wisely demonstrated a dynamic awareness of the need for meeting this challenge. In keeping with this mandate, extensive provision has been made for our State's educational systems in the proposed budget These will be discussed in greater detail in my Budget Message which you will have before you within a very few days.

FISH AND GAME

When you review the budget proposals which will be submitted to you within the next few days, you will note that provision for the operation of the State Department of Fish and Game will be based entirely upon present revenues and such additional income as is predictable based upon present fees and taxes. At this time, I do not advocate nor propose any increase in fish and game license fees.

However, I would be remiss if I did not point out that the urgent need for fish and game services apparently is increasing at a rate greater than the increasing volume of license sales can accommodate.

With so many of your members well versed in these problems, with such an extensive array of independent experts immediately available and with the cooperation of the State Fish and Game Commission at your disposal, I feel the legislative chambers and committee rooms provide excellent platforms for the many and extensive questions involved in this field.

I know that these matters will receive your careful study and will have the advantage of your combined knowledge and experience on the subject.

ADDITIONAL SUBJECTS

As you are well aware, the Governor's initial message at the opening of a legislative session is broad in scope but not necessarily all inclusive. A number of subjects, ranging from consideration of the status of specific projects such as the 1960 Winter Olympics facilities to broad areas such as increased aid to public education and other details concerned with the operation of our various state departments, more appropriately fall within the purview of the State Budget and will be covered in that document and the comments which will accompany it.

CLOSING

Theodore Roosevelt was not only a great American and patriot, he was an earnest student of history and philosophy. On the occasion of his assuming the vice presidency on March 4, 1901, he said from the rostrum of the United States Senate (and I quote): "The history of free government is in large part the history of those representative legislative bodies in which, from the earliest times, free government has found its loftiest expression. They must ever hold a peculiar and exalted position in the record which tells how the great nations of the world have endeavored to achieve and preserve orderly freedom. * * * Great privileges and great powers are ours, and heavy are the responsibilities that go with these privileges and these powers. Accordingly as we do well or ill, so shall mankind in the future be raised or cast down."

This is a solemn thought which must—in one form or another—be with us each today as we commence another session of the California State Legislature.

I am convinced that California's destiny is magnificent greatness and ultimate primacy among the states of our beloved Republic. I am confident that your deliberations and actions between today and adjournment next summer will materially advance our State toward realization of its unparalleled potential.

Inasmuch as you and I have a common goal—the continuing progress and prosperity of California—you can be assured of the wholehearted cooperation of your Governor, his staff and the members of his administration. We welcome your suggestions and will do whatever can be done to assist you in meeting the problems of our mutual constituents.

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor of California

Mr. Arthur A. Ohnimus
Chief Clerk of the Assembly
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEAR MR. OHNIMUS: House Resolution No. 129 of the 1955 Session directed this office to prepare a compilation of all of the laws of this State relating to youths, and directed the State Printer to publish the same.

This office has compiled a group of laws relating to youths which it believes is in literal compliance with the resolution. However, there have been discussions with members of the Governor's Advisory Committee on Youth Problems and with state agencies which indicate the desirability of further review before the compilation is printed. For that reason, we have delivered a copy of the compilation to the Director of the Youth Authority. His office will circulate it among the interested parties, and advise the Legislature of any conclusions that are reached.

Very truly yours,

DEAR MR. OHNIMUS: Your Charter Day telegram transmitting Assembly Resolution No. 23 was, for me, one of the high spots of a day filled with heart-warming events. I was truly moved by the sentiments expressed in the resolution and deeply grateful to the Assembly members for their kindness. I feel, however, that the credit given to me in liberal measure does not belong to me alone As I find myself saying over and over, the development of the university has been a team effort, and the State Assembly is a most important member of the team.

Yours sincerely,

PITTSBURGH 13, PENNSYLVANIA, April, 1956

This is the first opportunity I have had to direct my attention from the demands of the work that needed to be done, and to go through all of the many messages I received almost a year ago. It is something that, for a long time, I have wanted to do.

The spirit that moved you to express your sentiments as you did—to share your feelings—has lost none of its warmth or meaning with time. Although I must, of necessity, send the same message to all, it is not less sincere than if I were to write each one a special thought. Whatever I might say would mean the same even though the words would be different.

With feelings deeper than this may convey, I send you my thanks for the inspiration you have added for the pursuit of the work we will go on doing.

PRAYER

The following prayer was offered by the Chaplain, Rev. Robert S. Romeis:

Dear God and Father of Mankind, Forgive our feverish ways! Purge from our hearts the arrogance which makes us believe that we can live our lives without Thee. Take from us the pride which makes us attempt to manage the affairs of the world as though we did not need Thee. Amid the constantly changing scene help us to see Thee as the one unchanging reality; in an age that so sorely needs direction help us to see Thee as the undimmed beacon; in a time when we have too much put our trust in material things help us again to realize that in the realm of the spirit lies ultimate power. Guide now the deliberations of this Assembly that its words and its works may bring honor to Thy holy name: Through Christ our Lord.—AMEN.

LEGISLATIVE HISTORY OF THE MATCHING PRINCIPLE FOR ACQUISITION OF BEACHES AND PARKS

December 27, 1955

The matching principle was initiated by Chapter 765 of the Statutes of 1927, approved by the Governor on May 25, 1927, authorizing the State to acquire land for state parks through the issuance of state bonds if such land has been approved for acquisition by the State and if a private gift, city or county appropriation or some source other than appropriation by the people of the State of California or the sale of state bonds, equal to the amount to be appropriated by the State, has been deposited in the State Treasury. Such gift or appropriation may be in the form of timber, land or other properties, or in money or a combination of any of these if the state park finance board has ascertained that such gift or appropriation equals or exceeds the State's proposed expenditure.

Prior to 1927, the state park program in California was moving quite slowly, and the initiating of the matching principle served a two-fold purpose. First, it provided the means whereby the park program could be financially accelerated, and secondly, it provided the State with a method for determining public acceptance and enthusiasm, a measuring stick to assign priorities to certain areas.

It is interesting to note that California was and is the only state utilizing a mandatory matching principle as the basic law. The active support, financial and otherwise, of individuals and groups on a voluntary basis, has served a very important role in the development of the present State, as well as national, park systems. However, to augment these gifts and donations there have been a great variety of procedures used by the various states. Some of these procedures are by legislative appropriations, fish and game fees, gasoline tax, automobile license fees, fines, bonds, special tax levy, severance tax, exchange of school land, operating income, and transfer of federal lands.

Even though California uses the matching principle, it has acquired state park lands other than through matching, by special legislation, gifts, transfer from the State Lands Division, acquisition by U. S. Patent Fees from bond funds, transfer from the Department of Finance and the Division of Highways, leases, possession and transfer of control, and agreements from the Division of Highways To date, about half the state park and acquisition program has required matching funds and about half non-matching.

Chapter 1422, Statutes of 1945, in the same manner as Chapter 765 of the Statutes of 1927, appropriated $15,000,000 to be expended for lands for public recreation purposes Of the money so appropriated, no portion thereof was to be expended unless matched with a like amount of money, property or lands received from private or other sources, except for the acquisition of federal lands.

Section 5015 of the Public Resources Code designates the State Park Commission as the State's agency to supervise and to be charged with the responsibility for the acquisition, development, maintenance and protection of ocean beaches for public recreation and control and correction of beach and cliff erosion and to supervise any state expenditure made thereby.

In matching state funds on such works by the federal government or any of its agencies, the federal funds do not need to be deposited in the State Treasury, but can be expended by the federal agency to fulfill its commitment.

Any other cooperating corporation, person, political subdivision, public district or public subdivision other than the State, which is undertaking any development or protection of beaches for public use or control and correction of beach and cliff erosion must have made available to the State for expenditure by the State a sum equal to or in excess of the amount appropriated therefor, and in no event could any such undertaking be initiated in any county unless the county had prepared and had approved by the State Park Commission a master plan of the county's ocean beaches providing for their acquisition, development and control and establishing a priority on such projects within the county.

PROCEDURE FOR ACQUIRING AREAS FOR BEACHES AND PARKS

Originally, for an area to be considered for a state beach or park, it was to possess either outstanding scenic, scientific, historic, prehistoric, or active recreational values or a combination of these characteristics.

The State has acquired many areas of historic, scenic and recreational value, but the increase in California's population and resulting pressure on the recreational areas have dictated the need for more and larger of this latter type of state park, and the division has therefore given recreation precedence over the other qualities normally sought for in establishing public beaches and parks.

Under the existing procedure, any individual, local or city or county government, group or agency presents a proposed state park project to the State Park Commission. The area is then investigated by the land planning section of the Division of Beaches and Parks, which reviews it and prepares a report as to its purpose, location, acreage, present use, proposed development, and operating staff need; also, as to the cost of operation, type and cost of equipment needed, land acquisition cost, and development cost. This section presents pictures and maps of the area and its order of priority (based on need).

In the case of a proposed beach, its order of priority is considered relative to the master plan submitted by the county. For an inland area, its priority depends on the urgency for preservation of a natural area, and on the existing state-wide coverage of national and state parks to answer the present recreational demands. At the present time there are approximately 422 inland and beach areas pending consideration.

Following the investigation and subsequent recommendation by the land planning section, all data on the area is reviewed by the Division Chief and by the Park Commission. If the project is found favorable and sufficient state funds are available, the commission can recommend that the project be undertaken subject to the supplying of the necessary local matching funds or property.

Before negotiating, the division prepares necessary maps, and appoints three appraisers, one from the local area and two unbiased appraisers from outside the area. The State Park Commission reviews the appraisals which, with the commission's comments, are then submitted to the Department of Finance.

On final approval, the division's lease and land section negotiates around the low appraisal. The total of the low appraisals on the acquisitions since 1952 amounted to $7,074,334. The land negotiators acquired these areas for $5,785,183, which was $1,289,151 less than the total of the low appraisals. On condemnation proceedings the division has not fared as well, and generally has had to settle for more than the low appraisal value.

The final acquisitions are reviewed by the Park Commission, the Department of Finance, and the Attorney General's office. Following these reviews, and if all is in order, escrow instructions are completed and the Controller's office issues the necessary funds.

Before the division makes the final negotiations, in the event matching is required, and such matching is by land, all necessary transfers must be made and deeds recorded; if by cash, the money is deposited in a contingent fund specifically earmarked for the particular projects.

The only specific requirement relative to the acquisition of land for the State Park System is that requiring the counties to prepare a master plan for beach acquisition

THE BEACHES AND PARKS FIVE-YEAR DEVELOPMENT PLAN

At the present time the five-year development plan of the Beaches and Parks is in the process of being amended in order to utilize revenues not anticipated upon its initial completion on January 15, 1953. Acquisitions under this plan will not require matching by local interests.

Along this line, the State Park Commission has recommended to the Governor and the Legislature that future appropriations for land acquisition, when included in the Governor's Budget as a part of a comprehensive long-range plan, with priorities, be made without the requirement that state funds be matched. The commission points out that a considerable amount of appropriations in the last session had been passed by the Legislature, which initiated the matching principle, without the requirement of matching funds ($12,947,000), and uses this as an argument for the discontinuance of matching.

PROBLEM AREAS

At the present time most of the remaining money appropriated under Chapter 1422, Statutes of 1945, which is unexpended has been appropriated to the sparsely settled and less financially able counties, which have not as yet raised the matching funds required by Chapter 1422, Statutes of 1945.

However, these particular counties have received limited aid from excess valuations and surplus matching in other areas when such release could be secured from donors and the Legislature has acquired areas without requiring matching. Also, many of these sparsely populated areas are amply covered by the National Park System.

It is also true that in many cases, while waiting for the required local matching, land and property values have increased considerably and the State, in having to readjust its original appropriation has had to require additional matching funds.

In the case of beach acquisitions, the counties have tended to match with land in many more cases than with cash. This has resulted in a mere transfer of control of a beach from one public agency to another with the State purchasing a like amount of beach generally adjacent to the one already in operation. This situation does not comply with the original intent of the park system to acquire new areas for development. Of a $19,557,233 investment in beach parks, the State has received less than $500,000 in matching cash, the remainder primarily in matching land, and a large portion of the matching land has been existing public controlled beaches.

The State has experienced considerable pressure to pay to the counties in lieu of tax payments on state park land. Where matching land has been used, this would in effect result in the State's paying taxes on land originally owned by the counties. Also, the well organized State Park System has undoubtedly aided in increasing income in many areas which would compensate, to an indeterminable amount, for the tax loss to the county.

CHARGES FOR FACILITIES IN CALIFORNIA STATE PARKS COMPARED WITH OTHER STATES, AS OF JANUARY, 1954

Out of 76 agencies responsible for state parks reporting from 43 states, about 20 charge no fees of any kind. Five charge entrance fees ranging from 10 cents to $1 per person. California charges no entrance fees as such except that a fee of 25 cents (children under 6 free) is charged at Will Rogers State Park for an admission to the museum.

Nineteen agencies charge parking fees ranging from 25 cents to $1, primarily grouped in the 25-50-cent bracket. California charged 50 cents parking (by concessioner) where standing parking facilities are provided. Six charged service fees and parkway tolls. California charges 35 cents parkway fees at Point Lobos Reserve State Park and Mt. Diablo State Park

Nearly all state agencies provide picnic areas without charge. However, five of the agencies do charge a fee for picnicking, ranging from 25 cents to $1.50, and six make varying charges for picnic shelters. California charges 35 cents a car for picnicking sites.

Swimming charges take the form of bathhouse fees, checking fees, basket fees, pool admissions, or both checking and pool admissions. California receives no revenue from this source.

Forty agencies or their concessioners rent rowboats at a median charge of 50 cents an hour. Five agencies charge fees for fishing, ranging from 25 to 50 cents a day. California receives no revenue from these sources.

A golf fee is charged in 11 instances; there are no golf courses in the California parks or beaches. Horses are rented by 18 agencies or concessioners, the most common charge being $1.50 an hour, with prices ranging from $1 to $2.50. California charges $2 to $2.50 with lower rates after the first hour and other rates for pack animals.

Thirteen agencies charge for ski lifts, while there are no such state facilities operated in California. Recreation buildings are provided by 16 agencies; no charge is made in five instances, and the median charge by the other agencies is $10. There is no revenue from this source in California. In addition, various miscellaneous fees are charged by 26 agencies or their concessioners; none noted in California.

Some 57 agencies provide overnight accommodations, of which 22 have hotels, inns or lodges. A median rate of $14.50 for two persons for a night is charged for these accommodations Thirty-six agencies provide housekeeping cabins numbering over 2,400 units, charging an average of $25 to $30 a week for four persons. Sleeping cabins are available in parks administered by only nine agencies, and the charges range from $7 to $52 50 a week. California, in two facilities charges $3.75 to $8 per couple per night without meals for hotels, inns or lodges, and $49 to $63 in 97 facilities for four persons per week California also charges $1 for tent camp sites per night and $1 to $1 50 for trailer camp sites per night; also charges $0.05 per camper per night in organized camps. The normal charges in other states for tent camp sites is $0.50, for trailers $1, and 25 cents per camper per night in the organized camp sites.

At the time that these data were submitted by the states, most of the charges for admission to areas, swimming pools, et cetera, included the 20 percent Federal Admissions Tax. Subsequent revision of the Internal Revenue Code (Public Law 342, 83d Congress, 2d Session) removed some categories of admission from taxation and reduced the tax on the remainder to 10 percent on charges over 50 cents

As noted, California compares favorably in some categories but does not charge in other cases where charges are normally provided for in many other states

A recent compilation by the National Park Service [1] indicates that California's income from Beaches and Parks operations exceeds the average for all other states, but as compared with a group of selected states with somewhat comparable programs, its income from such operations falls far below the average of those. In 1951, California grossed $275,581 from operations in 114 areas totaling 583,548 acres. In the same year, Kentucky with but 24 areas totaling 14,549 acres grossed $701,546; Indiana with 32 areas totaling 46,236 acres grossed $775,196; New Hampshire with 34 areas totaling 34,159 acres grossed $505,679; and New York with 94 areas totaling 173,988 acres grossed $1,854,156

It is recognized that in providing accommodations and available park services financial returns should be considered subordinate to the purposes for which the parks were established; however, the park system is entitled to returns for certain services, and a continuing review should be conducted to determine if California is taking full advantage of these customary charges.

OBSERVATIONS AND CONCLUSIONS

In 1945, the California Division of Beaches and Parks had approximately 305,000 acres and in 1955 to date it has approximately 600,000, an increase of 295,000 acres, showing a very healthy growth during the matching period.

As of November 1, 1955, pursuant to Chapter 1422 of the Statutes of 1945, $11,810,901 55 had been deposited as matching funds and lands All of the $6,000,000 of the bond issue of 1927 was also matched, which gives a grand total of approximately $18,000,000 of matching funds and lands

The valuation of state-owned property as of January 1, 1955, was $38,607,573, and therefore it can be determined that of the State's acquisitions for beaches and parks, all but approximately 2 to 3 million dollars was matched

	1945	1948	1954
Attendance	6,000,000 (approx.)	4,038,064	11,500,000
California population	8,884,000	9,708,000	12,833,900
Acreage	305,000	552,280	564,715

As noted in this table showing approximate figures, the attendance in state-operated parks increased 91 percent between 1945 and 1954, while during the same period the population in California increased by 44 percent, which would indicate that a greater percentage of the people are taking advantage of park facilities than in previous years. However, in this same period of time, the acreage of the parks also increased by 81 percent. In comparing the visting persons per acre of state park in 1945 and 1954, it can be seen that the ratio of 20 persons per acre holds for each year.

From these observations, it would appear that the continuation of the matching principle to date has not worked to a disadvantage, in that land acquisition has kept a fair pace with park attendance and has exceeded the increase in population in California, and matching, as previously noted, has accounted for almost one-half of all land values presently owned by the State Park System.

The question of whether the matching principle should be retained in the California State Beaches and Park System must consider the following:

1. There are over 40 acres which although state-owned are county operated and managed Committees of the Legislature have recommended that this policy of joint responsibility should be extended. This is not consistent with a policy whereby the State of California assumes that if a project is of state interest it should be a financial responsibility of the State.

2. Consideration should be given to the impact upon demands for in lieu payments to counties for loss of county revenues from property values

3. The absence of local contributions through abandoning the matching principle will have a bearing on the rate at which additional properties can be acquired.

4. An improved basis for determining state interest in prospective acquisitions should be devised in order that the Legislature may be provided with a sound long-range plan of acquisition and development.

5. To what extent is continuation of the matching principle likely to distort the orderly pattern of acquisition of state park and beach areas based on state-wide needs and interests?

The ability to use, as local matching for projects of state-wide interest, properties offered from non-state sources for matching purposes in excess of requirements for another specific project, tends to reduce the force of the otherwise valid argument that there is little correlation between the location of needed recreation areas and the ability of localities to participate on a matching basis. At the same time, the matching principle does not serve to indicate local interest to the extent that transfer of properties is effected.

There is no practical way of measuring local vs. state interest except by general standards of state interest. To date these have not been adequately stated.

We do not believe that the matching requirement can be depended on to provide a good means for determining local interest in beach and park projects, particularly as the matching principle has been applied At the same time it is clear that without the matching requirement it will be necessary to establish some means which is at least equally as effective in preventing the State from being flooded with demands for creating beaches and parks which should be developed and maintained with local funds. If a well developed set of standards for state interest were formulated and given legislative approval as such, and if a five-year plan were developed in accordance with those principles and also given legislative approval year by year through successive appropriations, we would not recommend a continuation of the matching principle. State funds would be available for projects of clearly indicated state interest, and local funds could be used for projects of local interest. This will require the clearest and most explicit definition of state interest and financial responsibility, a definition which has not as yet been adequately formulated. Until this has been done, we do not believe that the matching requirement should be abandoned.

PROGRESS REPORT ON INVESTMENT OF STATE FUNDS

This report has been prepared in accordance with instructions from the Joint Legislative Budget Committee for the purpose of furnishing the members of the committee with preliminary background and analytical materials to assist them in undertaking an inquiry into the investment and deposit of state money.

The present inquiry was prompted by charges made by the State Treasurer of improper influence on the part of the Governor in respect to the making of bank deposits, bringing into relief the whole question of responsibility for the investment program. However, as will be indicated later in the report, a program for the most effective investment and deposit of state funds has been a subject of continuing legislative study and concern, resulting in numerous revisions of the code designed to strengthen and improve the program.

The report is essentially an examination of the basis upon which the State invests or deposits temporarily idle funds. It will cover an analysis of the statutes under which the investments and deposits are made, the responsibilities of state officials, the procedures established for the administration of these laws, and the actual management of the State's investments.

The State of California has approximately one and one-half billion dollars invested in bonds at present, plus an additional $240,000,000 on deposit in bank accounts, about $200,000,000 of which is drawing interest These figures do not include any investment or bank accounts of the University of California.

With one exception two state agencies do all of the investing, the Treasurer and the Department of Finance, the exception being the State Compensation Insurance Fund.

With one exception, to be noted later, all investment in securities is done by funds, although bank deposits, both interest and non-interest bearing, are made without regard to funds.

The Department of Finance invests for certain funds on its own responsibility. It also acts as the investment advisor for certain other funds and does the investing for these funds on request.

The bond investments at June 30, 1954, classified according to the agency doing the investing, were as follows:

	Amount	Percent
Department of Finance	$ 547,649,000	36.2
Department of Finance on request	787,019,000	52.0
Subtotal	$1,334,668,000	88.2
State Treasurer	110,267,000	7.3
Directors State Compensation Insurance Fund	69,438,000	4.5
Total	$1,514,373,000	100.0

During the year ended June 30, 1954, the state purchases of bonds for investment purposes totaled $1,185,741,000. These purchases, classified according to the agency handling the investment transactions were as follows:

	Amount	Percent
Department of Finance	$ 310,009,000	26.1
Department of Finance on request	438,581,000	37.0
Subtotal	$ 748,590,000	63.1
State Treasurer	420,461,000	35 5
Directors State Compensation Insurance Fund	16,690,000	1 4
Total	$1,185,741,000	100.0

There are 30 or more special funds having investment programs prescribed by law where the investment is of a permanent or semipermanent nature. Chief among these are those of the retirement systems, the Disability Fund, the State Compensation Insurance Fund, the reserve funds, the bond funds, and the Highway Fund. Investment programs for these funds present no particular problems at present although some thought might be given to removing certain restrictions as to the types of securities eligible for investment for some of them.

On the other hand, there are available in the State Treasury at all times substantial amounts of cash which are not invested under one of the programs mentioned in the foregoing paragraph and which represented the following at the end of each of the last two fiscal years:

Temporary investments in bonds:	June 30, 1954	June 30, 1955
For General Fund	$ 50,430,000	$ 28,532,000
For Surplus Money Investment Fund	47,800,000	72,803,000
For Treasury trust account	20,190,000	29,488,000
Total temporary investments	$118,420,000	$130,823,000
Bank deposits	293,693,000	308,390,000
Total	$412,113,000	$439,213,000

The corresponding amount as of June 30, 1956, is $534,362,000 distributed as follows:

Temporary investments in bonds:
For Pooled Money Investment Board	$176,393,000
For Surplus Money Investment Fund	79,517,000
For Treasurer's trust account	35,011,000
Total temporary investments	$290,921,000
Bank deposits	243,441,000
Total	$534,362,000

How to obtain the maximum return on this money, which has a potential earning power of about $10,000,000 per year, consistent with security and availability of cash when needed has been the subject of considerable study and legislation in recent years, and is the subject of immediate concern.

I. OBJECTIVES OF AN INVESTMENT PROGRAM

The fundamental objective of the State's investment program presumably is to maximize earnings from the investment of moneys not required for immediate expenditure for state operations, at the same time that liquidity is maintained adequate to meet the State's expenditure requirements, and to insure that such liquidity can be obtained without running undue risk of loss of value through sale of securities in an unfavorable market. The maximizing of earnings involves securing the greatest possible pool of funds available for investment. It also is concerned with the rate of interest obtainable on various types of securities, subject to legal limitations as to security and term. It must consider the relative value of investing in various types of securities as against holding bank deposits, both demand and time, in relation to liquidity requirements and to compensation to banks for fiscal services rendered. Securities are liquidated both through sale and through maturing, and the terms of securities must be related to the possible risk that sale of long term securities to provide liquidity in an unfavorable bond market may result in losses to the Treasury Liquidity requirements in turn are related to a careful evaluation of what the demands for payment of state warrants will be upon the Treasury from time to time.

A sound investment program will indicate an active interest in all of these problems and carefully designed policies and procedures to properly deal with changing conditions. The State of California has had in its treasury available for temporary investment or deposit in banks between approximately $550,000,000 to $850,000,000 for extended periods of time in the past, and earnings of millions of dollars per year are dependent upon the vigor and care with which the investment program is carried out.

II. LEGISLATION MAXIMIZING THE POOL

In the past the Legislature has acted on numerous occasions to provide the basis for pooling increased amounts of idle funds in order that they might be invested profitably. In legislation originally enacted in 1913, the Legislature has provided that the Treasurer and the Director of Finance shall, at such times as they deem necessary, determine whether any portion of the money in the Treasury is not necessary for immediate use and that the Director of Finance shall, with the approval of the Treasurer, designate by executive order the amount of money so determined as surplus money. This General Fund surplus money can then be invested by the Department of Finance in certain eligible securities, the interest and premiums from which investments are credited by the Treasurer to the General Fund. Such investments must be given prior approval by the State Board of Control, a body which is composed of the Director of Finance, Controller, and a public member appointed by the Governor.

In 1945 Chapter 991 placed upon the State Treasurer, State Controller, and Director of Finance the responsibility of determining, from time to time as they deemed necessary, whether any portion of the money then on deposit in the State Treasury to the credit of any fund was not necessary for immediate use. This formed the basis for so-called special fund surpluses and investments. This act excluded the General Fund, the State Highway Fund, and any special funds the investment of which was otherwise provided for by law The money so determined to be not necessary for immediate use was to be designated as "surplus money." Upon the determination and designation of surplus money in any special fund, the State Treasurer was charged with the responsibility, on order of the State Controller, to transfer from such fund to the Surplus Money Investment Fund in the State Treasury the amount of any such surplus money. Such transfers were limited to amounts which would not interfere with the carrying out of the purpose for which any such special fund was created. The money in the Surplus Money Investment Fund, exclusive of interest earned or other increment from investments, could be invested and reinvested by the State Treasurer in bonds or other obligations of the United States having maturity dates of not more than one year from the date of such investment or redeemable by the U. S. Treasury at the owner's option with fixed redemption values within one year from the date of such investment. The law further provided the basis for the distribution of earnings from such investments pro rata to the funds from which such moneys were transferred.

In 1949 the Legislature acted to further increase the amounts of idle state funds which are available for investment by pooling trust funds in the Treasury, the so-called Centralized Treasury System. Heretofore such trust funds had been held in 700 separate bank accounts outside the Treasury under the jurisdiction of the various state agencies which were responsible for the receipt and expenditure of such funds

In 1955 Chapter 1703 provided that all money in the State Treasury except money in the Unemployment Compensation Disability Fund is pooled and that the "Pooled Money Investment Board," consisting of the Controller, Treasurer, and Director of Finance, shall designate each month the amount of money in the Treasury available for investment in securities. The act further provided that the Treasurer shall invest the money. All interest or other increment from Treasury pooled investments under this program goes into the General Fund.

Thus, by these several acts, the basis was established for maximizing the amounts of idle state funds for purposes of investment.

III. LEGISLATION MAXIMIZING THE RETURN

In addition to these steps, the Legislature acted to remove certain unnecessary restrictions on the investment of state funds both with respect to fund limitations and types of investments.

In 1955 Chapter 1703 removed the limitation that restricted investments to the amounts by which balances in funds exceeded the expenditure requirements of each individual fund and made it possible to invest to the extent that the total of fund balances was sufficient to meet expenditure requirements of all funds By treating the resources and obligations of the funds as a pool, substantial additional amounts were made available for investment with correspondingly increased earnings to the special funds.

Chapter 296 of the Statutes of 1955 increased potential earnings to the State by permitting the Treasury to invest Surplus Money Investment Fund moneys in United States bonds having maturity dates of more than one year, and in bonds of this State or of any county, city metropolitan water district, municipal utility district, or school district of the State. Chapter 297 of the Statutes of 1955 made identical changes with respect to investment of idle money in the Treasurer's trust accounts.

Chapter 1703 of the Statutes of 1955, in addition to creating the Pooled Money Investment Board consisting of the Controller, Treasurer, and Director of Finance, required that body to make monthly declarations of the amounts available for investment in securities or in bank accounts, and the type of investment or deposit. It provided that after designations were made the Treasurer should invest or deposit in bank accounts accordingly. This legislation thus not only required the responsible officials to determine amounts available for investment at regular intervals, but it required all three officials to participate on a coequal basis in the determination as to amounts to be invested as compared with those deposited in banks. It required actual investment as designated and it required monthly reporting of investments and balances.

In summary, the passage of legislation in the 1955 Session carried one step further the process of pooling state funds for investment purposes. It brought the Director of Finance and Controller more forcibly into the picture with respect to making regular determinations as to amounts available for investment (although this function previously was the responsibility of the three officials, without the requirement for regular declarations and reports). It increased the ability of the Treasury to invest in longer term and higher return securities, and placed upon the Director of Finance and Controller, as well as the Treasurer, responsibility for determining specific amounts to be invested in securities, as distinguished from bank deposits, and to report on the actual investments made pursuant to such designations.

IV. LEGAL RESPONSIBILITY FOR INVESTMENT

There are at present four programs provided by law covering the investment of temporarily idle funds in securities, as follows:

(a) Investment of General Fund surplus money (Sections 16420-42, Government Code);

(b) Investment of money in special funds "not necessary for immediate use," the investment of which is not otherwise provided for by law through the Surplus Money Investment Fund (Sections 16470-75, Government Code);

(c) Investment of any money in the State Treasury as designated by the "Pooled Money Investment Board" without regard to fund (Sections 16480-16480.8 as added by Statutes of 1955, Chapter 1703, Senate Bill No. 2005);

(d) Investment of money in Treasury trust accounts "not necessary for immediate use," the Centralized Treasury System (Sections 16305.5-16305.8, Government Code).

There is nothing to prevent the operation of all four programs simultaneously and the securities in which investments may be made under each program are identical, namely United States Government, State of California and certain California municipal bonds, without regard to maturities (Government Code Sections 16430-32.)

There is nothing that can be accomplished under the first program which cannot be accomplished under the third, the differences being the manner of determining the amount and who does the investing.

Temporarily idle money in special funds can be invested under the second program or in effect under the third, the only difference being that under the second, a part of the increment accrues to the special funds while under the third it all goes to the General Fund. Each program is described in more detail in the following:

General Fund Surplus Money (Sections 16420-42, Government Code)

Under this program an amount is designated as surplus available for investment by the Director of Finance with the approval of the Treasurer, and the Department of Finance does the actual investing, with prior consent of the Board of Control. The law provides certain requirements to be met in determining the amount which may be designated as surplus available for investment, and all interest goes to the General Fund.

The essential provisions of this program have been in the law since 1913.

Special Fund Investments—Surplus Money Investment Fund (Sections 16470-75, Government Code)

Under this program the Treasurer, Controller and Director of Finance as often as necessary determine amounts in special funds (exclusive of those the investment of which is otherwise provided for by law, i.e. retirement funds, etc.) "not necessary for immediate use" and such amounts are transferred to the Surplus Money Investment Fund and the responsibility for investment is solely that of the State Treasurer.

The interest and other increment is apportioned according to a formula set forth in Section 16475 of the Government Code, the effect of which is to give each participating fund a pro-rata share except those funds composed primarily of moneys derived from the General Fund, and those funds where the Board of Control determines that the interest cannot be used for the purpose for which the fund was established, in which cases the interest goes to the General Fund. During 1954-55 interest apportionments were as follows, as detailed in the Controller's Report, page 149:

General Fund	$1,556,000
Motor Vehicle Fund	248,000
Motor Vehicle License Fee Fund	244,000
Motor Vehicle Fuel Fund	188,000
Fish and Game Preservation Fund	80,000
Wildlife Restoration Fund	76,000
Insurance Fund	35,000
Department of Agriculture Fund	32,000
San Francisco Harbor Improvement Fund	31,000
Architecture Public Building Fund	29,000
State College Fund	21,000
Real Estate Fund	18,000
All other (19 funds, $14,000 or less each)	252,000
Total	$2,810,000

The Surplus Money Investment Fund was established in 1945.

Treasury Pooled Investments (Sections 16480-16480.8, Government Code)

Under this program all money in the State Treasury, except money in the Unemployment Compensation Disability Fund, is pooled; the Controller, Treasurer and Director of Finance constitute the "Pooled Money Investment Board" which shall designate each month the amount of money in the Treasury available for investment in securities, and the Treasurer shall invest the money.

All interest or other increment accrues to the General Fund.

Centralized Treasury System—Treasury Trust Accounts (Sections 16305.5-16305.7, Government Code)

The Treasurer, Controller, and Director of Finance shall as often as necessary determine whether any money in the custody of the Treasurer in trust accounts is "not necessary for immediate use" and if so the excess amount which may be invested by the State Treasurer.

Any increment from such investments accrues to the General Fund.

It can be seen from the above descriptions of legal responsibility that there is no consistency with respect to who shall determine surpluses and who shall invest.

In respect to the General Fund the responsibility for investment of surplus moneys is reasonably clear-cut under the law. The responsibility for determining what amount is surplus available for investment belongs to the Director of Finance with the approval of the Treasurer. The investing is also the responsibility of the Director of Finance subject to prior approval by the Board of Control. With these legal responsibilities the Director of Finance has been able to carry out an effective investment program for that portion of the funds under his jurisdiction.

Under the special fund investment program (Surplus Money Investment Fund), Centralized Treasury System (Treasury Trust Accounts) and under the Treasury Pooled Investments Fund program the determination of what moneys are surplus and available for investment belongs to three state officials: the Treasurer, Director of Finance and Controller. The responsibility of investing those moneys declared surplus belongs exclusively to the Treasurer in all cases. However, in the case of the Treasury Pooled Investments Fund the Treasurer, Director of Finance and Controller jointly determine the type of investment or deposit.

Legal Responsibility for Deposits

Deposits in bank accounts are made in banks which are declared eligible for that purpose by approval of the Treasurer, Director of Finance, and Controller at interest rates on time deposits determined by the same officials. The determination as to what type of deposit shall be held, either noninterest bearing demand deposit or interest bearing time deposit, is a primary responsibility of the Treasurer, subject to approval by the Director of Finance and Controller.

Section 16503 of the Government Code states that the Treasurer, with the consent of the Director of Finance and Controller, shall determine what amounts shall be deposited:

(a) As inactive accounts, and the rates of interest to be received.
(b) As active deposits, and the rates of interest to be received, if any.

This appears to clearly place responsibility for deposits upon all three of the state officials named. However, Section 16504 modifies this responsibility by providing that "subject to the applicable contract, the Treasurer may call in money from inactive deposits and place it in active deposits, when necessary to meet current requirements; and inactive money in his possession for which there is no demand may be placed as active deposits."

What has actually happened has been that the banks make application for a deposit of state money, and set forth the amount which they desire as a deposit. If this amount is not in excess of the total of the bank's paid in capital and surplus, it has generally been approved.

Apparently little attention has been paid in each case to whether the State required the services of the particular bank in these amounts, but if the total amount of applied-for deposits met the legal requirement that it should not exceed the capital structure of the banks, it has generally had its application accepted. This meant that upon the required deposits of securities equal to 110 percent of the amount of the deposits the bank was eligible to receive deposits up to the maximum stated in the contract. The actual depositing of moneys was left to the discretion of the Treasurer. A list of all banks which have had demand deposits since June 30, 1945, is included in this report as Exhibit I. A list of all banks with regular time deposits is included as Exhibit II, and a list of banks with trust time deposits is Exhibit III.

Although the actual investment and deposit of state funds is discussed at some length in Chapter VI of this report under the heading of "Management of the State's Investments," it is necessary to comment briefly here upon the deficiencies in the investment program, since it affects an appraisal of the legal responsibilities of the responsible officials.

One of the principal defects in the program has been the practice of the Treasurer to hold bank deposits in the form of active, noninterest bearing accounts while they were in fact inactive accounts. These bank deposits totaled about $15,000,000 at all times within recent years. The holding of these deposits, upon which there was no return to the State, constituted a loss of state revenue which would have been produced under an active investment program or if the deposits had been classified as inactive. Since this has become an issue and the 1955 legislation was adopted establishing the Pooled Money Investment Board, the inactive accounts have been properly classified as such and interest earnings are now being secured.

Furthermore, studies made by our office based originally on 1951 data indicated that cash on deposit in active bank accounts with the Treasurer probably has at times exceeded actual needs by at least $30,000,000. This was reported by us to the Legislature in February, 1955, in our analysis of the budget request of the Treasurer for the 1955-56 Fiscal Year. In our analysis we stated:

"1. Increased investments through the Surplus Money Investment Fund would result in decreased cash in the State Treasury, and, accordingly, the two questions are closely interrelated and must be studied together.

"2. Based on experience to date investments in the Surplus Money Investment Fund could have been increased many millions of dollars with resulting increase in revenue of up to $480,000 per year if certain changes in policy and procedures were instituted.

"3. Cash on deposit in active bank accounts with the Treasurer probably has at times exceeded actual needs by at least 30 million dollars.

"4. Substantial amounts of money are deposited by the Treasurer in bank accounts which earn no interest and are inactive or comparatively so (about 15 million dollars during 1954).

"5. Under present market conditions the State could earn additional interest on its idle money if the law were changed to permit investment of such money without regard to funds.

"RECOMMENDATIONS

"1 The Treasurer's Office should be requested to furnish information as to considerations which govern in determining the amount of money needed in active bank accounts at all times, and why it believes the Surplus Money Investment Fund should not be increased.

"2. Outside authorities in the field of private industry and banking should be consulted to determine private industry practices with respect to working bank balances and temporarily idle funds.

"3. Study should be given to the desirability of the investment of idle state money without regard to funds, in a manner comparable to that now used by the Treasurer in placing such money in interest bearing bank accounts, and to drafting suitable legislation to permit such practice if deemed desirable."

Following the budget hearing on the Office of the Treasurer, the Senate Finance Committee requested the Department of Finance and the Treasurer to make a report on the findings and recommendations of the Legislative Auditor No report was made by the Treasurer but an extensive and thorough report was made by the Director of Finance. This report considered each of the points made in the analysis by our office and indicated substantial agreement with our findings The Department of Finance pointed out that during the 23-month period included in its study the State had over $200,000,000 in time deposits and that while the rate of interest on time deposits during the 14 months of this period exceeded the rate of yield on short term federal issues of the type of periods to maturity permitted by existing statutes, during other periods the State could have earned over $150,000 additional interest per month by investing time deposit money in short term securities. The report further stated that there were large cash balances in funds that could have been declared surplus and transferred to the Surplus Money Investment Fund. It further stated that as of December 31, 1954, $94,684,726 which had been transferred to the Surplus Money Investment Fund was actually uninvested by the Treasurer.

Although the Director of Finance and Controller legally were jointly responsible with the Treasurer for the depositing of the State's money in the Treasury, both maintain that as a matter of practice they delegated their responsibility to the Treasurer. The Treasurer as a constitutional officer insisted that he should be solely responsible for the deposit of these funds. Moreover, the Controller and Director of Finance have stated that they have interpreted their responsibilities under the law to relate only to approval of interest rates and the security features of deposits, i.e., the requirements that the banks' capital structure be equal to the amount of deposits and that securities be deposited in the amount of 110 percent of deposits. Management aspects of the program, including a determination of the relative amounts of active and inactive deposits, were considered by them to be an exclusive responsibility of the Treasurer. Despite this interpretation it is unfortunate that the Director of Finance and the Controller did not exercise to the fullest the function of their statutory responsibilities for consent and approval of certain actions of the Treasurer, particularly when the deposits so clearly were not in accord with realistic treasury requirements. This diffusion of legal responsibilitiy for the program among the three officers, each with separate constitutional responsibilities, may largely be accountable for the program's failure to be as efficiently and effectively managed as it should have been. It seems apparent that the joint responsibility for this program under the law has not made the program more "responsible" in the sense that it has been responsive to critical scrutiny by the officials legally charged with the duty of supervising it, but on the other hand it has confused and restricted the proper exercise of executive responsibility.

A review by the Legislative Counsel of the statutes relating to the investment of state funds and deposit of state funds in bank accounts is included in this report as Exhibit IV. It would appear from this summary that there is need for consolidation of these procedures into a single set of statutory provisions designed to eliminate the overlapping and inconsistency which resulted from the historical development of the program.

V. PROCEDURES ESTABLISHED TO ADMINISTER THE INVESTMENT PROGRAM

A. General Fund Surplus Investments

Sections 16420 to 16424 of the Government Code, some of the provisions of which have been in the law since 1913, provide for a procedure for investment of General Fund money not necessary for immediate use. The law provides that the Treasurer and Director of Finance shall at " * * * such times as they deem necessary * * * " make the determination according to a formula, that " * * * with the approval of the Treasurer, the Director of Finance shall, by executive order, designate the amount of money so determined as surplus * * * ," and that the Department of Finance may invest such surplus in bonds.

We are informed that for a number of years past it has been the practice of the Controller's office to make a computation at the end of each month to determine whether any "surplus" existed as defined in the law and if so to inform the Director of Finance and the Treasurer of the amount of such surplus. When a "surplus" existed, the Director of Finance would issue the executive order after negotiations with the treasurer as to the amount, which was not always the full amount permissible under the formula. Once the executive order was issued, the funds were invested without delay by the Investment Advisor in the Department of Finance.

Securities eligible for investment under this program since 1913 have been U. S. Government, State of California, and certain California municipal bonds without regard to maturities, and in recent years, at least, it has been the practice of the Department of Finance to invest in those which promised the highest return without risk of loss in case of forced liquidation. It has not been the practice, at least in recent years, to make investments in bonds with maturity dates geared to any particular time when it was estimated that the money might be needed for other purposes, but rather to rely on sales of bonds in the open market to produce funds as needed.

On April 19, 1956, with the approval of the Director of Finance, $32,000,000 in bonds, representing the entire investment of General Fund surplus under this program, was transferred to the pooled money investment account, and it appears likely that no further investments will be made under this program in the foreseeable future because of the restrictions imposed by the formula, but that any temporary General Fund surplus will be invested through the Pooled Money Investment Board.

B. Special Fund or Surplus Money Investment Fund Procedure

The Surplus Money Investment Fund was created by Chapter 991, Statutes of 1945, in effect June 23, 1945, and provides for the transfer of " * * * money not necessary for immediate use * * * ," from special funds to the Surplus Money Investment Fund where it " * * * may be invested and reinvested by the State Treasurer in bonds * * * ," and for the return of the money to the special funds when needed.

The State Treasurer, State Controller, and Director of Finance make the determinations of "surplus money" at such times as they deem necessary. In practice the Controller originates the transfer document, which is approved by the other two officials, but there is no formal meeting of the three, or record of the action taken other than the transfer document and the entries on the accounting records maintained for the funds involved.

It will be noted that the language regarding investment is permissive rather than mandatory, and there have been numerous occasions in the past where money has been declared surplus but not invested by the Treasurer. This is commented upon elsewhere in this report.

C. Pooled Money Investment Board Procedure

Section 16480.1 of the Government Code (added by Chapter 1703, Statutes of 1955, in effect September 7, 1955) provides " * * * 'The Pooled Money Investment Board shall designate at least once a month the amount of money available under this article for investment in securities authorized by Article 2 of this chapter or in bank accounts, and the type of investment or deposit.' "

Although the law became effective on September 7, 1955, the first formal designation was not made until April 13, 1956, seven months later. We are informed that the delay was due in part to the necessity of clarification of certain provisions of the new law by the Attorney General.

The designation is on a form, approved by the Attorney General and signed by the three members of the board, of which the State Treasurer is chairman. A copy of this form is attached as Exhibit V.

The designation made by the board on April 13, 1956, specifies that $195,859,088 88 shall be deposited in "term interest-bearing bank accounts," $42,000,000 in active noninterest-bearing bank accounts, $10,000,000 invested in securities on or before May 1, 1956, with maturity dates of more than one year, and $105,757,000 invested in securities with maturity dates of one year or less

Subsequent designations were made on May 7th and May 22d which were the same as to bank deposits, but increased the amounts to be invested in short term securities for specified periods of time.

A designation was made on June 20, 1956, which specified that the amount on deposit in term interest-bearing bank accounts should be reduced to $175,000,000 on July 1, that $42,000,000 should be maintained in active noninterest-bearing bank accounts, and that investments in securities should be as follows:

"(a) With maturity dates for more than one year	$30,000,000
"(b) With maturity dates of one year or less	$120,154,000
together with additional amounts as follows:
(1) On or before June 22	$10,000,000
(2) On or before June 22 and until July 5	$16,000,000
(3) On or before July 12	$18,000,000
(4) On or before July 19	$13,200,000
(5) On or before July 19 and until July 26	$8,800,000
(6) That portion of the balances in the Treasury from time to time in excess of the amounts specifically designated herein as will realize the maximum return consistent with safe and prudent treasury management

"Provided, that the availability of the additional amounts under subparagraphs (1), (2), (3), (4), (5), and (6) hereof is subject to reduction in the amount by which the bank accounts under paragraph 1(b) would otherwise be reduced below the seven day minimum average balance of $42,000,000"

All of the designations specify that the $42,000,000 to be kept in active noninterest-bearing bank accounts as compensatory balances shall include amounts in the centralized State Treasury system and uncleared items in the possession of the Treasurer, and also provide that the $42,000,000 constitutes a seven-day minimum average balance and that the balance may exceed this amount during heavy collection periods or in anticipation of large impending warrant presentations of the Treasury. The basis for compensatory balances was established as the result of a comprehensive report prepared by the staff of the three agencies concerned with the assistance of outside authorities and by conferences with the banks. It follows standard procedures generally employed for this purpose and represents the first systematic approach to this problem which has been made by the State.

Section 16480 7 of the Government Code (Pooled Money Investment Law) provides:

> "Not later than 30 days after the close of each month there shall be placed on file for public inspection during business hours at the offices of the Controller, Treasurer and Director of Finance a report with respect to investments made under this article and bank accounts showing transactions during such month and any related information the board deems should be included".
> (Added by Stats. 1955(Ch. 1703.)

The first report pursuant to this section was issued on May 31, 1956, and covered transactions for the month of April, 1956.

This report shows that inactive bank deposits were increased from $185,759,088 88 to $195,459,088 88 during April, in compliance with the April 13 designation by the board, that short term investments of $105,738,411.83 were made, mostly by transfer of securities held under other investment programs, and that $4,885,224 93 in long term securities were purchased pursuant to a designation of $10,000,000. The report contains no information as to active bank deposits but we are informed that subsequent reports will contain a list of all such accounts, showing daily balances.

As of July 23, 1956, the report for the month of May 1956, due June 30, 1956, had not been issued.

The Pooled Money Investment Board has held nine meetings since the effective date of the new law, starting on October 24, 1955, of which minutes are available and have been examined by us.

The minutes indicate that the board has taken the actions indicated in the four designations previously mentioned and that it has specified the rates of interest and the terms under which interest-bearing time deposits would be accepted, i.e., of the $175,000,000 designated as of July 1, 1956, $105,000,000 is to be in one-year accounts with interest at 2 percent and $70,000,000 for deposit for a period of one year subject to call on 90 days notice given either by the bank or the State, with interest at 1¾ percent.

They also indicate that the Controller and the Director of Finance take the view that with respect to bank deposits it is the responsibility of the Treasurer, not the board, to determine which banks are to receive the deposits and in what individual amounts.

D. Centralized Treasury System or Trust Account Investment Procedure

The procedure for investing excess money in the Treasury trust accounts is essentially the same as that for investing under the Surplus Money Investment Fund except that the document evidencing the excess available for investment originates in the Treasurer's office rather than in the Controller's office and the increment all accrues to the General Fund

VI. MANAGEMENT OF THE STATE'S INVESTMENT PROGRAM

Within the statutory framework for the State's investment program there is an obligation on the part of state officials to establish administrative procedures and to operate those procedures with sound management practices. We have seen above that the law has been responsible for diffusing the responsibility of state officials for the investment and deposit of state moneys and has created administrative problems thereby. We have also seen that there was negligence in establishing sound procedures with respect to that portion of the investment program which was operated under the Surplus Money Investment Fund, particularly with respect to compensable bank balances. The establishment of these procedures, of course, is a management responsibility, and the failure to establish proper procedures might well be treated as a "management" deficiency. However, in the case of the State's investment program under the Surplus Money Investment Fund, there were certain management deficiencies which sound procedures would not have solved even though they would have been extremely helpful. These management deficiencies stemmed largely from the disposition of the Treasurer to insist upon full responsibility for investment of state funds and designation of deposits, whereupon he failed to pursue an active investment program. Another deficiency was the unwillingness of the other officials to protest recognized deficiencies in the administration of the program through the exercise of their approval powers over deposits and interest rates. Unquestionably the strong assertion by the Treasurer of his constitutional rights and obligations in the matter contributed greatly to this reluctance on the part of the other officials, but on the other hand the delegation of responsibility to the Treasurer was voluntary on their part.

An analysis of the management of the State's investment program concerns itself first with the extent to which the responsible officials actively designated funds as surplus for the purpose of investment and, secondly, the extent to which they saw to it that these funds were invested or deposited to the maximum benefit of the State. The first responsibility encompasses the establishment of a sound basis for anticipating demands upon the Treasury and frequent review of the State's fiscal position. Involved in the second point are the related responsibilities to obtain maximum interest rates and to determine the proper compensation to banks for fiscal services.

The law under the Surplus Money Investment Fund required the three state officials to declare amounts surplus for purposes of investment at such times as they deemed necessary, and accordingly the Controller initiated frequent declarations. Likewise, in the case of the General Fund investment program under the responsibility of the Director of Finance, an active and frequent re-evaluation was made.

It must be said, however, that historically the Treasurer did not always actively invest those funds which were declared surplus under the Surplus Money Investment Fund.

For example, during the Fiscal Year 1954-55 an average of between $140,000,000 and $150,000,000 was available for investment at all times, but the records show that during the first half of that fiscal year from $62,000,000 to $108,000,000 was in the form of uninvested cash at all times. Likewise, an analysis of the relationship between the total amount declared available for investment and that actually invested during the period 1945-1955 shows that there have been consistently large amounts of uninvested cash in the Treasury. It was only after the 1955 legislation became effective in September, 1955, and the Pooled Money Investment Board came into being that substantially all of the money declared surplus again became invested. This is illustrated by the following tabulation showing the relationship between uninvested cash and surplus as of January of each year 1946 through 1955, and monthly from July, 1955, to April, 1956.

		I Uninvested cash	II Surplus	Percent which I is of II

June	1, 1956	1,902,000	156,490,000	1.22

During the years 1946-1949, inclusive, practically all available surplus was invested. However, starting in 1950 available surpluses accumulated rapidly and uninvested cash also accumulated in the Treasury. The percent of total surplus which remained uninvested jumped from 0.65 percent in 1949 to 9.17 percent in 1950, rose to 70.86 percent in 1954, and 66.70 percent in 1955. In July of 1955, after criticism of the investment program had been voiced, the percentage of uninvested money dropped to 40 45; in August, it stood at 29.68, and in September it dropped to 1.1 percent. The investment since then has been excellent. Chart I illustrates graphically the trend of uninvested cash in relation to total amounts declared surplus in the Surplus Money Investment Fund.

It has been pointed out earlier that the Pooled Money Investment Board has determined that 42 million dollars in active balances is sufficient for compensation of banks. The fact that active bank deposits amounted to approximately 90 million dollars throughout the years from 1945 to 1955, but now have been reduced to a continuing balance of 24 million dollars, is significant If in the past 90 million dollars was considered to be needed as compensation to banks and for the State's business, and yet 42 million dollars is now adequate, it indicates that there was about 50 million dollars that was in excess of requirements through all these years. At varying interest rates prevailing in those years, the State apparently was losing from $250,000 to $750,000 per year in potential revenues from this source alone. This failure to invest cannot be attributed entirely to the Treasurer, since he had responsibility for investing only a portion of the money. Most of the excess cash resulted from failure to invest highway funds and the Surplus Money Investment Fund money. The Treasurer's responsibility was for the latter, and in this case his principal failure to invest was during the years 1951-52 and 1955-56, inclusive, although in other years he invested up to the amount of declared surplus.

It would have been possible, from the cash on hand, to have deposited more in interest bearing time deposits rather than noninterest bearing bank accounts. This failure to deposit more fully in interest bearing accounts also constituted a significant revenue loss to the State. The magnitude of these deposits and the relation between time deposits and noninterest bearing demand deposits is illustrated in Chart II following.

Interest rates on time deposits have, in the California investment program, been an unusually important factor because of the size of these interest bearing deposits. However, an analysis of the rates obtained from these deposits shows a high degree of inconsistency, and it is difficult to reconcile these differences among banks. Time deposits in different banks have been made on the same day or within short intervals of each other at rates which varied as much as 300 percent, and the conditions under which the funds were deposited give no clue as to why these differences should have existed. The approval of these rates is the joint responsibility of the Treasurer, Controller, and Director of Finance. At the present time, rates are uniform among banks, and this is the current policy of the Treasurer, Controller, and Director of Finance. Uniformity was achieved in 1952-53 and has been maintained since that time.

There is no question but that the State's failure to obtain reasonable returns on its surplus money has been largely due to the absence of an integrated investment program, and that such a program has been impeded in the past by inadequate laws, organization, and administration. The 1955 legislation has gone a long way toward correcting these deficiencies, and management under the Pooled Money Investment Board has improved markedly. Nevertheless, the entire system needs careful review and probably needs legislation in order to secure a fully integrated and effective program.

On April 19, 1956, $73,800,000 in bonds were transferred from the Surplus Money Investment Fund to the Pooled Money Investment Account pursuant to a resolution of the Pooled Money Investment Board. These bonds represented the equity of certain funds, the interest on which will accrue to the General Fund under the formula provided in the Surplus Money Investment Fund Law such as the Architecture Revolving Fund. This appears to establish the policy that henceforth no money will be declared surplus under the Surplus Money Investment Fund procedure from the funds where the increment accrues to the General Fund but such surplus will be invested through the Pooled Money Investment Board rather than through the Surplus Money Investment Fund.

There are two individual occurrences in respect to the management of the Treasurer's office which deserve comment in this report. The first relates to procedural deficiencies which led to a loss of $24,413.65 in state funds, of which approximately $10,000 was not recoverable on bond or from the individual.

Between August 25, 1930, and September 19, 1935, W. B. Shearer, cashier in the Treasurer's office, embezzled a total of $24,413.65 in state funds. This was made possible by lack of adequate procedures for accounting for receipts.

The fact that a shortage existed was first brought to the Treasurer's attention on January 28, 1935, but the Treasurer was unable to determine the extent of the shortage or how it arose, and it was not until the Department of Finance completed an audit for the period from August 25, 1930, to September 30, 1935, that the nature and extent of the shortage was fully determined.

Subsequently, the State recovered $13,322.61 on the official bonds of W. B. Shearer and $1,031.53 from Shearer himself, leaving a balance due the State of $10,059.51.

A claim for this amount was submitted by the Treasurer to the Board of Control on December 19, 1936, approved by that Board on February 25, 1937, and included in the claim bill, Chapter 772, Statutes of 1937. The effect of this action was to charge the $10,059.51 shortage to an expense account.

The second occurrence was the cashing of 55 checks in the State Treasurer's office by George W. Johnson out of state funds and the management deficiencies which this represents. These 55 checks were cashed between March 2, 1955, and May 11, 1956, and were drawn on five different bank accounts in Sacramento. The total of these checks was $4,370.36. Subsequently, they were redeposited by the State Treasurer's office and honored by the banks upon their second presentation for payment. Indications are that on the average about a week's time elapsed between the time the checks were originally cashed and the time they were redeposited.

It should be noted that auditors in the Department of Finance were aware of this practice as early as April, 1955, since the regularly quarterly cash audits which the Director of Finance is required by law to make of the Treasurer's office disclose such transactions.

We are informed that the situation was brought to the attention of the Assistant Director of Finance during the early part of 1956, but that it was his conclusion at that time that no action need be taken unless a dishonored check should result in a shortage on the actual day the cash was counted by the Department of Finance auditors. This was the case when cash counts were made in the Treasurer's office on April 6, 1956, and May 16, 1956, by the Department of Finance auditors.

The interpretaton made by the assistant director was, in our opinion, a questionable one, and steps should have been taken at an earlier date to correct this bad situation. It is certain that the Treasurer's office was aware of the dishonored checks and the fact that this practice upon the part of a responsible official in the Treasurer's office was allowed to continue until corrected by public disclosure of the fact by the Director of Finance is not conductive to public confidence in an office which bears such a sensitive relationship to the affected banks.

SUMMARY

In summary, a review of the legal basis for the State's investment and deposit program, its administrative procedures and management points up the following significant facts.

1. Legislation adopted in 1913 and amended subsequently has increased the State's ability to secure returns from the investment of temporarily idle funds. This has been done by increasing the pool of funds, eliminating fund restrictions and providing eligibility to invest in longer term and higher interest securities Returns from investments vary with the availability of surplus money, but it has increased from $383,000 in 1914-15 to $12,178,000 in 1954-55.

2. The returns from investments and deposits are reported by the Controller to be increased by $262,000 in 1956 because of the passage of 1955 legislation creating the Pooled Money Investment Board and broadening investment opportunities. This figure could be increased substantially by a reduction in time deposits in banks.

3. The responsibility for determining what money is surplus available for investment is divided between the Director of Finance and Treasurer acting jointly in one instance, or the Controller, Director of Finance, and Treasurer acting jointly in other instances. The declaration of surplus money has been actively carried out on the initiative of the Controller. However, the full amount computed by the Controller legally as surplus has not always been so declared as available for investment by the Director of Finance and Treasurer.

4. The legal responsibility for investing money declared surplus is divided between the Treasurer, Director of Finance, and several independent boards. The policy of the Director of Finance as expressed through the actions of his Investment Advisor has been to invest those moneys under his jurisdiction in eligible securities at the optimum return consistent with projected liquidity requirements. The policy of the Treasurer has been to place large sums of the money within his jurisdiction in the form of both noninterest bearing and interest bearing bank deposits as well as in bond investments. The interest bearing deposits are not available on demand and, therefore, can be considered as an alternative form of investment rather than being held in this form to provide liquid assets. The return from this form of investment has, over a period of time, been substantially less than would have been obtained had the Treasurer invested to a greater extent in eligible securities.

5. The responsibility for determining the amount of money to be deposited in bank accounts, and the type of deposit, belongs to the Controller, Treasurer, and Director of Finance. The present joint nature of this responsibility is spelled out in Chapter 1703 of the Statutes of 1955, and prior to that Act it was vested in the Treasurer subject to the approval of the Director of Finance and Controller.

Deposits made under this authority, both demand and time, have been in excess of liquidity requirements and those which were time deposits were at interest rates which were for the most part less than would have been obtained in investments. A substantial number of noninterest bearing bank accounts were completely inactive, and should have been classified as time deposits, thus obtaining interest.

6. The responsibility for determining interest rates on time deposits is that of the Treasurer, Controller, and Director of Finance. In the past there have been wide variations in rates received from banks which appear to bear no logical relationship to the date or nature of the deposit. Since 1952-53 rates have been uniform for all banks. This has increased revenues to the State.

7 The joint responsibility among three state officials for a major part of the investment program has led to inaction and lack of responsibility. Even under mandates expressed in the 1955 act to make positive monthly declarations and reports as to investment and deposit, it required over seven months after the effective date of the act and 10 months after the bill was signed by the Governor for the board to make its first declaration.

8. Compensation to banks for services primarily connected with honoring of warrants drawn upon state balances, and for deposits of checks payable to the State, has not in the past been on any systematic basis and has been costly to the State. Likewise, the relatively large number of bank accounts maintained for this purpose has compounded the State cost by encouraging the keeping of excess balances in each of the active accounts. A systematic procedure for compensation of banks has been established recently by the Pooled Money Investment Board, and the number of active accounts has been reduced.

9. Failure to establish adequate procedures led to the loss of $24,413.65 through embezzlement on the part of an employee of the Treasurer's office between 1930 and 1935.

The cashing of 55 personal checks throughout 1955 and 1956 on the part of the Treasurer's son, a ranking official of the Treasurer's office, which checks were dishonored by the banks upon which drawn, serves to indicate a failure to employ proper management practices within that office, and the fact that audit reports did not include a finding of this practice early in 1955, even though it was known and reported by auditors at that time, is a reflection upon the adequacy of the audit review procedure of the Department of Finance.

ANALYSIS OF STATUTORY PROVISIONS RELATING TO THE INVESTMENT OF STATE FUNDS AND THE DEPOSIT OF STATE FUNDS IN BANK ACCOUNTS—#2694

The following is a summary of the statutory material relating to the investment of state funds and the deposit of state funds in bank accounts:

A. STATUTES APPLYING GENERALLY TO THE INVESTMENT OF STATE FUNDS

1. Investment of General Fund Surplus Money (Gov. C. Secs. 16420 to 16442, Inclusive)*

The State Treasurer and the Director of Finance are required to determine whether any portion of the money in the State Treasury is not necessary for immediate use and to designate such money as "surplus money" (Secs. 16421, 16422).

Certain limitations, however, are imposed with respect to such designation Exempted are the moneys in the State School Land Fund, the Unclaimed Property Fund, the Dissolved Savings Bank Fund, and the sinking funds under the control of the Treasurer (Sec. 16420). Moreover, the amount designated as surplus shall be either (a) not more than 75 percent of the least amount of money in the Treasury at the end of any day during the previous 12 months, or (b) that portion of the General Fund current assets in excess of 110 percent of actual disbursements (Sec. 16423). "General Fund Current Assets" are defined as (a) unapplied money in the General Fund, (b) unapplied money in other funds which by law is available for transfer to the General Fund, and (c) investments held for the General Fund pursuant to law (Sec. 16423). The Department of Finance is designated as the agency to invest money designated as surplus (Sec. 16424), and is authorized to sell or exchange any securities obtained through investment at no less than the market price thereof (Secs. 16440, 16441).

Proper investments are limited to obligations of the United States or obligations for which its credit is pledged; state bonds or bonds for which state credit is pledged; and bonds of counties, cities, metropolitan water districts, municipal utility districts, and school districts (Secs. 16430 to 16432).

Interest and premiums earned from investments must be placed in the General Fund by the Treasurer (Sec. 16442).

Under the program outlined above, the responsibility for designating the amount of funds available for investment in the State Treasury, subject to the limitations prescribed, rests on the Director of Finance subject to the approval of the State Treasurer. The responsibility for investing the funds so designated is imposed upon the Department of Finance.

* All section references are to the Government Code unless otherwise indicated.

2. Treasury Pooled Money Investments (Gov. C. Secs. 16480 to 16480.8, Inclusive)

In 1955 the Pooled Money Investment Board was created, consisting of the Controller, Treasurer, and Director of Finance (Stats. 1955, Ch. 1703).

The board is required to designate once each month the amount of money in the State Treasury available for investment in securities or deposit in bank accounts, and the type of investment or deposit to be made (Sec. 16480.1). The only money excluded is that contained in the Unemployment Compensation Disability Fund (Sec. 16480).

The Treasurer, immediately after the designations by the board, must make the investments or deposits in accordance with such designations (Sec. 16480.3). In making investments he is required to use Controller's warrants, which warrants are not to be drawn upon any one fund but upon all money in the Treasury (Sec. 16480.5). It is expressly provided that money available for investment or deposit must be invested in securities or deposited in bank accounts in such a way as to realize the maximum return consistent with safe and prudent Treasury management (Sec. 16480.2).

Investments are restricted to the same type of securities as are enumerated in Part 1, above (Sec. 16480.4). The Treasurer is authorized to sell and exchange securities obtained through investment for other authorized securities if, in his discretion, such sale or exchange appears to be in the best interests of the State (Sec. 16480.4).

All increment from investments accrues to the General Fund (Sec. 16480.6).

A report with respect to investments and bank accounts showing transactions during the month and other information deemed relevant by the board must be placed on public file not later than 30 days after the close of the month in the offices of the Controller, Treasurer, and Director of Finance (Sec. 16480.7).

It is the responsibility of the Controller, Treasurer, and Director of Finance, acting as a board, to designate the amount of money available for investment or deposit in banks and the type of investment or deposit to be made. It is also the responsibility of the board to publish a monthly report of its transactions. The duty of the Treasurer is to carry out the board's designations by making investments and deposits in accordance with such designations. He is given a certain amount of discretion with respect to the sale and exchange of securities obtained through investment.

3. Special Fund Investments (Gov. C. Secs. 16470 to 16476, Inclusive)

The Treasurer, Controller, and Director of Finance are required to determine what money in the State Treasury, other than the General Fund, State Highway Fund, and any special fund the investment of which is otherwise provided by law, is not necessary for immediate use. The amount designated is termed "surplus money." (Sec. 16470)

The amount designated must be transferred by the State Treasurer, on order of the Controller, from the particular fund involved to the Surplus Money Investment Fund, unless such a transfer would interfere with the carrying on of the purpose for which the special fund was created (Sec. 16471). Money transferred to the Surplus Money Investment Fund may be returned to the special fund from which it came upon a determination by the Treasurer, Controller, and Director of Finance that the money is needed to carry out the purposes for which the special fund was created. The actual transfer is made by the Treasurer, on order of the Controller (Sec. 16473).

The duty of investing and reinvesting the money in the Surplus Money Investment Fund is imposed upon the Treasurer. Investments are restricted to the same type of securities as are enumerated in Part 1, above. The Treasurer is also authorized to sell and exchange securities obtained through investment for other authorized securities if, in his discretion, such a sale or exchange appears to be in the best interests of the State (Sec. 16474).

Interest and other increments from investment must be deposited, on order of the Controller, in the Surplus Money Investment Fund for apportionment by the Controller to the General Fund, motor vehicle fuel funds, vehicle license fee or tax funds, fish and game funds, and certain other funds designated by the Board of Control. Apportionment to the special funds is made to the extent and in the proportion that the Surplus Money Investment Fund moneys invested were derived therefrom, other interest being apportioned to the General Fund (Sec. 16475).

The responsibility for designating the amount of money available for investment under this program is imposed on the Treasurer, Controller, and Director of Finance acting jointly. These officers are also obligated to determine when money should be retransferred to the special funds. The Treasurer is required to make the actual investments within the limitations prescribed and is also given authority to sell and exchange authorized securities. The duty to apportion interest and increment resulting from such investments rests on the Controller, such apportionment to be made in accordance with the formula described above. The Board of Control is given a certain amount of discretion in determining what special funds, other than those expressly designated, are to receive an apportionment of funds from the Controller.

4. Centralized Treasury System (Gov. C. Secs. 16305 to 16305.8, Inclusive)

Section 16305 provides for the creation of a centralized treasury system whereby the various state agencies, except the Regents of the University of California, are required to keep all money in their possession, other than day to day petty cash, in trust accounts maintained by the Treasurer.

The Treasurer, State Controller, and Director of Finance are required to determine, from time to time, how much of this money is unnecessary for immediate use, which amount is declared to be available for investment (Sec. 16305.6).

The Treasurer is authorized to invest and reinvest money so designated in securities of the type described in Part 1, above. He is also authorized to deposit the trust funds in bank accounts in accordance with the provisions hereafter described in Part C (Sec. 16305.5).

The amount of money designated as available for investment may also be reduced by the Treasurer, Controller, and Director of Finance (Sec. 16305.6).

Any increment resulting from investments made by the Treasurer must be reported by him to the Controller for credit to the General Fund (Sec. 16305.7).

The duty to determine the amount of money available for investment is imposed upon the Treasurer, the Controller, and the Director of Finance acting jointly. The authority to make the actual investments, within the limitations prescribed by law, is vested in the State Treasurer, who also has authority to deposit the funds in bank accounts.

5. Other Provisions of General Application

Section 11012 of the Government Code provides that any state agency, with enumerated exceptions, authorized to invest funds, must obtain the prior approval of the Department of Finance before any investment is made. The exceptions are any state agency when issuing or dealing in securities authorized to be issued by it; the State Treasurer; the Regents of the University of California; the California Employment Stabilization Commission;* the Department of Veterans Affairs; Hastings College of Law; the Board of Administration of the California State Employees' Retirement System; the State Compensation Insurance Fund; and the California Toll Bridge Authority and Department of Public Works when acting in accordance with bond resolutions adopted under the California Toll Bridge Authority Act prior to September 15, 1945.

Sections 13115 to 13117 of the Government Code provide that any state agency which is authorized to invest funds may enter into an agreement, with the approval of the Department of Finance, with the State Department of California Highway Patrol, with the State Department of California Highway Patrol and the Governor jointly, and with the State Department of Motor Vehicles, for the construction of office buildings for these departments and for the Office of Civilian Defense. A similar authorization is conferred upon the Director of Finance to invest moneys in special funds the investment of which he is permitted to make under general or special statutes. Limitations on the amount the director may invest are specified.

Any state agency that is authorized to invest funds and securities which are legal investments for savings banks may invest such funds in registered warrants of the State (Gov. C. Sec. 17204).

Whenever the Director of Finance is to invest funds in the purchase of bonds or proposes to sell bonds, he must first secure the consent of the State Board of Control and obtain the approval of the Attorney General as to the validity of the bonds prior to their purchase (Gov. C. Sec. 13450). Consent by two members of the board is deemed sufficient and in the case of the Controller and the Director of Finance consent may be given by authorized deputies or employees (Gov. C. Sec. 13450.1).

Farm loan bonds, consolidated farm loan bonds, collateral trust debentures, consolidated debentures, or other obligations issued under the Federal Farm Loan Act are declared to be lawful investments for all public funds, notwithstanding any restrictions on any investments contained in any laws (Gov. C. Sec. 6860).

Government Code Sections 16750 to 16774 provide a procedure for the issuance, sale and repayment of state general obligation bonds. This procedure provides for the creation of funds into which the proceeds from the sale of the bonds are paid Section 16759 authorizes the Department of Finance to invest any surplus money in these funds in bonds or other obligations of the United States or of the State or of any county, municipality, school district, or public agency of the State. Interest or other increment on such investments must, on order of the Controller, be deposited in the respective funds, and are available only for transfer to the General Fund, as provided in the particular bond act.

The State Controller, with the approval of the State Board of Control, is authorized to establish procedures for the transfer of bonds between funds in the State Treasury under certain specified conditions (Gov C. Secs. 16485 to 16490, inclusive).

The State Employees' Retirement Fund may also be invested in real property or improvements thereon when such property or improvements are acquired or made by the board for sale or lease to the State (Gov. Such investments can not exceed 10 percent of the assets of the retirement system and can not be made unless the State agrees to lease the property (Gov. C. Secs 20217 and 20218). Interest from such investments shall be deposited in the Unemployment Compensation Disability Fund.

The Director of Employment, with the approval of the Director of Finance, may also invest the money in the Unemployment Compensation Disability Fund for construction of a building to be used by the Department of Employment (U I. C. Sec. 3125). Such investment shall not exceed $9,500,000 except that when necessary because of increased building costs the aggregate amount may be increased with approval of the Director of Employment and the State Public Works Board by an additional amount not to exceed $950,000. The interest on the investment is to be repaid to the Unemployment Compensation Disability Fund.

32. Section 1527 of the Unemployment Insurance Code provides that moneys in the clearing account of the Unemployment Fund, after clearance, shall be deposited in or invested in the obligations of the Unemployment Trust Fund of the United States. Section 1530 of that code provides that if the Unemployment Trust Fund of the United States is abolished, moneys contained therein belonging to the Unemployment Fund of this State shall be transferred to the treasurer of the Unemployment Fund and shall be invested in bonds or other interest bearing obligations of the United States or the State of California.

36. The Director of Corrections is authorized, subject to the approval of the Department of Finance, to invest funds of inmates in his possession in federal and state bonds or obligations. Interest from such investments must be paid into the Inmates' Welfare Fund (Pen. C. Sec. 5008).

He may sell such bonds or obligations upon direction of the State Public Works Board. The Treasurer is required to take custody of any bonds or securities obtained through investment. Interest and other increment from investments must be deposited in the State Treasury to the credit of the account in the fund from which such interest or increment were derived (Gov. C. Sec. 15847).

38. The Director of Finance is authorized to invest not to exceed the sum of $6,000,000 from the State School Land Fund for the acquisition and construction of the lower level of the Richmond-San Rafael Bridge. The Department of Veterans Affairs is also authorized, subject to the approval of the Director of Finance, to invest the money in the fund in interest-bearing certificates of deposit of state banks having a paid-up capital of $500,000 or more, provided that the total amount so deposited with any one bank may not exceed a sum equal to 50 percent of the paid-up capital of such bank. Interest accruing on such deposits must be paid into the Veterans' Farm and Home Building Fund of 1943 (M. & V. C. Sec. 996.32).

C. BANK DEPOSITS

1. Constitutional Provisions

Article XI, Section 16½, of the Constitution provides that all moneys belonging to the State, or in the custody of the State, may be deposited in any national bank or banks within the State, or in any bank or banks organized under state law, in such manner and under such conditions as may be provided by any law adopted by the people under the initiative or by a two-thirds vote of each house of the Legislature and approved by the Governor and subject to the referendum. The section also provides that the State may deposit moneys in any bank or banks outside the State for the payment of the principal or interest of bonds when such bonds are payable outside of the State.

Article IV, Section 29, of the Constitution authorizes the Legislature to provide that money belonging to the State in the control of any state agency or department or collected under the authority of the State, other than money belonging to the Regents of the University of California, shall be held in trust by the State Treasurer prior to its deposit in the State Treasury by the state agency or department involved. The Treasurer is authorized to disburse such money on the order of the agency or department, and is also authorized to deposit the money in banks to the same extent that money in the State Treasury may be deposited in banks.

2. Statutory Provisions

The principal statutory provisions relating to the deposit of state funds in banks are Government Code Sections 16500-16582, inclusive.

(a) Places and Types of Deposits

The Treasurer is required, insofar as possible, to deposit all money belonging to or under the control of the State, except money deposited in out-of-state banks for the payment of principal and interest of bonds payable in other states, to the credit of the State in eligible banks. Such money is deemed to be in the State Treasury (Sec. 16502).

The term "eligible bank" is defined to mean a state or national bank located in the State and selected by the Treasurer with the approval of the Director of Finance and the Controller for the safekeeping of money belonging to or in the custody of the State (Sec. 16500).

The Treasurer, with the consent of the Director of Finance and the Controller, must determine what amounts of money shall be deposited as (a) inactive deposits, and the rates of interest to be received, or (b) active deposits, and the rates to be received, if any (Sec. 16503). Money belonging to state agencies, other than the Treasurer, except petty cash funds authorized by the Department of Finance, must be deposited as active deposits under such conditions as are prescribed by the Department of Finance (Sec. 16506).

It appears clear from the foregoing that while the responsibility of making the actual deposits, selecting the banks in which they are to be placed, and selecting the type of accounts into which they are to be put, is imposed upon the Treasurer, both his choice of banks and accounts must meet the approval of the Director of Finance and the Controller.

Section 16504 provides that the Treasurer, subject to the applicable contract, may call in money from inactive deposits and place it in active deposits, when necessary to meet current requirements. It also provides that the Treasurer may place inactive money in his possession for which there is no need into active deposits. His discretion in these particulars apparently is not subject to the approval of other state officers.

The amount which may be deposited in any one bank is limited to the total of the capital and surplus of that bank (Sec. 16505).

(b) Security for Deposits

To be eligible to receive and retain deposits of state funds, a bank is required to deposit certain types of securities with the Treasurer, which securities must be approved by the Director of Finance, the Controller and Treasurer. The amount of securities required must exceed in value by at least 10 percent the amount deposited with the bank, except that no security is required for that portion of any deposit that is insured under any law of the United States (Secs. 16520, 16521).

The types of securities designated are treasury notes or bonds of the United States, or those for which the faith and credit of the United States are pledged; state and local bonds; and registered warrants of the State (Sec. 16522).

In addition to the securities specified, the Treasurer, with the approval of the Director of Finance and the Controller, may require a bank, as a condition of eligibility, to furnish an indemnity bond approved by the Director of Finance, Controller and Treasurer, conditioned against loss by any depreciation in value that may occur in securities deposited for the safekeeping and prompt payment of deposits. The sureties on such a bond may not be stockholders of the principal (Sec. 16523).

Section 16525 authorizes banks, otherwise eligible, to deposit, in lieu of securities, bonds of admitted surety insurers as security for active deposits. Such a bond must be in a form prescribed by the Attorney General, and may not be accepted unless the insurer has been certified by the Insurance Commissioner and holds a certificate of authority from the United States Treasury Department under which it is eligible as surety on federal bonds (Secs. 16528, 16529).

The Insurance Commissioner, on demand of the Treasurer, is required to issue a certificate showing the qualifications of any admitted surety insurer as surety for active deposits (Sec. 16527).

An admitted surety insurer is not eligible as surety for active deposits in any one bank in amounts in excess of 10 percent of the capital and surplus of the surety as shown in the preceding report issued by the Treasury Department (Sec. 16526)

Surety bonds may be terminated by the surety by giving 10 days written notice of termination to the Treasurer, but such termination does not affect any liability accruing prior to the expiration of the 10-day period. Within 10 days of receipt of such notice the Treasurer must require other acceptable securities or withdraw the deposit secured by the bond (Sec. 16530).

Securities in excess of those required may be withdrawn or released on the written consent of the Director of Finance, the Controller, and the Treasurer (Sec. 16532). Conversely, if securities deposited with the Treasurer are not deemed satisfactory by the Director of Finance, Controller, and Treasurer, they may require additional security to be furnished (Sec. 16533).

If any bank fails to pay all or any part of deposits on demand of the Treasurer, pursuant to the terms and conditions of the contract relating to the deposit, the Treasurer must forthwith recover upon or convert the security therefor into money and disburse it according to law (Sec. 16532)

Under the foregoing provisions, the duty of approving securities deposited with the Treasurer is imposed upon the Director of Finance, Controller, and Treasurer. The same three officials are also authorized to require additional security if they deem necessary, and to release excess security. It is the duty of the Treasurer to enforce the forfeitures of securities upon failure of the bank to comply with its contract. The Attorney General is required to prescribe the form of surety bonds acceptable as security for active deposits in lieu of other security. The Insurance Commissioner must certify admitted surety insurers upon demand of the Treasurer.

(c) Custody of Securities

Section 16551 authorizes the Treasurer, with the consent of the bank depositing securities, to authorize any qualified trust company, other than the depositary bank, or the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco or its branches, to act as his agent for the receipt of such securities, or he may place the securities as a trust deposit in any such institution (Sec. 16551). The term "qualified trust company" is defined to mean the trust department of any state or national bank in the State or a trust company authorized to act as such in the State (Sec. 16550).

The Treasurer is required to obtain receipts from any institution with which securities have been placed, but neither he nor the State is responsible for the custody and safe return of securities so placed until such securities are withdrawn (Sec. 16552).

The institution receiving securities must make such disposition of the same as the Treasurer directs and is responsible for strict compliance with written instructions given to it by the Treasurer. Such securities are at all times subject to the order of the Treasurer (Sec. 16553).

The charges imposed by any institution for the handling and safekeeping of securities must be paid by their owner (Sec. 16554).

The responsibility for the proper disposition of securities deposited with him rests on the Treasurer alone. There is apparently no participation by other state officers.

(d) Contracts

The Treasurer is authorized to enter into such contracts with the depositaries as in his judgment will be to the public advantage (Sec. 16560). Such contracts must be executed in triplicate, and one copy must be filed with the Controller (Sec. 16563).

The contracts must fix the duration of deposits, the rates of interest to be received,* if any, and the conditions governing withdrawal, repayment, and security (Sec. 16560). They may also contain any conditions necessary to conform with Section 19 of the Federal Reserve Act, as amended, and to regulations established pursuant thereto by the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System (Sec. 16561). The term of inactive deposits may not be set for a period longer than one year, and active deposits must be subject to withdrawal at any time upon demand of the Treasurer (Sec. 16561).

Contracts governing active deposits must require the depositary to file a monthly statement with the Treasurer showing the date of deposits, payments or withdrawals made during the month, and the balance at the close of the monthly period. In the event that such deposits are also interest bearing, the contract, in addition, must provide that the depositary shall furnish at the end of each month a statement, in triplicate, showing the daily balance or the amount of money of the State held by the depositary during the month and a separate statement in triplicate showing the amount of interest due thereon together with the payment of the interest due (Sec. 16562).

Contracts governing inactive deposits must require the depositary to pay the interest due thereon at the expiration of the certificate of deposit issued by the bank as a part of the contract, and in any event, at least semiannually. They must also require the depositary, at the time of paying interest, to furnish a statement in triplicate showing the balance of amounts of money of the State held by it during the period and the amount of accrued interest thereon (Sec. 16562).

The Treasurer, at the time of depositing such money in any bank, is required to take and preserve a receipt, certificate of deposit, or other evidence of the deposit as he may require, designating the amount deposited and referring to the contract made between the depositary bank and himself (Sec. 16564).

On order of the Treasurer, depositary banks are required to handle, collect and pay all checks, drafts, and other exchange in the same manner and under the same conditions as checks, drafts, and other exchange of other depositors (Sec. 16565).

The responsibility of entering into contracts with depositaries in accordance with the requirements prescribed above is imposed on the Treasurer. No other state officers are involved.

(d) Interest

Interest to be paid by a depositary bank must be paid in accordance with the contract made with the Treasurer, and at least semiannually (Sec. 16580).

The Controller is required to apportion interest paid on money belonging to the State School Fund or State School Land Fund to the State School Fund, and interest paid on all other money to the General Fund (Sec. 16582).

(e) Liability of State Officers

A state officer is not liable on his official bond for losses caused by the failure of a bank in which is made a deposit of money belonging to an inmate of a state institution, if the officer was required or permitted by law to act as a trustee or fiduciary with respect to the money and if he made the deposit in good faith and in accordance with law (Sec. 16507).

The Treasurer is made responsible for certificates of deposit received and securities deposited with him, the interest received on deposits, and the proceeds of any sales made (Sec. 16509). He is not responsible, however, for any money properly deposited in a bank while it remains deposited with the consent of the Director of Finance and the Controller (Sec. 16509).

Section 16510 provides that any state officer or employee who deposits any money belonging to or in the custody of the State in a manner different than that prescribed is subject to forfeiture of his office or employment.

FLOOD CONTROL FUND OF 1946

Prepared by Legislative Auditor
August 1, 1956

During the 1956 Legislative Session a number of budgetary and fiscal problems related to the Flood Control Fund of 1946 became increasingly apparent. Foremost among these were: (1) the transfer of $5,184,110 from the General Fund to the Flood Control Fund to meet anticipated obligations, at a time when surpluses in the Flood Control Fund were estimated to be $10,236,390; and (2) the enactment of legislation reorganizing the State's water agencies and precipitating significant changes in the administration of the Flood Control Fund of 1946. It is thus appropriate to examine some of the problems connected with the Flood Control Fund of 1946, particularly if the State's available fiscal resources are to finance as much flood control construction and other water resources development as possible.

BACKGROUND

The Flood Control Fund of 1946 is authorized by Sections 12800 and 12830 of the Water Code. As originally established by the Legislature, the fund was a repository for surplus moneys of the State accumulated during World War II to implement the State's flood control policy contained in the State Water Resources Act of 1945. Although the Legislature proposed transferring $32,250,000 to the Flood Control Fund, this was reduced by Governor Warren to $10,000,000 when he signed the bill. An additional amount of $15,000,000 was added by Chapter 1520, Statutes of 1947. In recent years General Fund money has been transferred to the Flood Control Fund because allocations to projects by the Legislature used up the original $25,000,000. Chapter 196, Statutes of 1953, codified both the State Water Resources Act of 1945 and the Flood Control Fund Act of 1946, and added a procedure to be followed by the State Water Resources Board in reviewing flood control projects preliminary to legislative authorization. From time to time additional flood control projects have been added to those initially authorized by the Legislature in the State Water Resources Act of 1945.

Under the Federal Flood Control Act of 1936, Congress established the policy that the Federal Government, acting through the U. S. Corps of Engineers, will plan and construct those flood control projects authorized by Congress which have a favorable benefit-cost ratio (i.e , annual amortization charges plus operation and maintenance costs are exceeded by the annual flood control benefits from the project) if the local interests benefiting from construction of the project will assume certain costs and responsibilities as follows:

1. Secure and pay all costs for lands, easements and rights of way required for the project.
2. Relocate or reconstruct all bridges, structures and utilities.
3. Assume full responsibility for operation and maintenance of the completed project (except for large reservoirs).
4. Hold the Federal Government free from all damages resulting from the project.

The State Legislature, through the policy enunciated in the Flood Control Fund Act of 1946, committed the State to reimburse local interests, usually county flood control districts, for all costs of rights of way and relocation (1 and 2 above) required by federal law for local cooperation in federal flood control projects, but required the local interests to assume responsibility for items 3 and 4. The state costs for items 1 and 2 are financed through the Flood Control Fund of 1946. In relocating or reconstructing bridges and utilities, these structures frequently are widened or otherwise improved. These additional costs, or betterments, the State will not assume; they must be paid by local interest.

Since expenditures from the Flood Control Fund are made primarily for U. S. Corps of Engineer projects authorized by Congress, expenditures from the Fund are largely dependent on the program of the Corps of Engineers. The ramifications of the three-way relationships between federal, state and local agencies in planning, authorization, appropriation, construction and accounting matters for these projects are extremely complex and cannot be discussed in full detail here. Where essential to an understanding of the problems under consideration, they will be discussed, but in a greatly simplified form.

Both Congress and the California Legislature exercise their legislative authority over flood control work through the use of project authorization bills and appropriation bills. A legislative authorization is legal authority for an administrative agency to perform certain work; it may establish relevant policy for the agency to follow in performing the work as well as approve construction plans. An authorization bill is considered by the policy committees of the legislative houses and normally carries no appropriation for construction. Subsequent appropriation bills which provide money for detailed design and construction are passed upon by the appropriation committees. This committee separation of authorization and appropriation functions exists both in Congress and in the State Legislature. In Congress it accounts in part for one basic problem in the flood control construction program—more projects are authorized than the revenues of the Federal Government will permit to be constructed within a reasonable period of time after authorization. Congress has authorized approximately twice as many projects as it is able to provide funds for and thereby has created programming confusion for itself, the Corps of Engineers, the State, and local interests. In California, however, since the Legislature provided money for several new projects in the 1956 Budget Session, there are only four state authorized projects which have received no appropriations.

FEDERAL AUTHORIZATION

The procedure followed by the Corps of Engineers and Congress for project authorization merits brief description. Project planning money (used exclusively for preliminary and detailed investigation of projects) is appropriated by Congress based on a list of projects authorized for investigation. Such an investigation is made only when local interests request it through their congressman A preliminary project investigation is made in the appropriate district office of the U. S. Corps of Engineers and a report prepared which is successively reviewed by the division office, the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, and the Chief of Engineers. If the Chief of Engineers decides that the project report does not merit further study, he takes certain clearance steps and issues an unfavorable preliminary examination report.

If, however, the Chief of Engineers decides the project warrants a detailed investigation, he so orders. The district engineer then formulates a definite project plan and prepares cost estimates, working with all interested local parties and holding any necessary hearings. This detailed investigation report is reviewed through channels of the Corps of Engineers, and, if approved by the Chief of Engineers, is officially submitted to the state or states in which the project is located and to interested federal agencies for review and comment. Finally, the Secretary of the Army obtains the views of the Federal Bureau of the Budget on the project and then submits the detailed investigation report to the House Committee on Public Works. This committee and the Senate Committee on Public Works may hold public hearings and may thereafter place the project in an authorization bill, usually an omnibus authorization bill. When passed by Congress and signed by the President, the project authorization is complete. Any special features of the project, such as different local payments for project benefits, are by this time included in the federal law. A project authorization expires in five years unless local interests give necessary assurances of local cooperation as required by the project plan and the authorization bill. Many projects are authorized which are never constructed because they receive no federal appropriations.

The delay between federal authorization and appropriation of money, averaging about seven years, adds further problems. Frequently the authorization is sufficiently obsolete when Congress finally appropriates construction funds that it must be amended, or changed local conditions may require the Corps of Engineers to revise its plan during preparation of detailed designs, which must await federal appropriation of construction money. These cost estimates and plans contained in the detailed investigation are usually the only data from which the state and local interests can determine how much money the State should allocate for the project.

STATE AUTHORIZATION

In reviewing the method by which the State authorizes flood control projects, it is necessary to describe the procedure as it existed prior to creation of the Department of Water Resources in July, 1956. While the legal responsibilities of the State Water Resources Board and the Division of Water Resources for flood control allocations were transferred to the new department by the legislation which abolished these two agencies (Chapter 52, Statutes of 1956), the Department of Water Resources has not made any major revisions in the procedure as yet.

The State Water Resources Act of 1945 authorized the State Water Resources Board upon request of local interests, to review and recommend federal flood control projects to the Legislature for authorization. However, when the Corps of Engineers prepared its detailed investigation report for Congress, as prescribed by federal law, it was required to send the proposed project plan to the Governor for official state comment. The Governor's comments were furnished to the Corps of Engineers and the Congress several years before the project was eventually presented by local interests to the State Water Resources Board and the Legislature for state authorization. The project analysis and the Governor's official comments were prepared by the Division of Water Resources. This same project review, or a revision of it, was used by the Division of Water Resources as its staff recommendation to the State Water Resources Board, and was the basis for the board's recommendations to the Legislature. This peculiar system of divided responsibility functioned because of the twin roles played by the Division of Water Resources as the staff office of both the board and the Governor. While the system minimized conflicts between the Governor's position and that of the State Water Resources Board, the board itself did not have an effective role in reviewing project plans, since the Governor officially committed the State on a project before it was reviewed by the board.

It has already been shown that a large backlog of federal authorized project exists. This backlog makes it difficult for the State to anticipate which projects will receive federal appropriations for construction, and the delay between authorization and appropriation usually makes the cost estimates and some features of the project plans obsolete. In most cases, limited and inadequate data have been available to the board when it reviewed project plans for either state authorization or allocation.

Even though the State furnishes millions of dollars for flood control projects, the initiative in requesting both state authorization and appropriation lies with the local interests (except for Reclamation Board projects). In expending its flood control funds on a sound basis, the State is always in the position of attempting as best it can to keep up with events which are controlled by federal agencies and local interests.

APPROPRIATIONS

When providing money in the Flood Control Fund for a project, the Legislature has transferred money from the General Fund into the Flood Control Fund and then in a separate action has appropriated the project requirements to the State Water Resources Board for it to allocate to local interests. This appropriation by the Legislature is for specified projects and in amounts which cannot be altered without further legislative action.

The Legislature makes state money available in the fund to reimburse costs of local cooperation, on the basis of which local interests may give the necessary legal assurances to the U. S. Corps of Engineers that money required to pay costs of local cooperation is available. Without these local assurances the Corps of Engineers will not award a construction contract. Local interests must secure necessary rights of way, contract for the relocation of structures, or advance money to the Corps of Engineers for the relocation work. In the past, local interests have generally spent their own money for rights of way and relocation. Later they submitted claims to the State Water Resources Board for reimbursement. Such reimbursement was made by order of the board after the claims had been duly processed, as described in greater detail in the next section. In several instances the board advanced money to the local interests, but the board discouraged this practice because it relieved local interests of any financial participation or responsibility.

For most projects the local interests are represented by county flood control and water conservation districts. In the case of the Sacramento-San Joaquin River Valleys, however, the local interests are represented by a state agency, the Reclamation Board, and this has complicated the usual pattern of appropriations from the fund. The Legislature has appropriated money from the fund for the Sacramento River Project, the Calaveras and Littlejohn Creek Project, and since 1953 for the Merced County Stream Group, directly to the Reclamation Board without any control or review by the State Water Resources Board. For the Fresno County Stream Group and the San Joaquin Flood Control Project the State Water Resources Board allocated the money to the Reclamation Board but did not review or control the project work. Thus, the fund has provided money for flood control projects by three different methods (1) appropriation to the Reclamation Board by the Legislature; (2) allocation to the Reclamation Board by the State Water Resources Board; and (3) allocation to flood control and water conservation districts by the State Water Resources Board. Money for U. S. Department of Agriculture small watershed projects has been handled somewhat the same as (3) above and will be discussed later.

The two major flood control projects financed through the fund are the Sacramento River Project and the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Rivers and Ballona Creek Project. These projects have been under construction for years, have cost many millions of dollars, and will continue for some time in the future. A number of other smaller projects are scattered throughout the State.

The major portion of the money in the fund is for allocation to the Los Angeles County Flood Control District for the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Rivers and Ballona Creek Project. The total appropriation to this project by the Legislature is $18,788,000, of which approximately $7,000,000 has been allocated by the State Water Resources Board, with approximately $2,400,000 in claims pending as of April, 1956.

ALLOCATIONS

In the past local interests have submitted claims to the State Water Resources Board for reimbursement from the fund for the money they advanced to the Corps of Engineers or expended themselves for rights of way and relocations. These claims required several months to process and, if points of contention arose between the State and the local interests, they might not be settled until construction of the project was finished.

The Division of Water Resources did the staff work for the board in processing claims. It analyzed the construction features of the project, negotiated the division of costs between replacements and betterments, and policed the many problems connected with rights of way. Since the board did not administratively control or supervise the staff of the Division of Water Resources, its direct influence on the allocation process was not great. In addition, the complex, detailed problems involved in negotiating and reviewing claims severely circumscribed the board's ability to familiarize itself with the details of processing them. Actually, the board performed primarily the legal function of approving allocation orders prepared by the Division of Water Resources.

A real difficulty in processing claims has been the absence of adequate rules and regulations enacted by the State Water Resources Board establishing clear policy on the payment of claims. As a result the staff of the Division of Water Resources has had substantial discretion in negotiating claims. A statement of policies and principles adopted by the Water Resources Board in August, 1949, was a good start, but it does not resolve the complex problems that cause most of the current difficulty. Some progress is apparently being made in establishing guides for distribution of costs between replacements and betterments in the reconstruction of bridges, and studies have been made on the State's obligation to pay for spreading grounds. Unfortunately, such problems are seldom resolved in advance but await the submission of a claim, long after the money has been advanced to the Corps of Engineers or spent by the local interests. Problems in the appraisal of real property for rights of way are being tackled with new approaches that may be helpful. Sufficient experience has now been accumulated for the State to be able to amplify and expand the statement of policies and principles, adopted by the State Water Resources Board in 1949, with more specific rules and regulations to govern the processing of claims.

MANAGEMENT OF THE FUND

As a general observation it is clear that there has been no real management of the Flood Control Fund of 1946. Prior to the creation of the Department of Water Resources, responsibility for activities financed from the fund was not fixed upon any one state official. This lack of adequate fiscal direction and control made it necessary for the Legislature to appropriate sums considerably in excess of immediate project needs.

The following table of surpluses is compiled from recent budget documents:

Fiscal year	Total available	Actual expenditures	Surplus
1953-54	$15,391,000	$2,866,000	$12,525,000
1954-55	16,986,000	3,201,000	13,786,000
1955-56	17,490,000	7,253,000 *	10,236,000 *

* Estimated

Actual expenditures in Fiscal Year 1955-56 will probably be substantially less than the $7,253,000 estimated. This will increase both the surplus for that year and the total available for the Fiscal Year 1956-57. The ultimate surplus at the end of Fiscal Year 1956-57 would be approximately $12,000,000. In budget documents the fund carries a balance which never shows as surplus because it is carried forward into next year's estimated expenditure, even though there is little expectation that it will be expended during that year. As a result, the fund shows total expenditures equivalent to the total money available, even though this is not a realistic expenditure figure.

The principal reason for surplus money in the fund is the State's practice of appropriating money for a project in advance of the fiscal year of expenditure, based on an anticipated date for initiation of construction by the U. S. Corps of Engineers and frequently irrespective of actual need during any fiscal year. This practice was apparently started when the State had unallocated money in the fund and was, no doubt, related to the former use by the Federal Government of contract authority and the appropriation of federal funds in excess of the amount required to cover anticipated expenditures during the budget year (appropriation on obligation basis). At present, however, Congress is appropriating on an expenditure basis for flood control work, i.e., only that money which will be expended during the fiscal year The State, however, has not changed its practices and still frequently appropriates money in advance of need, thus tying up larger amounts of money than necessary

For example, the State Water Resources Board estimated in the Fiscal Year 1956-57 Budget the total project costs payable from the Flood Control Fund for the Los Angeles and San Gabriel Rivers and Ballona Creek project (based on federal appropriations already made) and then deducted from that amount any allocations previously made. This determined the amount to be requested from the Legislature and resulted in considerably more money being appropriated for the project by the Legislature than was actually required to meet the budget year allocations. The Reclamation Board has not received a lump sum appropriation for the Sacramento River Project, but the annual requirements of the project have been considerably overestimated. Funds for most other projects have been appropriated on a lump sum basis in amounts sufficient to cover total estimated costs, based on anticipated initiation of federal construction In the case of smaller projects the money appropriated is small and is usually allocated in a short period of time, which does not create any significant problem.

In the Fiscal Year 1956-57 Budget, Congress appropriated only a part of total federal costs for the Santa Ana River Project and for the north bank levees of the American River. The State has, however, already appropriated its full estimated costs for these projects. In the case of the Santa Ana River Project, the full state appropriation probably will not be allocated by the Department of Water Resources for several years

The obligation the State assumed when it determined to pay the costs of rights of way and relocations for federal flood control projects is specified under Title 33, Sec 701c, U S Code, which requires "assurances satisfactory to the Secretary of the Army that the required (local) cooperation will be furnished " How far in advance the State was required to appropriate has never been clear. An interpretation of the above language was requested recently from the Division Engineer, South Pacific Division, U. S Corps of Engineers, who stated·

> "* * * Assurances are considered satisfactory and are accepted when the sponsoring agencies submit adequate evidence that they will, are legally authorized, and are financially able to provide all of the items of local cooperation on demand. Prior to initiation of construction on any project or separable part, the local agencies must submit evidence that they are able to provide as needed for construction, the items of local cooperation required by law, such as permanent rights of way; temporary construction easements; relocations or reconstruction of highways, highway bridges, and when required by the Federal Act, utilities; and a deposit of cash contributions, if required by the Federal Act authorizing the project. The local agencies must be prepared to supply the required items of local cooperation as the work progresses to meet the construction schedule as authorized by Congress for each fiscal year.

"* * * the local agency is required to provide assurances covering the entire project before construction starts, but need have only sufficient funds to cover their obligations under these assurances for the first year of construction. Thereafter, they must be able to provide all required items as needed to continue construction until its completion

"* * * rights of way must actually be purchased before a construction contract is let. It is noted, however, that this does not necessarily mean the rights of way for the entire project, especially if the project is of such magnitude that it will be constructed over a period of years by a series of separate contracts. In this case, it will be necessary to have rights of way for the unit included in the specific contract involved.

"* * * In regard to relocations, reconstruction or replacement of existing improvements, the local interests can either perform these works independently or request that they be included in the contract of work performed by the Federal Government. In the event they do it themselves, sufficient funds must be provided to assure that these relocations, reconstruction or replacements will be done by the time the federal project is completed in order that the effectiveness of the project may not be delayed. If the local people request that this work be included in the federal contract, sufficient funds must be assured to perform work as scheduled by the Corps."

This statement from the Corps of Engineers should permit the State to reschedule its appropriations to fit fiscal year requirements more closely. However, it is also important to note that the State, except for Reclamation Board projects, generally required local flood control districts to advance their own money to the Corps of Engineers and then claim reimbursement from the Flood Control Fund. This results in a time lag between the initiation of construction and the expenditure of fund moneys in addition to the delay between federal appropriation and the need for local interests to advance their money. This time lag contributes to overestimating and surpluses in the fund. These surpluses also result in part from the following factors that are not directly under the control of the State:

1. The State Legislature normally appropriates money in advance of the decision by Congress on how much money it will appropriate and whether it will even provide money to start a new project.
2. Detailed designs for the project are not prepared until Congress appropriates construction money. The State has no control over such changes from the original detailed investigation plans and cost estimates. In effect, its authorization does not constitute a project control or limitation and only when the Reclamation Board, a state agency, is involved does the State have any review of project construction plans.

3. Project costs have a natural tendency to drift upward during design and construction stages.

It should not be surprising that such conditions encourage "safe" or over-estimating practices in determining the fund amounts to be appropriated by the Legislature. For example, from 1949 to 1954 various budget items appropriated a total of $5,544,000 for the Sacramento River Project. Of this amount, $1,000,421 will be reverted by the Controller because it was in excess of actual expenditure. Further, when construction of projects is essentially finished there is a tendency to retain any excess money until all project money reverts, rather than voluntarily releasing it as soon as it is known to be excess. Thus, the San Diego Project has retained a surplus of $260,000 which is not planned for expenditure.

At present there is no aggressive approach to the processing of claims for allocations from the fund. The Los Angeles County Flood Control District has held as much as $2,400,000 in unprocessed claims. Neither the State Water Resources Board, the Division of Water Resources, nor the Los Angeles County Flood Control District have been greatly concerned about this backlog. While much of the backlog is attributable to turnover in technical staff both in the district's office and in the Division's Los Angeles office, not all the difficulty lies in this factor, for the district has continued to submit claims which require extensive correction. In order to eliminate delays in payment, the State has continued correcting these claims rather than rejecting them and requiring the district to correct them.

It was not possible during this study to determine what might be termed the "surplus" in the fund, that is, the amount of money in the fund which will not be needed for expenditure during the 1956-57 Fiscal Year [1] In order to determine this "surplus," the amount of money required to cover the backlog of unprocessed claims for reallocation plus the amount required to meet "assurances that local cooperation will be furnished" as defined above, must be deducted from the unexpended balance in the fund. This "surplus" is probably on the order of three to five million dollars in Fiscal Year 1956-57

The unencumbered balance in the fund cannot be established because of the large backlog of unprocessed claims for allocations to the Los Angeles County Flood Control District in behalf of its two projects. Most of these claims will be negotiated and compromised before payment, so that the final expenditure for each claim cannot be predicted.

Throughout the State Government the accounting records are minimal and inadequate for any real management of activities financed from the Flood Control Fund of 1946. The State Water Resources Board maintained only records of sums appropriated by the Legislature, claims filed by local districts, and claims paid, without being able to reconcile claims filed and claims paid. The Controller's office posts allocations against appropriations, and one year after the reversion date prescribed by the appropriation item reverts all funds not estimated by the agency to be encumbered. The Reclamation Board has records adequate to determine the amount of unencumbered money for each of its projects because it makes the expenditure itself. If management is to reduce the fund surpluses or undertake more precise budgeting, better records will be required.

[1] The term "surplus" is used here instead of "balance" to indicate an amount of money not needed for expenditure during a given fiscal year. However, in the sense that the money will be used eventually for the purpose appropriated, it is technically not a "surplus."

As long as responsibility was scattered among several agencies and responsibility was diffused, a good argument could be made that administration of activities financed from the Flood Control Fund by the State Water Resources Board was better than appropriating money to many agencies. That condition no longer exists. The Legislature, in creating the new Department of Water Resources, placed all agencies of the State directly involved in flood control matters within the new department and fixed responsibility upon the director of that department.

The operation of the Flood Control Fund as established by law has been essentially inflexible. Money once appropriated for one project could not be used for another project of higher priority or to meet stepped-up federal construction schedules. Although there was a "surplus" of money in the fund, this money has never been available for expenditure on other previously authorized projects unless reverted and reappropriated by the Legislature.

Apparently in recognition of this inflexibility, the Legislature, in the last session (1956), transferred from the General Fund to the Flood Control Fund $1,000,000 more than was required to meet estimated allocations. This was done to provide a reserve for projects already authorized by the Legislature for which federal funds may later be appropriated, but for which no state money has been appropriated.

There is some feeling among officials not fully acquainted with federal and state fiscal practices that it is advantageous to have a Flood Control Fund with large balances because a substantial fund indicates to the Federal Government that the State has money and "means business" on flood control projects. However, all the money in the fund is appropriated for specific projects and technically neither indicates the availability of money nor the State's willingness to appropriate money for new projects.

There is no evidence of mismanagement or irresponsibility in fund matters. Rather, the State's organization for flood control work has prevented any real and effective management in spite of conscientious and sincere efforts by some employees who have been mainly responsible for the results accomplished.

SMALL WATERSHED PROJECTS

A new aspect to the operation of the Flood Control Fund of 1946 is the growing importance of small watershed projects. This program is administered by the U. S Department of Agriculture and is designed primarily to provide erosion control and flood control through small reservoirs, bank protection and levees. In its relation to the state and local interests the program is similar to flood control projects of the U. S. Corps of Engineers, except that certain payments for project construction costs are required from local interests. On the only small watershed projects constructed so far in the State—the Santa Ynez River and Los Angeles River Watershed Projects—the State has paid the local costs for benefits in addition to the costs of rights of way and relocations Three other projects which required local bond issues because the State was not paying for that portion of benefits charged to local interests have failed, one because of inadequate planning and the other because of voter refusal to approve bond issues. This apparent lack of local support for small watershed projects when the local interests must pay part of the costs stands in sharp contrast to those two projects which have moved ahead because all local costs were paid by the State from the Flood Control Fund of 1946.

The role of the State Water Resources Board in small watershed projects has been limited to a review of project plans and benefit-cost ratios before it recommended an appropriation by the Legislature for the project. The State Soil Conservation Commission has been responsible for the recommendation to the Legislature to authorize the project. This split in responsibilities has resulted in some feeling that the small watershed projects should be entirely within or without the jurisdiction of the board or its successor, since no single state agency has had responsibility for both authorization and financing. While there is merit to this view, the present state procedure permits the integration of these projects with the State's soil conservation and agricultural programs and also with the State's water resources development programs and the California Water Plan. This advantage may well outweigh the duplication of project reviews and the split responsibility to the Legislature, especially since this type of interagency coordination problem is inherent in a small watershed development program. State coordination of planning for these projects appears to be considerably better at the state level than at the federal level. However, present indications are that the number of these small watershed projects will increase in the near future which may raise significant problems of coordination and conflicts in responsibility that will require a re-evaluation of the State's organization to handle them.

RECOMMENDATIONS

It is clear from the foregoing discussion that the administration of projects financed from the Flood Control Fund of 1946 has not been without its problems. The major problems may be summarized as follows:

1. Appropriations in excess of immediate project needs.
2. Lack of clear responsibility for administration of flood control matters.
3. Inadequate review by the State of estimated budget requirements submitted by local flood control districts.
4. Need for comprehensive and concise rules and regulations covering allocation policies.

The administration of activities financed from the fund has been conscientious and honest. The deficiencies have arisen because the agencies concerned, in managing the projects, have not used techniques adequate for the best job which might be done. Therefore, the following recommendations are made:

1. The Flood Control Fund of 1946 should be abolished. As long as the Legislature merely transfers money from the General Fund to the Flood Control Fund, the fund serves no useful purpose and its continuation is a complicating technicality in the budget which minimizes fiscal management and program control.

Before the fund can be abolished a careful and detailed analysis must be made of the money now appropriated for each project. The progress in construction of each project must be related to federal construction plans and appropriations so that the needs for state money can be more precisely determined and the surpluses or deficiencies for completion of each project can be ascertained, not only on a total project basis, but also by fiscal year. Present information does not clearly reveal these important facts which are essential to any significant improvement in fund management. Until such factual information is available, it is uncertain what surpluses are in the fund, but these surpluses are anticipated to be from 3 to 5 million dollars.

There are at least three possible methods of abolishing the fund: The fund may be abolished immediately with a new appropriation made for the next budget year; it may be continued until present appropriations are expended and gradually replaced by annual lump sum appropriations for new projects; or it may be transferred to the Director of Water Resources as the first annual lump sum appropriation with reversion of any unexpended balance at the end of the fiscal year. The latter alternative is probably preferable because reverting any remaining money at the end of the fiscal year would provide a stimulus for the director to resolve the existing problems before returning to the Legislature for new money the year following This alternative may also eliminate the need for the appropriation of additional money during the 1957-58 Fiscal Year.

2. In the future the Legislature should make an annual lump sum appropriation for flood control projects to the Director of Water Resources. The appointment of a Director of Water Resources provides the centralized responsibility to replace the previous dispersion of responsibility among several agencies and officials and provides one state official to whom the management of the fund may be given. To assure that such responsibility is exercised, the total project requirements for each fiscal year should be appropriated from the General Fund in one budget item, and any unencumbered money in that item should revert at the end of that fiscal year. The fiscal requirements of the several projects covered by the appropriation item would be detailed in the Governor's Budget. The director should have authority, subject to the approval of the Director of Finance, to reapportion money among authorized projects to compensate for changes in congressional appropriations after the adjournment of the Legislature, and also to provide money for minor additions to projects previously completed.

3. The Department of Water Resources should screen carefully all expenditure estimates submitted by local flood control districts before recommending the amount which the Legislature should appropriate to cover the cost of local participation for each fiscal year. If the State is to do more realistic budgeting for these projects and avoid appropriating flood control funds too far in advance of need, it is essential that the Department of Water Resources examine these expenditure estimates more carefully than in the past.

4. The State Water Board, in the exercise of its rule-making power, should expand the statement of policies and principles adopted by the State Water Resources Board in 1949 with more specific rules and regulations to guide the department in processing claims for allocation.

In summary, the problems related to the allocation of state funds to local flood control districts through the Flood Control Fund of 1946, tend to emphasize the fact that the State has not yet developed a comprehensive flood control program. The formulation of such a program, including priorities and essential relationships between Corps of Engineers work and projects to be constructed by the State, would provide the necessary framework to permit an evaluation of the future role of the State in financing flood control works. In the meantime, improved and centralized management of the State's expenditures for local costs of rights of way and relocations for Corps of Engineers flood control projects will help the State to realize the maximum benefits from its appropriations for flood control.

PROGRESS REPORT ON INVESTMENT OF STATE FUNDS

November 2, 1956

In the first progress report on the investment of state funds submitted to the Budget Committee by the Legislative Auditor on July 26, 1956, an analysis was made of the objectives, history, legal responsibility for and management of the State's investment program. This inquiry was initiated by charges made by the State Treasurer of improper influence on the part of the Governor in respect to the making of bank deposits and indicated the need for a survey of the investment function including the responsibilities of the various state officials.

It was pointed out in this report that in the past there had been failure to manage the State's investments actively with a consequent loss in revenue to the State. However, it was also indicated that, with the improvement in the legal basis for investment and the reorganization of the function in legislative acts passed in the 1955 Session, substantial improvement had been effected and that at the present time an active and effective management program is being conducted.

Following this progress report by the Legislative Auditor, the Governor, Director of Finance, and State Controller testified individually that they had at no time and under no circumstances requested the State Treasurer to place state funds in any particular bank. The Governor stated that he had not discussed the placing of deposits with any individual at any time. The Controller and Director of Finance stated that they had not discussed deposits with the Governor at any time. The Director of Finance, Controller, and Treasurer constitute the three state officials who are responsible for the investment of temporarily idle funds.

The State Treasurer did not appear in person at this meeting of the Budget Committee. He submitted a letter in which he stated that he could not be present on order of his physician but that he was apparently misinformed with respect to his prior statement that the President of the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Los Angeles had participated in the Governor's campaign. He said that nevertheless the State Treasurer, State Director of Finance, and State Controller had approved a deposit of 1½ million dollars for the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Los Angeles. The Treasurer further stated that other statements attributed to him in the press were the result of casual conversation and he was not aware that they would be published. He said that he regretted that they had been published causing embarrassment to the Governor. He further stated that he welcomed an investigation of his office.

At the conclusion of the presentation of this progress report, the committee instructed the Legislative Auditor to continue his inquiry, and with the assistance of the Legislative Counsel to report further on proposed legislation to improve the investment function. In addition, certain documents were presented to the committee by Assemblyman Weinberger, who had received them from the Superintendent of Banks, with the request that the committee investigate these documents in relation to the State's investment program Assemblyman Weinberger stated that the documents contained information reflecting upon the conduct of the State Treasurer's office and upon the personal relationship of the State Treasurer with private organizations with which he has official dealings. After general discussion of the nature of the documents, the committee instructed the Legislative Auditor and the Legislative Counsel to inquire into the nature and significance of the information and to report back to the committee at the earliest possible date in order that the committee might make a determination as to the proper disposition of the information. In view of the unsubstantiated nature of the charges contained in these documents, the committee determined that the inquiry should be made by the staff on a confidential basis

This report contains an analysis of, first, the nature of the documents submitted for review, the information developed to determine the validity or significance of such information, and such related facts as were developed in connection with this inquiry which relate to the investment function of State Government.

Secondly, this report will indicate significant areas where we believe that additional legislation would be desirable to improve the State's investment program.

PART I

ANALYSIS OF DOCUMENTS SUBMITTED TO THE COMMITTEE FOR REVIEW

NATURE OF DOCUMENTS

The documents presented to the committee for investigation consisted of photostatic copies of a series of promissory notes drawn in favor of Transamerica Corporation by Kirkpatrick Mines Co. with Charles G. Johnson as one of the signators of the notes signing as president of the latter corporation. In addition there were photostatic copies of: (1) a memorandum from the Division of Audits of the Department of Finance concerning the personal records of the State Treasurer in the treasury vault and noting a stock certificate for 100 shares of Crocker-Anglo National Bank Stock; (2) a ledger card recording a $3,000 loan transaction between Charles G. Johnson and the American Trust Co.; (3) a certified copy of minutes of a meeting of the Directors of Kirkpatrick Mines Company held in the Treasurer's office in the State Capitol; (4) an option to Transamerica Corporation to purchase an interest in Kirkpatrick Mines Company; and (5) a letter from an official of Transamerica Corporation to Charles G. Johnson.

The following original documents were among the papers received by the committee: (1) a memorandum regarding campaign contribution statements filed by Charles G. Johnson, State Treasurer, with the Secretary of State; (2) an anlysis of the ownership of Bank of America stock by Transamerica Corporation since 1941; (3) a memorandum concerning records in the office of the Secretary of State pertaining to Kirkpatrick Mines Company; (4) a compilation of data concerning notes executed by Charles G. Johnson as President of Kirkpatrick Mines Company in favor of Transamerica Corporation; and (5) a memorandum regarding "numerous unpaid notes of Charles G. Johnson to Transamerica Corporation."

BANK QUESTIONNAIRE

A questionnaire comprised of seven questions was sent to 82 banks. These banks were selected on the basis that they have or have had deposits of state funds. Six of the questions had to do with the relations of the bank with the State Treasurer either personally or officially in that they covered such matters as deposits of state funds, and loans to Mr. Johnson or to enterprises in which he may have been interested financially, and the question of stock ownership in the bank by Mr. Johnson. The other question related to the banks' relationship with any other state officer in connection with the deposit of state funds.

A time limit for the return of the questionnaire was established and many of the banks responded. However some of the banks, particularly the larger ones objected, through their association, to responding to the questionnaire. Their objection was two fold: First, that their relationship to Mr. Johnson personally was confidential and they were not at liberty to reveal it except under compulsion by legal process and secondly, that the question requiring them to provide the high and low balances of both active and inactive state deposit accounts for each year since 1935, necessitated a tremendous amount of work to secure information for the Legislature which was more readily and easily available from state records.

In all, 59 banks responded voluntarily to the questionnaire. With respect to the rest, it was determined to waive an answer to the question concerning balances in state deposits for the time being, in the interest of implementing the early conclusion of the investigation, and because audits had been made in earlier years covering the period under reference Subpenas were served on those banks which did not respond voluntarily to secure the information asked for by the other six questions in the questionnaire.

All but three of the replies indicated that the banks concerned had made no loans to Mr Johnson or any of his stated enterprises or interests and only one bank reported any stock ownership by him. No bank gave an affirmative answer to the question "Did any state officer other than the Treasurer or an employee of his office during the period July 1, 1935, to June 30, 1956, offer to take any action which would assist your bank in obtaining a deposit of state funds?"

Two of the banks reporting loans to Mr. Johnson were Bank of America and American Trust Co. The third was Crocker-Anglo National Bank reporting a loan by Capital National Bank of Sacramento, which through a series of consolidations and mergers became a part of Crocker-Anglo National Bank The bank reporting stock ownership was also the Crocker-Anglo National Bank. These transactions are discussed elsewhere in this report under appropriate headings.

CENTRAL NATIONAL BANK OF OAKLAND

Information was received that State Treasurer Johnson negotiated loans with the Central National Bank of Oakland in the early 1930's which totaled approximately $130,000. Of this sum, the bank ultimately wrote off $68,000 as a loss. This bank went into receivership in 1933 and its assets were purchased by the Central Savings Bank of Oakland. The latter in turn was bought by the Central Bank of Oakland which is now a part of the First Western Bank and Trust Company chain controlled by Transamerica Corporation.

Information developed confirmed the fact that loans were made to Mr. Johnson in the approximate amount indicated above and that a loss was sustained of approximately $68,000. When the notes were reviewed by the board of directors, it was the board's conclusion that the loans should not have been made because the security was inadequate. The collateral was stock considered to be of unsound value.

The bank went into receivership and the records, after liquidation, were sent to the Comptroller of Currency, Washington, D C.

Further substantiation of the existence of substantial loans is found in the following statement in a letter from the Comptroller of Currency.

"Among the assets acquired by the purchasing bank under the contract of sale was the note of Charles G Johnson dated June 30, 1931, due on demand in the face amount of $54,300."

These loans were negotiated while Central National Bank of Oakland was a depository of state funds.

A search has been made for the Johnson loan files of the Central National Bank which would, according to the Comptroller of Currency, be now in the possession of the First Western Bank and Trust Company. We are advised by the latter bank that they have been destroyed in accordance with the 20 year destruction schedule of the bank.

CAPITAL NATIONAL BANK

As a result of the questionnaire sent to the Crocker-Anglo National Bank, 1 Sansome Street, San Francisco, California, an officer of the bank directed a letter to the staff of the committee dated October 12, 1956. This letter indicated that the general ledger of the former Capital National Bank of Sacramento, contained an entry reflecting the write-off on May 19, 1936, of a $2,000 loan to a Charles G Johnson It was stated that there are no files or other records now available reflecting the date or terms of the loan or of the name, type or value of the security, if any. Available bank records did not indicate whether or not the borrower was in fact the same Charles G. Johnson who was the California State Treasurer.

The letter from Crocker-Anglo National Bank pointed out that the bank had acquired the assets and assumed the liabilities of the Capital National Bank of Sacramento on December 3, 1949. Subsequent investigation reflected that the subject $2,000 loan charged off as a loss by the Capital National Bank of Sacramento was in fact made to Charles G. Johnson, California State Treasurer, although no information could be secured providing additional details concerning the nature of the loan, its security, or write-off.

AMERICAN TRUST COMPANY

The records of American Trust Company indicate a series of 13 loan transactions totaling $13,700 including renewals in favor of Charles G. Johnson, State Treasurer.

The following schedule outlines the salient features of these loans:

Date of loan	Amount	Terms including rate of interest	Present status	Name, type and value of security at time of loan
8/13/42	$500	5% due 2/13/43	Paid 5/10/43	None

6/27/52	3,000	3% due 12/31/52	Charged to losses	None

A review of the terms of these notes indicates that the rates of interest charged were more favorable than those generally charged by the bank for unsecured personal loans. It is also indicated from credit data in the bank's files that the Treasurer's influence as a state officer and the business which the bank received from the State were specifically taken into consideration in making loans to Mr. Johnson. There is evidence that the bank and Mr. Johnson were in bitter disagreement over certain funds deposited in escrow by Mr. Johnson and a former business associate to cover the defalcation on the part of another associate in the organization of a life insurance company. Mr. Johnson believed that he was entitled to the balance remaining in escrow after approximately 19 years had elapsed after the opening of the escrow account. The bank for some years refused to make payment, and, according to Mr. Johnson, ultimately agreed to do so upon deposit of a bond indemnifying the bank against loss by reason of claimants appearing after the transfer of funds Such a bond was not posted. There is conflict of testimony as to whether such a bond could be secured, but payment was not made at that time. In August, 1951, a $3,000 loan was made by the bank to Mr. Johnson. Credit data in the bank's files compiled at a later date state that this loan was made on the basis of assurances that the escrow funds would be made available to pay the note at maturity, although this is not clear from credit information issued at the time the loan was made. The note was renewed on June 27, 1952, and matured on December 31, 1952. It was Mr. Johnson's opinion that the bank should satisfy the indebtedness from an amount of $3,100 remaining in the subject escrow account. In December, 1952, the note was written off, with notations indicating that serious illness of Mr. Johnson made it reasonable to expect that he would not pay the note. However, it was further noted that this conclusion would be subject to review if conditions changed. The bank now indicates that it contemplates application of the funds held in escrow to satisfy the $3,000 note. This, despite the fact that for a number of years the bank maintained that it could not return these funds to Mr. Johnson or apply them in payment of the loan.

Moreover, it should be particularly noted that on December 8, 1952, when bank officials completed an advice recommending that this $3,000 loan be charged to the doubtful classification, there was in fact on deposit in the same bank $4,363.83 in Mr. Johnson's commercial account. The balances in this account were consistently above the indebtedness owing the bank since June of 1952 and totaled almost $6,000 on January 6, 1953, less than a month after the decision to charge off the loan.

TRANSAMERICA CORPORATION

Investigation, initially, of the relationship between the subject corporation and Charles G. Johnson, the State Treasurer, and/or the Kirkpatrick Mines Corporation, was predicated upon certain photostatic copies of documents purporting to show that Transamerica Corporation had loaned various sums of money at various times to the Kirkpatrick Mines Co. One of the signators on such documents was Charles G. Johnson as president of Kirkpatrick Mines Co.

Examination of certain records and documents furnished by Transamerica Corporation and interviews with officials of that corporation disclosed the following series of original loan transactions:

The note of November 14, 1949, in the amount of $10,000 which had a maturity date of November 14, 1950, was paid in full in advance of maturity, as to principal only, on March 2, 1950. Payment was made to Transamerica Corporation by Cashiers Check No. 14876014, dated March 1, 1950, Sacramento Main Office of the Bank of America. Due to this bank's destruction schedule of five years on documents relating to the issuance of certified and cashiers checks, no tracing of the nature of the funds used to purchase this cashiers check is possible from this source.

The sum of $87.77 had accrued as interest on this obligation at the time of payment of the note. Testimony from an officer of Transamerica Corporation stipulated that the corporation had no documentation in their files as to any collection activity or demand on Mr. Johnson or Kirkpatrick Mines Co. for the interest due, nor any explanation for the fact of the nonpayment of the interest, except that the amount had been waived or charged off with approval of the then senior vice president of the corporation.

With reference to the preceding schedule of original obligations incurred by Kirkpatrick Mines Co., it should be noted that renewals of these notes were executed in accordance with the following schedule:

* This is a first renewal of Original Note No 532
† This is a second renewal of Original Note No 532

The foregoing schedule indicates that Kirkpatrick Mines Co. has a current indebtedness on Transamerica Corporation notes covering principal cash advances totaling $28,500. This consists of one 5 percent demand note No. 1341 in the principal amount of $5,000, representing a second renewal of an obligation originating on July 14, 1942, plus a 4 percent demand note dated January 6, 1953, in the principal sum of $23,500 representing a consolidation and renewal of seven pre-existing 4 percent demand notes, Nos. 1193 through 1579.

In each instance where a pre-existing note was renewed, the accrued interest on the pre-existing note was set up in a new note for the amount of such accrued interest In every case, the notes representing accrued interest on principal sums advanced were noninterest bearing notes. These obligations are reflected in the following schedule:

Note No.	Date of note	Amount	Interest rate	Due date	Representing accrued interest on note No.
1059	April 1, 1946	$942 36	0%	Demand	532
1342	Feb. 3, 1950	1,915 96	0%	Demand	532
___	Dec. 8, 1953	2,887.48	0%	Demand	532
1711	Jan. 6, 1953	3,680.69	0%	Demand	1193
					1238, 1247, 1251, 1284, 1368, 1579

Total accrued interest in notes as of December 8, 1953, amounted to $6,568.17 as reflected in the last two noninterest bearing notes in the above schedule.

Statements from present officials of Transamerica Corporation are to the effect that it is not unusual corporate policy to set up accrued interest in noninterest bearing notes.

In every instance, each note has been executed by Charles G. Johnson as president of Kirkpatrick Mines Co. and also bears the signature of either E. C. Royer or Florence House as secretary to said company. Each of the corporate secretary signatories at the time of execution of said notes was also at that time the secretary to Mr. Johnson in his official state capacity as State Treasurer.

At the inception of the first loan for $5,000 in July, 1952, Charles G. Johnson, acting for the Kirkpatrick Mines Co, executed an option in favor of Transamerica under the terms of which the latter corporation acquired an exclusive right to purchase an undivided one-fourth interest in the 14 mining claims owned by the Kirkpatrick Mines Co. together with an undivided one-fourth interest in all improvements, machinery and equipment located upon the said claims, for the sum of $5,000 at any time within a period of one year or for such time as the Kirkpatrick Mines Co. should be indebted to Transamerica Corporation, whichever shall be the lesser period of time.

The ostensible purpose of this option was to provide some security value to the loan transaction. However, the practical effect of this appears to have been somewhat nebulous. The original loan negotiations indicate that Transamerica Corporation was willing to advance $5,000 for a period of six months. The actual note No. 532 that was ultimately drawn after some correspondence was a demand note which was allowed to run from July 14, 1942, until April 1, 1946, a period of almost four years, when it was renewed by another demand note No. 1058. The file submitted by Transamerica Corporation appears to evidence no effort at collection until April 2, 1946, when according to a copy of a letter dated May 2, 1946, a renewal note had been forwarded to Kirkpatrick Mines Co. In the meantime, the option referred to above had expired after one year or on July 14, 1943. Thus, the loan was carried for almost three years without the benefit of whatever security value the option may have had. Further, when this note was renewed on April 1, 1946, the Transamerica file shows no evidence of a renewal of the option to run concurrently with the new note No. 1058.

It should be noted that the stated purpose of the initial loan made in 1942 was, according to a letter dated June 29, 1942, from Mr. Johnson to W. L. Andrews, then vice-president of Transamerica Corporation, "—to complete the tunnel and place the property on [sic] production." As of November 23, 1955, or over 13 years later, when the latest renewal of the option agreement was forwarded to Transamerica Corporation, Mr. Johnson states in the accompanying letter: "A great deal of incidental work towards mechanizing the mine has been completed and we look forward to getting the property on a producing basis in 1956."

With successive advances of additional funds by Transamerica Corporation to Kirkpatrick Mines Co., the terms of the collateral option agreement commencing on March 1, 1948, were modified to ultimately reach its present status calling for the purchase of a one-quarter interest for the sum of $20,000 at any time during a period of two years from the date of the option or for such time as the Kirkpatrick Mines Co. shall be indebted to Transamerica Corporation, whichever shall be the lesser period of time. The date of the last option on file is December 11, 1955.

On June 1, 1953, Transamerica Corporation disposed of all of the Kirkpatrick Mines Co. notes without recourse for their full face value plus accrued interest to date for a total consideration of $35,335.35.

This disposition has been made without any notice ever having gone to Kirkpatrick Mines Co. or to Charles G. Johnson as late as August 15, 1956. Transamerica Corporation has continued to service the notes and option for renewal purposes in behalf of the purchaser.

The purchaser of the Kirkpatrick Mines Co. notes is a retired vice-president of the Bank of America and at one time was retained by Transamerica Corporation as special counsel.

An examination of the files of the Transamerica Corporation indicates that practically no efforts were made to collect these notes; no formal financial statement was obtained; no apparent effort was made to determine whether the Kirkpatrick Mines Co, a foreign corporation, was authorized to transact business in California; no examination was made of physical properties or operations financed by its loans; nor otherwise did Transamerica follow practices normally followed in similar type loans made by financial institutions. As a matter of fact, public records in the office of the Secretary of State indicate that during most of the period which Transamerica was doing business with Kirkpatrick Mines Company, the latter's right to transact business in California had been forfeited.

Moreover, a comparison of the payment of the proceeds of Transamerica loans with the bank account of Kirkpatrick Mines Company fails to disclose the deposit of the proceeds of a number of the loans within reasonable periods after payment. Ostensibly, these loans were for developmental or operational purposes on the property of the company, but this was not demonstrated by the company's bank account. Accordingly, on October 9, 1956, a letter was directed to Mr. Johnson inviting him to submit the books and records of the Kirkpatrick Mines Company for inspection and review by this office. On October 16, 1956, a reply was received from Mr. Johnson in which he states that: "The records of the Kirkpatrick Mine will establish the fact that all loan funds received from the Transamerica Corporation were spent for the legitimate development of the mine."

He further goes on to state: "During the remodeling of my office and the turmoil which has ensued during the past months, the records of the Kirkpatrick Mine have been misplaced somewhere unbeknown to me."

In an effort to resolve these and other factors developed in connection with this inquiry, the feasibility of a personal interview with Mr. Johnson was explored. However, because of the condition of his health, as reported in the press from time to time, personal contact was first made with his physician on October 24, 1956, and as a result this office is in receipt of a letter dated October 25, 1956, from his physician advising that Mr. Johnson's health is such that he cannot appear before the Legislative Budget Committee or be interviewed without having serious adverse effects to his health.

Subsequent to the July 26th meeting of the committee, a letter was sent to Mr. Johnson under date of August 3d reciting the fact that he had been unable to testify in person before the committee and requesting any information which he might have or which he might in the future receive which would assist in the making of this inquiry. A copy of this letter is attached as Appendix II.

FARMERS AND MERCHANTS NATIONAL BANK OF LOS ANGELES

In his initial reported charge that improper influence had been brought to bear upon him in the making of deposits of state money, the State Treasurer alleged that the Governor had promised that deposits of state funds would be made available to the Farmers and Merchants National Bank of Los Angeles. These promises were alleged to have been made to Mr. Victor Rossetti, the Chairman of the Board of Farmers and Merchants National Bank, in exchange for support in the general election campaign of 1954.

Mr. Rossetti emphatically denies that he has ever been made any promises by Governor Knight or anyone on behalf of Governor Knight to the effect that Farmers and Merchants National Bank would get deposits of state funds or assistance in securing such deposist. Mr. Rossetti further states that he contributed $25 to Governor Knight's election campaign on April 6, 1954; $50 to Treasurer Johnson's campaign on May 26, 1954; and $100 to Treasurer Johnson's campaign on October 1, 1954. He states that he has made numerous contributions to the campaigns of candidates for state and local office in similar nominal amounts.

Copies of a letter written by Mr. Rossetti and sent to all three members of the Pooled Money Board on April 12, 1956, together with the answers thereto have been secured. This letter of April 12, 1956, requested the establishment of an active account for deposit of state funds with Farmers and Merchants National Bank. Mr. Pierce, the Director of Finance and Mr. Kirkwood, the Controller, two of the members of the Pooled Money Board answered Mr. Rossetti's letter promptly pointing out that while the Pooled Money Board had taken action to determine the overall total of state funds available for active deposit, the State Treasurer had responsibility for designating the particular banks to be used as depositories and the amounts of individual deposits. The State Treasurer on the other hand did not reply until June 18, 1956, over two months later, and then only after Mr. Rosetti had written twice more inquiring why he had not had an answer.

Mr. Johnson's letter of June 18, 1956, is not a direct reply to Mr. Rossetti's request for an active account in his letter of April 12 Rather, it purports to explain the delay in answering by reciting circumstances allegedly surrounding the termination in March, 1956, of the active account which the Farmers and Merchants National Bank had for a short period prior thereto. The circumstances recited in the letter are that a few days after the deposit had been approved, the "Finance Committee" by resolution instructed the Treasurer to call all active moneys. Mr. Johnson asserts in the letter that he attempted to get this "Finance Committee" to make an exception in the case of Mr. Rossetti's bank inasmuch as the deposit had only existed for a few weeks, but was overruled. Mr. Rossetti states that he understood Mr. Johnson's reference to the "Finance Committee" to mean the Pooled Money Board. The letter contains one paragraph, which is unrelated to anything else in the letter, which reads as follows:

> "Campaign pledges made by candidates for deposits to the several banks were made without authority and without advising this office"

Mr Rossetti states that this pargraph had no meaning to him at the time he received the letter; and that he had had no conversation or communication with Mr. Johnson prior thereto which would explain it.

He states that after receiving this letter he made no further effort to follow up the action initiated with his April 12 letters to secure a state deposit.

Mr. Johnson's charges that the Governor made promises of deposits were made public in the press on June 21, 1956, three days after the date of Mr. Johnson's letter to Mr. Rossetti of June 18, 1956.

WELLS FARGO BANK

On September 19 and 20, 1956, news releases appeared in the press of the State reporting that attorneys for State Treasurer Johnson demanded an investigation of a report that State Superintendent of Banks William A. Burkett had suggested to the State Treasurer that he place deposits with the Wells Fargo Bank in San Francisco. News reports indicated that the attorney for State Treasurer Johnson stated that "the committee should investigate Mr. Burkett's activities 'to determine who in fact has been influencing peddling and who, in fact, has been guilty of misfeasance and malfeasance in office'."

At the request of the staff of the Budget Committee, Mr. Burkett supplied a copy of a letter which he had addressed to the State Treasurer on March 23, 1956, requesting the designation of Wells Fargo Bank as the depository for funds received by the State Department of Banking which is under Mr. Burkett's jurisdiction. Mr. Burkett's request was made pursuant to provisions contained in Department of Finance Circular Letter P50-1, Supplement 1, dated April 12, 1950, stating that a state agency might select any bank as its depository for funds received by the agency and together with that bank might apply to the Treasurer for the designation of the bank as depository. In a letter addressed to the staff of the committee, Mr. Burkett stated that the Wells Fargo Bank was the only bank to make such application to him and that his effort in this matter was no different than that of some members of the Legislature who have had banks request their assistance in securing state banking business. Mr. Burkett further stated that he believes that the manner in which the State Treasurer has handled the deposit of state funds in banks in the State has resulted in discrimination against all but four or five of the larger banks in the State. He believes that the State Banking Department, which is supported by fees assessed against the state banks which it regulates, should use the services of the state bank for its banking requirements. Mr. Burkett further pointed out that a deposit of approximately $1,000 of interest-free state funds would be sufficient to compensate the Wells Fargo Bank for the services rendered in accepting the deposit of approximately 466 checks received from state banks by his department each year.

A letter was directed to State Treasurer Johnson on September 24, 1956, requesting that he make the letter he had received from Mr. Burkett available to the committee staff. Mr. Johnson responded on September 25, 1956, with a copy of a letter dated March 23, 1956, so written as to indicate that it had been signed by William A. Burkett as Superintendent of Banks The content and form of this copy agree with with the copy later submitted by Mr. Burkett.

Responsible officers of Wells Fargo were interviewed in this matter also. Their position is that essentially they look upon deposits of state funds as they would any other deposit and take such steps as they deem necessary and appropriate to secure such deposits. Thus, when the active noninterest bearing account which had been on deposit in Wells Fargo for many years was finally completely withdrawn about a year ago they decided to attempt to utilize Circular Letter P-50-1 and its supplement to secure their designation as an agency depository. They state that they approached State Superintedent of Banks Burkett with the idea and he agreed to assist them. The extent to which these bank officials determined the exact course of action taken by Mr. Burkett is not entirely clear, but it seems probable that the wording of Mr. Burkett's letter of March 23, 1956, resulted from the advice and assistance given him by bank officials.

Wells Fargo at this time apparently also considered the possibility of taking action to attempt to secure their designation as a depository for other state agencies in the San Francisco area. They state they took no action except some nonproductive exploratory discussion with respect to securing deposits of funds from the Unemployment Compensation Fund.

Wells Fargo officials were well aware at the time that the size of the compensatory balance of an active interest-free deposit which could be justified by the handling of agency deposits of the Department of Banking would be relatively small. However, their objective was first to secure a deposit because they felt that would place them in a position to secure a larger share of the State's active banking business in the San Francisco area.

OWNERSHIP OF CROCKER-ANGLO NATIONAL BANK STOCK

The audit by the Department of Finance of the Treasurer's office revealed that Mr. Johnson owned 100 shares of Crocker-Anglo National Bank stock which he held in the state vault. Investigation of the acquistion by Mr. Johnson of these shares of Crocker-Anglo National Bank stock developed the following information.

One hundred shares of stock were bought on March 7, 1956, at $35\frac{3}{4}$ per share and paid for by cashiers check No. 460173 drawn in the amount of $3,575 on the Crocker-Anglo National Bank, Mid-Town Branch, Sacramento, California The stock was bought from Schwabacher and Company through its Sacramento office and was Schwabacher's own stock.

Inquiry into the source of the funds utilized to purchase the cashiers check disclosed that Mr. Johnson had a savings account at the Mid-Town Branch of the Crocker-Anglo Bank from which the money was drawn.

KIRKPATRICK MINES CO.

Status of Corporate Right of Kirkpatrick Mines Company to Transact Intrastate Business in California as a Nevada Corporation

The Kirkpatrick Mines Company is a Nevada corporation organized on the following basis: Charles G. Johnson, State Treasurer, President, Florence House, Secretary. Mrs. House as a state employee is also the private secretary of Treasurer Johnson.

The Board of Directors constists of: Charles G. Johnson, Florence House, and Claire Fitzgerald, Mr. Johnson's daughter.

An examination of the records in the office of the Secretary of State indicates that the corporate right of the Kirkpatrick Mines Company to transact intrastate business in the State of California has been forfeited for various periods. Such forfeitures arose out of the failure of the corporation to pay its corporate taxes and were effected by the Secretary of State upon notice by the Franchise Tax Board.

The records examined show that the corporation's right to transact intrastate business in California was forfeited during the following periods:

In relation to the foregoing periods of forfeiture, the following table reflects loans which were negotiated by the mining corporation with Transamerica Corporation. The corporation's bank account was examined and it clearly shows that 39.6 percent of the dollar volume of withdrawal activity occurred while the corporation's right to do business was forfeited. Of the total number of individual withdrawal items appearing in the account, 47.2 percent were during the forfeited periods. The table shows that five loan transactions with Transamerica Corporation were negotiated during times of forfeiture.

Further evidence that the corporation was doing business while its status to do so was in a state of forfeiture is demonstrated by information in the committee's files that meetings of the Board of Directors were held in the office of the State Treasurer during this time.

The files furnished by Transamerica Corporation contain certain copies of the minutes and/or resolutions of the Kirkpatrick Mines Company executed in connection with the loans made from Transamerica. The period covered is 1942 through 1955. During this time 13 meetings were held to authorize Mr. Johnson to borrow money from Transamerica Corporation and to execute options in favor of Transamerica. Of the 13 meetings six or 46.1 percent of all meetings held were conducted when the corporation's right to transact intrastate business in California was forfeited.

Investigation indicates that some stock was sold but so far as has been determined such stock was Mr. Johnson's personal stock. The books and records of the corporation have not been made available to the committee.

MANAGEMENT DEFICIENCIES IN THE STATE TREASURER'S OFFICE

Inquiry into the conduct of the State Treasurer's Office, produced evidence of an unusual amount of personal interests and activities on the part of employees in that office. Such activities took place during regular hours of employment. This resulted in the loss of state time and the use of state employed personnel, facilities, and property for personal advantage.

We believe that the failure to eliminate such activity, over protracted periods of time, is indicative of the improper discharge of management responsibility. Moreover, it is indicated that much of this activity was performed at the specific direction of the State Treasurer.

Specific examples are set forth below:

1. Activity in the Treasurer's Office in Furtherance of the Re-election of the State Treasurer in the 1954 Campaign

A number of employees of the State Treasurer's Office devoted time and effort, during the regular hours of their employment, to handling campaign material, relating to the re-election campaign in 1954 of the State Treasurer including such activities as typing, stuffing envelopes and stamping them.

An intermittent employee's time and effort was devoted primarily to the handling of campaign material during one period of employment from August 16-27, 1954, in the State Treasurer's Office. The State Personnel Board questioned the hiring of this intermittent employee as a senior stenographer-clerk on the basis of insufficient description of duties included in the Report of Appointment, State Personnel Form 604. The Form 604 was prepared at the direction of the Deputy State Treasurer on instructions given him by the Treasurer. It is to be noted that although it is customary for the Deputy Treasurer to sign such forms, in this instance the form was signed by the Treasurer.

As a result of the insufficiency of the Form 604, the State Treasurer advised the Personnel Board of the State of California in a letter dated September 30, 1954, that the intermittent employee from August 16-27, 1954, was engaged in duties relating specifically to the normal functions of the State Treasurer's Office, primarily in the Bond Department checking bonds and coupons and stamping signature stamps on the bonds. It is to be noted that the Form 604 was submitted subsequent to the last date of the employment of the above employee. Therein it was stated that she had been employed in clerical and stenographic duties.

Thus we have two different statements of the purpose for which this employee was hired, both made subsequent to the performance of the work and both signed by Treasurer Johnson. The first representation was for the purpose of doing "clerical and stenographic work for the State Treasurer and his office as required."

The second representation states that the purpose was for work "in the bond department, performing the duties for which she was engaged, namely typing, checking bonds and coupons and stamping signature stamps on the bonds. She also did some copy work."

Information was developed from other personnel that during the above referred to employment, this intermittent employee was working in the Bond Department office but had no functions or duties and performed no work in connection with that department.

It has also been reported that an individual, not an employee of the Treasurer's Office, but apparently interested in the Treasurer's re-election in 1954, was observed distributing quantities of campaign material for the re-election of the State Treasurer to the employees of the State Treasurer's Office, during the normal working hours of that office, for the apparent purpose of having such material processed for mailing.

2. Use of State Personnel and Facilities to Transact Business of Kirkpatrick Mines Co.

The inquiry reflected that Mr Johnson made use of state personnel and facilities in transacting business of Kirkpatrick Mines Co. The use of state personnel involved an employee acting as an officer of the corporation and doing other clerical duties. State facilities were used to hold board of director's meetings, the use of state-owned stationery for the benefit of the company, and the use of the Treasury post-office box as a mailing address for the corporation.

3. Insurance Activity on the Part of One Employee

It was also determined that an employee of the State Treasurer's Office over a period of three to four years, has been conducting an insurance business. Further, that such employee transacted some of the business in the State Treasurer's Office during the normal working hours of that office.

4. Lodge Activity on the Part of One Former Employee

It was also ascertained that one of the former employees spent a portion of her time and used state telephone service to transact business of her lodge including telephone calls and handling correspondence during regular hours of employment when such time should have been utilized in performing her assigned duties in the State Treasurer's Office. This activity allegedly placed a burden on other employees to complete the duties which the former employee should have performed.

Audit Reports on Treasurer's Office

During the inquiry a situation involving the audit reports of the Department of Finance came to the attention of the staff. Information obtained from Department of Finance records revealed that auditors were cognizant of the use of state civil service personnel and facilities for campaign activities during regular work hours in the Treasurer's Office. The information was that "tens of thousands" of copies of printed material soliciting Mr. Johnson's re-election was mailed from the Treasurer's Office. Further that Mr. Johnson used his secretary "for weeks . . . almost exclusively in electioneering activities." Still further, that a pamphlet printed at the state printing plant was so laudatory of Mr. Johnson "as to make its purpose in an election year seem obvious."

The above information was contained in the working papers of the Audit Division of the Department of Finance Neither the information nor any reference to these situations was reported in the published audit report on the Treasurer's Office. In discussing this matter with the Division of Audits, we were advised that the comments in the audit report are normally concerned only with the actual records or documents of the agency being audited. Therefore questionable situations coming to the attention of the auditors but not supportable wholly from records or other documents are not normally included in the audit report as published.

It is pointed out that the scope of the Division of Audits procedure does not contemplate the use of investigative techniques in the development of such situations and that they do not possess the power of subpena.

It would appear desirable that such situations even though not supportable by documentation from official records, nevertheless, be at least referenced in the audit report in order to bring them to the attention of other interested agencies, or that communications describing management deficiencies be sent to the agency audited and thus copies of these communications be attached to the internal audit reports and furnished to the Auditor General and Legislative Auditor.

PART II

RECOMMENDED CHANGES IN INVESTMENT PROGRAM

As was indicated in the first progress report on the investment of state funds, the procedure presently in effect under the jurisdiction of the Pooled Money Investment Board appears to be a significant improvement over earlier procedures and policies and constitutes an effective management program. Since the meeting of the committee, a more comprehensive system of reporting investments has been formulated and put into effect. Earnings from investments continue to reflect the improved techniques and more active management concern with the problem.

In general it can be concluded that the existing system is working well, and that a major portion of the State's program for investing temporarily idle funds has been coordinated through the procedure established under the 1955 act creating the Pooled Money Investment Fund and Pooled Money Investment Board. Much more careful consideration is now being given to prospective Treasury demands related to available surpluses; standard procedures have been instituted for compensation of banks following principles outlined in the American Institute of Banking and other bank manuals; and investment income to the State has materially improved. However, as was pointed out in our previous report, the board has not found it practical to include all portions of the investment program under the jurisdiction of the Pooled Money Investment Board. The investment of constitutionally restricted funds has not been brought into the Pooled Money Investment Board program for the reason that, if it were brought in, all interest from such investments would accrue to the General Fund under the statute instead of being prorated to such funds. The question as to whether the return from the investment of the surplus in such funds should accrue to the General Fund involves, of course, both an important policy and a constitutional problem.

Without attempting at this time to resolve this difficult question, there are certain procedural and organizational questions which remain in the present function which should be corrected by legislation. First, we believe that the law should be amended to clarify the responsibility of the Pooled Money Investment Board in respect to those actions which appropriately require the joint consideration of that body, contrasted with those determinations of fact which can best be made by a single state official. For example, the determination of the total amount of investments in bonds, as well as the depositing of funds in time accounts for interest, should probably be made by the Pooled Money Investment Board. This should include a determination as to the specific amount of money which should be placed in a particular bank in the form of time or inactive accounts subject to maximum amounts approved for each bank by the board. At the present time this determination as to a particular bank is made by the State Treasurer although the total amount of such deposits is determined by the Pooled Money Investment Board. We believe that these determinations should be made by the board. Thus, the Pooled Money Investment Board would determine both the interest rates which should apply to time deposits of state money on a uniform basis, and select from those banks which are eligible to receive deposits the ones in which the State's money should be deposited. It would set a maximum amount of time deposits for each bank and the actual deposit. The eligibility of a bank for receipt of a deposit, as determined by the relationship between capital and surplus of the bank and the amount of deposit desired should, we believe, be determined by the State Treasurer. Likewise, he should determine whether the bank has deposited securities in the amount of 110 percent of the bank deposit, and he should also be responsible for deciding whether additional security or bonds are required due to loss of value of securities. These determinations should be made without the requirement of approval by other state officers. The existence of a post audit of these actions should be adequate review.

Moreover, we do not believe that it is good procedure to have joint responsibility of the type "the Director of Finance, Controller, and Treasurer shall * * * ," since this type of joint action or agreement can be reached without any formal meeting of the principals. I does not therefore provide an adequate public forum for decisions which this type of joint responsibility would appear to require. Except for certain cases which will be discussed later there would appear to be no justification for the requirement of such joint approval unless deliberation and public assembly are desirable. In the case of a board, there is a legal requirement for the members to meet together incidental to the making of decisions.

On the other hand, for those matters which require immediate decision to obtain administrative efficiency, it is preferable to have single agency responsibility. The point has been strongly made by the State Controller that in respect to the power of approval or consent this authority is negative in nature. The Controller in his testimony before the Budget Committee also sharply disagreed with the Legislative Auditor's reference to the Controller's authority to approve the actions of the Treasurer as joint authority or responsibility for such actions. He also disagreed with the statement that such authority had in fact been delegated to the Treasurer, stating, "Our position is that we do not have the responsibility and that not having the responsibility, we cannot delegate it." For this reason we have requested an opinion from the Legislative Counsel clarifying this question. This opinion is attached as Exhibit I.

It would appear to be desirable generally to review all places where the approval power appears in the law. In some matters it is unquestionably desirable to have additional review by vesting the approval power in another officer or agency. In these cases, there should, however, be clearly defined need for the review; e.g., legality, availability of funds, conformance with personnel records, et cetera. Such approval or consent should not be solely for the purpose of securing the opinion of another official unless he has special qualifications or responsibilities that are not present in the initiating officer. It would appear that the provision in the law for consent and approval of actions taken in the investment program is to some extent superfluous and has not been required in the interest of effective administration. Those actions which warrant coordinated action can be decided most effectively under authority given to the Pooled Money Investment Board.

Outlined below by investment program are specific recommendations for the elimination of unnecessary approvals and recommended transfers of responsibility to achieve more effective administration. These recommendations follow the principles previously stated, to wit, that decisions requiring joint action should be vested in the Pooled Money Investment Board and that ministerial type decisions should be made by a single agency.

GENERAL FUND

It is recommended that steps be taken to eliminate obsolete limitations including the provision that surplus available for investment shall not exceed 110 percent of disbursements, excluding bond investments, from the General Fund during the preceding twelve months period. This provision is unnecessarily restrictive. The improved procedure of the Pooled Money Investment Board can, we believe, make reasonably accurate determinations of surpluses without the necessity of a legal safeguard of this nature.

It is recommended that responsibility for investing such General Fund moneys should be placed clearly and exclusively in the Pooled Money Investment Board so long as it is constituted in its present form and has legal responsibility for the investment of the major portion of temporarily idle surpluses of the State.

It is recommended that the Pooled Money Investment Board should be made responsible for designation of "surplus" rather than the Director of Finance and Treasurer as presently provided under Government Code Sections 16421 and 16422.

SPECIAL FUND

The distribution of earnings from special fund investments is both a policy matter and, in some cases, a constitutional question. But if it is to be the policy of the State that income from these special funds shall be allocated back to them as presently provided in the law, it would be desirable to amend the act creating the Pooled Money Investment Board procedure to provide for distribution at as present, but that otherwise those funds shall be included in the Pooled Money Investment Board program. Appropriate charges should be established to compensate the Pooled Money Investment Board for services rendered to the special funds.

It is further recommended that responsibility for determining available surpluses in the special funds should be made that of the Pooled Money Investment Board.

CENTRALIZED TRUST SYSTEM

It is recommended that this system should by law be put under Pooled Money Investment Board control. This would include both declarations of surplus and responsibility for investment. Legal impediments relating to the question of whether these funds should be within or without the Treasury should be resolved.

DEPOSITS

It is recommended that determination of individual banks which are to receive time deposits should be placed in the Pooled Money Investment Board. It is recommended that the Treasurer should determine which of several banks should have active or demand accounts and that that determination should be his responsibility alone, within the total amount determined by the board to be necessary for compensation of banks plus that amount which the Treasurer finds is necessary to meet day to day Treasury requirements for payment of warrants.

It is recommended that approval of specified securities for deposit with the Treasurer in the amount of 110 percent of time or demand deposits should be the responsibility of the Treasurer.

It is recommended that the determination of whether additional security deposits are required should be by the Treasurer alone since he is responsible for active accounts and under our recommendation would be solely responsible for determining that securities deposited are in the amount of 110 percent of the bank deposit as required by law. It would seem that all of the provisions relating to the administration of security deposits should be centered in the State Treasurer.

It is recommended that review of capital and surplus of banks as an eligibility requirement for the deposit of state funds should be the sole responsibility of the Treasurer since this is a factual determination which he appropriately can make.

The above suggested revisions in the existing law would move further in the direction of a centralized program for the investment of temporarily idle funds under the jurisdiction of an investment board It would coordinate the activities of separate state officials who have legal responsibility for the various elements of an effective investment program, and at the same time clarify their individual responsibilities on a more logical and functional basis. It will make it possible to more accurately estimate the demands on the Treasury and, conversely, establish the amounts available for deposit or investment. It is already apparent that this type of arrangement can provide a much more effective investment program with markedly increased revenues to the State.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, September 13, 1956

MR. A ALAN POST, Legislative Auditor
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

DEPOSIT OF STATE FUNDS—No. 2921

DEAR MR. POST: You have requested our opinion as to the legal responsibilities imposed on the Director of Finance, Controller, and Treasurer with respect to the functions described in Sections 16503, 16505, and 16521 of the Government Code.

The three provisions cited are contained in Chapter 4 of Part 2 of Division 4 of Title 2 of the Government Code, which regulates the deposit of state funds in banks. For convenience we will hereafter refer to that chapter as the bank deposit law.

Since the three sections cited all relate to the same subject, and are part of a chapter the provisions of which all relate to the same subject, we will not attempt to construe them separately. It is an elementary principle governing the interpretation of laws that all sections referring to the same general subject should be read and considered together to determine the true legislative intent, reading each provision in the light of the others (County of Los Angeles v. Riley, 20 Cal. 2d 652).

The requirement that state funds be deposited in banks is stated in Section 16502 of the Government Code,* which reads as follows:

> "All other money (excepted is money deposited in out-of-state banks in connection with bond payments) under the control of the Treasurer belonging to or in the custody of the State, shall, so far as possible be deposited by the Treasurer to the credit of the State in eligible banks. Any sum so deposited is deemed to be in the State Treasury."

The section quoted imposes upon the Treasurer alone the obligation to deposit state funds in eligible banks. There are, however, certain restrictions placed upon him with respect to the exercise of this duty. The first restriction arises in connection with the requirement that state funds be placed in eligible banks.

The term "eligible bank" is defined in Section 16500, which states:

> "As used in this chapter, 'eligible bank' means a state or national bank located in this State and selected by the Treasurer with the approval of the Director of Finance and Controller for the safekeeping of money belonging to or in the custody of the State. Such a bank is eligible to receive deposits only to the extent that it furnishes the security required by this chapter."

It is apparent from the section quoted that while the Treasurer is given authority to select the banks which are eligible for deposit of state funds, his selection is subject to the approval of the Director of Finance and the Controller. Since the Treasurer is entitled to deposit state funds in approved banks only, failure of the Director of Finance or the Controller to approve a particular bank would prevent the Treasurer from depositing state money in that bank.

The Treasurer is also restricted with regard to the amount of funds he may place in an "eligible bank." As indicated in Section 16500, a bank may receive deposits only to the extent that it furnishes the security required by law. This requirement is expanded upon in Section 16521, which is one of the three provisions which we have been specifically requested to construe. That section provides:

> "To be eligible to receive and retain active and inactive deposits, a bank shall deposit with the Treasurer as security for such deposits, securities specified in Section 16522, and approved by the Director of Finance, Controller, and Treasurer in an amount in value at least 10 percent in excess of the amount deposited with the bank."

The section quoted imposes upon the Director of Finance, Controller, and Treasurer the responsibility to approve the securities required of a bank as a prerequisite to its right to receive deposits of state funds. The basic distinction between the section and many of the other provisions in the bank deposit law is that here the responsibility is directly cast upon all of the three officers involved, whereas in other cases the primary responsibility is imposed on the Treasurer who acts subject to the approval of the other two officers.

What actually would be involved in connection with the approval of securities is rather difficult to state. The Supreme Court of this State, in Berryman v. Perkins, 55 Cal. 483, has stated:

> "The act of approving * * * necessarily involves an examination of the subject, and the exercise of official judgment and discretion, * * *."

Further, in People v. Hall, 140 Cal. App. 745, 755, which cites New York and N. E. R. Co. v. City of Waterbury, 55 Conn. 19, 23, the following statement appears:

> "The word 'approve' means more than the unexpressed mental acquiescence of the individual in the propriety of what has been done; it means that the officer, in his official capacity, as guardian of the interests of a community, having in view its welfare, and not his personal wish or advantage, shall consider the proposed legislation and determine that it is proper * * *."

Thus, it seems apparent that the use of the term "approve," or any of its derivatives, provides discretionary power to the officer or officers involved to approve or disapprove matters submitted to them under statutory provisions, a discretion, however, which must be guided by thought and consideration and should not be capricious or arbitrary. As applied to the approval of securities, it would appear that the term "approved" requires of the three officers involved an exercise of discretion with respect to determining the suitability or unsuitability of particular securities for the purpose stated, and gives to them the attendant right to accept or reject securities in accordance with their determination.

Section 16521 also places a limitation on the amount of state funds which may be placed in a bank by direct reference to the amount of approved securities deposited by the bank with the Treasurer. Here we have a positive and clear restriction on the right to deposit funds in a bank. Even assuming that the bank is an "eligible bank" within the meaning of Section 16500, having been approved by the Director of Finance and the Controller, the Treasurer still may deposit funds in the bank only to the extent that it furnishes the required amount of approved securities. A public officer must perform his duties in accordance with the law (Cowell v. Martin, 43 Cal. 605). Since the Treasurer is the only officer charged with the duty of depositing funds, it would seem to follow that it is his responsibility to determine whether or not a bank has submitted a sufficient number of approved securities to entitle it to a particular deposit.

Another limitation placed upon the Treasurer's right to deposit funds appears in Section 16505, which is the second of the three provisions we have been asked to consider. That section states:

> "Deposits in any bank shall not exceed the total of its paid in capital and surplus."

This section does not expressly designate the person or persons who must determine when a bank has reached its quota. However, since the limitation imposed relates to the amount of state funds which may be deposited in any one bank, it appears reasonable to assume that it also operates as a restriction on the person charged with the duty of depositing such funds. The reasoning here is basically the same as that appearing above in connection with Section 16521. Furthermore, the limitation imposed is clear and a determination as to its applicability to any particular bank would seem to be purely ministerial in nature. Either a bank does have sufficient capital and surplus to justify a deposit or it does not. An examination of applicable records would probably be sufficient to reveal the information desired. Both of these indicate a probability that the Legislature intended to designate the Treasurer as the person responsible for making the necessary determination. It is that official alone who is charged with the obligation to deposit funds, and, since the determination in question does not call for an exercise of discretion, there would appear to be no warrant for reading into it a requirement that other state officials need to pass upon the Treasurer's determination. In this same connection it is to be noted that the bank deposit law does not confer upon the Director of Finance and the Controller a general power to supervise the Treasurer with respect to his activities under that law. An examination of the bank deposit law as a whole indicates that the Treasurer is charged with its actual administration. The Director of Finance and the Controller operate primarily as a check upon the Treasurer with respect to the exercise of discretionary duties imposed on the latter.

A final restriction placed upon the Treasurer relates not to the amount of funds he may place in a bank but rather on the manner in which such deposits shall be made. This restriction appears in Section 16503, which is the last of the three sections to be construed. That section provides:

> "With the consent of the Director of Finance and the Controller, the Treasurer shall determine what amounts of money shall be deposited:
> (b) As active deposits, and the rates of interest to be received, if any."

The manner in which the quoted section is phrased indicates that the initial determination as to the proper allocation of state funds between active and inactive deposits, and the rates of interest to be received, rests with the Treasurer. His determination, however, is subject to the consent of the Director of Finance and the Controller. The responsibility of the last named officials depends on the meaning to be attributed to the term "consent."

It is a basic principle of statutory construction that words in a statute should be given their ordinary meaning and receive a sensible construction in accordance with the commonly understood meaning thereof (Los Angeles County v. Frisbee, 19 Cal. 2d 634; Estate of Richartz, 45 Cal. 2d 292). In its common and accepted sense, the term "consent" means "voluntary accordance with, or concurrence in what is done or proposed by another; acquiescence; compliance; approval; permission" (Webster's New International Dictionary, Second Edition). It is synonymous with "assent, accede, acquiesce, agree, subscribe" (Webster's Dictionary of Synonyms).

The application of the definitions mentioned in the preceding paragraph to the term "consent" as used in Section 16503 demonstrates rather clearly that it is the function of the Director of Finance and the Controller to pass upon the soundness of the Treasurer's determination as to the allocation of deposits between active and inactive accounts and the rates of interest to be received. In other words, the Treasurer must obtain the concurrence or acquiescence of the Director of Finance and the Controller in his determination, the implication being that such concurrence or acquiescence is a necessary prerequisite to the Treasurer's right to put his determination into effect. This conclusion is in accord with the basic pattern evident throughout the bank deposit law wherein the Director of Finance and the Controller act as a check upon the Treasurer in matters requiring an exercise of discretion.

Yours very truly,

RALPH N. KLEPS,
Legislative Counsel

JOINT LEGISLATIVE BUDGET COMMITTEE

August 3, 1956

HON. CHARLES G. JOHNSON, State Treasurer
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

Dear Mr. Johnson: Recent newspaper accounts of statements made by your attorneys indicate that you desire and intend to submit information which will answer allegations made by the Governor and others from time to time since your original statement to the press linking the Governor with the making of state deposits.

In view of your illness and inability to accept the invitation of the Joint Legislative Budget Committee to appear and testify in person at its meeting July 26, 1956, we have in our possession only the letter of July 24, 1956, addressed to Senator Hulse, which was entered into the transcript of the hearing held by the committee.

As you know, the staff of the committee has been instructed to continue its inquiry into this entire matter, including certain documents presented to the committee by Assemblyman Caspar Weinberger

I wish at this time to assure you that we would welcome any information which you may have now or which you will develop in the future which will assist us in our inquiry into the charges made by you concerning the Governor, or into the investment of state funds generally, including the operations of your office.

Very truly yours,

CONSIDERATIONS IN FINANCING A STATE WATER RESOURCES DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Prepared by Legislative Auditor
November 13, 1956

California has a strong tradition of water resources development by local interests which have constructed many projects to furnish hydroelectric power, irrigation water and municipal water supplies. As early as 1872 the California Legislature authorized the formation of irrigation districts and thereby initiated local construction of irrigation projects by public units. Thus, of the 6,438,324 acres (1950 data) of irrigated land in California, only 1,132,602 acres (1952 data) were irrigated with water from federal projects. In addition, local interests, whether private or public, have developed virtually all the municipal water supplies and hydroelectric energy of California.

In contrast, not until 1907 did the Federal Government initiate irrigation construction in California, at which time the Orland Irrigation Project was authorized. Since then the Federal Government has constructed almost all the major projects built in California and its activities have become of great importance to California's economy. Today the policies of the Federal Government are critical to present and future water resources development in California even though local construction continues at a high rate and the State is planning a construction program.

PATTERNS OF FEDERAL INTEREST

The Federal Government constitutionally has full responsibility for water resources development related to navigation and national defense. In addition it has assumed almost full responsibility for flood control work, starting first on the Mississippi and Sacramento Rivers when problems of flood control became too expensive and geographically widespread for local interests to handle Thus, flood control, navigation and national defense aspects of water resources development are now almost exclusively responsibilities of the U. S. Corps of Engineers. Except for local contributions covering the costs of rights of way for channel improvements to provide flood protection, the Federal Government pays all costs of the flood control work. Any costs for power installations or conserved water associated with these projects is reimbursed by local interests.

Federal construction of irrigation projects, acting through the Bureau of Reclamation, was originally intended to develop and enhance the federal domain. In due time this policy was changed to permit the Bureau of Reclamation to construct projects which watered private lands, authority for which was found in the welfare clause of the Constitution. The Federal Government over the years has tended to provide increasing assistance to irrigation projects because those projects remaining for construction generally are either too large for local interests to finance or assistance to irrigation is required.

The Reclamation Laws, which govern the Bureau of Reclamation, authorize that agency to construct multiple-purpose projects in which irrigation is a primary purpose. Irrigation water users are required to repay all or a portion of the investment costs of irrigation features of the project without interest being charged. Investment costs of municipal or industrial water as well as hydroelectric power developed by the project are required to be fully repaid by the beneficiaries with interest, but these beneficiaries may also be required to repay part of the irrigation investment cost which is beyond the ability of the irrigators to repay. Investment costs for flood control, and certain costs of fish, wildlife, and recreation features need not be repaid, that is, they are nonreimbursable.

The Soil Conservation Service of the Department of Agriculture is also authorized to cooperate with local interests in the construction of small projects in small watersheds. Projects which qualify under this program must be associated with soil conservation activities.

Water resources projects constructed by the Corps of Engineers or the Bureau of Reclamation may be either very large projects which are clearly beyond the capability of local interests to construct or they may be smaller projects which the Federal Government constructs in behalf of the local interests because the latter lack the assessed valuation to finance construction or otherwise are unable to construct the projects themselves. The general pattern for repayment of federal project investments is the same in either case and may be summarized as follows: flood control, navigation, recreation, and fish and wildlife are nonreimbursable, while investments for power, irrigation, municipal and industrial water are reimbursable Essentially, the Federal Government when constructing projects in behalf of local interests is performing the planning, design, construction, operation and maintenance work for them In many cases it will eventually turn over the projects to the local interests when all reimbursable costs have been paid Supplementing this basic policy, the 84th Congress authorized the Bureau of Reclamation and the Department of Agriculture to lend or grant most of the construction costs of small projects to local interests so that they might construct, own and operate these small projects instead of the Federal Government. This legislation and its effect on California's problems will be discussed in detail later.

PATTERNS OF STATE INTEREST

If the State of California is to undertake a program of water resources development, its role must be carefully fitted into this existing local-federal relationship. Many elements of the State's role are already reasonably clear. (1) The State has no direct interest in national defense and navigation. (2) The State's waters are basically intrastate; in most cases there is no overriding interstate problem. (3) The State is interested in flood control, recreation, and fish and wildlife on somewhat the same basis as the Federal Government because these factors usually concern more people and larger areas than are encompassed by the jurisdiction and financial capacity of local interests. (4) The interest of the State in irrigation, municipal and industrial water supplies is much the same as the Federal Government; that is, to assure abundant supplies and to provide assistance where local interests cannot cope with the problem. (5) The State has developed no interest in hydroelectric power except to provide revenues for project repayment. (6) The Federal Government has not directly entered the field so the State retains the responsibility to act in matters of water pollution control. (7) In the absence of any federal legislation related to widespread irrigation drainage problems in the Central Valley, the State may have to assume a special interest in this field.

Three reasons are generally advanced in public discussion to support an active role by the State in project construction: (1) inherent characteristics of remaining sites for project construction require large multiple-purpose projects or widespread facilities which are beyond the capacity of local interests; (2) more assistance than the Federal Government can furnish is needed to speed project construction; and (3) water resources development affects the economy and welfare of the entire State, regardless of the geographic location of the projects. These reasons also tend to cast the State in a role which is parallel and similar to that of the Federal Government.

Certain specific actions of the last two sessions of the State Legislature have already substantially committed the State to a role in water resources development which is similar to many elements of the federal program, i.e., construction of flood control works on the San Joaquin River; site acquisition for recreational, fisheries, and irrigation projects on the Upper Feather River; and construction of the Feather River Project for irrigation, flood control, municipal water, and power purposes.

These same activities of the State show evidence of a citizen interest in water resources development which goes beyond existing federal policy in several particulars. The State appears to have concluded that the federal program for the construction of flood control reservoirs and channel works is not sufficient and that the State must supply additional financial resources to assist in construction. The same may be said for augmentation of the federal reclamation program to supply municipal, industrial, and irrigation water. The State also appears to be concluding that it has a special interest in the construction of water resources projects with recreational, wildlife and fisheries features.

There is an element of apparent illogic resulting from the State's entering into a major water resources development program. Normally, the Federal Government has built water resources projects because local and state resources could not finance the work. In the case of the original Central Valley Project, the State of California determined that it could not finance the $170,000,000 required for the project and its construction was undertaken by the Federal Government. In noticeable contrast now is the State's program to build the Feather River Project, the largest undertaking of its kind in history which the State proposes to finance and construct by itself with some federal assistance. This is a surprising reversal of the traditional positions of the Federal and State Governments, and it may easily be misrepresented by persons outside the State to mean that the State has a capacity to finance project construction which equals that of the Federal Government. Such an interpretation might undermine the basis for continued federal assistance to water resources development in California. Federal water resources policy is now under great pressures from the private vs. public power controversy, demands for greater local financial contributions, pressures for curtailed expenditures because of large federal budgets, and pressures for federal tax reductions. In such circumstances, caution is in order to assure that the State's program supplements and does not supplant federal assistance.

The State would create confusion if it were to offer assistance on local projects which would compete with federal policy or which could be used by the local interests as a bargaining lever in negotiations with the Federal Government. Thus, in choosing a role for the State in water resources development, it is important to recognize the interests of the nation as expressed by established patterns of federal assistance; the special interests of the State in helping develop ample supplies of water for its industry, agriculture, and municipalities, as well as recognizing the needs for recreational development; and the interests of the local people and the contributions they can make. As long as the State recognizes and honors these various interests, there will be no serious problems with federal policy which cannot be resolved.

Elements of a State Financing Plan

The hearings during September, 1956, held by the Department of Water Resources on the California Water Plan brought repeated emphasis from all concerned that the State should not and did not intend to construct all the projects outlined in the Plan. The master system for transferring water from the northern part of the State to the southern part of the State, known as the California Aqueduct System, is the only portion of the Plan clearly requiring state construction. However, the hearings indicated that some local interests will need federal or state assistance to finance local projects and that in certain instances the local interests will be unable to finance a project on the basis of the optimum development proposed in the California Water Plan. An over-all state financing plan for state water resources development, therefore, involves three elements: (1) financing the California Aqueduct System, of which the Feather River Project is the initial step; (2) financial assistance to speed local interests in their construction of projects, and (3) financial assistance to assure construction of multiple-purpose projects in accordance with the optimized development envisioned in the California Water Plan.

It has already been pointed out that federal financing policy is no different for federal construction of projects than for federal assistance to local construction of projects. Generally speaking, this appears to be a good pattern for the State to follow because it provides equal assistance to all projects whether built by state or local interests. This would relieve pressures on the State to construct projects for local interests which they might otherwise construct themselves. It would also prevent confusion and actual delay in construction of local projects while local interests gained an understanding of state policies and evaluated them against federal policies.

Increasing Emphasis on Multiple-purpose Projects

The changing nature of project development in California and the west has exercised a profound effect on the capability of local interests to finance projects. Many early projects in California merely utilized the natural flow of a stream and, when required, transported it to the area of use. The problems of high cost construction and complex engineering arose after it became necessary to construct dams to conserve water from periods of high flow to be used during periods of low flow. This storage or conservation of streamflows has emphasized the need for multiple-purpose project development.

Early irrigation projects were intended only to provide a supply of irrigation water. The high costs of developing irrigation water supplies never permitted local interests to spend any appreciable amount of money for development of other project purposes. Because irrigators have been unable to afford the increasing costs of single-purpose irrigation projects they have turned to federal construction to finance power features so that power revenues might repay a portion of irrigation investment costs.

The development of hydroelectric power has also been by single-purpose projects with but few exceptions, whether constructed by privately or publicly owned electric utilities. The rigid limitations on the costs of developing power which is competitive with other energy sources does not allow investments for other project purposes. As a result, many multiple-purpose sites throughout the Country have been developed for power which foreclosed future multiple-purpose uses of the sites. This was inevitable under the existing system of development and it can be expected to continue until the public interest in the multiple-purpose development of project sites is recognized. A case in point currently is the inability of the Sacramento Municipal Utility District to finance the optimum development on the upper American River which the Department of Water Resources feels is desirable because power costs would be too high.

The floods of December, 1955, dramatically emphasized the need for more flood control storage projects. However, local interests are building or planning several single-purpose projects in the State which could be enlarged to achieve some flood control storage benefits. Naturally these local interests cannot afford to construct and pay for flood control storage which will bring in no revenues.

It can be concluded that local interests cannot finance multiple-purpose development of many of the remaining project sites without some form of assistance. Nor should they be expected to finance multiple-purpose projects which provide benefits for others. A broader reflection of the general public interest as represented by the State and Federal Governments is required to finance a multiple-purpose project. In particular is this true for project purposes which do not bring any monetary returns.

The future of California promises continued and increasing demands for multiple-purpose projects with fish, wildlife and recreational features because of the increasing standards of living and additional leisure time available to California citizens. At the same time, increasing populations and decentralization of urban centers is constantly encroaching on the natural flood plains of the rivers to secure new space for housing and industrial developments. This urban encroachment is removing irrigated land from production and creating a need for new irrigation projects to replace urbanized farm lands

The significance of multiple-purpose development also shows up in other ways. Currently a number of rivers in the State are the scene of disagreement over plans for their development with local interests contending for available sites and limited streamflows. In many cases the contestants propose to construct a single-purpose project to satisfy their needs to the exclusion of other purposes and interested parties Actually a larger project or a multiple-purpose project constructed jointly by several local interests might well develop sufficient additional supplies of water at no substantial increase in costs per unit of project water. It is logical, therefore, to consider each site for its maximum development both with respect to amounts of water conserved and to all purposes which might be served. Any state program for water resources development should reflect this principle.

The situation confronting the State of California as a result of the increasing need for multiple-purpose projects appears, therefore, to be somewhat as follows: When local interests can finance the construction of a single-purpose project and the nature of such factors as the market for water, site location and streamflow runoff justify a single-purpose project, there is no problem. When a multiple-purpose project can be undertaken on the basis of a tie-in with local power or municipal water users, there is a need for state assistance for recreation, flood control and fish and wildlife. But when local interests have a need for only one purpose of a project or when the project is vital but has economic defects which may require some public assistance, or when the maximum benefits from the site development require a multiple-purpose project or an optimum size project as outlined in the California Water Plan, a serious problem exists. Under the latter two circumstances the State has one of two choices, either let the project be constructed as a single-purpose project, or determine how much assistance it will render to the project in the public interest. If assistance is to be rendered, the problem is to determine the State's role in providing that assistance and the best form for that assistance to take.

The Nature of a Multiple-purpose Project

An understanding of several basic aspects of the planning and construction of multiple-purpose projects is essential to a consideration of the most effective and economical methods of state financial assistance. The essence of multiple-purpose project development is concisely stated by Brig. Gen. W. E. Potter, U. S. Corps of Engineers.

> "There are a number of advantages inherent in multiple-purpose planning and development. One is economy, for it is usually cheaper to provide for several water uses in a single project than to build several single-use projects. Another is conservation of project sites. Favorable damsites are rare, and it is essential that the potentialities of each site be utilized as fully as is practicable Multiple-purpose construction may permit development of water uses which could not be justified individually, helping us not only by protecting our fertile river valleys against floods, but by storing supplies of water for domestic use, irrigation, industrial, and other uses, permitting production of hydroelectric power, helping to abate the pollution of our streams, enhancing fish and wildlife habitat, and providing recreation on reservoirs and streams. And perhaps most important, multiple-purpose construction provides for future flexibility in the use of water." [1]

A water storage project requires certain basic structural features. Thus, a structure to impound water, a spillway to bypass excess flows which cannot be stored, and reservoir space for the impounded water are all essential, no matter what the intended use of the project. These are joint-use features which serve all purposes of the project irrespective of the number of project purposes. Naturally the size of these joint-use features will vary with the number of purposes served, the quantity of water devoted to each purpose, and the physical characteristics of each project site, but these joint-use features vary only in size and not in number. This factor is fundamental to the economics of multiple-purpose projects. Thus the use of one set of joint-use features for more than one purpose allows each purpose to be served at less cost than the use of separate structures for each purpose. In addition, multiple-purpose development also allows that reservoir space or portions of it which is used for irrigation or power storage to be used at times for flood control. This multiple use of reservoir space is a further saving. It is a result of compromise and must be based on careful planning and operation.

The addition of a power plant, diversion works or pumping facilities may be required at a multiple-purpose project, but these are single-purpose features which can clearly be related to the purpose being benefited. Normally these single-purpose features will not serve any other purpose and can easily be identified and their costs charged to the proper purpose.

A single-purpose project is intended to be operated to serve only its designed purpose. Occasionally another purpose is served because of requirements in the Federal Power Commission permit, the coincidence of hydrologic events or the generosity of the project owners Thus, it may happen that a project built for power or irrigation purposes may have empty reservoir space to catch some flood waters at a time of great need This occurred at many power projects during the floods of December, 1955. Unfortunately, there is no assurance that this reservoir space will be available during a period of greatest flood peril—the project reservoir could just as easily be full at the flood peak as partially empty.

Planning a multiple-purpose project requires that sufficient reservoir space be provided on a basis calculated to permit the maximum economically justifiable retention of floodwaters, as well as the maximum conservation of water during wet seasons for later release for power, irrigation and municipal water supplies, maintenance of navigation, fish life, recreational benefits, salinity repulsion or similar purposes. Reservoir space must be allocated both as to annual cycle of use and quantity and must be guaranteed available whenever needed, otherwise a portion of the construction costs cannot properly be charged to the purpose. Only in this way can the financial and operating integrity of each project purpose be preserved. However, rather severe economic and engineering limitations govern not only how small each project should be to most efficiently utilize the water resource available, but also how large the project should be and which purposes can be economically included.

Although no generalization can completely apply to each project, in general the addition of flood control features or power features to a project ordinarily designed for irrigation can be highly advantageous to the project and vice versa. Although the total project costs will be increased, that portion of the total costs which is properly chargeable to irrigation will normally be smaller than the costs of an equivalent single-purpose project. As has been shown above, this results from dividing the costs of joint-use facilities among several project purposes In the end, flood control, power, irrigation or other benefits are all achieved at less cost than would be involved in building separate single-purpose projects.

The operation of this principle of project economics means that should the State choose to pay the costs of adding multiple-purpose features to a single-purpose local project, the addition of these features automatically benefits the local project. The exact size of this financial benefit, which can be considered a form of assistance to the local interests, will vary with each project and cannot be stated as a generalization. In some instances it may be sufficient to permit local construction of a project which otherwise would be uneconomic, because the full costs of a single-purpose project would otherwise exceed the financial capacity of the local interests or because only a multiple-purpose project is economically feasible at the particular site.

Project Benefits and Costs

The construction of any water resources project results in certain economic benefits which can be attributed to the creation of the project. The term "benefits" is defined to mean all identifiable gains, assets, or values, whether in goods, services, or intangibles, which result from the construction, operation or maintenance of the project. These benefits are divided into primary benefits measured in dollars which directly result from the project, or secondary benefits which are gains, assets or values other than primary benefits.

Economic costs include all identifiable expenses, losses, and liabilities, whether in goods, services, or intangibles which are incurred as a result of constructing, operating or maintaining the project. (There are also more limited meanings to these two terms because their computation involves consideration of many special and complex problems.) In general it is federal practice to require that primary benefits equal or exceed all economic costs before the project will be authorized for federal construction. This relationship of benefits to costs is known as the benefit-cost ratio

The purpose of determining the benefit-cost ratio is to assure that the investment proposed to be made in the project will be sound and will return more to the Nation's economy in goods and services than the total cost in goods and services required for its construction. Because units of government do not operate to secure a profit under normal circumstances, as does a business, the benefit-cost ratio serves somewhat the same purpose as a determination by a business that a proposed investment will return capital costs, operating expenses and a profit.

Failure of the project to show a favorable benefit-cost ratio is interpreted to mean that the project will, if constructed, result in a reduction of the total available national goods and services. A favorable benefit-cost ratio is a showing of economic feasibility for the whole project and not for each purpose. Obviously this principle has the same validity when applied to state financing of water resources development as it has for federal projects.

Project benefits are the sum of the benefits to be derived from each of the individual purposes to be included in the project. The determination of benefits from each purpose of the project forms the basis for establishing the proper or optimum size of the project, that is, the size at which the net benefits from all project purposes are at a maximum. At this size the total project benefits will necessarily exceed the total project costs by the maximum amount.

Cost Allocation

The preceding sections considered the inherent scope and possibilities in multiple-purpose project development and their effect on project benefits. They did not consider one of the chief problems, how to allocate the construction costs of multiple-purpose projects among the beneficiaries. Cost allocation would become a critical problem if the State of California were to assist local project construction by supplying funds for the addition of certain purposes to a project. State assistance need not subsidize good projects by contributions for fictional state-wide benefits, nor should local interests be required to stand the costs of benefits which are state-wide. A fair and equitable method of allocating project costs to each purpose is no simple problem. It is, however, essential to any cooperative program for project development.

Many different techniques have been developed and tried by the Federal Government in past years to allocate project costs, but most have been faulty in some respects. In May, 1950, the Subcommittee on Benefits and Costs of the Federal Inter-Agency River Basin Committee after extensive study recommended the separable costs-remaining benefits method for allocating construction costs to the various purposes of a project. This method is now widely accepted throughout the Federal Government. It is standard in all project planning by the Corps of Engineers, the Bureau of Reclamation and the Soil Conservation Service and is one of the cost allocation methods specified by Congress.

Essentially the separable costs-remaining benefits method of cost allocation for multiple-purpose projects is an attempt to develop an equitable and easily administered method of charging the construction costs of joint-use features of a project to each of the purposes served by the project. It is based upon general agreement that each purpose of the project should share equitably in the savings resulting from multiple-purpose construction and that the costs of joint-use features should be charged to each purpose of the project without regard to the ability of that purpose to repay such costs.

The separable costs for a particular purpose are computed by deducting the cost of the project without the particular purpose from the total cost of the multiple-purpose project They are not the cost of a separate single-purpose project, rather they are the cost of adding the purpose to the project, as closely as can be computed.

The separable cost for each purpose of the project is limited by a floor and a ceiling. The separable cost, itself, is the floor or minimum portion of the cost of the multiple-purpose project which may be assigned to the purpose. The ceiling or maximum cost allocated to the purpose is the alternative justifiable investment, that is, the largest alternative investment which can be justifiably expended for the purpose. After separable costs have been computed, the remaining multiple-purpose or joint costs are apportioned among the project purposes These joint costs are a portion of the costs of joint-use features of the project. No joint costs are added to a purpose which would cause the total of separable and joint costs to exceed the ceiling for the purpose.

Joint costs, being a residual attributable to all of the purposes included in the project are apportioned among the particular purposes of the multiple-purpose project in proportion to the excess of benefits over separable costs. By distributing project joint costs in direct proportion to the benefits of each purpose, the joint costs are fairly and reasonably related to those purposes which enjoy the most advantage from multiple-purpose construction and which are best able to repay such costs. The total cost allocation for each purpose is the sum of the separable cost for this purpose and its apportioned share of joint costs. Initial cost allocations for a project are made from preliminary designs during the project planning stage. After the project is constructed, a final allocation is made from the accounting records of construction costs. This is the basis for repayment of project costs.

A second method of allocating project costs is known as the alternative justifiable expenditure method. If differs from the separable costs-remaining benefits method only in that direct or specific costs of single-purpose features of a project are used instead of the separable costs. This results in a larger figure to be distributed as joint costs. It is considered desirable to keep joint costs at a minimum since they are the source of difficulty in cost allocation. However, the two methods are fundamentally similar and the alternative justifiable expenditure methods is considered acceptable whenever separable costs cannot be computed. Since the separable costs-remaining benefits method gives the best available allocation of costs to each purpose, it should be as preferable at the state level as at the federal level.

The separable costs-remaining benefits method of cost allocation has several distinct advantages for the State if it is to encourage construction of multiple-purpose projects by local interests. First, the method is peculiarly usable in California where the Water Code declares that the unappropriated waters of the State belong to the people. Since the method is based on the premise that the comprehensive development of water resources will benefit not only the local interests but the people of the State as well, and that the savings of multiple-purpose construction will be shared by the local interests and the people of the State in proportion to the benefits, it provides a framework for equitably apportioning the savings from multiple-purpose project construction between the State and local interests. Second, under this method of cost allocation, the local interests must normally receive some financial assistance in multiple-purpose project construction from the State at no extra burden to the State, because a ceiling on costs for each purpose is automatically provided which cannot exceed the cost of equivalent alternative sources. (This ceiling could well be a single-purpose project on the same site.) Because the actual cost allocation to each purpose is normally less than this ceiling, each purpose of the project should achieve some monetary saving. Third, the method inherently stimulates full analysis of multiple-purpose projects of maximum economic size. Fourth, the separable costs-remaining benefits method of cost allocation has equal validity irrespective of whether the State or local interests build a particular project. The allocation would be the same irrespective of who builds the project.

The method is not completely detailed and precise—it is open to some variation in its computation as almost any method would be. It cannot be assumed, therefore, that every application of it to each project would result in full agreement on the results. The theory, however, has received wide acceptance, and reasonableness will solve the difficulties which may arise during its application.

With this background of the nature of multiple-purpose projects, their benefits, and methods of cost allocation, it is possible to consider the form of financial assistance the State might provide. In so doing, the assistance which the State already offers to local interests in the construction of projects is important.

Existing Forms of State Assistance to Local Projects

At the present time the Department of Water Resources is already offering some assistance to local interests chiefly in the form of preliminary project planning, that is, collecting data on a watershed, selecting feasible project sites, and establishing project sizes and purposes. This also includes studies of the project to determine how well the project might fit into the over-all utilization of available water resources both in the local area and in relation to the California Water Plan. These studies are financed by the Legislature or jointly by the State and the local interests. The service these studies render to local interests is significant to them and is eagerly sought on occasions.

The District Securities Commission conducts a review of the planning and financing of local projects being constructed by irrigation districts. This analysis of district plans is partially at state expense. While a relatively minor cost item, it is nevertheless a significant economic review required by state law before bonds are issued.

Existing Federal Assistance to Local Projects

The 84th Congress passed Public Law 984, the Small Reclamation Projects Act, which provides for federal loans and grants to local interests so that they might construct, own and operate small projects whose main purpose is irrigation, with other purposes incidental. Projects which cost as much as $5,000,000 or projects which cost up to $10,000,000, provided federal assistance does not exceed $5,000,000, are eligible for assistance. The local interests must sign a contract for the repayment of reimbursable costs with interest (except irrigation interest. The Federal Government provides nonreimbursable grants for flood control, fish and wildlife and recreational features, but these features must be operated by the local interests in accordance with regulations of the appropriate federal agency having jurisdiction. Local interests must provide and finance the land and water rights for the project in an amount up to 25 percent of the project's reimbursable costs. Repayment of the reimbursable costs for power, irrigation, etc., must be made within 50 years with interest on the irrigation investment for any lands in a single ownership in excess of 160 acres.

Congress also passed Public Law 1018 which amends Public Law 566, 83rd Session, the Watershed Protection and Flood Prevention Act to permit the Soil Conservation Service of the Department of Agriculture to assist small projects on a basis somewhat similar to the Small Reclamation Projects Act.

The long established provisions of Reclamation Law provide several important advantages for federal construction of projects whether large or small. Chief among these advantages is interest free money for the irrigation features of a project. This is a major attraction to irrigation districts because a 40- to 50-year investment repayment period can result in interest costs equaling the investment cost of these features. In addition, Reclamation Law also permits revenues from power, municipal and industrial water and interest on power investment in certain cases to be used to repay irrigation investment beyond the repayment ability of water users. These subsidies frequently are large and make many projects economically feasible which could not otherwise be considered for construction. The justification advanced for such subsidies is that they assist the family size farm and expand the agricultural base of the nation. Because there are large subsidies per acre of irrigated land in reclamation projects, Reclamation Law restricts the acreage under one ownership which may receive project water (generally 160 acres).

Possible Forms of State Assistance to Projects

Bills recently considered by the California Legislature would have provided low cost loans to local interests for project construction. While loans with low interest rates may be helpful, perhaps saving one or two percent in interest charges for the local people, such loans are not particularly favorable when contrasted with recent federal legislation providing low cost loans, no-interest loans for irrigation features, and grants for nonreimbursable features. The above state legislation also contained a provision to protect the State's investment in a project by retaining title to the project in the State until the loan is repaid. In contrast, the Small Reclamation Projects Act provides for local ownership, operation and maintenance. Should the State retain title to a project, the State is bearing the risks of project construction and repayment, rather than the local interests, because the State is virtually obligated to continue operating the project at a loss should the local interests default on their repayment obligations.

Since federal legislation provides greater assistance to local projects than previously proposed state legislation, it sets a pattern which the State may want to follow. Thus, the State might provide grants for nonreimbursable features such as flood control, fisheries, wild life, and recreation on a pay-as-you-go basis while reimbursable costs for irrigation, power and municipal and industrial water supplies might be financed by general obligation bonds of the constructing agency.

A general obligation bond issue is the most apparent method of financing the reimbursable costs of state projects. When local interests are unable by themselves to finance the full costs of reimbursable project features, the State might lend the increment which the local interests cannot finance themselves. The amount of these loans should not be large and should not exceed several million dollars per year. The State might purchase bonds of the local interests which can be secured both by a second mortgage or project revenues and the power of assessment. Assessment powers are already possessed by California irrigation districts as required under federal reclamation law to guarantee repayment of irrigation costs. If the State were to buy only the bonds of local interests which could not be sold elsewhere, it would thereby leave full responsibility for the project in the hands of the local interests as well as assuring that they would be free to construct and operate the project. By this means the State would also be less likely to become involved in local problems related to the project or assume local responsibilities, nor could it be charged with removing local tax sources by placing them in state ownership.

By borrowing the reimbursable investment costs for irrigation, power, and municipal and industrial water supplies of state projects, the State would be able to use its available cash funds to pay for the nonreimbursable features of both state and local projects. This would spread payment for these nonreimbursable costs over the large numbers of people of the State who may benefit from the investment. These people cannot usually be reached by local organizations whose jurisdiction is smaller than that of either the State or Federal Governments There is no other source of money to pay for these nonreimbursable costs except the Federal Government, and in some cases, federal assistance may be limited by federal policy so that it will not fully cover the costs which the State may wish to allocate to nonreimbursable purposes. Funds for these nonreimbursable costs are needed relatively soon to stimulate multiple-purpose project construction and to supplement federal assistance where it would be most effective and in consonance with federal policies.

Although there are advantages to the use of state loans for reimbursable features of a project, there is also at least one important disadvantage. The extensions of state credit would tend to raise the interest rates which the State would have to pay, not only for water resources development bond issues but also for other issues, such as veterans' loans, schools, etc. There are already indications that the bond market may not support large new state issues with acceptable interest rates. An additional state indebtedness, perhaps as large as $1,000,000,000, over the next few years to pay for the reimbursable features of the Feather River Project (assuming federal assistance at Oroville and San Luis Units) represents a significant item for consideration, even though ostensibly this indebtedness is to be paid from project revenues and it not a direct charge against the General Fund or the taxpayers of the State.

The primary financial responsibility of the State is the Feather River Project. Its financial resources will be heavily burdened to accomplish that undertaking. Because substantial federal assistance is now available to local projects on terms more favorable than previously, the State's credit and financial resources would appear more properly to be employed for the Feather River Project.

As previously discussed, the State may wish to provide greater recognition of fishery, wildlife and recreational problems in view of the special interest these matters have to the people of California. While the Federal Government has recognized these purposes as nonreimbursable, generally only non-project costs for fish ladders, fish screens, picnic facilities, boat launching ramps, swimming areas, etc., have been allocated to these purposes. In a number of cases local interests have paid for additional features of this type beyond those included in federal non-reimbursable allocations. The State may wish to go further than federal practice and actually provide project capacity for these purposes by allocating both separable and joint costs to them. This could occur, of course, only if project water is to be used beneficially for recreation, fisheries and wildlife, and a water right for such purposes is secured. Such an allocation of both separable and joint costs to these non-reimbursable purposes would provide a further powerful stimulus to project construction and would further assist certain local interests in financing and constructing projects.

Allocation of separable and joint costs to fisheries, wildlife and recreation is practical because recognition of the recreational interests in the northern part of the State is necessary to secure a state-wide program. It is also socially and economically sound because recreation in all its forms related to water resources is not only an integral part of a highly valued way of life in the State, but is also a substantial source of earned income in many areas. These purposes are particularly difficult to evaluate in relation to the location of beneficiaries. People who utilize these facilities come from distant points and do not reside in the project area. It is established policy for the State to contribute funds to beaches and parks in behalf of these people. Financing for this purpose is already established which may be broadened to include water resources projects with recreational benefits. At the same time the proprietors and employees of local resorts, restaurants, hotels, etc., profit considerably from the business brought in, and should expect to contribute some costs to projects which enhance their business. It may be appropriate, therefore, when separable and joint costs of a project are allocated to fisheries, wildlife and recreation that the State contribute one-half of the allocation as a non-reimbursable cost and the local beneficiaries pay the other half. More information on this problem should result from the completion of a study by the Department of Water Resources which is being prepared by a consulting firm.

Further assistance may be offered by the State to local and state projects whenever the Department of Water Resources feels it is imperative that a needed project should conform to the California Water Plan but a project of such size and scope is beyond the present project needs or investment warranted for local interests. Such assistance would be intended to assure that the immediate construction of a smaller project will not impair the future optimum development of an irreplaceable site if such optimum development is essential to the future needs of the State or is an essential feature of the California Water Plan. In such cases the State might lend that increment of reimbursable project costs required to construct the project foundations to optimum size even though payment of interest and repayment of investment costs is not possible from project revenues in the immediate future. These advances to the project are normally reimbursable; therefore, the State would have to pay the interest on such advances until the project's markets increase sufficiently to produce revenues from the capacity thus provided. At that time, the project should begin repayment of the full investment costs and assume responsibility for the full interest payments. There would thus be no repayment charge against either a local project or a state constructed project for the additional cost of constructing the project to optimum size. The interest foregone would in effect be paid from available state funds as a payment from today's generation to preserve values for the future generations who would actually repay the investment costs as they benefit from the project.

In summary, state assistance would be available to both state and locally constructed projects as follows:

1. Continuation of the existing program for state investigations of watersheds and preliminary planning of projects.
2. Financial and economic review of local projects by the Districts Securities Commission as a prerequisite to issuing bonds.
3. State grants from current revenues and funds for nonreimbursable costs of flood control, fisheries, wildlife, recreation and perhaps irrigation drainage.
4. State borrowing for reimbursable costs of state projects and taking a second mortgage on local projects for that portion of reimbursable costs which local interests cannot finance elsewhere.
5. State grants for one-half the allocated separable and joint costs when water rights and reservoir space are provided for fisheries, wildlife and recreation features.
6. Interest-free loans for increments of project capacity required to permit conformity to essential requirements of the California Water Plan.

It may be helpful to note a number of examples which illustrate various aspects of the financing arrangements discussed above.

1. Cougar Dam, Oregon. The Cougar Dam on the McKenzie River is primarily a federal flood control dam with a height of 430 feet and a gross storage capacity of 210,000 acre-feet. The City of Eugene proposes to develop the dam's hydroelectric power facilities. Anticipated benefits from the project are flood control 63 percent, power 23 percent, irrigation 10 percent and other 4 percent. The cost of both the project and its power are relatively high. The cost of developing such power will be approximately equivalent to an alternative single-purpose project. However, because project sites are limited, the construction of a multiple-purpose project on the site is a substantial gain for the region.
2. Cherry Valley, California. The United States, the Turlock and Modesto Irrigation Districts and the City and County of San Francisco have signed an agreement for the latter to construct the Cherry Creek Dam with a storage capacity of 268,000 acre-feet on the Tuolumne River. The City of San Francisco and the two irrigation districts will both revise their existing projects on the river and change their operation to provide additional flood control storage By 1959 they will complete the construction of the new Don Pedro Reservoir to a capacity of 1,200,000 acre-feet with a flood control reservation of 340,000 acre-feet. The Federal Government is achieving a higher degree of flood control than was possible under its original plan at no additional cost, while the water conservation interests will be served and fully coordinated with flood control.

3. Russian River, California. The United States is now constructing the Coyote Dam on the East Fork of the Russian River. This dam is part of a plan by the U. S. Corps of Engineers for ultimate development of the waters of the Russian River at an estimated cost of $42,460,000. The present construction, based on current needs, will include channel stabilization works and the Coyote Reservoir with a capacity of 122,000 acre-feet, of which 48,000 acre-feet will be reserved for flood control, 4,000 acre-feet for siltation and 70,000 acre-feet for conservation storage to provide releases for domestic, industrial and agricultural uses and to augment summer flows for fisheries and recreational purposes. The method used by the Corps of Engineers in allocating costs is not revealed in available data, but the estimated first cost will be $17,150,000 of which the federal portion will be $11,522,000 and the local portion $5,598,000. The Corps of Engineers and Congress determined that the federal interest in the conservation of water in addition to flood control features of the project justified an assumption of 40 percent of the water conservation investment by the Federal Government, leaving the remaining 60 percent or $5,598,000 to be prepaid by the local interests through a bond issue. Sonoma County has authorized a second $8,500,000 bond issue for the necessary local water distribution system. Of special interest is the fact that the recreational industry along the Russian River will be one of the principal beneficiaries of the project and is contributing substantially to the local payment.

Irrigation Subsidies

The financing techniques discussed in the preceding pages for projects to be constructed either by local interests or the State do not contain any subsidy to a special group of project beneficiaries. If it is the desire of local people that certain portions of the revenues from local projects be used to finance local government or to repay the costs of irrigation facilities, this is a local concern.

In the case of the Feather River Project and other state constructed portions of the California Aqueduct System, the situation is different. Some subsidy to irrigation appears to be required. The State has already proposed that the Bureau of Reclamation construct the San Luis Unit and that the State operate that unit under provisions of reclamation law, which has the effect of providing large subsidies to irrigation water users for that portion of the Feather River Project. About 120,000 acres, or one-quarter, of the San Luis service area is owned by the Southern Pacific Railroad and about 75 percent of the total service area is in land holdings in excess of 160 acres. The practical problems of acreage limitation which the State will face in operating that portion of the project will be great.

An even more difficult problem will arise in other parts of the State served by the Feather River Project, but particularly in Kern County. In these areas there are no local interests which support a Bureau of Reclamation project. There will be no justification for the State to operate under reclamation law. Instead, the State will have to formulate its own policies with respect to subsidy for irrigation.

It is already clear that the Feather River Project will need all the revenues it can secure. It follows, therefore, that a state policy which denies water to excess land holdings in accordance with reclamation law will decrease the demand for water, decrease project revenues, and thus increase the need for state subsidy from nonproject sources. On the other hand, if the State were to subsidize irrigaton water users irrespective of land holdings, it would also require large sources of nonproject revenue. The present state plans for the Feather River Project provide sufficient capacity for all lands in the service areas If, however, the owners of large acreages are not interested in developing them, and keep their land holdings outside of irrigation districts, the ability of the State to repay project costs will be seriously impaired Irrigation subsidies can result in large unearned increments in land values and shifting of project costs of as much as several hundred dollars per acre without equivalent cost to the beneficiary. Therefore, subsidies to more than 160 acres in a single ownership have been considered objectionable by certain farm organizations because the total benefits to large land holdings were felt to be excessive. At the same time, in California, where large farms are prevalent and efficient to operate, an acreage limitation higher than 160 acres is frequently urged. Recently federal reclamation law has been liberalized in certain instances to allow landowners to receive water on lands in excess of the acreage limitation provided that full costs of the water are paid. Congress has considered this reasonable, but its acceptability to large landowners and its ultimate effect are unknown. The Southern Pacific Railroad has even suggested that landowners who wish to pay in advance their fair portion of the irrigation investment be permitted to do so. Any reasonable method of irrigation repayment or prepayment in which a fair portion of the costs of bringing water to lands in excess of a reasonable acreage would, of course, be beneficial to project revenues.

The size and extent of any acreage limitations is an important consideration not only as public policy but also because it directly affects the amount of money which the State must provide to make up deficiencies in project revenues resulting from irrigation revenues foregone or beyond the capacity of water users to repay. If this state subsidy is too large, it can become burdensome upon the state fiscal structure, or more significant, any state policy which is substantially more liberal than Reclamation Law may remove the Bureau of Reclamation from the irrigation construction picture in California and transfer the burden of federal reclamation to the State. Irrigation water users naturally will not favor construction of projects by the Bureau of Reclamation if state construction contains more subsidy or greater benefits. Without the support of local interests for a bureau project and their willingness to repay its reimbursable costs, there is no basis under Reclamation Law for the bureau to build a project. The use of power or municipal water revenues to repay irrigation costs is no burden on state revenues and may be expected to occur. Therefore, the burden undertaken by the State in behalf of the irrigation water users of the Feather River Project or other state constructed projects would appear to be largely predetermined by current federal policy to be the payment of interest on the costs allocated to irrigation.

The financing techniques discussed here would not require large outlays of cash by the State at any one time; in fact, the State's cash expenditures would be relatively moderate and designed to be applied where the least money would provide the greatest benficial and stimulating effect. Because no allocations of cost for any state projects or local projects are available in published data and the size or type of federal assistance on the Feather River Project is not known, no figures on the actual costs of such a state financing program can be computed with any exactness at this time.

FINAL REPORT ON INVESTMENT OF STATE FUNDS

November 15, 1956

The Joint Legislative Budget Committee in its meetings on July 26 and November 2, 1956, considered two progress reports on the investment of state funds. At the conclusion of the meeting of November 2, the committee instructed the Legislative Auditor to transmit copies of the second progress report to the Governor, Director of Finance, State Treasurer, and State Controller with the request that they each review the report and indicate to the Legislative Auditor within 10 days whether they wish to report further upon the matter under consideration and to indicate any recommendations or comments which they might have with respect to the recommendations contained in the report.

The committee also instructed the Legislative Auditor to send a copy of the report to the Attorney General and the District Attorney of Sacramento County with the request that they review the report and make available to the committee any information which in their opinion should be submitted to it. In this case also, a reply was requested within 10 days.

The Legislative Counsel was requested to undertake to prepare conflict of interest legislation for possible introduction in the 1957 Session of the Legislature.

Pursuant to instructions from the committee, letters were addressed to the Governor, Director of Finance, Treasurer, Controller, Attorney General, and District Attorney of Sacramento County. Statements have been received from the Governor, Director of Finance, and Controller indicating that they have no further statement to make to the committee at this time. The State Treasurer submitted a letter commenting upon the recommendations contained in the report of the Legislative Auditor. A copy of this letter is attached to this report as Exhibit A.

Although no written report has been received from the Attorney General, he and other members of his staff have indicated to the Legislative Auditor that a study is being made of the report. The District Attorney of Sacramento County has replied with a letter which is also attached to this report as Exhibit B. In this letter the District Attorney notes that statements in the report indicate that both the Kirkpatrick Mines Co. and Mr. Johnson might have committed misdemeanors in transacting business in California during the time that the company's franchise was forfeited. The District Attroney indicated further, however, that the one year statute of limitations had run on these transactions about January 6, 1954. Pursuant to the receipt of this letter, the Legislative Auditor advised the District Attorney, by telephone, of the fact that the report also indicated the renewal of an option by Kirkpatrick Mines Co. in December, 1955. The District Attorney agreed that he had overlooked this fact and said it would appear that the statute of limitations has not yet run as to this matter. He further advised the Legislative Auditor that he felt that it would be necessary for someone to file a complaint with the City Prosecutor of the City of Sacramento in order for any prosecution to take place. He based this on the fact that the transactions apparently took place in Sacramento, which is a charter city having its own prosecutor.

It should be pointed out that Section 23303 of the Revenue and Taxation Code states:

> "* * * The jurisdiction of such offense shall be held to be in any county in which any part of such attempted exercise of such powers, or any part of such transaction of business occurred, and the district attorney of the county must prosecute such offense."

In view of this and also for the reason that the Attorney General has indicated that he is reviewing the report of the Budget Committee and has indicated in press statements that he has also accumulated additional data by means of an independent investigation on the part of his staff, it is recommended that the committee take no further action with respect to the disposition of the information produced by our office. It is recommended, however, that all information obtained in the making of this inquiry be made available upon request to either the Attorney General or the District Attorney.

In concluding this report it should be pointed out that this specific inquiry was initiated by charges made by the State Treasurer of improper influence on the part of the Governor in respect to the making of bank deposits. While the nature of these charges indicated to the committee the need for a full survey of the investment function, including the responsibilities of the various state officials, special reference should be made to the verification of these specific charges. Attempts were made to secure from the State Treasurer additional information beyond that reported in the press as to the factual basis upon which his charges were made. The report presented to the committee contained all of the information received from the Treasurer pursuant to this request. This consisted of one letter addressed to the committee in which the Treasurer stated that he had been misinformed as to the relationship between the Governor and one bank official. Affidavits were obtained from all banks which had had deposits of state money during the period under reference stating that no state officer other than the Treasurer or an employee of his office had offered to take any action which would assist the bank in obtaining a deposit of state funds. The Governor testified before the committee that he had never discussed the matter of the deposit of state funds with any person at any time.

On the basis of these statements, therefore, we are reporting to the committee that we find nothing to support the charges made by the State Treasurer concerning the Governor.

EXHIBIT A

OFFICE OF THE TREASURER
SACRAMENTO 9, CALIFORNIA, November 14, 1956

MR. A. ALAN POST, Legislative Auditor
Sacramento, California

DEAR MR. POST: With reference to your letter of November 7, 1956, with particular reference to your paragraph II, "Recommended Changes in Investment Program," I have the following comments:

I. Basic Question Relating to Management Responsibility

1. In reading the statement of fact and recommendations contained in pages II-1 to II-6 inclusive, it is apparent that these recommendations are made on the assumption that the creation of the Pooled Money Investment Board in 1955 by Section 16480.1 of the Government Code was sound and represented the most efficient method for the investment of a certain portion of temporarily idle surpluses in the State and the deposit of state funds in banks.

2. Most of the responsibilities and functions referred to by you in your recommended changes in the investment program are predicated upon the assumption that a three-man board consisting of the Controller, Treasurer, and Director of Finance, can more efficiently operate in the zones referred to in your report that could the Treasurer's Office as a single agency with full management responsibility.

3. In spite of the above, it would seem to me that a more efficient operation for the State would follow if full and complete management responsibility was vested in the office of the Treasurer without the necessity of the assistance of board action.

4. As I said above, there are no doubt many reasons unknown to me why the Treasurer should share jointly the responsibility now vested in the Pooled Money Investment Board rather than being given sole management responsibility for functions which to me seem properly vested in the Treasurer's Office. But before specifically commenting on your recommended changes in the investment program as set forth in your pages II-1 to II-6, inclusive, I felt I should at least raise the basic question mentioned above.

II. Comments on Your Recommended Changes in the Investment Program, Assuming the Existence and Continuance of the "Pooled Money Investment Board"

1. I concur with your recommendations on pages II-2 to II-4, inclusive.

2. Special Fund: I concur with your recommendations on page II-5 except that until such time as a final and legal directive on the right of special funds (other than those already covered by constitutional law) to participate in earnings of interest or balances, the surplus money investment law be maintained to provide a separate investment program, separate and apart from the pooled money law, and that the increment on all pooled money be credited to the General Fund.

3. Centralized Trust System: I concur with your recommendations on page II-5 except that I point out that at present pooled money is money that is "in the Treasury" and, of course the money of the centralized treasury system or trust system is money in trust with the Treasurer subject to agency control. This circumstance, I assume, is probably the major legal obstacle preventing the handling of the centralized trust money in the same manner as the money of the pooled money investment act.

(a) It would seem to me that so long as a proper accounting is maintained to reflect the cash accountability to the centralized trust system, investment of both types of funds could be directed under the pooled money investment law. Notwithstading this, it should be noted that there is still under this procedure a solution to be found which will support the legality for the expenditure of the trust money for investment purposes in the same manner as pooled money is now paid out, namely on Controller's warrants drawn on money "in the Treasury." If these problems can be resolved, then your proposal would certainly produce a more simplified method of investment management.

4. Deposits: I concur with your recommendations contained on page II-5, subject to my comments in my paragraph I above, and with the exception that I think in the light of the balance of your recommendations, the Pooled Money Investment Board rather than the Treasurer should determine which of several banks should have active or demand accounts.

Yours truly,

A. RONALD BUTTON
State Treasurer

EXHIBIT B

November 8, 1956

HONORABLE A. ALAN POST, Legislative Auditor
Sacramento, California

DEAR MR. POST: This will acknowledge receipt of your letter of November 2, 1956, enclosing copy of your Progress Report on Investment of State Funds.

In your letter you request that I advise you as to whether there is any information relating to this report which should be brought to the attention of the committee. In this regard I might say that I have no information whatsoever concerning the operation of the State Treasurer's office or concerning Mr. Johnson's private affairs; hence, I am in no position to enlarge upon what is contained in the report.

I note in the report it is stated that the right of the Kirkpatrick Mines Co. to transact business in California had been forfeited during most of the time the company did business with Transamerica Corporation. Under the provisions of Sections 6800 and 6803, both the corporation and Mr. Johnson would be guilty of a misdemeanor in transacting business under the circumstances stated. However, the prosecution for a misdemeanor is barred by Sections 801 and 1426a of the Penal Code unless the complaint is filed within one year after the commission of the misdemeanor. Your report indicates that the Transamerica dealings with Kirkpatrick Mines Co. were concluded about January 6, 1953, which, of course, is long past the one year statute of limitations.

Hoping this is the information you desired, I am

Very truly yours,

J. FRANCIS O'SHEA
District Attorney

PRINTING DIVISION, SACRAMENTO, January 14, 1957

Hon Arthur A. Ohnimus, Chief Clerk
Assembly, California Legislature
State Capitol
Sacramento 14, California

DEAR MR. OHNIMUS: On page 124 of the Assembly Journal for January 8, 1957, we observe House Resolution No. 15 being offered by Messrs Hawkins and McCollister and relating to printing extra copies of interim committee reports and binding them in one volume at the end of the 1957 Regular Session

This practice is being followed for Senate reports and 250 copies are processed. It would be our suggestion that the reference to the Senate reports be eliminated from the resolution, and that the quantity be increased to 250 copies, the same as presently being produced for the Senate.

The 250 quantity will provide for copies for each Member of the Legislature, the Legislative Budget Committee, the Legislative Auditor-General, the Legislative Counsel, Archives, Press, etc.

The 100 quantity mentioned in the original resolution would not permit distribution to all Members of the Legislature, and does not appear realistic in view of the needs if this project is entered into.

We would also like to request that early consideration be given to passing the resolution, in order to avoid reprinting any interim committee reports. At the present, we only have one Assembly committee report in the plant, which will not be printed for several days, and it may be that a decision will be reached before this report goes to press.

Yours very truly,

PAUL E. GALLAGHER, State Printer

MOTION TO EXTEND PROVISIONS OF HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 15

Mr. McCollister moved that the Rules Committee be given authority in carrying out the provisions of House Resolution No. 15 to be given latitude to encompass the suggestions of the State Printer.

Motion carried.

Mr. Gaffney moved that Dr. Menninger's remarks be ordered printed in the Journal.

Mr. Elliott seconded the motion.

Motion carried.

OUTLINE OF THE REMARKS OF WILLIAM C. MENNINGER, M.D.

I. Introduction

A. A great honor to myself and those I represent at The Menninger Foundation and the State Hospital System of Kansas.

B. Much humility, the more so because this story would be much better told by Senator Frank Carlson or his successor, Governor Ed Arn, or by our Director of Mental Institutions, Dr. George Jackson, or, probably, most effectively by my brother, Karl—who has given the vision and guidance and energy more than any other person.

C. No personal gain for me in this privilege but

1. Enormous responsibility to attempt to interpret this hinterland of medicine—mental illness.
   (In contrast to the enormous strides of cancer, heart, polio, etc. These are public supported; only mental and TB are state supported.)
2. Weighing what I may say with the thought that it might influence what could and should happen for more than 37,000 human beings in mental hospitals in California—and many thousands to come.

II. Now a New Era of Hope That This Situation Won't Long Continue

A. The evidence includes many things
1. The gracious invitation for me to be on this rostrum as an indication of your deep concern.
2. The experience in Ohio: Budget for mental hospitals raised from 70 million dollars to 91 million dollars; 5 million dollars for three training centers; raised salaries; bond issue of 75 million dollars for mental hospital construction.
3. The superb leadership by the press and other mass communications to alert an intelligent public about the need.
4. The response of the public in terms of deep concern about our years and years of man's inhumanity to man.
5. Awareness of our leaders in our state hospital work.

B. Things have been happening elsewhere too—"They Go Home in Kansas" The Reader's Digest story.
1. Our pride and satisfaction that
The mental hospital population of Kansas is down 16.5 percent in contrast to an average increase of 15 percent in the model reporting area of 15 states.
2. Even with our hospitals not yet adequately staffed, 74 percent of our new admissions go home, most of them within six months.
3. Probably the only state hospitals in the Country that don't have a long waiting list.
4. Possibility that we will never have to build additional beds —though we do need replacements for buildings constructed in the 1870's and 80's.

C. My assumption is that my function here is to tell you the story about this change.
What the situation was, why and how it came about, and what we are trying to do about it.
With the hopes that perhaps the experience may be helpful to you, in your momentous deliberations on how to improve the mental hospital status in the State of California.

III. The Background of the Story—quite personal

A. The story of father and the beginning of the clinic:
B. Even in private practice, our special satisfaction in the small program of training and research.
C. Personal experiences in the war with manpower shortage and the lack of knowledge.
D. 1945—Karl's concern with the VA—and then Bradley-Hawley request for training at Winter VA Hospital.
E. The organization of the private practice into the non-profit foundation, to do research, training and prevention.
F. The development of the training program and the research program, beginning with 100 doctors—the suggestion of 25 and the enforcement of 100. (Now nearly 500 have had training with us.)

IV. The Recent Evolution of Our State Hospital System

A. 1948—The initial rumblings of the "revolution".
   1. The legislator whose relative was neglected in the state institution, and then became aware of the amazing program at Winter Veterans Administration Hospital.
   2. The new economy-minded Superintendent of the Topeka State Hospital who cut out expensive drugs and time-consuming examinations—with the resignation of three of the five doctors, one of the two nurses and the only psychologist.
   3. Some accidents and the beginning interest of the press—which then became a state-wide crusade.
   4. Self-mobilization of the Mental Hygiene Society, the American Association of University Women, the League of Women Voters.

B. The status of the Topeka State Hospital at that time (we have three)
   1. Over 1,800 patients in antiquated buildings to house 1,500.
   2. Two psychiatrists, neither of whom had had training.
   3. 60 out of every 100 patients admitted remained indefinitely —most for life.
   4. Per diem allotment per patient of $1.06, ranked us as forty-seventh out of the 48 states.
   5. Most new admissions housed in jails for days or weeks before they could be admitted. (And like cancer, the longer treatment is withheld, the less chance for recovery.)

V. What Was Done About It?

A. Governor, now Senator, Frank Carlson appointed a committee—Dean of the Medical School, President of the State Medical Society, a member of the Senate, a member of the House and my brother Karl.

B. Their recommendations to buy "brains" (staff) before "bricks" and to establish a training program.

   At his time a public health survey indicated the need for an additional 3,800 beds for the system. Not built and 38 million dollars saved.

   In my brother's words, "Many patients will get well in a barn if you give them the right doctors and the right treatment. We don't want them to live in barns but staff and treatment must come first."

C. The staff of the Menninger Foundation was called upon to establish a training program under my brother's direction—Everyone aware that this would be a long-time and slowly developing process.

D. Senator Carlson put it up to the Legislature—the press helped —public citizens groups helped—the legislators and their wives visited the sorry, decrepit hospital.

   What did they see?

   Men endlessly pushing mops on an already over-polished floor.

Gloomy wards with old rocking chairs lined up against the wall.

Beds in the halls and mattresses on the floor at night.

Uniform and drab, ill-fitting clothing.

Inadequate and ill-prepared food, unattractively dished out—3 different diets.

Patients cooped up for days on end—or literally herded in large groups on to park benches.

The wide use of physical restraints—strait-jackets all over the place, untrained and often uncouth and brutal prison guard-like attendants.

VI. And Then What Happened?

The Legislature acted with a 60 percent increase in the budget in 1949; 118 percent more in 1951; in 1955—3 times what we spent in 1948.

My brother and our associates undertook the responsibility to begin to recruit a professional staff, and set up a training program.

In addition to doctors—psychologists, social workers and nurses, occupational therapists were recruited and trained.

The number of attendants was doubled, and their salaries were doubled—replacing the dull and the inept.

The Rockefeller Foundation gave us funds for a three-year special school for training psychiatric aides.

50 Consultants were engaged—from the County Medical Society.

Patients began to see dentists for the first time.

Wholesale orders for eye-glasses—300 pairs.

Occupational and recreational programs were started.

Fire escapes were installed.

A patients' canteen was constructed—until 1954 the only new construction.

The development of a very extensive volunteer system, through the help of citizens of the community—the Junior League established and manned the canteen.

Most important: Creation of an attitude toward, philosophy about and understanding of mental illness on the part of—

The Legislature, citizenry, relatives—and most importantly, the professional staff and the patients.

An attitude whereby patients can learn through relationships with the staff that people do care about them; that they can and will get well.

To make this possible necessitates the provision of financial, political and public support—with the absence of political pressures on the professional staff, changes of administration from year to year, constant budgetary threats.

And doctors began to see patients

Within two years the TSH population dropped from 1850 to 1500. Today population is 1318—26 percent reduction.

Approximately 300 patients had no homes to which to go. Placed through the Social Service.

Since 1949, 739 patients discharged who had been in residence in the hospital for 10 years or more—128 for 20 years or more.

66 out of 71 bed-ridden oldsters in one section of the hospital got out of their beds within a year and stayed out. A high percentage of so-called senile can be helped, and need not be in the hospital.

Stories of Human Interest:

In 1952, Time magazine carried the story of a small, white haired woman who had perhaps been hospitalized for mental illness longer than any other known person—a patient at the Topeka State Hospital. She had entered the hospital at the age of 13 on June 27, 1882, three years after the hospital was opened By 1952, she had been there 70 years. Her only response to questions was "when can I go home?" She was discharged last year, 86 years old, 73 in the hospital.

One of the patients whose case was reviewed when new staff were brought in was a Dane who had been in the hospital for 19 years. Hospital officials weren't certain the man had ever been psychotic. He was sent back to his family in Denmark, after making newspaper headlines around the world.

Woman—20 year mute, now a practical nurse.

VII. What Has Happened Since and What Are the Results?

In 1952, the people of Kansas voted an increase in personal property tax of ½ mill to provide a permanent hospital building fund for replacement of beds

In 1953 the Legislature removed the hospital from political patronage and provided for a psychiatrist to direct the institutions at twice the governor's salary.

During the five years 1948-1954 admissions increased from 987 to 1,497. The number of first admissions increased 21 percent while the other states in the model reporting area showed only a 19.2 percent increase.

The development of the five year plan of training—to aid in staffing out-lying hospitals.

OPD—Children's Service.

The "Saving" to Kansas in dollars and cents. $300 less per discharged patient in 1956 compared to 1948.

Saving from 3,800 beds not built—$38,000,000.

VIII. The National Picture

A. The tragedy is that in every state we are so far behind in doing what we should for these people—the most neglected health field in our nation.

1 Incident wise

Number of hospital beds—700,000—more than half of all hospital beds.

Army statistics—mustered 89 fighting divisions; lost the equivalent of 166 more divisions because of personality problems.

Psychosomatic diseases—50 percent of all patients of all doctors.

Problems of industry—absenteeism, accidents, alcoholism.

Incidence in our school system—"547 drop out" out of every 1,000.

Delinquency and crime—all time records and on increase.

Addiction—3,800 00 problem drinkers, plus narcotics.

2. The manpower shortage—Have 8,000 but should have 18-20,000.

1 psychiatrist to 311 patients in mental hospitals.

We have only 27% of community clinics needed

3. The paucity of finance for research—3 cents of the medical research dollar—Total about $7,500,000.

4. The enormous financial cost.

A third of our national health bill—$1,200,000,000.

The item in each state budget—usually next to highways is largest—and the job done so inadequately.

On election day 1954—750 million dollars voted in five states for more beds—beds that can't be staffed.

The manpower loss—plus the taxes on these should-be-workers.

5. The public understanding—reflecting this neglect.

The stigmatization of patients—even after they have recovered.

The lack of any real understanding in the daily lives of people about emotional first aid or mental hygiene.

The struggling little groups of earnest citizens in our communities in the mental hygiene societies.

The struggle of the National Association—contrasted to cancer, heart, polio.

IX. Suggestions Regarding the California State Hospital System

Before making any suggestions I want to commend you for the very gratifying progress that has been made in the California Mental Hospital System during the recent years. Although your admissions have continued to increase, the total population has been held to a proportionately much lower level than even five years ago. Your percentage of recoveries has increased in gratifying fashion. You have been fortunate to have the leadership of Dr. Walter Rapaport and I hope, for your sakes and the sake of 45,000 patients in your institutions, that he will be permitted to give continued guidance to the further improvement of this program. I take the liberty of making the following suggestions towards this further improvement.

1. Give the chance to more patients to recover: The great majority of mentally ill patients can get well IF we provide treatment for them—the probability of recovery is higher than in almost any other group of illnesses.
2. Establish priorities: Give first priority to buying more "brains"—the professional staff to provide treatment; the second priority to buying "bricks."

   California's status, with one doctor for every 132 patients is not adequate to provide "the chance" for all the patients. If every physician worked 200 hours a month this ratio would allow less than two hours per patient per month. The supporting staff or psychologists, social workers, adjunctive therapists and attendants needs to be proportionately increased.
3. To provide training: Extend present, and establish new, training programs for every type of personnel needed, accepting the fact that the teaching hospital will provide better treatment. Only by the provision of trainees to supplement staff can enough professional personnel be afforded.

   Recognize the fact that training is a slow process and that it will be difficult to build a faculty of stature. Many trainees won't stay with you afterward, but they will provide good treatment for patients while they are there.

   You are rich in medical schools in California, in contrast to many other states. At least three of them have no responsibilities in terms of state mental hospitals. If the Department of Psychiatry in each medical school could be persuaded—and subsidized—to form a close working relationship with the state hospitals and use them in training and research, it would be an enormous boon to the treatment program of such state hospitals.
4. Increase salaries: Professional salaries will almost surely have to be increased considerably.

   Most of your physicians are paid $10,000 a year. Your highest salary is $14,000. My impression is that very few, if any, psychiatrists in private practice make less than $15,000. Right or wrong, many make twice or three times this figure.

5. Outpatient Clinics: While the Department of Mental Hygiene includes seven outpatient clinics in the State, none are maintained at state hospitals. It is an established fact that mental hygiene clinics can greatly reduce the number of admissions and they are essential for good follow-up treatment after discharge. Every state hospital should have such a clinic.
6. Research: With a budget of 80 million dollars for this past year, you invested $37,000 to begin a Department of Research. The request in the new budget raises this amount to $200,000. Progress in any field of science requires research in order to to do a better job—whether in creating an atomic bomb, or Salk vaccine. Every business executive knows this. Why don't we apply the same principle to this—one of the largest businesses in the state?
7. Community Services: While it has nothing to do with the Mental Hospital System, I want to strongly endorse a plan which I understand will be presented to you—a Community Mental Health Services Act, based on a program now in effect in New York State. This seems so vital to me because it alerts the intelligent members of the community to develop the very vital and needed diagnostic treatment facilities at local level and at local direction. Such services provided in the community—where patients are treated intensively on a short term basis—can prevent many patients from ever having to enter a state hospital, and greatly reduce the number of patients who must be removed from their own communities, with the resultant rehabilitation problems the patient faces in coming back to a community with which he has lost contact.
8. Inform the Public: Inform the citizens of the State about the facts and problems. It is my conviction that the public, once informed, will want—indeed insist upon—changes.
9. Attitude of Optimism: I place the greatest emphasis on the creation of the attitude discussed above—that even with brains and bricks, people have the best chance to get well, IF with the support of the Legislature and the citizens, we can create in our mental institutions an atmosphere of understanding, confidence and optimism.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

Budget Message by Governor Goodwin J. Knight, 1957-58 Budget

To the Senate and Assembly of the Legislature of California:

I submit the Budget for the State of California for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1957, and ending June 30, 1958, in compliance with the provisions of the State Constitution.

State finances are currently in excellent condition. Revenues have again exceeded our estimates. We have again been favored with greater prosperity than our economic advisers dared forecast a year ago. By reason of the greater revenues and some substantial savings in expenditures, the carry-over surplus available for general purposes will be considerably greater than anticipated. This carry-over surplus, when added to the revenues estimated for the year, will finance the recommended expenditures without an increase in tax rates or new revenue measures.

This is a budget for another year of progress by a State coping with the problems of a continuing great growth in population and an expanding economy. The recommended expenditure programs have been developed with the objective of providing a high standard of public service with the greatest possible economy.

Revenue Estimates

In all but one of the past five years the budget revenue estimates for the General Fund have proved to be too conservative, as the following tabulation will show:

	Original Estimate *	Actual Receipts	Difference
			Amount	Percent
1951-52	$638,579,659	$734,025,725	$95,446,066	14.9
1952-53	742,396,513	773,977,227	31,580,714	4.3
1953-54	803,835,183	798,083,615	—5,751,568	—0.7
1954-55	822,168,251†	879,122,544	56,954,293	6.9
1955-56	856,548,435	1,005,040,608	148,492,173	17.3

* Adjusted for estimated effect of revenue measures adopted by the Legislature

† Includes $19,418,604 received as a result of the United States Supreme Court decision regarding tideland oil royalties.

I should like to emphasize that the differences were due to unforeseen economic developments, rather than poor workmanship in estimating.

You can see that being too conservative or too optimistic by but a few percentage points can make a difference of a good many millions of dollars.

This years' estimate, as in previous years, has been made in the light of a very careful appraisal of the economic situation, after consultation with economists representing industry, utilities, banking, the Federal Government and universities, at conferences held both within the State and nationally. There is a general unanimity of opinion that there will be a further moderate increase next year above the present high levels of income and business volume. I submit the estimates for the 1957-58 Fiscal Year with assurances that there have been diligent efforts to make them dependable forecasts, and that by no means are they intentionally over-conservative.

Expenditures

Total Expenditures—All Funds

The expenditures for the 1957-58 Fiscal Year as recommended, including the estimated fixed charges, total $1,947,964,993, an increase of $119,580,110 or 6.5 percent, over the estimated expenditures of the current year. The greater part of the increase is required by the inexorable demands of growth. A relatively small part is attributable to proposals for improvements in standards. I have already discussed in the message delivered to you last week the major policy matters which involve budget considerations. I shall briefly review them here. You will find more detailed explanation in the budget schedules.

State Operations

Higher Education

The heaviest increase in State Operations is for higher education. Enrollments in the state colleges are projected to grow from 47,331 this year to 54,190, an increase of 6,859 students in just one year. Expenditure requirements for the state colleges are recommended at $40,329,827, an increase of $6,277,549, or 18.4 percent, over this year's total.

For the University of California, enrollments for next year are estimated at 42,559, an increase of 2,876, or 7 2 percent. The universitys' operations will require, in addition to its own revenues, State appropriations of $82,304,685 for the 1957-58 fiscal year—an increase of $6,766,880, or 9 percent.

Highway Patrol

All right-thinking people are aroused by the frightful record of traffic accidents. Those who have given this great problem serious study are unanimous in their recommendations that one of the most important needs in combating it is increased patrolling of the highways. Accordingly, this Budget makes provision for adding 370 uniformed men to bring its total force to 2,434. This is the maximum increment which can be recruited and trained in the time available. This addition in manpower, with related auxiliary costs, will increase the total operating budget for the Highway Patrol from $22,153,875 to $24,837,414.

I am recommending that in order to expedite this badly needed increase in the patrol, a deficiency appropriation be submitted immediately to provide funds so that 100 of this additional force can be recruited and put into training at the earliest possible time during the current fiscal year.

Mental Hygiene

Appropriations aggregating $92,195,419, an increase of $7,931,148, or 9.4 percent, are recommended for the operations of the Department of Mental Hygiene, its hospitals for mentally ill and mentally retarded, and its clinics and research centers. A substantial part of this increase is for improvements in medical and nursing staffing. Included also is a recommended fund of $200,000 for the beginning of an organized research program. We can take a great deal of satisfaction in California's forward-looking mental hygiene program.

Improved treatment methods have resulted in such a significant increase in therapeutic releases of patients from the hospitals that we are now in a position to reduce our forecast of new hospital beds required. We can point to good evidence of the realization of the prediction that improved medical treatment would result in economies in the long run.

Natural Resources

Provision is made for stepping up the activities of the Department of Natural Resources, especially of the Division of Forestry, for which an increase of more than $2,000,000 is proposed as the first step in the implementation of the 1956 Fire Plan adopted by the State Board of Forestry. A substantial increase is also proposed for the Division of Beaches and Parks, with its rapidly growing park system.

Fish and Game

The budget for the Department of Fish and Game is continued at approximately the present level. Your attention is directed, however, to the fact that the revenues under present license fee schedules will not continue to sustain the present expenditure program, and that some adjustments are necessary in order to keep the Fish and Game Preservation Fund solvent.

Water Resources

Appropriations aggregating $8,395,001, an increase of $1,717,552, are recommended for the newly created Department of Water Resources, including provision for the State Water Rights Board and the State Water Board. Our water development program has now reached the point where an effectively organized and staffed Department of Water Resources is an absolute necessity. The Budget and the organization plan for the new department and its related boards have been developed after very thorough study, both by the Department of Water Resources and by the Department of Finance.

Other Items

The above constitute the items of major expenditures and greater increases. Other items which deserve special comment and your particular attention are:

Board of Equalization: Provision is made for intensified work by the Division of Assessment Standards, for increased assistance to county assessors and for more complete property assessment sampling work. Increase in staff for the Sale Tax Division is also recommended, primarily because of the work brought on by the Uniform Sales Tax Law relating to county and city sales taxes.

Department of Justice: Increased staff is proposed in the Attorney General's office and in the Division of Criminal Identification to meet greater workloads.

Industrial Relations: Much needed additions to the staffs of the Division of Industrial Safety and the Division of Industrial Accidents are recommended in order to meet a serious backlog as well as an increase in current workloads.

Corrections: The Department of Corrections will require an increase of $1,773,499, approximately 6.7 percent over the current budget of $26,560,880, to carry on its program.

Youth Authority: The Youth Authority will require an increase of $1,403,030 for a total of $11,817,771. The principal purpose of this rather substantial augmentation is to activate new facilities which will be ready for occupancy during the 1957-58 fiscal year.

Motor Vehicles: The Department of Motor Vehicles will require a substantial increase in its budget, primarily to keep pace with heavy workload increases, but also to permit more effective driver license examinations and expanded driver-improvement activity, in order to deal with the increased number of drivers involved in accidents and the expanding law enforcement program.

Athletic Commission: The admissions-tax revenues from boxing and wrestling matches have fallen off so seriously that some adjustment will be necessary to keep this self-supporting activity solvent

Salary Adjustments: The budget includes funds to carry out the recommendations of the State Personnel Board, whose report indicates quite clearly that a general increase in state salaries approximating 5 percent will be necessary in order for State pay levels to keep pace with those prevailing for compararble employment in private industry and other governmental jurisdictions A sufficient amount is included for special salary adjustments. Provision is made for a similar increase for the University of California. I recommend, also, your consideration of the need for adjustments in the salaries of elective and appointive officials.

Capital Outlay

The 1957-58 Budget for Capital Outlay is the greatest in the State's history. Almost one-half billion dollars will be required for the following capital outlay programs:

State Buildings	$175,840,642*
Beaches and Parks	15,297,978†
Wildlife Conservation	2,111,941
District and County Fairs	2,764,189
State Highway Program	248,206,640
Water Development—Feather River Project	40,100,000
Flood Control Projects	3,410,000

* Including $50,000,000 from the State Construction Program Bonds
† Includes funds for 1960 Winter Olympics

State Building Program

We are continuing to budget for state buildings in accordance with the five-year program. It has been necessary to make revisions, however, to give effect to increased construction costs and to accelerate the timing of certain projects, primarily those relating to higher education, so as to meet increased enrollment trends Here again higher education presents the heaviest need, with more than $90,000,000 recommended for state colleges and some $23,000,000 for the University of California.

Residence Halls

In addition to the classrooms and related campus facilities, the Budget proposes an outlay of $17,181,800 for student residence halls for all of the state colleges and at least one such facility for the University of California. There has been a long delay in providing residence halls for students on state college campuses A thorough study shows without question that our system of state colleges cannot function properly without providing living quarters for students who come from long distances The only equitable alternative would be to provide a state college in every community The study indicates that the rentals charged the students should be sufficient to amortize approximately half the cost of the residence halls The proposal to use proceeds from state bond funds for this purpose is made with the definite understanding that student rentals will be such as to repay the State for at least one-half the bond service costs, and will be pooled for that purpose.

Other Projects

Other important features of the building program include $11,500,000 for the new medium security facility for the Department of Corrections, a badly needed state building in San Bernardino, more than $19,000,000 for state hospital structures for the Department of Mental Hygiene; and $1,082,895 for the State's share of constructing another group of armories for the Military Department

Bond Funds

It is recommended that $50,000,000 of the newly authorized State Construction Program bonds be issued to meet a portion of the cost of this program, the remainder to be financed from current revenues This is in accordance with the plan of financing recommended when the $200,000,000 bond issue was proposed; that is, that the bond funds be allocated over the remaining four years of the five-year building program to supplement funds from current revenues. We plan to schedule bond sales in such manner as to minimize interest costs.

Beaches and Parks

The amounts shown for Beaches and Parks are in line with the five-year plan of acquisitions and improvements previously submitted and generally included in the approved 1956 Budget Act The amounts shown for 1957-58 for acquisitions are the estimates of the outlays which will be accomplished in that year. Improvement projects are those of highest priority.

Included along with the Beach and Park Program is the estimate of expenditures for facilities for the 1960 Winter Olympics.

1960 Winter Olympics

The Legislature has already appropriated $5,000,000 to finance the construction of facilities in Squaw Valley to accommodate the VIIIth Winter Olympic Games which are scheduled to be staged there in 1960

Since the matter was last before the Legislature, the California Olympic Commission has concluded that instead of providing temporary facilities merely for the special use of the 1960 Winter Olympics, it would be advantageous to establish this area as a permanent winter-sports facility for the benefit of our citizens and winter sports athletes everywhere.

I concur in this recommendation, and I further recommend that in order to carry out this objective state-owned facilities in Squaw Valley be incorporated into the California State Park System, and that following the Winter Games in 1960 these facilities be operated under the jurisdiction of the State Division of Beaches and Parks, either directly or through concessionaires.

In order to finance the construction of permanent facilities and to incorporate them into the State Park System, it is estimated that an additional $2,500,000 will be necessary. It is my recommendation that this money be made available. This should be done as an urgency appropriation so as to avoid any delay in a very tight time schedule. It is my firm belief, however, that much of the money already appropriated, and that which I hope will hereafter be appropriated for this purpose, will be returned to the State Treasury over a period of years through revenues derived from the use of these facilities, so that the cost to the State will thus be minimized.

I am confident that great honor will come to California as the result of our being hosts to the winter-sports athletes of the world, and that this opportunity to contribute to international good will will oversbadow the direct economic benefits we shall derive from this effort.

Feather River Project

In the Budget submitted a year ago I recommended funds for the initial phases of the Feather River Project as a definite commitment to go forward with the full project as rapidly as possible. I suggested that if sufficient progress were made by the time of your convening in January, an additional appropriation should be made as an urgency measure. Such progress has been made, and there will be before you an urgency bill to appropriate $25,190,000 to construct those portions of the Feather River Highway and the Western Pacific relocations in the reservoir site which can be started immediately.

For further uninterrupted progress I am recommending in this Budget for the 1957-58 Fiscal Year appropriations totaling $38,019,300 for the next phases of the project which you will find fully detailed at page 1349.

I propose that these appropriations be made from the State's share of the moneys derived from oil and gas production from the Long Beach tidelands. I further recommend that the entire amount now accumulated in the so-called Investment Fund from this source, together with the amounts to accrue to this fund in the 1957-58 Fiscal Year, approximately $164,000,000 in all (including the above recommended appropriations) be transferred to a special fund dedicated specifically to water development. There can be no more urgent or more appropriate use of these moneys.

Even this rather substantial sum is, of course, only a relatively small part of the outlay which must be made for the full accomplishment of our needed water development.

Flood Control

The heavier expenditure for this segment of flood control costs is accounted for largely by increased outlays for the State's share of the San Joaquin River Flood Control Projects. Under Local Assistance for Flood Control you will find a considerable reduction in the amounts needed for this particular year.

Other Capital Outlay Programs

The other programs for Capital Outlay listed above are projected at substantially the present year's level. It should be noted that in addition to the 248 million dollars of state funds for highway construction and improvements, more than 134 million dollars in federal funds will be available The total program approved by the Highway Commission therefore amounts to almost 383 million dollars.

Local Assistance

The State's obligation for financial assistance to counties, school districts, and other units of local government continues to make up the largest of the three main sections of the State's budget. The total of all local assistance for the 1957-58 Fiscal Year is estimated at $964,825,469, which is 49.5 percent of the State Budget and involves a total increase of $29,685,337 over the expenditures for the current year.

Subventions for Education

School Apportionments: The largest single expenditure item is state aid to the Public School System, estimated to require apportionments aggregating $498,630,621 in 1957-58—an increase of $37,714,936.

Representatives of the public schools point out that there has been no per pupil increase in the amount of state support since 1953; that the entire burden of meeting higher unit costs has fallen on the local property taxpayers; that most school districts have been required to exceed the normal maximum tax rates fixed by statute; and that many districts are encountering serious financial problems in maintaining proper educational standards. I have a very real sympathy with the plight of these districts. There can be no doubt that in many areas school enrollments are increasing at far greater rates than is the value of the taxable property in those areas. I am sure that a good case can be made for financial relief derived from a tax base which is broader than the property tax. You may be assured of the full cooperation of this administration in your consideration of this extremely important problem.

Child Care Centers

I am recommending and anticipating that you will extend the Child Care Center Program which under present legislation would expire June 30, 1957. Provision is contained in the Budget for $4,604,048 to continue this now well-established program for the 1957-58 Fiscal Year.

Subventions for Social Welfare

The subventions for Social Welfare will require $150,099,569 in 1957-58. This includes the State's share of the Old Age Security, Aid to Needy Children, and Aid to the Blind Programs. The largest of these is the $106,345,350 required for Old Age Security.

The 1956 Federal Social Security Act amendments provide federal funds for a new program, Medical Care to Public Assistance Recipients, to begin July 1, 1957.

Federal money is to be provided separately from the existing sharing formulae as follows:

(1) ½ of costs up to an average of $6 per month for each adult recipient
(2) ½ of costs up to an average of $3 per month for each child recipient
(3) ½ of the administrative costs incurred by state and local agencies

Enabling legislation must be adopted at the 1957 Session to make the federal funds available in California. The basic unmet need of these people is medical care. This federal legislation opens the way to make this highly desirable improvement in our programs for the aged, blind and needy children. Your favorable action on the necessary state legislation has my most hearty recommendation. You will observe that our summary statement of the General Fund includes a reserve of 14 million dollars which can be applied to meet the State's share of this badly needed addition to our Social Welfare Program.

Subventions for Flood Control

As pointed out under Capital Outlay, there is a substantial reduction in 1957-58 requirements for subventions for flood control, which total $7,064,000, as compared with $16,485,575 for the current year. The State's share of meeting the Los Angeles County Flood Control District's requirements are at the more normal level of $2,859,000, as compared with the $11,695,075 allocation for 1956-57.

Other Subventions

Subventions for public health, roads and highways, and other purposes are generally projected substantially at current levels. Fortunately there is no necessity to repeat the $14,500,000 appropriation for storm and flood damage repair enacted at your last session.

I direct your attention to the proposed appropriation of 3 million dollars recommended on an urgency basis during the current fiscal year to meet the cost of the special poliomyelitis vaccination program.

State Financial Situation

I am pleased indeed to be able to submit to you another budget which can be financed within the existing revenue structure without increased tax rates or additional revenue measures. Our higher level of prosperity has made this possible, since our major tax sources are geared to business volume and income levels.

A few years ago it would have seemed incredible that our State Tax System would be called upon to support an annual budget of almost 2 billion dollars. Even with our anticipated high revenue yields, we must recognize that our estimated outgo from the General Fund will exceed income for the year by $84,500,000 * and that we must draw upon the carry-over surplus to meet this current deficiency. The Budget as proposed will leave intact the Revenue Deficiency Reserve Fund of 75 million dollars in addition to a modest unappropriated surplus in the General Fund.

If our economic situation continues at present trends, and if there are no substantial additions to the State's expenditure program, there appears to be a good prospect of continuing for still another year beyond 1957-58 without the necessity for new revenue measures. A projection of General Fund income and outgo through the Fiscal Year 1957-58 as proposed by this budget and through the following year 1958-59, as shown in the following tabulation, indicates the narrow margin of approximately $25,000,000 by which revenues would fail to meet expenditure requirements after exhausting the carry-over surplus. New or additional taxes for the 1958-59 Fiscal Year could probably be avoided, either by drawing upon reserves or by making some adjustment in expenditures.

ESTIMATED FINANCIAL OPERATIONS OF THE STATE GENERAL FUND
(Projected through 1958-59, in millions of dollars)

Outgo:	1956-57	1957-58	1958-59
State Operations	$343.7	$401.8	$452 3
Capital Outlay	86.0	112.5	51 3
Local Assistance	693.9	741.5	787.0
Total Outgo	$1,123.6	$1,255 8*	$1,290 6
Income	1,088.2	1,171.3	1,240.0
Surplus (—Deficiency) of Current Revenues	—35.4	—84.5	—50.6
Prior Year Surplus	145.7	110.3	25 8
Year End Surplus	110.3	25.8	—25.2

* Includes $14,000,000 reserved for medical care for recipients of public assistance.

There are too many uncertainties to enable us to forecast with accuracy so far into the future. This projection is conservative and makes no provision for any substantial additions to the State's expenditure program. There are a great many forces tending to increase state expenditures at far greater rates than the revenues are likely to expand. A most careful and continuous scrutiny of our expenditure program is essential if excessive state tax burdens are to be avoided

I welcome your careful review of this Budget and I offer my full cooperation to aid you in its consideration.

Respectfully submitted.

By Mr. Hansen:

Relative to designating State Highway Sign Route No. 1 as the Cabrillo Highway

WHEREAS, John Rodrigues Cabrillo's role in California history is significant in that his course paralleled that of State Highway Sign Route No. 1, which course ran from San Diego north through Port San Luis, Morro Bay, Estero Bay, San Simeon, Monterey to Mendocino; and

WHEREAS, The designation of State Highway Sign Route No. 1 as Cabrillo Highway would have romantic appeal to vacationers as well as to our own citizens, thus bringing economic as well as cultural benefit to our State; and

WHEREAS, A name such as Cabrillo Highway stimulates more interest than Highway No. 1 and is more easily remembered by tourists because of its uniqueness as compared with the common number designation which most highways in our Nation carry; and

WHEREAS, The naming of Cabrillo Highway is based on the belief that in California, as in America, we should be reminded of our greatness, our vitality, and resourcefulness which stems from hardy, courageous, pioneer stock like John Rodrigues Cabrillo who possessed the vision to explore new horizons, thus giving us today the heritage of which we are so genuinely proud; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That the Department of Public Works is requested to name State Highway Sign Route No. 1 Cabrillo Highway and mark such highway with such name at frequent intervals along its entire length; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly is directed to transmit a copy of this resolution to the Department of Public Works.

Eternal God, Our Creator and Sustainer, Who hast set us upon the earth and chosen us to live in this particular place, in this hectic and hurried age, amid so many perplexing problems; send forth Thy quiet wisdom that we may discover Thy purposes for us and by Thy calm strength may accomplish the same. Grant, O Lord, that as we live our lives day by day we may be less concerned with velocity and more concerned with direction, that we be less interested in altitude and more interested in stability, that we seek less to be in constant motion and seek more to have constant motives: through Jesus Christ, Thy Son, Our Lord.—AMEN.

COMMUNICATIONS

The following communication was presented by the Chief Clerk, and ordered printed in the Journal:

THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, January 15, 1957

Hon. Arthur A. Ohnimus, Chief Clerk
State Assembly, California Legislature
State Capitol, Sacramento 14, California

DEAR MR. OHNIMUS: This letter is written in response to Assembly House Resolution No. 112 of March 30, 1955, wherein the Assembly requested the Board of Regents to investigate the feasibility, desirability and practicability of establishing a branch of the University at San Diego, whether by expansion of the present institution at La Jolla or by creating a complete new branch, and requested a report thereon to the 1957 Regular Session of the Legislature.

After thoroughly canvassing present educational facilities and projected requirements for keeping educational programs in the San Diego area in step with the rapid growth of the population, and after appropriate investigation of the needs and desires of civic, industrial and educational groups in the San Diego area, the Regents of the University have concluded that it is feasible, desirable and practicable at this time to expand the present institution at La Jolla with the goal of providing a well-developed graduate school for instruction and research in science and technology. The Regents have, therefore, endorsed a program for graduate instruction and research to be focused on basic and applied mathematics, physics, chemistry and the earth and biological sciences, together with such undergraduate instruction as is essential to support the graduate program. Initially, only upper division students qualified to major in the sciences would be admitted, and the number of undergraduates would not much exceed the number of graduate students.

Within a period of 10 years, 450 graduate students may be expected under the expansion program, in addition to the 75 graduate students already provided for in the approved five-year program of the Scripps Institution of Oceanography, which would become a part of the expanded La Jolla Campus. To accommodate these students, it would be necessary to carry out a program of capital improvements, to increase the faculty and staff, and to create extensive curricula in science and technology. It is not anticipated that state funds will be required for land acquisition since most or all of the land required for the expansion program, in addition to present University holdings, would be supplied by gift from the City of San Diego. It may be expected that an institution of the type envisaged will receive substantial support from industrial and private donors as well as government contracts. Already, for example, General Dynamics Corporation has made one million dollars available to The Regents for support of the expanded La Jolla Campus.

The proposed initial budget for capital improvements, planning and staff for 1957-58 to be sought from the State at the 1957 Regular Legislative Session was approved by The Regents at their meeting of December 14, 1956. The total requested is $420,000, including $370,000 for capital improvements and $50,000 for initial elements of the faculty and supporting staff. It is hoped the Legislature will take the necessary action to appropriate funds for this initial budget at this Session in order that the program for the expanded campus can get under way during the 1957-58 Fiscal Year.

The Regents are requesting the initial appropriation and general approval of the expansion plan in the belief that a first rate, publicly-supported institution dedicated primarily to science and technology is needed immediately in the San Diego area, and will be an urgent requirement for State and National needs by the time the program gets well under way.

Yours sincerely,

ROBERT G. SPROUL

Congratulating Chas. Brown & Sons, of San Francisco, on that firm's centennial

WHEREAS, This year of 1957 marks the One Hundredth Anniversary of the opening for business of Chas. Brown & Sons, of San Francisco, and that firm will fittingly celebrate the occasion throughout 1957; and

WHEREAS, The store, one of the seven establishments that have been in business in San Francisco for a full century, was founded in 1857 by Charles Brown, and, at that time, specialized in such items as water pails, mining pans, and tin roofs; and

WHEREAS, The firm, like the city in which it has become a respected institution, has survived such tribulations as the Fire and Earthquake of 1906, both World Wars, the Great Depression and its predecessors, and has, through enlightened management, kept pace with the times by changing its line of products from one chosen to serve the gold miners of 1857 to one well calculated to meet the desires of today's homemakers; and

WHEREAS, The company serves as a prime example of the stability and endurability that can be attained by an enterprise that is managed with foresight and integrity; and

UNANIMOUS CONSENT REQUEST TO PRINT QUESTIONS IN JOURNAL

Mr. Lowrey asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent that the following self-propounded questions be ordered printed in the Journal:

QUESTIONS BY MR. LOWREY

With reference to AB 100, an emergency appropriation of $25,200,000 to start the relocation of highway and railroad routes in preparation for a start on the Oroville Dam, the importance to the State cannot be over-emphasized. While some contend that all policy has been established and questions involving this momentous project have been answered, many of the legislators and a vast horde of the voters of California still feel that some of the most important and vital questions regarding this project have not been answered, as follows.

Has planning advanced sufficiently to commit the State to a program which may result in from three to four billion dollars in repayments?

Can the State's financial structure stand such a gigantic enterprise? Will the State's credit be involved to such an extent as to preclude needed developments of other vital water projects? Is it wise to expend millions to relocate utilities when, by simply defeating a bond issue by a vote of the people to finance the capital costs, the whole project could be stalled?

Have details been worked out for operation of the project so that the best interests of the majority of the citizens of California will be protected? Are public agencies going to be given preference for use of the power output? Is there to be an acreage limitation in the service of water to prevent the amassing of fortunes through land speculation at the expense of California taxpayers?

Would construction of the Feather River Project be an obstruction in our lifetime to other phases of the State's 12 billion dollar water plan? If the areas of deficiency get water from the Feather River Project, what is to prevent that part of the State losing interest in helping to finance other urgent additional water projects needed in Northern California? Will the San Joaquin Valley farmers have the assurance that they will get water?

What is the price they would have to pay per acre foot? Would the area south of the Tehachapi insist on a one-price system making costs for agricultural uses prohibitive? Do we have sufficient evidence to assure us that the decision of the State Department of Water to develop the massive Oroville Dam is the most economical plan as compared with a system of several smaller dams, one of which would be the million acre foot Bidwell Bar Dam which has great power potential and would have prevented the Yuba City flood in 1955?

Is the proposal to lift water over the Tehachapi Mountains requiring five times more power than the Oroville Project would produce the best method of getting water to Southern California? Where do we have recorded that proper consideration has been given to proposals to meet the needs of the south by a system of exchange such as accomplished by the Central Valleys Project? Might it not be better for the Federal Government to develop the Feather River and hence take advantage of interest-free money available to reclamation projects and of federal basic laws settling in advance water and power policies?

Would it be more reasonable to satisfy Southern California water needs by tapping the Eel, Klamath, and other extreme north coast rivers and digging a tunnel along the coast thus aiding in eliminating the areas of origin and other allied controversies? Should a Northern California Water District be created with power to build multiple purpose projects and authority to sell water and power to Southern California or any agency which might want them?

Has the State received any assurance whatsoever that the Federal Government would put up a substantial sum for the construction of the Oroville Dam as a flood control project if the State builds it? Is it not possible that the hopes of the proponents for $100,000,000 of federal assistance could eventually develop into a far less amount and add further chaos to the financing problems of the Feather River Project?

Representing the Senate was Senator Jess R. Dorsey of Bakersfield, who was subsequently replaced by Senator John Thompson of San Jose.

A letter dated February 14, 1956, from Mr. A. E. Snider, Chief of the Division of Fairs and Expositions, notified the membership of the committee of a meeting to be held in Room 415, State Capitol, Sacramento, at 10 a.m., March 12, 1956.

All members of the committee were present at the meeting March 12, 1956, Mr. Fred Links representing the Director of Finance.

An election of a chairman and vice chairman was the first order of business. Assemblyman H. W. "Pat" Kelly of Shafter, was named chairman; W. C. Woxberg, Secretary-Manager of the Thirty-fifth District Agricultural Association, Merced, was elected vice chairman.

At this meeting there were questions and discussions on the procedure to be taken to classify fairs.

Mr. Snider stated that it was his opinion that the group was primarily a study committee. That his office had not had sufficient time to prepare statistics because the necessary personnel for doing the work was busy with fair budgets.

He stated that it would require approximately 30 to 60 days to compile the information requested by the committee.

It was decided to hold the next meeting on May 14th and 15th in Fresno, California, that city being nearest the center of the State.

On April 5, 1956, Assemblyman H. W. "Pat" Kelly addressed a letter to Mr. A. E. Snider, Chief of the Division of Fairs and Expositions, requesting information as to the purpose, intent and scope of the committee.

Herewith is a copy of the reply to Assemblyman Kelly's questions: (Copies were sent to each committee member).

Assemblyman H. W. "Pat" Kelly
Box 1166
Shafter, California

DEAR PAT: In your letter of April 5, you requested that I have prepared and forwarded to you and to the members of the Fairs Classification Committee information about the committee's activities, limitations, scope and possible recommendations. Members of the staff and I have been studying your request and have come to some conclusions after consulting with the legal adviser of the Department of Finance, and with the officials of the Future Farmers and 4-H organizations.

Since this is the first year of the committee's existence, I believe that the task it faces will be more difficult because of the newness of the project; there are many factors to consider, some more tangible than others, and there will doubtless be dissatisfaction in some quarters with whatever the committee decides.

However, it is my opinion that the committee should carry out the mandatory provision of Section 92.8 of the Agricultural Code and classify the fairs as soon as possible. It was the intent of the statute, I presume, to lay the foundation for eventual revision of the annual apportionment formula, but since no reference is made to this in the present statute, I do not feel that it should come up for any determination.

Your first question reads as follows: "Will it be necessary for each fair to select and appoint a delegate prior to October 15, 1956, and for you to call an election in each area in November of 1956 either to rename or elect new members of the Classification Committee?" The answer, according to the legal advisor, is "yes."

Your second question reads: "Is it the intent to make available $3,000 for the Classification Committee expenses and travel * * * ?" The answer is "yes"; $1,500 is set up for the 1955-56 Fiscal Year and $1,500 for the 1956-57 Fiscal Year for travel expenses of the committee members. Budget division approval must be obtained in order to spend the money for purposes other than travel expenses. The second $3,000 set up by Senate Concurrent Resolution No. 1 is for expenditure by the two legislative representatives under procedure applying to joint interim committees.

"To whom shall the committee make its report on the classification of fairs?" The statute is silent on this. The committee should determine to whom the report should be made, according to the legal adviser. (It could be made to the Governor, the Director of Finance, and the Legislature.)

"When shall such report be made?" The committee should decide this; the statute again is silent on this.

"What date is the expiration date of the committee?" The statute does not provide a termination date although it provides for annual appointment of new members. Members serve until their successors are appointed and qualified.

"How many meetings do you contemplate will be necessary to fully understand and evaluate the statistical material being prepared for the committee by your office?" Probably one later this year; it would be preferable, I believe, if the committee could classify the fairs at the May meeting and make any revisions or adjustments at the second meeting at the close of the fair season.

"In your opinion would it be necessary to establish three standards of premiums for each class of fair, such as Special Feature, Sectional and Regional?" We believe that two premium scale ranges would be sufficient to cover the intents and purposes of the three types of fairs as proposed.

Premiums are awarded primarily to assist in defraying the extra expense to the exhibitor at the fair. Such items as transportation, loss possibilities, labor, attendants and length of the fair increase the cost of exhibiting. However, the size and intrinsic value of the animals or articles being exhibited will have an influence on the amount of the premiums to be offered.

The two premium scales we propose would be as follows:

Range 1—Premium awards in amounts the same as now allowed in the Master Premium List would be provided for all Sectional fairs and those classes in the offerings of Special Feature fairs not covered in Range 2.

Range 2—Premium awards in amounts in excess of Range 1 maximums but not in excess of those allowed by the State Fair (and/or the Grand National Livestock Exposition for livestock) would be provided for all regional fairs and those classes coming under the specific feature product or products at special feature fairs.

"Have you discussed, and if not, will you learn the attitude of each breed association in beef, dairy, sheep, goats and swine of the possibility of restricting exhibitors to certain fairs, such as sectional fairs and/or their attitude toward open classes at regional fairs?" Information has been requested from these associations.

"Has your office interviewed and ascertained the views of 4-H leaders, the Bureau of Agricultural Education and the Future Farmers of America relating to sectional fairs and regional fairs?" Mr. Byron J McMahon, Chief of the Bureau of Agricultural Education and Mr A. D. Aulenbacher, 4-H Club Specialist of the University of California, have referred us to the first paragraph on page 19 of the Assembly Interim Committee Report, Volume 17, No. 5, which reads as follows:

> "It leads also to the desirability of a limit to the number of fairs in which juniors should participate. In general, it has been recognized that there is much good to be derived from participation in the junior's own district or county fair; in the State Fair for those in Central and Northern California; or the Los Angeles County Fair for those in the south; and in one of the two major junior livestock shows—the Cow Palace or the Great Western. These three events appear, in general, to the leaders of the junior groups, to be adequate—there is no present formula or legislation which can actually limit juniors to such a pattern."

"If you have learned of their desires, is it possible that if regional fairs were created the 4-H and F. F. A. in regions not now exhibiting at regional fairs may expect to do so, thus increasing the exhibit load for regional fairs?" It should be expected that fairs designated as "regional" will attract a greater participation by F. F. A. and 4-H exhibitors if participation is promoted within the "three fair" policy presently advocated by F. F. A. and 4-H leaders. Nearly all fairs now limit the area from which entries are accepted in the junior department. Extension of the limit to include an entire region of the State will open these fairs to an exhibitor potential not heretofore available.

Trusting this information will be helpful—(if there's anything else we can provide, please call on us)—I am,

Sincerely,

/s/ A. E. Snider

The committee met in Fresno May 14th and 15th, at which time Assemblyman Kelly resigned as chairman, as it was the opinion of the Legislative Counsel that he could not serve as chairman of the committee.

W. C. Woxberg was elected chairman; Roy Welch was named vice chairman.

Folders, containing statistical data, were distributed to members of the committee by a representative of the Division of Fairs and Expositions. Information included the following:

Exhibit A—Population of agricultural districts as of 7-1-55.

Exhibit B—Ratio of reported admission to grounds to the population of the agricultural district or county.

Exhibit C—Net operating expense—adjusted, 1955 fairs.

Exhibit D—Operating balances, 1955 fairs.

Exhibit E—Operating revenues.

Exhibit F—Operating expenditures.

Exhibit G—Maintenance and temporary structures, 1955 fairs.

Exhibit H—Revenue—related to attendance expenditures to attract attendance.

Exhibit I—Exhibit entries.

Mr. Sloan, of the Division of Fairs and Expositions, said he had more figures but did not have time to have them typed up; these figures included the period 1949 to 1955. Mr. Snider asked if the committee would like to have these figures. The chairman stated they should be sent to each member of the committee. To date this has not been done.

Each segment of the statistical information was carefully scrutinized by the committee. Most of the first day was spent in analyzing this information and discussing its relative value to the fair industry.

(1) It was agreed, that as a whole, it is impossible to determine with any degree of accuracy, the population of the area as served by the fair.

(2) Reported admission to grounds is not a reliable figure, as there are 13 fairs that do not charge an admission; there were some fairs obviously out of line in one direction or the other.

(3) Exhibit C—Net operating expenses.
Exhibit D—Operating balance.
Exhibit E—Operating revenues.
Exhibit F—Operating expenditures.
Exhibit G—Maintenance and temporary structures.
Exhibit H—Revenue related to attendance—expenditures to attract attendance, and Exhibit I—Exhibit entries.

Each of the above should be a factor in classifying fairs, however, the amount of points or percentage of value of the individual items was, and is difficult to determine.

It was agreed that statistics of one single year would not be a fair and equitable basis for classifying fairs. Unusual conditions might prevail in a certain district, such as extremely hot or cold weather, rain or windstorm, which reduces attendance, requires extra expense, and has the effect of decreasing revenue to the fair.

It was decided to tentatively define fairs as follows:

Regional: A large fair, geographically situated whereby it attracts a large number of exhibitors. It is a presently established fair of not less than 100,000 paid admissions, with a total outside gate of $50,000 or more.

Special Feature: A fair that pays more than 50 percent of its premium money as a special feature for agriculture, livestock or industry.

Sectional: Local in nature and is limited to the area served by the fair.

It was decided that the information for classifying fairs be based on the 1953-54-55 audit reports or other official records as may be available.

Representatives of the Division of Fairs and Expositions stated they did not have the personnel nor the time to devote to obtaining all the information requested by the committee. A subcommittee was appointed to work out a method of obtaining the required information. Members of the committee were: A. E. Snider, Chief of the Division of Fairs and Expositions, Roy Welch and W. C. Woxberg.

The subcommittee met twice prior to September 13th, 1956.

Mr. T. H. Mugford represented the Department of Finance.

At this meeting, the Fairs Classification Committee, after careful consideration of all factors included in the legislation establishing the committee, set up a grouping of all district and county fairs, into: Regional, Special Feature, and Sectional.

The committee designated four geographical areas of the State as regions; one fair in each of these areas to be known as a regional fair, such designation being based on size, efficiency and scope of operations and potential growth.

The Four Areas:

1. Northern Region.
2. San Francisco and Central Coast Region.
3. San Joaquin Region.
4. Southern Region.

At this time it was the consensus of the committee that no fair in the Northern Region presently qualified for the standards established by the group.

Classified as Regional Fairs Are:

San Francisco and Central Coast Region—Santa Clara County Fair, San Jose.

San Joaquin Region—Fresno District Fair, Fresno.

Southern Region—So. California Exposition, Del Mar.

1. Oakland Flower Show, 1st District.
2. Santa Barbara Horse Show, 19th District.
3. Great Western Livestock Show, 48th District.
4. San Mateo County Fair, San Mateo.
5. San Francisco Flower Show, San Francisco.
6. Lodi Grape Festival, Lodi.
7. Merced County Spring Fair & Livestock Show, Los Banos.
8. San Benito County Saddle Horse Show, Hollister.
9. Lassen County Fair, Susanville.
10. Marin Art and Garden Show, Ross.

Sectional Fairs:

The remaining 60 fairs.

The committee wishes to point out that there is a wide variance in the size and scope of the fairs within each of the three classes, more particularly however in the special feature and sectional classes.

The committee recommends that further study be given before any breakdown of the three groups be undertaken. There are borderline cases in all three classes.

The committee recommends that sectional fairs be broken down into at least three groups. It is suggested that there be approximately 15 of the larger fairs in the first group; 20 medium size fairs in Group 2, and 25 smaller fairs in Group 3. Some of the committeemen believe that there should also be a fourth group established.

Special Feature Fairs:

Within the scope of Special Feature Fairs, there are large and small livestock shows, flower shows and horse shows.

Time has not permitted the committee to give the required study of further breakdown of this class.

It is recommended that legislation be introduced to broaden the power and scope of the Classification Committee.

The committee has classified fairs to the extent called for in the bill, AB 2886, with the understanding that the method of, and the actual classification of all fairs, shall apply only to the year 1956.

The committee recommends that the Budget for the year July 1, 1957, to June 30, 1958, contain the amount of $5,000 to be used for research in order that a more comprehensive study be made.

Respectfully submitted,

FAIRS CLASSIFICATION COMMITTEE
W. C. WOXBERG, Chairman

RESOLUTIONS

The following resolution was offered:

By Messrs. Meyers and Bruce F. Allen:

Relative to the Southern Crossing

WHEREAS, Studies (including those of Smith, Barney & Co., consultants to the Department of Public Works, and of the Division of Bay Toll Crossings of the Department of Public Works) relative to the financing of the Southern Crossing with the design now specified by statute indicate that it cannot be financed with a 25-cent toll on the existing Bay Bridge and on the Southern Crossing; and

WHEREAS, Any increase in the tolls on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge and the Southern Crossing will constitute a serious hindrance to transportation and to the industrial and residential growth and development of the entire Bay area; and

WHEREAS, The incurring of a debt for the Southern Crossing in such amount as would cause a toll increase would reduce the amount of investor money available for financing a rapid transit system for the San Francisco Bay area; and

WHEREAS, Many civic, industrial and labor groups have expressed opposition to any additional bay crossing which will result in higher tolls; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That unless the California Toll Bridge Authority can give assurance that the construction of the proposed Southern Crossing with the design now specified by statute will not require a greater toll than 25 cents on such crossing and the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, the California Toll Bridge Authority is requested to undertake studies of other engineering and financing plans for the Southern Crossing which will assure continuance of no greater than a 25 cent toll on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge and the imposition of a similar toll on the Southern Crossing; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly transmit a copy of this resolution to the California Toll Bridge Authority.

Resolution read, and ordered referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Messrs. Elliott and Wilson:

House Resolution No. 52

Relative to authorizing and directing the Assembly Rules Committee to conduct investigations relating to improving the Assembly committee system

WHEREAS, Approximately two-thirds of the bills introduced at the 1955 Regular Session of the Legislature and considered by Assembly committees were referred to the Committees on Judiciary, Education, Conservation, Planning, and Public Works, and Municipal and County Government, which represented less than one-sixth of the committees, thus giving these committees a disproportionate load of the work to be accomplished; and

WHEREAS, It would greatly improve the efficiency of the Assembly if the committee work of the body were distributed as equally as feasible among the members and responsibilities shared to the extent reasonably possible; and

WHEREAS, It may be possible to accomplish this more equitable distribution of the work load of the body by amending the Assembly Standing Rules so as to reorganize the present committee system, particularly by separating the codes and subject matter covered by the Judiciary, Education, Conservation, Planning, and Public Works Committees, into subject headings for two or more smaller committees in each case and a further division of the Ways and Means Committee into a Budget and an Appropriations Committees; and

WHEREAS, This reform of the Assembly committee system would enable the Assembly to give more time and fairer consideration to bills in committee and would be in the interest of the people of the State of California; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That the Assembly Committee on Rules is hereby authorized and directed to conduct an investigation into the feasibility of reorganizing the Assembly committee system in order to facilitate and improve the operation of the Assembly by establishing a more equitable distribution of the committee work load; and be it further

Resolved, That the committee is directed to report its findings to the Assembly by not later than March 15th of this year.

Assembly Constitutional Amendment No._____—A resolution to propose to the people of the State of California, an amendment to the Constitution of the State by adding Section 5 to Article XIV thereof, relating to water.

Resolved by the Assembly, the Senate Concurring, That the Legislature of the State of California, at its 1957 Regular Session, commencing on the seventh day of January, 1957, two-thirds of the members elected to each of the two houses voting in favor thereof, hereby proposes to the people of the State of California that the Constitution of the State be amended by adding Section 5 to Article XIV thereof, to read:

SEC. 5. It is hereby declared that because of the conditions prevailing in the State, it is necessary for the State to assume a continuing responsibility for the proper and timely development of the water resources of the State in coordination and cooperation with private enterprise, local public agencies and the Federal Government; and to this end, the State may take any appropriate action, including but not limited to the construction, operation, maintenance and change of State water projects, and provision for financial assistance to public water projects.

It is further declared that hereafter in the development of the water resources of the State by any entity, no area of the State shall be deprived, by reason of such development, of any quantity of water needed to satisfy the reasonable ultimate requirements of such area, and that only water originating therein which is in excess of such quantity may be made available for permanent beneficial use in other areas of the State.

In the authorization of any state water project the Legislature shall make firm allocations of the dependable yield of water made available by the project, subject to ratable apportionment in times of water shortage.

Any such allocation may be altered by the Legislature to permit the substitution of an equivalent water supply from elsewhere.

Contracts with the State for the delivery of water from a state project shall provide for firm and permanent delivery of the quantities of water allocated pursuant to this section; provided, however, the State may enter into short-term contracts for interim deliveries of project water, but no such short-term contract shall confer a right to the permanent use of such water.

No contract with the State for the sale or delivery of water or power made available by any state project shall be impaired by act of the Legislature, and the State may sue and be sued with respect to any such contract.

This section is not intended to, and shall not affect any vested water rights.

This section shall be self-executing, and the Legislature may also enact laws in furtherance of the policies contained in this section.

PROPOSED "WATERSHED OF ORIGIN" CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT

[New Sec. 5 for Article XIV]

Sec. 5(a). Whenever the Legislature shall authorize the acquisition or construction by the State of any project which will export water from one or more watersheds wherein such water originates for use elsewhere in the State the Legislature, by bill, shall also:

(1) Determine the boundaries of each watershed in which such water originates;

(2) Determine the quantity of water originating in such watershed which ultimately will be reasonably required for beneficial use therein;

(3) Permanently reserve such quantity of such water for beneficial use in such watershed and, if the Legislature shall so determine, allocate portions of such quantity to specified areas within such watershed;

(4) Determine the amount of water originating in such watershed which is not so reserved and which will be made available by the project for export from such watershed;

(5) Include in such project, for the benefit of each portion of such watershed in which a major water storage reservoir of the project is to be located and in which water to be impounded in such reservoir originates, such upstream water storage reservoirs and other facilities (except distribution systems) as the Legislature shall determine to be necessary and practical to make reserved water originating in such portion of such watershed available for beneficial use therein, and provide for the financing and construction by the State of each such upstream reservoir and other facility when it is needed and can be constructed without rendering the project as a whole economically infeasible; and

(6) Provide such means as the Legislature deems appropriate to afford reasonable assurance that, if the the quantity of water so reserved for beneficial use in the watershed in which it originates should at any time become inadequate to meet all those reasonable needs for beneficial use of water in such watershed which could be met by practical and economically feasible methods of development of water originating therein, such needs can and will promptly be supplied by the State at no greater cost to the users in such watershed than would be involved if there were no exportation of water from such watershed by any State or other development commenced on or after the effective date of the bill making such reservation.

(b) Each such reservation of water for beneficial use in a watershed shall be permanently binding upon the State and upon all persons. The operation of each state project which will export water from one or more watersheds wherein it originates for use elsewhere in the State shall be subject to the determinations and reservations made with respect to such project, and all rights to water or to the use of water thereafter acquired shall be subject to such determinations and reservations.

(c) Before taking any such action pursuant to paragraph (a) of this section the Legislature shall cause public hearings to be held and reports and recommendations to be made upon the subject of such action by such legislative committees or state agencies or both as the Legislature may deem appropriate, and the Legislature shall receive and consider such reports and recommendations.

(d) No action pursuant to this section shall impair or affect any riparian, appropriative, contractual, adjudicated or other existing or vested right to water or to the use of water.

(e) Upon completing the action required by paragraph (a) of this section as to any project, the Legislature may authorize the execution on behalf of the State of binding contracts for the sale or delivery of water made available by such project for beneficial use. Each contract may provide: (1) For the delivery of such water by the State to the contracting party commencing at such time and continuing permanently or for such stated term as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe; (2) For such method of determining the price of water to be delivered and the annual payments to be made by the contracting party, both prior to and after the commencement of delivery, as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe; (3) For the substitution of water in equal quantity and of substantially equal quality from an alternate source or sources of supply without increase in the contract price; and (4) For such other terms and provisions as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe. Water so contracted to be delivered by the State to the contracting party shall be reserved to such contracting party and no right to such water inconsistent with the right thereto of such contracting party shall be acquired by any other person by appropriation or contract or otherwise. The Legislature may also authorize the execution on behalf of the State of similar contracts for the sale or delivery of electrical energy made available by such project. The State may be sued in the Superior Court of the State in and for the county within which the principal office of the contracting party is located or in any other state court of competent jurisdiction to declare or enforce any right acquired under any such contract.

(f) All contracts between the State and any public agency for the sale or delivery of water made available by any state project shall be subject to the provisions of Section 16 of Article I of this Constitution. No right of any person to water, or to the delivery or use of water, or to water service, arising by contract or by appropriation or otherwise, shall be impaired by reason of dissolution or any change in the status, form or powers of any public agency. To prevent or redress any such impairment, the State may be sued in any state court of competent jurisdiction.

(g) Nothing contained in this section shall be construed to prohibit the establishment, maintenance or amendment by the Legislature of a system of permits and licenses for the appropriation of water for beneficial use in a manner not inconsistent with the provisions of this section.

(h) For the purposes of this section the following terms shall have the following meanings:

(1) "Project" means any physical structure or device, and any combination or grouping of any number thereof, for the development, conservation or utilization of water resources;

(2) "Public Agency" means any city, county, city and county, district, other public or municipal corporation, or political subdivision, of this State, and any department or agency of any thereof;

(3) "Person" means any person, firm, association, corporation, public agency, this State, any other state and any private or public or municipal corporation or political subdivision thereof, the United States of America, and any department or agency of any thereof.

(i) No funds shall be expended for the acquisition or construction of any major works of a State project authorized prior to the effective date of this Section 5 for the purpose of exporting water from one or more watersheds wherein it originates for use elsewhere in the State unless and until such project shall have been reauthorized by the Legislature pursuant to the provisions of this section.

PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE XIV OF THE CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTION TO BE ENACTED AS A STATUTE PENDING ITS ADOPTION BY THE ELECTORATE

[The substance of the provisions which follow is also suitable for enactment by the Legislature in the form of statutes.]

Sec. 5(a) It is recognized that the conditions which now prevail in this State require that the State itself assume a continuing responsibility for assuring the timely and economical development of additional water resources. In discharging this responsibility, the policy of the State shall be:

First, to encourage and assist development of water resources by private enterprise and public agencies of the State, as herein defined, to the greatest extent practicable;

Secondly, to obtain aid and assistance from the Federal Government when and as it may appear desirable and advantageous to do so; and

Thirdly, for the State to finance, to construct and to operate water development facilities and projects which are in conformity with a general or coordinated plan for the development of the water resources of the State;

all to the end that the maximum, most efficient and most economical use may be made of the water resources of the State.

(b) It shall be the policy of the State in the development of its water resources to insure that no area of the State shall be deprived, by reason of such development by any person, of any quantity of water needed to reasonably satisfy the ultimate future requirements of such area, to the extent that water originates therein, and that the waters in excess of such requirements shall be made available for permanent beneficial use in other areas of the State which need imported supplies of water.

Sec. 6(a) The agency of State Government which is authorized by the Legislature to investigate the water resources of the State and to formulate plans for their development shall determine the boundaries and designate as an "area of origin" each area of the State within which water not subject to vested rights originates in quantities found by such agency to be in excess of the ultimate future requirements of such area and to be a practicable source of water for use in other parts of the State which are in need of additional water supplies. Such determinations and designations shall be made at such times and in such sequence and priority as the Legislature may direct. Each determination and designation so made shall be submitted to the next Regular or Budget Session of the Legislature and, unless vetoed by two-thirds vote of the members of either house, shall become effective upon the adjournment of such session.

(b) The agency of State Government which is authorized by the Legislature to issue, deny or modify permits and licenses to appropriate water shall reserve for use within each such area of origin, from the waters originating therein the quantities of water reasonable required for ultimate future beneficial use therein. Each such reservation shall be in terms of finite quantities of water and specific sources thereof, and shall be predicated upon findings to be made by such agency as to the quantity of water originating in such area of origin and the quantity of water which will be reasonably required for ultimate future beneficial use therein. No reservation shall impair any riparian, appropriative, adjudicated or other vested right to water or to the use of water or any application to appropriate water filed by any person as defined herein other than the State of California or the United States of America or any department or agency thereof prior to the date on which this amendment is approved by the Legislature for submission to the electorate. Each reservation shall be binding upon all persons and all rights to water or to the use of water thereafter acquired shall be subject to such reservation.

(1) All such findings and reservations shall be made after investigation and consideration of relevant factors and after giving all interested persons reasonable notice and opportunity to be heard in conformity with such procedure as the Legislature may prescribe.

(2) All such findings and reservations shall be subject to judicial review in any manner prescribed by the Legislature; provided, however, that the reviewing tribunal shall exercise an independent judgment on the law and on the facts as disclosed by the record certified to it, and the findings of fact and conclusions of law made by the administrative agency shall not be controlling upon its judgment.

(3) Subject to all rights to water or to the use of water which from time to time may arise out of contract with the State, as hereinafter provided, or which otherwise may become vested, the agency may reexamine and revise any reservation made pursuant hereto at any time it appears on the petition of any interested person that it is no longer reasonable. Such re-examination and revision shall be made in the manner provided for the making of original reservations and shall have like effect. If, upon such re-examination and revision, the said agency finds that the quantity of water then reserved is insufficient for the ultimate future beneficial uses within such area of origin as a result of water originating therein being permanently committed to use in other parts of the State, the substitution of other water for that which is so permanently committed to such use, to the extent necessary to comply with the revised reservation, shall be a first priority upon the awarding of contracts for the delivery of water from the next facility or project to be constructed by the State which is physically capable of being so substituted, and such substitution shall be made at no greater cost to the users within such area of origin than would be involved if there were no exportation of water from such area of origin by any state or other project commenced on or after the date of the original reservation.

Sec. 7(a) The Water Development Fund is created as a special fund in the State Treasury, the money, securities and increment of which shall be held in trust by the State Treasurer for expenditure as provided in this section.

(b) There shall be deposited in the Water Development Fund:

(1) All revenue received by the State from the extraction of oil and gas from tide and submerged lands and state public lands in excess of ten million dollars ($10,000,000) in each fiscal year, over and above the cost of administration of all such lands and any refunds authorized by law; provided, however, that the Legislature, by a vote of three-fourths of the members elected to each house, may appropriate the revenue so received during any fiscal year in excess of ten million dollars ($10,000,000), or any part thereof, and authorize its expenditure for such other and different purposes as the Legislature may prescribe.

(2) All revenues received by the State from the sale or furnishing of water, water power, and electrical energy, over and above the cost of operation and maintenance thereby incurred by the State; and

(3) Any other funds made available solely for the purpose of the Water Development Fund by appropriation, gift, grant, or by any other means.

(c) Any money in the Water Development Fund may be:

(1) Appropriated, or expended as provided in this section, for construction by the State, either alone or in conjunction with any person, of facilities authorized by the Legislature for the development, conservation and use of water resources, or for the service of any indebtedness incurred in such construction which is authorized by law; or

(2) Loaned, on such terms as may be prescribed by the Legislature including the waiver of any interest charges, for the purpose of construction of such facilities by any public agency of the State;

Provided, however, that no such expenditure or loan shall be made for construction of any facility which is in substantial conflict with any general or coordinated plan for the development, conservation and utilization of the water resources of the State which may be approved by the Legislature.

(d) Whenever it is proposed that the State construct or finance any water storage reservoir which will develop water for use outside the watershed in which it originates and in which such water storage reservoir is located, the authority to construct or finance such water storage reservoir shall be contingent upon the further authorization of such other and additional water storage reservoirs and other facilities, except distribution systems, within such watershed as may then be determined by the Legislature to be necessary to provide sufficient water to reasonably satisfy the ultimate future requirements for the beneficial use of water within that part of the watershed which lies upstream from the proposed water storage reservoir; provided, however, that such ultimate future upstream requirements can be met in an economically feasible and practical manner; and provided, further, that any test of economic feasibility shall be applied to all the facilities so authorized within the watershed as a whole and shall not be applied to any single facility therein without regard to other facilities whose authorization is required by this paragraph.

(e) Upon the authorization by the Legislature of the construction or financing by the State of facilities in accordance with this paragraph, the development thereof may proceed in any priority or manner directed by the Legislature; provided, however, that at any time an immediately foreseeable need shall arise for additional water within any watershed of the State from which water is then being exported for use elsewhere which can feasibly and reasonably be supplied by any of the facilities authorized by the Legislature pursuant to this section, the Governor shall certify such fact, and thereafter a continuing first priority in the use of moneys in the Water Development Fund not already otherwise committed at the beginning of each fiscal year shall be given to the construction at a reasonable rate of progress of the authorized facility or facilities required to fulfill the needs so certified, and such moneys shall be deemed to be appropriated for such purpose.

(f) At the time of authorizing the construction by the State of any water storage reservoir located within an area of origin, the Legislature shall determine the maximum extent to which water reserved for the ultimate future requirements of such area of origin pursuant to section 6 hereof can feasibly be made available for delivery from such reservoir, and all contracts for the use of water from such reservoir shall conform to such determination.

(g) In authorizing either the construction or financing of any facility or project by the State the Legislature shall provide for payments out of revenues to be made in lieu of taxes to any city, county, or city and county within whose jurisdiction such facility or project, or any part thereof, may be located; provided, however, that such payments shall be based solely upon the value of the real property occupied by such facility or project at the time title thereto is acquired by the State or by any public agency which constructs such facility or project in whole or in part with state funds.

Sec. 8(a) Whenever a facility or project has been authorized for construction by the State and ten per cent (10%) of the estimated cost of construction or fifty million dollars ($50,000,000), whichever is the lesser sum, has been made available, by appropriation or otherwise, the Legislature may authorize the execution on behalf of the State of contracts including option contracts to be exercised in not to exceed twenty (20) years which are renewable only with the consent of the Legislature, for the sale or delivery of water to be made available by such facility or project. The Legislature may specify the extent to which execution of such contracts may be required before actual construction of such facility or project is commenced.

(b) When so authorized, each such contract may provide:

(1) For the delivery of water by the State for such purposes and commencing at such time and continuing permanently or for such stated term as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe;

(2) For such method of determining the price of water to be delivered and determining the annual payments which may be required of the contracting party both prior to and after the commencement of delivery, as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe;

(3) For such other terms and provisions as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe.

(c) Each such contract shall provide for the substitution of water in equal quantity and of substantially equal quality from an alternate source or sources of supply without increase in the contract price. Each contract for a term of less duration than permanent service shall expressly provide that no permanent right to the water involved shall become vested in or otherwise acquired by the contracting party. The execution of any contract providing for the delivery of water to commence in the future shall not prevent the water from being temporarily put to other beneficial use in the meantime under term contracts authorized by the Legislature; provided, however, that the right of the party contracting for future delivery to the quantity and quality of water on the date specified for the initial delivery thereof shall remain unimpaired by any such temporary use.

(d) The provisions of this section shall be applicable to all contracts for the sale or delivery of hydroelectric energy produced by any facility or project constructed by the State.

(e) In awarding such contracts, including option contracts, for the sale or delivery of water from any water storage reservoir constructed by the State, first priority shall be given contracts for water reasonably required for ultimate future use within the watershed in which such water originates and in which such water storage reservoir is located.

(f) All contracts between the State and any public agency for the sale or delivery of water made available by any state facility or project shall be subject to the provisions of Article I, section 16, of this Constitution. No right of any person to water, or to the delivery or use of water, or to water service, arising by contract or by appropriation or otherwise, shall be impaired by reason of dissolution or any change in the status, form or powers of any public agency.

Sec. 9(a) For the purposes of this amendment, the following terms shall have the following meanings:

(1) "Facility" means any single physical structure or device used in the development, conservation or utilization of water resources;

(2) "Project" means any combination or grouping of any number of such facilities;

(3) The term "watershed" when applied to the basin of the Sacramento River shall be applicable to the watershed of any tributary stream or river which flows into the Sacramento River, but shall not be applied to the main channel of the Sacramento River except in connection with the consideration of any storage dam or reservoir which may hereafter be constructed in whole or in part in the bed of such main channel. The term shall not be applied to the combined deltas of the Sacramento River and the San Joaquin River.

(4) "Public agency" means any city, county, city and county, district, other public or municipal corporation, or political subdivision of this State, or any department or agency of any thereof;

(5) "Person" means any person, firm, association, corporation, public agency, this State, any other State, the United States of America, and any department or agency of any thereof.

(b) Nothing contained in this amendment shall be construed to prohibit the establishment, maintenance, or amendment by the Legislature of a system of permits and licenses for the appropriation of water for beneficial use not inconsistent with the provisions of this amendment.

(c) The provisions of this amendment shall be self-executing, but the Legislature may enact laws to carry out the provisions hereof.

Sec. 10. No funds shall be expended for the acquisition or construction of any major works of a State project authorized prior to the effective date of this amendment for the purpose of exporting water from one or more watersheds wherein it originates for use elsewhere in the State unless and until such project shall have been reauthorized by the Legislature pursuant to the provisions of this amendment.

STATEMENT OF HAROLD W. KENNEDY TO THE REPORT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL'S COMMITTEE OF WATER LAWYERS ON COUNTIES OF ORIGIN PROBLEMS

I approve the report of principles subject to the following reservations:

1. That my approval is subject to the reservations set forth on page 70 to the effect "that the members of the committee do not unanimously agree upon all that is contained in this report."

2. Provided the declaration of principles is not construed as depriving the right of the Legislature to determine whether a given water project is economically sound or engineeringly wise at the time the project is under consideration, because there should be no commitment by constitutional mandate to an indefinite program of financing or construction by the State.

I do not approve the specific draft of the proposed constitutional amendment as set forth in Appendix A, but as it contains points of merit, should be submitted to the Legislature and should be given state-wide distribution.

This explanation is made as I also participtaed in and approved the report of the County of Origin Committee of the State Chamber of Commerce and the draft of the constitutional amendment and other legislation submitted therewith. As I conceive this present report, it recognizes that it is imperative to give full protection to the Areas of Origin, as well as firm legal water (not subject to recapture) to the Areas of Deficiency, and I recommend that it be considered by the 1957 Session of the Legislature. It is recognized that while their fundamental concepts are similar, the separate reports of these two state-wide committees contain some inherent differences. But they also offer alternatives as to treatment and approach.

With respect to the statement of the principles set forth in this 70-page report, as indicated I am not in complete agreement with all of them, but am in agreement with enough of them to recommend their careful consideration to the Legislature and the people, and believe that this statement of principles will contribute to a clearer understanding of the many legal, economic and policy difficulties involved.

It is my hope that both the Attorney General's Water Lawyers Committee report and the County of Origin State Chamber Committee report may contribute toward a solution of California's water problems. It is possible that a solution satisfactory to the Legislature, the Governor, and the people—both North and South—may be found in a combination of the drafts of the proposed constitutional amendments submitted by both of these state-wide committees upon which I served.

Mr. Wallace Howland, Assistant Attorney General, is commended for the skillful and lawyer-like report and his devotion to an attempted solution of California's water problems. The report contains a masterly exposition of the historical and legal aspects of the difficulties of the County of Origin problem.

HAROLD W. KENNEDY

CALIFORNIA CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT TO ARTICLE XIV

Sec. 5(a). It is hereby declared that because of the conditions prevailing in the State it is necessary for the State to assume a continuing responsibility for the proper and timely development of the water resources of the State in coordination and cooperation with private enterprise, local public agencies, and the Federal Government. Where necessary, the State shall either construct water projects or provide financial assistance to local public agencies for construction of projects by such agencies.

5(b). It shall be the policy of the State in the future development of the water resources of the State by any entity to insure that no area of the State shall be deprived, by reason of such development, of any quantity of water needed to satisfy the reasonable ultimate future requirements of such area, and that any water originating therein in excess of such requirements may be made available for permanent beneficial use in other areas of the State which need imported supplies of water.

5(c). In the authorization of any State project it shall be the duty of the Legislature to make firm allocations of the dependable yield of water made available by the project.

Sec. 6(a). Contracts between the State and public agencies for the delivery of water from a State project shall be long term contracts for firm and permanent delivery of the amounts of water allocated pursuant to Section 5(c) of this Article. The State may enter into short term contracts for interim deliveries of project water, but these contracts shall confer no permanent rights to water made available by the project.

6(b). All contracts between the State and any public agency for the sale or delivery of water or power made available by any state project shall be subject to the provisions of Section 16 of Article 1 of this Constitution.

STATE OF CALIFORNIA
OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, January 13, 1957

HONORABLE PATRICK D. McGEE
Assembly Chamber

County of Origin Proposals—No. 5248

DEAR MR. McGEE: Pursuant to your request, we are enclosing a comparative analysis of the proposals for the solution of the so-called "county of origin" problem submitted to the Counties of Origin Subcommittee of the Joint Committee on Water Problems by the Department of Water Resources, the Attorney General's Committee of Water Lawyers on County of Origin Problems, and the Sub-Committee on "Areas of Origin" of the State-wide Water Resources Committee of the California State Chamber of Commerce.

In view of the short time allowed for the preparation of the comparative analysis, we have not attempted to explore all of the possible legal consequences that might flow from the provisions contained in the several proposals, but have merely described such provisions in such manner that they may readily be compared.

The proposals of the Department of Water Resources and the State Chamber of Commerce's sub-committee consist of constitutional amendments and supplementary legislation. The proposal of the Attorney General's committee consists only of a constitutional amendment.

Since the constitutional amendment of the Department of Water Resources is a revision of the original constitutional amendment submitted by the department, some changes may be necessary in the supplementary legislation which was drafted to supplement the constitutional amendment before revision.

It might also be pointed out that, while the Attorney General's committee submitted only a proposed constitutional amendment, further legislation was apparently envisioned by said committee to supplement the constitutional amendment.

Very truly yours,

RALPH N. KLEPS
Legislative Counsel
By RAY H. WHITAKER, Deputy

SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, January 14, 1957

Comparative Analysis of Proposals[1] for Solution of County of Origin Problems—No. 5248

At the outset it should be noted that the department's proposal and the Attorney General's proposal contain declarations of general principles as to the State's role in the development of the water resources of the State and the protection to be afforded to areas in which water originates and, in addition, contain specific provisions in respect to these matters. The State Chamber's proposal, on the other hand, contains no declarations of general principles but only specific provisions as to such matters in connection with proposed state water development projects.

I. Declarations of Principles

A. State's Functions

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment declares that, because of prevailing conditions, the State must assume a continuing responsibity for the proper and timely development of the State's water resources in coordination and cooperation with private enterprise, local and public agencies, and the Federal Government; and to that end, the State may either construct water projects or provide financial assistance for construction of public water projects. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment recognizes that prevailing conditions require the State to assume a continuing responsibility for assuring the timely and economical development of additional water resources and declares the following policies:

(1) To encourage and assist development of water resources by private enterprise and public agencies[2] to the greatest extent practicable;

(2) To obtain aid and assistance from the Federal Government when and if it may appear desirable and advantageous; and

(3) For the State to finance, construct, and operate water development facilities and projects[3] which are in conformity with a general or coordinated plan for the development of the State's water resources; all to the end that the maximum, most efficient and most economical use may be made of the State's water resources. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (a))

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's proposal contains no statements of principles relative to the State's function.

B. Protection to Areas of Origin

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment declares that hereafter in the development of the state's water resources by any

[1] The proposals analyzed are those submitted to the Counties of Origin Subcommittee of the Joint Water Problems Committee by the Department of Water Resources, the Attorney General's Committee of Water Lawyers on County of Origin Problems, and the Subcommittee on "Areas of Origin" of the Statewide Water Resources Committee of the State Chamber of Commerce. For the sake of convenience, in this analysis we shall refer to the proposals as the "Department's Proposal," the "Attorney General's Proposal," and the "State Chamber's Proposal," respectively.

[2] "Public Agency" is defined as "any city, county, city and county, district, other public or municipal corporation, or political subdivision of this State, or any department of or agency of any thereof." (Art. XIV, Sec 9 (a) (4)) The State Chamber's constitutional amendment contains substantially an identical definition. (Art XIV, Sec 5 (h) (2))

[3] "Facility" is defined as "any single physical structure or device used in the development, conservation or utilization of water resources" and "project" is defined as "any combination or grouping of any number of such facilities." (Art. XIV, Sec. 9 (a) (1) and (2))

entity, no areas of the State shall be deprived, by reason of such development, of any quantity of water needed to satisfy the area's reasonable ultimate requirements, and that only excess water originating therein may be made available for permanent beneficial use elsewhere; provided, however, that in times of water shortage the State shall apportion all available water ratably. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5.)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment declares that it shall be the policy of the State in the development of its water resources to insure that no area of the State shall be deprived, by reason of such development by any person[4], of water needed to reasonably satisfy the area's ultimate future requirements, to the extent that water originates therein, and that excess water shall be made available for permanent beneficial use in other areas which need imported supplies of water. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (b).)

II. Reservations of Water

A. Initial Determinations and Reservations

Department's Proposal. To carry out the policy stated in the constitutional amendment, Section 10505 of the Water Code is amended to provide that no release from priority or assignment by the department of any state filing shall be effective until the State Water Rights Board has completed the following:

(1) Determination of the boundaries of each "upper watershed of origin"[5] in which such water originates;

(2) Determination of the quantity of water originating in each such watershed which will be required for reasonable ultimate beneficial use therein;

(3) Determination of the amount of water originating in each such watershed which is not reserved for that area and which is necessary for use within the "lower watershed of origin"[6];

(4) Reservations to such upper and lower watersheds by order; and

Such determinations must be made by the board within six months after a release or assignment has been executed by the department. (Wat. C. 10508)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires the state agency which is authorized by the Legislature to investigate the State's water resources and to formulate development plans (the Department of Water Resources, under present law) to:

(1) At such times and in such sequence and priority as the Legislature may direct, determine the boundaries of and designate as an "area of origin" each area of the State within which water originates

[4] "Person" is defined as "any person, firm, association, corporation, public agency, this State, any other State, the United States of America, and any department or agency of any thereof" (Art XIV, Sec. 9 (a) (5))

[5] Defined as "that portion of any watershed lying upstream from any proposed storage dam"

in quantities found by such agency to be in excess of the ultimate future requirements of such area and to be a practicable source of water for use in other parts of the State which are in need of additional water supplies; and

(2) Submit each determination and designation so made to the next regular or budget session of the Legislature.

Unless vetoed by two-third's vote of the members of either house, each such determination and designation would become effective upon the adjournment of the session to which submitted. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (a).)

Requires the state agency which is authorized by the Legislature to issue, deny, or modify permits and licenses to appropriate water (the State Water Rights Board, under present law) to make findings as to the quantity of water originating in each such area of origin and the quantity of water which will be reasonably required for ultimate future beneficial use therein; and, based on such findings, to reserve for use within each such area of origin, from the water originating therein, the quantities of water reasonably required for ultimate future beneficial use therein. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (b).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that, whenever the Legislature authorizes the acquisition or construction by the State of any project [7] which will export water from one or more watersheds in which it originates, the Legislature, by bill, must also:

(1) Determine the boundaries of each such watershed;

(2) Determine the quantity of water originating in such watershed which ultimately will be reasonably required for beneficial use therein;

(3) Permanently reserve such quantity of such water for beneficial use in such watershed and, if the Legislature so determines, allocate portions of such quantity to specified areas within such watershed; and

(4) Determine the amount of such water which will be made available by the project for export. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (a) (1) to (4), incl.)

Section 10505 of the Water Code is amended to provide that any release from priority or assignment of any state filing is not effective until the State Water Rights Board:

(1) Designates the county or counties in which the water affected thereby originates;

(2) Determines and reserves the quantity of such water originating in each such county which ultimately will be required for beneficial use therein; and

B. Hearings

Department's Proposal. Section 10504 of the Water Code is amended to require the department, before it makes a determination to release from priority or assign a state filing for a development not in conflict with a general or coordinated plan for the development, utilization, or conservation of the state's water resources [8], to hold hearings after appropriate notice and consider evidence submitted by any interested party.

[7] "Project" is defined as "any physical structure or device, and any combination or grouping of any number thereof, for the development, conservation or utilization of water resources." (Art XIV, Sec. 5 (h) (1))

Section 10507 is added to the code to require the State Water Rights Board, before making its determinations as to reservations for upper and lower watersheds of origin and amounts of water available for export (in connection with releases from priority or assignments of state filings) to hold hearings and consider testimony and evidence submitted by the Department of Water Resources and any other interested parties.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires all findings and reservations made by the State Water Rights Board to be made after investigation and consideration of relevant factors and after giving all interested persons reasonable notice and opportunity to be heard in conformity with such procedure as the Legislature may prescribe. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (b) (1).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires the Legislature, before authorizing a state project, to cause public hearings to be held and reports and recommendations to be made upon the subject of such action by such legislative committees or state agencies, or both, as the Legislature may deem appropriate, and requires the Legislature to receive and consider such reports and recommendations. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (c))

Under Section 10505 of the Water Code, as amended, the State Water Rights Board is required, before releasing from priority or assigning any state filing, to hold a public hearing upon at least sixty days' notice to the Director of Water Resources and such other persons as the board deems to be interested therein.

C. Judicial Review

Department's Proposal. Section 10509 is added to the Water Code to provide that any determination by the State Water Rights Board as to reservations to upper and lower watersheds of origin and the amount of water available for export shall be subject to judicial review as provided for in Section 1094.5 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that all findings and reservations made by the State Water Rights Board shall be subject to judicial review in any manner prescribed by the Legislature; but that the reviewing tribunal shall exercise an independent judgment on the law and facts as disclosed by the record certified to it, and the findings of fact and conclusions of law made by the board shall not be controlling upon its judgment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (b) (2))

State Chamber's Proposal. No express provision is made for judicial review.

[8] Section 10500 is also amended to provide that Bulletin No. 3 of the department, "Report on The California Water Plan," dated March, 1957, with such modifications, amendments and additions as may be later necessary, shall constitute such a general or coordinated plan.

D. Revisions of Reservations

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision for revisions. However, Section 10506 is added to the Water Code to provide that, if the State Water Rights Board determines that the quantity of water reserved to an upper or lower watershed of origin is inadequate, it must report such findings to the Legislature; and upon notification by the board of such findings, the Department of Water Resources must recommend to the Legislature such remedial action as is necessary and equitable.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that, subject to all water rights which may arise out of contract with the State or which otherwise may become vested, the State Water Rights Board may re-examine and revise any reservation at any time it appears on the petition of any interested person that it is no longer reasonable. The re-examination and revision is to be made in the same manner and with the same effect as an original revision.

If, upon such re-examination and revision, the board finds that there is insufficient water to meet the revised reservation because of its permanent commitment to use in other parts of the State, the substitution of other water for that which is so permanently committed to such use, to the extent necessary to comply with the revised reservation, is made a first priority upon the awarding of contracts for the delivery of water from the next state facility or project which is physically capable of being so substituted, and such substitution is required to be made at no greater cost to the users within the area of origin than would be involved if there were no exportation of water therefrom by any state or other project commenced on or after the date of the original reservation. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (b) (3).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The chamber's proposal contains no express provision for revisions of reservations.[9]

E. Effect of Reservations on Existing Rights

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provisions in this respect.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that no reservation shall impair any riparian, appropriative, adjudicated, or other vested water right, or any application to appropriate water filed by any person, other than the State or the United States or any department or agency thereof, prior to the date on which the constitutional amendment is approved by the Legislature for submission to the electorate. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (b).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that no action taken by the Legislature pursuant to Section 5 shall impair or affect any riparian, appropriative, contractual, adjudicated or other existing or vested water right. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (d).)

F. Future Effect of Reservations

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision in this respect.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that each reservation shall be binding upon all persons and all water rights thereafter acquired shall be subject to such reservation. (Art. XIV, Sec. 6 (b))

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that each reservation shall be permanently binding upon the State and upon all persons[10], that the operation of each state project which will export water from one or more watersheds in which it originates shall be subject to the determinations and reservations made with respect to such project, and that all water rights thereafter acquired shall be subject to such determinations and reservations. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (b).)

III. Water Development Fund

A. Creation of Fund

Department's Proposal. Section 12002 is added to the Water Code to create a Water Development Fund as a special fund in the State Treasury, requiring the deposit therein of the following:

(1) All oil and gas revenues made available by the Legislature;

(2) State water project revenues, in excess of the operation and maintenance costs and the amount required for amortization and interest incurred by the State;

(3) All General Fund revenues made available by the Legislature;

(4) All revenues from any state bond issue for the development of state water projects; and

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment creates the Water Development Fund as a special fund in the State Treasury and requires the deposit therein of the following:

(1) All annual oil and gas revenues in excess of $10,000,000, over and above administrative costs and refunds; but the Legislature, by a vote of three-fourths of the members elected to each house, is authorized to appropriate the amount subject to deposit in the fund each year, or any part thereof, for expenditure for purposes other than those specified in the constitutional amendment;

(2) State water project revenues, over and above the cost of operation and maintenance of the project; and

(3) Any other funds made available by any means solely for the purpose of the Water Development Fund. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7 (a) and (b).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's proposal contains no provision for the creation of a Water Development Fund.

B. Expenditures From Fund

Department's Proposal. Section 12003 is added to the Water Code to authorize moneys in the Water Development Fund to be expended by the State for water development projects, to be loaned to any political subdivision thereof, or to be used for joint projects by the State, the Federal Government, or local agencies; but it is expressly required that any proposed project be in reasonable conformity with [10] "Person" is defined in the same manner as the term is defined in the Attorney General's constitutional amendment (see footnote 4), except that it includes, in addition, any private or public or municipal corporation or political subdivision of another state. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (h) (2))

a general or coordinated plan of development of the water of the State and be economically justifiable and financially feasible.

Section 12004 is added to the code to require 20 percent of the total amounts of deposits and increment in the Water Development Fund to be expended or loaned for projects of primary localized benefit, with priority being given to such projects within those watersheds of origin in which an export project has been built or authorized, as such projects are found to be needed and feasible.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that any money in the Water Development Fund may be:

(1) Appropriated or expended for state construction of authorized water development facilities or for service of authorized indebtedness incurred therefor; or

(2) Loaned, on such terms as may be prescribed by the Legislature, including waiver of interest charges, for construction of such facilities by any public agency.

It is expressly provided, however, that no such expenditure or loan shall be made for construction of any facility which is in substantial conflict with any general or coordinated plan for the development, conservation and utilization of the State's water resources which may be approved by the Legislature. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7 (c).)

State Chamber's Proposal. Contains no provision for such fund.

IV. State Water Development Projects

A. Report by Department of Water Resources

Department's Proposal. Section 12000 is added to the Water Code to require any report submitted to the Legislature by the department in furtherance of authorization of any state project involving exportation of water from a watershed to contain:

(b) A description of works needed to ultimately develop the water of such upper watershed of origin and make it available for use therein.

(c) A description of such works which are presently needed and presently feasible.

(d) A description of the areas to be served from the project, including those areas in the watershed lying downstream from any proposed storage dam of the project which are in need of supplemental water.

(e) A estimate of the amounts of dependable water to be made available to all areas to be served from the project after full allowance for the reasonable ultimate requirements of the upper watershed of origin.

Attorney General's and State Chamber's Proposals. Neither of such proposals contains any similar provision

B. Full Development of Watershed of Origin

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision for full development of the watershed of origin, other than the requirement of the report by the department described in paragraph A above.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that whenever it is proposed that the State construct or finance a water storage reservoir which will develop waters for use outside the watershed [11] in which it originates and in which such reservoir is located, the authority to do so shall be contingent upon the further authorization of such other and additional reservoirs and facilities, except distribution systems, within such watershed as may then be determined by the Legislature to be necessary to provide sufficient water to reasonably satisfy the ultimate future requirements for the beneficial use of water within that part of the watershed which lies upstream from the proposed reservoir; provided that such requirements can be met in an economically feasible and practical manner, but any test of economic feasibility must be applied to all the facilities so authorized within the watershed and not to any single facility without regard to other facilities whose authorization is required. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7, (d).)

Upon authorization by the Legislature, the development of the facilities may proceed in any priority or manner directed by the Legislature; but whenever any immediate forseeable need arises for water in any watershed from which water is being exported which can feasibly and reasonably be supplied by any of the facilities authorized therein, the Governor must certify such fact, and thereafter a continuing first priority in the use of uncommitted moneys in the Water Development Fund must be given to the construction at a reasonable rate of progress of such facility or facilities, and such moneys shall be deemed appropriate for such purpose. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7 (e).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires the Legislature to include in any state water export project, for the benefit of any portion of the watershed in which a major water storage reservoir of the project is to be located and in which the water originates, such upstream reservoirs and facilities, except distribution systems, as the Legislature determines to be necessary and practical to make reserved water originating in such portion of such watershed available for beneficial use therein, and to provide for the financing and construction by the State of each such upstream reservoir and facility when it is needed and can be constructed without rendering the project as a whole economically infeasible. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (a) (5).)

The Legislature is also required to provide such means as it deems appropriate to afford reasonable assurance, that, if the quantity of water reserved for the watershed of origin should at any time become inadequate to meet the reasonable needs for beneficial use therein which could be met by practical and economically feasible methods of development of water originating therein, such needs can and will promptly be supplied by the State at no greater cost to the users in such watershed than would be involved if there were no exportation of water therefrom by any state or other development commencing on or after [11] Section 9 (a) of Article XIV provides that the term "watershed" when applied to the basin of the Sacramento River shall be applicable to the watershed of any tributary stream or river which flows into the Sacramento River, but shall not be applied to the main channel of the Sacramento River except with respect to any dam or reservoir which may hereafter be constructed in whole or in part in the bed of such main channel; and provides that the term shall not be applied to the combined deltas of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers.

C. Project Water for Watershed of Origin

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision in this respect, except the requirement that the department's report to the Legislature with respect to a state project authorization must contain a description of the areas to be served from the project, including those areas in the watershed of origin lying downstream from any proposed storage dam of such project which are in need of supplemental water. (Wat. C. 12000.)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires the Legislature, when it authorizes state construction of any water storage reservoir located within an area of origin, to determine the maximum extent to which water reserved for such areas can feasibly be made available for delivery from such reservoir, and requires all contracts for the use of water therefrom to conform to such determination. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7 (f).) With respect to such water, first priority is required to be given in the awarding of contracts for project water to the reasonable requirements for the beneficial use of water within such watershed. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (e).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's proposal contains no express provision in this respect.

1. Prerequisites to Authorization

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision in this respect; however, the constitutional amendment requires the Legislature, in the authorization of any state water project, to make firm allocations of the dependable yield of water made available by the project, and provides that such allocations may be altered by the Legislature to permit the substitution of water of equal quantity and comparable quality from another source. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5.)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that whenever a facility or project has been authorized for state construction and 10 percent of the estimated cost of construction, or $50,000,000, whichever is the lesser sum, has been made available, by appropriation or otherwise, the Legislature may authorize the execution of contracts, including option contracts to be exercised in not to exceed 20 years which are renewable only with the consent of the Legislature, for the sale or delivery of water to be made available by the facility or the project. The Legislature is authorized to specify the extent to which execution of such contracts may be required before actual construction of the facility or project is commenced. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (a).) All of the provisions of Section 8 of Article XIV are made applicable to contracts for the sale or delivery of hydroelectric energy produced by any state facility or project. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (d).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment authorizes the Legislature, after enacting the required legislation with respect to a state water export project, to authorize the execution of binding contracts for the sale or delivery of water made available by such project. The Legislature may also authorize the execution of similar contracts for the sale or delivery of electric energy made available by the project. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (e).)

2. Contents

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires contracts for the delivery of water from a state project to provide for a firm and permanent delivery of the quantities of water allocated by the Legislature. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5.)

Section 12001 is added to the Water Code to require any such contract with a public agency to provide for the substitution of water in equal quantity and of substantially equal quality from an alternate source or sources of supply, without increase in the contract price.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment authorizes each contract to provide:

(a) For the delivery of water for such purposes and commencing at such time and continuing permanently or for such stated term as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe;

(b) For such method of determining the price of water to be delivered and determining the annual payments which may be required of the contracting party, both prior to and after commencement of delivery, as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe;

(c) For such other terms and provisions as the Legislature may authorize or prescribe. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (a).)

Such contracts are required to provide:

(a) For the substitution of water in equal quantity and of substantially equal quality from an alternate source or sources of supply without increase in the contract price; and

(b) In the case of contracts for a term of less duration than permanent service, that no permanent right to the water involved shall become vested in or otherwise acquired by the contracting party. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (c).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's constitutional amendment is similar to the Attorney General's constitutional amendment with respect to provisions authorized to be contained in contracts; however, the provisions for substitution of water from alternate sources is authorized to be included in contracts, rather than required, as in the case of the Attorney General's constitutional amendment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (e).) There are no provisions which are required to be contained in such contracts.

3. Temporary Use of Project Water

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that, notwithstanding the requirement that contracts provide for firm and permanent delivery of water, the State may enter into short-term contracts for interim deliveries of project water, but no short-term project shall confer a right to the permament use of such water. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5.)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that the execution of a contract for future delivery of water shall not prevent the water from being temporarily put into other beneficial use under term contracts authorized by the Legislature, but the right of the party contracting for future delivery to the quantity and quality of water on the date specified for the initial delivery thereof shall remain unimpaired by any such temporary use. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (c).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment contains no express provision authorizing temporary use, but provides that water contracted to be delivered shall be reserved to the contracting party and no right to such water inconsistent with the right thereto of the contracting party shall be acquired by any other person by appropriation or contract or otherwise. (Art XIV, Sec 5 (e).)

4. Enforcement of Contracts

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that no contract with the State for the sale or delivery of water or power made available by any state project shall be impaired by act of the Legislature. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5).)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that all such contracts with public agencies shall be subject to the provisions of Article I, Section 16, of the Constitution (which, among other things, prohibits the passage of laws impairing the obligation of contracts). (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (f) and (d).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that the State may be sued in the superior court in and for the county within which the principal office of the contracting party is located or in any other state court of competent jurisdiction to declare or enforce any right acquired under any water or power contract. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5.5 (e).) It is also provided that all contracts with public agencies for the sale or delivery of water shall be subject to the provisions of Article I, Section 16, and that the State may be sued in any state court of competent jurisdiction to prevent or redress any such impairment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (f).)

5 Effect of Dissolution of or Change in Contracting Public Agency

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no express provision in this respect.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that no right of any person to water, or to the delivery or use of water, or to water service, arising by contract or by appropriation or otherwise, shall be impaired by reason of dissolution or any change in the status, form, or powers of any public agency. (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (f).) This provision is also applicable to power contracts with public agencies (Art. XIV, Sec. 8 (d).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The chamber's constitutional amendment contains a provision identical to that contained in the Attorney General's constitutional amendment, except that it does not apply to power contracts with public agencies. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (f).)

V. Miscellaneous Provisions

A. In Lieu Payments to Cities and Counties

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no provision in this respect.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment requires the Legislature, in authorizing either the construction or financing of any facility or project, to provide for payments out of revenues to be made in lieu of taxes to any city or county within whose jurisdiction the facility or project or any part thereof may be located. Such payments are required to be based solely upon the value of the real property occupied by such facility or property at the time title thereto is acquired by the State or by the public agency. (Art. XIV, Sec. 7 (g).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's proposal contains no provision in this respect.

B. Applicability of Existing "Watershed of Origin" Provisions

Department's Proposal. Section 12005 is added to the Water Code to provide that any project or unit of a project authorized for construction, or constructed, as part of the state-authorized Central Valley Project shall not be subject to the so-called "watershed of origin" provisions (Wat. C. 11460-11463, inc.) after the Legislature has made the firm allocations of water made available by such project or unit thereof in the manner set forth in Section 5 (c) of Article XIV of the Constitution (the department's constitutional amendment).

Attorney General's Proposal. The Attorney General's proposal contains no provision in this respect.

State Chamber's Proposal. Section 11466 is added to the Water Code to provide that in the event of the adoption of Section 5 of Article XIV of the Constitution (the Chamber's constitutional amendment), no unit of the state-authorized Central Valley Project which is authorized for construction by the State in accordance with Section 5 of Article XIV shall be subject to the so-called "watershed of origin" provision (Wat. C. 11460-11463, incl.).

C. Re-Authorization of State Water Development Projects

Department's Proposal. The department's proposal contains no provision requiring re-authorization.

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that no funds shall be expended for the acquisition or construction of any major works of a state project authorized prior to the effective date of the constitutional amendment for the purpose of exporting water from one or more watersheds where in it originates unless and until such project has been reauthorized by the Legislature pursuant to the provisions of the constitutional amendment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 10.)

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's constitutional amendment contains a provision identical to that contained in the Attorney General's constitutional amendment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (i).)

D. Power of Legislation

Department's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that it is self-executing and that the Legislature may also enact law in furtherance of the policy contained therein. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5.)

Attorney General's Proposal. The constitutional amendment provides that nothing contained in the amendment shall be construed to prohibit the establishment, maintenance, or amendment by the Legislature of a system of permits and licenses for the appropriation of water for beneficial use not inconsistent with the provisions thereof (Art. XIV, Sec. 9 (b).). It also contains a provision similar to the one contained in the department's constitutional amendment (Art. XIV, Sec. 9 (c).)

State Chamber's Proposal. The State Chamber's constitutional amendment contains a provision with respect to the power of the Legislature to establish, maintain, or amend a system of permits and licenses for the appropriation of water similar to the provision contained in the Attorney General's constitutional amendment. (Art. XIV, Sec. 5 (g).)

Very truly yours,

The following communication was presented by the Speaker, and ordered printed in the Journal:

THE UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA, December 17, 1956

THE HONORABLE LUTHER H. LINCOLN
Speaker of the Assembly
Sacramento, California
THE HONORABLE HAROLD J. POWERS
President of the Senate
Sacramento, California

GENTLEMEN: We are transmitting to you (1) "A Study of the Need for Additional Centers of Public Higher Education in California," which is a Report of the Joint Staff of the Liaison Committee of the Regents of the University of California and the State Board of Education made to meet requests of the State Legislature of 1955 for studies of the need for new public higher education facilities in several areas of the State; and (2) a separately bound summary of the objectives, working data and general conclusions of the study.

The report has been built around certain principles, stated in the joint staff letter of transmittal to the Liaison Committee, which both the State Board of Education and the Regents of the University have endorsed.

Contained in the report are estimates of the college enrollment potential for the entire State and for various areas within the State, arranged in order of descending magnitude. These tables, and supporting data for them, were assembled on direction of the Liaison Committee of The Regents and the State Board, in the belief that there is a distinct advantage in an orderly and logical approach to the problem of higher education development.

The tables of priorities with regard to the relative need of various specific areas for additional higher education facilities are presented without recommendation by either of the two boards. Conclusions which have been specifically approved by the two boards are set forth on pages _____ in Chapter VI.

As always, the full resources of our respective offices are available to you and your colleagues in the Legislature on all matters relating to our colleges and the University.

Yours sincerely,

ROY E. SIMPSON
Superintendent of Public Instruction
ROBERT G. SPROUL
President, University of California

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT TO PRINT REMARKS IN JOURNAL

Mr. Thomas J. Doyle asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent that the following remarks relative to the memory of Mr. Paul Helms, Senior, be ordered printed in the Journal:

REMARKS BY MR. PATTEE

Since I was a boy I have known Paul Helms and I have known his son from my childhood days. I got to know Paul Helms intimately when we were both Delegates to the National Republican Convention in Chicago in 1952. At that time I found out that many of the delegates who could not afford the trip to Chicago had their expenses paid by Mr. Helms. He was the most generous and thoughtful man that I have ever known.

His death leaves us all very sad and it will be very hard to fill his shoes because he was one of the great civic leaders of our times.

I believe I can truthfully look back and say, and I know I speak for everyone who knew him, that he and his family have truthfully been a great asset to the State of California.

REMARKS BY MR. DON A. ALLEN

Mr. Speaker: I arise with heavy heart and mixed emotions to second the motion of Mr. McGee with reference to Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 34, relative to the passing of Paul H. Helms, Sr.

As long as the winds of freedom sweep our native land and that of other free nations of this world, it will sing the hopes and mortal prayers of our late beloved friend and counselor, Paul Helms

It will whisper in its quiet rustlings the gentleness, the constant yearning of his for lasting peace. It shall thunder the hope of freedom to those seeking it.

It will always be my firm conviction that Paul Helms' contributions to international good will and understanding well overshadow almost all the efforts of the hired diplomats of our State Departments combined, by his untiring and great contributions to the International Olympic Games.

Why do we consider Paul Helms one of Los Angeles City's greatest citizens? Because above all things he was a great Christian gentleman—a truly great teacher, by example A devoted family man and the greatest American our community will ever know.

Look to the great Coliseum of Los Angeles; look to the contribution he made with others to make it an outstanding edifice without cost to the taxpayers.

Look to the great industry he founded, the employment he provided for the many. Look to the Helms Hall, its Library and other facilities so that the achievements of good sportsmanship are carefully preserved for posterity.

Look into the eyes and the hearts of all of us who have had the good fortune to have known him. His recognition of the human dignity of his fellow human beings—those are some of his monuments.

May I inject a personal note I hold in my hand. A membership card to the Helms Foundation. I have carefully kept and prized each one down through the years.

Last, but not least, is my gold whistle. Proudly, humbly, sincerely, no matter what my lot in this life will be, I shall always be a Helmsman.

REMARKS BY MR. SHELL

Mr. Speaker and Members of the Assembly:

It is very difficult to add to the beautiful eulogy for Mr. Paul Helms, as presented by Assemblyman Don A. Allen. There are just a few words I would like to add.

Mr. Paul Helms was a great American. Mr. Paul Helms had full realization that individual competition and individual enterprise were parts of the cornerstone of our American heritage.

Mr. Helms was a competitor from his earliest days. He participated to the fullest measure in athletics as he went through school He competed to his utmost in the business world, as we can see by the marks and accomplishments he left there.

It is true that Mr Helms constructed the physical buildings of the Helms Foundation and the Helms Hall of Champions, but the greatest thing that Mr. Helms left to us was that part of our heritage in which he so firmly believed, and for which he built these physical memorials, and that was that individual initiative, enterprise and competition are the greatest bases upon which our free American society is founded. We will all miss this great man's presence.

(NOTE: The remarks by Mr. Levering will appear in a later Journal)

Basic Principles for Statewide Water Development

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA WATER COORDINATING CONFERENCE

January 14, 1957

Many of California's water problems have been created or aggravated by the addition of more than five million people in the past decade. Further population increases of great magnitude appear to be inevitable, as well as ever increasing demands for agricultural products. The future growth and well-being of many areas of our State are in jeopardy by reason of floods or inadequacy of available water supply, so that the proper and satisfactory solution of California's water problems is a matter of both state-wide and local responsibility. Because of these compelling facts, the Southern California Water Coordinating Conference proposes the following principles to serve as guide lines for the development of the Feather River Project and other units of the California Water Plan.

I. State Water Policy

California, in embarking upon a program of financing, constructing and operating water projects, should adopt a comprehensive water policy. Adequate water supply and flood control for various sections of California are no longer matters of only local concern, but now have become a state-wide concern. The legitimate needs of each area must be considered against a background of the needs of all other areas and of state-wide interest and economy. We are assured that there is enough water, including California's rights to Colorado River water, to meet all future needs throughout the State.

The State of California now has the opportunity, in accord with these premises to develop and institute a thoughtful and wise policy which may be used for the Feather River Project and, also, be applicable for development of other units of the California Water Plan.

Just as local agencies should own and operate their works, so should the State of California own and operate its state-wide water projects, and any appropriate federal assistance should be on a cooperative basis. Local users should construct and operate their own distribution facilities.

Consideration should be given to the relationships which will exist between the Feather River Project and subsequent projects in the preservation of the Delta Pool with respect to quality and quantity, and the responsibilities of the State as well as those who may draw water from that source.

The problem of water for future needs for areas of origin and areas of deficiency must be met and solved with equity for all. The State must assume responsibility for the reservation of sufficient water to provide full protection to areas of origin and responsibility for full contract deliveries to areas of deficiency.

All state water projects should be reimbursed as set forth herein.

Where the public interest will be served, local agencies should be enabled to receive state financial assistance for the construction of local projects which conform and contribute to the California Water Plan. This assistance should be in accord with the principles set forth herein.

II. Time and Need

With respect to time and need, all areas of California are concerned with an immediate start on the Feather River Project and expediting its completion.

The great damage and loss of life on the flood plain of the Feather River below Oroville in the winter of 1955-56 demonstrates the need for immediate construction of the Oroville Dam.

The rapidly receding ground waters and high pump lifts in the westerly and southerly portions of the San Joaquin Valley in Fresno, Kings, and Kern Counties, and the rapidly receding ground waters in the South San Francisco Bay area affecting areas of domestic, industrial and irrigation use in these counties require prompt construction of pumping plants, canals, and the San Luis Reservoir to avoid severe losses. Certain areas south of the Tehachapis need water now. The demand for an intensive construction program is therefore pressing, not only for the northern areas but also for the areas south of the Tehachapis, because this latter service area lies at the extreme southern end of the project and aqueduct system.

III. Water Rights

1. Solution of the "area of origin" problem contemplates the acceptance of the policy and philosophy in connection with state or federal projects that watersheds where the water originates be legally and fully protected with enough water for their reasonable, ultimate beneficial needs.

2. It is equally important, with particular reference to the Feather River Project, that the areas of deficiency to which the surplus water is to be exported be legally and fully protected for the amount of water for which they will have contracted for delivery by the State. This protection is necessary to enable the areas of deficiency to ascertain whether or not it is feasible and economically prudent for them to join in financing the construction of works of such magnitude as the Feather River Project and to build their future economy on such water supply.

3. In order to provide the strongest legal protection and stability, both for the areas of origin and for the areas of deficiency, it is important that the method for these determinations be fixed by constitutional amendment It should be limited to unappropriated waters of the State and should not in any sense invade existing water rights.

4. The proposed amendment should provide that determination be made by the Legislature as this body represents the respective viewpoints of all sections of the State. To guide the Legislature and to secure an approach which is as objective and engineeringly scientific as possible, the facilities of the Department of Water Resources, the State Water Board and the State Water Rights Board should be used to the fullest extent possible in processing or recommending such determinations.

IV. Engineering

Projects under the California Water Plan, and the Feather River Project as the first unit thereof, should be based upon a finding of engineering and economic feasibility before such projects are authorized for construction by the State. It is obvious that engineering must not alone consider the greatest economy in construction and operation but must also consider water quality. Assurance must be had that those areas to which water may be made available can afford to pay the costs properly allocated for construction, maintenance, and operation. Unnecessary duplication of facilities should be avoided.

Feather River Project:

1. Substantial progress has been made by the State of California in engineering of the Feather River Project Progress should be made as rapidly as possible to complete determinations of routes and areas to be served. Final commitment regarding the entire project should be made as soon as the legal rights to the use of the water made available by the project are established pursuant to the constitutional amendment and the engineering and economic studies now being conducted by the State affecting such matters are completed and their adequacy and application sufficiently analyzed by the interested areas

2. Notwithstanding the necessary delay in providing for the financing of the project in its entirety, highway and railroad relocations in the Oroville area should be commenced at once Simultaneous acquisition of the Oroville and San Luis Dam and Reservoir sites should be accomplished by the State without further delay in line with the intent expressed by the State Legislature; and as much money as necessary should be appropriated for these purposes and for further engineering studies along the entire route of the project to speed final determinations

3. The routes south of Devil's Den and their elevations will depend upon surveys, water quality, estimates, and comprehensive economic studies.

V. Financial Policy

The following policies should apply in the financing of the Feather River Project and also to other projects of the California Water Plan:

Sources of Funds:

California as a State should assume the overall responsibility for financing the Feather River Project. In order that there be assurance of adequate financing, in addition to funds then authorized, general obligation bonds in an amount sufficient to complete the entire project should be authorized as early as possible, even though this might mean that more bonds are authorized than are sold because of receipt of funds from other sources as hereinafter proposed. While the bonds to be issued will be general obligation bonds of the State, they should be supported by contracts of reimbursement to be made with each water or power user agency.

1. The State should appropriate from the general fund monies for acquisition of reservoir and dam sites, rights of way, relocation of highways and utilities, and for improvements removed or damaged by construction of the project.

2 Funds properly allocable for the construction of improvements for recreational features of state-wide interest should be provided from the State's tidelands oil revenues and investment fund.

3. Funds of the State, such as "rainy day" fund and sums derived from the State's tideland oil revenues and investment funds thereof, may properly be made available by the Legislature as underwriting for the construction of the project.

4. The Federal Government should be requested to supply funds in line with present or future federal policies, including allocations to flood control, fish and wildlife, recreational values of national interest and navigation.

5. Where areas express a desire for irrigation funds under reclamation law, the Federal Government may be requested to supply funds properly allocable for irrigation in connection with a State project, provided no handicaps are placed on State ownership and operation.

Allocation of Costs:

The State should adopt a policy for determining benefits and costs which, based on recognized methods, will result in reasonable and fair allocations.

Repayment:

1. State monies for acquisition of reservoir and dam sites, rights-of way, relocation of utilities and highways, and for improvements removed or damaged by construction of the project should be non-reimbursable.

2. State funds for recreational improvements of state-wide interest should be non-reimbursable.

3. Federal funds for flood control, fish and wildlife protection, recreational improvements of nationwide interest, navigation and other items in line with established policy should be non-reimbursable

4. Federal funds for irrigation should be reimbursable, in accordance with federal policies then prevailing.

5. All other funds, including those for power and for domestic and industrial and irrigation water supply should be reimbursable with interest.

6. The revenues of the project should be pledged to operation, maintenance and the payment of debt service.

7. The State should enter into contracts with water distributing agencies before water is delivered. The contracts should cover repayment of the costs allocated to the particular agencies, including debt service. The contracts should include a commitment by the agencies to provide the works required to make their connections to the Feather River Project. Each such agency should provide distribution works for the delivery of water to its own customers.

8. An agency may satisfy its contractual obligation to the State by taxes levied upon the property within the agency, by the application of any revenue of the agency, or by any other sources of income available to the agency.

9. The State should have the power to enjoin any person from taking the Feather River Project water without first entering into a contract with the State.

VI. General

The successful development of California's water resources for the benefit of all sections of the State will involve great complexities and the expenditure of vast sums. Its consummation will depend largely on general public support of a program based on good engineering and sound principles of economics and finance.

The foregoing set of principles is offered by the Southern California Water Coordinating Conference for application to the Feather River Project, but it is hoped, also, that they may serve as a contribution to the equitable development of the California Water Plan.

These principles have been considered by the conference for many months and have been widely discussed with leaders from many parts of California. While unanimously approved by the conference, it is not claimed that they represent the complete thinking of the individual members of the conference. Rather, they represent the balancing of many ideas presented in a statement which we believe to be fair, equitable and sound, with some give and take on the part of all who participated. The members of the conference at all times have acted in their individual capacities without involving approval, implied or expressed, by their agencies or organizatons.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT TO PRINT OPINIONS IN JOURNAL

Mr. Bruce F. Allen asked for, and was granted, unanimous consent that the following opinions be ordered printed in the Journal:

OPINION OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL
SACRAMENTO, CALIFORNIA, January 13, 1957

HONORABLE BRUCE F. ALLEN
Assembly Chamber

Tidelands—No. 5252

DEAR MR. ALLEN:

Questions

You have asked us the following questions with respect to subdivision (2) of Proposition BB of a proposed amendment to the charter of the City of Long Beach:

(1) Does it include the tide and submerged lands granted to the city in trust by the State?

(2) Are such contracts still subject to the requirements of Section 10 of Chapter 29, Statutes of 1956 (1st Ex. Sess.)?

(1) In our opinion, the additional provisions proposed to be added to subdivision (a) of Section 298.5 of the city charter do include tide and submerged lands granted in trust to the city by the State.

(2) The contracts and agreements specified in the additional provision would remain subject to Section 10 of Chapter 29, Statutes of 1956 (1st Ex. Sess.). It is our opinion that the extension of the term of such a contract would constitute a modification or amendment of an existing contract within the meaning of subdivision (b) of Section 10 of Chapter 29 rather than a new or future contract within the scope of subdivision (a) of Section 10. Therefore, while the approval of the State Lands Commission of such an extension would be necessary, the competitive bidding requirements of subdivision (a) would not be applicable.

Analysis

Subdivision (2) of Proposition BB of the proposed charter amendment would amend subdivision (a) of Section 298.5 of the charter of the City of Long Beach to read as follows:

"(a) Except as to lands referred to in sections 229x and 217 of this Charter, the City Council may authorize and direct the execution of leases, contracts or other agreements between the City of Long Beach and other persons, firms, corporations or associations to drill for, develop, extract, take or remove, or dispose of oil, gas or other hydrocarbon substances, from, under, across or through any and all lands including tide, submerged and overflowed lands, whether filled or unfilled, belonging to the City of Long Beach, or such lands in or from which the city may now or hereafter have the right so to drill for, develop, extract, take or remove, and dispose of oil, gas and other hydrocarbon substances for the term or period in each instance not to exceed such as provided by law; provided, any such lease, contract or other agreement shall be made and entered into with the highest responsible bidder upon competitive bidding in the manner and form as shall be approved by said City Council, after publication of notice calling for bids in the official newspaper of the City; provided, further, said City Council may authorize the execution of any such lease, contract or other agreement between the City and other persons, firms, corporations or associations including such lands, other than tidelands and submerged lands granted to the City by the State of California, in a community lease embracing adjoining lands not belonging to the City without such competitive bidding.

"Notwithstanding the competitive bidding requirement hereinabove provided, the City Council may, by negotiation, and pursuant to the terms, conditions and limitations thereby agreed to, extend the term of any lease, contract or other agreement entered into prior to March 5, 1954, concerning the lands above referred to and over which said City Council had the authority to direct the execution of any such lease, contract or other agreement; provided, however, that any such extension of term, including the existing unexpired term of any such lease, contract or other agreement, shall not exceed twenty-five years.

*"The power of extension hereby conferred is in addition to all other powers possessed by the City Council with respect to any such lease, contract or other agreement heretofore entered into, and this subdivision is not intended, nor should it be construed, as divesting or in any manner diminishing any power which the City Council now has, with respect to matters not involving an extension of term, to amend or modify any such lease, contract or other agreement for the remainder of the term thereof."

The first paragraph of subdivision (a) of Section 298.5 is not changed by the proposed charter amendment. The first paragraph, which empowers the city council to provide for the execution, through competitive bidding, of leases, contracts, and other agreements between the city and other persons or corporations for the extraction of hydrocarbon substances from certain lands, first excepts all lands referred to in Sections 229x and 217 of the charter. Section 229x of the city charter deals with lands, including tide and submerged lands, within the harbor district which are under the jurisdiction of the Board of Harbor Commissioners. Section 217 of the charter deals with the Board of Water Commissioners. It will be noted that subdivision (1) of Proposition BB of the proposed charter amendment would amend Section 229x, dealing with the extraction of oil and gas from lands, including tide and submerged lands, under the jurisdiction of the Board of Harbor Commissioners in the same manner as the proposed amendment to subdivision (a) of Section 298.5.

The first paragraph of subdivision (a) of Section 298.5 specifically includes tide and submerged lands. It is clear then that this first paragraph, except as to the proviso clause at the end, applies to the execution of leases, contracts, and other agreements regarding the extraction of hydrocarbon substances from tide and submerged lands granted to the city by the State which are outside the harbor district.

However, the proviso clause at the end of the first paragraph of subdivision (a) of Section 298.5, which empowers the city council to authorize, without competitive bidding, the execution of any lease, contract, or other agreement in a community lease embracing adjoining lands not owned by the city, specifically excludes tide and submerged lands granted to the city by the State.

The second and third paragraphs of subdivision (a) of Section 298.5, as shown in the proposed charter amendment, are additions to the existing section. These paragraphs authorize the city council, notwithstanding the competitive bidding requirements of the first paragraph of subdivision (a) of Section 298.5, to "* * * extend the term of any lease, contract or other agreement entered into prior to March 5, 1954, concerning the lands above referred to and over which said City Council had the authority to direct the execution of any such lease, contract or other agreement * * *"

* Underlining indicates new material which would be added to the existing section of the charter.

It seems clear that the phrase "the lands above referred to" means those lands over which the city council has jurisdiction to issue a lease or contract for the production of hydrocarbon substances through competitive bidding procedures, as provided in the first paragraph of subdivision (a) of Section 298 5 (lands, including tide and submerged lands which are outside of the harbor district), rather than the lands referred to in the proviso clause of the first paragraph relating to community leases. The proviso clause of the first paragraph constitutes an exception to the competitive bidding requirements of the same paragraph. The second paragraph constitutes another exception to the competitive bidding requirements in the first paragraph Therefore, it seems clear that the reference to "lands above referred to" means those lands described in the basic provision of the first paragraph rather than the exception. Therefore, it is our opinion that the authority given the city council under the proposed second paragraph of subdivision (a) of Section 298 5 of the charter to extend the term of leases and contracts entered into prior to March 5, 1954, without competitive bidding, is applicable to such leases and contracts involving tide and submerged lands granted to the city by the State.

(2) In effect the question asked is whether the extension of the terms of the contracts and agreements pursuant to the proposed second paragraph of subdivision (a) of Section 298.5 of the city charter, would be subject to Section 10 of Chapter 29 of the Statutes of the 1956 First Extraordinary Session.

In our opinion such contracts remain subject to the provisions of Section 10 of Chapter 29. The administration of the tide and submerged lands conveyed to the City of Long Beach in trust is not a "municipal affair" but is subject to control of the Legislature (Mallon vs City of Long Beach (1955), 44 Cal 2d 199, 209). Therefore, if there is any conflict between the charter provisions and Section 10 of Chapter 29, the latter will prevail.

Subdivision (a) of Section 10 of Chapter 29 requires that "future contracts, royalty arrangements, or other agreements" between the City of Long Beach and others relating to the production of hydrocarbons from the granted tide and submerged lands must be made only with the highest responsible bidder upon competitive bidding and must be approved by the State Lands Commission.

Subdivision (b) of Section 10 of Chapter 29 provides that "no present or future contracts, royalty arrangements or other agreements" of such nature may be "modified or amended in any respect without the advance consent of State Lands Commission."

It is clear, therefore, that any extension of any such contract entered into prior to March 5, 1954, must have the approval of the State Lands Commission whether such extension is construed as a new contract, and therefore subject to subdivision (a) of Section 10, or a modification of an existing contract, and therefore subject to subdivision (b) of Section 10, since both subdivision (a) and subdivision (b) require the consent of the State Lands Commission.

Since subdivision (a) of Section 10 requires competitive bidding for all contracts entered into after the effective date of Chapter 29 of the Statutes of 1956 (1st Ex. Sess.), a question is presented as to whether an extension of the term of a contract entered into prior to March 5, 1954, should be construed as a new contract and therefore subject to the competitive bidding requirement of subdivision (a) of Section 10 notwithstanding the proposed charter amendment.

With respect to leases the general rule as to the distinction between renewing a lease and merely extending its terms has been stated as follows:

"There is a clear distinction between renewing a lease and extending the term thereof Extension may be defined as the act of stretching or spreading out of the former terms of the lease. A renewal, on the other hand, creates a new estate, and imports the execution of a new lease. It does not merely continue the old one " (30 Cal Jur. 2d 234).

If all that is done is to lengthen the term of an existing lease or contract rather than to enter into a new lease or contract, there would appear to be only an extension of term rather than a renewal (Burroughs vs. Ben's Auto Park, Inc. (1945), 27 Cal. 2d 449; Howell vs. City of Hamburg (1913), 165 Cal 172, 177).

The proposed addition to the charter speaks only of extending the term of the original lease, contract, or agreement, and does not authorize the substitution of a new lease with different conditions. Therefore, it is our opinion that if the only action taken is to extend the term of a contract or agreement entered into prior to March 5, 1954, the competitive bidding requirements of subdivision (a) of Section 10 of Chapter 29 would not be applicable since this would not constitute the entering into of a new contract or agreement However, subdivision (b) of Section 10 requiring the advance consent of the State Lands Commission to such a modification of the contract would still be applicable.

OPINION OF CITY ATTORNEY OF LONG BEACH

MR. LEONARD M. FRIEDMAN
Deputy Attorney General

Re: Proposition BB—Amendment to Section 298.5, Subdivision (a) of Charter of City of Long Beach

DEAR MR. FRIEDMAN: The last two paragraphs of Proposition BB do not emasculate the competitive bidding provisions of the Charter, as you feared. It is our position that the redrafting of subdivision (a) of Section 298.5, in the manner stated, represents a reaffirmation of, and is in furtherance of, the announced policy of the city council and the electorate of the city of ensuring competitive bidding with respect to oil development contracts and agreements.

Prior to 1954, there were no mandatory competitive bidding provisions in the charter insofar as oil development operations were concerned, either as to tide and submerged lands, or any other lands owned by the city and commonly referred to as "uplands." By virtue of the amendment to Section 229 (so as to add subdivision (f) thereto), and the addition of Section 298 5, competitive bidding provisions were incorporated as a limitation on the power of the Board of Harbor Commissioners and the city council with respect to entry into oil development agreements. Both said subdivision (f) and Section 298.5 became effective March 5, 1954. The obvious purpose of the amendment to Section 229X was to place a limitation on the power of the board with respect to the lands lying within the harbor district, and over which it had complete and exclusive jurisdiction, and the additon of Section 298.5 was to place a similar limitation on the power of the city council on other lands owned and controlled by the city outside of the harbor district.

It is thus felt that it can be assumed as a basic premise that the city, on its own initiative, had established the policy of requiring competitive bidding prior to the pronouncement of the decision in the Mallon case.

As you are aware, the city has drilling and operating agreements with various contractors in the harbor district, some of the agreements involving tidelands (L.B.O.D. and Richfield), and others relating solely to "uplands" In addition to the harbor district agreements, the city has entered into oil and gas leases involving city owned lands in areas other than the harbor district. All of the aforesaid agreements and leases were entered into prior to March 5, 1954.

It was with the thought in mind that, as to agreements entered into prior to the effective date of the competitive bidding provision, the board should be given the power to negotiate for an extension of the term or terms thereof, that Proposition B was placed on the ballot at a special election held February 9, 1956 The measure was successfully passed, but was not approved by the legislature for the reason that it permitted the negotiated extension of the L B.O D. and Richfield contracts, which presumably is in contravention to established state policy.

In recognition of the foregoing objection, it was recommended that a new provision be drafted which would empower the board to negotiate for the extension of agreements under its jurisdiction, except as to those agreements concerning and relating to tide and submerged lands. It was also recommended that the city council be given the power to negotiate for any such extension as to agreements and leases under its jurisdiction not involving lands situated in the harbor district. Accordingly, Proposition BB was prepared, which added a new subdivision, viz., (g) to Section 229X, and amended subdivision (a) of Section 298 5. As you are aware, Proposition BB successfully carried, again evidencing the desire of the electorate in this regard.

It is assumed that no question has arisen with respect to the construction of the language contained in subdivision (g) of Section 229X. As to subdivision (a) of Section 298.5, it is felt that the following factors would militate against the susceptibility of a construction which would authorize the city council to negotiate an extension of the Richfield contract.

(1) Section 298.5, as originally enacted, and as recently amended, was not designed for application with respect to lands in the harbor district. As illustrative of this statement, you will observe that subdivision (a) commences with the following language " * * * Except as to lands referred to in Sections 229X * * * ".

(2) Paragraph two of subdivision (a) reads, in part, as follows: "Notwithstanding the competitive bidding requirement hereinabove provided, the city council may, by negotiation, and pursuant to the terms, conditions and limitations thereby agreed to, extend the term of any lease, contract or other agreement entered into prior to March 5, 1954, concerning the lands above referred to and over which said city council had the authority to direct the execution of any such lease, contract or other agreement; * * * " (Emphasis added).

You will note that the language "concerning the lands above referred to" relates back to the lands referred to in paragraph one of subdivision (a), which said paragraph "excepts" the lands referred to in Section 229X. All of the surface operations under the Richfield contract are confined to lands within the harbor district, and governed by the provisions and limitations of Section 229X.

Furthermore, said second paragraph stipulates "and over which said city council had the authority to direct the execution of any such lease, contract or other agreement;". All of the drill sites and other surface facilities of Richfield are in the harbor district. The Board of Harbor Commissioners was and is a necessary and indispensable party to the contract. The city council did not have the authority to direct the execution of the contract It would not, therefore, unilaterally have the power to negotiate an extension of the contract. The board, on the other hand, would be precluded from joining in a negotiation by the provisions of subdivision (g) of Section 229X.

In addition to the foregoing, there is an additional factor, not present in the charter, which would make certain that competitive bidding practices will be followed, and that is Section 10 of Chapter 29, Statutes First Extraordinary Session 1956, which requires advance consent of the State Lands Commission to the modification or amendment of any present contract, royalty arrangement or other agreement. It may be reasonably assumed that, in keeping with State policy, any suggested extension of the contract by negotiation would not receive the approval of the commission.

For the reasons stated, therefore, it is the considered opinion of this office that the recently enacted amendment to subdivision (a) of Section 298 5 could not be construed as vesting the city council with the power to negotiate an extension of the Richfield contract. It is the position of this office that the purpose and effect of the enactment of subdivision (g) of Section 229X, and the amendment of subdivision (a) of Section 298.5, was to vest the Board of Harbor Commissioners and the city council, respectively, as to those lands over which they had authority to contract with respect to oil development operations, other than tidelands and submerged lands, with the optional power to enter into negotiations for the extension of the term of any such agreements entered into prior to March 5, 1954 (there being none subsequent to said date), in the event it was deemed more advantageous to do so, rather than as a matter of necessity having to submit the matter to competitive bid.

WALHFRED JACOBSON,
City Attorney

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT TO PRINT OPINION IN JOURNAL

OPINION OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

OFFICE OF LEGISLATIVE COUNSEL

HONORABLE THOMAS J. DOYLE
Assembly Chamber

Germaneness of Amendments to Assembly Bill No. 100 and Assembly Bill No. 675—No. 6837

DEAR MR. DOYLE:

Question

You have asked our opinion as to whether the proposed amendments to Assembly Bill No. 100 and Assembly Bill No. 675 (the proposed amendments to Assembly Bill No. 100 appear at page 533 of the Assembly Journal of January 18, 1957 and the proposed amendments to Assembly Bill No. 675 appear at page 534 of the Assembly Journal for the same date) are germane to the subject matter of the two bills as introduced.

Opinion

While the question in the final analysis is one for the House itself, it is our opinion that the proposed amendments above referred to are not germane to the subject matter of the two bills as introduced. It must be noted, however, that the question of whether amendments are germane or not within the meaning of the Temporary Standing Rules of the Assembly and the Joint Rules is one which may either be ruled upon by the presiding officer or submitted by him to the membership for a vote. It is the prerogative of the House to determine whether or not the amendments are germane.

Analysis

The first paragraph of Assembly Standing Rule 94 provides:

> "No amendment to any bill, whether reported by a committee or offered by a member, shall be in order when such amendment relates to a different subject, or is intended to accomplish a different purpose, or requires a title essentially different from the original title of any bill."

Joint Rule 9 reads:

> "A substitute or amendment must relate to the same subject as the original bill, constitutional amendment or resolution under consideration."

(See also Mason's Legislative Manual, Section 402.)

In applying these rules the houses of the Legislature have afforded them, generally speaking, a liberal interpretation and it is in the light of such precedent that we have considered the present problem. Also preliminarily we should note that Mason's Legislative Manual states, page 275, "whether a proposed amendment is consistent with the measure, motion or question proposed to be amended, is a question to be decided by the body and not by the presiding officer."

Both Assembly Bill No. 675 and Assembly Bill No. 100, as introduced, are substantially identical. For the purposes of the question here presented they are identical in that both appropriate a specified sum of money for a designated fund "to the Department of Water Resources for expenditure for the construction and relocation of the Western Pacific Railroad tracks and State Highway Route 21 in the vicinity of the site of the Oroville Dam and Reservoir." The titles of both bills are also identical with respect to this question, both reading "An act making an appropriation for the construction and relocation of the railroad and state highway in the vicinity of the site of the Oroville Dam and Reservoir." Assembly Bill No. 675 makes the appropriation from the General Fund, while Assembly Bill No 100 makes it from the Investment Fund. Assembly Bill No. 675 is an urgency measure and is so referred to in its title, while Assembly Bill No. 100 is to take immediate effect as an appropriation for the usual current expenses of the State. The amendments to both bills are identical in that they make the following changes in the bills:

1. Changes in amount are made which are not pertinent to the question under consideration.

2. The title of each bill is amended to strike the language above quoted and insert the more general language "relating to the development of the water resources of the State and in this connection amending Section 11626 of the Water Code."

3. Section 11626 is amended to provide that in awarding contracts for the sale or lease of electric power certain public agencies shall be given a preference.

4. The purpose of the appropriation made by the bills as introduced is changed from the construction and relocation of a specified portion of railroad tracks and state highway to "the acquisition of lands, easements, and rights of way necessary for the construction of Oroville Dam and appurtenant facilities, and for the payment of the cost of relocating physical facilities and structures necessary in connection with construction or for the reimbursement for the value of such physical facilities and structures."

5. An additional amount not included in the amount specified in the bills as introduced is included "for completion of the acquisition of lands, easements, and rights of way, relocation of utilities, and preparation of plans and specifications for the construction of Antelope Valley Reservoir, Abbey Bridge Reservoir, Dixie Refuge Reservoir, Frenchman Reservoir, and Grizzley Valley Reservoir."

With reference to the proposed amendment of Section 11626 of the Water Code to provide for a preference of public agencies in contracting for the sale or lease of electric power, under the most liberal construction of the bills as introduced, this amendment is, in our opinion, not germane. The subject of the bills as introduced is an appropriation for the construction and relocation of a specified portion of a designated railroad track and a designated state highway in the vicinity of the Oroville Dam and Reservoir. There is nothing in the bills, as introduced, which relates to the construction, operation, or maintenance of the Oroville Dam and Reservoir to which the awarding of contracts would be germane and we conclude, therefore, that under the most liberal interpretation of the rules the proposed amendment does not relate to the subject matter of the original bills.

The same is true of the proposed amendment which would change the purposes of the appropriation made by the bills. The purpose stated in the bills as introduced is the construction and relocation of specified railroad tracks and state highway routes. The amendment alters this purpose to include the acquisition of lands, easements, and rights of way necessary for the construction of the dam itself and appurtenant facilities. The bills as introduced are limited in purpose. The proposed amendments would permit the acquisition of land for the dam site itself and thus are not germane to the construction and relocation of a specified portion of railroad track and state highway.

Finally, the amendments which add an appropriation to complete the acquisition of lands, easements and rights of way for five designated reservoirs carry a title essentially different from the original title of the bills and would accomplish a different purpose. For these reasons, we think it also is not germane.

In closing, we have considered ourselves bound in the preparation of this opinion by Mason's Legislative Manual, Section 402, which provides specifically that "the admissibility of an amendment should be judged from the provisions of the text, rather than from the purposes which circumstances may suggest." This statement, under the provisions of Temporary Standing Rule 7, is "the authority" "in all cases not provided for by the Constitution, by the Assembly Rules, or by the Joint Rules of the Senate and Assembly."

Very truly yours,

RALPH N. KLEPS, Legislative Counsel

Recommendation of the Governor

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 17, 1957

To the Honorable Members of the Assembly

GENTLEMEN:

Assembly Bill No. 615, "An act making an appropriation in augmentation of the appropriation in Item 139 of the Budget Act of 1956 for support of the Department of the California Highway Patrol, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

We are all aware of the alarming increase in traffic accidents. The rapid rise in the number of persons killed, disabled and injured through the operation of motor vehicles is frightening. Remedial measures must immediately be taken, and one of the best means of securing more careful driving is to increase the patrolling of our highways. In the 1957-58 budget provision is made for 370 positions above the present uniformed strength of the California Highway Patrol This is the maximum increment which can be made in the time available. It will bring the total force to 2,434 In order to expedite this urgently needed increase in the Patrol, this bill appropriates $951,958 from the Motor Vehicle Fund for the immediate employment of 110 of these new uniformed men The enactment of this bill in January will enable the earliest recruitment, training and assignment to duty of the additional uniformed members of the Patrol

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

House Resolution No. 58

Relative to memorializing Congress to revise the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952

WHEREAS, The leaders of both the Democratic and Republican parties have repeatedly asked for congressional action to revise the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952, commonly known as the McCarran-Walter Act, so as to eliminate certain racist and un-American restrictions contrary to our democratic way of life; and

WHEREAS, The call for such revision was incorporated in the platforms of both the Republican and Democratic parties in their national conventions of 1956; and

WHEREAS, Outstanding members of both parties in the House of Representatives and the United States Senate have urged enactment of legislation to revise the law; and

WHEREAS, The present plight of refugees from Communist oppression in Hungary and the ravages of war in the Middle East dramatizes the urgent need for emergency legislation similar to the Refugee Relief Act which expired December 31, 1956, and for revision of our basic immigration policies including the discriminatory national origins quota system, and the failure to provide equal rights as well as equal responsibilities to naturalized citizens; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That the Assembly of the State of California does hereby respectfully request the Congress of the United States to give immediate and favorable attention to pending legislation to revise and liberalize the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952, and respectfully urges all Representatives and Senators of the State of California to support such revisions, and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the Assembly is hereby directed to prepare and transmit suitable copies of this resolution to the President and the Vice President of the United States, to the Speaker of the House of Representatives, and to each Senator and Representative from California in the Congress of the United States.

CONSIDERATION OF DAILY FILE (RESUMED)
THIRD READING OF ASSEMBLY BILLS (RESUMED)

Assembly Bill No. 39—An act making an appropriation for the purchase of poliomyelitis vaccine and for the administration of a poliomyelitis vaccination program, and declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately.

Bill read third time.

Recommendation of the Governor

In accordance with Article IV, Section 34. of the Constitution, the Governor presented the following communication recommending the consideration of Assembly Bill No. 39:

STATE OF CALIFORNIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE
SACRAMENTO, January 10, 1957

GENTLEMEN:

Assembly Bill No. 39, "An act making an appropriation for the purchase of poliomyelitis vaccine and for the administration of a poliomyelitis vaccination program, and declaring the urgency thereof, to take effect immediately," in my opinion constitutes an emergency bill within the meaning of that term as used in Section 34 of Article IV of the Constitution of the State of California, the consideration of which should not await the final enactment of the Budget Bill.

I am confident that this bill provides the means for preventing major epidemics of infantile paralysis in this State. It appropriates $3,000,000 in State funds for poliomyelitis vaccine and the administration of an immunization program. This sum will provide approximately four million injections of this effective vaccine. These will be given to persons under 40, the age group with the highest incidence of this disease. While not all in that group can receive the recommended three inoculations, the program will induce many more of them to secure the full protection than would otherwise do so.

I therefore recommend consideration of Assembly Bill No. 39 as an emergency measure.

Respectfully submitted,

GOODWIN J. KNIGHT, Governor

Message from the Governor read.

Bill ordered transmitted to the Senate

Request for Unanimous Consent That Names Be Placed Upon Roll Call

Messrs. Holmes, Lindsay, McCollister, Nielsen, Grant, Nisbet, Luckel, Lowrey, Don A. Allen, Samuel R. Geddes, and Miss Donahoe

asked for, and were granted, unanimous consent that their names be placed upon the roll call, on the urgency clause to Assembly Bill No. 39, and that they be recorded as voting "Aye."

Explanation of Vote

Assembly Bill No. 39 appropriates 3 million dollars for the purchase of poliomyelitis vaccine and for the administration of a poliomyelitis vaccine program This program will be made available to all persons under the age of 40. I should like to state that I do not disapprove of immunization programs being instituted and continued throughout the State insofar as minors are concerned. Also, the fact that the bill does not provide for a more complete explanation of the distribution and administration of these vaccines, it, in my opinion, amounts to a "blank check" in the amount of 3 million dollars, to which I do not agree. Hence, my vote against the bill.
