PRAYER

In observance of the Day of Remembrance for Japanese Americans interned during World War II, Speaker pro Tempore Keeley invited Rev. Kosho Yukawa of the Buddhist Church of Sacramento to offer the morning prayer.

Honored Members of the Assembly . . . Good Morning!

Thank you very much for the invitation to join you this morning observing the Day of Remembrance. Please join me in a moment of meditation and reflection.

Buddhist life is to aspire to live a life of the way of Bodhisattva. The Bodhisattva practice is to benefit self and others at the same time, through one's actions of words, deeds and thoughts.

Bodhisattva practice is to be a medicine for the sick and weary, nursing them until their afflictions are gone forever: protector of the helpless, a guide for travelers and their means of crossing a stream, a lamp for those who need a lamp, a bed for those who need a bed, a friend for those who need a friend.

Bodhisattva practice is to aspire for all beings in the paths of existence to be released from their afflictions; the state to continue in peaceful prosperity with all its hostile activities stopped; the wind to blow in time, the rain to fall seasonably, and the people to live happily.

And Bodhisattva practice is to realize the impermanence of all existences, that everything is constantly changing and nothing stays the same. Because our life is impermanent, we must treasure our existence and live each day with respect and gratitude.

And, we close our mediation and reflection with the following Bodhisattva thoughts: "May all find happiness through my actions and let no one suffer because of me. And, may we truly realize the inter-dependency of all existences and live a life of respect and reverence to all."

Namoamidabutsu.
