REPORTS

The following letters of transmittal were presented by the Chief Clerk and ordered printed in the Journal:

California State Auditor

2023-102.1

April 9, 2024

*The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly
The Honorable Members of the Assembly
of the Legislature of California
State Capitol, Room 319
Sacramento, California*

Members of the Assembly: The Joint Legislative Audit Committee requested an audit of the State's homelessness funding, including an evaluation of the efforts undertaken by the State and two cities to monitor the cost-effectiveness of such spending. The following report (2023-102.1) focuses primarily on the State's activities, in particular the California Interagency Council on Homelessness (Cal ICH)—while a separate report (2023-102.2) details our findings and conclusions for the two cities we reviewed—San José and San Diego. In general, this report concludes that the State must do more to assess the cost-effectiveness of its homelessness programs.

The State lacks current information on the ongoing costs and outcomes of its homelessness programs, because Cal ICH has not consistently tracked and evaluated the State's efforts to prevent and end homelessness. Although Cal ICH reported in 2023 financial information covering fiscal years 2018–19 through 2020–21 related to all state-funded homelessness programs, it has not continued to track and report this data since that time, despite the significant amount of additional funding the State awarded to these efforts in the past two years. Cal ICH has also not aligned its action plan to end homelessness with its statutory goals to collect financial information and ensure accountability and results. Thus, it lacks assurance that the actions it takes will effectively enable it to achieve those goals. Another significant gap in the State's ability to assess programs' effectiveness is that it does not have a consistent method for gathering information on the costs and outcomes for individual programs.

We also reviewed five state-funded homelessness programs to assess their cost-effectiveness. After comparing reported costs and outcomes to alternative possible courses of action, we determined that the Department of Housing and Community Development's Homekey program and the California Department of Social Services' CalWORKS Housing Support Program appear to be cost-effective. However, we were unable to assess the cost-effectiveness of three other programs we reviewed because the State has not collected sufficient data on the outcomes of these programs. Among the recommendations we make is that the Legislature mandate reporting by state agencies on the costs and outcomes of their homelessness programs and that it require Cal ICH to compile and publicly report this information.

Respectfully submitted,

GRANT PARKS
California State Auditor

Above report referred to the Committee on Housing and Community Development.

California State Auditor

2023-102.2
April 9, 2024

*The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly
The Honorable Members of the Assembly
of the Legislature of California
State Capitol, Room 319
Sacramento, California*

Members of the Assembly: The Joint Legislative Audit Committee requested an audit of the State's homelessness funding, including an evaluation of the efforts undertaken by the State and two cities to monitor the cost-effectiveness of such spending. We published a separate report (2023-102.1) that details our findings related to the State's activities. This report (2023-102.2) focuses primarily on the activities of the two cities we reviewed, San José and San Diego, and it concludes that the cities must do more to better evaluate their efforts to reduce homelessness.

San José and San Diego identified hundreds of millions of dollars in spending of federal, state, and local funding in recent years to respond to the homelessness crisis. However, neither city could definitively identify all its revenues and expenditures related to its homelessness efforts because neither has an established mechanism, such as a spending plan, to track and report its spending. The absence of such a mechanism limits the transparency and accountability of the cities' uses of funding to address homelessness.

Although both cities provide tens of millions of dollars for homelessness programs and services through agreements with external service providers, such as nonprofits, neither city evaluated the effectiveness of its agreements. San Diego has generally established clear performance measures, such as specifying the number of people the service provider will assist, to enable it to assess whether the providers' efforts are an effective use of funds. However, San José has not consistently done so. Furthermore, neither city has evaluated the effectiveness of the programs it provides to address the profound health and safety risks associated with unsheltered homelessness.

Both cities use interim housing as a way to provide shelter for people experiencing homelessness, but they both need to develop additional permanent housing. Data consistently show that placements into permanent housing results in significantly better outcomes than placements into interim housing. The cities have each made efforts to develop additional interim and permanent housing; however, neither has a clear, long-term plan to ensure that they have the housing necessary.

We recommend that San José and San Diego each publicly report on all of their homelessness funding, assess the effectiveness of their spending, and better plan to meet their permanent housing needs.

Respectfully submitted,

GRANT PARKS
California State Auditor

Above report referred to the Committee on Housing and Community Development.
