As we begin this new legislative session we are painfully aware of how much we need Your help, Lord

No one of this chamber, or indeed of any other chamber is immune from the weaknesses of our nature Today as we gather in this new year we ask You to give to the men and women of this chamber a spark of newness that will be fanned to flame by their inventiveness and dedication, so that the ever-changing pattern of man's living will find an ever-prepared and ordered society to promote and retain its dignity.

To achieve this we do not need to share the same political views nor do we need to worship at a common altar but we do need to be united in a common unquenchable love for man and for life in all its forms. We need Your Guiding Hand.—AMEN.

Eighth—To amend.

Questions of Order Decided Without Debate

81 All incidental questions of order, arising after a motion is made for any of the questions named in Rule 80 and pending such motion, shall be decided by the Speaker without debate, whether on appeal or otherwise.

Appeal From Decision of the Speaker

82 Any Member may appeal from a decision of the Speaker without waiting for recognition by the Speaker, even though another Member has the floor. No appeal is in order when another is pending, or when other business has been transacted by the Assembly prior to the appeal being taken.

Upon the appeal being seconded, the Speaker may give his reasons for the decision, and the Member taking the appeal may give his reasons for making his appeal, and the Speaker shall forthwith put this question to the Assembly "Shall the decision of the Speaker be sustained?"

An appeal cannot be amended and yields only to a motion to recess or adjourn, to lay on the table, or a question of personal privilege. If an appeal be laid on the table, such action shall have no effect on the pending question.

An appeal cannot be debated when relating to indecorum, transgression of rules, or priority of business. A majority vote of the Members present and voting shall decide any appeal.

Speaker Explains Order of Business

83. The Speaker may, on his own motion or upon the motion of any Member, explain the order of business when the motion pending before the Assembly is not debatable. Such explanation shall not consume more than two minutes.

To Adjourn

84. A motion to adjourn is not debatable and cannot be amended, and is always in order, except: (a) when another Member has the floor; (b) when the Assembly is voting; (c) during a call of the Assembly. The name of any Member moving an adjournment and also the hour at which the motion was made and adjournment taken shall be entered in the Journal. A motion to adjourn must be adopted by a majority vote of the Members present and voting.

When a motion to adjourn is made and seconded, it shall be in order for the Speaker, before putting the question, to permit any Member to state to the Assembly any fact relating to the condition of the business of the Assembly which would seem to render it improper or inadvisable to adjourn. Such statement shall not occupy more than two minutes and shall not be debatable.

To Recess to a Time Certain

85. A motion to recess to a time certain shall be treated the same as a motion to adjourn, except that such motion is debatable when no business is before the Assembly, and can be amended as to the time and duration of the recess. It yields only to a motion to adjourn.

To Lay on the Table

86. A motion to lay on the table is not debatable and cannot be amended.

A motion to table a bill, constitutional amendment, concurrent or joint resolution requires an affirmative recorded vote of 41 or more Members.

Any motion to lay on the table, if carried by 41 or more votes, carries with it the main question and everything that adheres to it; provided, however, that a motion to lay an amendment on the table, if adopted, does not carry with it a bill, constitutional amendment, concurrent, joint, or house resolution.

A motion to lay an amendment on the table may be adopted by a majority vote of the Members present and voting.

A motion to lay on the table cannot be applied with respect to reconsideration.

The Previous Question

87. The previous question shall be put only when demanded by five Members and its effect, when sustained by a majority vote of the Members present and voting, shall be to put an end to all debate and bring the Assembly to a vote only on the question then pending; except that the proponent of the matter pending shall be allowed not to exceed five minutes to close the debate.

Motion to Set Special Order

88. A motion to set any matter before the Assembly as a special order of business must be adopted by an affirmative recorded vote of 54 or more Members. It is debatable only as to the propriety of setting the main question as a special order of business, and may be amended only as to the time.

Motion to Postpone to a Time Certain

89 A motion to postpone to a time certain shall be deemed and treated as a motion to set as a special order.

Motion to Postpone Indefinitely

90. When a motion is made to postpone indefinitely any bill, motion, or amendment, it opens the main question to debate. Should the motion to postpone indefinitely prevail by an affirmative recorded vote of 41 or more Members, the main question shall not be acted upon again during the session.

Motion to Amend

91. A motion to amend may itself be amended, but no "amendment to an amendment" may be amended. A motion to substitute shall be deemed to be a motion to amend and shall be considered the same as an amendment. Only one substitute is in order when an amendment is pending. A motion to amend or to substitute is debatable, except where the main question to be amended is not debatable. Any motion to amend may be adopted by a majority vote of the Members present and voting.

A motion to amend having been decided in the negative shall not again be in order on the same day, or at the same stage of proceeding. A motion to amend by striking out certain words having been decided in the negative, shall not preclude a motion to amend by adding words, or a motion to amend by striking out and inserting words; but in no case shall a further amendment be substantially the same as the one rejected.

Subject to the above provisions of this rule, a motion to amend is in order during the second or third reading of any bill.

Amendment to Be Germane

92. No amendment to any bill, whether reported by a committee or offered by a Member, shall be in order when such amendment relates to a different subject than, or is intended to accomplish a different purpose than, or requires a title essentially different than, the original bill.

No motion or proposition on a subject different from that under consideration shall be admitted as an amendment.

No amendment shall be in order which changes the original number of any bill.

No Member shall be added or deleted as an author or coauthor of a bill or resolution without his consent.

Consideration of Motions

93. No motion, whether oral or written, shall be adopted until it is seconded and distinctly stated to the Assembly by the Speaker.

Motions in Writing

94. Upon request of the Speaker all motions shall be reduced to writing and shall be read to the Assembly by the Speaker before being acted upon.

Withdrawal of Motions

95. After a motion is stated by the Speaker, or a bill, resolution, or petition is read by the Chief Clerk, it is in the possession of the Assembly.

Motion to Withdraw and Recall Bills

96. A motion to withdraw a bill or resolution from committee, or to re-refer a bill or resolution from one committee to another committee, may be made during the regular order of business. A motion to re-refer shall only be debated as to the propriety of such reference, and shall require an affirmative recorded vote of 41 or more Members.

No bill or resolution shall be withdrawn from committee and placed upon the file, except upon two days' notice thereof and except by an affirmative recorded vote of 41 or more Members.

Re-reference of Measures on File

97. A motion to re-refer a bill or resolution that is on the Assembly Daily File to committee may be made during the regular order of business. The motion shall only be debatable as to the propriety of such reference and shall require an affirmative recorded vote of 41 or more Members.

Bills Striken From File

98. A motion to strike from the file any bill or resolution requires an affirmative recorded vote of 41 or more Members. Such bill or resolution shall not be acted upon again during the session.

Motion to Rescind Action or Expunge Record

99. Previous to the approval of the Journal by the Assembly any action may be rescinded and its record ordered expunged by an affirmative recorded vote sufficient to take such action originally; except that no action shall be rescinded and the record expunged by a vote less than an affirmative recorded vote of 41 or more Members. No motion to rescind the action and expunge the record shall be made twice on the same proposition.

Whenever any action of the Assembly is rescinded and its record ordered expunged, the record of the action expunged shall not appear in any form whatsoever, but the record of the proceedings on the motion to rescind and expunge shall appear in the Assembly Journal as and when printed.

Reconsideration of Vote

100. (a) A motion to reconsider a vote on the next legislative day must be made on the same day the vote to be reconsidered was taken. No motion to reconsider shall be in order on the last day, or the day preceding the last day, for consideration of Assembly or Senate bills in the Assembly. No motion to reconsider shall be adopted unless it receives an affirmative recorded vote of 41 or more Members, except that it shall require a vote of 54 or more Members or 60 or more Members, respectively, to reconsider the vote on any matter originally requiring 54 or more votes or 60 or more votes, as the case may be. A motion to reconsider may be voted on without a second.

A motion to reconsider a vote must be made by a Member voting on the question, and shall take precedence over all motions, except a motion to adjourn. Upon such motion being made, the matter to be reconsidered shall forthwith be placed upon the unfinished business file, and no further action shall be taken prior to the next legislative day. When a motion to reconsider has once been made, the same is the property of the Assembly. When reconsideration is granted, the matter to be reconsidered shall be before the Assembly in the same status as it was prior to the vote being reconsidered.

(b) Any Member voting on any matter may move to take up on the same day the motion to reconsider the vote thereon, previously made by another Member. A motion to take up on the same day a motion to reconsider the vote on a bill shall require an affirmative recorded vote of two-thirds of the Members present and voting A motion to take up on the same day a motion to reconsider the vote on any motion, amendment, Assembly resolution, or proposition other than a bill shall require an affirmative vote of a majority vote of the Members present and voting. The motion to take up the reconsideration on the same day shall take precedence over the motion to reconsider and upon demand of any Member the motion to take up the reconsideration on the same day shall be put to an immediate vote If the motion to take up the reconsideration on the same day is adopted, the motion to reconsider shall be the next order of business before the Assembly.

(c) A second motion to reconsider the same question shall not be in order nor is a motion to reconsider reconsideration in order.

Call of Assembly

101 After the roll has been called, and prior to the announcement of the vote, any Member may move a call of the Assembly The Members present may order a call of the Assembly by a majority vote of the Members present and voting, and the Speaker shall immediately order the Sergeant at Arms to lock all doors and shall direct the Chief Clerk to prepare a list of absentees as disclosed by the last roll call. The list of absentees shall be furnished to the Sergeant at Arms Thereupon no Members shall be permitted to leave the Assembly Chamber except by written permission of the Speaker. fornia Highway Patrol, the State Police, and sheriffs or their deputies, and brought to the Assembly Chamber

During such call, the Assembly shall not consider and transact any matter of business and no call of the Assembly shall be ordered on any matter while the Assembly is already under call. A call of the Assembly may be dispensed with at any time upon a majority vote of the Members present, such action to become effective upon the completion of the roll call and the announcement of the vote upon the matter for which the call was ordered, unless prior to the announcement of the vote, the call is continued by a majority vote of the Members present.

Division of Question

102 Any Member may call for a division of the question, and the Speaker shall order the question divided if it comprehends propositions in substance so distinct that, one being taken away, a substantive proposition shall remain for the decision of the Assembly.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT TO PRINT IN JOURNAL

Mr. Thomas was granted unanimous consent that the following letter of transmittal be printed in the Journal:

Joint Legislative Audit Committee

The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly, and
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California

Sirs· We herewith transmit a report on the termination of state highway construction contracts in the vicinity of the City of San Fernando damaged by the earthquake action of February 9, 1971. This report was prepared by the Auditor General

Chapter 274, Statutes of 1971 (Senate Bill 682), authorized the termination and directed that the Department of Public Works and the contractors be guided by specified principles in reaching the termination agreements.

The report specifies the following:

— The Department of Public Works and the contractors have complied with the terms of the controlling statute,
— The costs are fairly stated, and
— The amounts paid the contractors, $10,646.264 and $19,048,309, are the lower of contract price or reasonable cost excluding profit.

The audit was conducted jointly with the Department of Public Works audit staff and resulted in audit adjustments which produced a net savings of approximately $155,000. These adjustments were made in conformity with the following provision of the controlling statute.

> "The compensation received by a contractor for all work performed prior to the earthquake shall be the reasonable cost of the performance of such work as it can be reasonably ascertained without the inclusion of a profit; provided, that such cost shall not be in excess of the contract price of such work."

The projects were for work which is a part of the federal interstate system The Federal Highway Administration advises that federal reimbursement will be made using the following guidelines:

— The full cost of the work eligible for federal reimbursement performed prior to the earthquake will be paid at the regular pro rate of approximately 91 percent
— The work of repair or reconstruction of the damaged portions of the work is eligible for 100 percent federal reimbursement.
— The work of completing the projects will be paid at the regular pro rate of approximately 91 percent

The Division of Highways estimates that the cost of the damage repair work will be approximately $9 million and the cost to complete the projects in addition to the repair costs will be approximately $9.9 million. The actual federal reimbursement is determined after the work is completed, billings to the federal government are submitted, and audits of project costs are completed.

Respectfully submitted,

VINCENT THOMAS, Chairman
Joint Legislative Audit Committee

Above report referred to the Committee on Transportation.

MESSAGES FROM THE GOVERNOR

The following Message from the Governor was received, and by unanimous consent, ordered printed in the Journal:

Governor's Office, Sacramento
January 6, 1972

The Honorable Members of the California Legislature
State Capitol, Sacramento, California

Greetings.

State-of-the-State Message

The last time we met under these same circumstances, the theme of my remarks was one of reform and austerity.

Our state had reached a crisis in welfare and Medi-Cal demanding a massive change of direction if we were to avoid bankrupting both the spirit of those who receive public assistance and the pocketbooks of those who pay for it.

Austerity was urged in state expenditures because the transition from an inflated Vietnam War boom to a peacetime economy had adversely affected our revenues.

While we are still undergoing that transition, there are indications that the economy is on an upward curve The President's national economic program is accomplishing its goals and inflation is being slowed.

Our own revenue structure is being stabilized thanks to the withholding measure enacted during the special session.

But we shall be just as diligent in seeking economies as we have in the past With the average citizen spending almost a third of his workweek just earning the money to pay his taxes, there is still an urgent need to reduce the size and cost of government.

Those working men and women who—if I can paraphrase—never have asked what government can do for them, but have constantly been told what they can do for government—are the social and economic backbone of our state. They deserve more consideration than they have had from all the governments they pay for with the fruit of their toil.

The last legislative session was the longest in the state's history and yet long-time problems remain unresolved—problems in educational finance, property tax reform and environmental protection.

Youth and Economic Opportunity

Our young people between 18 and 21 have achieved the vote since we last met. Legislation you passed and I signed confers at age 18 nearly all adult rights and responsibilities.

Absolutely essential to the promise of full citizenship and a share of the opportunities our society offers is the availability of work. We must continue our efforts to stimulate job-creating industries.

This means broadening and diversifying California's economic base to assure further employment opportunities for citizens displaced from their jobs in defense-oriented and other changing industries.

This does not mean abandoning our great aerospace industry which still provides thousands of job opportunities for our people. One project alone, the space shuttle program, means another 45,000 jobs and an ultimate $12 billion boost to the California economy We feel our state is the logical site for this program. And we hope Congress and the national administration will agree

Lieutenant Governor Ed Reinecke played a major role in the successful effort to obtain federal financing for our largest defense contractor, a step that preserved and generated thousands of additional jobs in California

Economic Well-Being for All

We have moved vigorously to promote development of industries that can help provide prosperity in the generation of peace that is now a major national goal. With your help, we have created the California

Commission for Economic Development to expand trade and generate new job opportunities by encouraging the location and expansion of business and industry in California.

We share with the private sector a deep concern for the economic well-being of all Californians.

To help ease the plight of the unemployed you passed and I signed legislation to increase maximum unemployment benefits from $65 to $75 a week—the first such increase since 1965 Substantial improvements were made in the state's workmen's compensation system. The increases—worth $142 million a year in new benefits for California workers—are the largest package of social insurance benefits in the state's history.

Reevaluate Needs

We are now asking leaders in the private sector and labor to join with us in reevaluating the economic needs of California citizens and to determine what we in state government can do—or stop doing—that will further improve the economy of our state and thus improve the economic well-being of all Californians. The results will be made available to you for appropriate action.

One thing we must do is to come to grips, once and for all, with the hodgepodge accumulation of federally mandated manpower programs. Right now it is impossible to catalogue them or learn whether there is costly duplication. Nor do we know if they provide training for jobs that no longer exist.

Farm Labor

California's agricultural industry contributes more to this state's prosperity than any other industry. It does so in spite of a serious deficiency—a lack of effective laws on agricultural labor-management relations Bills to establish a system of union representation elections for agricultural workers have failed both in Congress and in the state legislature. We can no longer defer action on this problem.

It is absolutely imperative that we enact in this session legislation guaranteeing California's agricultural workers the right to choose, by secret ballot, whether they want to be represented by a union and if so, by which union.

Effective Welfare Reforms

The Welfare Reform Act of 1971 which together we enacted is unquestionably the most significant social legislation in California's history. Already we are achieving our goal of increased aid to the two-thirds of the welfare population with no outside income while at the same time we eliminate costly abuses through stricter eligibility standards. Our reforms have halted the upward climb of welfare dependency. No longer are we adding 50,000 new cases a month to our welfare caseload. At the end of November, there were 151,000 fewer people on welfare and general relief than there were last March.

Obviously, we must at some time expect a leveling off of this decline. Yet, if we had not passed these reforms, welfare during these last eight months would have cost the taxpayers another $100 million.

After months of preparation and negotiation, we have applied to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for permission to implement a realistic and reasonable demonstration project to make work experience opportunities available to able-bodied welfare recipients. When this project is in operation, it will include 35 of California's 58 counties and involve about 58,000 employable welfare recipients in constructive work. The able-bodied who refuse to participate, without good cause, will be removed from the welfare rolls.

Several of the laws we worked months to achieve have been challenged in the courts for various reasons and sometimes it seems for no good reason at all If legislation is indicated as a result of these legal actions, I will request its passage. In the meantime, I shall ask that you approve legislation to· —Improve enforcement of child support laws involving absent parents.

—Establish the system of fairly apportioning welfare funds we requested last year, a step that will allow increased benefits for the truly needy and prevent people with significant outside incomes from claiming welfare assistance unfairly.

—Impose tighter and more realistic standards on the amount of property a recipient may own and still be eligible for welfare.

—Increase incentives for able-bodied recipients to work.

Health/Medi-Cal

Passage of Medi-Cal reform was another major milestone Not only does it provide significant improvements in financing the program, it also broadened the coverage to include an estimated 800,000 needy Californians formerly served by county health programs—at tremendous cost to local property taxpayers.

For the first time, a single standard of care is available to all needy citizens—within a system of comprehensive services that includes reasonable controls to curb abuses. These reforms have reduced the cost to the taxpayers an estimated $208 million in state, local and federal funds.

Health-Catastrophic Insurance

Our long struggle to put Medi-Cal and welfare on a realistic financial basis has been focused primarily on the least affluent segment of society. Obviously our citizens of great affluence can take care of themselves. But in between these groups is that same great majority of our citizens I mentioned earlier—the working men and women who underwrite the whole system. In some ways they are becoming the truly disadvantaged.

Now it is true that more than 85 percent of all Americans under 65 have, through their jobs, some type of private health insurance. Such insurance takes care of most health needs But if they or members of their families are stricken with an extended, catastrophic illness—being too young for Medicare and too affluent for Medi-Cal—they face financial disaster.

I am unalterably opposed to so-called nationalized health insurance which in fact is socialized medicine But I believe it is possible to develop a system of health insurance to protect every Californian against the economic catastrophe that often accompanies extended illness. Some will suggest we should wait for a federal solution to this problem. I do not share that belief nor do I believe this state should act hastily and impose on the taxpayers a medical subsidy which would increase the inflation of medical costs and exchange an excessive medical bill or insurance premium for an "excessive" addition to the tax burden We are going forward with research on this subject and will report our findings to you shortly.

Venereal disease has reached epidemic proportions among our young people A citizens' task force we established last year has recommended an all-out counterattack One recommendation is that all public schools conduct venereal disease prevention courses I am in wholehearted agreement with this recommendation However, there is at present a lack of adequate instructional material and a shortage of qualified teachers In cooperation with the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, we are moving to fill this void We are undertaking a program of training workshops for teachers. The Public Health Department will have more than $200,000 during the next six months to assist this educational effort and to hire more casefinders We are urging every school district to join the battle against VD by instituting venereal disease prevention courses. They already have the authority to do this under existing law

Consumer Protection

During 1971, the new State Department of Consumer Affairs extended its activities and helped achieve legislation to protect the public against unwanted mailed merchandise, abusive credit card practices and high pressure door-to-door salesmen The report of this department provides more detail on this increased scope in consumer education, consumer protection and in providing a greater public voice on licensing boards But I would like to give special mention to the department's role and the industry's help in supporting legislation to create the new bureau of auto repair—to deal with unscrupulous practices which victimize consumers.

No-Fault Insurance

Another consumer innovation which has been widely discussed in recent years is no-fault automobile insurance Such a system could help relieve the present overcrowded dockets in our court system In Los Angeles County, personal injury cases involving auto accidents account for nearly 80 percent of all civil jury trials A modified system of insurance, tailored specifically to meet California's needs, could accomplish other desirable ends There is a potential for substantial savings in premiums and the prospect of eliminating some of the red tape involved in settling claims

We must find that system of automobile insurance that will best meet the needs of our citizens.

Unfinished Tasks

The most urgent unfinished tasks before us involve our educational system, its financing and direction and the equally important necessity of providing comprehensive property tax relief for millions of overburdened California homeowners

The issues are closely related. It is impossible to discuss property tax reform without considering the impact on educational finance.

We have tried for three years to adopt a comprehensive property tax reform program Again I ask you to work with the executive branch and with Wilson Riles to eliminate the chronic crisis in public school finance by shifting the burden from the homeowner to a broader based tax.

Time is growing short. If we fail this year, the people may act themselves through the initiative process.

Public School Finance

The State Supreme Court opinion pointing out the inequities of the present system of financing local schools merely emphasized something we all know.

We need sweeping changes in the present system of financing local schools (K–12) to· —Reduce reliance on the property tax.

—Simplify the method of distributing educational funds.

—Equalize educational opportunities for all Californians by providing a basic amount of financial support for each student in every district.

Public Education

This done, we can get on to other equally important needs in education: preparing every youngster for his own academic or career goals and including sufficient training to give each graduate at least an entry-level "salable skill" in the world of work. Despite its problems, our educational system has responded remarkably well to what we have asked, and still we want schools to do more and more It is time now for greater reflection on realistic priorities We must create an atmosphere in education that will welcome effective programs designed to achieve specific objectives.

Too many of us—when we have a problem—approach it by saying· "There ought to be a law " Maybe this should be reversed in education. It requires a book three inches thick to list all the directives and mandates contained in the Education Code. Last year, nearly a thousand more were proposed It is just possible we need fewer laws but greater flexibility and control at the local level.

We must examine the potential of year-round operation.

And the voucher system—providing a grant for students to use at the school of their choice—should be tested, at least on a limited basis I will again support legislation to establish a pilot program

Higher Education

In higher education, probably the most widely noted recent legislation was your action granting university status to those of our state colleges which deserve that designation However, we do not intend any major changes in the existing function of the various segments of higher education. I am confident that the various studies now under way on our master plan will find that the defined difference in function between the University, the state colleges and community colleges must be maintained

Student Aid

Our system is based on a commitment that every youngster should have the opportunity to develop to the utmost of his desire and ability, regardless of his financial status.

We therefore have increased support for the State Scholarship and Loan Commission from $5 million five years ago to $28 million in the forthcoming budget Yet it is becoming increasingly clear that there is insufficient coordination between various student aid programs, a lack of guidelines and possibly too much administrative overhead costing dollars that would be better spent in aiding students.

I believe it would be desirable to have all state-financed student aid programs handled through the scholarship and loan commission.

State College Tuition

The fact that we have tuition at the University of California and not at the state colleges has created an undesirable imbalance in higher education I strongly urge you to give the trustees authority to determine the amount of tuition at the state colleges and the purpose for which it will be used.

Ultimately, I believe we will find that the fairest method of assuring higher education to all who can profit from it will be the establishment of a deferred tuition plan allowing students to pay their share of the cost over a period of at least 20 years after graduation. In the meantime, however, there is one deserving group which I feel you will agree is worthy of special attention I urge you to take action to assure free tuition at the University of California and the state colleges for the sons and daughters of American servicemen who are prisoners of war or missing in action in Southeast Asia.

Taxes—Tax Reform

You will be pleased to know the withholding measure you enacted in the special session should end the state's chronic cash flow problem even after we share with the people of California the so-called "withholding windfall" by giving every citizen a one-time 20-percent tax credit on the income tax due April 15

Several tax reforms we have long been seeking are part of the revenue package you adopted; a minimum state income tax, reduction of the oil depletion allowance and $46 million in new property tax relief for our senior citizens ranging from 32 percent for those at the $6,000 a year income level to more than 80 percent at $3,000 a year and below. This will help our senior citizens keep the homes they worked for most of their lives We must do as much for other homeowners And while we must recognize the need for new sources of revenue for local government, I still maintain there is no need for any general state tax increase for new spending.

Budget—State Employees

Economic necessity required us to forego general salary increases for state employees this past year There was never any question in our minds that our civil service employees deserved an increase. With the five-year growth in California there has actually been a decrease in the number of state employees. This means in many departments, the workload increase has been absorbed with no increase in staff We are happy this year that we can recognize their dedication by including in the budget $95.8 million for salary increases and for correcting salary inequities. (This is equivalent to a 5-percent salary increase for state employees and 7½ percent for academic employees of the University of California and the state colleges).

The budget also will include approximately $65 million of new state support for schools—over and above that allocated under existing formulas. This year, we are going to do something that is long overdue with regard to the state budget. We are going to submit it in two parts as we logically should have been doing for a long time. When the intricacies of accounting make a return of money to the taxpayers show up as an increase in the cost of state government, it is easy to understand why citizens have trouble keeping an eye on government. Roughly two-thirds of the state budget is money collected by the state but returned to cities, counties, school districts and local programs The other one-third of the budget covers the actual cost of state government.

Lumping them together makes it difficult for the citizens to keep track of where the increased expenditures take place.

For example, the $46 million in tax relief for senior citizens you just passed appears as a $46 million increase in the budget. So the first part of the budget we submit will be for those moneys we return to local entities We will follow this with a second section covering the cost of actually operating state government. In this way, the taxpayers can better check on our stewardship.

Corrections Reform

There has been a great concern nationwide about the need for prison reform. And there seems to be a lack of knowledge among Californians as to where our state stands In recent years, our correctional system has become a model for the nation. Our rehabilitation and parole program is 76 percent successful in returning convicted offenders to useful and productive roles in society We have single cell occupancy in every prison. I don't believe any other major state has achieved this. Our experiment in allowing family visits to inmates has proven successful and is now regular procedure in most of our penal institutions.

This effort at effective rehabilitation does not mean we have a soft attitude on crime. It is realistic recognition of the fact that more than 90 percent of all prison inmates will eventually be returned to society

We still have problems—some created by our own success. As the number of inmates has declined the percentage of so-called "hard-core" offenders has increased and this has increased the potential for violence within our prisons.

Two years ago, I called for a complete study of our correctional system. The results of that study are now being reviewed During this session a program to continue improving our correctional system will be presented.

Increased Security

Following the tragic incident at San Quentin last year, I directed the Board of Corrections to make a special study of violence in the prisons. The board recommended and we added 405 new security and other positions, including two new psychiatric units. I ask you to continue this increased staffing level The new state budget will include funds for planning new maximum security facilities We will also take the first step toward closing San Quentin Prison San Quentin, which once housed up to 5,000 inmates, will be held at an average population of 1,500 during the next fiscal year and we hope to close it completely by the end of 1974

Law Enforcement

In the area of crime fighting and law enforcement, innovations are going forward. Attorney General Evelle Younger tells me we are now experimenting with a method of transmitting fingerprints from Los Angeles to Sacramento in less than a second—by bouncing signals off a satellite hovering over Australia.

I am asking the California Council on Criminal Justice to explore—in cooperation with local law enforcement—the possibility of establishing regional Criminal Justice Training academies—similar to those operated by the California Highway Patrol and the FBI We must give law enforcement the technical tools they need to fight organized crime. So again, I ask you to authorize electronic surveillance under strict court controls

Last year, I asked you to make the killing of a law enforcement officer while on duty first-degree murder.

Since then the Capitol flag has flown at half staff too many times—21 law enforcement and correctional employees have been killed in line of duty

Again, I ask for legislation to make such killings mandatory first-degree murder.

Drug Abuse

On January 1 this year, the nation's most far-reaching and innovative drug control program went into effect in California Our goal is to eliminate the diversion of dangerous pills into illicit markets and to put out of business anyone who participates in this shameful trade.

I shall also propose this year a comprehensive drug abuse treatment plan that will incorporate all that we have learned from our various programs to combat drug abuse in the past few years

Transportation

Every holiday we in California are told we have topped the nation in traffic fatalities No mention is made of the fact that we top the nation in number of cars and in miles traveled, nor do they point out that California set an all-time low for traffic fatalities in 1970 and provisional statistics for 1971 indicate we will break our own record by around 8 percent We have been experimenting with ways to relieve traffic congestion by permitting toll-free lanes on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge for motorists riding in car pools of three or more We have continued to reduce bridge tolls There have been 11 reductions in the past four years.

The action providing sales tax revenue on gasoline is hopefully another step in meeting local transportation needs.

A major goal this year is to establish a State Department of Transportation within the Business and Transportation Agency to help plan and develop the proper combination of transportation systems to meet the needs of our people.

Environment—Air Pollution

California has done more in the past five years to protect our environment and to eliminate air and water pollution than in any similar period in the past. I want to thank you particularly for passing the smog control program requested last year and at the same time tell you further action will be necessary to carry on the battle for air quality control.

Land-Use Study—Coastal Legislation

By your own mandate, the Environmental Goals and Policy Report will be presented to you in March providing additional guidelines on how best to further protect and preserve our land resources and the beauty of California.

We must take environmentally balanced actions to protect our coastline and to establish a process for the selection and approval of powerplant sites These and other topics will be the subject of environmental messages later on.

Department of Environment—Solid Wastes

Last year, we suggested a reorganization plan to create a Department of Environmental Protection including an effective program for solid waste management.

The urgency of acting now is plain A year's accumulation of California's solid wastes could cover the entire city of Los Angeles with a layer of garbage 17 inches deep.

This year, I will again ask your support of legislation to create a Department of Environmental Protection that will include an effective solid waste management program

It has been said that those who fail to plan for the future cannot have one. Each new group of settlers who came to our state sought a better life beyond the next mountain range or desert. Their children and their children's children along with our modern day settlers continue to seek an improved quality of life, a cleaner environment, economic prosperity and educational opportunities for their children

Of late, they have had reason to question whether our system of divided responsibilities can be fully responsive to their needs They rightfully have no patience with the cynical political cliche that far-reaching legislative programs are not enacted in election years They expect government to be on an annual, on-going basis They will not accept from any of us partisan rivalry as an excuse for lack of action.

A few weeks ago, we read in the San Francisco papers the story of an inspiring demonstration of sheer human courage A gallant young soldier, a triple amputee of the Vietnam War, hobbled painfully on artificial legs across the Golden Gate Bridge He said he wanted to encourage other wounded veterans to fight their own handicaps

You and I have some bridges to cross in the next few months. Surely nothing we face in our official duties can compare with the challenge he overcame in that long walk.

Cicero said. "The good of the people is the chief law."

The good of the people is the only thing we have a right to consider within these walls.

Let's wish each other a Happy and a short New Year.

Respectfully,

RONALD REAGAN, Governor

The following Message from the Governor was received, and by unanimous consent, ordered printed in the Journal:

Budget Message

Governor's Office, Sacramento
January 12, 1972

To the Members of the Legislature of California:

The fiscal plan of California is really two separate and quite distinct budgets. The first, and by far the largest, is made up of moneys which the state collects from its citizens and then sends back to cities, counties, other governmental jurisdictions, and most significantly, school districts. State assistance to local agencies represents about two-thirds of all our expenditures.

The second budget comprises the remaining one-third of the money collected to run the traditional functions of state government, such as the University and college systems, beach and park development and operations, mental hospitals, and highway construction

As I mentioned in my budget message in 1970, I have long felt that the fiscal plan for the State of California should be prepared as two separate budgets to more dramatically emphasize the state's two distinct funding roles.

Therefore, this year I have asked the Director of Finance to submit (1) a local assistance budget, and (2) a state operations budget. While they will be bound together in a single volume for convenience, I am hopeful that the executive and legislative branches will consider each one separately in order that Californians may better understand the extent to which state government merely acts as an efficient tax collector for the benefit of local government.

LOCAL ASSISTANCE

State contributions for local assistance in 1971–72 were $4,329,191,284. For the budget year of 1972–73, the state will assist local government $4,899,670,225, an increase of 13.2 percent This increasing state support for local governmental agencies is in recognition of the vital role they play as the very backbone of our governmental system

Education

The local assistance budget I am submitting reflects the high priority I believe education must continue to receive in the allocation of our scarce tax resources. In both local assistance and state operations, we again have endeavored to give first consideration to the needs of educating our young people.

We are suggesting one of the largest budgeted year-to-year increases for the support of local schools in California's history. Particularly pleasing to me is the reform of the Teachers' Retirement System. Legislation passed and signed during the 1971 session after three years of extensive administration-legislative effort, marks a giant step forward in assuring the kind of long-term financial security our local school teachers and their families deserve. The landmark legislation provides for an actuarially sound funding basis for the first time in the history of the Teachers' Retirement System. This budget reflects the first of 30 annual payments of $135 million as set forth in this reform bill and $42 million in increased local school apportionments.

In addition, I am pleased to be able to recommend $65 million in new money for California's local schools. This is the fourth time under this administration that state support for local schools has been increased, representing a net increase of approximately $560 million in new money for local schools.

While recommending the $65 million in new school funds, it is important to recognize that a recent California State Supreme Court opinion has indicated the necessity for rethinking the financing of our public systems of elementary and secondary education. In my tax reform proposals during the past few years, I have advocated a move toward more equitable school financing. These proposals have not yet been enacted into law. In the coming year, we expect to work closely with the Legislature, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and interested local groups to revise the funding for local schools in order to achieve a more equitable educational financing system.

Medi-Cal

Based on preliminary welfare caseload projections compiled earlier this year, the proposed Medi-Cal budget for 1972–73, as printed, is $655 million (General Fund). This represents an increase of only 9 percent over the $597 million Medi-Cal budget I signed for the current fiscal year In contrast, during the previous four years, approved Medi-Cal budgets rose three times as fast—by an average of 31-percent per year.

However, due to a steadily declining welfare caseload during the past eight months, it now appears that there will be an $80 million General Fund savings in the Medi-Cal budget for the current fiscal year. This would reduce Medi-Cal expenditures this year to $517 million—only 6 percent above the previous year's spending level ($484 million).

And, if California's welfare caseload—to which Medi-Cal is tied directly—should continue to decline or generally level out in the year to come, it is entirely possible that a similar savings in Medi-Cal expenditures could be made in 1972–73 If this were to occur, it would reduce the budgeted $655 million for Medi-Cal.

Caseload projections which, for the first time, will take into account the continuing effects of our administrative reforms and those resulting from the new welfare reform law, will provide the basis in June for whatever readjustment may be necessary in next year's budget.

Welfare

As a result of the enactment of the new welfare reform law and the far-reaching administrative reforms implemented by this administration, the rate of increase in General Fund expenditures for social welfare in 1972–73 will amount to only a third of what it was each year during the past three years.

While the average increase in the General Fund budget for welfare has been 20 percent a year over the past three years, the expenditure program I am proposing for 1972–73 in social welfare will go up to only 7.3 percent, or $54 million above the current welfare budget.

Because the Welfare Reform Act of 1971 requires the state to pick up a percentage of the local cost of administering welfare—a burden previously borne by county property taxpayers—the great bulk, or $49 million of the $54 million increase, will be returned to the counties to cover their administrative functions.

Had this administration not moved energetically to reform California's welfare system, the additional state, local and federal costs to the taxpayers this fiscal year (1971–72) would have been $338 million greater ($147 million more in General Fund moneys) than they actually will be.

And, without these same reforms, we estimate that the increased welfare burden on the people in 1972–73 (federal, state and local costs) would amount to nearly three-quarters of a billion dollars more than we believe it will be under the budget I am proposing Without reform, General Fund costs for welfare in the coming fiscal year would be $262 million higher than the budget I am submitting to you.

Translated into caseload, this means that had we not reformed welfare, there would be 3 1 million persons on the rolls in June of 1973, at least 700,000 more than the number we can now look forward to in that same month.

Property Tax Relief

During the 1971 session we were successful in achieving $46 million in senior citizens' property tax relief, a continuation of the 30-percent reduction in business inventory relief and, for the first time, meaningful state support for preserving California's open space. For these programs, our budget reflects increased property tax relief amounting to $170 million. Total tax relief for 1972–73 when combined with the state relief given to California's homeowners will total $464 million While much more must be done to provide the kind of substantial and lasting property tax relief which our beleaguered California homeowners urgently need and deserve, the shifts from the property tax provided last year are a step in the right direction

STATE OPERATIONS

This budget does not reflect the degree of austerity which was necessary during the current year. However, let me assure you that I will demand that state managers continue to use their skill, ingenuity, and diligence in seeking the same kind of economies which we have achieved in the past. Scarce taxpayers' dollars must be conserved and utilized in the most efficient manner possible

Higher Education

This budget provides our State University and Colleges System a General Fund increase of $31.5 million in support of a projected growth in enrollment of 11,680 students and 637 new faculty. I am particularly impressed with the manner in which our newly named California State University and Colleges are approaching the need for ingenuity and imagination in education I have therefore proposed that the system receive a $4.5 million Innovation Fund Some of the innovations this will cover are new technological approaches in the operation of libraries, strengthening of the role of department heads to manage more effectively, and the implementation of the "weekend" college concept which will enable more of our working men and women to enjoy the benefits of higher education.

I also am proposing a General Fund increase of $18.7 million for the University of California to support 1,287 additional students and 159 more faculty. Of great importance is the fact that this budget provides $42 6 million for salary increases in both our systems of higher education. I am confident that this will help both the University and the colleges to continue to provide the quality of educational experience which has made these systems leading institutions of higher education in the country.

Student Financial Aid

I am proposing a 41-percent increase in General Fund support for the Scholarship and Loan Commission amounting to $8.2 million This will include a new program of contracting with California independent medical schools for additional medical students, a new graduate fellowship program, and expansion of the very successful college opportunity grant program. For the first time ever, we have summarized in the Governor's Budget all identifiable financial aids available to students who need this kind of help to complete their college work. This summary indicates that $288 7 million of federal and state funds will be available in 1972–73 for students enrolled in all universities and colleges in California, compared to $270 4 million in the current year. These aids should assist many more students to benefit from the kinds of educational opportunities which may otherwise not be available.

Human Relations

The budget I am proposing for human relations reflects, on a program basis, the needs of several significant areas: alcoholism, mental retardation, and narcotics and dangerous drugs Under this approach, programs are presented for legislative and executive review without the fragmentation implicit in multiple organizational responsibility.

Our correctional programs are continuing to experience reduced populations reflecting the favorable recidivism which results from innovative correctional practices There have been instances of tragic violence in our correctional institutions, and in order to protect the lives of correctional officers and other inmates we have instituted additional security procedures together with improved psychiatric care.

The progress we are making in treating the mentally ill and retarded is a particular source of satisfaction. This budget will enable us to maintain our high staffing standards for the mentally ill and to continue to improve staffing for the mentally retarded.

The number of patients in our mental hospitals is continuing to decline, a fact which proves the effectiveness of local treatment programs under the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act.

In order to combat the epidemic problem of venereal disease, I am proposing a funding level which will enable us to continue the educational program we established this year.

In furthering the objectives of self-fulfillment and self-sufficiency embodied in the new welfare reform law, we plan to continue, in this budget, programs of rehabilitation training services to enable welfare recipients to enter the world of work through both public service jobs and private employment.

Resources

This budget provides a substantial increase in funds to further protect and preserve the quality of California's environment, including the maintenance of air and water quality standards, and expanded hunting and fishing opportunities.

We are continuing to expand recreational opportunities by opening new beach and park facilities and by providing accommodations for additional use at many existing locations.

Law Enforcement

I am proposing a significant increase in funding for the law enforcement functions of the Department of Justice and new matching moneys to enable the California Council on Criminal Justice to receive federal assistance under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act.

Salary Increase Funds

Economic necessity required us to forego general salary increases for state employees in 1971–72. There never was any question in our minds that our employees deserved an increase. Under this administration, the number of state employees has actually decreased despite California's continued growth during these five years. This means in many departments, the workload increase has been absorbed with no increase in staff. We are happy this year that we can recognize their dedication by including in the budget $95.8 million for salary increases and for correcting salary inequities. This is equivalent to a 5-percent salary increase for state employees and 7½ percent for academic employees of the University of California and the State Colleges.

Conclusion

During the past two years we have found it necessary to advise the Legislature at periodic intervals that revenues were not meeting expectations The state and nation have felt the effects of inflation and unemployment as we have made the painful transition from a wartime to a peacetime economy. A rapid shift in national priorities away from defense and space has affected many states adversely, including California.

This year I am happy to report that we can expect a vigorous economic recovery across the state An additional 175,000 jobs will be created in California in 1972. The personal income our citizens receive will reach almost $101 billion, a gain of 8 percent. The increases will be sustained, and in virtually all economic sectors. We expect the President's new economic policy to aid the expansion and also hold down inflation. This will enable state revenues to resume a normal growth pattern and insure against a tax increase.

I ask your cooperation in the months ahead as you consider the fiscal plan which we are submitting this 10th day of the 1972 legislative session in accordance with Article IV, Section 12 of the State Constitution, amended November 3, 1970.

RONALD REAGAN, Governor

Relative to the Chinese New Year

WHEREAS, February 14, 1972, at 12:00 midnight, marks the end of the Year of the Boar, and the commencement of the Chinese lunar calendar year 4670; and

WHEREAS, The Chinese New Year begins at the first new moon after the sun enters Aquarius, which will fall in 1972 on February 15, and herald the beginning of "Shuie Nien," the "Year of the Rat"; and

WHEREAS, One legendary version of how the rat took precedence over the other animals is that when Buddha summoned all the animals of the world, the rat and the ox were the first to arrive at the moat surrounding heaven, and the rat gained the advantage by stealing a ride across on the ox's back and then leaping through the gates while the ox clambered ashore; and

WHEREAS, Another ancient legend relates that the enterprising rat gained first place by scaling the gates to heaven while the patient ox waited admittance, and

WHEREAS, According to zodiacal experts the rat represents honesty, ambition, charm, perseverance, success and prosperity, and persons born this coming year will be fortunate enough to possess such attributes; and

WHEREAS, The Year of the Rat will be a year of opportunity, the beginning of a new era, and an excellent time to launch new ventures; and

WHEREAS, As an appropriate beginning for the Year of the Rat, colorful and spectacular festivities will take place in San Francisco the week of February 19 to 27, including the Miss Chinatown U.S A. contest, street carnivals, classical and folk pageantry, special tours of Chinatown, and the Chinese New Year double dragon parade; and

WHEREAS, In keeping with ancient and respected custom, the Chinese communities in California will celebrate the period of New Year's Eve and New Year's Morning, to be climaxed by the world famed Chinese New Year Parade in San Francisco to be held on February 26, 1972, with honors and the offering of wishes of happiness and great good fortune for all throughout the Year of the Rat; now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That the Members extend sincerest best wishes to all Californians of Chinese ancestry for their personal welfare, prosperity and happiness during the Chinese New Year; and be it further

Mr. Thomas was granted unanimous consent that the following letters of transmittal be printed in the Journal:

Joint Legislative Audit Committee

The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly, and
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California

Sirs: We herewith transmit a report by the Auditor General on a financial audit of the State Motor Vehicle License Fee Fund for the year ended June 30, 1970.

The Auditor General expresses an unqualified opinion which means that the financial statements fairly present the financial position of the Motor Vehicle License Fee Fund as of June 30, 1970, and its operations for the year ended on that date.

This fund is used to account for the annual 2-percent in-lieu tax on the market value of all vehicles. Approximately 14 million vehicles were registered with revenues amounting to $234 million. The Department of Motor Vehicles used $7.8 million of these funds for operations. Cities were allocated $106 million and counties $116 million.

The various state transportation funds, including the Motor Vehicle License Fee Fund, will be abolished in accordance with legislation enacted during the 1971 session All transportation revenues will be deposited in the future in the new Transportation Tax Fund. Allocations will be made from this fund to the cities and counties and to the new State Transportation Fund. The various state transportation activities will be accounted for in the latter fund.

Respectfully submitted,

VINCENT THOMAS, Chairman
Joint Legislative Audit Committee

Above report referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly, and
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California

Sirs: We herewith transmit a report by the Auditor General on a financial audit of the Motor Vehicle Fund for the year ended June 30, 1970.

The Auditor General qualified his opinion on the fairness of the financial statements. Exceptions described in footnotes to the financial statements were:

An understatement of assets and liabilities by $749,800 because of the omission of obligations under an amended lease-purchase contract for computer equipment.

The understatement of liabilities and expenditures by undetermined amounts for accrued vacation pay and for unfunded retirement benefits. The unfunded retirement benefits result from the actuarial liabilities of the Public Employees Retirement System.

The Motor Vehicle Fund will be combined with other state transportation funds to form a new Transportation Tax Fund established by 1971 legislation. Allocations will be made from the Transportation Tax Fund to local governments and to a new State Transportation Fund. In the future all of the state's transportation activities will be accounted for in the new State Transportation Fund.

Respectfully submitted,

VINCENT THOMAS, Chairman
Joint Legislative Audit Committee

Above report referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

January 19, 1972

Hon. Bob Moretti
Speaker of the Assembly
3164 State Capitol

Dear Mr Speaker: I request that I be excused on legislative business today in that among other things I have a commitment to speak before the San Gabriel Valley Chapter of the Building Industry Association

In addition, while I have on each of the last three legislative days requested that my per diem be waived due to personal business, the fact is that in the aggregate in excess of one day's time has been devoted to legislative matters including dealing with correspondence, meeting with constituents, and meeting with others for the purpose of discussing new legislation. All of these together suggest to me that being excused today on legislative business is a most reasonable request.

I would further point out that due to a lack of legislative activity I have found it more useful in meeting my legislative responsibilities if I am in my District at this point in time of the 1972 legislative session.

Sincerely yours,

PETE SCHABARUM, Assemblyman
Forty-ninth District

Relative to the Highland Avenue Parkway in the City of Los Angeles

WHEREAS, For many years, the Highland Avenue Parkway in Hancock Park in the City of Los Angeles has been enhanced by a 1.4 mile span of stately palm trees between Wilshire Boulevard and Melrose Avenue; and

WHEREAS, The Public Works Department of the City of Los Angeles has made a determination to cut down some of these trees to make room for a series of left-hand turn lanes; and

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That the Los Angeles City Council is hereby urged to preserve the stately palm trees along Highland Avenue Parkway between Wilshire Boulevard and Melrose Avenue by rescinding the determination of its Public Works Department and to direct the department to find alternative means to solve the traffic congestion on the parkway; and be it further

Resolved, That to avoid such dilemma in the future, the City of Los Angeles is hereby urged to adopt policies and enact ordinances to assure complete disclosure to, and to assure an opportunity to be heard by, affected citizens and community spokesmen whenever destruction of aesthetically unique, historically significant, and locally renowned trees is threatened; and be it further

Mr. Thomas was granted unanimous consent that the following letter of transmittal be printed in the Journal:

Joint Legislative Audit Committee

The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly, and
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California

Sirs: We herewith transmit a report on the audit of the data processing operations of the Department of Mental Hygiene performed by the Office of the Auditor General. The objective of the audit was to evaluate the effectiveness and efficiency of the data processing installation which has an annual budget for the fiscal year 1971–72 of $1,417,000.

The computer is in use three shifts seven days per week, but is not utilized to its capacity. There is a high ratio of test time and rerun time which reduces the productive utilization. Better utilization of multiprogramming could eliminate one full shift.

Expansion of the computer in October 1970 was not needed since state hospital patient population has decreased 30 percent in the last four years.

An expensive, complex cost reporting and billing system is the principal justification for the computer. Costs are accumulated for billing Medi-Cal, insurance companies, and others about $70 million a year. This computerized system costs $800,000 per year or about double the cost of the former system Organizational, operational, planning, and control problems limit the effectiveness of the system and the reliability of information produced.

The report recommends that the system be critically reviewed by the Department of Mental Hygiene. Alternate systems should be explored to find an effective system with the lowest operating cost. The report also recommends that the results of such a review be reported to the Joint Legislative Audit Committee.

For several years the state has been anticipating saving millions of dollars through the consolidation of computer systems. The Department of Mental Hygiene is in consolidation Group No. 1. Consolidation planning and meetings of this group has virtually ceased. The Department of Finance, successor to the Office of Management Services, has not issued a policy statement or provided direction regarding future consolidation efforts This delay in EDP consolidation is costly. It perpetuates inefficiency and limits the effectiveness of the group's total systems development and operation.

The report contains 70 recommendations for the improvement of the Department of Mental Hygiene's data processing operations. The department disagrees with 14 of the recommendations, several of which are essential to the best use of the EDP resources. These are covered in Appendix A of the report.

Respectfully submitted,

VINCENT THOMAS, Chairman
Joint Legislative Audit Committee

Above report referred to the Committee on Efficiency and Cost Control.

Honorable Bob Moretti, Speaker
Members of the Assembly
State Capitol

Gentlemen: Attached is a report by a Subcommittee of the Commission on California State Government Organization and Economy entitled "Preliminary Findings of Subcommittee on California Division of Highways Excess Right of Way".

This report, an outstanding critique literally demanding strong legislative attention, deals with the Division of Highways and their helter-skelter acquisition of property. I have distributed copies of the press release on this report to all members of the Legislature, and am requesting that the Assembly make an investigation of the Division of Highways one of our priorities for this session.

Sincerely,

WILLIE L. BROWN, JR., Chairman

PRELIMINARY FINDINGS OF SUBCOMMITTEE ON CALIFORNIA DIVISION OF HIGHWAYS EXCESS RIGHT OF WAY

January 1972

Commission on California State Government Organization and Economy

January 12, 1972

Mr H. Herbert Jackson, Chairman
Commission on California State Government
Organization and Economy
455 Capitol Mall, Suite 700, Sacramento, California

Dear Mr. Chairman. Transmitted herewith is the report of preliminary findings of the study conducted by your subcommittee on excess highway right-of-way.

As you know, this matter has been under study by several subcommittees of this commission since 1966. In 1969 the State Highway Engineer, J A. Legarra and Highway Right-of-Way officials made definite commitments and assurances to this commission, in writing, as to right-of-way acquisition, management and disposal practices On the basis of more than 7,000 man-hours of work by this subcommittee and its staff since that time, it has become evident that the excess land program involving inventory, sales, leases, engineering holds and property management, is not producing the results the commission had been led to believe Significant changes in procedures and organization are necessary.

The data compiled for the subcommittee has documented that:

—There are serious defects in excess land inventory records.

—Land has been withheld from sale without justification and at the whim of engineers and for unlimited periods of time.
—The department has failed to reduce the excess land inventory.
—There has been little effort to develop productive usage of space available within right-of-way.
—Inefficiency and administrative insubordination has been ignored by those with authority to take appropriate action.

The result of these deficiencies has been a loss of millions of dollars to the taxpayers of the State of California—resources tied up and not available for other purposes. In addition, local governments have suffered untold loss of tax revenue since these properties have not been developed for their highest or best use.

The members of the subcommittee unanimously recommend that public hearings be held by the full commission at the earliest possible date in order that these preliminary findings may be presented, thus forming the basis of a formal report containing conclusions and recommendations for submission to the Governor and members of the Legislature.

Respectfully submitted,

NATHAN SHAPELL, Chairman
Subcommittee on Highway Right of Way
James E. Kenney
Andrew L. Leavitt
Manning J. Post

Summary of Findings

The scope of the work done in this study was on a sample basis and by no means inclusive of all facets of the highway right-of-way excess lands program. There are major problems however which must be solved first. It was on these problems that this effort was concentrated.

—There is a lack of centralized organizational responsibility and authority over the right-of-way excess lands program resulting in ineffective management of the program.
—The excess land inventory system in its present form is incomplete, inaccurate and ineffective in providing for early disposal of land and in reducing the inventory to a minimum number of parcels.
—There has been almost a total lack of control over engineering holds. Headquarter policies concerning engineering holds have been ignored or deliberately disobeyed.
—There have been no positive steps taken to insure an ongoing and productive program for development and management of airspace.
—Substantial amounts of revenue are lost because of current policies and practices (which vary between districts) relating to the use of properties from the time of purchase until needed for construction purposes.
—There is no formal review and approval of use of excess or airspace sites by highways' units prior to occupancy, and no economic analysis is made to determine the justification of such usage.

—The present computer inventory system does not provide management with adequate information to control the program effectively.

Introduction

The Division of Highways of the Department of Public Works is in the real estate business in a big way. Its activities in acquiring real property, either by condemnation or by negotiation, are well known and often the subject of much controversy and publicity. Not so well known, but nevertheless materially significant to the California taxpayer, is that these activities result in a substantial inventory of property that is excess to actual needs for highway right-of-way for which the parcels were acquired. That this inventory is significant is apparent from the following table:

Inventory Date	Number of Parcels	Book Value
January, 1970	11,607	$29,067,424
July, 1970	11,487	33,686,539
January, 1971	11,221	33,732,877
April, 1971	10,695	30,454,159

What is also significant about this data is that, while there has been a gradual reduction in the number of parcels, there has not been the significant reduction which the subcommittee had expected, based on commitments made by the Division of Highways in 1969.

The inventory book value is based upon the sales or exchange value of the excess parcels at the time of acquisition. This valuation concept is that recommended to the Division of Highways by the Office of the Auditor General Since current appraisal data is not available, only a rough estimate of the current value of excess lands is possible. Sales experience in the division's largest district, Los Angeles, showed that the market value of parcels sold approximated three times the inventory value. On that basis, the total inventory value statewide would be $90 million dollars However, as will be discussed later, apparently some 15 percent of the excess parcels were not on the inventory The estimated total value of the excess lands inventory thus would run well over $100 million dollars

The objectives of the Division of Highways in acquiring, managing, and disposing of such a massive excess lands inventory—indeed, the division's obligations to the taxpaying public—should be to· —Minimize creation of excess lands.

—Minimize creation of unsalable excess lands
—Dispose of surplus at the earliest possible date
—Permit no internally controlled "holds" without full justification and rigorous economic analysis
—Maximize the return on necessary excess or right-of-way held prior to highway needs.

The subcommittee's decision to study the Division of Highway's excess lands program was made because the members were convinced that the above objectives were not being met The study objective was to develop concrete evidence in support of that conviction. The subcommittee is satisfied that the study objective has been attained without further field work at this time.

Scope of the Study

It was apparent from the outset that time constraints on staff availability would not permit the comprehensive management review of the highway right-of-way program which the subcommittee had contemplated Based on a preliminary review by the staff and discussions with the subcommittee, it was agreed that the work would concentrate on selected highway routes in five districts as a representative sample.

On the selected sample routes, detail maps were studied carefully to:

—Identify all excess parcels.
—Determine their status under stated policies.
—Compare this status to existing records.
—Analyze the results of the work with particular emphasis on:
  —Accuracy of the inventory.
  —Justification for engineering holds.
  —Status of airspace development.
  —Management and disposal of excess lands

Exhibit A identifies the routes studied in each district and classifies the parcels as they were on the dates the detail maps were examined. All parcels summarized in this exhibit were identified and plotted on freeway maps which are much too large to be included as exhibits in this report. However, they are included herein by reference, and will be retained by the commission in its files.

Exhibit A is summarized as follows:

Discussion of Findings

FINDING: There is a lack of centralized organizational responsibility and authority over the right-of-way excess lands program resulting in ineffective management of the program.

Probably the most consistent finding of this review was the inconsistency in procedure and practices from district to district in the Division of Highways. This was true as to inventory records, mapping techniques, files, land sales and rental practices. One would expect to find some differences because of district size, but by and large there should be one best way of doing things and a central management should be able to work them out.

In the present Division of Highways organization, the Chief Right-of-Way Agent in Sacramento presumably has overall program responsibility. If true, then he is in a completely untenable position, since in fact he does not have the authority to carry out responsibility in this area. The division's policy is clearly laid out in the following quote from a Right-of-Way Manual change issued in March 1969.

> "It must be clearly understood by all operating units of the Division of Highways that final responsibility for the state's excess land program is delegated to the district, and to this end procedures have been developed having a primary purpose of disposing of excess land at the earliest possible date and the maintenance of an absolute minimum of property in the state's inventory." There remains however, ". . . a degree of flexibility so that each district may implement detailed procedures found locally to be the most beneficial in accomplishing the primary goal 'effectively disposing of the excess land inventory'." (Emphasis added)

This, in our view, is the basis of the problem from which stems most of the criticism of the program studied by the subcommittee. Uniform administration, as far as possible, is needed to attain effective management and control of the program.

The fact is that in the Division of Highways, as now organized, the District Engineer is to all intents and purposes autonomous. Thus, the status which the excess lands program has in any one district depends upon the District Engineer's interest in it. To illustrate this, March 1969 policy statements from division headquarters included one statement to the effect that districts would initiate procedures which would lead to the most expeditious clearance of excess lands (release from engineering holds). Two years later, in March 1971, District 07 Los Angeles took official action by issuing its own circular letter requiring specific management level approval of such holds However, the first instance of a hold receiving this approval was not dated until May 14, 1971. An earlier headquarters policy statement (January 1970) called for immediate review of all engineering holds for conformance to certain standards, and for a subsequent annual review by the District Engineer. In May 1971 our staff was informed that the first review had only recently begun in Los Angeles.

This kind of failure to comply with policy from Sacramento was apparent to some degree in each of the five districts visited, at least as related to the excess lands program We have serious reservations whether there will be lasting improvements in this program unless there are organizational changes which will remove the program from engineering jurisdictions. The Division of Highways is an engineering-oriented organization Their interest is in building highways. In relation to total dollars the excess lands program is regarded as of minor importance and, consequently, has little if any status or priority.

FINDING: The excess land inventory system in its present form is incomplete, inaccurate and is ineffective in providing for early disposal of land and in reducing the inventory to a minimum number of parcels.

Shortly after filing its reply to the commission's 1969 questionnaire, the division revised its excess lands inventory system and policies. The vehicle was a Right-of-Way Manual amendment dated March 21, 1969, subsequently expanded upon by another amendment dated January 26, 1970.

Briefly, the changes were to have accomplished the following:

—A complete and accurate inventory of all excess lands as of July 1, 1969.

—An accurate and uniform record system in the districts and computer record in Sacramento headquarters.

—A uniform categorization of parcel status.

—Clearance of parcels for sale at the earliest possible date.

—Disposal of excess lands at the earliest possible date.

—Maintenance of an absolute minimum of property in the state's inventory.

The findings of this subcommittee are that none of these anticipated accomplishments have been realized. The July 1, 1969 inventory effort was ineffective, inaccurate, and incomplete. The system and its operation since that time are such that it is highly unlikely that any material improvement can be expected.

A system to identify and catalog excess lands should be an aid to attain the objective of prompt and efficient disposal of excess A condensed description of a system as it should work, using the division's present parcel categorization, would be:

—A parcel containing excess is placed in the inventory upon acquisition. Its first classification is Category 3, Undetermined Right of Way.

—A request for clearance is sent immediately to the design engineers, who must respond within 30 days The response would indicate that the excess will be needed for a project (Category 2, Held for Projects), or that it should be transferred to Category 1, Available for Immediate Sale.

—The process to dispose of Category 1 parcels is set in motion immediately upon transfer to that category.

—Category 2 parcels are flagged for periodic review and rejustification.

In its present form the system is incomplete and is not producing the desired results. The staff has discussed the system and its use with Excess Lands personnel in six districts that contain about 86 percent of the excess parcels on the inventory. These discussions reinforced our findings that the system has many deficiencies The principal deficiencies are as follow:

1. An estimated 1,650 parcels of excess land, worth at least $15 million dollars are not on inventory

A detailed examination of the record maps for 16 routes in five highway districts disclosed 448 parcels of excess land in addition to the

2,876 parcels on the official inventory records. The staff furnished the districts' personnel with lists of all additional parcels found; they were not disputed.

The number of additional parcels found on the routes reviewed was 15 percent of those on inventory. If the same rate of error prevailed over the statewide inventory of 10,573 on the record as of August 31, 1971, it would have meant that some 1,650 parcels of land were not recorded as excess.

Without current appraisals, it would be impossible to determine the value of unrecorded excess lands. Based strictly on the statewide average book value per parcel of the recorded inventory as of August 31, 1971, the book value of unrecorded excess would have been approximately $5 million dollars. On the basis of a division headquarter's statement that current values average about three times current book values, it is estimated that the value of unrecorded excess lands held by the Division of Highways is at least $15 million dollars. The subcommittee believes that this is a highly conservative estimate.

The inaccurate condition of the inventory record exists because:

—Districts did a poor job of setting up the 1969 inventory.

—The system does not provide controls to insure that every excess parcel reaches the inventory promptly, if at all.

In support of this finding are the results of districtwide reviews of all routes by district personnel. This review was ordered in all districts by the Director of Public Works as a result of our findings in District 07, Los Angeles. As a result, Right-of-Way Engineering and Excess Lands personnel reviewed the record maps and have identified at least 1,000 additional parcels in District 07, Los Angeles and District 04, San Francisco. No doubt a proportionate number of additional parcels would be discovered in the other nine districts.

2. Right-of-Way Engineering and Excess Lands personnel often interpret maps differently.

Many of the uninventoried parcels can be attributed to a lack of uniformity in the techniques of preparing and interpreting maps. Right-of-Way Engineering personnel prepare the maps; their techniques vary between districts and often within a district.

A list of excess parcels prepared by engineers will not always agree with a list prepared by excess lands personnel even though they are both made from the same maps An informal telephone survey by the staff elicited rather interesting results. Several districts were asked how many new parcels were discovered when they reviewed all routes in July as ordered by the director. The first replies indicated that there were disagreements between staff assigned to the job. Districts were then asked who did the job, who reviewed it, and what the final outcome was.

The result of the survey was as follows:

District No.	Headquarters	Number of parcels found by Right-of-Way Engineering	Excess Lands
03	Marysville	("We have until the end of the year to do it")
04	San Francisco	299	299
07	Los Angeles	1,400	700
10	Stockton	None	None
	(The staff later found 23 parcels in a limited sample of routes. District personnel agreed)
11	San Diego	400	20
	(The staff later found 40 in a limited sample of routes. District personnel agreed)

3. The inventory system does not include two types of acquisitions:
—Those made from the Highway Right-of-Way Acquisition Fund.
—Those made from nondepleted material sites.

The Highway Right-of-Way Acquisition Fund was created in 1952 by the Legislature to provide funds for the advance acquisition of right-of-way to prevent development to a higher use and the consequent higher acquisition cost if the development were permitted to proceed (so-called protection acquisitions). On August 31, 1971, its principal asset was $28,717,800 invested in some 529 parcels The very long holding periods for these parcels, during which right-of-way lines may be relocated, increases the changes that they will contain excess; the division estimates that probably 25 percent of the parcels are of this kind.

Parcels acquired for use as highway construction material sites are often held for long periods of time without being used. There are some 78 of these, some of which have been held for many years. In District 11, San Diego, material sites had been acquired in 1931 and 1955 and had never been used. Another was acquired in 1953 and has not been used since 1954.

These parcels and others like them are not included in the inventory and are not reviewed from time to time to determine if they are excess.

4 A significant number of parcels are not made available for sale or placed on engineering hold at the earliest possible date

Stated Division of Highways policy is to do this as soon as possible after acquisition. Districts differ in practice District 07 Los Angeles usually waits until all project plans, specifications and estimates are completed. This unnecessary delay has prevented the timely sales of many parcels. Other districts are able to determine excess almost immediately upon acquisition.

Excess land is not normally sold until it has been transferred to Category 1 as available for immediate sale. Excess land required for projects should be transferred to Category 2 Regarding such transfers, the Right-of-Way Manual provides that excess land should be reclassified "... at the earliest possible date following the determination of a calculated right-of-way line..."

Except for advance acquisitions (hardships and protections) a calculated right-of-way line is always available at the time of acquisitions. Thus, the stated policy is to transfer parcels to Categories 1 or 2 as soon as possible after acquisition

An analysis of the parcels in Category 3, Undetermined Right-of-Way, disclosed that about 60 percent (some 2,800 parcels) were entered into the system in the last six months of 1969 and had not yet been reclassified. Since this was the period when the new system was being initiated, it is reasonable to assume that most of these parcels had been acquired previously and should already have been reclassified. The same analysis disclosed that about 20 percent of them (some 900 parcels) were entered into the system in 1970 and were still not reclassified.

This apparent disregard for the policies established by the division has prevented the timely sale of many parcels. Staff analysis by district indicates the practice is fairly common.

A specific example of this situation was found on Interstate 210 Freeway in District 07. On one section of this freeway, not only had the plans, specifications, and estimates been completed (May 28, 1969) but the contract had been let (on October 15, 1970) and this section was actually under construction. There were 62 parcels in this section which were still in Category 3 as undetermined right-of-way. This is an example of gross violation of division policy. It must not be tolerated by the division; the system should be such that the situation should automatically be brought to management's attention and appropriate action taken to correct it and to discipline the staff responsible for it.

5. Changes in right-of-way lines that create, eliminate, increase or decrease excess often are not communicated to the Excess Lands Section.

When a parcel is acquired, the location of the then current right-of-way line indicates the existence and size of excess land. If the right-of-way line changes, the status of the excess may be altered. It is important that the new line be drawn on the record maps and that excess lands personnel be notified of any excess land change.

There is no established procedure to assure that this is done. As a result, many parcels contain excess now, although they did not at the time of acquisition and should be on the inventory Conversely, many parcels now in the inventory are located within a right-of-way. Parcel size alone can also be affected

6. Two or more separate parcels of excess contained within one acquisition are often not separated in the inventory records.

Many acquisitions contain two or more separate parcels of excess. There are no procedures to assure that each separate parcel will be shown on the inventory.

The information relative to each parcel must be readily available and accurate If one inventory record contains the combined data relative to several parcels, it cannot serve its purpose.

7. There has been no overall reconciliation between the headquarters computer record and the districts' inventory cards. Neither are accurate.

Only in District 03, Marysville, did we find the computer inventory list reconciled to the property cards or excess land files. This was done quarterly. In the other districts, attempts to reconcile had been made, but after being unsuccessful several times, they stopped trying.

8. District personnel who work with the computer inventory lists often do not understand that portion of their job. They have not been properly trained and do not possess all the prerequisite skills.

The staff discussed the excess land inventory system with highways personnel in six districts. Without exception they expressed a lack of confidence in the system. Most of them said they ignored the system to a great extent and have developed substitutes for it in their own offices.

The lack of confidence was usually attributed to failure to understand how the system worked and what it could do for them. None of the excess land personnel who work with the system acknowledged having received any training.

The August 1971 computer inventory list contained 86 parcels with minus dollar values in eight districts. Staff analysis indicates the condition is widespread through the system.

FINDING: There has been almost a total lack of control over engineering holds Headquarter policies concerning engineering holds have been ignored or deliberately disobeyed.

In its reply to the commission's 1969 questionnaire, the division committed itself to developing certain policies regarding justification for engineers' withholding property from sale. The policies subsequently issued included these:

—Written approval of the District Engineer for all holds.
—Properties can be held for projects other than those for which purchased only if:
  —Required for a project on which the state has a route adoption.
  —Analysis shows the economic feasibility for holding for the required period of time.
—Written approval of the Deputy State Highway Engineer for held property with an inventory value of $25,000 or more or a market value of $50,000 or more.
—Immediate review of all holds by the District Engineer for conformance to the above standards.
—Annual review by the District Engineer to assure that only parcels conforming to the above standards are being retained.

Our findings are that these standards and instructions have either been ignored or deliberately disobeyed In many cases, the effect is that an engineer had simply to "stick a pin in a map" to hold a parcel for an indefinite period. This should be amply demonstrated in the discussion of deficiencies which follows.

1. Justification or documentation for engineering holds is often either inadequate or nonexistent.

When holds are placed on excess parcels it is usually done by designating a number of parcels rather than by individual parcel. This practice was found in all districts visited. In these instances, no attempt is made to justify the hold for individual parcels and the justifications are usually in such general terms as "May be needed for proposed widening"; "Hold until construction completed"; "Hold for future interchange"; or "Hold until completion of design". Approval by higher authority based on these brief and generalized statements depends completely on the judgment of the person placing the hold and amounts to little more than a "rubber stamp" approval.

An example of this practice in District 07 was noted in which a memorandum from a design engineer placed a hold on 142 parcels " .. as they maybe (sic) required for the proposed widening of the San Diego Freeway". This hold was made on February 13, 1970; however most of these parcels have since been earmarked for a future interchange of Routes 405/105. Since the district has reached an impasse in attempting to complete a freeway agreement with the City of Hawthorne, it is not known when future construction will take place. The acquisition dates of these parcels range from 11 to 13 years. Approximately 90 of the parcels were not on the inventory at the time of the study and their value was not ascertained. However, of the parcels that were inventoried, two had high inventory value, one of 0.70 acres at $30,000 and the other of 0 24 acres at $13,000.

In the review of documentation and justification of engineering holds in District 07 an attempt was made to verify all parcels held on Route LA-405. In addition to the inventory cards in the Excess Lands Section, a file is maintained in the Right-of-Way Engineering Section. A comparison was made of these two files for holds on Route 405. Excess Lands had 39 inventory cards in Category 2, Held for Projects, while Right-of-Way Engineering files indicated there were 21 parcels on hold. However, only three parcels were classified as engineering holds in both files. Of the other 54 parcels involved 28 were in one file, but not in the other, while 26 were in both files, but not in agreement as to hold status Attempts to document current status of parcels required searching in several locations and in some cases the search was abandoned after several attempts as district personnel had begun a review of all excess parcels in compliance with a headquarters directive prompted by the study findings.

2 Frequently there is no time limit placed on engineering holds.

Documentation for engineering holds rarely contained a specific time that parcels were to be held. The limit was usually expressed in terms of some future indefinite point in time such as design completion, determination of right-of-way requirements or completion of construction. In many cases not even this kind of reference was made, indicating only such things as that holds were for future widening or a proposed interchange.

3 No analyses are made to evaluate economic feasibility of engineering holds.

There is no evidence to indicate that any meaningful economic justifications have been made There are a few instances in response to specific inquiries where statements are made to the effect that it would be more economical to retain a parcel. Undoubtedly, in some cases the conclusion is correct, but it appears the conclusion was based on superficial analysis and "horseback" opinions rather than sound economic analysis and scientifically based criteria.

4. District engineers do not periodically review engineering holds.

Existing policy requires that written approval of the District Engineer must be obtained to place a hold on excess land and that an annual review shall be made by the District Engineer to assure that the hold is still justified. In the districts visited the authority for original approvals has been delegated to various management levels and the procedures and documentation vary considerably. As pointed out earlier the documentation, justification, and procedures are such that the approval actually is made by the person who requests the hold.

There was no established procedure for a systematic, periodic review and reevaluation of justification for existing holds. The only time an existing hold was reviewed was when the project for which a parcel is held was completed or when inquiries were made regarding the availability of specific parcels.

5. Holds are not approved by the Deputy State Highway Engineer as required by stated policy.

Headquarters policy issued in January 1970 requires that engineering holds which have an inventory value of $25,000 or more or market value of $50,000 or more must be authorized in writing by the Deputy State Highway Engineer. This policy had not been implemented prior to the start of this study. For example, the first request by District 07 for such approval was dated May 14, 1971

6. Parcels are "unofficially" held by improperly retaining them in Category 3 as Undetermined Right-of-Way.

The study review disclosed numerous parcels classified as Category 3, Undetermined Right-of-Way, which according to established criteria should have been reclassified in Category 1 or 2 While it may or may not have been intentional, this breakdown in procedure results in an "unofficial" hold and bypasses the requirement for approval at the district level and in the case of high value parcels, headquarters approval.

One example of this in District 07 is Parcel 7467 on Route LA-405. This is a 9 934-acre parcel acquired in December 1959 with an inventory value of $230,000. The parcel was certified as excess available for disposal on May 28, 1964, however it has been placed on hold and released several times since then. When the new inventory was established in 1969 this parcel was placed in Category 3 A hold was placed on the parcel on January 22, 1971 for proposed interchange of Routes 405/47, but the parcel was never transferred out of Category 3 The design unit placing the hold does not expect construction of this interchange until after 1980.

7. Parcels are sometimes not released for sale because of breakdown in communications between organizational units of the Division of Highways.

In District 07, after a field review with a project resident engineer, a letter is prepared in the district office for the resident's signature indicating parcels on hold that can be released as excess and sold. If the resident fails to sign the release and return it, this fact may go undetected for some time. In a specific instance, such a letter was prepared and sent out on January 14, 1970. On June 21, 1971, when the staff inquired about the parcels involved, it was found that the release letter had not been returned from the field. As a result, 28 parcels were withheld from sale for 18 months.

8. Parcels are unofficially held by "shelving" a project to delay the final deadline date.

Division of Highways policy is that all parcels which are not to be held will be cleared for disposal not later than the "PS and E date." This is the date of the project report from the district to the State Highway Engineer, which includes project plans, specifications and cost estimates Division policy also requires districts to send this report to headquarters in Sacramento four months prior to the target date set for advertising the project for bids

In some cases the district completes its design work before the report can be sent to headquarters When this happens in District 07, the district "shelves" the project until the time comes to send the report forward; only then are excess parcels cleared. Some examples of the time lag involved are as follow:

Project	Date PS&E completed	Target date to Hq.	Months on shelf
LA-91, R11.0/R12.1
LA-7, 12.0/14.3 _____	12/28/70	12/71	12
LA-101, 34.8/38.2
Ven-101, 0 0/1 6 _____	1/21/71	6/71	6
LA-210, R5 0/12.1
LA-118, R13.0/14.0 ____	1/ 4/71	11/71	11
Ora-1, 0 2/1.2 _____	5/ 6/71	6/72	13
Ora-57, 10.9/12 5 _____	3/30/71	12/71	9

This practice was also found in other districts. It obviously results in "holding" substantial amounts of property without official sanction.

Vigorous action by the department is essential to bring this completely unjustifiable condition under control. This control cannot be attained, in our view, simply by requiring districts to report progress and activity. There must be departmental level review and followup in the field on a continuing basis.

The value of departmental level review and control is possibly demonstrated by what has happened to engineering holds in the districts visited during this study The following data reflects holds reviewed by the staff in four districts, representing two-thirds of the holds in those districts and over one-third of the statewide total.

	Number of parcels	% of total	Length of holds Shortest	Longest
Since released or can be released now	287	42	8 mos.	37 yrs.
Can be released by July 1972	61	9	2 yrs.	24 yrs.
Subtotal	348	51
Still to be held after July 1972	328	49	2 yrs.	Indefinite
TOTAL	676	100

To emphasize the point—if the department's policies regarding engineering holds had been adopted in these four districts, 42 percent of the holds would not have existed at the time of the study and another 9 percent would be available for release within a year.

FINDING: There have been no positive steps taken to insure an ongoing and productive program for development and management of airspace.

Airspace is defined as ". . . any nonoperating property within highway right-of-way limits which is capable of other uses without undue interference with the operation and future expansion of the transportation corridor for highway or other transportation uses" The division's 1969 report to the commission showed a high degree of interest in promoting the use of freeway airspace. The division indicated that it was taking the initiative in development of airspace by contacting brokers, developers, builders—all firms with the ability and financial capability to develop airspace in California.

In the intervening two years, there has been little evidence at the district level of the promotional effort to which the division was committed. To the contrary:

—None of the five districts visited by the staff had made a real attempt to identify its available airspace.
—There has been minimal effort to rent known airspace. Most new rentals come as the result of unsolicited inquiries.
—Until very recently, districts have not attempted to staff the function so that a proper job can be done
—Assigned staff receive little or no cooperation from other units.
—There is little indication of an aggressive promotional program which this activity requires

The situation in the airspace program is simply another example, in the subcommittee's view, of the fragmentary result of a program with no priority status and operating on an almost completely decentralized basis.

The safe and efficient operation of a road requires that control be maintained over areas within the right-of-way, but not actually used in the operation of the road Those areas include the space over, under and between the traveled lanes of the road. Fee ownership is usually required in order to maintain the necessary control; often the areas can be made available for other purposes by means of restrictive leases. Such leases are authorized by the Streets and Highways Code.

Few projects have been considered that propose the use of space over freeways. Independent analyses have indicated that this utilization is not now economically feasible. Statistics are cited which indicate it is less expensive to purchase improved land adjacent to the freeway and demolish the existing improvements, as compared to a construction cost of $50 per square foot of pad over a freeway. In addition, the purchaser could have title to land outside a right-of-way, whereas only a leasehold interest is available under the other alternative. Only two over-the-freeway projects are currently under consideration. Both are in District 07; one a library, and the other a hotel.

The latter project may offer a possible means of achieving over-the-freeway development if district personnel can contact interested companies soon enough The hotel is to be built over a freeway not yet constructed. The builders have worked with the highway design group to incorporate changes into the freeway construction. Some $2 million dollars additional cost would be borne by the hotel builder, which could make over-the-freeway construction economically feasible.

If this procedure can be demonstrated to improve an economic analysis, the division should attempt to contact potential builders far in advance of freeway construction so that highway design can be coordinated with subsequent development to minimize costs.

There are many sites under and between the lanes of roads. They have generally been used for parking, but many have potential for higher uses, including use by the district itself The division's program to seek occupants for these sites has been passive. Factors contributing to the lack of success of the program are:

—A prescribed competitive bid procedure.
—Inadequate staff.
—Inaccurate and incomplete airspace inventory.
—Other highways units are not cooperating.

The competitive bid procedure prescribed by the California Highway Commission was designed to insure that fair market rates would be obtained However, in fact there has been very little competition for most sites At the same time, the bid procedure decreases the chance that a site will be leased. This is because of the approximately 90-day period which is required to (1) prepare public notices, (2) advertise, (3) receive and evaluate bids, and (4) issue a lease. Many potential lessees will not tolerate this type of delay, since a similar lease can be consummated with private parties in three to five days, at about the same lease rates and with far less lease restrictions.

What actually happens is that a potential lessee contacts the division, an approximate lease rate is quoted (which will be about the minimum bid set by the division) and the division then sets in motion the bid procedure When the bids come in, there is usually only one bidder who gets his lease at the quoted rate.

The State Highway Commission has given permission for negotiated leases under certain circumstances Conceivably, these leases can be consummated in a short time and eliminate much of the red tape now involved in leasing airspace However, the State Highway Commission has retained the prerogative of reviewing each lease before it becomes effective Blanket authority to negotiate leases could improve the attractiveness of leasing airspace sites, without any change in the lease rate. Obviously, where an unusually attractive site is sought by more than one potential lessee, the bid procedure would be essential to fairly lease the site and get the best price.

Lack of sufficient staff assigned has hindered the program. The leasing of airspace achieved prominence in recent years due to the construction of more elevated roads. Most of the sites are under elevated roads and most are located on interstate routes. The increased amount of airspace created a need for a larger and more specialized staff. For most of the last two years, headquarters office had one position assigned. The two districts having most of the existing airspace when this study started and had a total of three staff for this function. Additional personnel have been added since the commission expressed an interest in this activity. Considering the size and importance of the job that needs doing, resources available have been minimal.

Paramount among the needs of the program is an accurate inventory of airspace sites. Although the program has been in operation for several years, there is still no accurate inventory. The following summary shows a comparison of the reported inventory of three districts with an inventory made by the staff.

	District inventory	Staff inventory
Sites in use	279	309
Available for lease	78	115
Total sites	357	424
Percent of sites not on inventory		18+

In addition to reviewing leases and occupancy reports, on-site inspections of some areas were made. Since on-site inspections were so few and limited to District 07, the additional sites discovered should not be considered to be all inclusive.

Up to this time the principal way that airspace sites came to the attention of airspace staff was when a prospective lessee would inquire about a site. In the case of many sites occupied by the Maintenance Department and other highways units, airspace personnel have not been aware of the existence of the space District 07 and 04 said they were going to start inspecting all of their routes to locate all potential airspace sites. District 03 is now in the process of doing this.

A serious problem in the management of airspace is encroachment by other units of the division The Maintenance Department is the most frequent offender. They often move in and set up a facility without prior approval from or notice to airspace personnel. A few months later, after they have made some improvements on the site, they are very resistive to any action to move them out.

An example of this encroachment was found in District 07. While making an on-site tour of a prime leasing area for airspace, a highways unit was found on a site which was not on inventory. The District Airspace Unit had no knowledge of the site nor of the occupancy. After extensive checking, the maintenance unit made several telephone calls and identified the occupying unit as the construction unit.

In many instances, other highways units are making very uneconomical use of sites. Again in District 07, it was found that the Highway

Test Laboratory had tied up several sites within a prime leasing area. An on-site visit showed that only about one-half of the area was being utilized effectively. The remainder of the area was used for storage and parking, all of which could have been done on less desirable sites.

Since the subcommittee began inquiring into this area, additional highways staff has been assigned to prepare an accurate inventory. They are being assisted by other units of the division in ways which are appropriate to their special skills. This is in response to a directive from the division headquarters, and is being done in all districts.

FINDING: Substantial amounts of revenue are lost because of current policies and practices (which vary between districts) relating to the use of properties from the time of purchase until needed for construction purposes.

This was not the subject of special emphasis in our current study since it is not related directly to excess lands. However, in the work on Interstate 210, District 07 Los Angeles, some analysis was done on two small sections (a few square blocks) of that freeway where the lands had been purchased but construction was not scheduled until 1972. The analysis produced these findings:

—Parcel acquisitions began in 1964.

—Under district policy, improvements on all parcels were removed when the occupant at the time of acquisition vacated the property.

—Other than minimal maintenance, no efforts were made to maintain the appearance of the property or develop it for any useful interim purpose.

—If the district had not removed the improvements but had maintained and rented them, it is estimated that the district incurred a net loss of $535,997 to June 30, 1971 because of its no rerental policy, based on the following calculation:

Optimum Rent	$654,380*
Less: Vacancy Factor 4 2%	27,483
Gross Rental	$626,897
Less: Assumed Rental Commission 5% in lieu of Highway's administrative cost	31,345
	$595,552
Less: Maintenance Cost 10%	59,555
Net Rental Income Lost	$535,997

—Under current law local governments are paid 24 percent of all rent received in lieu of taxes. Because total potential rental was not received, local governments incurred a "tax loss" of some $150,000.

* For each of 105 parcels in the two sections, the number of months available for rent (one month after acquisition to June 30, 1971) times the monthly rental taken from the appraisal report, or comparable rentals in the area when rental not listed in appraisal report.

The subcommittee would ask several questions in this situation, such as:

—Why was it necessary to begin acquisition so far in advance of construction?

—Are the reasons for the no rerental policy such that they outweigh the economic loss incurred?

—Does the Division of Highways, in fact, perform an economic analysis in these situations?

—Does each district develop its own policy, or are decisions subject to headquarters review and approval?

—What obligation does the division have, or should it have to maintain such properties in an esthetically pleasing condition?

—What efforts are made to develop interim use of these properties if, in fact, removal of improvements can be justified? What uses are possible?

The subcommittee suggests that this would be a profitable area for study by the appropriate legislative committee in a position to consider and give proper weight to all the pertinent factors involved.

FINDING: There is no formal review and approval of use of excess or airspace sites by highways' units prior to occupancy, and economic analyses are not made to determine the justification of such usage.

During the review of the status of excess property and a limited field inspection of specific parcels of excess land and airspace sites, the staff became aware of the unauthorized and virtually uncontrolled use of property by other highways' units.

In several instances construction and maintenance units had occupied and were using airspace and excess land without the knowledge of the Right-of-Way Department. Other airspace and excess sites were used of which the Right-of-Way Department was aware, but some were prime sites which could have and should have been developed for a better use. Some examples are as follow:

—A house had been used for more than eight years as a resident engineer's office. The property was not on the excess land inventory.

—A house with a swimming pool (inventory value of $30,000) was being used as a field office by a survey crew.

—Thirteen parcels were on a hold status because the access to them was blocked by the use of one parcel with a building as a survey field office.

The Maintenance Department has need for many sites in widespread locations. However, it was found that maintenance owned in fee many large sites which were not really meeting their needs, plus are acting as a drain on the tax rolls.

An example, again in District 07, is the central maintenance station. Here is a site, with a current appraisal in excess of $1,000,000. Most of the maintenance work handled by this station is at considerable distances, thus morning and evening travel of maintenance crews goes through major traffic congestion and hours of worktime are lost each day.

Currently, there is a proposal to close this station and locate it more centrally (in the heart of prime freeway lease area) on airspace. Certainly, this is a start in the right direction, but analysis might indicate that the proposed prime lease sites may not be the most efficient location for a maintenance station. If one would maximize maintenance activity, stations would be located every mile or so which would minimize travel, but capital costs for construction would be prohibitive. Conversely, with centralized maintenance stations, capital costs are minimized but travel becomes prohibitive and maintenance service will deteriorate. There should be some location for maintenance stations where a break-even point between travel costs and capital costs would optimize the maintenance function Where maintenance is performed mainly on freeways, it seems logical to locate sites on or adjacent to freeways, on airspace.

An economic analysis could be made prior to future construction of maintenance stations that will optimize the operations of the maintenance function and reduce the amount of fee-owned land by placing stations where possible on the less desirable airspace sites.

While it is the department's policy that the District Right-of-Way Agent will make suitable facilities available to other highway units upon request, it is more generally the practice that other units find and occupy prime sites and then tell Right-of-Way not to dispose of them In many cases even the latter action is not taken.

There is no formal system for the review and approval of the use of excess or airspace sites by highway's units and no evidence was found that consideration had been given to the economic justification of such usage.

FINDING: The present computer inventory system does not provide management with adequate information to control the program effectively.

The system currently produces a "management" report monthly which is so highly summarized it is of little use. Parcel data input to the system is limited to the point where the system lacks capability to produce useful management reports. The system should be expanded so that reports can be produced which will permit management to:

—Compare performance with goals and objectives.
—Observe trends in the acquisition, management and sales activities of the program.
—Evaluate the condition of the inventory.
—Be aware of exceptions to stated policies with respect to individual parcels.

At least three districts are working on system changes independently. From a management standpoint, it would seem prudent to take advantage of the work done thus far, and consolidate future effort at the headquarters level.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT TO PRINT IN JOURNAL

Mr Thomas was granted unanimous consent that the following letter of transmittal be printed in the Journal:

Joint Legislative Audit Committee

The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly, and
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California

Sirs: We herewith transmit a report on the State Printing Plant's contracting for printing performed outside of the plant and out-of-state.

In the 12 months ended November 30, 1971, the state purchased $3.1 million of printing from others and produced about $21 million in the State Printing Plant.

The plant was operating at about 90 percent of capacity while 13 percent of the state's printing was being obtained from others.

The lack of specialized equipment at the state plant required the contracting for $2.7 million of printing in the past year.

Continuous and perforated forms along with snap-out and carbon interleaf forms accounted for $1.8 million of the work that required specialized equipment The remainder consisted of medical identification cards, tab cards and warrants, a five-color publication, and bonds and coupons.

Printing totaling $375,000 was purchased because the state plant did not have the capacity in specific production centers at a particular time in order to meet delivery dates set by state agencies. This printing consisted of $286,000 of textbooks, $46,000 for the California Driver's Handbook, and $43,000 for income tax booklets.

The amount of state-purchased printing produced outside of California is not readily available. Some of the companies providing printing to the state have plants both within and outside of California At least $330,000 which was mostly textbook printing was purchased by the state and manufactured out-of-state.

An Attorney General's opinion dated February 11, 1970, concluded that the California Preference Law was unconstitutional. As a result of this opinion, out-of-state manufacture of textbook printing purchased by the state is expected to increase. The loss of state and local taxes and other economic losses to California could eliminate out-of-state price advantages.

The feasibility of equipping the State Printing Plant to do more of the specialized printing purchased by the state requires further study.

Respectfully submitted,

VINCENT THOMAS, Chairman
Joint Legislative Audit Committee

Above report referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT TO PRINT IN JOURNAL

Mr. Thomas was granted unanimous consent that the following letters of transmittal be printed in the Journal:

Joint Legislative Audit Committee

The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly, and
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California

Sirs: We herewith transmit a performance audit report on the automotive management policies of the Department of Industrial Relations.

Serious violations of state rules and regulations relating to the use of state-owned automobiles and in the payment of travel allowances were found. Many of the violations were committed by supervisory and administrative personnel who should be preventing such violations.

Some employees permanently assigned state automobiles are using them primarily for commuting between home and office with the state paying bridge tolls and parking fees. Cars are being used on weekends and holidays for personal purposes. One official who has been paid a relocation allowance has been traveling each weekend at state expense during working hours between San Francisco and Eureka. This has been going on for almost two years. Another employee has been commuting between his home in Fresno and his headquarters in San Francisco. These practices by management officials, along with other findings and examples cited in the report, increase the state's cost of operations and reduces the time that employees are available to serve the public.

The report concludes that the lack of management direction and supervision in promoting greater operating efficiencies has resulted in needless and wasteful costs to the state.

A number of recommendations are contained in the report that should be adopted by the department to strengthen controls, to reduce the costs of travel, and to increase productivity with the use of fewer resources.

Respectfully submitted,

VINCENT THOMAS, Chairman
Joint Legislative Audit Committee

Above report referred to the Select Committee on Industrial Safety.

The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly, and
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California

Sirs: Transmitted herewith is a performance audit report on the Division of Industrial Safety of the Department of Industrial Relations. The division is responsible for the administration of the state laws dealing with the safety of employees in places of employment.

In 1969 there were 170 fatalities and over 75,000 lost-time injuries of manufacturing and agricultural employees. Statistics not released at this late date by the division show that in 1970 fatalities increased to 220 and injuries decreased to 72,274.

The industrial section of the division which is responsible for the prevention of these fatalities and injuries has 80 employees and a budget of $1.4 million. The same resources are allocated to the pressure vessel section which, in 1969, reported three accidents involving air tanks causing 2 injuries and no fatalities. Comparative data for 1970 and 1971 is not yet available. The report gave no reasons as to why up-to-date information is not available.

No priorities are established by the division as a whole. Each of the seven sections specializes in its own area regardless of where the greatest safety hazards exist.

Each engineer makes up his own work schedule. The frequency and types of inspections vary considerably among the individual engineers. A selective system of inspection designed to concentrate on those plants and industries with the most injuries has been developed by the division but has not been implemented.

About 40 percent of the field engineers time is spent in travel and office work. Savings in time and travel expenses could be realized if inspection trips were better planned and controlled.

Performance standards have not been established. No effort is being made to evaluate the work of individuals or of the division as a whole. The report discusses seven recommendations which need to be implemented by the division to improve its operations.

Respectfully submitted,

VINCENT THOMAS, Chairman
Joint Legislative Audit Committee

Above report referred to the Select Committee on Industrial Safety.

Speaker Presiding

At 2:18 p.m., Hon. Bob Moretti, 42nd District, presiding.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT

Speaker pro Tempore Bee was granted unanimous consent that the following editorial, which appeared in the Sacramento Bee on February 8, 1972, be read, and that it be printed in the Journal:

Belotti Served Public Well in Assembly

State Assemblyman Frank P. Belotti of Eureka, who has served in the Legislature continuously since 1950, has announced he will not seek reelection at the end of his current term. The best wishes of his constituents should go with him when he retires because he has served them well.

Belotti, at 74, is the oldest member of the Legislature, outranked in seniority only by three other lawmakers. He represents the Second Assembly District consisting of Mendocino, Humboldt, and Sonoma Counties.

The decision not to stand for reelection was a sad one for him because he had never missed a session of the Assembly because of illness until he was severely injured in an automobile accident last fall. Despite this, many friends, fellow Republicans as well as opposing Democrats, had urged him to stay in politics.

Belotti explained:

"I deeply regret to make this announcement. But in view of my wife's slow recovery from a bad automobile accident in which both she and I were injured, I feel it is in the best interests of both of us that I retire "

Belotti was a strong representative of the interests of his vast northwestern California district which embraces so much farm, timber and recreational land. He also was one of the lawmakers who gave consistently strong support to the California State Fair and Exposition in Sacramento and to the county and district fairs throughout the state.

He became known as an elder statesman in the Legislature and his calm voice calling for reason often served to avoid open and damaging splits in party and legislative debates. He gave good service to the public, which should commend him.—Sacramento Bee, Tuesday, February 8, 1972.

PRAYER

The following prayer was offered by the Chaplain, Father Leo McAllister:

Save Us, Lord, From seeing You as the "Supreme Outsider" completely separated from us and our world We do not have to turn away from our world in order to talk to You You are in everything we see and have. You are the great "Insider" We do not have to speak to You in sonorous tones, nor in archaic language This just makes You more distant and rather unappealing.

Do not let us treat You as the "House God", someone we drag in each day at the beginning of the session, for the sake of appearances, and then forget because the affairs of state are not in Your realm.

Help us to realize that all of our cares and concerns are also Yours. No detail of human life or its condition is outside the scope of Your interest and love,—AMEN.

Every step by which we have advanced to our present independence has been distinguished by some token of Providential agency These reflections have forced themselves upon my mind too strongly to be suppressed"—AMEN.

Lord, Unwilling to be limited or confined by definitions or descriptions, You claimed no titles for Yourself. To Your chosen people You were the God without as much as a name.

While titles are part and parcel of our heritage, let not our authority lie solely in our titles nor the position we hold be the sole source of our impact on others. Rather let it be in our dedication to duty and to the cause of justice within a family of brothers.—AMEN.

WHEREAS, Through this service and the availability of the written portion of the driver's examination in Spanish, many persons fluent only in Spanish have been able to secure drivers' licenses, thereby improving their opportunity to secure employment; and

WHEREAS, This noxious weed, when blown by the wind, rolls and becomes congregated along fence lines, in irrigation systems, into moving traffic on the highways, and valley communities, creating many costly clean-up projects, fire hazards, and danger to life and property; and

WHEREAS, The economic problems facing agriculture in this area lend to the establishment of even larger infestations of this noxious weed on the bare lands left by eventual bankruptcies of the owners, by absentee owners, and on bare public lands in the area, now, therefore, be it

Resolved by the Assembly of the State of California, That the Members hereby request the Department of Agriculture, in cooperation with the Department of Water Resources and the Division of Highways, Department of Public Works, to study methods of controlling Russian thistle in the west side of the San Joaquin Valley; and be it further

Relative to Donner Lake

WHEREAS, Historic Donner Lake, located high in California's scenic Sierra Nevada Mountains, is one of our finest natural recreational lakes; and

WHEREAS, Donner Lake offers the people of California unexcelled water-associated recreation opportunities, beginning with excellent fishing in the early spring; and

WHEREAS, The Department of Water Resources has promulgated regulations requiring that Donner Lake be maintained at minimum elevation until April 15 of each year; and

WHEREAS, The maintenance of minimum elevation causes many rocks to become exposed and others to lie just below the surface of the lake; and

WHEREAS, The maintenance of this elevation makes the launching of boats virtually impossible and creates many navigation hazards, thus denying the boating public the use of this fine lake and damaging the recreation-based economy of the Donner Lake area; and

WHEREAS, The Sierra Pacific Power Company, which operates the Donner Lake Dam, desires to accommodate the adjacent property owners and the recreation users by providing a small increase in the elevation of Donner Lake between March 1 and April 15 in order to permit safe boating; and

Mr. Duffy was granted unanimous consent that the following statement be printed in the Journal.

Statement by Assemblyman Duffy relating to Chapter 815 Statutes of 1971

Chapter 815 of Statutes 1971 was introduced as Assembly Bill 1599 to add Section 5120 to the Welfare and Institutions Code, relating to mental health, and declares it to be the policy of the State of California that the care and treatment of mental patients be provided in the local community

Since the enactment of the Lanterman-Petris-Short Act or before it has been the policy of the state to encourage treatment of mentally ill patients in the community whenever possible This policy was developed because it was thought to be more beneficial for the patient and for those providing mental health treatment services for such treatment to be available in the patient's own environment.

In spite of this policy, many local entities continue to obstruct programs for local treatment in the community either through ordinance or through bureaucratic maneuvering in the local planning commissions. Many communities are reluctant to allow any kind of mental health treatment facility within their area.

The purpose of Assembly Bill 1599 of 1971 was to ensure that community facilities for mental health will be permitted in any area zoned for hospitals Presumably then, if a community wants a hospital, it would have no choice but to allow a mental health facility either as a separate facility or as part of the hospital.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT TO PRINT IN JOURNAL

Mr. Thomas was granted unanimous consent that the following letter of transmittal be printed in the Journal:

Joint Legislative Audit Committee

The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly, and
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California

Sirs: We transmit herewith a performance audit report on the Work Incentive Program (WIN) in California. Objectives of the review were to determine costs, the effectiveness of the program in achieving goals, and the efficiency of the programs operations.

From the September 1968 start of the program to March 31, 1971 (31 months), $67 million was spent on the WIN program in California. At the same time, $103 million in AFDC grants was paid to WIN participants. WIN program costs were financed by $50 million of federal funds, $11 million of state funds, and $6 million of county funds. The AFDC grants were funded from $51 million of federal, $35 million of state, and $17 million of county funds Sufficient state and county cost and statistical data are not available The March 31, 1971 data were developed during the audit.

The objective of the WIN program is to restore AFDC families to independence through employment in the regular economy. In the first 31 months of operation, the program has resulted in an annual savings of only $4 million in AFDC grants Only 2,957 or 2 percent of the 143,720 recipients referred to the program have been employed and remain off welfare. Some 28,000 others received services and were recorded as nonsuccessful terminations. The report states that the program has not had a discernible effect on welfare caseloads. The needs of those referred to it have not been met WIN has not held the interest of those enrolled in the program.

It is difficult to measure the effectiveness of the program. Many of those enrolled in the program possessed marketable job skills but were on welfare because of the general depressed economy Conversely, many of those referred to the program by counties were not enrolled or terminated because of physical, emotional, or other handicaps. Counties must refer unemployed fathers to the program or risk the loss of federal AFDC grants. Only 51,077 were enrolled in the program out of the 143,720 referrals.

WIN personnel at both headquarters and local offices do not have sufficient information regarding enrollee achievement in the various educational and training programs. It is not known whether or not an enrollee completes a course or accomplishes an objective.

State administration and operation of the WIN program is divided between the Departments of Human Resources Development, and Social Welfare. This division of responsibility has created misunderstanding and antagonism between these departments along with conflicting instructions to county welfare departments. No one agency has the responsibility to produce satisfactory results for the millions spent.

The organizational structure of the Department of Human Resources Development precludes the most efficient utilization of WIN personnel. It is impossible for the WIN chief to effect a concerted effort toward the goals established for the WIN program.

HRD has implemented the Federal Department of Labor recommended team concept of staffing WIN field operations Team members are concerned mainly with their own area of specialization. Supervision and direction are lacking. No one is responsible for the overall welfare or progress of individual enrollees.

The report contains 17 recommendations to improve services, establish fiscal and operating control, and to provide data essential for the evaluation of program costs and benefits.

Respectfully submitted,

VINCENT THOMAS, Chairman
Joint Legislative Audit Committee

SEC. 3. Section 250.5 of the Health and Safety Code is amended to read:

250.5. "Handicapped child," as used in this article, means a physically defective or handicapped person under the age of 21 years who is in need of services. The director shall establish those conditions coming within a definition of "handicapped child" except as the Legislature may otherwise include in the definition. Phenylketonuria, cystic fibrosis, and hemophilia shall be among such conditions.

The reference to "the age of 21 years" in this section is unaffected by Section 1 of Chapter 1748 of the Statutes of 1971 or any other provision of that chapter.

SEC. 4. Section 263 of the Health and Safety Code is amended to read:

263. This article does not authorize any treatment service without the written consent of a parent or guardian except as a person under ~~21~~ 18 years is an emancipated minor.

SEC. 5. It is the intent of the Legislature, that, if Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1970 becomes operative, Section 249 of the Health and Safety Code, as amended by Section 1 of this act, shall remain in effect only until Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1970 becomes operative and on that date Section 249 of the Health and Safety Code, as added by Section 2 of this act, which includes the changes in Section 249 made by both Reorganization Plan No. 1 of 1970 and Section 1 of this act, shall become operative.

SEC. 6. It is the intention of the Legislature that to the extent permitted by federal law, eligibility of persons for services to physically handicapped children pursuant to Article 2 (commencing with Section 249) of Chapter 2 of Part 1 of Division 1 of the Health and Safety Code shall continue to age 21, but that, persons 18 years of age and over may consent to treatment service under Article 2. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, Sections 249, 250.5, and 263 of the Health and Safety Code, as amended by Sections 1, 2, and 3 of this act, respectively, shall not constitute a change in, but are declaratory of, the preexisting law.

SEC. 7. The sum of one million two hundred".

Amendment No. 4

On page 1, line 7, strike out "SEC. 2", and insert

"SEC. 8. Sections 1 to 6, inclusive, of this act shall become operative on March 4, 1972.

SEC. 9".

Amendment No. 5

On page 1, line 11, strike out "Unless", and insert

"This act will make available additional funds for the current fiscal year for services to physically handicapped children. Unless these".

Amendment No. 6

On page 1, after line 13, insert

"This act also eliminates the confusion regarding the eligibility of persons 18 years of age or over but under the age of 21 for services to handicapped children on and after March 4, 1972. Chapter 1748 of the Statutes of 1971, which lowers the legal age of majority to 18 for most purposes, will become operative on March 4, 1972. Section 1 of Chapter 1748 of the Statutes of 1971 could possibly be interpreted to eliminate services for physically handicapped children at age 18, although federal law provides that such persons are eligible for services to age 21. In order to eliminate the confusion regarding the eligibility of persons for services to physically handicapped children and to insure the continued availability of such services to persons who are 18 years of age or over but under the age of 21, it is imperative that this act take effect immediately."

Even From Ancient Times, Father, You constantly reminded us of the need for self-discipline. It is always a difficult and trying task. Yet it is one which brings its reward as is evidenced in the words of Mahatma Ghandi writing to a friend, "Have no fear. He who fears hates. He who hates kills. Break your sword and throw it away, so fear shall not touch you. I have been delivered from fear and desire in such a way that I know the power of God".—AMEN.

REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT TO PRINT IN JOURNAL

Mr. Thomas was granted unanimous consent that the following letter of transmittal be printed in the Journal:

Joint Legislative Audit Committee

Sacramento, California

The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly, and
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California

Sirs: We herewith transmit a report on the Auditor General's review of the San Francisco State College Foundation's Audit Report for the year ended June 30, 1971.

The review consisted of a brief investigation into the circumstances and facts behind the critical points covered by the audit report. A firm of certified public accountants audited the foundation and issued the report.

A bookstore inventory shortage of $185,974 was reported as of June 30, 1971. Recording and counting errors were responsible for about $62,000 of this shortage. About $124,000 was attributed to unrecorded sales, pilferage and similar acts.

A cash shortage of $5,153 was reported as resulting from deficiencies in bookstore cash accounting procedures and controls. The bookstore manager at the time the cash shortages occurred has resigned. One employee of the store was arrested and convicted of theft of merchandise.

The Auditor General was critical of the independent auditor qualifying his opinion on certain items in the financial statements while ignoring other related material items. The foundation's auditor qualified his opinion because of the method used to arrive at the cost of books sold. No exception was taken to the net loss of $278,068 or the June 30, 1971 fund balance. Both of these amounts are directly effected by any change in the method of arriving at the cost of books sold.

The auditor did not specifically state that the method used was not in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles or that it was inconsistent with methods used in prior years. The amount of the change and its effect on the financial statements taken as a whole was not disclosed.

Respectfully submitted,

VINCENT THOMAS, Chairman
Joint Legislative Audit Committee.

Above report referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

PRAYER

Upon invitation of Speaker pro Tempore Bee, the following prayer was offered by the Honorable E Richard Barnes, Member of the Assembly, 78th District:

O God, Our Father, Give us a little humility, a little realization, a little gratitude, a little appreciation, a little common decency to acknowledge that without the impact upon our fathers of the Christian message and the Christian experience, this republic wouldn't even be here.

Help us to understand that men are not made wise or strong, or moral, or decent, or compassionate by exterior laws (or agencies), but by the presence of the living God in their hearts. Help us to flee from policies without principles, wealth without work, pleasure without conscience, knowledge without character, commerce without morality, science without humanity, and worship without sacrifice.

In these crucial days, so important to our state and nation, may our leaders, legislative, executive, and judicial, in Washington and the capitals of the 50 states, quietly and consciously and sincerely and persistently and almost desperately shut out the noise and confusion and clamor of this high pressure age and listen to the voice of God and heed the warnings of the Almighty.

As we implore Thy blessing upon our leaders, we beseech Thee for our people.

In the Savior's name.—AMEN.

ECONOMIC MESSAGE

by

Governor Ronald Reagan

In accordance with the provisions of the Government Code relating to state economic policy, I am pleased to submit to you my 1972 Economic Report.

The California economy registered mixed trends during 1971. Statistics relating to the year as a whole, however, tell only part of the story—that our state was affected by the national recession and suffered cutbacks in activity in some areas However, I am pleased to note that by yearend the economy was poised for a strong expansion.

Personal income in the state reached a new high of $93,400,000,000, a gain of 5 2 percent from the year earlier. Disposable income of all Californians rose by 6 5 percent, reflecting a decline in personal federal tax liability

Prices of goods and services as measured by the Consumer Price Index again increased less rapidly in the state than in the nation. The 3.7-percent rise in California was significantly below the 4.3-percent increase for the United States.

By contrast, the impact of aerospace and defense reductions continued to adversely affect employment Total civilian employment during the year declined by approximately 31,000 to 8,004,400, with the unemployment rate averaging 7 percent for all of 1971. The total civilian labor force increased by 49,000 to 8,603,400, an unusually small gain of 0.6 percent.

By the end of the year it was evident that California would experience strong economic growth in 1972 In December, for instance, employment was up 1 7 percent from the year earlier level. The unemployment rate was down sharply to approximately the same rate as for the nation as a whole. There was a resumption of growth in trade and services—two areas of relatively slow gain during the past year. There were also indications that manufacturing activity is on the verge of renewed expansion. There were other significant signs of strength. The number of business failures was down while the number of new incorporations continued to rise. The state experienced strong gains in retail trade Steel and lumber production—to highlight just two important production sectors in California—were running substantially above earlier levels

The construction industry has been a major contributor to the state's economy during the past year Homebuilding activity rose substantially, with 257,000 homes authorized for construction. In addition, there were 30,000 mobilehomes sold in the state In total, we added 287,000 new residential units to the state's housing inventory. This is a significant achievement and was due in part to the availability of mortgage funds and continuing declines in interest rates, particularly during the last months of the year.

Nonresidential construction was affected early in 1971 by the recession. When it became evident that an upturn was occurring in sales and confidence, however, authorizations for nonresidential buildings soared and for the last six months of the year were at one of the highest levels on record.

There are strong indications that the aerospace decline which has affected California for the last several years is now at an end. This readjustment to lower levels of federal spending on high technology projects has been painful It has had the effect of holding down growth in other areas of manufacturing related to aerospace industries. I am hopeful that fiscal policy during coming months will be designed to stimulate a moderate expansion in aerospace so that the tens of thousands of highly qualified technicians, scientists, engineers and production workers who have contributed so much to California in the past can continue to make a major contribution to the state's future.

We are looking beyond the short run in our planning for the state, however. This Economic Report includes a projection of the economy out to 1980. By then we expect to have more than 23,400,000 persons in California. Employment will rise to 9,800,000. To meet the housing demands of this increased population, we will require an average 240,000 housing units per year during the latter part of this decade Personal income will rise to $182,000,000,000 By 1980 California will have a population that is better housed, better fed, with a standard of living substantially higher than we now enjoy.

This will require continuation of essential public programs to insure that California does not find itself afflicted with the type of problem areas that developed in some other states in the country Rapid transit is a project of continuing interest to my administration This year the Bay Area Rapid Transit System is scheduled to begin operations, greatly improving the transportation available to 2,350,000 in the three-county region of the San Francisco Bay area In southern California plans are now progressing for exclusive busways and a mass transit system which will assist travel in Los Angeles.

We are also concerned with air pollution, and are expanding activities of the Air Resources Board, which is responsible for monitoring pollutants in the air and determining programs to reduce this problem. We intend not only to prevent the spread of air pollution but to reduce pollution levels significantly throughout the state.

We are continuing to investigate the feasibility of establishing large capacity desalter plants on the California coast. A feasibility report on a prototype plant in the Diablo Canyon is now underway and will be completed early next year If funds are appropriated, operation could be started by 1978. If this project proves successful, additional plants may be constructed to provide California with an alternative source of water.

California has come through the national economic decline of the past year-and-a-half with a firm economic foundation which will support rapid and substantial growth in the future—growth benefiting all Californians. With an awareness of the needs of the people of this state, we will be able to insure that California remains the nation's leading state.

Respectfully presented,

RONALD REAGAN, Governor

LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL

Honorable Ronald Reagan
Governor of California
State Capitol
Sacramento, California

Dear Governor Reagan:

Transmitted herewith is the material for your annual Economic Report to the Legislature

The Department of Finance has prepared the Review and Outlook from information submitted by various state agencies, as well as material developed by the Department We appreciate the assistance received from each agency

The special section this year presents projections on the California economy out to 1980 This analysis points up the rapid growth which will occur in the State during the present decade, the potential for strong income expansion, and problems which may be developing in the housing construction industry. It is hoped that these projections will be of use in long-term planning for the future of the State.

Respectfully,

VERNE ORR
Director of Finance

REVIEW AND OUTLOOK

The United States' economy in 1971 was characterized by moderate recovery from the 1970 recession. Gross national product amounted to $1,047 billion, a gain of 7.5 percent from the previous year's level The GNP deflator, reflecting inflationary pressures, was up 4 6 percent. Real GNP, representing the expansion of actual production of goods and services, increased by 2 7 percent.

Monetary expansion early in the year was rapid and designed to move the economy quickly out of the recessionary phase Fiscal policy, with large increases for various social programs, resulted in a Federal deficit of $38 8 billion for the year. Despite these developments, many areas of weakness were evident Employment growth amounted to only 0 6 percent, while the unemployment rate averaged 5 9 percent for the year. Increases in trade, services, finance, insurance, real estate and government were offset in large part by declines in manufacturing, construction, mining, and the transportation-utility group

Mixed trends were evident in other sectors as well Consumer expenditures for durable goods, for instance, were up more than 13 percent, due largely to the strong level of auto sales The surge in autos, however, reflected in part makeup buying following the fourth quarter 1970 GM strike, uncertainty over car prices after the 90-day Phase I freeze, and the possibility that prices on foreign imports would rise substantially with imposition of the 10 percent surcharge and currency revaluations Sales of home furnishings were also higher for the year, but not to the extent anticipated from levels of home-building Sales of nondurable goods were up relatively little and on a real per capita basis were approximately unchanged from the prior year's level The real growth in services was also below long-run trends.

Residential investment increased strongly during the year, providing essential support for the recovery Approximately two million housing units were started in 1971, up about 43 percent from 1,434,000 the prior year In contrast, business uncertainty and continuing excess capacity, particularly in manufacturing industries, held the gain in nonresidential investment to less than 6 percent.

Rising productivity was a factor in the recovery of corporate profits, which managed to regain much of the ground lost during 1970 Personal and disposable income were up strongly for the year The personal savings rate increased slightly to 8 1 percent, however, indicating that the consumer was not prepared to step up his spending sufficiently to stimulate a rapid recovery In part, this may have been due to the relatively soft employment situation, and in part to the desire to maintain liquidity

The East and West Coast dock strikes held down net exports to approximately $700 million for the year This was a substantial decline from $3 6 billion in 1970 Government spending was up 6 2 percent, due almost entirely to gains in the state and local component. Federal defense purchases declined more than 5 percent, while nondefense purchases rose nearly 20 percent.

The President's 90-day freeze on wages and prices and the subsequent introduction of Phase II had a significant effect on economic activity in the second half of the year By placing a temporary moratorium on wage increases, the freeze held down gains in wages and salaries which might otherwise have been attained. The price freeze appeared to be only moderately effective in restraining price increases as measured by month-to-month changes in the consumer price index. Between April and August, the four months prior to the freeze, the index increased at an annual rate above 6 percent. Between August and December, the index rose by only 3 3 percent All of this stability, it should be noted, was due to declining food prices; other components of the index continued to rise at recent rates.

The outlook for 1972 is based on two primary assumptions (1) Phase II of the President's new economic policy will hold average wage gains to 6 percent and price increases to 3.5 percent. Controls will become less effective during the second half of 1972 and will be eliminated during the first half of 1973. (2) The federal reserve will design monetary policy with the intent of accommodating economic expansion, and will therefore permit a 7 to 9 percent growth in the money supply.

Gross national product is expected to rise 8 9 percent from the 1971 total. With the GNP deflator up 3 7 percent for the year, real GNP will increase by 4.9 percent. The 8 7 percent gain in consumer expenditures will be due primarily to a strong increase in the service component, reflecting resumption of the historic per capita growth in this series. Durable goods will be up by 8 6 percent This increase is considerably less than occurred last year, however, since autos will not show as strong a gain in 1972 as they did in 1971

Recovery of business confidence and the gradual increase in manufacturing activity will lead to a 7.9 percent rise in spending on producers' durable equipment and a 7 percent gain for investment in nonresidential structures. Homebuilding will continue upward, but at a more moderate pace than in 1971 It is estimated that the rate of housing starts will ease slightly to average 1,935,000 for 1972 as a whole. This will occur as overbuilding becomes evident in some areas of the country With a continuing uptrend in investment per unit, however, spending for residential structures will increase more than 13 percent.

The government sector will also contribute to the recovery Federal expenditures are expected to rise by 4 9 percent. This will be attributable to an 11 percent rise in federal nondefense spending, and a 2 8 percent gain in spending for national defense. The latter will be the first increase in this component since 1969

A strong improvement is anticipated for corporate profits Profits before taxes are expected to amount to $96 7 billion, a gain of 15 4 percent.

The improved employment situation and strong wage gains negotiated during 1971 in various industries will contribute to an 8 7 percent increase in wages and salaries this year Above-average increases in other labor income (fringe benefits) and transfer payments will also boost total income Higher contributions for social security will offset these to some extent, however In total, personal income will amount to $926.5 billion. The savings rate is expected to ease moderately to 7 6 percent, reflecting continuing uncertainty on the part of the individual regarding prospects for the coming year.

Improvement in the employment situation is already evident from seasonally-adjusted monthly data. A 2 2 percent employment gain has been projected. Unemployment will decline by 5 percent and the unemployment rate will ease to 5.5 percent of the labor force, down from 5.9 percent in 1971.

The forecasts reviewed in Table 1 below differ slightly from those shown in the Governor's Budget for 1972–73. New data on the national income accounts were released after the budget was prepared, substantially changing the 1971 totals on which the earlier forecasts were based As relative changes still appear valid, however, these have been maintained insofar as possible, and new dollar values calculated.

Total resident population in California amounted to 20,265,000 as of July 1, 1971. This represented a gain of 256,000, or 1 3 percent, from the 1970 level With 299,000 military personnel stationed in the State, civilian population totaled 19,966,000 Natural increase accounted for 195,000 of the 263,000 gain in the civilian population over the year, with net migration adding 26,000 In addition, it is estimated that 42,000 persons previously in the military joined civilian ranks in the State.

The slow rate of migration to the State has had an impact on Southern California in particular. Last year, for the first time, Los Angeles County lost population, declining by 9,600, or 0 1 percent The growth of neighboring Orange and Ventura Counties remained strong, however. The eight counties south of the Tehachapis (Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, San Bernardino, Riverside, Orange, San Diego and Imperial) accounted for 58 4 percent of the total resident population of the State as of July 1, 1971 The San Francisco Bay Area (San Francisco, San Mateo, Santa Clara, Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin, Napa, and Solano) had a population of 4,478,500, equal to 22.1 percent of the State.

There are indications that migration to California is rising gradually. Drivers' licenses exchanged in California and other states when a person changes residence from one state to another is such an indicator While historical data are not available on this series, it does appear that substantially more licenses are being issued in California to previous residents of other states than are being turned in elsewhere by former California residents. As a result, migration has been estimated at 40,000 for the twelve months from mid-1971 to mid-1972. Data on births, in contrast, suggest that a decline has occurred in recent months; natural increase is forecast at 180,000 for the current year. In addition, it is anticipated that 20,000 persons will switch from military to civilian status. It is therefore estimated that civilian population in the State will amount to 20,206,000 on July 1, 1972, a gain of 1 2 percent from the 1971 level. With 300,000 military stationed in the State, total resident population will amount to 20,506,000.

INCOME AND PRICES

Personal Income California personal income amounted to $93,427 million in 1971, up 5 2 percent from the year earlier. With prices up 3 7 percent and population rising 1 2 percent over the year, however, real income per capita was up only 0 2 percent.

Wages and salaries were sharply affected by the recession On a quarter-to-quarter basis, income from this source was down in the first quarter 1971, expanded broadly in most categories in the second quarter, eased again in the third quarter and was up moderately in the fourth For the year, as a whole, wages amounted to $62 2 billion, up 3 5 percent The softness was particularly evident in the manufacturing sector, but income growth was also held back in industries which were affected by labor disputes

Other labor income registered a small gain compared to the historical experience for this category, due to the slower than expected growth in wages and salaries. Preliminary data on proprietor's income suggest a relatively strong increase in farm proprietors' income despite a sharp gain in production costs Cash farm marketings, up 8 percent from the previous year, were largely responsible for this improvement Nonfarm proprietors' income, in contrast, increased by less than 1 percent.

The 4.3 percent rise in property income was due primarily to a strong gain in interest payments to individuals Rents rose moderately from the prior year's level and dividend payments were up in line with the national increase. Transfer payments posted a substantial gain of nearly 20 percent, due in large part to increased social security benefits by 6.5 percent Adjusted for price increases, disposable income on a per capita basis was up 1.5 percent.

It is estimated that personal income taxes paid by Californians declined by 4.2 percent last year. Disposable income therefore increased

Outlook—Personal income is forecast at $100 9 billion for 1972, a gain of 8 percent. Wages and salaries are expected to rise sharply from the 1971 level reaching $67 3 billion, up 8.1 percent Other labor income, reflecting the continuing increase in the proportion of fringe benefits to wage payments, will rise by nearly 12 percent. Proprietors' income will again reflect mixed trends. Farm income is expected to be approximately unchanged as government payments remain low and farm prices decline as the result of heavy crop production last year Nonfarm proprietors' income, on the other hand, is forecast up 3 5 percent to $6 2 billion as proprietors share in the general business recovery. The gain in property income will again be due primarily to higher interest payments. Gains in rents and dividends will be more moderate, reflecting decisions of the National Price Commission to restrain increases in these areas. The large increase expected in transfer payments will again be due in large part to higher social security benefits expected to be voted by Congress during the year Another sharp rise is projected for the level of contributions for social insurance, the result of the increase in the taxable wage base from $7,800 to $9,000 as of January 1, 1972

Personal taxes will rise by 11 5 percent to $11.6 billion this year, with higher withholding of Federal taxes and imposition of withholding for state personal income taxes Disposable income is therefore expected to amount to $89 2 billion, a gain of 7.5 percent.

The ratio of personal income in California to income in the United States is therefore projected at 10 9 percent this year, the same as for 1971.

Corporate Profits On the basis of a sample of corporations in California, it is now estimated that taxable corporate income in the State grew 7 6 percent last year to $7,234 million. Manufacturing was the largest gainer with a rise of $332 million Gains were reported in every major group except services, which posted more than a 6 percent decline

Outlook—Corporate profits are projected at $8 billion this year, a gain of 10 6 percent The largest increases are anticipated in manufacturing and trade, with the only decline expected in the construction industry.

Consumer Prices The consumer price indices for San Francisco, Los Angeles and San Diego for the latter months of 1971 reflected the national price freeze with relatively moderate gains Despite this, the weighted average index for California increased by 3.7 percent last year to 119 1 (1967 = 100), a gain below the 4.3 percent increase recorded for the entire Nation Increases were most rapid in the State for transportation and medical care. Slower growth in food and apparel prices helped hold down the advance in the overall index.

Outlook—As noted earlier, it is anticipated that increases in the consumer price index will remain moderate while price changes are subject to review by the Price Commission It is improbable, however, that price increases will be held to the 2 5 percent national goal. The CPI for California has therefore been projected at 123.3, a gain of 3.5 percent.

LABOR FORCE AND EMPLOYMENT

The civilian labor force last year registered its smallest gain since data on this series have been available The 1971 increase amounted to 48,200, or 0 6 percent, bringing the average for the year to 8,603,400. This relatively slow growth may be attributed to the national recession and to softness in various industries in the State, including aerospace, which has been responsible in the past for attracting highly specialized workers into the California labor force The moderate expansion was also responsible, however, for the fact that the unemployment rate—at 7 percent for all of 1971—did not rise as high during the year as had been anticipated earlier.

Civilian employment declined to 8,004,400, a drop of 31,200, or 0.4 percent, although year-over-year gains were recorded from September on Trade, finance-insurance-real estate, services, and local government increased but at rates considerably slower than have occurred historically These increases were more than offset by declines in agriculture, mining, construction, manufacturing, and the transportation-communication-utility group.

Civilian employment is no longer reported by industry. Data by industry in Table 2 and the sections which follow relate to wage and salary workers only An estimate of proprietor's and other self-employed workers was previously included in each industry group These are now shown as "other nonagricultural employment" Since the trend in this series is relatively constant, it has not been reviewed individually

Manufacturing—Manufacturing wage and salary employment averaged 1,470,500 in 1971, down 87,500 (5 6%) from the year before. Declines occurred in many industries, as recession-related production cutbacks continued Durable goods industries were most affected, with employment falling 79,000. Nondurable industries experienced a relatively mild cutback of 8,500. On a seasonally adjusted basis, manufacturing employment was on a plateau during most of the year, with some firming evident in the fourth quarter.

Aerospace again accounted for a large part of the drop in durable goods employment, falling from an average 496,600 in 1970 to 440,300 in 1971.

Developments in nonaerospace industries reflected not only the national recession, but also the aerospace situation, as California firms do a substantial amount of work on subcontract from aerospace companies. The tapering in the volume of subcontract work available was in part responsible for the declines registered during the year in nonelectrical machinery, which recorded an employment drop of 13,400 (9 5%), and fabricated metals, off by 7,600

Trade—Employment in trade increased by 22,300 last year, reaching 1,553,100. This reflected the smallest gain (+1.5%) since the 1960–61 recession. With general economic recovery, trade employment started to rise. In January the total for this sector was only 12,700 above the year-before level. By December, however, substantial improvement was evident in the 49,400 year-to-year increase registered.

Employment in wholesale activities experienced some minor declines during the year although the 1971 average was up slightly Retail trade, in contrast, was up throughout the latest business cycle, with gains particularly in general merchandise, building material, and food stores, and eating and drinking places.

Services—Service employment amounted to 1,271,900 last year, up 5,700 (0.5%) from the 1970 level This was the smallest gain on record for this sector, which in the past has reflected recessions with only a slight slowing in an otherwise rapid growth rate Various explanations have been offered for this unusual development, including the decline in real income per capita during the downturn, the increasing cost of services, and the hypothesis that expenditures for services may have a high degree of income elasticity and can readily be postponed when economic conditions are adverse Only the medical service component posted a substantial rise Declines were particularly sharp in the miscellaneous business services category, an area of rapid and sustained growth in the past.

Government—Government employment averaged 1,455,500 in 1971, up 30,800 (2.2%) The expansion was attributable entirely to gains in the local sector; the number of federal civilian jobs dropped 8,400 while state employment was down fractionally for the year. The federal decline was due to the fact that the 1970 total was increased by the addition of approximately 20,000 census workers during April and May. The growth in local government was moderate compared to historical experience.

Transportation and Utilities—The transportation and utility industry reflected mixed trends during 1971 Employment overall was down 6,600 to an average 452,500. Utility employment increased by 1,300 while the transportation component, affected by labor disputes, fell

7,900. The third quarter dock strike idled an estimated 9,500 longshoremen The July rail walkout, however, although it affected approximately 28,000 workers, is not reflected in employment data since it occurred between survey weeks The number of jobs in air transportation and local transit were also reduced over the year.

Finance, Insurance, and Real Estate—Growth in finance, insurance, and real estate employment slowed sharply to 10,100 last year, with the total rising to 384,600. The gain in the finance component was largely attributable to increased banking activity, employment of security and commodity brokers fell over the year The strong market for housing was reflected in real estate employment, which was up nearly 6 percent

Construction—Construction employment declined by 6,400 last year to 296,600 From January through August, employment averaged sharply below year before levels. During the latter months of 1971, it edged ahead and closed out the year with a 10,000 gain over December 1970

The early 1971 softness reflected the substantial drop in nonresidential construction activity for the first half of the year—only partly offset by rising levels of homebuilding An upturn in commercial and industrial projects after mid-year led to the second-half improvement.

Agriculture, Forestry, and Fisheries—Agricultural employment amounted to 287,800 last year, down 1,500 from the 1970 level The decline continued the long-term trend in the industry

Employment of Women—The number of women wage and salary workers employed last year in nonagricultural firms decreased by 500 to 2,655,400 As the decline between 1970 and 1971 in the number of men working was considerably greater, however, at 32,400, the proportion of women employed rose to 38 4 percent from 37 9 percent in 1970 Employment of women increased in trade (0 5 percent), finance, insurance and real estate (2 5 percent); services (0 1 percent); and government (3 2 percent) activities Women comprise 26 0 percent of manufacturing employment, but they accounted for 31.2 percent of the total employment decline in this industry over the year.

Unemployment—Unemployment averaged 599,000 in California last year, equal to 7.0 percent of the labor force This was an increase of 80,000 from 1970, when the unemployment rate was 6 1 percent The relatively slow growth of the labor force, noted earlier, was a major factor in holding the unemployment rate to 7 percent for the year The rise in unemployment that started at the beginning of 1970 was halted during 1971 After climbing to a peak of 7 4 percent in April and May, the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate started to decline, reaching a low of 6 1 percent in December, approximately the same as the rate for the Nation as a whole

Unemployment also rose in most of the metropolitan areas in the State during the past year About 91 percent of the total unemployed in California were located in the 17 metropolitan areas of the State In terms of unemployment rates (shown in Table 3) the sharpest increases were recorded in the larger areas with major concentrations of aerospace manufacturing As in the State, however, substantial improvement in the unemployment situation was evident during the final quarter of the year in most areas.

The impact of California's high level of unemployment is reflected in the number of areas in the State classified by the U S Department of Labor as areas of "substantial" or "persistent" unemployment. An area is classified as having "substantial unemployment" when unemployment there is equal to 6 percent or more of the labor force, discounting seasonal or temporary factors, and it is anticipated that the rate of unemployment during the next two months will remain at 6 percent or more. An area is classified as an area of "persistent unemployment" when unemployment during the most recent calendar year has averaged 6 percent or more of the work force and has been at least (1) 50 percent above the national average for three of the four preceding calendar years, (2) 75 percent above the national average for two of the three preceding calendar years, or (3) 100 percent above the national average for one of the two preceding calendar years In December 1971, 19 counties were in labor market areas classified as areas of "substantial unemployment" while 29 counties were located in areas of "persistent unemployment" In December 1970, only 9 counties were in areas of "substantial unemployment" and 28 were in areas of "persistent unemployment"

Approximately 72 percent of the total unemployed was covered by unemployment insurance. Those not protected included new entrants into the labor force, the self-employed, and persons who previously worked in activities not covered by unemployment insurance—primarily state and local government, farm, and domestic jobs Unemployment among individuals covered by state and Federal law increased by 62,700, accounting for 78 percent of the gain in total unemployment.

The rise in total insured unemployment was centered in the services and trade industries, with smaller increases recorded among transportation-utilities and finance-insurance-real estate workers. Over-the-year declines were recorded among manufacturing, construction, and mining workers. Within manufacturing, the larger drops occurred in electrical equipment, lumbering, transportation equipment, and apparel.

The duration of unemployment also increased last year, with 23.9 percent of the insured unemployed out of work for 15 weeks or more. During 1970 only 19.6 percent of the insured unemployed were jobless this long.

Vocational Education Vocational training activities were expanded sharply last year in the effort to reduce unemployment in the State by improving the job skills of the labor force. The 1970–71 recession emphasized the fact that few employment opportunities exist for individuals without a salable skill.

The number of persons receiving vocational training in high schools, adult schools, and community colleges increased 22 percent to 1,220,000 during the 1970–71 school year. The total included 83,700 students enrolled in work-experience programs, a rise of almost 70 percent from the previous year This training in an actual work environment is designed to provide realistic experience and to introduce students to prospective employers. Employment and job retention continued high among students trained under this program.

Spending on vocational education during the year amounted to $251 million. Of this amount, $148 8 million came from local funds, $73 3 million from state funds, and $28 9 million from Federal funds under the Vocational Education Act of 1968 Approximately $8 of state and local funds were spent for every $1 of Federal funds received.

New programs were developed specifically for drop-out youths, the handicapped, the disadvantaged, and persons living in economically-depressed areas with a high rate of unemployment Programs in consumer and homemaking education were also expanded, as was retraining for adults whose skills have become obsolete.

Earnings, Hours, and Purchasing Power Hourly earnings of production workers in manufacturing averaged $4 02 in 1971, an increase of 22 cents from the 1970 level This is the largest year-to-year increase in hourly wages recorded since 1939 when data were first kept Earnings averages in all industry divisions rose over the year with several groups registering gains of 30 cents or more. Among those with record increases were food and kindred products, paper and allied products (31 cents), printing and publishing (30 cents), and stone, clay and glass products (34 cents). One of the largest gains was in the motor vehicle and equipment group, which was up 43 cents.

Average weekly hours declined by 0 1 to 39 5 hours, which made it the shortest average work week since 1949. Overall, non-durable goods industries had a slightly longer work week in 1971 than in 1970 while durable goods industries registered shorter hours There were no major changes in the average hours worked in any industry

Average weekly earnings were up by $8 31 (5 5%) to $158 79 for 1971, as gains were registered in all industry divisions

Average weekly earnings rose by 5 7 percent over the year in the Los Angeles-Long Beach SMSA Average "real" net spendable earnings (adjusted for price and tax changes and expressed in 1967 dollars) were $110 51 (+2 3%) for a worker with three dependents and $100 18 (+2.9%) for a worker with no dependents In the San Francisco-Oakland area average weekly earnings were up by 4.0 percent "Real" net spendable earnings for workers with three dependents rose 3 2 percent to $125 73, and for workers with no dependents moved up 4 percent to $114.03.

Collective Bargaining An estimated 550,000 California workers received wage increases as the result of 268 major collective bargaining settlements concluded in 1971 Preliminary data for 112 settlements affecting 362,000 workers indicate that the median first-year increase was approximately 51 cents per hour, 10 5 cents higher than in 1970. For about one-fourth of the 362,000 workers, first-year increases in hourly rates fell below 37 cents and for another one-fourth they exceeded 59 cents. These data relate to wage agreements only and do not include fringe benefits which were negotiated. The average wage gain in major settlements ran between 8 and 12 percent. There were relatively few contracts above and below this range

In addition to providing wage increases, many major contract settlements also improved various fringe benefits, including prepaid dental and prescription-drug plans, liberalized vacation and holiday provisions, and increased employer payments to help welfare and pension funds

The wage freeze, commencing August 15, had little effect in moderating wage increases negotiated last year Most major settlements—including those in petroleum, steel, can manufacturing, telecommunications, and the northern California construction industry—were completed by that date It is interesting to note, however, that the Construction Industry Stabilization Committee, established by an Executive Order, did appear to have a restraining influence on increases negotiated by some building trade unions.

According to preliminary figures, strikes beginning in 1971 directly involved an estimated 338,000 California workers and resulted in the loss of 4.5 million to 5 million man-days. This man-day loss total was the highest since 1946 and was due primarily to two prolonged work stoppages in the construction industry which together accounted for more than 2 million man-days The railroad, telephone, and long-shore strikes also contributed more than a million man-days to the near-record idleness total

No good data are available on the economic loss from each of these major strikes Rough calculations suggest, however, that direct losses were approximately $200 million The construction industry walkout resulted in a loss of 2 million man-days and more than $100 million in wages The longshoremen's strike reduced wages by $33 million on the wharves and in manufacturing plants dependent on imported material for processing This estimate does not include the loss to shipowners who had vessels tied up in California ports during the walkout At one time it was estimated that there were eighty ships affected with a daily loss of $5,000 to $10,000 per ship As a significant part of this income would accrue to non-California residents, however, there has been no attempt to incorporate the owners' loss in the economic impact data. Similarly, the $23 million loss from the rail strike is attributable to wages in railroads, canning plants, and for agricultural workers whose jobs were eliminated as a result of the walkout. Various estimates place the loss to farm owners at $2–$3 million per day Firm data are not available to substantiate the latter estimate, however, and it has been omitted from the total The telephone strike involved a direct wage loss of approximately $7 million Finally, the teamsters' walkout of two weeks against the Northern California construction industry resulted in losses of more than $25 million Not included in these data is the secondary impact on industries such as trade and services, which are dependent on sales to workers in the strike-affected industries In addition, loss data do not take into consideration the possibility that heavy overtime work following settlement of each strike made up part of the income lost earlier. The $200 million figure is therefore a rough measure of the direct impact of the labor unrest occurring during 1971.

Outlook The forecast for employment and unemployment for 1972 assumes that moderate economic recovery will occur during the year. As noted earlier, it is now apparent that the decline in employment resulting from the recession bottomed out during the first quarter 1971 and that gains in many industries have occurred since that time The civilian labor force has been forecast at 8,710,000, an increase of 107,000 (1.2%). Employment is expected to be up strongly (176,000) to 8,180,000 as the economic recovery gains strength Aiding the recovery will be the fact that, apart from the longshoremen and aerospace workers, relatively few Californians will be affected by major contract wage negotiations this year. The expansion will be broadly based. Particularly significant will be the increases in non-aerospace manufacturing, services, trade, and the transportation-utility group A few areas of softness will remain, however. Aerospace employment may decline moderately early in the year, with subsequent leveling and gradual expansion For the entire year this industry is expected to average 435,000 jobs.

Only a minimal change is foreseen for the Federal civilian sector. Federal employment will be under the constraints imposed by the budget deficit. It has been assumed that the goal of a 5 percent cut in Federal employment will not be reached in California, as softness in job markets remains a problem since such steps would only serve to retard recovery in the State.

Construction employment is forecast up only 1 percent, the result in part of anticipated tapering in residential building during the second half of 1972.

The unemployment rate is expected to fluctuate around 6.1 percent for most of the year. By the fourth quarter, however, it is estimated that the rate will have declined to approximately 5.8 percent.

RESOURCE INDUSTRIES

Agriculture Cash farm receipts in California agriculture amounted to $4.8 billion in 1971, up 5 percent from the 1970 level. The increase was due to higher receipts from marketings of vegetables, grapes, field crops and dairy products.

Crop production in the State last year was the largest on record at 42.5 million tons The field crop harvest was only slightly below the record established in 1970, while vegetable production rose 6 percent and fruit production increased 8 percent. The decline in fieldcrop production was due to a poor cotton harvest, with low average yields realized for the third consecutive year, the result of poor growing weather in the earlier season and insect infestation. The higher output of fruit and nut crops was attributed to a large grape production and record almond and walnut crops The past year also saw new records set for hay, corn, eggs, dairy products, and various vegetables. Acreage of principal products harvested totaled 8.54 million acres, up slightly from the year earlier.

Production of vegetables, melons and strawberries amounted to 9.1 million tons, 6 percent above the 1970 harvest, with new highs recorded for artichokes, broccoli, carrots, celery, cucumbers to pickle, and strawberries. The important canning crop totaled 3.1 million tons, 16 percent above the 1970 production level and second only to the record crop of 1968 Strawberry production rose 5 percent during the year to a record 303 million pounds.

Preliminary data indicate that gross cash receipts from marketings of livestock and poultry amounted to $1.81 billion, fractionally above the previous record of $1.79 billion established in 1970. Higher receipts from marketing of dairy products and cattle were apparently offset by reduced hog, sheep, and egg receipts.

Outlook—No change is anticipated in net farm income for 1972 Increasing mechanization and improved technology will lead to a 4 to 5 percent increase in cash receipts This gain will be offset, however, by rising production costs due in part to application of the minimum wage to agricultural workers. On the other hand, it is also anticipated that devaluation of the U. S. dollar will aid California farmers by reducing prices in the export market.

Prices of feed grains will be depressed during the year as a result of the large 1971 corn crop in the Midwest, although this will be partially alleviated by increased price support levels In California, there is a large carryover of canned peaches, pears, prunes, and apricots.

Plantings in the State may vary with provisions of the 1972 farm program The feed grain set-aside has been revised to 25 percent of the base with boosts in set-aside payments. Barley has also been brought into the feed grain program Bearing acreage will be increased for grapes, walnuts, and citrus Increasing demand, particularly for wine, will help absorb the production from this acreage.

Forestry Timber production increased approximately 6 percent last year, spurred by the national boom in housing starts. Lumber and plywood prices were up one percent from the depressed levels of 1970.

Changing demand factors, the dock strike, and environmental legislation have affected the industry during the past year. Employment in the forest industries fell 2 4 percent to 78,200 with the number of primary wood processing plants continuing to decline At the end of the year there were 205 active saw mills and 25 veneer and plywood plants in the State Three new board plants were under construction involving a total investment of $21 million One particle board plant, however, is closing down in southern California, as it is unable to meet anti-pollution laws The new plants will utilize 400,000 tons of previously unused wood residues and nearly double California particle-board capacity to 562 million square feet annually

Log exports dropped substantially last year, due to the dock strike and reduced demand from Japan. Wood chip exports to Japan, however, increased 87 percent during the year to a record 501,000 tons.

Wildland fires continued to be a problem for the industry Approximately 10,500 fires occurred in 1971, extending the uptrend of the past several years. About 7,000 of these fires were controlled by the California Division of Forestry, with the remainder brought under control by other protection agencies. The area burned was less than in any previous year except for 1963 45,000 acres, or 70 square miles. One large fire area was reseeded with grass to prevent erosion.

Mining and Geology The value of mineral production in California reached an all-time high of $1 934 billion last year, compared with $1.897 billion in 1970 Fuels (petroleum, natural gas, natural gas liquids, lignite and peat) accounted for 65 percent of the value of output in 1971, 32 nonmetallic products (including asbestos, borates, cement, clay, diatomite, lime, magnesium, sand and gravel, salines, talc and others) accounted for 23 percent of the output, with 10 metals (copper, gold, iron, lead, mercury, molybdenum, rare earths, silver, and tungsten) accounting for three percent The value of the metals group declined 21 percent from the previous year, due primarily to a sharp drop in the price and production of mercury. Gold production reached its lowest point since 1848

Statewide investigations of crustal strain are currently underway to increase understanding of the relationship between faults and earthquakes. These studies include the the compilation of basic size data, the location of fault traces, and a program to monitor fault movements

Emphasis is also being placed upon the timely identification and delineation of geologic problems. Geologic evaluation service was provided to other units of state government on environmental problems in real estate subdivisions, nuclear power plant sites and the disposal of waste mine water A number of projects are conducted cooperatively with local government Progress was also made in developing plans for meeting the geologic and mineral needs of California on a priority basis in cooperation with the private sector and other public agencies.

Fishing and Hunting Activity revolving around California's marine and inland fish and wildlife contributes an estimated $1 billion to the State's economy It is estimated that California's 2,200,000 sport fishermen bought licenses at a cost of more than $10 million, and made direct purchases for gear, bait, travel, food, and lodging of an additional $435 million. Similarly, the 757,000 sport hunters in the State last year bought licenses and tags valued at $4.1 million and spent approximately $65 million more for ancillary gear.

Commercial fisheries in California gross $100 million to the fishermen at dockside. The processing and handling of the commercial catch increases its value by an additional $320 million The commercial catch in California last year totaled 703 million pounds. It is estimated that in 1972 a 6 7 percent gain will be recorded, raising the total catch to 750 million pounds.

Fishing party boats accommodated 720,000 fishermen last year and added an additional $6 million to the State's economy.

PUBLIC PROGRAMS

Water Resources Long-term contracts extending through at least the year 2035 for water service from the State Water Project have been executed by the State Department of Water Resources, with 31 local governmental agencies. These contracts call for a maximum annual delivery to all agencies of 4,230,000 acre-feet, although the delivery of the total amount is not scheduled until about the turn of the century.

Over $236 million of capital and operating costs of the Project had been reimbursed to the State by payments under the above contracts through 1971, almost $55 million was paid in 1971 alone.

Project water deliveries began in 1962. During 1971, the Project served water to 14 of the long-term contractors and under interim agreements to three other public agencies These 17 agencies are located in ten counties ranging from Plumas County in the north to Kern County in the south Water deliveries to agencies located in Southern California will begin in 1972. Project water deliveries are scheduled to be made to all 31 long-term contractors by 1980.

During 1971, 705 934 acre-feet of water was delivered by the Project: 10,395 acre-feet in the Feather River Basin, 2,979 acre-feet in the North San Francisco Bay Area of Napa County, 107,507 acre-feet in the South San Francisco Bay Area, and 585,053 acre-feet in the San Joaquin Valley

Construction contracts awarded for the State Water Project last year amounted to $61 5 million, compared with $79 5 million in 1970 At yearend 60 construction contracts valued at more than $370 million were underway Table 10 summarizes the current work.

The Hyatt and Thermalito Powerplants generated 3,197 million kilowatt-hours of electrical energy for which $16,150,000 and certain energy credits were received. An additional 35,000,000 kilowatt-hours were generated for the State Water Project by the San Luis Pumping-Generating Plant. Project pumping plants consumed a total of 524 million kilowatt-hours. Purchased power cost $2,600,000, including transmission.

The Department of Water Resources negotiated an agreement with the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power and the Southern California Edison Company for joint development of the Piru Creek Power Project in conjunction with the West Branch of the California Aqueduct. The cooperative agreement covers the engineering and economic feasibility studies for the project The Department is arranging for financing of the Devil Canyon and Castiac power facilities with revenue bond proceeds rather than with Burns-Porter funds.

Over two million sport fishermen, hunters, and other outdoor recreationists made use of recreation facilities and opportunities available at the State Water Project in 1971 This use was centered in the Upper Feather River Basin at State Water Project reservoirs and controlled streams, at the Oroville Reservoir complex, at Del Valle Reservoir, and at the San Luis Reservoir complex. It included use of fishing access sites developed along the California Aqueduct in the San Joaquin Valley.

In addition to State Water Project activities, the State provides financial assistance to local agencies cooperating in the construction of Federal Flood control projects. State assistance pays for the costs of right of way and relocations required for projects—costs which Federal policy assigns to local interests. During 1971, the State spent $11 2 million in connection with 29 active projects. Since 1917, California has expended $233 million in support of Federal flood control projects in the State. Continued urban development, however, has created demand for additional projects on less important streams The State is expected to spend $8 million in support of such projects in 1972.

Under the Davis-Grunsky program for state financial assistance to local water projects, over $12 5 million was disbursed in 1971 to local agencies. This amount exceeded 1970 disbursements by $10 million, due to the approval of Proposition 7 which allowed the sale of bonds at market interest rates. Over $7 3 million was used for the development of recreation areas and facilities at numerous lakes and reservoirs, and nearly $5 2 million was spent for the construction of local domestic water distribution systems. During the year, an additional $5 6 million of state financial assistance was approved for future local projects. To date the total amount of assistance to local agencies under this program has reached $90 million.

The investigation of a possible large-capacity desalter prototype for the California coast reported on last year continued in 1971. The site selected for the feasibility study is Diablo Canyon, adjacent to the nuclear powerplant under construction by PG&E from which steam would be obtained. The nominal capacity of the design is 40 million gallons per day. The water would be used in the coastal service areas of San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties. The feasibility report for the Diablo project is expected to be completed early next year. If the project is authorized and funds appropriated, design would start in 1973 and operation would begin in 1978. The prototype desalter is primarily for research. Information on large-capacity desalting is needed before desalting can be considered a viable alternative to California's future water supply. A development program was initiated at the Interagency Agricultural Wastewater Treatment Center at Firebaugh to desalt agricultural waste water by the reverse osmosis process The University of California is cooperating in the development by providing membrane technology developed in its saline water conversion research program.

Highways, Streets, and Roads Today, California's highway system is the key element in the State's total transportation system. It is estimated that the 12 8 million vehicles registered in the State traveled 122 billion miles on California roads, streets and highways during 1971. This accounted for 98 percent of all people movement and most of the freight movement within the State.

Of the 16,729 miles of roads authorized by the Legislature for the State Highway System, 14,619 miles are now in operation. At the start of 1972, 3,793 miles of divided highways were completed, while 592 miles of divided multi-lane highways, and 58 miles of two-lane highways were under construction or budgeted

There are 164,136 miles of State highways, county roads, city streets and roads under Federal jurisdiction in California The 3,197 miles of completed freeways in the State Highway System represent only 2 percent of the total statewide mileage of roads, yet the system carries about 35 percent of all motor vehicle travel.

It is estimated that for the 1971–72 fiscal year investment by city and county jurisdictions for construction, maintenance and administration of roads and streets, along with private investment for subdivision work, will reach the $1 billion mark Of this, $600 million will come from the vehicle fuel tax, license fees and Federal sources, with the balance from local general funds and private investment for subdivisions

The budget for the State Highway System was $936 million in 1970–71 and is expected to amount to $864 million for the current fiscal year Federal sources will provide $390 million, with the State's vehicle fuel tax supplying another $378 million and the remainder derived from drivers' license fees, vehicle registration fees, and truck weight fees. It is anticipated that fiscal year 1971–72 expenditures will be allocated 83 percent for improvements and 17 percent for operation, maintenance and general services The 1972–73 Budget is expected to total $882 million.

The most ambitious highway program to be undertaken by the Federal Government is the National System of Interstate Defense Highways, more commonly referred to as the Federal Interstate. When completed this system will constitute 42,500 miles nationally, with 2,288 miles of California freeways authorized for inclusion At the end of December 1971, 1,625 miles, or about 71 percent of the authorized mileage in California, were completed to full Federal Interstate standards, and another 356 miles were under construction or budgeted Last year 130 miles of freeways for this system were completed to full Interstate standards. By 1978, California's Federal Interstate Construction and rights-of-way acquisition will have amounted to $6 billion. To date, expenditures are up to nearly $4 billion

Currently, Federal contributions to the State's highway system amount to about 92 percent for projects in the Federal Interstate System, and 71 percent for all other State highway projects classified as Federal-aid highways These figures refer to reimbursement to the State for highway projects in which the Federal Government participates. Federal funds provide partial reimbursement for rights-of-way acquisition and construction expenses, but do not apply to maintenance costs. Revenues for the Federal contribution to the State are derived from the Federal 4 cents per gallon motor vehicle fuel tax and taxes on a variety of other vehicle-related items

In 1971, California initiated a major program of traffic operational improvements designed to increase the efficiency and quality of traffic service on existing highways These improvements included freeway surveillance and control systems, auxiliary lanes to relieve congestion at bottleneck locations, and other motorist service facilities The Los Angeles Freeway and Control System is expected to serve as a model for improving service levels on metropolitan freeway networks Planned expenditures on improvements of this type amount to approximately $30 million per year for the next several years Highway user revenues also support other modes of transportation As of last December, some $166 5 million from toll-bridge revenues had been used to finance the San Francisco BART Transbay Tube Approximately $39 million of such revenues ($4 million from California and $35 million from Federal Interstate Funds) will be used in financing the $53 million required to complete the San Bernardino Freeway Busway project by the fall of 1973. In addition, highway funds have been utilized to provide space for mass transit on highway rights-of-way. Currently, publicly-owned bus systems and private stage corporations subject to PUC regulations are exempt from paying gasoline and diesel fuel taxes, vehicle registration fees, and weight fees

Rapid Transit The Bay Area Rapid Transit System moved towards completion in 1971, with closing system construction, the transition to operations, expanding staff work in transit planning, and, most important, preliminary runs on BART prototype test cars. All 75 miles of BART system lines are now under construction or completed Of the 30 stations planned for the system, nine are complete, ten are more than 90 percent finished, and 11 stations are in architectural-finish stage. Progress on systemwide work had reached 77 percent completion for track work, 69 percent for third-rail electrification, and 21 percent for automatic train control and communications by the end of 1971

By mid-1971 construction and procurement contracts awarded on the project amounted to more than $905 million, with 1,800 persons working on the construction. It now appears that the project will cost $1.4 billion in total BART has established a $7 5 million landscaping program funded in part by Federal beautification grants To date, 19 contracts are either completed or under construction, with 15 contracts remaining to be awarded.

East Bay service is expected to begin this spring with the startup of the full East Bay-West Bay system by the fall. The first BART prototype test car from the Rohr Corporation in Chula Vista was delivered on August 28. Nine cars are now in continuous night and day testing, with vehicles on automatic train control between the Coliseum and Hayward stations

The Southern California Rapid Transit District is developing plans for a comprehensive districtwide rapid transit system. Funding for the system will be obtained in part from recently-enacted legislation which removed the exemption of gasoline sales from the sales tax and revised the allocation of sales tax receipts to provide counties with funds for support of public transportation. It is estimated that approximately $70 million of funds so obtained can be set aside over the next several years to be matched by funds from the City and County of Los Angeles. These combined funds would support a request for $280 million from the Federal Government As a result, $420 million could be obtained in total from these various sources to finance a subway system through downtown Los Angeles to the Coliseum Sports Arena complex, with an aerial extension from there to South-Central Los Angeles. At the northern terminal, this fourteen-mile route would join the El Monte-Los Angeles busway at Union Station.

In June the Urban Mass Transportation Administration gave the final go-ahead for the $51 million exclusive busway between El Monte and downtown Los Angeles to run in the center and alongside the San Bernardino freeway Operation of the first stage from the Long Beach freeway to the Santa Anita freeway in El Monte is projected for October 1972 with opening of the western half of the busway from the Long Beach freeway to Mission Road in downtown Los Angeles by September 1973.

Environmental Control With increasing awareness of developing changes in the environment and the need for restrictions on activities which accentuate pollution problems, various programs have been devised and implemented to enhance the environment and reduce or eliminate existing problems.

The Air Resources Board (ARB) is the air pollution control agency of California, responsible for control of motor vehicle emissions on a statewide basis and for a coordinated state and local air pollution control program of stationary sources of emissions. The State Legislature delegated the primary responsibility for the control of stationary sources to local air pollution control districts while the authority to control vehicular sources was reserved by the State. The State reviews and evaluates programs of local districts and is empowered to take action where adequate measures to cope with a specific problem have not been taken locally. In addition to these roles, the State provides technical assistance to the local districts where such assistance is needed. Some measures relating to stationary sources are specifically provided in the State law and are applicable statewide Local control agencies are empowered to adopt additional or more stringent requirements for stationary sources control,

Air quality in terms of the atmospheric concentrations of pollutants is measured at air monitoring stations throughout California The air quality data are published by the Air Resources Board, and compared with ambient air quality standards to determine the seriousness of the problem. They are also compared with data of prior years to determine trends and the effectiveness of control programs

The various pollutants being monitored include carbon monoxide, hydrocarbons, nitric oxide, nitrogen dioxide, oxides of nitrogen, sulfur dioxide, and suspended particulate matter Lead was added in 1971. In addition to determining air quality, the emissions of each kind of air pollutant are evaluated for each type of source, each county, and for each air basin. These data serve to point out what sources should be controlled. The pollutants included in the inventory are carbon monoxide, organic gases, hydrocarbons, oxides of nitrogen, sulfur dioxide, and suspended particulate matter.

The State Air Monitoring Network is being expanded from the 16 fixed stations that were in operation during early 1970, to 30 fixed and five mobile stations. Three of the fixed stations were placed in operation during 1971. The five mobile stations, one in a trailer and four in self-propelled vans, will be placed in operation in 1972 Fifteen of the fixed stations are operated by the Board and fifteen are operated by nine local air pollution control districts. Since the latter fifteen stations are included in the official network, financial support was provided to these local districts beginning July, 1971. All data from the network, whether state operated or locally operated, are gathered on a comparable basis. In addition to the 35 official stations in the network, there are approximately 40 other stations, operated solely by local districts, that are not controlled or supported by the ARB.

During 1971, about two million measurements of hourly average pollutants concentrations and a million bits of information concerning emissions and meteorology were received and processed from the total of 75 stations in the State.

Motor vehicles are a major source of air pollution in California There were over 12 million motor vehicles of all types registered in 1970, of which over eleven million were light-duty (passenger cars and light trucks). There were approximately 570,000 motorcycles, 470,000 gasoline-powered heavy duty vehicles (trucks and buses), and 67,000 diesel trucks and buses. The total number of vehicles increases about five percent each year. The emissions inventories show that motor vehicles are-the major source of hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide, and oxides of nitrogen in the atmosphere Air pollution comes from three sources on the uncontrolled passenger car or gasoline-powered truck from the crankcase vent (hydrocarbons); from the fuel systems (carburetor and fuel tank) by vaporation (hydrocarbons); and from the exhaust pipe (hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide, and oxides of nitrogen)

Agricultural burning has also been a source of serious pollution in the State. The ARB now issues agricultural burning control notices for six air basins Most open-burning dumps were phased out in 1971–72. "Burn" and "no burn" notices are issued on a daily basis during the agricultural burning season

Nearly 14 million tons of pollutants were emitted in California during 1970 These included organic gases, 2,646,250 tons, nitrogen oxides, 1,237,350 tons, carbon monoxide, 9,234,500 tons, sulfur oxides, 278,860 tons; and suspended particulate matter, 536,550 tons

The Southern California Rapid Transit District has undertaken several projects designed to reduce the vehicle emissions in the Los Angeles basin The District has joined Atomics International, a division of North American Rockwell, in the development of the catalytic muffler. The District is also participating in the steam bus project sponsored by the State Assembly and the U S Department of Transportation Under this program a district bus equipped with a newly-designed steam engine is expected to be in operation by this spring A standard transit bus has been fitted for compressed, natural gas operation and is currently being tested in service The district has also purchased 19 mini buses for loop service through the central business district These buses are designed to ease traffic congestion and improve mobility in the downtown area

The Marks-Badham Environmental Protection and Research Act of 1970 established the California Environmental Protection Program Fund. Revenue for the fund is obtained from the sale of personalized motor vehicle license plates by the Department of Motor Vehicles Under provision of the Act, the Secretaries for Resources and Business and Transportation develop environmental protection plans Programs are proposed which will help to preserve the California environment, including control of environmental pollution, protection of significant ecological areas, and increased public awareness of the need to protect the environment.

CONSTRUCTION

Residential building activity provided strong support for the California economy in 1971 Approximately 256,600 private residential units were authorized during the year 143,300 multiple units and 113,300 single-family homes In addition, some 1,700 public housing units and 30,000 mobilehomes were added to the inventory.

It is now apparent that substantial overbuilding occurred during the past year Demand for housing appears to run at about 170,000 units a year, including demand from population growth, demolitions, seasonal housing, and units required to maintain the vacancy rate at approximately 6 percent to facilitate mobility of the population (These demand factors are discussed more completely in the chapter which follows on long-range projections for the State.) On the basis of this calculation it therefore appears that the California housing market was over-supplied by approximately 117,000 units during the past year.

There are indications of such overbuilding in vacancy-rate data. Information on vacancies is available from the FHA postal surveys of vacant units which are issued at irregular intervals for cities and counties. In addition, data are published for selected areas by the Federal Home Loan Bank in San Francisco. Rates for apartments appear to be rising most rapidly at the present time and are well over 10 percent in many areas It is particularly significant that the number of units under construction in some cities is greater than the number of units now vacant, suggesting that vacancy rates may effectively double when these units are completed.

In general, vacancy rates for single-family homes remain low, although there are signs of a gradual uptrend which may accelerate in coming months given recent levels of construction activity.

Permit data also indicate a substantial increase in the value per unit constructed The average apartment unit was valued at $12,300 in 1971, up 8 percent from $11,400 in 1970. The average single-family home was put at $21,500 last year versus $20,700 during the year earlier. In total, it is estimated that residential construction, including additions and alterations, amounted to $4 5 billion during the year, a gain of 45 percent from $3.1 billion in 1970.

Annual data on nonresidential construction authorized last year do not reflect the sharp recessionary pattern which occurred. Construction for the first six months of 1971 was more than 17 percent below the comparable period of 1970 Losses were particularly pronounced in the office and professional building category, industrial buildings, stores, and hospitals. Starting in August, all of these categories advanced sharply with strong year-to-year gains Other components in the nonresidential total also registered substantial gains. As a result, the total for the year ended up at an estimated $2 56 billion, a rise of 15 percent from 1970.

Outlook—It is now estimated that 220,000 new housing units with a total value of $3 7 billion will be authorized during 1972. Of this number, 120,000 will be in multiple or apartment units and 100,000 single-family homes.

Monthly figures through the end of 1971 indicate no diminution in residential building activity to date. The forecast given here assumes, however, that vacancy rates will continue to rise and that builders in the State will become increasingly aware of the developing oversupply situation and gradually reduce homebuilding activity as 1972 progresses.

An additional 27,000 mobilehomes are expected to be sold in the State next year The California housing inventory will therefore increase by 247,000 units, 13 6 percent less than the gain in 1971 At this rate, further overbuilding of nearly 80,000 units will take place.

Because of this, it is anticipated that building activity in California will experience a sharp and protracted downturn, similar to the experience of 1964–67, starting late this year This situation is discussed further in the long-range forecast in the chapter beginning on page 34.

Nonresidential construction is expected to increase by 12 percent next year to $2 87 billion Gains in industrial building, stores, office building, and other categories will reflect renewed business confidence and increases anticipated nationally in plant and equipment spending. Price rises will account for 7 percent of the dollar gain next year, with the real volume of nonresidential construction up by 5 percent.

AEROSPACE

Continued consolidation characterized the aerospace industry during 1971. The employment decline, which has been underway since December 1967, continued during the first half of the year. The industry situation was aggravated in February by the bankruptcy of Rolls Royce, which is building the engines for the Lockheed L-1011 airbus. The resulting threatened financial insolvency of Lockheed led to massive layoffs on the L-1011 program. With cutbacks in subcontracting firms also, aerospace employment declined to a low of 434,300 in May Approval of the $250 million loan guarantee by Congress on August 2 permitted rehiring on this program Aerospace employment closed out the year in December at 442,500. It is significant, however, that if the Lockheed cycle is eliminated from aerospace totals, the balance of the industry continued to decline during the entire year.

As in prior years the cuts were felt primarily in Los Angeles and Orange counties although substantial declines also occurred in the San Jose, San Diego, San Francisco-Oakland, and Sacramento metropolitan areas The relative softness in aerospace was in part responsible for the continuing high level of unemployment in these areas during most of the year

Data on prime contract awards from the Department of Defense and National Aeronautics and Space Administration indicate the sharp decline in contracts which occurred during the last fiscal year. DOD awards to California firms amounted to $5,293 million during 1970–71. This was a decline of more than 9 percent from the 1969–70 level. NASA contracts amounted to $523 million last year, a drop of 40 percent. When price increases are taken into account, these declines become even more severe, amounting to approximately 17 percent overall. The State's share of all contracts awarded nationally also declined for both DOD and NASA awards. These data are indicated in Table 13 below.

The decline in government contracts was offset in part by increased activity in the commercial sector Lockheed and McDonnell Douglas both stepped up production on their airbuses Employment is now at or near the peak level anticipated on both the L-1011 and DC-10 projects.

Outlook—There are various indications that the aerospace decline is now near an end. Data on DOD contracts for the third and fourth quarters 1971 indicate a sharp expansion from levels of the previous year. DOD awards in the third quarter 1971, for instance, amounted to $1,876 million, or 22.2 percent of the U S. total. This was a gain of 15 percent from the third quarter 1970 level. The 1972–73 Federal Budget indicates the Administration's intent to maintain and strengthen various weapons systems. Many of these contracts are with California firms. Various aircraft may receive substantial funding during the current year as well as in the budget year The decision to proceed with the space shuttle will provide a strong boost, particularly for Southern California's aerospace industry. Spending on this program is expected to amount to $300 million in fiscal 1973. Contract awards from both the DOD and NASA are therefore expected to rise during the current year. An increase of 8 percent would just maintain employment at current levels, given recent pay increases granted in the industry.

It is probable that aerospace employment will decline further in some areas of the State. Overall, a firming will occur during the year with some gradual increases possible by yearend. For 1972, as a whole, aerospace employment will amount to 435,000, down approximately one percent from the 1971 average

TRADE AND FINANCE

Finance Bank credit continued to expand during most of 1971, supported by expansionary monetary policy of the Federal reserve system. California's commercial banks, with improved reserved positions, added to their holdings of loans and investments, and at the same time substantially decreased their dependence on high-cost, non-deposit sources of funds (Eurodollar borrowings and sales of commercial paper). In the first half of 1971 this expansion took the form primarily of increased holdings of U. S. Government securities and of state and local government obligations In the second half, however, loan demand began to account for a larger proportion of the growth. For the year as a whole, total resources of the State's 144 commercial banks grew by 10 percent to almost $65 billion. Total loans were up 11 percent to $36 billion, while deposits rose 9 percent to approximately $54 billion There was a net addition of 145 banking offices in the State last year. One branch office and six representative offices were established by seven foreign banks, reflecting California's importance in foreign trade.

Interest rates declined significantly last year. The Federal reserve discount rate fell from 5½ percent at the start of 1971 to 4½ percent by yearend The prime rate also moved down a full percentage point to 5¼ percent Mortgage interest rates on conventional home loans showed a sharp drop, declining from 8 5 percent in November 1970 to 7.7 percent in November 1971 in the Los Angeles-Long Beach SMSA and 7 5 percent in the San Francisco-Oakland area.

Savings and loan associations also experienced a sharp inflow of funds during the past year. Savings capital was up 12 percent from yearend 1970 to yearend 1971.

Outlook—The recent expansion of the money supply and the ready availability of funds, combined with continuing sluggish loan demand, has exerted downward pressure on interest rates in recent weeks. The prime rate, at a current 4½ percent, now appears to be at a low for the year. Improvement in demand conditions is anticipated later in 1972, as the pace of the economic recovery accelerates. The recently announced Federal deficit for the current year will increase government demands for credit. As a result, loan rates are expected to rise during the second half of the year The current low level of interest rates have led major banks in the State to reduce the passbook savings rate from 4½ percent to 4 percent A moderate downward adjustment is also anticipated in the return on savings and loan capital, to avoid a recurrence of the disintermediation which occurred during the money-crunch of 1968 and 1969.

Trade Total taxable sales in California amounted to $46 8 billion in 1971, a gain of 8 3 percent from the prior year's level. Retail sales were up even more strongly (9 2%) led by a surge in auto sales. These rose more than 15 percent last year to an estimated $7 9 billion. Building material sales, which include purchases by contractors, were up nearly 9 percent, reflecting in part the housing boom in the State.

Data on sales by county are available for the first nine months of 1971. As will be seen from Table 14, with data for the ten largest counties in the State, sales in Los Angeles County, which account for more than a third of all sales in the State, were up only 1 9 percent from January through September, while the statewide total rose 6 6 percent. This appears to be the direct result of the 1970–71 recession, the aerospace situation, and the recent fractional decline in population in the county. Sales in the largely suburban counties in contrast, were up strongly during the year.

Outlook—Taxable sales have been projected at $49.87 billion for 1972. This will be a gain of 6 5 percent from the 1971 level. Retail sales are expected to rise by 5.8 percent to $36.4 billion The apparent slower growth in 1972 is attributable to slower price rises anticipated for this year, and to the unusual consumption pattern of 1971, which was influenced by makeup auto sales during the first quarter and a surge of buying in anticipation of future price rises following the announcement of Phase I on August 15.

TOURISM

The tourist industry in California is a major segment of the State's economy. It has been estimated that 16 million out-of-state visitors came to California last year, and contributed $3 billion to the state's economy Tourists paid $200 million in sales and gasoline taxes and $25 million in hotel and motel bed taxes alone. Reflecting the general economic slowdown, however, California tourism was up less than one percent in 1971, compared to the national average of 8.3 percent. Southern California experienced a decline in 1970–71, the first since 1958; the number of visitors was down 8.6 percent from the previous year with expenditures 9.6 percent less.

It is recognized that competition outside California for the traveler's dollar is rapidly growing in intensity. The State Office of Tourism and Visitor Services is working not merely to maintain, but rather to increase substantially, California's share of the burgeoning travel market.

Studies made in 1971 indicate that out-of-state tourists, especially from the Pacific and Great Lakes estates, make up the largest group of visitors to California. Intrastate travelers comprise the second largest class Japan, Mexico, South America, and Canada contribute heavily to the number of international visitors coming to the State.

In 1970–71, the 12 southland counties received 7.7 million vacationers, spending $1.3 billion. The majority of tourist expenditures went towards food and beverages (23 2 percent), hotels, motels, and resorts (19.1 percent) and gasoline, oil, and automotive services (12.4 percent). In addition, Southern California vacationers paid $39 6 million in retail sales tax, $12 0 million in various room taxes, and $22.4 million in gasoline tax. Most visitors to this area arrive by car, and have three or more persons in each group.

A recent San Francisco convention and visitor study reported that 1 56 million visitors stayed in San Francisco hotels and motels in 1970 and spent approximately $267 5 million in the City. A combination of business and conventions brought a majority of these visitors to San Francisco; this is in contrast to the situation in Southern California, where vacation and pleasure trips are primarily responsible for attracting people to the area. Convention attendants tend to be older, are in higher income brackets, and spend about 10 percent more than the average tourist. Approximately 41 percent of the visitors to San Francisco in 1970 were California residents. A larger proportion of Los Angeles residents visit San Francisco than residents of any other metropolitan area in the country. More than 63 percent of the visitors to San Francisco arrive by commercial airline The average party size is 1.75 persons, substantially lower than in Southern California.

THE CALIFORNIA ECONOMY TO 1980

California experienced a recession during 1970 and 1971 comparable to the downturn which occurred nationally. Although this was a temporary interruption in the long-term economic growth of the State, it emphasized that there may have been basic structural changes in California over the past several years which will invalidate prior trends. Industrial expansion patterns, population growth, and price behavior, for instance, which are three primary elements of any projection, have undergone significant changes in the State recently. Long-term projections made prior to the appearance of these changes must therefore be reevaluated

The conclusion that shifts in trend have, in fact, occurred is based on economic data available through 1971 It appears that these shifts have been related to at least some extent to the 1970–71 business cycle. On the other hand, there is no indication as yet that prior relationships will be restablished during the current recovery. A resumption of growth of various economic series in relation to changes in population, income, and general levels of activity is anticipated As a result of the changes from 1969 to 1972 or 1973, however, new long-term trends will be set They must be regarded as tentative, since economic developments of the next few years may necessitate further modification of the long-run outlook for California.

Structural changes observed have been the result of at least three developments. In the first place, population growth has occurred in recent years at a pace down sharply from historical trends During the 1950's gains averaged 4 1 percent per annum due in large part to substantial net migration to the State By 1964, growth had slowed to less than 3 percent and, for the last half of the 1960's, averaged only 1 6 percent per annum Between mid-1971 and mid-1972, it is estimated that the total resident population of the State rose by 1.2 percent. Rapid population growth stimulates economic development. Services, trade, local government, transportation and utilities are the immediate beneficiaries As local markets become increasingly important, manufacturing activity also expands. Population and economic growth therefore tend to be self-reinforcing over a number of years.

Various reasons have been offered for the slowdown in California's population expansion after the mid-1960's. While this development is beyond the scope of the present analysis, it may be noted that comparative economic strength outside California may have contributed to the situation by reducing migration to this State Economic growth figures on a per capita basis will continue to be impressive, aggregate data, however, will appear to be increasing at a slower pace.

The effect of the shift in population growth can be illustrated by employment trends in local government, with 55 percent of the jobs in this category in education activities Growth is slowing as the number of children entering the school system increases less than was anticipated a few years ago. From an average rise of 6.1 percent between 1950 and 1965, the gain in local education employment slowed to 4 percent in 1970.

Second, the decline in aerospace, which has been underway since December 1967, now appears to have reduced for years to come the relative importance of aerospace in manufacturing activity. During the 1950's and much of the 1960's, aerospace provided a stimulus to the development of manufacturing generally, through subcontracting of both research and production activity. The industry also contributed to the pattern of migration to the State during these years, with employment opportunities for highly skilled and technologically-oriented persons. Since 1968, the completion of contracts previously awarded and Federal spending cuts which have prevented replacement of these contracts have led to a 30 percent reduction in employment over the past four years Growth in related nonaerospace industries has also been affected. The Federal Budget deficit and funding requirements of various social programs appear to preclude significant increases in the level of defense and space spending for the forseeable future. The aerospace industries are therefore unlikely to provide the expansionary force underlying future economic growth in the State It seems probable that employment in this sector will grow at a moderate pace, remaining below peak levels for a number of years.

Finally, the first two factors in combination suggest that the California economy has matured into a diversified structure in which growth in the future will more nearly resemble that of the Nation as a whole. Steady expansion on a broad front at a rate consistent with population forecasts will characterize economic development for the balance of the decade. It is not probable under existing circumstances (including the type of business recovery now in progress and trends in Federal spending) that a new growth industry will blossom in the State during the next few years and provide a strong exogenous stimulus for a resumption of rapid economic gains.

This section presents projections on the California economy for 1975 and 1980. Data are shown only for the State as a whole. Using the methodology indicated, projections could also be prepared for regions or larger counties. That has not been attempted here because of the magnitude of the regional projection procedure, involving analysis for all areas in the State to assure regional forecasts consistent with the outlook for the State.

Data are given for major economic factors: population, employment, income, and construction activity. The methodology employed in deriving each series has been indicated insofar as practical The methodology indicated may also be used with different assumptions to derive new projected values. Given changing trends no long-term projection can be considered firm. It may be necessary to revise projections at regular intervals as later information becomes available on economic developments in California.

In the present study, population forecasts are independent of the economic outlook and form the basis for many of the economic series shown. No attempt has been made to develop population estimates on the basis of the economic potential indicated for the State A different set of economic projections would therefore be obtained by different assumptions relative to population growth.

The population data which follow were prepared by the Population Research Unit of the Department of Finance and were released on September 15, 1971.* Users wishing additional information on the population series are referred to the source report or to the Population Research Unit of the Department.

The following data have been incorporated into the projections for California.

EMPLOYMENT

Estimates of California employment were prepared by major sector. These projections have been tied to the forecasts currently being used by the Department for the State Budget for 1972 and 1973 and are based on data revised to the March 1971 employment benchmark Total employment was therefore derived as the sum of the individual components The civilian labor force was estimated independently on the basis of indicated changes in the participation rate—the ratio of the labor force to civilian population 16 and over. The difference between the labor force and employment represents the number of persons unemployed. Reasonableness of this series was determined from the unemployment rate.

The labor force participation rate has experienced four distinct phases since 1950. Between 1950 and 1957 the rate increased from 58 36 to 60.88 percent. From then to 1965 the rate trended down, reaching 59 12 in the latter year. Subsequently the participation rate again rose to a peak of 62.06 in 1969. The recession which started in November of that year led to sharply slower growth in the labor force. The participation rate eased slightly in 1970 to 61.91 and fell sharply in 1971 to 60.91. Current forecasts for 1972 and 1973 indicate a further decline to 60 percent by the latter year.

The rise between 1965 and 1969 reflected in large part strong levels of economic activity concurrent with the Vietnam buildup as well as the rising proportion of women in the labor market. The decline between 1970 and 1973 is consistent with recessionary developments in 1970 and 1971 and forecasts for sustained but moderate economic expansion for the next two years.

Looking at the long run, however, the participation rate has averaged about 60 percent, with the apparent phases of expansion and contraction fluctuating around this level. Since there is no evidence of a definite trend in this rate, the 1975 projection is an extension of the indicated 1969–73 swing; the 1980 level has been forecast at approximately the long-term average As a result, the labor force has been projected at 9,200,000 in 1975 and 10,280,000 for 1980.

Three methods have been used to project employment by industry. In some instances growth rates historically have been relatively constant and it is reasonable to extend this experience for the forecast period. For other industries, the ratio of employment to population appears to be a more appropriate indication. This is particularly true for transportation, communication—utilities, trade, and state and local government Industries such as construction, mining, aerospace, and agriculture have been projected on the basis of such factors as requirements for production of the industry and anticipated government spending.

Use of ratios of employment by major sector to population in forecasting employment may be misleading. In many cases the ratios will show an unmodified uptrend for long periods of time The upward trend will leave off at some point, however, and historical data suggest that this point is near for various sectors It is also possible that changes in social or economic characteristics of the population or in the technological content of given industries will cause an abrupt change in the rate of growth relative to that of the population Changes of this type are frequently difficult to recognize until they have been in existence for several years. For lack of evidence that any such changes are developing, all of the current projections are based on the assumption that no major technological breakthrough will occur in the forecast period to significantly alter labor requirements for a given level of production. The projections do allow, however, for gradual improvement in technology at the pace of the past several years.

Table 16 summarizes employment projections by industry for 1972, 1973, 1975, and 1980.

Agriculture. Agricultural employment has been on a downtrend for the past 15 years, reflecting technological advances which reduced the need for farm labor. It is likely that additional improvements in technology will occur between now and 1980, further reducing job opportunities for employment in agriculture. An additional consideration is application of the minimum wage to agriculture. It is expected that this development will encourage agricultural producers in the State to accelerate implementation of capital investment plans to reduce labor costs. The decline between 1975 and 1980, however, is expected to be relatively less rapid than the decline which has occurred since 1956. Employment in this industry has been projected at 270,000 for 1975 and 255,000 for 1980.

Mining. Employment in mineral extraction has been relatively constant during the past decade after declining from a peak of 37,300 in 1953 to approximately 30,000 at the present time Oil and gas production accounts for two-thirds of all mining employment in the State. The high degree of automation in this component of the industry permits a substantial increase in production without any addition to employment. It is not anticipated that there will be a significant rise in other mining activity. Employment has therefore been held at approximately current levels: 31,000 for 1975 and 32,000 for 1980.

Construction. Construction employment is dependent upon trends in public, residential, and nonresidential building. For the past several years the number of jobs in this industry has fluctuated around the 300,000 level The outlook for construction activity for the balance of the decade is reviewed in the section later in this report on residential building. Briefly, it is expected that nonresidential building will expand at a moderate pace while residential construction—responding to current overbuilding and rising vacancy rates—declines for several years, followed by a gradual upturn. As a result, construction employment has been forecast at 275,000 in 1975, down moderately from the 1971 level of 297,000. Between 1975 and 1980 increasing demand for housing will result in an increase in construction employment to 330,000 by the latter year.

Manufacturing. Projections of manufacturing employment have been derived from independent estimates of aerospace and nonaerospace manufacturing.

Aerospace employment in the State has declined from a peak of 616,000 in December 1967 to approximately 442,000 at the present time. Information received from the major aerospace companies in California suggests that employment has been cut to the point at which efficient operations are threatened.

It appears, however, that the readjustment period is near an end and that sales by the industry from here on will result in moderate employment increases. Defense spending will decline in the short run as a percent of gross national product, but in dollar terms will rise moderately permitting expansion of both research and development and production activities in the State. The space budget is expected to remain level for the next two years, after which gradual increases are probable. Given these factors, in conjunction with the economic expansion forecast for the Nation as a whole, employment in aerospace is expected to rise to an average 460,000 in 1975 and 520,000 in 1980 At these levels, aerospace manufacturing will account for slightly less than 30 percent of all manufacturing employment, an indication of the further diversification anticipated in manufacturing.

California has a strong base for future expansion in manufacturing The sharp decline which occurred during 1970 and 1971 in nonaerospace manufacturing employment was attributable in part to the national recession and in part to the contraction in aerospace, which supports nonaerospace manufacturing through the subcontracting process. With stabilization and subsequent moderate expansion in aerospace activity, along with general economic recovery forecast, nonaerospace employment will again increase at rates only slightly below historic levels. This component has been projected at 1,145,000 for 1975 and 1,300,000 for 1980 Total manufacturing will therefore amount 1,605,000 and 1,820,000, respectively, for these years

Communication and utilities. Employment in the communication-utilities industry is relatively constant in relation to population Although long swings have occurred, employment has averaged 1.45 per 100 civilian population 16 and over, and is currently at that level. Projections have therefore been based on population and an estimated 1.45 ratio. The total for this component has been forecast at 224,000 for 1975 and 248,000 for 1980.

Transportation. Employment in the transportation industry has been generally declining in proportion to civilian population. The decline was arrested temporarily in the mid-1960's but appears to have resumed in more recent years This decline may be attributed in part to increasing efficiency in the industry, resulting from the increasing use of containers for freight shipments Assuming that the major transition from motor and rail transportation to air has already occurred, a more moderate decline in the indicated ratio is likely for the forecast years. Transportation employment has therefore been projected at 267,000 for 1975 and 284,000 for 1980.

Trade. It appears that trade employment reflects to a large extent changes in population and disposable personal income in the State, as well as economic conditions nationally. Regression analyses based on historical data from 1950 through 1970 cannot be used to project this series, however, as there appear to have been major shifts in the relationship of trade employment to personal income between 1969 and 1971. There are no indications as to why this shift occurred It may be surmised, however, that the general hesitation in consumer spending—particularly noticeable when sales data are expressed in real terms roughly comparable to volume—and associated pressures on costs and profits, led to a reevaluation of employment requirements Acceleration of hiring for replacement and expansion will be delayed until a strong recovery is clearly in evidence. While the relative importance of trade is expected to continue to rise, the rate of gain over the long run will therefore be more moderate than would have occurred in the absence of the latest recession.

Trade employment has been forecast at 1,730,000 for 1975 and 1,950,000 for 1980. These levels indicate a slight increase in the ratio of trade employment to civilian (16 and over) and military population but at a rate moderately less than during the 1960's.

Finance-insurance-real estate. Employment in the finance-insurance-real estate group is dependent on a variety of factors The finance sector responds to changes in stock market activity and banking operations. Insurance employment appears to be related primarily to levels of population; the ratio of insurance employment to civilian population 16 and over has been relatively constant since the early 1960's Real estate employment varies with changes not only in population but in housing activity in general Overall the finance group is slowly becoming a more important part of economic activity in the State. It is anticipated that this trend will continue at least through 1980 with above average gains for this component. Employment has therefore been projected at 445,000 in 1975 and 520,000 for 1980.

Services. The rapid growth of the service section has been a major force in the postwar economic expansion nationally and in California. Typically, gains have been substantial even in recession years. It may therefore be significant that service employment gained only marginally during the latest business downturn. It is premature to conclude that this represented a secular change which will be reflected in slower expansion of the service sector in the future. For present purposes it has been assumed that service employment in relation to population will continue to rise, but at a more moderate pace than has occurred in the past. Employment has been projected at 1,470,000 for 1975 and 1,730,000 for 1980

Government. Projections of federal civilian employment depend on assumptions regarding the federal budget and the level of Federal activity in the State It has been assumed that no major military establishment (important employers of Federal civilian workers) will be closed down in California before 1980 Federal budget restraints are expected to continue for several years, discouraging any major expansion in federal employment. With the population growth forecast, not only for California, but the other western states, however, demand for additional Federal employees in regional activities in this State will increase It is therefore estimated that 330,000 Federal civilian jobs will exist in 1975. The projection for 1980 of 355,000 assumes continuation of moderate growth, and also allows for the fact that 1980 is a decennial-census year, which traditionally results in a temporary gain in Federal civilian employment.

State and local government employment has been another area of strong growth relative to population. In the past two years, however, this growth has slowed abruptly In part this appears to be attributable to financing problems encountered by State and local government units, precluding hiring at historic rates. An equally important factor of greater relevance in the longer run may be the changing composition of the population. Birth rates have slowed markedly in recent years and it is now apparent that the number of children in California schools will be lower than had earlier been anticipated for some years to come. The latter situation has been credited as one factor in reduced hiring by local government units Population projections suggest that this trend will continue. Employment in other areas of local government will continue to rise at long-term rates On balance, however, it is unlikely that this component will contribute as strongly to future economic expansion as it has to economic growth in the past While the ratio of state and local government employment to civilian population continues to rise, therefore, it does so at a slower pace than has occurred historically Employment in this sector has been projected at 1,275,000 for 1975 and 1,458,000 for 1980

Other employment. Other employment includes self-employed workers and domestic employees not included in the service category This figure is, to a large extent, extrapolated from the prior census which serves as the benchmark for the number of self-employed Data have not yet been released on employment characteristics from the 1970 Census of population. In general, however, the decreasing importance of proprietors in the economic structure of California has resulted in relatively slow growth for this sector It has been assumed that expansion will continue at this pace through 1980 Employment has therefore been projected at 820,000 in 1975 and 840,000 in 1980.

Total civilian employment is projected at 8,740,000 in 1975 and 9,800,000 in 1980 Unemployment, as noted earlier, is a residual factor representing the difference between the labor force and civilian employment Given the preceding projection, unemployment will amount to 460,000, or 5 0 percent of the labor force, in 1975 and 460,000 (4 5 percent of the labor force) in 1980. The 1980 unemployment rate for the State is therefore at approximately long-term full employment levels given the structure of the California economy

RESIDENTIAL BUILDING

Projections of residential building in the long run depend almost entirely on two factors—population growth and the rate of demolitions Other considerations such as the vacancy rate, which is important in the short run, become less important as the forecast period is extended. It is assumed that annual fluctuations in the level of residential building activity, dependent on such factors as monetary conditions, vacancy rates and the inventory of unsold or unrented units, will continue around a long-term trend Forecasting this trend thus becomes the most important aspect of projecting residential construction.

It is more probable in this industry than any other that substantial deviations from the long-term trend will occur The nature of the construction industry is such that rapid expansions may continue for several years, followed by sharply reduced levels of activity California is expected to enter the latter phase during 1972, and forecasts through 1975 take into consideration the overbuilding which is now occurring The projection for 1980, however, is based on extrapolation of the long-term demand for housing in the State and does not attempt to reflect the precise level of construction which will occur in that year It is possible that housing will exceed long-term demand levels between 1975 and 1980 so that by the latter year some moderation may occur in the number of housing units actually constructed. As with the employment estimates. no attempt has been made to forecast the exact point of the construction cycle at which the California industry will be in 1980

Data from the 1960 and 1970 Censuses of population indicate that the number of persons per housing unit has remained relatively constant at 2.9. This ratio has therefore been held through the 1970's On this basis, approximately 8,100,000 housing units will be required in the State by 1980, an increase of 16 percent from the 7,000,000 inventory which existed on April 1, 1970.

The 2.9 ratio may also be applied to changes in resident population to determine year-by-year new "basic" demand arising from population increase This method is particularly useful if a base period can be determined when the vacancy factor was at or near desired levels It appears that vacancies were at roughly 6 percent—an acceptable level—at the start of 1971. An estimate of housing demand for each year from 1971 through 1980 has therefore been developed using changes in resident population, estimated demolitions, mergers and conversions, seasonal construction, and additional vacancies required to facilitate population mobility These data are indicated in Table 3. Relatively little is known about demolitions in the State. On the basis of preliminary 1970 Census data, demolitions appear to have averaged 55,000 a year between 1960 and 1970. Lacking any specific knowledge on annual rates of demolition, a series has been constructed for the intercensal years on the assumption that a gradual increase occurred during the decade. On this basis, demolitions amounted to approximately 75,000 in 1971 and have been increased from this point by 3.5 percent a year. It should be noted however, that demolition activity may fluctuate widely from year to year with urban renewal, public housing projects, and highway programs. It has not been possible to incorporate such factors into the estimate of demolitions. The estimate for demolitions which is shown in Table 17 is therefore only an approximation of the current level and trend in demolitions Over the long run, however, cumulative differences between the estimated and actual levels are expected to be minimal.

Mergers and conversions are relatively minor factors. Mergers are the combination of several housing units into one residence. Conversions are the separation of one house into several separate living quarters. Together such changes historically have accounted for only a few hundred new units in a year.

Despite the large number of recreational land sales in the State, construction of seasonal or second housing remains relatively small. Firm data on this are not available, particularly since many residential units, which would previously have been considered seasonal, are now being used for year-round living From an estimated 3,000 in 1971, it is anticipated that construction of seasonal housing will increase gradually throughout the decade

Finally, the vacancy factor must be included. To maintain the vacancy rate at 6 percent, the level of residential building must provide additional housing units equal to 6 percent of the basic demand due to the increase in population At the present time, approximately 5,000 units are required to maintain a 6 percent vacancy rate in the more than 80,000 new units required to accommodate population gains.

The total of these various factors indicates the level of construction which can be sustained over time in the State.

It appeared that an approximate equilibrium had been achieved in California's housing situation at the start of 1971, with the supply of and demand for housing roughly in balance. This observation is reinforced by selected data on vacancy rates which were near 6 percent at that time.

As was noted in the Review and Outlook, the supply of new housing in 1971 considerably exceeded demand. Data now available indicate that 258,300 new private and public residential units were authorized during the past year In addition, 30,000 mobile homes were sold in the State The new housing supply therefore amounted to 288,300 units, or 116,700 units more than estimated demand. The current rate of building authorizations suggests that a similar situation will exist in 1972 with an increase in inventory of approximately 78,000 units. By the end of this year there will be 194,900 surplus units in the California housing market. In the short run, therefore, it is likely that a readjustment will occur in the residential construction area, resulting in a sharp contraction in the level of housing activity for a period of several years. In the longer run, however, these disparities will have been eliminated, and homebuilding activity by 1980 should approximate the levels forecast.

Mobile homes have been an important factor in satisfying housing demand in the State. It has been estimated that approximately 25,000 mobile homes will be added to the housing inventory each year from 1973 through 1980 This is moderately lower than the 1971 sales level, which was exceptionally strong. In addition, a restraining factor in the long run is expected to be the lack of adequate park facilities to accommodate expansion by more than 25,000 units a year. Conventional construction will be required to fill the balance between total demand and that supplied by mobile homes. In 1980, therefore, with total demand of 270,000 and mobile home sales of 25,000 units, approximately 245,000 conventional single-family and apartment units must be constructed.

Table 17 points up the construction cycle anticipated for the 1970's with a decline from 1972 through 1975 and a gradual buildup from that year on as the excess housing inventory now being built up is worked off.

PERSONAL INCOME

The final set of long-term projections relates to personal income. The series shown is consistent with the estimates for 1972 and 1973 shown in the Review and Outlook Section of this economic report and in the California State Budget for 1972–73.

Income was projected by major source and, within wages and salaries, by industry to assure reasonable consistency with the employment projections. For proprietors' income, property income, and transfer payments, past trends, which are reasonably constant over a span of years, were used to project the series. Other labor income and contributions for social insurance were related to wages and salaries, with adjustments for increases in the latter for rising social security contribution rates as now scheduled. To the extent that the contribution schedule for social security is revised in the future, the amount shown for contributions may be low.

Wage and salary income, however, is by far the most important component of personal income, accounting for more than two-thirds of the total Wages and salaries per worker were calculated for each major employment group (e.g , manufacturing, trade, etc.). Each per-employee wage series was then deflated by the personal consumption expenditures deflator. The change in this deflated wage series is a rough indicator of productivity trends. No consideration was taken for changes in hours worked due to lack of state data on this aspect. As a result, this indicator may slightly understate productivity gains. It was then necessary to project the productivity factor and the personal consumption expenditures deflator, and apply the wages and salary level per employee thereby derived to the estimate of employment for each industry. Table 18 summarizes the methodology for the span 1975–80 for each industry. Data for the preceding years is available on request from the Department of Finance.

The complete forecast of California income by source is shown in Table 19. These data will be revised periodically as actual figures on succeeding years are received.

The total for income derived from this methodology was checked to determine if trends in employment, hours, productivity, and prices were internally consistent. It was assumed, for instance, that average weekly hours will rise in 1972 by 0.1 hour and decline by approximately 0.1 hour per annum for the remainder of the forecast period, continuing the long-term historical trend in this series. Applying hours to total civilian and military employment in the State gave an estimate of annual man-hours. Personal income in current dollars was divided by the price rise from the base year—in this instance, taken as 1971—to determine personal income in constant dollars. The constant dollar figure divided by man-hours produced an estimate of real income per man-hour. The average annual change in this series is again roughly equivalent to productivity. It appears, therefore, that productivity in California will rise by about 1.4 percent in 1972, approximately 1 percent in 1973, 1.9 percent for 1973–75, and 2 3 percent between 1975 and 1980.

These estimates of productivity are slightly lower than those which obtain nationally. Several years ago, after publication of long-term estimates of California personal income, the Department received comments from several people that the productivity factor used at that time, which ranged between 2.5 and 3 5 percent, was higher than had occurred historically in the State The revised methodology suggests that this criticism is valid and that productivity gains in the State are slightly lower than in the Nation. To some extent, this may be due to the large service component in California and the fact that manufacturing, which is traditionally an area of high productivity, is less important in the State than nationally Table 20 summarizes this check of the personal income projections to 1980.

The projections indicated for employment, construction activity, and personal income, if realized, will reflect strong, well-balanced growth in California. With continuing diversification of the economic base, the impact of fluctuations due to sector adjustments—such as have occurred in recent years in aerospace—can be diminished. It is anticipated, however, that cyclical swings, reflecting national expansion and recession, will still take place around the long-term trend in the State. While the data presented for 1980 are an estimate of general levels, and a guide to growth rates in the 1970's, they do not purport to represent more than an approximation of where the California economy will be in 1980. It is intended that these data will be revised periodically as later information becomes available.
