Spirit of Life, We know You by many names or no name at all. Here, members of Your human family from the north and the south, from the east and the west of this state are gathered—called to serve. Give us presence of mind to listen deeply, speak with care, and always act for peace, for good, and for healing.

Spirit of Love, Knowing that we can only see what lies just ahead of us, guide our steps and encourage companionship to lend each other a hand or an arm along the way.

Gracious Spirit of Justice, You have brought us to this new day of possibility and hope. Inspire us to follow Your teachings. As we recess to our constituents, empower us to engage in conversations that will shed light and compassion, and support for our important actions this year. And may we all be reminded, in what has gone before and in what is yet to come, that You are indeed faith, hope, and love.

The following letter of transmittal was presented by the Chief Clerk and ordered printed in the Journal:

California State Auditor

2020-102
March 25, 2021

*The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California
State Capitol, Room 3196
Sacramento, California*

Members of the Assembly: As directed by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, my office conducted an audit of Alameda, Fresno, and Los Angeles counties and the Board of State and Community Corrections (Corrections Board). Our assessment focused on public safety realignment, and we determined that these three counties and the Corrections Board have not done enough to mitigate the effects of realignment or effectively oversee related spending and services.

Among the effects that these counties have experienced since 2011, when the Legislature transferred from the State to counties the responsibility for incarcerating and supervising certain offenders, are the following:

- Fresno and Los Angeles have experienced increased jail overcrowding, and neither county has met the State's jail capacity standards by reducing its jail population or taking other mitigating actions.
- Alameda and Fresno do not share sufficient information about inmates' mental health with jail staff, who are responsible for deciding about inmates' housing and safety.
- The counties' jails often lack adequate outdoor and educational facilities to provide certain vocational and rehabilitative programs for inmates who serve terms longer than three years.

To support the counties' realignment responsibilities and offset the costs of providing required public safety services, the State allocated $6 billion to California's counties in fiscal year 2019–20. However, because the three counties we reviewed have narrowly interpreted the scope of public safety realignment funding, their Community Corrections Partnership committees—responsible for monitoring such spending—have overseen less than 20 percent of the funding the counties receive. Each county also maintains excessive realignment surpluses, which they could spend to improve public safety. Finally, the counties lack comprehensive planning and oversight for realignment spending, without which they cannot make informed decisions.

The Corrections Board has also narrowly interpreted the scope of realignment funding and it has not provided counties with sufficient guidance to report consistent information. As a result, the Corrections Board's reports to the Legislature are incomplete and inconsistent, which hinders the Legislature's ability to evaluate the effects of public safety realignment.

Respectfully submitted,

ELAINE M. HOWLE, CPA
California State Auditor

Above report referred to the Committee on Public Safety.
