Lord, You speak to us in a still, small voice (1Kings 19:12), and we learn to hear Your voice little by little. It may be a feeling at night, to turn off the television and go to bed; or at the mall, being uneasy about making a certain purchase. Help us to pay attention to what we're feeling, not to ignore our own impressions or inclinations. Because when You speak, Lord, it's usually very subtle. Thank You for leading and guiding us, and for giving us time to get quiet and listen to.—AMEN.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE MEETINGS

By unanimous consent, the following committee was permitted to meet:

REPORTS

The following letter of transmittal was presented by the Chief Clerk and ordered printed in the Journal:

California State Auditor

2014-113
January 29, 2015

*The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California
State Capitol, Room 3196
Sacramento, California*

Members of the Assembly: As requested by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, the California State Auditor presents this audit report concerning the California Department of Public Health's (Public Health) diabetes prevention programs.

This report concludes that Public Health could expand its efforts to address diabetes in California with additional funding. Diabetes—a chronic disease affecting one out of 12 adults in California—is a growing epidemic that drains the health and economic well-being of families, employers, and communities. For instance, the American Diabetes Association estimated that, in 2012, the annual health care and related costs of treating diabetes in California were roughly $27.5 billion. However, until recently securing two additional federal grants, Public Health's spending on diabetes prevention had declined over time—due to reductions in federal funding—from more than $1 million in previous fiscal years to $817,000 in fiscal year 2013–14. In fiscal year 2012–13, the most recent year for which nationwide data is available, California had the lowest per capita funding for diabetes prevention in the nation. One reason for this is that California does not provide any state funding for diabetes prevention, while several other states do.

Although Public Health recently received two additional federal grants that will add millions of dollars to its diabetes prevention efforts, it has still not been able to expand its diabetes prevention activities to many of the counties in the State that have a high prevalence of diabetes. Further, although it appears to spend federal funds on allowable activities and employs well-qualified staff, Public Health is limited in its ability to find and apply for federal grants because all of its diabetes prevention staff are fully funded by federal grants and therefore must spend their time on existing grant-related activities. Consequently, other than a manager who has numerous other duties, it does not have a staff member who can routinely search and apply for diabetes-related grants.

As a result, Public Health was not aware of two federal grants we identified, each worth up to $500,000 per year, for which it was eligible to apply. To have a real effect on the prevalence of diabetes in California, Public Health needs to continue to try to secure funding for its diabetes prevention efforts. To this end, we recommend that state lawmakers provide funding for a grants specialist position within Public Health—a position that could focus on identifying and applying for federal and other grants to fight the growing epidemic of diabetes in California.

Respectfully submitted,

ELAINE M. HOWLE, CPA
State Auditor

Above report referred to the Committee on Health.
