REPORTS

The following letter of transmittal was presented by the Chief Clerk and ordered printed in the Journal:

California State Auditor

2013-124
June 24, 2014

*The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California
State Capitol, Room 3196
Sacramento, California*

Members of the Assembly: As requested by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, the California State Auditor presents this audit report concerning sexual harassment and sexual violence at certain California universities. Sexual harassment and sexual violence against university students is an issue of critical importance and prohibited by law. Our audit focused on four universities: the University of California, Berkeley; the University of California, Los Angeles; California State University, Chico; and San Diego State University.

This report concludes that the universities do not ensure that all faculty and staff are sufficiently trained on responding to and reporting student incidents of sexual harassment and sexual violence. Although staff involved in key roles of the incident-reporting process receive adequate training, certain other employees who are likely to be the first point of contact, such as resident advisors and athletic coaches, do not. By not ensuring that employees are sufficiently trained on responding to and reporting incidents of sexual harassment and sexual violence, the universities risk having their employees mishandle student reports of the incidents. In addition, the universities must do more to appropriately educate students on sexual harassment and sexual violence. The universities should ensure that incoming students receive this education near the time that they arrive on campus, as they may be the most vulnerable to experiencing an incident of sexual harassment or sexual violence in their first weeks on campus. The universities should also provide periodic refresher training, at least annually, to all continuing students. Further, universities should ensure that the content of the education on sexual violence covers all topics outlined in statute.

None of the four universities consistently complied with requirements in state law for distribution of policies to inform students and university employees of how to appropriately respond to and handle incidents of sexual violence and sexual harassment. Further, the universities did not post their policies in certain prominent locations on campus where they might be seen by large numbers of students, such as residence halls and other university housing and athletic facilities. Although state law does not specifically require posting the policies in these key locations, they could serve as critical places to inform and remind students of the policies.

Each university we reviewed has an adequate overall process for responding to incidents of sexual harassment and sexual violence; however, the universities need to improve these processes in some key areas. The universities should do more to demonstrate that students who may have experienced sexual harassment or sexual violence are informed of their reporting options and what to expect regarding the universities' subsequent actions. The universities also need to better inform students who file a complaint of the status of the investigation and the eventual outcome. Finally, the universities need to evaluate summary data related to incidents of sexual harassment and sexual violence. Evaluation of these data would allow the universities to identify trends, which could then inform their outreach and protection efforts.

Respectfully submitted,

ELAINE M. HOWLE, CPA
State Auditor

Above report referred to the Committee on Higher Education.
