CROSS-REFERENCE TABLE No. 1

EVIDENCE CODE TO COMPARABLE SECTIONS

Compiled by California Law Revision Commission

Table I indicates as to each section of the Evidence Code the comparable provisions of the California law in effect on January 1, 1965, that are superseded by the Evidence Code. Where the table indicates that a section in the Evidence Code supersedes an existing provision, the section replacing the existing provision may duplicate the superseded section or may be narrower or broader than the superseded section.

Where a particular section of the existing law is superseded by more than one section of the Evidence Code, that fact is indicated by an asterisk (*) after the number of the superseded section. (Table II indicates the various Evidence Code sections that supersede a particular section of existing law.)

The source of each section in the Evidence Code that does not supersede a specific provision in existing law is listed as "New." For example, some sections in the Evidence Code (principally the preliminary provisions and definitions) are based on comparable provisions in other recently enacted California codes, such as the Commercial Code and the Vehicle Code, and do not supersede any specific provision in existing law.

SUPERSEDED SECTIONS TO EVIDENCE CODE

Compiled by California Law Revision Commission

Table II indicates as to each superseded section of the California law in effect on January 1, 1965, the comparable provisions of the Evidence Code. Where the table indicates that an existing section is superseded by a provision in the Evidence Code, the provision replacing the existing section may duplicate the superseded section or may be narrower or broader than the superseded section.

The disposition of an existing section that is not superseded by a specific provision in the Evidence Code is listed as "Not continued."

In addition to Evidence Code references, Table II also contains a reference to sections added to other codes that continue the substance of an existing section that is repealed but is not a proper subject for inclusion in the Evidence Code.
