REQUEST FOR UNANIMOUS CONSENT TO PRINT IN JOURNAL

Assembly Member Calderon was granted unanimous consent that the following statement of legislative intent relative to Senate Bill No. 98 be printed in the Journal:

Legislative Intent—Senate Bill No. 98

June 26, 2020

Sue Parker

*Chief Clerk of the Assembly
State Capitol, Room 3196
Sacramento, California*

Dear Ms. Parker: I submit this letter to the Journal for the purpose of clarifying the intent of SB 98, which was introduced to enact statutes relating to the 2020 Budget Act. Specifically, Section 34 of the bill addresses the ability of Local Educational Agencies (LEAs) to offer distance learning in the 2020–21 school year.

Section 34 of SB 98 intends to provide LEAs with flexibility in the manner in which K–12 instruction is provided to meet the needs of students, families, and the community during the COVID-19 pandemic.

While it is the intent of the Legislature that LEAs offer in-person instruction in 2020–21 to the greatest extent possible, Section 43503 of this bill allows LEAs to offer distance learning under either of the following circumstances:

“(A) On a local educational agency or schoolwide level as a result of an order or guidance from a state public health officer or a local public health officer.

(B) For pupils who are medically fragile or would be put at risk by in-person instruction, or who are self-quarantining because of exposure to COVID-19.”

Section 43503 subparagraph (2) of subdivision (a) refers to the need for LEAs to consult and collaborate with state or local public health officials in determining whether to offer distance learning for a particular site or LEA-wide, and to follow any related public health orders. This section is not intended to require an LEA to seek out or receive approval from a state or local public health officer prior to adopting a distance learning model. This section is also not intended to prevent an LEA from adopting a distance learning, hybrid, or mixed-delivery instructional model to ensure safety. Instead this section is intended to grant flexibility to an LEA to determine what instructional model the LEA will adopt during the COVID-19 Pandemic, taking into account the needs of their students and staff, and their available infrastructure, provided the model adheres to an applicable state or local public health order or guidance.

Also, this section refers to the circumstances by which an LEA may provide distance learning for individual students. The intent of this language is to allow LEAs to offer distance learning based on the unique circumstances of each student. The language makes allowances for medically fragile students, and those in self-quarantine, but also for those students who would be put at-risk by an in-person instructional model. The statute does not define “would be put at-risk by in-person instruction” and as such, does not require an LEA to verify or make a determination that a request for this allowance meets a specific standard. This section contemplates that LEAs may provide distance learning to students with varying circumstances—whether the student has health conditions, family members with health conditions, cohabitates or regularly interacts with high-risk individuals, or is otherwise identified as “at-risk” by the parent or guardian.

As such, Section 43503 of SB 98 provides flexibility for LEAs to provide instruction in a way that reflects state and local public health needs, and respects the specific circumstances of individual students during the COVID-19 Pandemic.

Thank you for this opportunity to clarify the intent of SB 98.

Sincerely,

PHILIP Y. TING, Chair
Assembly Budget Committee

Legislative Intent—Assembly Bill No. 78

June 26, 2020

Sue Parker

*Chief Clerk of the Assembly
State Capitol, Room 3196
Sacramento, California*

Dear Ms. Parker: The Assembly Committee on Budget, which I chair, has authored Assembly Bill 78 that establishes a Climate Catalyst Revolving Loan Fund at the Infrastructure and Economic Development Bank to receive funds from non-state governmental entities and private sources for the purpose of making loans for climate catalyst projects that further the state's climate goals. These moneys are available for expenditure upon appropriation by the Legislature. I submit this letter to the Assembly Daily Journal for the purpose of clarifying the intent of the use of these funds.

In the past, the Legislature has limited the expenditure of state funds so that they are not allocated for the purchase of fully automated cargo handling equipment. "Fully automated" means "cargo handling equipment that is remotely operated or remotely monitored with or without the exercise of human intervention or control."

To the extent, it is allowable and consistent with the purposes of any dollars this Climate Catalyst Revolving Loan Fund might receive, the legislative intent is to not appropriate these funds for the purchase of fully automated cargo handling equipment.

Thank you for the opportunity to clarify this matter.

Sincerely,

PHILIP Y. TING, Chair
Assembly Budget Committee

REPORTS

The following letters of transmittal were presented by the Speaker and ordered printed in the Journal:

California State Auditor

2019-121
March 26, 2020

*The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California
State Capitol, Room 3196

Members of the Assembly: As directed by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, my office conducted an audit of the California Department of Food and Agriculture (Food and Agriculture). Our assessment focused on the Pet Lover's specialized license plate program (Pet Lover's program), and the following report details the audit's findings and conclusions. In general, we determined that Food and Agriculture used a significantly flawed selection process in awarding grants for funding free or low-cost animal sterilization services and that although the Pet Lover's program is at risk of failure due to declining revenue, Food and Agriculture has not adequately responded to this risk to ensure that the program remains viable.

In our review, we found that Food and Agriculture failed to verify the eligibility of grant applicants before awarding grants, which resulted in grants to two ineligible entities. Further, Food and Agriculture's grant selection process was unfair. Food and Agriculture relied on a single review of each application, but one reviewer consistently scored applications lower than the other reviewers, which likely disadvantaged certain applications. In addition, Food and Agriculture did not always select the highest scoring applications for grant awards.

We also found that revenue for the Pet Lover's program has declined over the past five years. In fiscal year 2018–19, expenditures exceeded revenue, which could jeopardize the program's ability to fulfill its mission to fund free or low-cost animal sterilization services. Nevertheless, Food and Agriculture has neglected opportunities to market the program and has done little to try to increase revenue.

Respectfully submitted,

ELAINE M. HOWLE, CPA

Members of the Assembly: As directed by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, my office conducted an audit of California State University (CSU) campuses' charging of campus-based student fees (mandatory fees). Our assessment focused on mandatory fees at four CSU campuses, as well as the role of the CSU Office of the Chancellor (Chancellor's Office) in overseeing those fees. This report concludes that mandatory fees represent an increasing financial burden to students and do not receive the same oversight as other sources of CSU revenue, such as tuition and state General Fund support.

Growth in mandatory fees has made CSU attendance increasingly expensive. The mandatory fee amount, averaged across all 23 CSU campuses, increased by 56 percent—from $1,047 to $1,633—from academic years 2011–12 through 2019–20. The majority of students at the campuses we reviewed paid for mandatory fee costs without help from financial aid, using student loans or paying out-of-pocket instead. Tuition, which increased only $270 over the same period, has been relatively stable because of tuition freezes that the Legislature negotiated with the CSU. Campuses told us that they had to establish and increase mandatory fees because of insufficient state funding. However, even though the CSU now receives more combined tuition and General Fund revenue per student than it did before the onset of the last state budget crisis in fiscal year 2007–08, campuses have not decreased their mandatory fees in response.

We also determined that campuses use significant amounts of mandatory fee revenue to support core CSU functions, such as funding faculty and academic support staff; purchasing instructional materials, equipment, and software; and paying for physical improvements to academic spaces. In other words, campuses are using mandatory fees to pay for the same expenses and functions that tuition and the General Fund allocations support. However, mandatory fees do not receive the same oversight as those other revenue sources, and they circumvent certain requirements that the Legislature put in place to ensure accountability to students.

Finally, flaws in the Chancellor's Office's fee policy—and in its enforcement of that policy—have also led to instances of campuses establishing or increasing mandatory fees without adequately justifying the need or sufficiently consulting with students. There is currently little chance that campuses will reduce or eliminate mandatory fees unless the Legislature makes significant changes to the current system.

Members of the Assembly: As directed by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, my office conducted an audit to evaluate five counties' spending and reporting of the funds they each received pursuant to the Juvenile Justice Crime Prevention Act (JJCPA). In addition, JLAC requested my office to assess each county's decision-making processes and evaluations of programs supported with those funds. We reviewed Kern, Los Angeles, Mendocino, San Joaquin, and Santa Barbara counties and determined that county and state oversight of the JJCPA is weak, counties misreported or failed to include information in the reports that they submitted to the State, and the Legislature should stabilize the amount of JJCPA funding provided to counties.

Regarding planning, the JJCPA requires that each county take a multiagency approach to reducing juvenile crime and delinquency. To achieve such an approach, each county should establish its own Juvenile Justice Coordinating Council (Coordinating Council) with responsibility for developing and approving the county's comprehensive multiagency juvenile justice plan (comprehensive plan). However, we found that Mendocino and as many as 10 other counties within the State did not have Coordinating Councils. Of the four other counties we reviewed, Kern and Los Angeles had councils, but those councils did not always have the required representatives. Furthermore, those counties with Coordinating Councils made only limited revisions to their comprehensive plans during the last 20 years, despite significant changes to juvenile justice during the same period.

We also found that the Board of State and Community Corrections (Community Corrections) could improve its oversight of the JJCPA. Specifically, Community Corrections' review of plans and reports that the counties submit could address many of the shortcomings we identified. Although state law does not explicitly require it to oversee the JJCPA, the law does require Community Corrections to collect and post the comprehensive plans and year-end reports counties submit. However, we found that some counties misreported information about their JJCPA-funded programs or failed to include required information in the reports they submitted to Community Corrections. Without adequate oversight of counties' submissions, Community Corrections risks reporting inaccurate information to key stakeholders about counties' use of JJCPA funds.

Finally, the five counties we reviewed generally expressed concerns about an increasing amount of unguaranteed JJCPA funds. One of the two allocations that counties receive to fund the JJCPA can change from year to year. This fluctuation results in counties' inability to anticipate their total JJCPA funding; therefore, we believe that the Legislature should increase predictability by acting to stabilize the amount of JJCPA funding the State allocates to counties.

Members of the Assembly: As required by Health and Safety Code section 8028, my office conducted an audit of the University of California's (university) compliance with the federal Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act of 1990 (NAGPRA) and its 2001 California counterpart, CalNAGPRA. These acts establish requirements for the repatriation, or return, of Native American human remains and cultural objects (remains and artifacts) to tribes by government agencies and museums—which include the university's campuses—that maintain collections of remains and artifacts. This report concludes that the university's inadequate policies and oversight have resulted in inconsistent practices for returning Native American remains and artifacts among the university campuses we reviewed at Berkeley, Davis, and Los Angeles.

Different approaches employed at the campuses have likely contributed to the fact that Los Angeles has repatriated nearly all of the remains and artifacts from its collection, while Berkeley has returned only about 20 percent. The university's Office of the President (Office of the President) allowed these inconsistencies to persist by failing to provide adequate guidance to the campuses and oversight of their practices and decision-making. In fact, a 2018 amendment to CalNAGPRA required the university to create a policy for repatriation and establish systemwide and campus committees to review repatriation activity. However, the university failed to adequately incorporate tribal perspectives during the policy's initial development, and the Office of the President had to extend its timeline to finalize the policy to obtain these perspectives. Nevertheless, the draft policy we reviewed does not create the consistency across the campuses required by CalNAGPRA.

We also found that the campus and systemwide committees do not have the tribal representation that state law requires to ensure balance between university and tribal representatives. According to the campuses and the Office of the President, they have not revised their committees' membership to comply with state law because they are waiting for finalization of the university's policy. However, until campuses and the Office of the President revise the membership of the committees, the university will fail to comply with CalNAGPRA.

Finally, the intent of CalNAGPRA was to allow more California tribes to pursue repatriation, but a 2015 change in federal regulations has sharply reduced the number of California tribes permitted to make repatriation claims. As a result, in order to fulfill CalNAGPRA's original intent, the Legislature will have to amend requirements for tribes to qualify to make repatriation claims.
