PRAYER

Upon invitation of Speaker pro Tempore Mullin, the following prayer was offered by Assembly Chaplain Rev. Patti Oshita:

Please join me in a moment of reflection.

During the summer break, we'd like to recommend creating completely unscheduled moments; perhaps even a whole day or two. Such unscheduled time is known to help with our mental and emotional well-being. Let's create time to be with people so close that we can be comfortable together in silence. Maybe carve out a long moment with no agenda or list of things to do.

Some of the fondest memories my husband Bob and I have, are when we have meandered through unscheduled days with no destination and no agenda. Our lives become open to discovering new places, interesting people and unique shops and restaurants. We've done this in many places we've traveled in the world, and it has always proved to be a relaxing adventure.

Spending an entire day with someone so close, that we can be together in silence, reminds us to not-take-for-granted our special friendship. With less talk and more laughter, we quietly remember again what is really of value in life.

It's not the things we own or possess that give meaning to our lives. It will always be the people we love that give meaning and purpose to each day. So, during the summer break ahead, let's all try to create completely unscheduled moments to be with family and dear friends. Such unscheduled time will help us to remember again what is really of value in living each day.

—Namo Amida Butsu, with kindness and gratitude beyond words.

REPORTS

The following letter of transmittal was presented by the Speaker and ordered printed in the Journal:

California State Auditor

2018-128
July 11, 2019

*The Honorable Speaker of the Assembly
The Honorable Members of the Assembly of the Legislature of California
State Capitol, Room 3196
Sacramento, California*

Members of the Assembly: As directed by the Joint Legislative Audit Committee, the California State Auditor conducted an audit of the timeliness of the provision of medical care to the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) employees and inmates who sustained work-related injuries (injured workers). The State Compensation Insurance Fund (SCIF) administers the workers' compensation claims process for many state agencies and departments, including CDCR, and this report concludes that both CDCR and SCIF largely complied with applicable state laws and policies for promptly facilitating necessary medical treatment.

Our audit focused on determining the timeliness of claims approvals and the provision of medical treatment for a selection of workers' compensation claims for both CDCR employees and inmates following a work-related injury. We also reviewed how long it took injured workers to be released from medical care and to return to work. State law requires SCIF to make a decision within certain time frames about whether an employer, such as CDCR, is financially responsible for the medical treatment resulting from a work-injury claim. In the selection of 30 employee and 36 inmate claims we reviewed from three correctional facilities, CDCR and SCIF took the necessary steps to comply with time requirements in most cases. Any late claims or liability decisions did not affect injured workers' access to medical care.

We also found that medical care providers treated all injured workers promptly, and CDCR and SCIF authorized requested treatments within required time frames. Injured employees generally recovered from injuries more slowly than inmates, but the time it takes for injured workers to recover can vary greatly, even among comparable injuries, and depends on variables such as the severity of the injury and the worker's health history. How quickly a worker returns to work can depend on the injured worker's ability to perform job duties and the employer's ability to accommodate work restrictions because of the injury.

Overall, the employees and inmates whose cases we reviewed received the necessary care through established and medical industry-approved processes within reasonable time frames. We did not identify any notable, systemic negative effects or areas for the processes to become more efficient. Therefore, we do not make any recommendations in this report.

Respectfully submitted,

ELAINE M. HOWLE, CPA
California State Auditor

Above report referred to the Committee on Insurance.
